FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage at New York, N. Y.
© COPYRIGHT 1962 BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
Vol. 228 No. 6 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1962 80 PAGES

'DON'T MAKE STARS FALL-GUYS'

Legit Integrated in Dixie Altho Miss. & 3 Other States Still Tabu

By JESSE GROSS

Mississippi, which has reluctantly bowed to integration on the university level after a series of delaying tactics and a riot in which two men were killed, is one of the few southern states closed to professional legit this season because of segregationist policies. Alabama, Louisiana and South Carolina are three other states where professional legit performances are barred because of rigidly enforced laws requiring the segregation of theatre audiences.

The situation in the south for professional legit is generally not as desperate, however, as originally anticipated when it was agreed a year ago between Actors Equity and the League of N.Y. Theatres to outlaw performances in segregated theatres beginning last June,
(Continued on page 68)

'Prez' Repairs Still Under Way For 3 Wks. in D.C.

Washington, Oct. 2.

"Mr. President" is "unfrozen." "Everybody is hard at work," says producer Leland Hayward. Top-to-bottom revisions in writing, music, staging and dance are underway, he adds, and the show may not be "frozen" again "until about 15 minutes before we open in New York."

The musical was originally "frozen" for its last three performances in Boston. But it opened here Sept. 25 at the National Theatre before the highest ranking crowd ever gathered for a single legit performance and drew unanimous negative reviews from the three Washington newspapers. The audience, too, never seemed to warm to the show.

While the critics were reacting
(Continued on page 68)

AMERICANA MAKING WEIGHT IN BANQUETS

Americana Hotel, new Loew's-Tisch de luxe hotel on 7th Ave. and 52d St., New York, claims it has "that much business booked for the next five years as it cost to open the class 50-story, $50,000,000 hotel."

A $10,000,000 convention and banquet biz gross per annum is not beyond the realm of reality, especially in light of the intensive way in which Claudius Charles Philippe, exec veepee and g.m. of the Americana, has been pitching for and luring away some of the competition's choicest affairs.

BASEBALLERS-DORSEY IN Q.&A.-JAZZ TOUR

Baseball and music will ride tandem on the concert circuit this season. Five ballplayers have been set to deliver sports talks as adjunct to the show put on by the Tommy Dorsey Orch with Sam Donahue.

The ballplayers set by Tino Barzie, Dorsey orch's manager, are Jimmy Piersall of the Washington Senators and Bill Skowran, Clete
(Continued on page 78)

'BAD MGT.' CITED BY TONY CURTIS

By VINCENT CANBY

Stars have been "bum-rapped" for the state of the U.S. film industry long enough. It's about time that the blame was properly placed—namely on the "bad management" of some of the companies. So says a highly articulate Tony Curtis who is "fed up to here" with the widely reported condemnations of stars re salaries, set temperament, personal behavior, etc.

"A star is going for broke every time his name appears on a
(Continued on page 78)

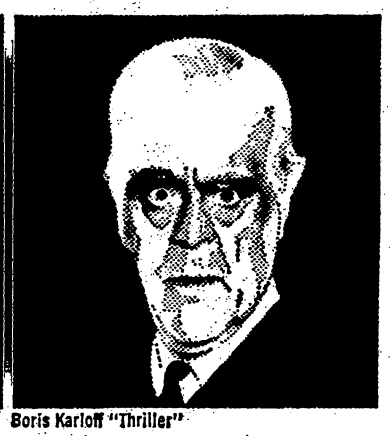
PLUGS BY 'CASEY' AIDES MAY GET CODE SURGERY

Washington, Oct. 2.

The Television Code may put the clamps on "Ben Casey" show characters going commercial.

Code Authority is considering proposals to "clarify and strengthen" its so-called "Men In White" provisions. The possible action is a result of queries from the New York office regarding pub service announcements by Dr. Zorba and
(Continued on page 78)

Nitery Near Cape Canaveral Signs Della Reese Despite Racial Rumbles



Miami, Oct. 2.

Cocoa Beach, Fla., where Negro chirp Della Reese recently signed to play the Starlite Motel, has been taking on Mississippi overtones. A hot fight over the color line developed among the local politicos, the citizenry and the club. Sudden issue caused the Starlite much concern over its pact with the singer.

As it stands now, the thrush is set to open Oct. 15 in Cocoa Beach but the first two days of her gig will be played at the local high school to a Negro audience. Then she'll finish out the week at the Starlite, for the ofays. Miss Reese will be living in a private house at Cocoa and will be attended by six police officers. She had originally been set to open Sept. 24 but the situation plus a booking at New York's Basin Street East put it off. She's the first Negro to work
(Continued on page 78)

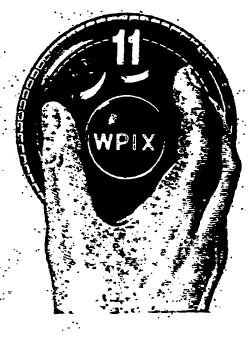
Steve Allen "The Steve Allen Show"

Groucho Marx "The Best of Groucho"

Boris Karloff "Thriller"

WPIX-11 IS LOOKING MORE LIKE A NETWORK

Jackie Gleason "The Honeymooners"



Sebastian Cabot "Checkmate"

Gardner McKay "Adventures in Paradise"

...MORE ...AND MORE ...AND MORE!

Keep your network look with WPIX-11. You do just that when you supplement your network shows in New York with a schedule on WPIX-11. Your commercial is surrounded by big stars and shows like Art Linkletter, Walter Cronkite, Lee Marvin, John Derek and many more—all on WPIX-11. Minute commercials in prime time in a "network atmosphere" of top shows and national advertisers is what you get every night on WPIX-11, New York's Prestige Independent.

Where are your 60-second commercials in New York?

$10,500,000 'Lady' Profit Thus Far; 'Molly' Made 300G

"My Fair Lady," one of three closings on Broadway and the road last Saturday night (29), is figured to have earned a paper profit thus far of around $10,500,000 on its $360,000 investment. The figure represents the accumulation of profits from all productions of the musical, plus income due from the sale of the film rights to Warner Bros. for $5,500,000. Of that amount, the production's share (on the basis of a standard 40% cut of subsidiary coin) comes to $1,980,000 after the deduction of 10% commissions.

The film deal also provides for the payment by WB of 47½% of the distributor's gross in excess of $20,000,000. Thus, additional coin could be forthcoming. There are also other subsidiary legit productions (including the touring company) still in operation and from which more revenue is anticipated. Other information regard-
(Continued on page 72)

GLASER'S 'NEW IMAGE' FOR SONNY LISTON

Sonny Liston, new heavyweight champ, and Xavier Cugat & Abbe Lane have signed representation deals with Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp. Glaser this past Sunday (30) booked the fighter on the Ed Sullivan Show, and is lining up a batch of theatrical and other types of engagements in what has been described as a campaign to give the boxer a "new image." The
(Continued on page 78)

Bos Crowther's Influence on Arters Seen Echoing in Los Angeles

Within the film trade, last Monday's (1) inception of the New York Times Coast edition is being followed with particular acuity by the Manhattan importing fraternity.

Theorists back east, noting the sheet's at-home influence on the arter boxoffice, think it might very well duplicate its authority out west, and espeically in Smogsville. Initial circulation anticipated by the paper's management was 100,000. But whether more or less is irrelevant. It's the weight it carries with the influentials that counts.

Surmised by the eastern expertise is that the Los Angeles environs may evolve as an artfilm market second only to New York in b.o. stature as a consequence of the Times move in. (It's figured San Franciscans already have a sharp attunement, so won't be much affected). Suggested by the Manhattan impresarios is that some L.A. marquees should soon be lining up for the new look to take advantage of the anticipated momentum. The same reasoning indicates the indies will be hiking their filmage ad outlays accordingly.

Such development stands to benefit the homegrown dailies, too, but the Times, assuming it proves

(Continued on page 68)

Rebel Yell—'62

After the Dixie weekend, the switch was:

"How to Secede by Really Trying."

Alberghetti Sisters To Continue Alternating As Touring 'Carnival' Stars

Anna Maria Alberghetti will resume as star of the road production of "Carnival" next Friday (5) at the State Fair Music Hall, Dallas. She'll be returning to the role she originated on Broadway, succeeding Susan Watson, who headed the touring version of the musical until she and Miss Alberghetti switched assignments last April.

Miss Alberghetti remained with the road company until the end of July when she was succeeded by her sister, Carla Alberghetti. During her absence from the musical, Anna Maria has played a Las Vegas engagement. She was shifted from the Broadway production to the road company principally to headline the show's engagements in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

She'll take over for her sister for the Dallas stand which runs through Oct. 21, then Carla will again headline until the musical begins an open-end booking Nov. 12 at the Shubert Theatre, Chicago, with Anna Maria back as star. On Broadway, Miss Watson, whose contract with "Carnival" was up last month, has renewed for an indefinite period.

Sinatra Reminds Arabs He Was Helping Their Kids

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Following a report that the Arab League has banned Frank Sinatra's films and records in Arab countries because of his activities in Israel during a recent world tour, Sinatra issued the following statement:

"If it is true, I am deeply disappointed that statesmen anywhere would condemn anyone for aiding children of whatever faith or origin.

"In Israel, my recent tour there was to raise money for an interfaith youth centre in Nazareth, a primarily Arab centre, where the recipients will be primarily Arab children.

"My world tour, which included Israel, was dedicated to benefiting children of all faiths. I had hoped that adults everywhere had one thing in common—a love for all children."

Sinatra visited Israel during April, May and June tour last year at his own expense. He raised more than $2,000,000 in benefit performances.

Cantor Projects 3-Web, $15-Mil. Special for Salk

Eddie Cantor today (Tues.) unveiled a charity project for television designed to raise $15,000,000 in one day for the proposed Salk Foundation in La Jolla, Cal.

The veteran entertainer reports that he has already obtained clearances from AFTRA and the musicians' union, as well as 12 major television personalities, to put together the two-hour show entitled "Something To Remember," which he hopes to beam simultaneously over the three major networks.

Show will comprise classic video segments of from seven to 10 minutes in length by such performers as Polly Bergen, Edie Adams, Jack Benny, Perry Como, Bing Crosby, Sammy Davis Jr., Judy Garland, Danny Kaye, Mary Martin, Ethel Merman, Phil Silvers and Dinah Shore.

Cantor, who is being assisted on the project by veteran radio-television executive, Harry Maizlich, said that no specific time or date will be requested of the networks. "I think the entertainment quality of the show will be so outstanding that it will attract maximum au-

(Continued on page 78)

PAUL ANKA

Congratulations to JOHNNY CARSON on the successful launching of his "Tonight" show on NBC. I was indeed gratified to collaborate with Johnny in the writing of his theme song "Johnny's Theme."

Piaf's Towering Eiffel Songalog For Zanuck's 'Day'

By GENE MOSKOWITZ

Paris, Oct. 2.

The Paris benefit world premiere of Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day" (20th) last Tuesday (25) was a triumph for the film. It created a veritable holiday feeling in its midnight fireworks and Edith Piaf's singing from the first floor of the Eiffel Tower to over 25,000 massed Parisians below.

The 2,700-seater theatre in the Palais de Chaillot, at $30 a head, was packed. A show biz and diplomatic who's who were present. Proceeds went to several French Resistance veteran groups. A dinner party for 570, at the Chaillot, followed the pic with those attending having paid $70 a head.

The military displays, the fountains, the tanks, the flags before the Chaillot entrance, at the foot of the Eiffel Tower, were impressive. The film unspooled from 9 p.m. to midnight and then the diners filed into the well laid out dining room with two orchestras. Big windows looked out on the Eiffel Tower. On the first floor

(Continued on page 78)

McAlmon, Perhaps No. 1 Of 'Lost Generation'

By WOLFE KAUFMAN

Paris Oct. 2.

For a few months, in 1919, Robert McAlmon was a Hollywood bit player. He might have become an actor, maybe even a star; these things happen. But he didn't care. He took his few bucks and blew; no one will ever know whether he had a "potential." All that the record shows is that he was a good-looking young man with a midwest background and a lovely (sweet) voice, plus a good repertory of cowboy songs. Acting and films both bored him, so he moved to Chicago, New York, London, Paris —where he found himself (as much, that is, as he ever "found himself") and where, in the flashing 1920s, he became one of the most successful writers of the so-called American "lost generation."

The period between 1924 and 1930 is famed (justly) in the history of international art (writing, painting, music, etc.) as a Golden Era. In Paris, it was an especially ripe period. Paris, for the moment, was the gathering ground, the oasis, the meeting-place. James Joyce was there and Gertrude

(Continued on page 78)

Punny

Editor, VARIETY:

Your "Titles Confuse" item in which you quote a "major company employe's" reference to "Longest Day's Journey Into Night" reminds me of what I heard some months ago when a couple of other films were current, namely: "The Guns of Navarone Sunday."

Arthur Weyne.

ON THE ROAD—AT LAST!

The President's signaturing of the copyright extension act until Dec. 31, 1965, which at least saves from PD (public domain) those 1962 copyrights expiring from Sept. 15 on, finally gets the long overdue and much-needed new legislation on the road to somewhere. It is hoped that by the end of '65 the Congress will have enacted a new Copyright Act more consistent with realities and the rest of the world.

The 1909 Copyright Law has undergone so many new rulings, conditions and recognitions by modern techniques of the utilization of literary, artistic and musical works for profit, that a new law combining every element has long been necessary. Even the global projection of music, sound and performance via Telstar may be dated a decade hence by interplanetary mobility.

The President's signaturing is very heartening. A corps of barristers representing all the creative arts not too long ago had come back from Washington a very disappointed lot. The climate seemed awry to them somehow, all this despite Register of Copyrights Abraham L. Kaminstein's general sympatico. The attorneys were, for one of the rare times, unified. It was an imposing group indeed —both ASCAP and BMI were represented, along with the Authors' League of America and the Dramatists Guild, the songwriters and the publishers' associations, the motion picture industry and the networks, the book publishers and all the other elements interested in copyright.

A wealth of copyrights of the 1903-4-5 era already have passed into the public domain—songs by Victor Herbert and George M. Cohan among them, not to mention books, plays and other works. Many a 1906 copyright was threatened with lack of protection as the 56-year maximum term was expiring this year. Thus, at least, the 1906-1909 copyrights remain under protection for three more years until some possible new enactment extends their life either for 76 years (as is one proposal), or adopts the European pattern of author's lifetime-plus-50-years.

My Son, The Ambassador

Dorothy Gordon is resuming her NBC discussion program Oct. 7 at 12 noon with the subject "Latins and The Alliance For Progress." This features the U.S. Ambassador to Brazil, Lincoln Gordon. The ambassador is her son.

On Oct. 14 Mrs. Gordon presents Willy Brandt, Mayor of Berlin.

French Newsman Victim Of That 'Ole Miss' Mess Was Also a Playwright

Paul Guihard, the Agence France Presse reporter, and sometime London Daily Sketch correspondent, who was killed in the Sunday (30) student riots at Ole Miss, also was a novice playwright. He scripted the avant garde play, "The Deck Chair," an off-Broadway presentation last winter.

Irony attend his death in that he was assigned to the Oxford, Miss., showdown on his day off. And, in the one dispatch he had managed to get off, he said he had been "extremely well received" by the local citizenry.

Cliffhanger Phase For Javits Bill On Subsidy of Arts

Washington, Oct. 2.

Whether or not the Senate makes history and approves Federal subsidization of the performing arts with its next-to-last breath this session hinges delicately on a number of factors. Odds, however, are aginst the historic step.

Chief obstacle to passage of the subsidy bill authored principally by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) is the frenzy of the Congressional finale. Many observers expect the 87th session's fadeout this weekend.

Javits' bill, calling for Federal bankrolling of the arts up to $10,000,000 a year, doesn't figure to reach the Senate floor until today (2) or Wednesday (3). That makes it a cliffhanger. House action is virtually impossible this session.

A Javits aide said the senator "would bend every effort" to bring the bill up for consideration. Javits' task will be to talk the

(Continued on page 78)

10/3

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.

Syd Silverman, President

154 West 46th St., New York 36, N.Y. JUdson 2-2700

Hollywood 28

6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141

Washington 4

1202 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445

Chicago 11

400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984

London, S.W.1

49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 228 120 Number 6

INDEX

Bills	68	Music	55
Casting	74	New Acts	69
Chatter	77	Night Club Reviews	66
Film Reviews	6	Obituaries	79
House Reviews	69	Pictures	3
Ice Show Reviews	68	Record Reviews	56
Inside Pictures	4	Frank Scully	76
Inside Music	59	Television	27
Inside Radio-TV	52	Tollvision	23
International	24	TV Film	30
Legitimate	70	Television Reviews	34
Literati	76	Vaudeville	63
		Wall Street	5

DAILY VARIETY

(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)

$20 a year. $25 Foreign.

SLOW PLAYOFF VS. BANK LOANS

WARNERS 'BARS' VARIETY

Warner Bros. brass got pretty mad at VARIETY last week over its "Gypsy" review and decided it "doesn't want the paper, both the Weekly and DAILY VARIETY, around in any of our offices." WB exec veepee Benjamin Kalmenson ordered the company's national publicity director to so advise VARIETY, including cancellation of a flock of subscriptions to both papers which went to the sundry WB offices and execs on both coasts and around the globe.

Getting mad over a review is an occupational vagary. Any newspaper is inured to that, knowing that the vexation is emotional.

The punitive idea with threats of withdrawal of advertising and/or subscriptions went out of style even in the heyday of Hollywood. Any industry of stature recognizes the importance and value of its trade press. VARIETY, in its 57th year, has existed longer and survived beyond the historical span of most show business entities.

The degree of reviewer-expressed enthusiasm for or against Warner Bros.' "Gypsy" is beside the point. It almost doesn't warrant pointing out that the VARIETY critique was not an out-and-out pan; that, in fact, it was "favorable," albeit qualifiedly favorable. And the accent was on its boxoffice potential. But this is extraneous to the basic fact of film company caprice with the trade press, and makes one wonder about the basic nervousness of the Warner echelon. It could make Wall Streeters wonder also—as it has for some time.

Among the prize displays in the private office of Jack L. Warner, adjacent to the executive diningroom, are the VARIETY stories bannerlining what Vitaphone—the pioneer "talkies"—did for Warners, until then a struggling indie. Which proves nothing except the old proverb, "What have you done for me lately?"

Showmen who attempt to punish honest reviewing are not only old hat but self-defeating. They are about as amusing as a child in tantrum. That a supposedly sophisticated man of the world puts himself, and his company, in the awkward position of taking vindictive action for a reviewer's "failure to sufficiently rave" is almost incredible in the year 1962.

What has Warners accomplished by this spiteful action? Only to advertise its own insecurity. Not for a long time has VARIETY heard an executive vicepresident of a film company revert to that old cliche, "What does a $50-a-week clerk know about judging a film?"

Uncertainty (at Press Time) As 'Connection' Braves N.Y. State

The new Times Square art theatre, the D. W. Griffith, was due to open last night (Tues.) after VARIETY's press hour with the local preem of the Films Round World (Irwin Shapiro) indie junkie pic, "The Connection." Pic was being preemed without a license from the New York State licencing division. It seemed probable that the police might move to prevent last night's performance (an invitational affair) or perhaps today's performances (Wed.), the first for the general public.

Attorney for the producer, Ephraim London, who persuaded an appellate court to reverse the original New York Education Dept. ban on the picture (because of the four-letter word 11 times on the soundtrack), gave the go-ahead for the opening even though the court's ruling is currently under appeal by the Board of Regents, which directs the N.Y. licensing division. It was speculated Tuesday afternoon that the police might move to take away the new theatre's license, arrest the manager and perhaps also the projectionist.

This, according to London, would pave the way for a new court fight to test (1) whether the state's licensing statute is constitutional,

(Continued on page 20)

RKO Clan Ponders B.O. Momentum

Two-day gathering in New York of RKO circuit division managers winds up today (Wed.). This is one of those regular pows for the purpose of appraising all operations, and also to cue the field force on the fall-winter product lineup.

Matty Polon, v.p. and chief film buyer for the chain, is presiding. Other homeoffice execs sitting in are Tom O'Connor, Tom Crehan, Fred Herkowitz, Charles Horstman, Fred Squire, Ed Avery, Lee Koken and Michael Cojohn.

The Dears at Bay

Miami Beach.

Editor, VARIETY:

Am sure you realize that the three top reserved seat upcoming attractions this fall have no top female stars in any of these top pictures. Am refering to "Mutiny On The Bounty," "The Longest Day" and Lawrence of Arabia."

Don't you consider this very unusual? I believe these are the first pictures that have gone on a hardticket basis sans a femme star.

Martin Caplan

(Roosevelt Theatre, M.B.)

Parisians Study UA's Showcasing

Paris, Oct. 2.

Showmen here are much attentive over the 22-house nabe first-run of United Artists' "Road to Hong Kong." Reason is, the freeze on nabe admissions has been lifted and "Road" is playing at a new top scale. Results of the day-dating may be inconclusive, but experience so far suggests audiences aren't resisting higher prices as long as the product is fresh.

Trade interest also fastens on "The Longest Day" (20th) playoff plans. It preems here Oct. 10, and a fortnight hence moves into several other keys. That's unusual, especially for a powerouse attraction. Recalled, for instance, is that "Ben-Hur" was deferred from other dates for six months after the Paris bow. The distribution braintrusting on "Day" is concerned that a delay in moving the pic onto the French market would risk dissipation of much interest current here. Pic has had beaucoup promotion, and the expectation is for a substantial Paris run.

BRONSTON WANTS 'KINGS' SPEEDED

By GENE ARNEEL

Samuel Bronston considers it deplorable that the American film industry hasn't changed its modus operandi all through the years. For this reason he prefers going it alone, aligning himself with territorial distributors who, in turn for releasing rights, provide guarantees. He already has $7,000,000 thus guaranteed for "55 Days at Peking."

Bronston complains about slow playoff of expensive pictures, particularly. "King of Kings," he pointed out this week, cost $8,100,000 to produce. The interest on the loans for this investment is cumulative and just keep mounting. It comes to a vast sum.

The producer, in New York the past week, said he's "heartbroken" over "Kings" pace and adds: "So far I laid an egg. I must change the campaign because the way things now are the recoupment rate is too slow."

'El Cid' Coins

Bronston, whose new productions blueprinted through to 1964 are earmarked at $40,000,000, on the other hand is doing just fine with "El Cid." This already has grossed almost $14,000,000.

"Kings" was released by Metro, "El Cid" by Allied Artists. He recently closed a deal with Paramount for the American release of a circus picture and is close to agreement with Par on the upcoming "Fall of Rome" and others. Bronston commented: "I like Paramount. The original founders are still there. You talk to them and you know where you stand."

The "El Cid" figures are vastly meaningful to Charlton Heston, who receives 5% of the gross. The star's cut goes up to 7½% with "Peking." The increase is traceable to the fact that Heston just got 7½% for his work in Mel Shavelson's "Pigeon That Took Rome."

Sophia Loren is to receive a straight $1,000,000 for 'Rome.' Regarding this fancy handout, states Bronston: "It's because she fits the part."

Industry Pension Dibursements To 1,491 Retirees

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Benefits totaling $3,128,528 were paid to 1,491 retirees during period Jan. 1, 1960, when payments began, through Aug. 31, 1962, from Motion Picture Industry Pension Plan, it was reported by Pension Plan administrator Mark Bushner. Report, made at Plan's monthly board meeting, showed that, of retirees, 1,234 were also fully qualified for benefits under Health and Welfare plan.

Actuarial report for 1961 presented by Johnson & Higgins stated that 26,749 participants contributed $2,658,375 to Plan, compared to employers' $4,369,801. Employees pay 7c per working hour to Plan; employers pay 11½c per employee, plus additional 2½c to Health and Welfare Fund. Average retirement age for 1961 was 67; average annual hours worked by participants, 1,591. Plan's administrative costs were less than 2½% of net contributions.

Educated Guess: Joseph E. Levine's Embassy May 'Go Public' Next Year

By JACK PITMAN

It could be, per much conjecture lately, that Joseph E. Levine is fixing to "go public." This is the logical expectancy attendant his swift and impressive growth—the evolution from promoter to production-distribution continuity. To "go public" is, of course, one way of assuring the acceleration rate.

Levine's own response to queries at this point is merely to acknowledge there's thinking on the matter. Read another way, it's maybe yes (next year) or maybe no.

Not immediately relevant, although understandably it could be inferred otherwise, are those large production investments which perforce make Levine receptive to major company overtures. These are practical deals not necessarily related to the present and future capacity of Embassy Pictures as a significant distrib, a status in fact already enjoyed by the company, and as of the moment even gaining in thrust. As it happens, earmarked for release between now and the yearend are at least six or seven more properties.

But even as he relies more and more on his own distribution apparatus, and his own wherewithal for supply, the door remains open and the welcome mat out for majors who dig an association. Coming up is Paramount, undertaking to finance a $5,000,000 (maybe more) "Carpetbaggers" negative in exchange for world distribution. A fine deal, says Levine, just fine.

Importantly, too, there are indications this new relationship could blossom—like, say, in a global way involving acquisition and distribu-

(Continued on page 20)

Don't Take Wrong Turn

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 2.

Twin Drive-In Theatre has constructed a well-lighted fence separating the two screen areas with a two lane exit.

With different programs now showing on each screen, another marquee has been constructed above the boxoffice, denoting the choice the driver must make on entering the ozoner.

Samuel Bronston's New U.S. Corps.

Bronston - Midway Productions and Bronston-Roma Productions have been formed as limited partnerships as per the required legalistics. The filings reflect an unusual situation so far as financing of motion picture production is concerned.

Producer Samuel Bronston has two pictures coming up under the aforementioned limited partnerships, namely "The Circus Story" and "Fall of The Roman Empire." A limited partner is Pierre S. duPont, E. I. duPont de Nemours, Wilmington, Delaware. The general partner is Bronston.

Significant angle is that duPont, who has been fiscally associated with Bronston in past production activities, is called upon to lay out only $4,000 for each production initially.

It could well be that this is all that duPont will ante up, this being under the Bronston way of doing business.

The Bronston-Midway company will make "Circus" starring John Wayne, with six months of shooting to start next August at a cost of $5,000,000 to $6,000,000. Paramount has the American distribution rights and territorial distribs will participate around the rest of the world. It's to be shot at various global points.

Bronston-Roma will make "Fall of The Roman Empire," an epic starting next Jan. 1 in Spain and blueprinted to cost between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000. No Yank distrib has been set as yet but releasing agencies in other global areas have been arranged for.

The unique aspect of the Bronston enterprises is this: The production money is coming from the multiple distribution outlets. They provide guarantees and this of course bespeaks confidence in the producer.

Pierre duPont, as the limited partner, is called upon to be responsible for any "completion" money that might be required. Still, the main responsibility lies with Samuel Bronston Productions itself.

Joe Levine's Paris Visit To See French 'Boccaccio'

Joe E. Levine's Paris visitation last week, before going on to Rome and production pows, was to gander the just-dubbed "Boccaccio 70." Sketch pic's three femme leads—Sophia Loren, Anita Ekberg and Romy Schneider—repeated for the French lingo version.

Some 200 conventional dates are set to go starting Nov. 6.

It's Plain 'Freud'; U Won't Tamper

After doing a hesitation step, Universal isn't going to tamper after all with the title of "Freud," the John Huston production dealing with the Viennese doctor's early use of psychoanalysis.

Distrib also sees it playing the smaller houses, the better to establish identification for audiences deemed most likely to dig the film. General release is several months off, but U will play it before yearend in Los Angeles and New York in order to qualify it for the Oscar and Manhattan critics' prize.

As for the title, feeling for a time was that marquees might react better to something like "Freud—the Dark Passion." But now it's stet—or at least until U sees how the early engagements go.

Terrible Thing Happening On Way to the Theatres: Public Discriminating

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

North Central Allied, this area's national Allied States' unit, is mostly concerned with small exhibitors' problems. But it has just come out, through President Martin Lebedoff, with an appraisal of exhibition generally. And it isn't a favorable one.

Even for the "bigger boys" the exhibition state of affairs is suffering ill-health today, according to this appraisal.

The way that NCA looks at things the public is becoming overly discriminating and only will attend the super-excellent films in sufficient numbers. As a result, ordinary "just good" pictures, which previously held their own well at the boxoffice, now are hitting the skids. And because of this, more and more theatres "are unable to keep out of the red."

Current grosses attest to the aforegoing, asserts Lebedoff. The situation, he claims, is especially tough for theatres where long runs can't be sustained.

Runaway Another Name for Taxes

Although Tony Curtis has no intention of taking up residence abroad in order to increase his take-home pay, he can understand and sympathize with those who do. "Until the tax structure is overhauled so that some consideration is given to the comparatively short earning span of any performer or artists," said Curtis, stars will continue to move to Switzerland or some such tax haven.

Concerning himself, he says: "I'm still a fairly young fella and figure I still have some good earning years ahead of me. I'm able to save a little money now and don't have to runaway.

The 'Classic' Route to Production

Exhib's Pride in Greek Heritage Sparked 'Antigone'; Hope to Recoup 200G

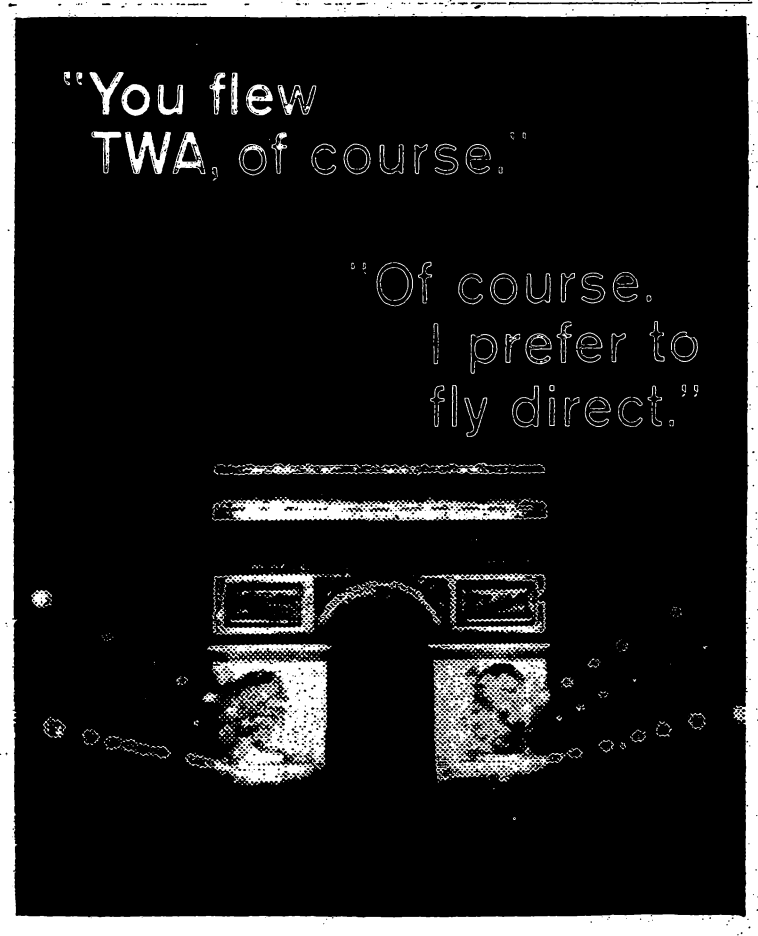
By VINCENT CANBY

It isn't necessarily news when an exhibitor enters the production side of the business, but it is when he elects to make a picture of such estoteric dimensions as Sophocles' "Antigone," filmed in its classical form though with a modern Greek text. This is what Connecticut exhibitor Sperie Perakos has done with his Norma Films' "Antigone," starring Irene Papas and now in the midst of its U.S. premiere at the 55th Street Playhouse and Fifth Avenue Cinema in New York.

Though the production cost close to $200,000, which Perakos thinks is a record high for a film made by the Greek film industry, Perakos has every expectation that it will eventually earn a profit. Actually, he explained, the original budget was "substantially exceeded," due to production delays, and the shooting schedule stretched out to a lengthy 53 days. Had the original sked been adhered to, he figures Norma Films could have recouped its production costs in Greece alone.

Currently, according to Perakos, the film has taken in a theatrical gross of about $100,000 in Greece, with approximately 65% of its playoff completed. Unfortunately, however, boxoffice and other taxes will take about half of that amount, with another slice going out for ad-pub-distribution costs.

Hopes For Waiver



Perakos is now hoping that Greek government will take note of the film's special qualities—publicizing the cultural heritage of Greece—and waive taxes on "Antigone" as an incentive for further such productions. If this comes about, the producer expects the production to be on easy street financially.

Interestingly enough, though "Antigone" was made by Greek talent throughout, all the backing was supplied by American investors via Perakos' Norma Films, with all of these investors being of Greek descent. Aside from Perakos, all the investors were from "outside the industry," motivated, according to the exec producer, by a pride in the Greek heritage and a desire to dispell the notion that Greece exports nothing but restaurateurs.

Not An Easy Sell

Speaking from his years of experience in exhibition, Perakos acknowledged that selling a film such as "Antigone" in the States presents very special problems. Obviously, it will have a limited appeal, but he feels that the specialized Stateside audience is certainly large enough to turn a profit on the film, "if that audience can be reached." Though Perakos Theatres controls or is affiliated with about 22 theatres in Connecticut, he thinks that he will be able to date it in only about two of those theatres. Throughout the country he expects to get about 400 bookings.

However, he sees an additionally long and profitable career for the pic when it goes out in 16m for distribution to schools, colleges, libraries, cinema clubs, etc. According to one estimate, the pic might be good for as much as $18,000 a year for 10 years from this area. As yet, Norma hasn't concluded any deals for its release outside of Greece and the States (where Ellis Films is handling), but Perakos is apparently confident that revenues from around the world will, when added to the Greek and American income, push the pic over the top. In all situations, the film is to be played in its original version plus subtitles.

Who doesn't? Flying direct saves time, and TWA flies direct (no change of plane) from New York to twelve of the most popular cities abroad. TWA also has direct jets from San Francisco, Los Angeles and Chicago to London, Paris and Rome. Even if TWA didn't fly direct, people would still prefer TWA for Royal Ambassador First Class service that treats you like a royal ambassador. Your travel agent or nearest TWA office can give you other good reasons for flying TWA to Europe and beyond.

Nationwide Worldwide depend on TWA

'October Aboaf' Drive

"October Aboaf," a five-week overseas sales drive named for Universal veep and foreign general manager Americo Aboaf, was launched Sept. 30 and will run to Nov. 3.

The 42 overseas branches will participate in the annual sales contest, repping all major overseas teritories in which U operates.

On The Domestic Front

Top winner's of cash awards in Universals 26-week domestic sales drive in Milton Rackmil's name are Joseph Rosen's Atlantic seaboard region, and W. A. McClure's Jacksonville, Fla., exchange.

Up in Canada, the Vancouver branch of Empire-Universal, the Dominion distributing subsidiary, came out on top. It's managed by Brian Rudston-Brown.

Tony Curtis Sans Agent; Praises MCA's Wasserman; Agency Fade Hurts Films

With the dissolution of Music Corp. of America as a talent agency, Tony Curtis is in no rush to sign with another percentery. Crediting MCA prexy Lew Wasserman with having guided his career to stardom, Curtis said in New York last week that he feels he's now in a position to go it alone, that is, "alone with a good lawyer and a business manager."

The star feels, however, that the dissolution of MCA is, "in about eight months, going to turn out to be a tremendous blow to the industry." According to Curtis, the agency was responsible "for getting films made" and also saw to it that "stars were never so overpriced as not to find employers."

A product of Universal's "talent school," Curtis ridiculed the idea that he had learned anything from the talent program itself, citing instead the fact that he had had an opportunity to work almost continuously in films themselves, making as many as six pictures a year and getting experience "in action." There was a drama school on the lot, but he never went to it—the only thing he might have learned would have been to look and act like everybody else ("All the girls came out of makeup looking like Loretta Young"). Re speech schools: "They're okay if you have an impediment." He says he was sent to about 12 different ones, "until each of the teachers wound up with a New York accent."

Until his "big breakthrough" with Burt Lancaster's "Trapeze," said Curtis, he played in "everything they gave me." With "Trapeze," which U only allowed him to do at the urging of Wasserman, he hit the big time and then could afford—indeed, he had to exercise—discretion in pictures.

He was lucky, Curtis acknowledged, in having gotten his start at a time when pictures were being made in a steady stream. Tyros today, he said, can only turn to tv for that kind of experience and exposure which was previously available in pix themselves.

Europe to U.S.

Paul W. Benson
Robert W. Bloch
Jules Dassin
James Dobson
Donald Flamm
Harry E. Gould
Bertie Green
Richard Gregson
Joyce Grenfell
Joseph E. Levine
Jack LeVien
Melina Mercouri
Steven Pallos
Norman Payne
Leontyne Price
John Ramshaw
Cliff Richard
Fred Robbins
Theodore B. Sills
C. P. Snow
Neil Vanderbilt Jr.
Charlotte Van Lein
Don A. Wortman

N.Y. to L.A.

Stanley Adams
Ralph Alswang
J. J. Bregman
Frederick Brisson
Paul Davis
Gant Gaither
David B. Graham
George Hoffman
Robert Noah
Kal Ross

Inside Stuff—Pictures

As an example of the kind of bad management which Tony Curtis believes to be at the root of so many industry problems today (see separate story), the actor recalled his fight with Metro over the (eventually abandoned) "Lady L" script. Both he and costar Gina Lollobrigida had approved the first script, which was then rewritten by director George Cukor who wasn't told that both Curtis and Lollo had script approval.

"Some months and about 18 scripts later," said Curtis, the script was worse than ever and he and Gina refused to do it. In the midst of all this pressure, Curtis bought one share of Metro stock. "I told them," he said, "that if they made us go through with it, I'd start a minority stockholders suit against management for ruining the value of my one share of stock."

Allen Rivkin will produce the 45-minute show which will precede the Oct. 26 appearance of Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, at Greek Theatre. Program will be part of festivities commemorating United Nations Week.

Partial list of sponsors includes Lucille Ball, Milton Berle, Tony Franciosa, Judy Garland, Marsha Hunt, Rita Moreno and Barry Sullivan. Writers and composers contributing to program will be Leonard Spigelglass, Paul Webster, Philip Dunne, James Poe, Les Pine, Alex North and Sid Kuller.

Arthur Hornblow Jr., whose latest feature is "The War Lover" for Columbia, experienced an uncomfortable few seconds during a preview of his production at New York's Criterion Theatre last Thursday (27) night. At a highpoint near the climax the sound went off. Fortunately it was corrected pronto. But they were nonetheless a long few seconds for Hornblow. Despite the flaw, Hornblow later commented: "This was the most attentive audience we've had so far."

Production Code Administration office in Hollywood received a letter from a California woman enclosing the "Lolita" ad which asks the question: "How did they ever make a picture of 'Lolita'?" The femme had circled this line and pencilled in her answer underneath: "With your connivance, you filthy scoundrels!"

Wall Street buzz has it that Columbia in its current fiscal year will wind up with a profit of $2.50 per share or more. Company last year earned $1.70 per share.

EMMANUELE RIVA IN SEATTLE FOR PREMIERE

Seattle, Oct. 2.

Emmanuele Riva, French film star, here with producer Eugene Lepicier and writer Claude Mauriac of "Therese Desqueyroux" for the American premiere of the film in the World's Fair Playhouse, liked the Fair, but was surprised at shorts and red socks worn by women on the fair grounds.

"They're all right," Mme. Riva said (through an interpreter; none of the three speak English) "if the woman is well built."

Mme. Riva said she had received several film offers since winning award as best actress at the Venice Film Festival, but had not accepted any. She said she would like to do a film in America, but could not until her English improved.

She admires American stars, finds film acting difficult because "you do it in such small pieces" and is not interested in any production which does not combine the talents of a top scripter and a top director.

L.A. to N.Y.

Frankie Avalon
Jacques Bergerac
Maurice Chevalier
Choo Choo Collins
Wendell Corey
Gary Crosby
S. J. Danov
Martin Davis
George Englund
George Goodman
Mike Gruskoff
Helen Hayes
N. P. "Red" Jacobs
Henry Jaffe
Ray Katz
Bob Keene
Irvin Kershner
Larry Kert
Robert Q. Lewis
Groucho Marx
Pat O'Brien
Leon Roth
Wesley Ruggles Jr.
Bobby Rydell
Tommy Sands
Dinah Shore
Mort Sidney
Ann Sothern
Dennis Weaver

U.S. to Europe

Harry Bernsen
Robert Breckner
Steve Broidy
Marcel Dalio
Samuel G. Engel
Florence Machmais
Beverly Mather
Jan Peerce
Jack Sattinger
Bernard Smith
Harold Stone
Norman Twain

Levy's 'Marco Polo' May Resume Sans Star Alain Delon

French producer Raoul Levy's suspended production of "Marco Polo," in which Seven Arts has a financial interest, apparently is still alive. At least, it was learned in New York this week that Tony Curtis had been approached about taking over the title role, if and when the picture ever gets back on the shooting track.

According to one source close to the venture, however, Curtis had been contacted but only in "the most general terms." This source said he believed it would be too costly to start the picture over again, which would, in effect, be necessary if Curtis were hired to take over the role which French star Alain Delon had been playing in the sequences thus far shot.

Asked why 7A would consider replacing Delon, with whom 7A has a multiple picture contract, the source would only say that 7A has "a number of other properties suitable for Delon."

Since financing is Levy's big headache, it's believed that the producer felt that Curtis' name in the picture might provide the draw to secure the money necessary to get "Marco" back on his cinematic travels.

FRED GOLDBERG UNVEILS OFFBEAT 'BULBA' SELL

A unique theatrical trailer, comprised of still pictures explored by the roving eye of the motion picture camera, was shown to the trade press in New York Monday (1) by United Artists as part of the "last" phase of its "Taras Bulba" campaign. The advance trailer, being made available Oct. 15 for the Christmas release, is made up principally of stills of the Salta (Arg.) locations and the stars, Tony Curtis, Yul Brynner and Christine Kaufmann in action.

Veep Fred Goldberg hosted the press conference and outlined the UA ad-pub efforts on behalf of the $7,000,000 film. In addition to the advance trailer, company is editing its 11-minute tv featurette on the pic down to four minutes, which will go out to theatres in November prior to the regular trailer. These supplement a national tv campaign in 100 cities starting Nov. 28, as well as the extensive newspaper, radio, record-and-music, and outdoor teaser campaigns.

PRODUCT-SHY, LOEW'S BOOKS 'C'

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (2)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1962 High	1962 Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
21⅞	13	ABC Vending	89	14	13¼	13½	— ¼
47½	22¾	Am Br-P'r Th	130	29⅝	27¾	29⅛	— ⅝
20⅝	10	Ampex	738	16⅛	14¾	15⅜	— ½
43⅞	31½	CBS	139	36½	35	35⅞	+ ¼
33⅞	11	Chris Craft	132	12¼	11¾	11⅞	— ⅛
31	14	Col Pix	110	20¼	19⅜	20	+ ⅜
51⅜	34½	Decca	46	39¾	39	39½	— ¼
40⅝	26	Disney	60	26⅝	24¾	25½	—1¼
115⅞	85	Eastman Kdk.	284	97⅞	93¾	96	—1½
6¼	4⅜	EMI	228	4¾	4¼	4⅝	+ ¼
14⅝	8⅜	Glen Alden	231	9⅝	9	9⅜	— ⅛
47½	19½	Loew's Thea.	216	24⅝	22⅛	22⅝	—1⅝
78⅞	33	MCA Inc.	64	44	40½	40¾	—2¾
15⅞	10⅜	Metromedia	24	13⅜	12¾	13⅜	+ ¼
58⅛	27⅛	MGM	155	31	29¼	30	—1¼
9¼	5⅞	Nat. G. Corp.	84	6½	6¼	6¼	— ¼
58½	36½	Paramount	40	38⅛	36⅞	37	—1
221	81½	Polaroid	3640	125¼	110¼	114⅞	—9⅜
63⅞	38⅜	RCA	711	47⅜	44⅞	46	—1½
12⅜	7¼	Republic	112	7⅝	7	7	— ½
17	13	Rep., pfd.	5	14⅝	14¼	14¼	— ⅛
40¼	19½	Stanley War.	66	21⅞	20	20⅜	—1⅝
33¼	27¼	Storer	15	29⅞	29¼	29¾	+ ¼
39⅜	18	20th-Fox	150	21½	20⅜	20¾	— ⅜
35⅜	24⅝	United Arti'ts	57	27	26¾	26¾	— ¼
20¾	11¼	Warner Bros.	81	12⅛	11½	12⅛	— ½
75⅝	44	Zenith	943	52⅞	49¼	50⅞	—1⅜

American Stock Exchange

6⅝	2½	Allied Artists	8	3¼	3¼	3⅛
21⅜	10¼	Cap. Cit. Bdc.	38	15¼	14½	15	— ⅛
20⅜	9⅛	Cinerama Inc.	767	15⅜	12⅞	13¾	—1½
12	6½	Desilu Prods.	15	7⅞	7⅝	7⅝	— ¼
9⅜	4½	Filmways	12	5	4¾	4⅞	— ⅛
14	7⅝	Movielab	4	9¾	9⅛	9⅛	— ½
14⅜	6	MPO Vid.	12	6½	6¼	6¼	+ ¼
2¾	1	Nat'l Telefilm	17	1⅛	1	1
5⅛	2½	Reeves Bdcst.	28	2⅝	2½	2⅝	+ ⅛
7½	2¾	Reeves Snd.	155	3⅝	3¼	3⅜	+ ⅛
12¾	10¼	Rollins Bdcst.	10	11½	11⅜	11⅜	— ⅛
22¾	13	Screen Gems	10	15¾	15½	15½	— ½
26⅜	8½	Technicolor	293	10¾	9¾	9⅞	— ⅞
16⅞	6⅛	Telepro'pt'r	34	7¾	6¾	6⅞	— ⅞
3	1⅛	Tele Indus	17	1¾	1⅝	1⅝
18¾	10⅛	Trans-Lux	17	12⅜	11¾	12	— ¼

*Week Ended Mon. (1).

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
America Corp.	1¾	2	— ⅛
Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico	7	8⅛
Four Star Television	11½	12⅞	—1½
Gen Aniline & FA	260	288	+20
General Drive-in	8¼	9½	—1
Magna Pictures	1⅜	1⅞	— ⅛
Medallion Pictures	4½	5¼	+ ⅜
Premier Albums	7½	8⅛	— ¾
Rapid Film Technique	1⅜	1⅞
Seven Arts Productions	7⅞	8⅜	+ ⅜
Transcontinent Television	9⅛	10⅛	— ½
U. A. Theatres	6⅞	7⅜	— ¾
Universal Pictures	57½	63½
Walter Reade-Sterling Inc.	1¾	2½	— ⅜
Wometco Enterprises	24¾	27	— ¾
Wrather Corp.	3⅜	4⅛	— ⅛

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

Insider Buys, Sells—Aug. 11-Sept. 10

Washington, Oct. 2.

Music Corp. of America bought 10,000 more shares of Decca Records capital stock to highlight insider buys and sells for Aug. 11-Sept. 10 period. MCA's total has now been lifted to 1,278,315.

Another major transaction listed by Securities and Exchange Commission was Nicholas Reisini's buy of 10,800 of Cinerama Inc. through Robin International. Reisini is in indirect owner of Cinerama through Robin whose total shares are now listed at 326,850. Other insider buys and sells listed by Commission, common unless otherwise noted are:

Allied Artists—Roger W. Hurlock purchased 400 bringing his total to 34,000.

Collins Radio Co.—R.M. Matthews bought his first 200 and his first $5,000 in 4¾ convertible debentures. Edward Williams also picked up his first 100.

Radio Corp. of America—Charles Denny sold 507 leaving him 4,161.

Reeves Broadcasting & Development Corp.—Harry Peterson picked up $1,000 in 6% convertible sub debentures bringing his holding to $6,000. Morris Schechter purchased his first $2,000 in 6% sub debs.

Stanley Warner Corp.—Harry Kalmine bought 100 for total 800.

Taft Broadcasting Co. — Hubert Taft Jr. sold 2,345 leaving him 118,897.

Teleprompter Corp.—Roy Coffin bought 100 bringing personal holdings to 1,000. Through Rainbow Corp., Coffin, purchased 900 and sold 1,000 giving Rainbow 1,200. T. F. McMains sold 300 leaving him 200. Allan Fromme purchased 500 for total 2,507. His family holdings are 9,463. Raymond Pugh bought his first 100.

United Artists Corp.—Louis Lober disposed of 600 leaving him 400.

Warner Bros. Pictures—Benjamin Kalmenson sold 10,800 leaving him 48,000. Herman Starr disposed of 2,000 for 17,000 total.

Zenith Radio Corp.—Hazel Chesser exercised option for 150 bringing total to 4,380.

CHAIN FEELS UA'S SHOWCASE EFFECT

The extent to which the pattern of U.S. exhibition is changing will be boldly dramatized next month when New York City outlets of the Loew's circuit play Joe Levine's Italo import, "Boccaccio '70." The three-part Sophia Loren-Anita Ekberg-Romy Schneider starrer will mark the first time that a Legion of Decency-condemned picture has ever played the Loew circuit.

According to industryites, such a move by Loew's would have been unheard of 10 or even five years ago. The fact that Loew's booked the picture prior to its condemnation by the Roman Catholic reviewing body, or that it will probably be advertised for adults only, does not lessen the startling effect of the move, both on other exhibition interests and, it may be assumed, on the Legion itself.

(News of the unusual Loew booking comes on the heels of last week's VARIETY story from Chicago concerning the booking of the nudie "Paradisio" into four Balaban & Katz nabe outlets.)

According to most industryites in New York, such precedental patterns don't indicate a "new boldness" on the part of exhibition as much as they show that exhibs "are aching for product." It's no secret that in New York City, for example, the Loew's circuit has had to "stretch its arms a bit" to fill the void created when United Artists, normally a Loew supplier, developed its own Premiere Showcase release pattern, using scattered circuits and special situations. The lack of the eight or 10 UA pictures thus routed in a six-month period obviously has forced Loew's to the booking of pix which it might otherwise have passed up.

Legion Unhappy

The "Boccaccio" booking is understood to be a major disappointment to the Legion, whose influence over money-minded producers and distributors is based in large measure on the economic loss which a Legion "C" rating will mean at the boxoffice. If it should eventually turn out that large numbers of "conventional" circuits can play "C" pix without ill economic effects, the Legion's influence ("positive" as it claims or "negative" as some producers charge) on film content must inevitably diminish.

Actually, the Legion's influence has been in process of being whittled away to some extent ever since such major companies as United Artists and Columbia have taken to releasing pix that have been condemned via their indie distrib subsids or affiliates. Witness the whopping boxoffice success of UA's "Never on Sunday," which went out via Lopert and racked up an estimated rental of $4,000,000, even though condemned and denied major circuit playoff.

Ironically, the Loew booking of "Boccaccio" comes just at a time when the Legion has found that there has been a marked decrease in the number of "objectionable" domestic films. (There also has been a decrease in the number of domestic films, period.) At the same time, the Legion has been concerned by an increase in the number of objectionable foreign films which have come up for its review.

While there is no precedent within Loew's for the "Boccaccio" booking, RKO Theatres, in 1956, did book the Legion-condemned "Baby Doll." RKO execs figured, however, that "Baby Doll" couldn't be all bad, since it had been approved by the Production Code. "Boccaccio," on the other hand, doesn't even have a Code seal to take the curse off. "The Moon Is Blue" (1953), both condemned and Code seal-less, played the so-called "third circuit" of indie chains in New York City, being eschewed by both Loew and RKO. It went to an eventual domestic rental of $4,000,000, too.

Supply Down, Terms Up, Exhibitors Suddenly Cordial to Indie Distribs

Chicago, Oct. 2.

Continuing shortage of pictures is vexing midwest exhibitors but making a hero out of the independent distributor. The downtown deluxers are making do by stretching their runs, but nabe and outlying houses, used to a new second run combination every week, are turning more and more to the indies for product.

As a result, the indies, which only a few years ago were satisfied with the leavings after the majors had taken the cream off the top of the outlying theatres, now find themselves in their best bidding position in their history. Terms are not substantially higher for comparable pix, but the indie films are getting more circuit bookings instead of the previous here-and-there spot bookings.

Bookers for the circuits say that the majors have done themselves harm by tightening up on terms when pictures got short. The outlying exhibs grumbled for a while, and in a few cases boycotted pictures they felt were priced too high. Now the smaller houses are turning to the indies as a way out of the big picture squeeze.

An important byproduct of the situation is that many art and adult films that might ordinarily never have reached nabe screens are not only being sold to the smaller houses, but are playing the top part of the bill and are often getting the saturation booking treatment usually given science fiction and horror films. As a result, former "action" houses are playing such pictures as "Two Women," "La Dolce Vita," "Make Mine Mink," "League of Gentlemen," "Taste of Honey" and "The Mark."

That outlying theatres are concerned about future availabilities can be seen in that "Music Man" is being snapped up for an Oct. 26 booking despite stiff (50%) terms and despite the fact that the nabes usually don't commit themselves until two weeks before the picture is due.

Last week Allied Theatres of Illinois revived "Oklahoma" to fill a booking void. This week's combination, "The Tartars" and "Tarzan Goes To India" has never played a downtown house. Another pair currently playing is "Adventures of a Young Man," which had a tame first run, and "Panic In The Year Zero," which is starting in the A run houses. On Oct. 19 the Allied theatres are optimistic about "Bird Man of Alcatraz," but are still looking for a second family picture to run with it. It's this sort of hand-to-mouth booking that has the exhibitors looking for new sources and the independent distribs are rushing in to fill up the void.

Soft-Hearted Journalists

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

Film U. of Minnesota medical school showed to Associated Press Managing Editors' convention here caused three of the supposedly hard-bitten old newsmen to collapse. It was a color job of open-heart surgery as performed in the university's hospital.

Dr. Richard DeWall was giving a running commentary during the film which had reached the point where the throbbing heart was lifted from the chest cavity.

Dr. DeWall just had finished saying that "we could show you much more delicate surgery than this" when a voice in the Auditorium's rear called out, "Can we please have the lights on and a doctor back here?"

This was because of the three fainters who needed medical care. They were Merrill Chilcote, St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press; Mrs. E. R. Fairchild, Athol, Mass., Daily-News, and J. S. Walters, Jacksonville, Fla., Journal.

Republic 39-Week Net Reduced 25%

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Republic Corp.'s net income for 39 weeks ended July 28, 1962 was down nearly 25% from corresponding period last year, according to chairman Victor M. Carter over weekend. Company showed a profit of $1,128,632, equal to 34c per share after preferred stock divvies based on average of 2,443,448 common shares, as against $1,565,978, or 62c per share last year.

Carter reported that despite third quarter setbacks he expected to more than cover Rep's regular annual common stock divvy of 60c a share by Oct. 30, 1962, end of current fiscal year. Renewed activity in the appliance and molded plastic subsids, as well as increased rentals at Republic Studios, should result in stronger fourth quarter contributions, he said.

Total income for recent nine months was $31,985,093 compared to $20,867,964 last year.

Carter also stated that Rep management still awaits the decision of California Corporations Commissioner regarding the granting of a permit to issue tenders for at least 80% of common stock of America Corp., N.Y.-based diversified industrial company. Hearings on permit applications were completed by CCC last May.

4 PULLMANS 'HOME' TO PAR'S LOCATION PARTY

Knoxville, Tenn. Oct. 2.

Louisville & Nashville Railroad is providing four special Pullman cars to house the personnel for filming the Knoxville portion of "All The Way Home," a picture based on the James Agee novel "A Death in the Family."

Football and conventions will make Knoxville a bulging city during October. Filming starts on Oct. 9. Hotel reservations were not available within 50 miles. Activities include the Civil Defense Convention and the Alabama-Tennessee football game.

"These Paramount people didn't have any place to stay so we decided to do something about it," said S. A. Brownlie, Supt of the L. & N Knoxville-Atlanta Division.

L & N Depot will be the site of one of the scenes in the film. The station is also convenient to the locale of the film. The Pullman cars will rest on a spur track at the station.

BACK FROM CLEOPATRA; LANDAU'S FILM SLANTS

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

After spending more than a year in Italy, in the Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton and Rex Harrison company of "Cleopatra," Martin Landau, on his return to Hollywood, last week expressed more familiarity with the Italian film marketing requirements than with those of Hollywood.

Noting he and his family learned to speak Italian fluently during their stay, Landau pointed out he was able to discuss films at length with motion picture exhibitors, distributors, filmakers and the public. His findings are frequently surprising and, certainly, interesting.

Chiefly, Landau noted "Italian filmakers are delighted to see more American producers entering the field of serious or so-called 'new wave' films and concentrating less on comedies." Actor said "The Italians are not worried about competition from us in this area, but they are concerned with the comedy field because American comedies draw more business than any other films." Particularly, he noted "People stand in line to see Jerry Lewis or Cary Grant, even though their voices are dubbed."

(Continued on page 20)

The Longest Day
(C'SCOPE)

Blockbusting boxoffice worldwide.

Paris, Sept. 27.

20th-Fox release of Darryl F. Zanuck production. With John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, Henry Fonda, Robert Ryan, Rod Steiger, Robert Wagner, Richard Beymer, Mel Ferrer, Jeffrey Hunter, Paul Anka, Sal Mineo, Roddy McDowall, Stuart Whitman, Steve Forrest, Eddie Albert, Edmund O'Brien, Fabian, Red Buttons, Tom Tryon, Alexander Knox, Tommy Sands, Ray Danton, Henry Grace, Mark Damon, Dewey Martin, Ron Randell. Directed by Ken Annakin for the British scenes; Andrew Marton for the American scenes, Bernhard Wicki (German episodes) as supervised by Darryl F. Zanuck with Elmo Williams as coordinator of battle scenes. Screenplay, Cornelius Ryan from his own book with additional episodes by Romain Gary, James Jones, David Pursell, Jack Seddon. Camera (CinemaScope), Jean Bourgoin, Henri Persin, Walter Wottitz and Guy Tabary for helicopter shots; music, Maurice Jarre with thematic music by Paul Anka and arranged by Mitch Miller; editor, Samuel Beetley; art directors, Ted Aworth, Vincent Korda; special effects, Karl Baumgartner, Karl Helmer, Augie Lohman, Robert MacDonald, Alex Weldon. Preemed at Palais de Chaillot, Paris. Running time, 180 MINS.

THE AMERICANS

Col. Vandervoort	John Wayne
Gen. Cota	Robert Mitchum
Gen. Roosevelt	Henry Fonda
Gen. Gavin	Robert Ryan
Commander	Rod Steiger
U.S. Ranger	Robert Wagner
Schultz	Richard Beymer
Gen. Haines	Mel Ferrer
Ser. Fuller	Jeffrey Hunter
Ranger	Paul Anka
Pvt. Martini	Sal Mineo
Pvt. Morris	Roddy McDowall
Lt. Sheen	Stuart Whitman
Col. Newton	Eddie Albert
Gen. Barton	Edmund O'Brien
Ranger	Fabian
Pvt. Steele	Red Buttons
Lt. Wilson	Tom Tryon
Gen. Bedell Smith	Alexander Knox
Ranger	Tommy Sands
Capt. Frank	Ray Danton
Gen. Eisenhower	Henry Grace
Pvt. Harris	Mark Damon
Pvt. Wilder	Dewey Martin
Col. Caffey	John Crawford
Williams	Ron Randell
Gen. Bradley	Nicholas Stuart
Rear Adm. Kirk	John Meillon

THE BRITISH

RAF Pilot	Richard Burton
Capt. Maud	Kenneth More
Lord Lovat	Peter Lawford
Major Howard	Richard Todd
Gen. Parker	Leo Genn
Padre	John Gregson
Pvt Flanagan	Sean Connery
Briefing Man	Jack Hedley

THE FRENCH

Janine	Irina Demich
Mayor	Bourvil
Roulland	Jean-Louis Barrault
Kieffer	Christian Marquand
Mme. Barrault	Arletty
Mother Superior	Madeleine Renaud
Sgt. Montlaur	Georges Riviere
Adm. Jaujard	Jean Servais
Renaud	Georges Wilson

THE GERMANS

Gen. Blumentritt	Curt Jurgens
Mar. Rommel	Werner Hinz
Mar. Rundstedt	Paul Hartmann
Ser. Kaffeeklatsch	Gerd Froebe
Maj. Pluskat	Hans Christian Blech
Gen. Pemsel	Wolfgang Preiss
Lt Col. Ocker	Peter Van Eyck
Col. Priller	Heinz Reincke
Gen. Marcks	Richard Munch
Gen. Salmuth	Ernst Schroeder
Cap. During	Karl Meisel

For his last personally produced feature, the new president of 20th-Fox, Darryl F. Zanuck, has achieved a solid and stunning war epic. From personal vignettes to big battles, it details the first day of the D-Day Landings by the Allies on June 6, 1944.

The savage fury and sound of war is ably caught on film. It emerges as a sort of grand scale semi-fictionalized documentary concerning the overall logistics needed for this incredible invasion. It carries its three hour length by the sheer tingle of the masses of manpower in action, peppered with little ironic, sad, silly actions that all add up to war.

No moralizing here but movement. The prospect is for big boxoffice on world screens. The best-selling book, the expert advance ballyhoo, the who's who cast of stars and, above all, the fantastic cacaphony of conflict slant this as sure blockbuster.

It begins with looks at top ranking German officers and their reactions to what they know is the impending Allied invasion. Some believe it, some do not. Marshal Rommel even leaves on June 5 to take a pair of shoes to his wife in Germany. Then the waiting Yank, French and British soldiers and officers get Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's decision to go ahead in spite of bad weather.

The mighty armada moves ahead and commandos and diversionary raids are launched. There is furious fighting for a bridge. Parachutists land in a town and are slaughtered. Various little incidents of unawareness on the German side, or heroism or fright or the baptism of fire on the Allied side, are ably blocked out.

One man in a bunker suddenly sees the invading fleet loom up and calls a skeptical German officer who only believes it when the fleet's guns beat a deafening tattoo on the shore. Then the landing boats. The Germans had only two planes ready and the refusal of Gen. Jodl to awaken Hitler kept reinforcements from being sent.

But a good segment of the landing forces are pinned down on the beach and suffer terrible casualties. Then there are the breakthroughs and the linking up of forces as the longest day, as Rommel called it, comes to a close. The film has one of the longest credit lists for some time and everybody on it certainly deserves the mention.

On that score the use of over 43 actual star names in bit and pivotal spots helps keep up the aura of fictionalized documentary. But since it is the action, time and place, and the actual machinery of war, that are the things, they are kept after the title in billing which removes the problem of star placements etc.

They all deliver resoundingly and one would be hard put not to name everybody. Some, however, loom larger than others in the story. Therefore, and without any intention to slight, special pats are due to John Wayne and Robert Mitchum as laconic commanders; to Red Buttons, for some welcome comedy relief as well as a shattering dramatic sequence; to Richard Todd, Richard Burton, Robert Ryan, Jeffrey Hunter, Sal Mineo, Peter Lawford, Rod Steiger, Edmond O'Brien, Henry Fonda, Eddie Albert, Alexander Knox, Leo Genn, Robert Wagner and Hans Christian Blech, as the German who first sees the Allies armada approaching the Normandy coast. Irina Demich, making her debut as a member of the French Resistance, has a sultry quality and shows promise of acting ability.

Cornelius Ryan, aided by additional scenes from Romain Gary, James Jones, David Piersell and Jack Seddon, has fashioned a canny and clever script from his own book. Zanuck himself marshalled three directors (Andre Marton, Bernhard Wicki and Ken Annakin) and a coordinator (Elmo Williams) for the battle scenes, who all deserve highest praise. The battles ably take their places among some of the best ever put on the screen.

A German strafing the beach, Yanks scaling a treacherous cliff only to find that there was no big gun there, British commandos taking a bridge, Yanks blowing up a big bunker, the French taking a town, all are done with massive, pungent action. The black and white and CinemaScope screen help keep the focus on surge and movement.

Any flaws? A few, but it would be captious to carp too much about them. Sometimes the anecdotes come along for their own sake rather than seeming a part of this boiling bullet ballad. A comic French mayor greeting the British on the beach is one such point. And the lines about war's pointlessness are sometimes superfluous, since implicit in the situation.

Enough to say this film is a feather in Zanuck's cap and also bodes well for 20th-Fox's future. It has what looks like a b.o. bonanza in the gripping pageant of action.

Film is technically superb with all aspects rating nods. Even the three directors, who sometimes display differing personal outlooks towards war and heroics, have been merged ably as one unit showing that the last war was both hell and heroic, chance and planning, men and guns.

The international version, with Germans speaking German and the French French, was shown at its Paris preem. All these scenes were shot in English also and will serve in Anglo speaking areas. Its Yank and foreign potential at the wickets look long and profitable. (The "international" version, with appropriate subtitles, is also being used for first Yank roadshow dates.)

It should be added that though historically, the outcome of the film is evident, it still packs suspense in its shear mechanics. Even the Germans get their just deserts as far as military knowhow is concerned. Mosk.

MARK 10 YRS. FOR CINERAMA

Detroit, Oct. 2.

The 10th anniversary of Cinerama in Detroit will be celebrated with appropriate ceremonies this week, the highlight coming when the 4,500,000th patron is expected to walk up to the ticket booth at the Music Hall.

Current is "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm," hottest grosser now in town.

The Connection

Films Around World release, directed by Shirley Clarke from the play by Jack Gelber, has been in the center of a censorial storm re its persistent usage of a usually taboo word. It is due to preem today (Wed.) at the D. W. Griffith, new Times Sq., N. Y., arter (nee the Bijou), as a challenge to the State Board of Regents, which has a pending appeal in courts.

Reviewed in VARIETY May 10, '61, by Mosk (at the Cannes Film Fest), it was described as a "jolting look at the hip and beat drug crowd." It is episodic, with plot minimal. Group of addicts gather in an apartment to participate in a documentary pic on dope. Much joking and wangling ensues. Reviewer rated Gelber's flair for characters and mood "a plus factor." Performances were all judged standout.

Smashing of the Reich
(DOCUMENTARY)

Well-edited, with low key narration but material familiar. Coupled with 'Kamikaze' for exploitation houses. Fair prospects.

Brigadier Film Associates release of an Irja production, produced by Perry Wolf. Writer, Wolf; music, Norman Dello Joio; narration, Jim Stephens. Reviewed in New York, Sept. 26, '62. Running time, 84 MINS.

Here we go again—with another how-the-war-was-won recital. This one has substantial merit, but the commercial question is whether there hasn't been a surfeit of these infatuations via both theatrical and home screens.

Produced by New York television producer-scribe Perry Wolf, "Smashing of the Reich" is being paired with another Wolf project, "Kamikaze," a bit of counterpoint dualing that's obviously aimed for hit-and-run exploitation bookings. Promoted aggressively, the tandem may bail some hay in program situations.

"Reich" is an astutely composed documentary, not a hasty patchwork. In tone it is neither sensational or arty, just a story told straight and well, with sustained interest. Much of the footage seems fresh, or at least seldom glimpsed. And there is fine attention to sidebar—inspiring sequences of the French Resistance "assisting" the Germans out of Paris; the Yank-Soviet hookup at the Elbe River; and of concentration camp liberations.

Armchair military historians may carp that "Reich" seems to pack an air power accent, since the role of the fly boys is dominant for more than half the film. Reflectively, however, it must be conceded that air might did indeed account for much smashing, in fact setting up Germany for the ground blows.

The narration, written by Wolf, is economic and low-key (all to the good), and delivered by a well-modulated Jim Stephens. Norman Dello Joio's score is effective throughout, but especially for the Paris footage.

Film, incidentally, bears a very specific dedication—to a deceased chum of the producer. Pit.

Education Sentimentale
(FRENCH—DYALISCOPE)

Paris, Oct. 2.

UFA-Comacico release of UFA-SFC production. Stars Jean-Claude Brialy, Marie-Jose Nat, Dawn Addams. Directed by Alexandre Astruc. Screenplay, Roger Nimier, Roland Laudenbach, Astruc from book by Gustave Flaubert; camera, Jean Badal; editor, Running time, 90 MINS.

Frederic	Jean-Claude Brialy
Anne	Marie-Jose Nat
Catherine	Dawn Addams
Didier	Michel Auclair
Barbara	Carla Marlier
Charles	Pierre Dudan

Director Alexandre Astruc now seems a flash in the pan after this lifeless look at the criss-cross loves of a young, idealistic provincial in Paris. Updated from a Gustave Flaubert novel this lacks the feel for character, place and life to make it palatable. Foreign chances are extremely chancey.

A young, good student, lives in the servant's quarters of an industrialist who employs him. He is enamored of the young wife of a climbing employee who is also friendly with the boss. But he ends up with the discarded mistress of the climber. Then he manages to get to the wife only to be left in the lurch.

Astruc rarely shows concern or insight into the cardboard characters. Hence, their emotional lives are hardly revealing. It resembles the many French and Italo pix on listless love and ironic sentimental loss. But it lacks the flair for making all this interesting. Technically it is only passable.

Thesps cannot do much with their essentially surface characters. Pic appears mainly local with even the many love scenes minus the bite, snap or sensuality for hypo purposes. Mosk.

Arsene Lupin Contre Arsene Lupin
(Arsene Lupin Against Arsene Lupin)
(FRENCH—DYALISCOPE)

Paris, Oct. 2.

Gaumont release of Cinephonic-DAMA-Chavane production. Stars Jean-Claude Brialy, Jean-Pierre Cassel; features Francoise Dorleac, Genevieve Grad, Jean Le Poulain. Directed by Edouard Molinaro. Screenplay, Georges Neveux, Molinaro, Francois Chavane from book by Maurice Blanc; camera, Pierre Petit; editor, Robert Isnardon. At Ambassade, Paris. Running time, 110 MINS.

Francois	Jean-Claude Brialy
Genard	Jean-Pierre Cassel
Nathalie	Francoise Dorleac
Catherine	Genevieve Grad
Charly	Daniel Cauchy
Prefect	Jean Le Poulain

Treatment just does not have the jauntiness of serious action to bring off this story of the 1920's via the shenanigans of the two sons of the famed turn-of-the-century gentleman burglar Arsene Lupin. So it does not appear likely as an arty entry abroad, mainly having second feature pic status via its comic qualities.

Film begins with the burial of Lupin. But it develops he left two sons. They begin to commit burglaries and come into conflict as they drive the police crazy. Finally they join forces to save some jewels for a comely Princess.

Director Edouard Molinaro uses many varied and speeded up shots plus a lot of period dancing and music. But the right balance of time and pace eludes him. He sacrifices the satire for flashy camera work.

Jean-Pierre Cassel and Jean-Claude Brialy have the bounce for the roles of the two thieves but not the polish called for. This appears mainly a local item with some secondary chances offshore on its colorful carryings-on. Mosk.

Vancouver 'Blue Laws' Go to a Public Test In December Plebiscite

Vancouver, Oct. 2.

A resolution on running films, concerts, theatrical productions and similar events on Sunday will be submitted to Vancouver voters at civic elections Dec. 12. The issue was debated at length by city council last week and a motion to call for a plebiscite finally approved on a 6-3 division.

The matter has been the subject of considerable agitation pro and con for several years, with the B.C. Movie Exhibitors Assn. and Vancouver Labor Council spearheading the attempt to open the city up for Sunday commercial entertainment, and the Lord's Day Alliance, Women's Christian Temperance Union, and a number of church organizations in strenuous opposition.

In 1957 Vancouver voters approved a Sunday sports plebiscite by a 64,000 to 34,400 margin, and the enabling legislation was subsequently passed by the B.C. government to permit the staging of professional sports. No professional football games have been played on the Sabbath as yet, but amateur groups have taken advantage of the permissive law and held championship games, with an admission charged. The act calls for events to be held between 2 and 6 p.m.

Decision to include entertainments other than films in the plebiscite wording was taken when aldermen said that restricting the question to pix alone would be "discriminatory." It was claimed that only one industry would be helped. In certain quarters, however, it is felt that widening the issue to take in too many Sunday entertainments will result in certain defeat for the plebiscite.

Council is not bound to take action on the results of a plebiscite, but would obviously be influenced by a big majority, one way or the other.

The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner
(BRITISH)

Another sturdy entry in wave of realistic British "angry young man" pix. Standout debut by Tom Courtenay; should click with discerning audiences.

London, Sept. 28.

British Lion-Bryanston release (through BLC) of Woodfall (Tony Richardson) production. Stars Michael Redgrave, Tom Courtenay; features Avis Bunnage, Dervis Ward, James Bolam, Topsy Jane. Directed by Tony Richardson. Screenplay by Alan Sillitoe from his original short story; music, John Addison; editor, Anthony Gibbs; camera, Walter Lassally. At Warner Theatre, London. Running time, 104 MINS.

Colin Smith	Tom Courtenay
Mrs. Smith	Avis Bunnage
Mike	James Bolam
Brown	Alec McCowen
Detective	Dervis Ward
Mr. Jones	James Cairncross
Roach	Joe Robinson
The Governor	Michael Redgrave
Audrey	Topsy Jane
Gladys	Julia Foster
Ronalds	John Bull
Stacey	Philip Martin
Public school boy	Christopher Williams
Booking office clerk	Frank Finlay
Doctor	Peter Duguid
Tory politician	Robert Percival

This is the latest in the current trend of British down-to-earth films which aim to put over a message of social significance. It is difficult to conjure up much sympathy for the young "hero" who comes out as a disturbed young layabout (he seems thoroughly to deserve his fate of landing in Borstal the corrective establishment for British juve delinquents). Yet the performance of newcomer Tom Courtenay and the imaginative, if sometimes overfussy, direction of Tony Richardson, plus some standout lensing by Walter Lassally makes this a worthwhile pic. It should be appreciated by all discerning ducat buyers.

Alan Sillitoe has written a sound screenplay from his own short story. Though there are obvious signs of padding, it remains a thoroughly professional job. The flashback technique is used ingeniously, though perhaps overmuch. Courtenay, latest in the modern wave of young British actors who rely on ability rather than in conventional good looks, plays a young man from an unhappy home in the Midlands. Apparently on the grounds that the world owes him a living, he seems not interested in work and, inevitably drifts into petty crime and gets sent to Borstal.

He is resentful about "the system" and takes a strange way of getting back at it. A natural born runner ("we had plenty of practice in running away from the police in our family," he says bitterly), he is selected to represent Borstal in a long distance race against a public school team. It is the ambition of the governor (Michael Redgrave) to win the cup for Borstal. But Courtenay gets his socalled revenge on "the system" by deliberately losing the race when he has victory in his hands.

It is a dubious climax which doesn't fully make the author's point but, as Courtenay trains for the race, there are logical and excellent ways of flashbacking to the events that lead up to his sentence. He gives an impressive performance of brooding sulkiness and wry humor, and must be marked as a new actor to watch. Michael Redgrave as the rather pompous, stuffy governor who, to Courtenay's jaundiced eye, represents "the system," brings his polished touch to a role that could have become irritating.

They are supported by several other interesting performances, notably Avis Bunnage, as Courtenay's sluttish mother; James Bolam, as his fellow delinquent, and Alec McCowen, as a psychiatrist, a part which unfortunately, and inexplicably, fades out early.

Richardson's fluent, imaginative direction is helped considerably via some superb photography by Lassally. John Addison's music, while harping overmuch on the "Jerusalem" theme, is particularly impressive during the lonely scenes when the long distance runner is way out in front with his own thoughts. Borstal atmosphere appears to have been captured accurately and so are most of the drab urban scenes. Major snag is the Midlands accent which is often difficult to grasp accurately. Rich.

Kamikaze
(DOCUMENTARY)

Coupled with "Smashing of the Reich," and likewise well-done documentation. But a heavy dose of warfare on one bill could numb some viewers.

Brigadier Film Associates release of an Irja production, produced by Perry Wolf. Writer, Wolf; music, Norman Dello Joio; narration, Duncan Elliot. Reviewed in New York, Oct. 1, '62. Running time, 89 MINS.

This playmate to the same producer's "Smashing of the Reich" (see separate review) is likewise a very competent reprise, in this case the Pacific war. Either pic of itself, however, seems a sufficient quota for an audience; but pairing them, as distrib Brigadier Film Associates intends, might be overboarding the war-is-hell-stuff. After a time it gets numbing.

Producer-scripter Perry Wolf has, again, collated and edited some superb clips for a document that spans the pre-Pearl Harbor preparations (Japanese) to the Yank's A-bomb knockout blows. Again, too, much of the footage appears fresh, with considerable oddment for Occidental eyes. As for instance, scenes of the Japanese homefront, including some dilly shots of youngsters making with "war games."

"Kamikaze" (title, of course, refers to the Japanese suicide pilots) makes a strong point at the outset that plenty of evidence was available an attack on Pearl Harbor was imminent in the days just before it came off. To each sign, however (including decoded messages, the sighting of planes, etc.), U.S. inaction was the response, and the forever-dangling question is why. The Pearl Harbor debacle is preceded by alternating sequences of Japanese preparations and the good Hawaiian life of the tourists and seamen, an effective prolog to the piece.

Wolf has again scripted in deference to the eye, and Duncan Elliot's delivery is properly dispassionate. Norman Dello Joio has contributed another able score.

Of those battle shots, they're excellent but, after a time, it gets to be too much of a chilling, staggering thing. The message, one hopes, should get through: war isn't for humans. Pit.

Le Diable et les Dix Commandements
(The Devil and the 10 Commandments)
(FRENCH—FRANSCOPE)

Paris, Oct. 2.

Cinedis release of Mondex-Filmsonor-Proclnex-INCEI production. With Charles Aznavour, Jean-Claude Brialy, Danielle Darrieux, Alain Delon, Fernandel, Mel Ferrer, Madeleine Robinson, Francoise Arnoul, Claude Dauphin, Micheline Presle, Lino Ventura, Michel Simon, Georges Wilson, Louis De Funes. Directed by Julien Duvivier. Screenplay, Duvivier, Rene Barjavel, Pascal Jardin, Henri Jeanson, Michel Audiard; camera, Roger Fellous; music, Jacques Brel, Gilbert Becaud, Charles Aznavour. At Marignan, Paris. Running time, 120 MINS.

Denis	Charles Aznavour
Clerk	Jean-Claude Brialy
Clarisse	Danielle Darrieux
Son	Alain Delon
Patient	Fernandel
Philippe	Mel Ferrer
Mother	Madeleine Robinson
Mistress	Francoise Arnoul
Husband	Claude Dauphin
Wife	Micheline Presle
Gangster	Lino Ventura
Thief	Louis De Funes
Plumber	Michel Simon
Father	Georges Wilson

Following up on the sketch film cycle comes another with one director interpreting the 10 Commandments in an ironic insouciant manner and with a bevy of star names at his disposal. This has a few episodes below par but with enough diverting gambits to slant it for foreign playoff and even arty spots on its names, intermittent wit and general sprightliness.

The few dramatic skeins suffer from a lack of character depth in short segments and force things to the point of hokum and melodrama. But some comic bits benefit from the right sort of wry comedics to bring them off. Episodes have the Devil himself as a commentator and demonically showing how the 10 Commandments can sometimes work against those who try to abide by them or use them as a shield rather than a way of life.

One has a plumber in a nunnery prone to prououncing the name of the Lord in vain. Taken to task, he has to learn the commandments into which act gets the Devil and the illustrative ensuing sketches on various commandments.

A wife tires of her rich husband and the wife of a friend gives in to her husband for a necklace. But in trying to smuggle it in without her husband knowing it ends up as a gift to the wife of the giver. Then a priest takes vengeance on a gangster who has been responsible for his sister's suicide by forcing him to kill him, the hitch being it is suicide for him too even if he gets the man. Another episode has a man announcing he is God. He changes things for a peasant family only to end up a mental patient.

A young man finds out his nagging mother is not his real one. He goes off to see his actual mother, a noted actress. But she almost seduces him before she finds out who he is. As a result, he decides the woman who brought him up is a better person than his real mother. A thief is shaken down by a blackmailer but they both lose out when they accidentally change the bag containing loot with that of a worker.

This segmented affair relies on trick endings rather than actual pointed insight and flair in the episodes. Some are telegraphed or forced but the one on stealing has fine comic touches because of the expert thesping of Louis De Funes. Oldtimer Julien Duvivier has given this lush, workable but uninspired mounting. Production dress is good. In short, this has some hypo points on its idea, but calls for careful selling. Mosk.

The Boys
(BRITISH)

Juvenile delinquency under the microscope again. A prolonged court case, enlivened, occasionally, but sometimes bogged down by flashbacks. Always holding because of Richard Todd and Robert Morley as respective counsels. Good prospects.

London, Sept. 14.

Gala Film release of a Galaworldfilm production. Stars Richard Todd, Robert Morley. Produced and directed by Sydney J. Furie; screenplay by Stuart Douglass; editor, Jack Slade; music, "The Shadows"; camera, Gerald Gibbs. Previewed at National Film Theatre, London, Sept. 12, '62. Running time, 124 MINS.

Victor Webster	Richard Todd
Montgomery	Robert Morley
Judge	Felix Aylmer
Stan Coulter	Dudley Setton
Billy Herne	Ronald Lacey
Ginger Thompson	Tony Garnett
Barney Lee	Jess Conrad
Robert Brewer	Wilfred Bramble

Sydney J. Furie, a young energetic Canadian, established himself as a topline director with "The Young Ones," a click musical in the United Kingdom. Maybe he's a shade unwise with this effort to have saddled himself with the twin chores of director and producer. But it comes out as a workmanlike job that could have been rather better with more ruthless cutting and a bit more bite in the sturdy screenplay of Stuart Douglass.

It's another study of juvenile delinquency, but interest is kept alive because of suspense geared adroitly on the theme of whether or not the boys in the dock are guilty. There are four of them, accused of the murder of a garage nightwatchman. Richard Todd, prosecuting, relentlessly plants in the audience's mind they are guilty young thugs. Robert Morley, defending, makes the viewers wonder. Flashbacks, over-prolonged, keep the audience pondering. Then comes a final switch which upsurges interest. Real problem that is posed is whether the British law is archaic in that it insists that a murder done for pleasure or passion can still enable the murderers to escape the noose. But, if it's done for gain, then the character is doomed to execution.

In this case the loot is a mere couple of dollars, but the principle remains the same. The four boys set out on a night of high jinks which leads to tragedy. The result is trial and the court sequences, like most, offer the tension and drama that make for good cinema. But this depends entirely on good acting and this film has its full quota. Todd, an earnest, humorless prosecutor, does one of his best bits of thesping and he has an excellent foil in defending counsel Morley, who adds his own distinctive touches of comedy to his orations.

The four boys are fine, particularly Dudley Setton and Jess Conrad, a pop singer who is aspiring to dramatic roles and earning the right to have them. There are also some excellent smaller contributions by such skilled performers as Wilfred Bramble, Alan Cuthbertson, Colin Gordon, Betty Marsden, Patrick Magee, Felix Aylmer, Harold Scott and Laurence Hardy. Their parts are written so certainly that none can fail.

When the film drops it is because of several too facile flashbacks which give "The Boys" plenty of chances, but slow down the action. Some are not necessary. But Furie otherwise keeps a firm hold on the proceedings and Gerald Gibbs' lensing matches the authenticity of the courtroom and sleazy late night West End scenes.

Sound pic that puts over a point of view with sincerity. Rich.

A Kind of Loving

Released by Governor Films and preemed in London, this Joseph Janni Production went into Fine Arts, N. Y., this week (1). Described by reviewer Rich in VARIETY April 25, '62, as having "a chance to do as well as 'Saturday Night and Sunday Morning,' the critic wrote that the pic had new talent conquering in a compelling, down-to-earth drama about fumbling, young love.

"This leans almost exclusively on newish talent," wrote Rich. "With this fresh talent, the result was a gamble, but it has come off handsomely. The censor has recognized the sincerity behind the film and has passed some surprisingly frank dialog and situations."

He pointed out that the picture captures the full flavor of the busy streets, back alleys, taverns and the rash moorlands of industrial Lancashire in North England.

The Dock Brief
(BRITISH)

Arty, bolstered-up version of a radio and stage playlet which may stimulate wicket interest via its stars, Peter Sellers and Richard Attenborough. But it will need help from the sales department.

London, Sept. 25.

Metro release of a Dimitri De Grunwald production. Stars Peter Sellers, Richard Attenborough; features Beryl Reid, David Lodge, Frank Pettingell, Audrey Nicholson, Tristram Jellinek. Directed by James Hill. Screenplay by Pierre Rouve, from John Mortimer's play; camera, Edward Scaife; editor, Ann Chegwidden; music, Ron Grainer. At Plaza Theatre, London. Running time, 88 MINS.

Morgenhall	Peter Sellers
Fowle	Richard Attenborough
Doris	Beryl Reid
Bateson	David Lodge
Tuppy Morgan	Frank Pettingell
Perkins	Tristram Jellinek
Morgenhall's Girl	Audrey Nicholson
Judge Barter	Eric Woodburn
Clerk of Court	John Waite
First Warder	Patrick Newell
Second Warder	Henry Kay
Photographer	Frank Thornton
Examiner	Eric Dodson

This offbeat, arty film gets away to a good start with the stellar pull of Peter Sellers and Richard Attenborough, but it will still need sturdy salesmanship to get it moving in the less discriminating houses. It is less a narrative film than a duel in thesping between two proven performers and there are some thin passages where scriptwriter Pierre Rouve obviously had to pad out the story line. Originally a radio play by John Mortimer, it is a bold attempt by Dimitri De Grunwald to present something different and, on the whole, it's a fair try.

Sellers plays an aging unsuccessful barrister who gets the chance of a lifetime when briefed to defend Attenborough, a mild birdseed merchant who has murdered his wife because he wanted peace. He is bored with her because of her raucous sense of humor. It is the last straw when she doesn't elope with their equally raucous and boisterous lodger. Sellers plans his campaign optimistically and is quite undaunted when Attenborough admits the crime and shows the flaws in all Sellers defense arguments.

The lawyer turns Attenborough's cell into a courtroom and the two rehearse the case thoroughly. But at the trial everything goes wrong. Sellers' rhetoric crumbles and Attenborough is found guilty. But the wry, ironic twist is that he is reprieved on the grounds that his lawyer was so crassly inefficient that he didn't receive a fair trial.

The screenplay is a literate job, with a deft mixture of comedy and pathos. Sellers has the opportunity of showing many moods and much of his work is good. But there is a danger that he is being overexposed and some of the tricks are beginning to show up. He is in peril of giving a string of excellent imitations and impersonations rather than a sustained performance. Attenborough comes out of the acting duel rather better. He too, playing the mock judge, mock winesses, mock jurymen, as well as the murderer, has plenty of opportunity of showing his versatility and he gives a well thought-out, intelligent performance.

Remainder of the cast hasn't such opportunity. However, Beryl Reid, as the wife; David Lodge, as the lodger; and Tristram Jellinek, as the prosecuting counsel, have some excellent moments. James Hill's direction is smooth but the action of the yarn is uneven and some of the twists are readily predictable. Lensing by Edward Scaife, editing by Ann Chegwidden and Ron Grainer's music are all satisfactory. Rich.

Le Repos Du Guerrier
(Warrior's Rest)
(FRENCH—COLOR—FRANSCOPE)

Paris, Oct. 2.

Cocinor release of FranCos Film-INCEI Film production. Stars Brigitte Bardot, Robert Hossein; features, Jacqueline Porel, Michel Serrault, Jean-Marc Bory, Robert Dalban. Directed by Roger Vadim. Screenplay, Vadim, Claude Choublier from novel by Christiane Rochefort; camera (Eastmancolor), Armand Thirard; editor, Victoria Mercanton. At Venice Film Fest. Running time, 100 MINS.

Genevieve	Brigitte Bardot
Renaud	Robert Hossein
Pierre	Jean-Marc Bory
Raphaele	Micheyl Meril
Sculptor	James Robertson Justice
Mother	Jacqueline Porel

After veteran directors Claude Autant-Lara and H. G. Clouzot, Roger Vadim now tries to make a dramatic actress of Brigitte Bardot. It still does not quite come off but Vadim, who created her in "And God Created Woman," has a shrewd eye for her capabilities and has her adequate in this tale of a prim girl who is initiated into love by a destructive alcoholic.

All of this is lushly told. It has a great deal of suggestiveness and shrewdly concealed nudity. This could have this as a specialized and playoff bet with the Bardot name and its scenes of an elegant bohemian world okay selling points. Miss Bardot's famed frank and pouting natural sex kitten aspects are throttled in this to depict the finding of physical love.

She is an inhibited, middleclass girl at the beginning, more interested in bank accounts and settling down with a boy she does not particularly love than in any adventure. She goes to collect an inheritance in a small town and by mistake enters another room in a hotel where she finds a man who has taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

He is saved and she suddenly finds herself saddled with him, and physical love blooms. She brings him back to Paris and they hole up in her apartment for lovemaking, drinking, fights and his steady attempt to drag her down with him and not to give in to a growing love for her.

He finally does in hokey scene in a ruined Church in Florence, Italy, where he shouts for her to marry him as the wind whips her unruly hair. So this has Miss Bardot playing as a redeemer, rather than a symbol of destructive sex. After her awakening she goes through hell as he reduces her to all sorts of degradations. He even picks up a joy girl and goes off with her while in her company.

But Miss Bardot wins out. Director Vadim displays a glossy flair for languid necking parties, brittle, supposedly intellectual tirades about love and society. Miss Bardot looks alternately fresh and marked as she goes through her calvary to finally find love that is both human as well as physical.

Robert Hossein has the smug, hurt arrogance for the role of the alcoholic lover. Other parts are well taken. But all this revolves about Miss Bardot's charms. Vadim cleverly tries to mask this in another character. It is Miss Bardot who has to sell this pic abroad, aided by the canny sensuality which is always masked in an effort to avoid censorship problems and still have a titillating quality that might give it a word-of-mouth plus.

Miss Bardot does speak her lines with more assurance and authority, and does have her moments when she can be her sexy childish self. It looks to be a solid grossing entry here and with the right placement, selling and programming could possibly beat the jinx that has settled on Bardot pix in the U.S. of late. Film is technically solid. Mosk.

Patterson-Liston Fight

Allied Artists release of Graff, Reiner & Smith production, produced by Manny Spiro. Camera director, Frank Zucker; editorial supervisor, Leonard Anderson; narration, Chris Schenkel. Reviewed in New York, Sept. 27, '62. Running time, 13 MINS.

Except for a humbug script, Allied Artists' theatrical release of the Chicago fiasco is a fine job of sharp, well-edited footage. Producer Manny Spiro is an experienced hand at these productions, and the reel reflects his savvy. Most of it, perforce, is padding—color stuff fore and after the bout, and including the automatic slow-motion reprise of the knockout. Clearly, it was a stinging left cross that spun the champ off the ropes and decked him for the count.

Beyond that, there's some interest in the post-kayo frames, with the ring hysteria as press and broadcast contingent swarmed around. Of the fighters, only pick-up on the track is Patterson's true-blue remark that new champ Liston should have his chance for public favor.

Spiro's crew, as on previous fight pix, includes Frank Zucker as camera director and Leonard Anderson as editorial supervisor. Again, too, it's Chris Schenkel's voice over, and without phony hysterics. Photography is unusually sharp throughout. All things considered, a worthy recap that at least answers the "question" as to payoff punch. Pit.

Carnival of Souls

First production by Lawrence, Kans., company emerges as lightweight ghost story, capably done and technically okay but thin. For lower half of easier duals.

Lawrence, Kans., Sept. 27.

Herts-Lion International-American International release of Harcourt Productions production. Cast, Candace Hilligoss, Frances Feist, Sidney Berger, Stanley Leavitt, Art Ellison, Hark Harvey, Tom McGinnis, Forbes Caldwell. Produced and directed by Harvey. Screenplay, John Clifford from original by Clifford and Harvey. Camera, Maurice Prather. Editors, Dan Palmquist, Bill DeJarnette. Music, Gene Moore. Titles, Dan Fitzgerald. Sound, Ed Down. Assistant director, Reza Barivi. Production manager, Larry Sneegas. Reviewed at world premiere Granada Theatre, Lawrence, Kans., Sept. 26, 1962. Running time, 80 MINS.

Occasionally a feature film emerges from the midwest, although this is the first ever out of Lawrence, Kans., where a group of commercial film pros veered off into a try at producing theatrical entertainment. As the first from Harcourt Productions, "Carnival of Souls" is a creditable can of film, considering it was put together for less than $100,000.

The ghost story, on a format more familiar in literature, has Candace Hilligoss, a dressy blonde, and a couple of gal pals, nudged off of a bridge and a watery death in the swirling river. She surprisingly emerges from the river and lifelike enough goes on to an eerie existence as a new organist at a Salt Lake City church through the balance of the film.

An old pavilion in a sad state of disintegration peculiarly fascinates her, but pasty faces and fantasies swirl about her, and intermittently head ghost, Harvey, appears from mirrors and pools to chill her and the audience. In the end the battered car is dragged from the river and is seen to contain the bodies of the three dead girls. The audience then knows that Miss Hilligoss as Mary has been but a lovely and haunted phantom through about 75 of the film's 80 minutes.

It isn't enough story to previl, but there is a fair share of suspense and some moments of good comedy. Veteran trouper Frances Feist is standout as the landlady who rents a room to the lithesome haunt, and Miss Hilligoss with a sort of misty quality about her does creditably as the lovely soul without a heart. Sidney Berger, University of Kansas speech instructor, does well with the role of the roomer across the hall who would like to make out with the fascinating phantom, but can't quite put his paws on her.

Capable supporting roles are handled by Stanley Leavitt as the doctor, Art Ellison as the Minister, and Harvey as the ghost menace. Pace is satisfactory, but judicious snipping could take out a rough spot or two and five minutes from the running time. Most of the technical crew have some affiliation with Centron Studios, commercial film producers, at Lawrence, and interiors were shot there.

Premiere at the Granada Theatre, Lawrence, was largely for hometown consumption. Quin.

L.A. Biz Perks Some But 'Convicts' Slow $15,000, 'Mongols' Fair 12½G; 'Toreadors' Hot 7½G; 'Grimm' 22G, 8th

Los Angeles, Oct. 2.

L.A. firstruns, while up slightly from last week, still are in the doldrums, newcomers mostly failing to show any real strength and holdovers not doing much. "Convicts 4" is rated soft $15,000 in three theatres while "The Mongols" looks fair $12,500 in two houses.

"Waltz of Toreadors" shapes okay $7,500 at Music Hall, also in first week. Several reissue combos are getting no place currently. "Young Lions" paired with "Island in Sun" looking pale in two firstruns.

"Brothers Grimm" should hit a boff $22,000 or close in eighth frame at Warner Hollywood. "Hatari" looks handy $13,000 in third in three spots. "West Side Story" is stout $18,000 in 42d session at the Chinese.

Estimates for This Week

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $2-$2.40)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont). Okay $7,500. Last week, "Best of Enemies" (Col) (5th wk), $3,900.

Los Angeles, Hawaii, Wiltern (Metropolitan - G&C - SW) (2,047; 1,106; 2,344; $1-$1.25)—"Convicts Four" (AA) and "Payroll" (AA). Soft $15,000 or near. Last week, Los Angeles, Hawaii, "Man in Moon" (T-L), "Ninth Bullet" (Embassy), $3,200. Wiltern with Hillstreet, Iris, Village, Loyola, "Hatari" (Par) (2d wk), $21,000.

Hillstreet, Hollywood (Metropolitan-FWC) (2,752; 856; 90-$1.25)—"Mongols" (Indie) and "Trojan Horse" (Indie). Fair $12,500. Last week, Hollywood with Warren's, "No Time for Sergeants" (WB), "Sayonara" (WB) (reissues), $6,400.

Warren's, Iris (Metropolitan-FWC) (1,757; 825; $1-$1.49) — "Young Lions" (20th) and "Island in Sun" (20th) (reissues). Pale $8,700.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,316; $1.49-$1.75) — "Anna Karemina" (MGM) (reissue). Dull $4,800. Last week, "Goddess" (Col) (reissue) (2d wk), $3,200.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.50-$2)—"Gigi" (MGM) and "Les Girls" (MGM) (reissues). Dim $4,500. Last

(Continued on page 10)

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $2,042,400
(Based on 23 cities and 272 theatres).

Last Year $1,923,500
(Based on 22 cities and 232 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N.Y.)

'Grimm' 9G Paces Cincy; 'Point' 7G

Cincinnati, Oct. 2.

Stepups by four openers bid for only a light lift in firstrun biz here this week. Clips of the Liston-Patterson fight are not helping much at Albee and Palace. "Pressure Point" bids okay at latter. "I Spit On Your Grave" looms strong at Twin Drive-In. Another entry at the ozoner, "Marco Polo" and "Airborn," shapes okay. Bow of "Miracle Worker" at the Valley rates mildly, a letdown from smash reviews. "Brothers Grimm" shapes as city's topper in eighth week at Capitol.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; $1-$1.75)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Okay $7,500 on last week of extended run. Helped via Patterson-Liston fight pix. Last week, $8,500.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,540; $1.25-$2.75) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Fairish $9,000. Last week, $9,200.

Esquire Art (Cin-T-Co) (500; $1.25)—"A Matter of Who" (Indie) (2d wk). Potent $1,500 after $2,200 opener.

Grand (RKO) (1,300; $1.25)—"Mata Hari" (Indie) and "Red Dust" (Indie) (reissues). Fair $6,500. Last week, "Tartars" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM), $7,000.

Guild (Vance) (300; $1.25)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (6th wk). Nice $1,500. Fifth was $1,700.

Hyde Park Art (Cin-T-Co) (500; $1.25) — "I Like Money" (20th) (subrun). So-so $1,000. Last week, "The Bridge" (Indie), $1,200.

Keith's (Cin-T-Co) (1,500; 90-$1.50) — "Interns" (Col) (3d wk). Hep $7,500. Last week, $10,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; $1-$1.25)—"Pressure Point" (UA) and Patterson-Liston fight pix. Okay $7,000 or over. Last week, "Dream Wife" (U) and "Love Me Or Leave Me" (U) (reissues), $6,500.

Twin Drive-In (Cin-T-Co) (800 cars each side; $1)—West: "I Spit On Your Grave" (Indie) and "Payroll" (Indie). Strong $7,500. Last week, "Touch of Mink" (U) (subruns), "Day Earth Caught Fire" (U) (subruns), $3,500 at 90c gate. East: "Marco Polo" (AI) and "Airborne" (Indie). Okay $4,500. Last week, "Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (Par) and "Sweet Bird of Youth" (MGM) (subruns), $2,500 at 90c.

Valley (Cin-T-Co) (1,275; $1.25-$1.50) — "Miracle Worker" (UA). Mild $4,500, rave reviews to the contrary. Last week, "Adventures Young Man" (20th) (2d wk), $3,500.

'Spiral' Big $11,000 In Denver; 'Polo' Fat 10½G

Denver, Oct. 2.

First-runs here currently are hard hit by the lack of new screen fare. Longruns are holding up fairly well. "Spiral Road" looms big in first stanza at the Centre while "Marco Polo" is rated stout at Paramount. However, "Flame in Streets" shapes slow in second at Towne. "Rear Window" is [illegible] ridly on reissue at the [illegible]

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (900; $1.25) (Reissue) (6th wk). "Breakfast at Tiffany's" (Par) (reissue) $3,000. Last week, "Freckles."

Centre (Fox) (1,270; $1.25-$1.50)—"Spiral Road" (U). Big $11,000.

Last week, "Touch of Mink" (U) (9th wk) and "Breakfast at Tiffany's" (Par) (rerun), $8,500.

Cooper (Cooper) (814; $1.65-$2.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Neat $13,000. Last week, $16,000.

Crest (Wolfberg) (750; $1.25)—"Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA) (m.o.) (2d wk). Oke $2,700. Last week, $3,200.

Denham (Indie) (800; $1.25-$2.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (22d wk). Fine $5,000. Last week, $7,500.

Denver (Fox) (2,432; $1.25)—"Rear Window" (Par) and "Proud and Profane" (Par) (reissues). Strong $10,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Concrete Jungle" (Indie), $9,000.

Esquire (Fox) (600; $1.25) "Sky Above" (Embassy) (2d wk) and "No Place Like Homicide" (Indie). Hep $2,800. Last week, $3,000.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,690; $1.25)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) and "Shootout at Big Sag" (Indie). Mild $5,000. Last week, "Strangers When We Meet" (Col) and "All the Young Men" (Col) (reissues) (3 days), $3,000.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,100; 90-$1.25)—"Marco Polo" (AI) and "Force of Impulse" (Indie). Tall $10,500. Last week, "Panic in Year Zero" (AI) and "Dangerous Charter" (Indie), $12,000.

Towne (Indie) (600; $1.25-$1.45)—"Flame in Streets" (Atlantic) (2d wk). Dim $1,500. Last week, $2,700.

Balto Biz Blah; 'Convicts' Dim 7G

Baltimore, Oct. 2.

Firstrun business is only fairish this week with most new films disappointing and holdovers slowing down. "I Thank A Fool" is passable in first at the Town. "Convicts 4" is dull in first week at the Stanton. "Horror Hotel" and "The Head" look fair in opener at Hippodrome.

"Boccaccio '70" is warm in fifth week at the Charles. "Les Liaisons Dangereuses" shapes nice in second at the Mayfair. "The Night" is dim in second at Cinema.

Estimates for This Week

Avalon (Freedman) (850; 60-$1.50)—"Mr. Teas at Burlesque" (Indie). Slow $1,300. Last week, "Spit On Grave" (Indie) (2d wk), $1,500.

Aurora (T-L) (367; 60-$1.50)—"Game for Six Lovers" (Indie). Mild $1,900. Last week, "Palace of Shame" (Indie) (2d wk), $1,700.

Charles (Fruchtman) (500; 90-$1.50)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (5th wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, $4,100.

Crest (Fruchtman) (1,700; 90-$1.50)—"I Like Money" (Indie) (2d wk). Okay $3,500. Last week, $5,000.

Cinema (Schwaber) (460; 90-$1.50)—"The Night" (Lopc) (2d wk). Dim $1,200. Last week, $2,000.

Hippodrome (T-L) (2,200; 60-$1.65)—"Horror Hotel" (T-L) and "The Head" (T-L). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Tartars" (MGM), $6,500.

Five West (Schwaber) (435; 90-$1.50)—"Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA) (7th wk). Down to $1,500. Last week, $2,000.

Little (T-L) (300; 60-$1.65)—"Anna Karenina" (MGM) (reissue). Pleasing $2,000. Last week, "Best of Enemies" (Col) (2d wk), $2,000.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (700; 90-$1.50)—"Les Liaisons" (Astor) (2d wk). Warm $4,500. Last week, $6,500.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; 90-$1.50)—"Rear Window" (Par) (2d wk) (reissue). Oke $4,000. Last week, $6,000.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (355; 90-$1.50)—"Coming Out Party" (Union) (2d wk). Good $2,000. Last week, $2,700.

Rex (Freedman) (560; $1.50)—"Sunside 77" (Indie) (2d wk). Nice $2,600. Last week, $4,000.

Stanton (Fruchtman) (2,800; 90-$1.50)—"Convicts 4" (AA). Modest $7,000 or under. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (8th wk), $4,000.

Town (T-L) (1,125; 60-$1.65)—"Thank a Fool" (MGM). Warm $9,000. Last week, "Two Loves Her Town" (MGM) (2d wk), $4,800.

Hub Biz Better; 'Affair' Big $13,000, 'Pigeon' Torrid 15G, 'Island' 14G

Boston, Oct. 2.

Biz picked up via the rain and new product after two weeks of sad showings. Influx of college studes is a factor. "Pigeon That Took Rome" shapes slick at Paramount. "A Very Private Affair" looms big at the Beacon Hill. "No Man Is an Island" is bright at Memorial.

Second week holdovers are sparked by "Divorce Italian Style," socko in second at the new tiny Park Square Cinema. "Damn the Defiant" looks stout in second week at the Saxon.

"Interns" and stageshow is okay at Music Hall in third week. "Brothers Grimm" shapes big in ninth round at the Boston.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,170; 90-$2)—"Music Man" (WB) (9th wk). Oke $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM). Big $13,000. Last week, "Best of Enemies" (Col) (5th wk), $5,000.

Boston (Beacon Ent.) (1,345; $1.20-$2.95) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Socko $15,000 again. Last week, same.

Capri (Sack) (850; 75-$1.80)—"Pressure Point" (UA) (2d wk). Fine $6,000. Last week, $7,500.

Exeter (Indie) (1,276; 90-$1.49)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont). Opened Saturday (29). Last week, "Matter of Who" (Indie) (3d wk), Oke $4,400.

Fenway (Indie) (1,300; $1.50)—"Viridiana" (Indie) (2d wk). Passable $3,500. Last week, $4,200.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (48th wk). Down to okay $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.50)—"No Man Is Island" (U) and "Hands of a Stranger" (AA). Slick $14,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Broken Land" (20th) (2d wk), $6,000.

Music Hall (Sack) (4,300; 90-$1.80)—"Interns" (Col) and stage show (3d wk). Good $25,000. Last week, $33,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.49)—"I Thank A Fool" (MGM) and "Watch Your Stern" (Indie) (2d wk). Slow $8,000. Last week, $8,500.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 70-$1.65)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Hotsy $15,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue), $7,000.

Park Square Cinema (Indie) (300; $1.80)—"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy) (2d wk). Wham $6,300, amazing for new small house. Last week, $6,400.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100; $1.50-$1.80)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (2d wk). Sturdy $13,000. Last week, $15,000.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25)—"Tonite For Sure" (Indie) and "For Lovers and Others" (Indie) (2d wk). Good $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $457,800
(Based on 29 theatres)

Last Year $497,200
(Based on 30 theatres)

'Fool' Fair $7,000, Prov., 'Island' 6G

Providence, Oct. 2.

All's quiet on the mainstem front with little that's exciting. Loew's is sluggish with "I Thank A Fool," but landing top money. RKO Albee is fair with "No Man Is An Island" plus Patterson-Liston fight pix. Elmwood is good with sixth round of "El Cid," "Damn the Defiant" is sad on first at Strand.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 65-$1)—"No Man Is An Island" (U) and "East of Kilimanjaro" (Indie) plus Patterson-Liston fight pix. Fair $6,000 or near. Last week, "Scarface Mob" (Indie) and "Hand of Death" (20th), $5,000.

Elwood (Snider) (724; 90-$1.50)—"El Cid" (AA) (6th wk). Hoping for good $4,500. Fifth was $5,000.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Mata Hari" (MGM), and "Red Dust" (MGM) (reissues). Attracting okay $6,000 or near. Last week, "The Huns" (AI) and "The Centurion" (Indie), $7,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 75-$1)—"I Thank A Fool" (MGM) and "Devil Made A Woman" (MGM). Slow $7,000. Last week, "Seven Brides of Seven Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues), $7,500.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col). Sad $3,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) and "Forever My Love" (Par) (reissues), $5,000.

Cleve. Slips Sharply; 'Opera' 9G; 'Grimm' 8G

Cleveland, Oct. 2.

Rather sour is phrase describing most biz in key houses, with but scarcity of boffo product blamed for slump. Holdovers doing best here include Palace's "Brothers Grimm." in eighth lap; "Boccaccio '70" at Colony Art, in sixth; and "Best of Enemies" at Heights Art in second.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (Stanley-Warner) (2,866; $1-$1.50)—"Phantom of Opera" (U). Passable $9,000. Last week "Music Man" (WB) (8th wk), $8,000 for 6½ days.

Colony Art (Stanley-Warner) (1,354; $1.50)—"Boccaccio '70" (Indie) (6th wk). Big $4,000 after $4,500 last round.

Continental Art (Art Theatre Guild) (900; $1.50)—"Never on Sunday" (Indie) and "Two Women" (Indie) (reissues). Bright $3,000 likely. Last week, "I Like Money" (20th), $2,400.

Heights Art (Art Theatre Guild) (925; $1-$1.50)—"Best of Enemies" (Col) (2d wk). Good $2,700. Last week, $3,600.

Hippodrome (Eastern Hipp) (2,700; $1-$1.50)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col). Dull $7,500. Last week, "Spiral Road" (U), $9,000.

Ohio (Loew) (2,700; $1.25-$1.50)—"Guns of Darkness" (WB). Drab $9,000. Last week, "Bridge at Toko-Ri" (MGM) and "Rear Window" (MGM) (reissues), $4,000.

Palace (F & A Theatres) (2,739; $1.25-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Strong $8,000 or over after $9,200 last week.

State (Loew) (3,700; $1-$1.50)—"Sword of Conqueror" (UA). Bad $5,000. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM), $6,000.

Stillman (Loew) (2,760; $1-$1.50)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (m.o.). Poor $4,500. Last week, "Tartars" (MGM), $4,000.

Westwood Art (Art Theatre Guild) (955; $1-$1.50)—"Paths of Glory" (UA) (reissue) (2d wk). $1,500. Last week, "I Like Money" (20th) (m.o.), $2,300.

Baseball Bops Frisco But 'Window' Brisk 9G; 'Pigeon' 8G, 'Fool' 6½G

San Francisco, Oct. 2.

With the San Francisco Giants winning a playoff in the National League over the weekend and interest again focused on the baseball team's first playoff game (Mon.) against L.A., film biz is sagging in current session. But there are some bright spots. Best newcomer looks to be the reissued "Rear Window," which shapes sturdy in opener at St. Francis. "300 Spartans" is dull in first at the Fox.

"Pigeon That Took Rome" is mild for opener at Golden Gate. "Lolita" still is sweet in 14th round at Stagedoor as is "Boccaccio '70" at the Metro in 10th week. "Brothers Grimm" is rated great in eighth round at Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; $1.25-$1.50)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) and "Ride Beyond Horse" (AA) (2d wk). Mild $8,000 or close. Last week, $12,500.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$4.50)—"300 Spartans" (20th). Dull $9,000 or less. Last week, closed for specials.

Orpheum (Cinerama) (1,429; $2.75-$2.95) — "[illegible] Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Strong $8,000 or over after $9,200 last week.

(Continued on page 10)

Fresh Fare Ups Chi; 'Boccaccio' Boffo $27,000, 'Comedy' Lively 9G, 'Island' Solid 15G; 'Window' 11G, 'Story' 14G

Chicago, Oct. 2.

A couple of new entries are off to fast starts, but the bulk of the holdovers are shaky. Hence this shapes as another slow period for Chi firstruns. "Boccaccio '70" is grabbing a torrid $27,000 on United Artists preem. Harold Lloyd's "World of Comedy" shapes nifty on its Esquire debut.

"No Man Is An Island" is rated fast $15,000 on its Roosevelt bow, with Liston-Patterson fight pix not much help.

Monroe tandem of "Girl In Bikini" and "Scarlet Week" shapes nice in first. First round of Carnegie reissues of "Taste of Honey" and "La Belle Americaine" is rated fair.

Second frame of "I Thank A Fool" is mild at Oriental. Reissued "Rear Window" is posting a neat third week at State-Lake. "Sky Above" is potent in Surf third session. Same sesh of "Waltz of Toreadors" looks bright at the Cinema.

"300 Spartans" is nailing an okay fourth round at the Woods. "Brothers Grimm" is hep in seventh hardticket stanza at the McVickers while "West Side Story" is tallying a solid 32d Todd canto.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (495; $1.25-$1.80)—"Taste of Honey" (Cont) and "La Belle Americaine" (Cont) (reissues). Fair $2,200. Last week, "La Notte Brava" (Cap), $3,200.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; $1.25-$1.80)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Fine $16,000. Last week, $18,000.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (3d wk). Fast $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.80)—"World of Comedy" (Cont). Zingy $9,000 or close. Last week, "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (4th wk), $7,500.

Loop (Telem't) (606; $1.25-$2)—

(Continued on page 10)

'Panic' Okay $11,000, New Det. Topper; 'Island' Hot 15G, 2d; 'Grimm' 17G, 9

Detroit, Oct. 2.

Overall gross take for first-runs will decline this week as weak newies prove no help to sagging oldies. "Panic in Year Zero" is just okay at Palms. "Mothra" is dull at the Fox. Meanwhile, "Brothers Grimm" continues to pace the city in ninth session at the Music Hall with a great take. "No Man Is An Island" stays solid in second round at the Michigan. "Boccaccio '70" remains big in eilghth week at Trans-Lux Krim.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox Theatre of Det.) (5,041; $1.25-$1.49)—"Mothra" (Col) and "Queen of Pirates" (Col). Slow $8,000. Last week, "Son of Samson" (Indie) and "Last of Vikings" (Indie) (2d wk), $6,000.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,026; $1.25-$2)—"No Man Is An Island" (U) (2d wk). Good $15,000. Last week, $21,000.

Palms (UD) (2,995; $1.25-$1.49)—"Panic in Year Zero" (AI) and "Burn Witch Burn" (AI). Okay $11,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) and "Wild Is the Wind" (Par) (reissues) (2d wk-4 days), $6,000.

Madison (UD) (1,408; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (33d wk). $7,500. Last week, $8,500.

Grand Circus (U) (1,400; $1.25-$1.49)—"Funny" (Indie) and "Tillie's Punctured Romance" (Indie) (reissues). Slow $8,000. Last week, 'Sad Sack" (Par) and "Delicate Delinquent" (Par) (reissues), $9,000.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; $1.25-$1.50)—"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (2d wk). Down to fair $6,000. Last week, $7,500.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.25-$1.50)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U) (2d wk), $3,300.

Music Hall (Beacon Enterprises) (1,213; $1.25-$2.80)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Great $17,000. Last week, $16,500.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (980; $1.80-$2)—"Boccaccio 70" (Embassy) (8th wk). Big $8,000. Last week, $8,400.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

'Pigeon' Fast 18G, St. Loo; 'Town' 12G

St. Louis, Oct. 2.

Two new films here this session, with "Two Weeks in Another Town" standout at the Esquire where it is rated fancy. "Pigeon That Took Rome" is fine at the Fox on opener. "Rear Window" looms good in second round at the St. Louis while "The Interns" shapes okay in second session of moveover to Loew's Mid-City.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 90-$1.25)—"Music Man" (WB) (10th wk). Good $8,500. Last week, $10,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Never Let Go" (Indie). Nice $2,800. Last week, "Coming-Out Party" (Union) (3d wk), $1,500.

Esquire (Schuchart-Levin) (1,800; 90-$1.25)—"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM). Fancy $12,000. Last week, "Guns of Darkness" (WB) (2d wk), $9,000.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 90-$1.25)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Fine $18,000. Last week, "Spiral Road" (U) (2d wk), $14,000.

Loew's Mid-City (Loew) (1,160; 60-90)—"Interns" (Col) (m.o.) (2d wk). Okay $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk). Fair $8,000. Last week, $10,000.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"Judgment at Nuremberg" (UA) (14th wk). Sharp $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 75-90)—"Rear Window" (Par) and "Detective Story" (Par) (reissues) (2d wk). Good $8,000 or near. Last week, $10,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (760; 90-$1.25)—"Carry On Teacher" (Indie) (2d wk). Average $2,000. Last week, $2,500.

'Panic' Modest $6,500, Seattle; 'Cid' 6G, 11th

Seattle, Oct. 2.

A couple of newcomers here this week but they will not help change the generally dull cinema boxoffice picture, on the skids ever since the World's Fair opened here last spring "Panic in Year Zero" is only modest at the Coliseum while "Tarzan Goes To India" is rated slow at Music Hall. "West Side Story" shapes solid in 32d week at the Music Box.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (739; $1.50-$1.75) — "Music Man" (WB) (9th wk). Okay $5,000 or close. Last week, $6,200.

Coliseum (Fox-Evergreen) (1,870; $1.25-$1.50) — "Panic Year Zero" (Indie) and "Eegah" (Indie). Modest $6,500. Last week, "Sky Above" (Embassy) and "Trauma" (Indie) (2d wk), $5,400 in 5 days.

Fifth Avenue (Fox-Evergreen) (2,500; $1.50-$1.75)—"El Cid" (AA) (11th wk). Good $6,000. Last week, $6,700.

Music Box (Hamrick) (738; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (U) (32d wk). Solid $6,000. Last week, $6,300.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; $1.25-$1.50)—"Tarzan Goes to India" (MGM) and "Tartars" (MGM). Slow $5,500. Last week, "Guns of Darkness" (WB) and "Monte Cristo" (WB), $4,200 for 6 days.

Paramount (Fox-Evergreen) (3,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"Tales of Terror" (AI) and "Brain Wouldn't Die" (AI) (2d wk). Fair $6,000. Last week, $11,800.

'TERROR' FAIRISH 7G, L'VILLE; 'MIRACLE' 5G

Louisville, Oct. 2.

Product on first-run screens this week represents an assorted batch, ranging from top notch to mediocre. Pace at all stands is sluggish. United Artists is doing fairly well with "Tales of Terror" and "Flight That Disappeared." "Brothers Grimm" is shaping moderately in fifth at Rialto. "Marco Polo" shapes fair at the Mary Anderson. "Miracle Worker" looks just so-so at the Kentucky. Ideal fall weather is not much help to biz.

Estimates for This Week

Brown (Fourth Avenue) (900; 75-$1.25)—"West Side Story" (UA) (13th wk). Will finalize run with 9-day week, good $6,000 or close. House will shutter for reconversion to legit theatre.

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 75-$1.25)—"Miracle Worker" (UA). Fairly good $5,000. Last week, "Spiral Road" (U) (2d wk), $5,100.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,100; $1-$1.25)—"Marco Polo" (AI). Fair $4,000. Last week, "The Huns" (AI) and "Centurian" (AI) $3,800.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1.25)—"Tarzan Goes to India" (MGM) and "Ride High Country" (MGM) (2d wk). Mild $3,500. First week, $3,700.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; $1.25-$2.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (5th wk). Fairish $6,500 after fourth week's $8,500.

United Artists (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; $1-$1.25)—"Tales of Terror" (AI) and "Flight That Disappeared" (AI). Barely okay $7,000. Last week, "Lolita" (MGM) (2d wk), $7,500.

'Spartans' Okay $28,000, Toronto; 'Interns' Sock 22G, 2d; 'Mink' 10G, 9th

Toronto, Oct. 2.

With biz generally excellent, newcomers include "My Geisha," which is swell at the Hollywood, and "Hero's Island," which is fine at Uptown. "300 Spartans" is rated okay, playing seven houses. "Stowaway in Sky" looks dull at International.

"The Interns" is leading city in second stanza with a hefty take in three theatres. "Notorious Landlady" in fifth week looms swell in two spots. "Touch of Mink" in fifth week is very big at Carlton. "Sky Above" is also doing socko in third frame.

Estimates for This Week

Capitol, Imperial (FP) (1,026; 3,216; $1-$1.75)—"Notorious Landlady" (Col) (5th wk). Swell $14,000 or near. Last week, $16,000.

Carlton (Rank) (2,318; $1-$1.50)—"Touch of Mink" (U) (9th wk). Very big $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Century, Downtown, Glendale, Midtown, Odeon, Scarboro, State (Taylor) (1,342; 1,059; 995; 1,082; 752; 682; 696; 50-$1)—"300 Spartans" (20th) and "Broken Land" (20th). Okay $28,000 or close. Last week, "Damon and Pythias" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM), $28,500.

Danforth, Humber, Hyland (Rank) (1,328; 1,203; 1,357; $1-$1.50)—"The Interns" (Col) (2d wk). Hefty $22,000. Last week, $35,000.

Eglinton (FP) (918; $1.50-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (7th wk). Sturdy $6,500. Last week, $6,600.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.50)—"My Geisha" (Par). Lusty $13,000. Last week, "Lolita" (MGM) (7th wk), $4,500.

International (Taylor) (577; $1-$1.25)—"Stowaway in Sky" (UA). Dull $3,000. Last week, "The Night" (UA) (3d wk), $3,100.

Loew's (Loew) (1,641; $1-$1.50)—"7 Brides for 7 Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues). Good $9,000. Last week, "Miracle Worker" (UA) (2d wk), $8,800.

Tivoli (FP) (935; $1.50-$2.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (20th wk). Hefty $7,500. Last week, $8,000.

Towne (Taylor) (693; 90-$1.25)—"Sky Above" (IFD) (3d wk). Big $7,000. Last week, $7,500.

University (FP) (1,393; $1-$1.50)—"Guns of Darkness" (WB). Okay $11,000 or near. Last week, "Dangerous Love Affairs" (Astral) (4th wk) $7,000 in 5 days.

Uptown (Loew) (1,250; $1-$1.50)—"Hero's Island" (UA). Okay $10,000. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U) (2d wk), $4,500.

N.Y. Still Sluggish; 'Gigot'-Stage Good $145,000, 'Affair' Lively 34G, 'Fool' Fat 12G, 'Grimm' 26½G, 8th

Business at Broadway deluxers remains offish at most spots. Even two new bills is not helping to overcome the downbeat trend, with an all-day rain on last Thursday and threatening weather Friday proving a handicap.

Big news is the stout $145,000 being racked up by "Gigot," with stageshow, at its Music Hall opening session, albeit not up to expectations. "A Very Private Affair" is heading for a good $34,000, daydating the State and the Beekman. This, too, is below hopes.

"Thank A Fool" is holding up with nice $12,000 or close in third stanza at the Victoria. "Convicts 4" opens at the Paramount today (Wed.) after two disappointing weeks with "300 Spartans." "Miracle Worker" is sluggish $16,500 for second round, daydating the Astor and Trans-Lux 85th St.

"Damn the Defiant" is off to fairish $18,000 in second week at the Criterion, with a "Preview" film brought in over the weekend to help bolster biz. "Flame in Streets" called it a day after six days of third round at the Forum, with a dualer replacing yesterday (Tues.).

"Marco Polo" also is slipping with a mild $9,000 in prospect for second round at the Palace. "Pigeon That Took Rome" is holding with aruond $10,500, fine for sixth week at the DeMille. Pic goes one more frame to bring in "Barabbas" on hardticket Oct. 10.

Even "Brothers Grimm" is feeling the offish tone, dipping to hotsy $26,500 in eighth session at the Cinerama. "West Side Story" also looks off, with a big $28,000 in prospect for current (50th) round at the Rivoli.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,094; $1.25-$2)—"Miracle Worker" (UA) (3d wk). Second session completed yesterday (Tues.) was sluggish $11,500 after $13,500 for opener. "Pressure Point" (UA) opens Oct. 10, daydating with Trans-Lux 85th St.

Cinerama (Loew) (4,820; $1.50-$3.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Eighth week ended Sunday (30) was big $26,500 after $30,000 for seventh round. Now playing 11 shows per week.

Criterion (Moss) (1,520; $1.25-$2.50)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (3d wk). First holdover round finished yesterday (Tues.) was fairish $18,000 or near after $25,000 for initial week. Preview feature pic was added over weekend to boltser biz. Due to open "Requiem For Heavyweight" (Indie) on Oct. 16.

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; 90-$2.75)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (7th-final wk). Sixth frame ended yesterday (Tues.) was fine $10,500 after $11,500 for fifth. "Barabbas" (Col) opens Oct. 10 on hardticket.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; $1.50-$2.50)—"Secrets of Nazi Criminals" (T-L) and "Battle of Stalingrad" (T-L). Opens today (Wed.). Last week, "Paradisio" (Indie) and "Concrete Jungle" (Indie) (8th wk). Okay $6,500.

Palace (RKO) (1,642; $1.25-$2)—"Marco Polo" (AI) (3d-final wk). Initial holdover round finished yesterday (Tues.) was mild $9,000 after $12,000 for first week. "No Man Is Island" (U) opens Oct. 10.

Forum (Moss) (813; $1.25-$1.80)—"Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikaze" (Indie). Opened yesterday (Tues.). In ahead, "Flame in Streets" (Atlantic) (3d wk-6 days), fair $8,500.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Convicts 4" (AA). Opens today (Wed). Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) (2d wk), was moderate $18,000 or close after $24,000 for first round.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 95-$2.75)—"Gigot" (20th) with stageshow. Initial session ending today (Wed.) is heading for stout $145,000. Holds. In ahead, "Music Man" (WB) and stageshow (5th wk), $132,000.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.50-$3.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (50th wk). Current stanza winding today (Wed. is heading for big $28,000 after $29,000 for 49th wk. Continues, likely through year-end holidays.

State (Loew) (1,900; $1.50-$2.50)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM). Initial week finishing tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like good $23,000 or close. Stays. In ahead, "Lolita" (MGM) (15th wk-8½ days), $19,000, for a highly successful run here.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,003; $1.25-$2)—"I Thank A Fool" (MGM) (4th wk). Third round completed yesterday (Tues.) was nice $12,000 or near after $15,000 for second.

First-Run Arties

Cinema One (Rugoff Th.) (700; $1.50-$2)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (15th wk). Fourteenth frame finished yesterday (Tues.) was great $12,500 after $13,500 for 13th week.

Cinema Two (Rugoff Th.) (300; $1.50-$2)—"Cleo From 5 To 7" (Indie) (5th wk). Fourth week concluded Monday (1) was fair $4,500 after $5,500 for third.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; $1.80-$2)—"A Kind of Loving" (Gov). Opened yesterday (Tues.). In ahead, "Best of Enemies" (Col) (8th wk-6 days), okay $5,200. "Loving" was given an invitational preem Monday (1) night.

Beekman (Rugoff Th.) (590; $1.50-$2)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM). Initial week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like nice $11,000. Daydating with State.

Carnegie Hall Cinema (F&A) (300; $1.50-$2)—"Last Year Marienbad" (Astor) (30th wk). Current round ending today (Wed.) looks like okay $3,600 after $3,900 for 29th week.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (Rugoff Th.) (250; $1.25-$2)—"Mr. Hulot's Holiday" (Cont) (reissue). Opened Monday (1). In ahead, "Antigone" (Ellis) (2d wk-6 days). Fair $3,000.

Normandie (T-L) (592; $1.25-$2)—"La Viaccia" (Embassy) (2d wk). This session winding today (Wed.) looks to hit moderate $3,200 after $6,500 for first. Holds another, with "Passion of Slow Fire" (T-L) due Oct. 11.

Little Carnegie (L. Carnegie) (520; $1.25-$2)—"Tales of Paris" (Times) (6th wk). Fifth stanza completed Saturday (29) was big $7,700 after $8,000 in fourth week. Holds, with "Goddess" (Col) (reissue) moving in on Oct. 8.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"The Island" (Zenith) (4th wk). Third week ended Sunday (30) was an amazing $14,000 after $14,500 for second stanza.

Murray Hill (Rugoff Th.) (565; $1.50-$2) — "Operation Snatch" (Cont) (2d wk). Initial week finished Sunday (30) was just good at $8,000.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; $1.50-$2)—"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy) (3d wk). Second session ended Sunday (30) held at wow $24,700 after record $25,100 for opening week.

68th St. Playhouse (Leo Brecher) (370; $1.50-$2) — "Judgment at Nuremberg" (UA) (subrun) (3d wk). Second week finished yesterday (Tues.) was sturdy $4,300 after $7,800 for initialer. Holds for a while.

Sutton (Rugoff Th.) (561; $1.50-$2)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (8th wk). Seventh round completed Sunday (30) was solid $7,000 after $9,000 for sixth.

72d St. Playhouse (Baker) (440; $1.50-$2)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (2d wk). First week for this moveover shapes okay $3,800. "We'll Bury You" (Col) opens on Oct. 24. In ahead, "Flame in Streets" (Atlantic) (2d wk), $5,000.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1.25-$2)—"Secrets of Nazi Criminals" (T-L). Opens today (Wed.). In ahead, "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (6th wk), fair $5,000 after $5,600 in fifth week.

Trans-Lux 85th St. (T-L) (550; $1.25-$2)—"Miracle Worker" (UA) (2d wk). Second round ended yesterday (Tues.) for subsequent-run was okay $5,000 after $6,500 for opener. "Pressure Point" (UA) due in Oct. 10, daydating with Astor.

World (Perfecto) (390; 90-$1.50)—"Immoral Mr. Teas" (Mishkin) (2d wk). First session ended Thursday (27) soared to a mighty $18,800, close to house record here. Pic looks in for a long run since holding up exceedingly well in second round.

Newcomers Help Mpls.; 'Defiant' OK $5,200, 'Convicts' 5G, 'Grimm' 13G, 7th

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

Following recent patterns, a few newcomers are appearing here currently but none apparently shapes as a smash. Most prominent of the newies is "Damn the Defiant," okay at World.

It's the 32d session for the astonishing "West Side Story." Still smash in seventh stanza is "Brothers Grimm" at Cooper. "Hatari" is nice in eight at Park. "Convicts 4" at State shapes light.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (1,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"Music Man" (UA) (10th wk). Good $4,500. Last week, $5,000.

Avalon (Frank) (800; $1)—"Surfside 77" (Indie) and "Once Upon Knight" (Indie). Okay $1,200. Last week, "Lucky Pierre" (DF) and "La Parisienne" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk), $1,000.

Century (Par) (1,300; 85-$1) — "El Cid" (AA) (3d run). Satisfactory $4,500. Last week, "Black Tights" (Magna) (3d run), $3,200.

Cooper (CF) (808; $1.65-$2.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (7th wk). Nifty $13,000. Last week, $13,500.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25) —"Kid Galahad" (UA) (2d wk). Hefty $6,500. Last week, $8,000.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25)—"The Tartars" (MGM). Modest $5,500. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U), $6,500.

Mann (Mann) (1,000; $1.50-$2.75) —"West Side Story" (UA) (32d wk). Splendid $6,500. Last week, $7,000.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1-$1.25)—"Panic in Year Zero" (AI). Dull $5,000. Last week, "Trapeze" (UA) and "Vikings" (UA) (reissues), $2,000 in three days.

Park (Field) (1,000. $1.50) — "Hatari" (Par) (8th wk). Corking $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.25) — "Convicts 4" (AA). Light $5,000. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM), $7,000.

Suburban World (Mann) (800; $1.25)—"A Matter of Who" (Indie) (3d wk). Moderate $2,000. Last week, $3,000.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50) —"Damn the Defiant" (Col). Okay $5,200. Last week, "Playgirl After Dark" (Topaz), $5,000.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 9)

"Lolita" (MGM) (14th wk). Sharp $8,500. Last week, $10,000.

McVickers (Cinerama) (1,100; $1.75-$3.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (7th wk). Fine 15,000. Last week $13,800.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90)—"Girl in Bikini" (Teitel) (reissue) and "Scarlet Week" (Teitel). Trim 4,500. Last week, "It Happened in Athens" (Indie) and "I Like Money" (Indie) (reissues), $4,600.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-1.80) —"I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk). Mild $13,000. Last week, $18,500.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80) —"No Man Is An Island"—(U). Fast 15,000. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U) (2d wk), 12,500.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) (3d wk). Neat $11,000 or better. Last week, $14,500.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.50-$1.80)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (3d wk). Stout $6,500. Last week, $9,000.

Todd (Todd) (1,089; $2.20-$3.50) —"West Side Story" (UA) (32d wk). Lively $14,000. Last week, $14,500.

Town (Teitel) (640; $1.25-$1.80)—"Naked Night" (Indie) and "Secrets of Women" (Indie) (reissues). Slick $4,000. Last week, "3 Strange Loves" (Indie) and "Illicit Interlude" (Indie) (reissues), $3,900.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.80)—"Boccaccio 70" (Embassy). Sockeroo $27,000. Last week, "Miracle Worker" (UA) (6th wk), $12,500.

Woods (Essances) (1,200; 90-$1.80)—"300 Spartans" (20th) (4th wk). Okay $11,000. Last week, $18,000.

World (Teitel) (608; 90-$1.25)—"Leda" (India) (2d wk). Soft $3,500. Last week, $9,000.

'Enemies' Fair $4,500, Indpls.; 'Fool' Thin 5G

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.

Biz is still quiet here, the bang-up being sounded by the Liston-Patterson fight telecast, which grossed approximately $25,000 at Loew's and the Circle. "I Thank a Fool" has slight edge over new pix, but is fairly slow. "Best of Enemies" looks fair.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; $1-$1.25)—"300 Spartans" (20th) and "Air Patrol" (Indie). Drab $4,000. Last week, "World of Comedy" (Cont), $3,000.

Indiana (C-D) (1,100; $1.25-$2.50) —"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (7th wk). Hep $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Keith's (C-D) (1,300; $1-$1.25)—"Best of Enemies" (Col). Fair $4,500. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue), $3,500.

Loew's (Loew) (2,427; 75-$1.25)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM). Slow $5,000. Last week, "Tartars" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (Indie), $3,500.

'Point' Fair $9,000 In D.C.; 'Guns' Light 7G; 'Grimm' Stout 11G, 3d

Washington, Oct. 2.

In this political town, no one is hearing the strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again." In fact, seasonal factors will spell a slow mainstem session. "Guns of Darkness" looms dull for first in two houses.

"Pressure Point" is rated fair in first round at Keith's. "I Thank a Fool" shapes good at Palace in second frame. "Tartars" is opening slowly at Capitol. "West Side Story" looks stout in third session.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador-Metropolitan (SW) (1,480; 1,000; $1-$1.49)—"Guns of Darkness" (WB). Dull $7,000 or less. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (8th wk), $9,000.

Apex (KB) (940; $1.25-$1.40)—"Taste of Honey" (Cont) (2d wk). Fair $4,000 or near. Last week, $4,600.

Capitol (Loew) (3,240; $1-$1.49) —"Tartars" (MGM). Slow $10,500. Last week, "Seven Brides Seven Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues), $9,800.

Dupont (Mann) (400; $1-$1.65)—"Shoot Piano Player" (Astor) (2d wk). Oke $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,839; $1-$1.49) —"Pressure Point" (UA). Fair $9,000. Last week, "War Hunt" (UA) and "Sword of Conqueror" (UA), $7,500.

MacArthur (KB) (900; $1.25-$1.40)—"Coming Out Party" (Union) (3d wk). Trim $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Ontario (KB) (1,240; $1-$1.49)—"Rear Window" (Par) (2d wk) (reissue). So-so $4,000. Last week, $4,800.

Palace (Loew) (2,360; $1-$1.49)—"I Thank Fool" (MGM) (2d wk). Good $8,000 after $9,600 initialer.

Playhouse (TL) (459; $1.49-$2)—"Best of Enemies" (Col) (7th wk). Meek $2,000. Last week, $2,500.

Plaza (TL) (278; $1.49-$1.80)—"Spit On Grave" (Indie) (6th wk). Nice $4,000. Last week, $4,200.

Town (King) (800; $1-$1.49)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (2d wk). Soft $5,000 after $7,000 for opener.

Trans-Lux (TL) (599; $1.49-$2)—"Interns" (Col) (7th wk). Fairish $6,000. Last week, $6,500.

Warner (SW) (1,250; $1.25-$2.30) —"West Side Story" (UA) (3d wk). Stout $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Mex Studios Cut Back

Mexico City, Oct. 2.

Mexican motion picture studios are cutting back on staffs as production continues to lag. The Churubusco Studios have asked the Union of Film Production to sanction a 50% readjustment in union personnel. About 125 workers will be temporarily dismissed. At the San Angel Inn Studios, some 35 workers will be laid off.

Only studios working more or less at the normal pace are the America facilities, with these devoted to the production of shorts and television material.

'Fool' Fair $8,000 In Buff; 'Grimm' 5G, 6th

Buffalo, Oct. 2.

First-run trade shapes sluggish here this stanza. One of the better newcomers is "I Thank A Fool," but it's only fair at the Buffalo. "Hell To Eternity" looks thin at Center. "Damn the Defiant" likewise is sad at the Century.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25) "Thank a Fool" (MGM) and "No Place Like Homicide" (Indie). Fair $8,000. Last week, "Damon and Pythias" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM), $5,300.

Center (AB-PT) (2,500; 90-$1.25) —"Hell to Eternity" (AA) and "I Passed for White" (AA) (reissues). Thin $6,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) and "Teacher's Pet" (Par) (reissues) (2d wk), $6,500.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 90-$1.25) —"Damn the Defiant" (Col). Poor $5,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) (8 days), $6,500.

Lafayette (Basil) (3000; 90-$1.25) —"No Man Is An Island" (U). Dismal $4,500. Last week, "Pillow Talk" (U) and "Operation Petticoat" (U) (reissues), $5,000.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 90-$1.25)—"The Mongols" (Indie) and "Trojan Horse" (Indie). Fair $8,500 or near. Last week, "Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikaze" (Indie), $6,500.

Teck (Loew) (1,200; $1.75-$2.75) —"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (6th wk). Nice $5,000. Last week, $4,500.

Cinema (Martina) (450; 90-$1.25) —"I Like Money" (20th). Fine $2,500. Last week, "The Night" (Indie), $2,000.

Granada (Schine) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"Miracle Worker (UA) (5th wk-9 days). Fair $3,200.

'Panic' NSG 9G, Philly; 'Sky' 9½G

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.

Trade at firstruns this session is average or below for new films, with bulk of strength in longrun pix. "Trojan Horse" shapes slow at Goldman while "Panic in Year Zero" is not getting far on opener at the Fox despite having the fight film. "Sky Above" looks lofty in second at Stanton as does "The Interns" in sixth session at the Randolph.

"Brothers Grimm" looms hep in ninth stanza at Boyd. "West Side Story" continues fancy in 47th week at the Midtown. "Have Figure, Will Travel" paired with "Lucky Pierre" shapes stout on initialer at the Studio.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S) (622; $1.20-$1.80) —"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (7th wk). So-so $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Boyd (SW) (1,536; $2-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Hep $13,000. Last week, $15,000.

Fox (Milgram) (2,200; 95-$1.80) —"Panic in Year Zero" (A) and fight pix. Mild $9,000. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk), $6,500 in five days.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,000; $1.20-$1.80)—"Trojan Horse" (Indie). Slow $5,000. Last week, "Happy Thieves" (UA), $6,500.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,200; $2.50-$2.75)—"West Side Story" (UA) (47th wk). Fancy $6,000 or over. Last week, $7,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,200; $1.20-$1.80)—"Interns" (Col) (6th wk). Trim $7,000. Last week, $8,500.

Stanley (SW) (2,500; 95-$2)—"Music Man" (WB) (10th wk). Good $10,000 or over. Last week, $11,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 95-$1.80)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (2d wk). Lofty $9,500. Last week, $11,000.

Studio (Goldberg) (383; 95-$1.80) —"Lucky Pierre" (Indie) and "Have Figure, Will Travel" (Indie). Lucky $7,000. Last week, "Fast Set" (Indie) and "Ecstasy" (Indie), $6,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; $1.20-$1.80)—"Lolita" (MGM) (15th wk). Okay $4,000. Last week, $7,000.

Viking (Sley) (1,000; 95-$1.80)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (2d wk). Drab $5,500. Last week, $9,500.

World (R&B-Pathe) (500; 95-$1.80)—"Matter of Who" (Herts) (2d wk). Fair $2,600. Last week, $4,000.

New Pix Perk Pitt; 'Waltz' Wow 7½G, 'Island' Lush 7G, 'Grimm' Boff 16G

Pittsburgh, Oct. 2.

Fresh product is helping somewhat this week but most exhibs are crying because of product shortage and playing films that would not get a downtown run ordinarily. "No Man Is An Island," with good notices, looms lofty in first at the Gateway. "Scarface Mob" at Stanley and "Flame in Streets" at the Penn are both limp. "Waltz of Toreadors" shapes boffo in first at Squirrel Hill.

"Brothers Grimm" is top grosser at Warner, being sock in eighth. "West Side Story" closed 33½ week run at the Nixon. "Interns" remains hep in sixth at Fulton.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Assoc.) (1,530; $1-$1.50) —"Interns" (Col) (6th wk). Hep $6,000. Last week, $6,400.

Gateway (Assoc.) (1,900; $1-$1.50) —"No Man Is An Island" (U). Lofty $7,000 after good notices picked up pace. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U), $2,900.

Nixon (Rubin) (1,760; $1.50-$2.75) —"West Side Story" (UA) (33d wk-10 days). Closed Saturday (29) with big $8,000 for last 10 days.

Penn (UATC) (3,300; $1-$1.50)—"Flame in Streets" (Atlantic). Limp $7,000. Last week, "Two Weeks Another Town" (MGM), $9,200.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (834; $1.50)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont). Wow $7,500 or over. Last week, "Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (9th wk), $3,000.

Stanley (SW) (3,700; $1-$1.50)—"Scarface Mob" (Desilu). Slow $7,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue), $8,000.

Warner (SW) (1,516; $1.50-$2.75) —"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Socko $16,000. Last week, $15,500.

'Panic' Sharp $6,000 In Port.; 'Fool' NSH $4,000

Portland, Ore., Oct. 2.

Not much doing here this session with dearth of new, strong fare blamed the most. However, "Panic in Year Zero" looms stout on opener at the Orpheum. "Cinerama Holiday" shapes good in first week at the Hollywood. "West Side Story" also is holding firm although in 29th round at Music Box. "Convicts 4" is rated sad on initialer at Paramount.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Thank a Fool" (MGM) and "Reluctant Debutante" (MGM) (reissue). Slow $4,000. Last week, "Two Weeks Another Town" (MGM) and "Go Naked This World" (MGM) (reissue), $3,800.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49) —"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Hefty $7,000. Last week, $8,300.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (1,180; $1.49-$2) — "Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama). Good $5,500. Last week, "Search for Paradise" (Cinerama) (10th wk), $5,400.

Irvington (Smith) (1,180; $1.50) "Miracle Worker" (UA) and "Apartment" (UA) (reissue). (4th wk). Okay $3,500. Last week, $4,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (29th wk). Fast $4,000. Last week, $4,000.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49)—"Panic in Year Zero" (AI) and "Egah" (AI). Warm $6,000 or near. Last week, "Paradisio" (Indie) and "Night Heaven Fell" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk), $5,800.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,006; $1-$1.50) — "Convicts 4" (AA) and "Frightened City" (AA). Sad $3,000 or close. Last week, "Karamoja" (Indie) and "Ritual of Love" (Indie) (reissues), $6,100.

SAN FRANCISCO

(Continued from page 8)

(MGM) (8th wk). Great $23,500. Last week, $24,600.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; $1.50-$1.75)—"Paradisio" (Indie). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Sad Sack" (Par) and "Delicate Delinquent" (Par) (reissues) (2d wk), $8,500 in 5 days.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; $1.50-$1.75)—"Rear Window" (Par) (reissue). Sturdy $9,000. Last week, "Interns," (Col) (5th wk), $7,500.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,151; $2.25-$2.75)—"West Side Story" (UA) (41st wk). Good $7,000. Last week, $10,000.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; $1.25-$1.50)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk). Sloppy $6,500. Last week, $9,500.

Vogue (S.F. Theatres) (346; $1.50) — "Ashes and Diamonds" (Janus) (3d wk). So-so $1,000. Last week, $1,500.

Metro (United California) (1,000; $1.50-$1.80)—"Boccaccio 70" (Embassy) (10th wk). Okay $3,500. Last week, $5,500.

Stagedoor (A-R) (444; $1.50-$1.80)—"Lolita" (MGM) (14th wk). Sweet $3,500. Last week, $4,900.

Esquire (No. Coast) (846; 90-$1.50) — "Birdman of Alcatraz" (UA) and "The Valiant" (UA) (2d wk). Hep $6,000. Last week, $10,200.

Coronet (United California) (1,250; $2-$2.50)—"Music Man" (WB) (12th wk). Okay $6,500 or less. Last week, $7,000.

DURWOOD SUIT MOVES

Case Vs. 20th and National Into U.S. District Court

Kansas City, Oct. 2.

Change of venue was made last week in the damage suit filed recently by Durwood Theatres against 20th Century-Fox and National General Corp. The case was removed from the Jackson County (Missouri) Circuit Court to U.S. District Court.

The suit asks $600,000 in actual and punitive damages, alleging a breach of contract and conspiracy over selection privileges of first run pictures for the local Roxy Theatre. It charges the Fox Midwest Plaza and Uptown Theatres were favored. No date for the hearing set.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 8)

week, "Guns of Darkness" (WB) (5th wk), dull $2,500.

State (UATC) (2,404; $1-$1.25)—"Diary of Nudist" (Indie) and "Girl in Bikini" (Indie) (reissues). Mild $5,000. Last week, with Pantages, Baldwin, "Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM), "Murder, She Said" (MGM), $15,900.

Baldwin (State) (1,800; 90-$1.50) —"Touch of Mink" (U) and "Breakfast at Tiffany's" (Par) (reissues). Slow $3,000.

Pantages (RKO) (1,512; $1.25-$1.50)—"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) and "Murder, She Said" (MGM) (2d wk). Light $5,100.

Orpheum, Pix (Metropolitan-Prin) (2,213; 756; $1-$1.49)—"Pressure Point" (UA) and "Dangerous Charter" (Indie) (2d wk). Slim $6,600. Last week, $12,200.

Village, Loyola, El Rey (FWC) (1,535; 1,298; 856, $1-$1.50)—"Hatari" (Par) (3d wk, Village, Loyola; 1st wk, El Rey) and "My Geisha" (Par) (M.O.). Handy $13,000. Last week, El Rey, "Carry On, Teacher" (Gov) and "Doctor in Love" (Indie) (reissues) (2d wk), $2,200.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $1.25-$1.50) — "Three Coins in Fountain" (20th) and "Love Is Splendored Thing" (20th) (reissues) (3d wk). Fine $5,000. Last week, $5,900.

Crest (State) (750; $2)—"Matter of Who" (Herts) (4th wk). Neat $3,000. Last week, ditto.

Vogue (FWC) (810; $1.25-$1.49) —"Sky Above" (Embassy) (6th wk). Firm $5,000. Last week, $4,400.

Four Star (UATC) (868; $1.50-$2) — "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (6th wk). Slow $1,800 in 5 days. Last week, $1,600.

Warner Hollywood (SW) (1,291; $1.25-$2.80) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Boffola $22,000 or close. Last week, $22,400.

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $1.75-$2.65)—"Music Man" (WB) (10th wk). Fine $20,000. Last week, $22,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; $1.49-$2) —"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (10th wk). Snappy $8,000. Last week, $4,400.

Beverly (State) (1,150; $1.49-$2) —"Lolita" (MGM) (15th wk). Plump $5,500. Last week, $5,000.

Lido (FWC) (876; $2)—"Taste of Honey" (Cont) (15th wk). Sturdy $3,500. Last week, $2,500.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.25-$3.50) — "West Side Story" (UA) (42d wk). Stout $18,000. Last week, $14,400.

New York Sound Track

"Do me a favor, will you?" a 20th-Fox exec asked a VARIETY reporter last week in the course of a phone call marked by all sorts of wheezing and clickings on the line, "Put an item in Soundtrack about the 17th Century switchboard at 21st Century-Fox."

The "Lolita" influence: Stefania Sandrelli, the young Italo actress, trimuphed in an Italian beauty competition as "Miss Nymphette." As a 16-year-old?

Dick Condon, author of "The Manchurian Candidate," has arrived in town to plug the UA adaptation.

Dept. of Film Industry Euphemisms: In the newspaper ads for Brigitte Bardot's "A Very Private Affair" day-dating on Broadway and the eastside, Metro notes that the attraction at the arty Beekman is "Original Language Version," and the one at Loew's State is "Original English Version." The film, of course, was originally shot in French.

Joe E. Levine and Embassy v.p. Len Lightstone did the N.Y.-Paris-Rome triangle again. More coproduction pows, including the one with Galatea and Mosfilm. Also to cook a two-picture pact with writer-director Pietro Germi . . . Skouras circuit's new Pine Hollow theatre at Oyster Bay unlatches later this month . . . The new Harold Robbins tome due out this month via Simon & Schuster did a title switch: from "A Stranger in the House" to "Where Love Has Gone," with Embassy having reoptioned it for the screen . . . More than 90 drive-ins in the state are reportedly showing a pair of one-minute clips on nuclear fall protection, produced by the New York State Civil Defense Commission. Dave Garroway, with some identification for his tv "peace" signoff, does the narration.

During election week in November, the marquees of the Loew's theatres playing Metro's "Lolita," will be advising their patrons not to miss WB's "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane" at the competing RKO houses. One possible reason for this sudden burst of altruism: both pix are Seven Arts productions.

Governor Films prexy Dave Emmanuel hosts a press lunch today (Wed.) for Nat Cohen, managing director of Anglo-Amalgamated of London . . . Antonio Hassan, head of Distribuidores S.A., AIP franchise holders in Panama and Central America, here for talks with AIP Latin American supervisor Dick Guardian . . . Stanley Kramer has acquired film rights to Adela Rogers St. John's bio of her lawyer-father, "Final Verdict" . . . Terry-Thomas, having just wound a role in Kramer's "Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" in Hollywood, has flown to England for the lead "Mouse on the Moon," sequel to "Mouse That Roared." UA distributes the new one while Col had the original . . . Don Rugoff, prexy of Rugoff Theatres, has accepted the chairmanship of the exhib committee in the east for IFIDA's upcoming awards-dinner dance Jan. 15.

London-based American actor John Crawford hired by producer Carl Foreman for a part in "The Victors," now shooting in Italy. Thesp worked before for Foreman in "The Key."

In addition to testifying re a proposed New York film classification measure, Production Code chief Geoffrey Shurlock, during his six-day local visit, also found time to catch up on the local Broadway shows ("How to Succeed in Business," "A Funny Thing Happened") and artie pix not yet available on the Coast ("Antigone," "Divorce, Italian-Style") . . . The Independent Film Importers & Distributors has just issued a comprehensive directory of all pix available via its membership.

Japanese director Akira Kurosawa and star Toshiro Mifune, whose "Yojimbo" will open at the Carnegie Hall Cinema Oct. 15, are reportedly now working on their 15th collaboration in Tokyo. It's described as "free adaptation" of American kidnap thriller, Ed McBain's "King's Ransom," and will be retitled "High and Low" . . . Columbia Pictures' "The Reluctant Saint," made independently by director Edward Dmytryk and star Max Schell, will go out via Richard Davis' newly formed indie distribbery, Davis-Royal Films.

Attending Maclaster College World Press Institute in St. Paul, Leonardo Vergani, Milan drama critic, said that the dissipation depicted picted in the "La Dolce Vita" (Astor) can be found in Italy, "but you have to search for it." Vergani is a writer of documentary films and also author of an Eleanora Duse biography.

George Englund, who produced-directed the Marlon Brando starrer, "The Ugly American," inked new three-year pact with Universal, under which he'll produce and direct at least one . . . Stanley Shpetner and Elliott Kastner signed Dick Van Dyke to star in "Bank Holiday," to roll in March . . . Hope Lange secured release from her 20th-Fox contract which still had two years to go on two-pix-a-year basis . . . actor Johnny Seven formed LoraJon Productions to produce "The Last Grave," which he originaled and will produce, direct and star . . . Shirley Jones stars in "Moon Walk" as second on her multi-pact with Metro . . . Johnny Crawford of "Rifleman" teleseries to star in and be associate producer for "Indian Paint," on which his father, Robert Crawford, will be exec producer . . . Robert Vaughn and Bob Reese optioned "I've Got a Secret to Sell," Max Lamb-Harry Sanford novel, as first pic for their Roberts 2 Productions.

Paramount Espana will distribute "El Sol en El Espejo" (Sun in the Looking Glass) on Spanish screens and Warners will do likewise with the Rafael Gil production "Santa Rogelia" . . . Damiano Damiani, winner of the San Sebastian Film Festival with "L'Isola di Auturo" (Arthur's Island) signed Spain's Paco Rabal to star with Walter Chiari in "Repatriation" . . . Producer Frank Ross checking Madrid studios and facilities . . . With an assist from Joe Goltz, UA rep in Spain, George Cukor surveyed Barcelona sound stages and Catalan location sites for an Ava Gardner starring vehicle he plans to film after "My Fair Lady" . . . Cukor screen-tested young Spanish actor Simon Andrew for a stellar role with Miss Gardner.

Pierre Braunberger, a small indie French filmmaker, took a special jury prize at the San Sebastien Fest via Jacques Doniol-Valvreze's "La Denonciation," in the grand prize at Locarno with Francois Reichenbach's "A Heart As Big As That" and the special jury prize at the recent Venice Fest via Jean Luc-Godard's" Live Her Life" . . . Otto Preminger flirting with the idea of returning to acting in "The Puma and the Pearl," by Wendy Sanford and George Mendoza, a book "of lust and destruction" (according to Walker & Co., the publisher) to which he has just bought the film rights . . . Sue Lyon, the "Lolita" of the picture of the same name, recently spent three days visiting Manila in connection with the publicity and ballyhoo of the film . . . Joseph Vogel, president of MGM, also was in Manila on his o.o. of Far East markets with Seymour Meyer, vice-president of MGM International. At a plush luncheon given in his honor by exhibitors attended by all the Filipino distributors Vogel discussed motion picture business in much detail . . . "El Cid" is now on its 13th week at Manila's de luxe 70mm Rizal Avenue plush Galaxy Theatre and from all indications, will still be there another month. It is one of the greatest boxoffic attractions in Philippine film history.

Golden anniversary convention of the Theatre Owners Assn. of North and South Carolina at Queen Charlotte Hotel in Charlotte, N. C., recently drew largest registration in its 50 years. Carol Lynley, Walter Brennan, Richard Brymer and Carolyn Byrd were the celebrities turnout along with Spyros Skouras of 20th Century-Fox, Monsignor Thomas F. Little of Legion of Decency and John H. Stembler of Theatre Owners of America.

Carolinas organization represents over 600 theatres and calls itself "oldest theatre owners association in the world."

Film Market Realties Stiffen Industry Opposition To Even 'Mild' Classification

B-RATE HERSEY 'WAR LOVER'

Legion Condemns 'Tales of Paris' and 'Golden Eyes'

The Legion of Decency has B-rated (morally objectionable in part for all) Columbia's "The War Lover," film adaptation of the John Hersey novel. The Roman Catholic reviewing group found that the film "tends to condone immoral behavior between two sympathetic characters."

At the same time, Legion condemned two French imports, Times Film's "Tales of Paris" and Kingsley's "The Girl With the Golden Eyes," and "separately classified" Zenith's French import, "Cleo From 5 to 7." "Pagan atmosphere" in the latter requires "caution and reservation," said the LOD.

Senate Clips USIA Media Guaranty

Washington, Oct. 2.

The U. S. Senate appropriations committee Monday (1) trimmed $500,000 from the media guaranty program of U. S. Information Agency during the current Government fiscal year, allowing $1,000,000. Yank motion pictures, along with other media, are beneficiaries of this program which supports soft currencies in certain countries with guaranteed U. S. dollars.

U. S. films are currently supported in four countries, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Poland and Viet Nam. The house earlier voted $1,500,000 for media guaranty.

Senate committee also slashed about $2,000,000 for acquisition and construction of radio facilities outside the U. S. by USIA. House allowed a total of $149,225,000 for USIA. The Senate committee cut it to $146,599,000.

BUDD ROGERS' NEW CO. WITH SHERM KRELLBERG

Budd Rogers and Sherman S. Krellberg have formed Ultra Pictures Corp. for independently-produced-product distribution. The accent is to be on saturation sell, utilizing a domestic field network of promotion specialists affiliated with the New York p.r. firm of Blank Rand Associates.

Partnership bills Rogers as prexy and Krellberg as v.p. Former's last berth was prez of Pathe-America, recently taken over by Astor Films. Krellberg is likewise a vet distribution figure among the independents, and additionally counts several sorties into legit production, both solo and with the Shuberts.

Ultra starts right off with a catalog of four features, all of Italo origin previously acquired for the U.S. by Rogers. These will all play here dubbed, suggesting the artfilm importing fraternity isn't being nudged by the newcomer.

Pathe-America's Status

Pathe-America Corp., recently acquired by Astor Pictures, will continue to be operated as a separate company, according to Astor prexy George Foley. Purpose of the move is to separate Pathe's exploitation product lineup from Astor's "class" releases, he said.

Morris Altman is serving as general manager of the Pathe-America operation, with a sales manager due to be appointed soon.

Martin Heads Pioneers For Rackmil Salute

Henry R. (Hi) Martin, Universal's sales veep, has taken the chairmanship of the 1962 annual dinner of the Motion Picture Pioneers. It's set for Nov. 19 at the Hotel Americana, New York.

Pioneer of the year is Milton R. Rackmil, head of U-Decca and vicechairman of MCA.

The increasingly wide acceptance of foreign films in the domestic U.S. market, while a boon to artie and "specialized" exhibition interests, to say nothing of fortunes of foreign producers, is making the organized U.S. industry's fight against statutory classification measures progressively tougher. This was apparent at the hearings in New York Thursday (27) before the state's Joint Legislative Committee on Obscene Literature, now studying new film classification legislation.

Underlying and implied in questions directed by the committee at the witnesses, all of whom appeared under the auspices of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, was the point that while MPAA's Production Code Administration may iron out "rough edges" in all Code-approved pix, there is a steadily growing number of films available on the nation's screens which never come under the Code's authority. The fact that, according to Code chief Geoffrey Shurlock's estimate, "more than 90%" of the films which get national distribution in depth do have Code seals—as opposed to those films which have a limited art or exploitation play—didn't seem to cut much ice with the committee.

Outside The Code

The growing number of foreign films available also, apparently, is mitigating against the usefulness of the Green Sheet as one of the MPAA's prime arguments against the need for statutory—or government-backed — classification. The Green Sheet, edited by the Film Estimate Board of National Organizations and representing a compilation of film reviews by over 20 national groups, only covers those pix which have Code seals.

If there was any handwriting on the wall in the Roosevelt Hotel hearing room last week, it spelled out the need to broaden the scope of the Green Sheet to include non-Code seal pix, as well as the need to increase the circulation so that its contents are as close at hand as a daily or weekly newspaper. In that event, the MPAA's often-reiterated stand that the parent—and not the state—is the best judge of what his child should see, and has access to plenty of information on all available pix, would take on real pertinence.

'Suitable For Kids'

At immediate issue during Thursday's hearings, chaired by Assemblyman Luigi Marano (R., Kings County), is proposal (similar to two others defeated in the last two sessions of the New York legislature) whereby the state's licensing division would be empowered to regularly publish a list of pix it found "suitable" for the patronage of children. Adding to the MPAA's difficulties at the moment is the alleged "innocuousness" of the proposed law, since it would provide for no punitive powers and would only be a "recommendation."

Committee members seemed amazed that industry reps should be so vehement against the idea, especially since not one of the witnesses — Shurlock, producer Arthur Hornblow Jr., Paul Newman, and MPAA aides Barbara Scott and Margaret Twyman — claimed that all Production Code Authority pix were ever meant to be seen by all age groups. What, then, is all the fuss about?

The only witness to appear without a prepared text, actor Newman summed up the case quite simply when he suggested that according to experience in the past, any state or government body has a habit of increasing its prerogatives, rather than casting them aside. The fear is that once the "innocuous" Marano bill was passed, it would be an easy step to amend the law to include punitive measures and widen its scope to prescribe those pix which may be seen by youngsters.

Cites 'Oklahoma'

Producer Hornblow dramatized the difficulty of any one group arriving at satisfactory film ratings by recounting his own experience with "Oklahoma," which was labeled family entertainment by most groups, though the Legion of Decency gave it a B-rating ("morally objectionable in part for all") largely because the "pathetic little comedy song, 'I Can't Say No'."

Mrs. Scott, an MPAA attorney, flatly pointed out to the committee that whenever classification legislation has been challenged in the court, it has been found invalid—in effect warning the committee (to its discomfort) that even should it succeed in getting a bill through Albany, it probably would be short-lived. Mrs. Twyman, community relations director for the MPAA, concentrated her attack in the general area that it has yet to be proven that juvenile delinquency can be shown to have been directly caused by motion pictures, or any other of the information media.

In winding up the hearings, chairman Marano put himself on record as being pleased to have found an area in which "we all agree," namely that there is a real need for expanding the available information on films. Perhaps from that point, he suggested, a solution agreeable to both sides can be worked out. That, of course, is impossible, as long as the state tries to impose any kind of film "recommendation" system that would have legal authority.

Some industry observers did feel, however, that Marano, by holding his hearings now, had done the industry a service by alerting it to another upcoming classification battle so long in advance — the state legislature does not reconvene until January. One of the private beefs of industry classification battlers has been that the rest of the industry is unconcerned by the "seriousness" of the classification fight "until we have one right in our lap." Marano, who plans to hold further hearings on his measure later this fall (for the proponents), helped spotlight an important industry issue. The industry successfully defeated his bill in this year's legislature "only by the skin of our teeth," in the words of one MPAA topper.

DICK POWELL SANGUINE ON CANCER RECOVERY

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Dick Powell acknowledged (27) when asked by LA Times that he is undergoing treatment for cancer and said that he expects to make a full recovery. The malignancy was discovered in a gland on the right side of his neck and in a pocket in his chest, the actor and president of Four Star tv company disclosed.

Powell attended the Dodgers-Houston game with his wife, June Allyson, and planned to go from the stadium to his boat for a weekend sail.

That Powell was undergoing tests at the UCLA medical center for possible cancer had been known by Hollywood beat reporters for several days. Following publication in Times' bulldog edition, the news was put out by television and radio newscasts.

Powell reportedly was under the impression that the Times was not going to report his illness. His pressagent did not know about the interview, which took place at the Powell home.

Story quoted Powell as saying, "Now that I know so much about cancer, I am more afraid of getting pneumonia." He said he was being treated by Dr. Justin Stein and that as a result of six radiation treatments Dr. Stein said "he expects to eliminate the condition."

Joint Defense Appeal Luncheoning Skouras

The motion picture and amusement division of the Joint Defense Appeal will honor 20th-Fox board chairman Spyros P. Skouras "for his many years of leadership on behalf of human rights" at a luncheon in New York Oct. 25.

The luncheon, at which Skouras will be presented with the JDA's annual human relations award, will climax the amusement industry's annual JDA fund drive.

GIGOT BRINGS A NEW JOY TO THE RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL!

"★★★★ ... Highest rating. A fascinating picture. Jackie Gleason is brilliant, amusing, touching and absorbing. His performance is to be reckoned with when it comes time to hand out the yearly awards for acting. Pure entertainment for people of all ages."

—Kate Cameron, Daily News

"GIGOT might well take its place among the film unforgettables."

—Justin Gilbert, Daily Mirror

"It's amusing, delightful, a pleasure!"

—Jesse Zunser, Cue

"Tender, kindhearted, lovable... Movie customers in a good many lands are going to have their happiest cry since Little Red Riding Hood made it safely back home to mama."

—LIFE Magazine

"A most delightful film, acted by Jackie Gleason with a relish equal to his considerable skill."

—Archer Winsten, N.Y. Post

"Gleason steals show."

—Rose Pelswick, N.Y. Journal American

"Eloquent and utterly appealing."

—Alton Cook, N.Y. World Telegram & Sun

"For years people have been asking where we'll find another Charlie Chaplin with his talent and ability to make people laugh and cry. We don't have to search any longer—we've got him: Jackie Gleason... Jackie will make it hot in next year's Oscar race."

—Hedda Hopper, Daily News

"Jackie Gleason's performance in GIGOT a world classic ...an Oscar bet!"

—Earl Wilson, N.Y. Post

"Jackie Gleason turns out a superb performance, unmatched by any actor in recent years."

—Louis Sobol, N.Y. Journal American

"Jackie Gleason a sure bet to cop an Oscar for his great performance."

—Lee Mortimer, New York Mirror

"Establishes Jackie as a master of the mime art and is perhaps his greatest single acting achievement to date."

—Nick Kenny, N.Y. Mirror

"In the classic Chaplin tradition ... establishes Gleason as a king of the world's serious comics."

—Atra Baer, N.Y. Journal American

"When the last scene of Jackie... faded out, talk of Oscar filled the air."

—Al Salerno, N.Y. World Telegram & Sun

"THE HOTTEST PERFORMER IN

"20th has a heavy anchor to windward. Naturally, that's everlovin' and ever-loved Jackie Gleason, whose 'Gigot' is only great. Out of town showings indicate it will be one of the hits of the studio's history.
"Jackie Gleason is a sure bet to cop an Oscar for his great performance in 20th's upcoming 'Gigot'." LEE MORTIMER, NEW YORK MIRROR

"Gleason's is a rare performance."
LEONARD LYONS, NEW YORK POST

"The movie critics, judging from their awed tones, have gained a new admiration for Gleason because of his performance as a mute in 'Gigot.' It's another polished performance in keeping with his artistry in 'The Hustler' and 'Requiem for a Heavyweight'."
KUP, CHICAGO SUN TIMES

"For years people have been asking where we'll find another Charlie Chaplin with his talent and ability to make people laugh and cry. We don't have to search any longer—we've got him: Jackie Gleason. He wrote himself a silent part in 'Gigot' and is bound to walk off with awards for the role from Cannes to Canada . . Jackie communicates with his audience eloquently, equalling anything Chaplin ever did . . Gleason, the buffoon, gives us a million laughs on TV. Jackie, the serious actor, will make it hot for some poor souls in next year's Oscar race.
"The big brass at 20th gave (Gleason's) picture cheers and tears. They tell me it will make history and start a new, picture-making trend."
HEDDA HOPPER, NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

"(Gleason's) an award-winning performance in 'Gigot'."
FRANK FARRELL,
NEW YORK WORLD TELEGRAM & SUN

"Playing 'Gigot' is Jackie Gleason, who also wrote the original story and the bouncy background music . . . Gleason is funny . . . this film is pleasant, colorful, sentimental." NEWSWEEK

"Gleason has performed with a minimum of his well-known mugging and a maximum of honest effort. In the process he certainly dominates the entire proceedings. Gleason's score helps immensely in conveying the changing moods of this pleasurable and unusual picture."
RICHARD GERTNER, MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"'Gigot' . . . one of the outstanding motion picture entertainments of recent years. Starring Jackie Gleason in a masterful tour de force performance . . . 'Gigot' is a film with heart. A rich and rewarding cinematic experience overflowing with dramatic values, hearty laughter and a number of moments destined to bring tears to every viewer's eyes. Comparisons will undoubtedly be made with the works of Chaplin and other cinema greats . . . Here is entertainment for audiences of both sexes and all ages, a film destined to win hosannas galore . . . will be a major contender (in several categories) when Oscar time rolls around. From start to finish . a sparkling gem. For Gleason, 'Gigot' marks the highpoint of an already colorful and crowded career. This forceful entertainer . . . will win new accolades for his complex delineation as the mute Parisian janitor."
FILM BULLETIN

"New Yorchids: Jackie Gleason's superformance in 'Gigot'."
"Previewers impressed with Jackie Gleason's emoting in 'Gigot'."
WALTER WINCHELL, NEW YORK MIRROR

"Jackie Gleason's 'Gigot' . is an immensely appealing but gently-paced comedy, full of good humor and wry observations . . . has a comic strip gaiety not seen on the American scene in several decades. If anyone needed further evidence that Gleason is a superb actor 'Gigot' is it . . . just the right note of high humor and pathos. . Gleason's musical score, full of small but charming themes . . ." CANBY, VARIETY

"Jackie plays a mute, part-buffoon, part-saint, in the classic Chaplin tradition, right down to the final 'chase'. Jackie might be interested to learn that as the audience filed out . . one viewer who is not known to go along with The Great Gleason tag, was heard to remark: 'Who's Chaplin?' This movie should do for Gleason what TV never has: establish Gleason as king of the world's serious comics."
ATRA BAER, NEW YORK JOURNAL AMERICAN

New York Journal-American

'Gigot' Gets Legion OK

In a unique unprecedented endorsement for a new motion picture, the National Legion of Decency has awarded the Seven Arts Production of "Gigot," starring Jackie Gleason, an "A-1" classification and has issued the following statement in behalf of the 20th Century-Fox release:
"Eloquent in its simplicity, innocence and compassion, the film should prove to be a memorable experience for all who see it. The National Legion of Decency highly recommends 'Gigot' to the patronage of the entire family."

"The applause at the end of 'Gigot' will be echoed the world over. (Gleason) plays the mute to a fare-thee-well and confirms definitely what the 'Hustler' first demonstrated: he is an actor of warmth and depth and humanity, and a very skilled one. This is Jackie's picture, but to a degree that has to be seen . . . Very respectable music by Gleason himself . . . Emotional, sentimental, charming, 'Gigot' would find a large audience even without the potent horsepower of the Gleason name. With it, warmth and moola should greet it even where few understand enough French to realize 'Gigot' is their dish."
LARRY LIPSKIN, HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

"Jackie Gleason is a man of many talents—not the least of which, it appears, is his gift for mime and music. 'Gigot,' a bitter-sweet tale of a mute Parisian janitor and the homeless child he befriends, was written and scored by Jackie, who is also its star and without a spoken word makes of the huge, grotesque and clumsy tenement-porter a wonderfully sympathetic and warmly endearing character . . He is always a pleasure to watch." JESSE ZUNSER, CUE

"Jackie Gleason displays his superb virtuosity as a clown (comparable with Chaplin at his best); as a musician (he wrote the stirring score); as a writer (he authored the poignant story) . the assembled viewers crowded around him to pour on their congratulations . . Those who have seen 'Gigot' insist that in it Jackie Gleason turns out a superb performance, unmatched by any actor in recent years."
LOUIS SOBOL,
NEW YORK JOURNAL AMERICAN

"'Gigot' is a tour de force for Jackie Gleason's exhibition of his pantomimic art. Gleason's performance in the title role is a brilliant one, sometimes amusing, at others touching and always absorbing as one watches him go through a series of gestures and facial expressions that are as eloquent as any speechmaking could be. It is a performance to be reckoned with when it comes time to hand out the yearly awards for acting . . The film has innumerable touches that make it pure entertainment for people of all ages."
KATE CAMERON, NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

★ ★ ★ ★

"Gleason Steals Show.
"To the strains of composer Gleason's gently pleasant background music actor Gleason gives a gently effective performance . . . the mood of the piece and its incidents are amiably diverting."
ROSE PELSWICK,
NEW YORK JOURNAL AMERICAN

"As the central figure of the film shot in and around Paris he (Gleason) gives convincing evidence of his ability to bring hearty laughter and genuine tears . . . Gleason is fantastically effective and moving . . When the rotund actor completely submerges himself in the role of 'Gigot' he proves himself completely an actor."
JUSTIN GILBERT, NEW YORK MIRROR

"The movie from all accounts establishes Jackie as a master also of the mime art and is perhaps his greatest single acting achievement to date."
NICK KENNY, NEW YORK MIRROR

"Gleason is past master of the opportunities given him by a mute characterization, and rises to heights of effectiveness in portraying the pleasures of funeral-watching as enjoyed by the mute . . . It is Jackie's picture."
FILM DIGEST BOX OFFICE ESTIMATE

"A tour de force for Jackie Gleason . . Gleason, a rising star of the screen, combines pathos of his TV creation, The Poor Soul, with his most raucous physical gambits. Gleason meets the challenge handsomely. Even his girth contributes to the performance as he projects himself in silence bodily and through a remarkably sensitive face emotionally, in an accomplishment which recalls Chaplin." THE INDEPENDENT FILM JOURNAL

"I went to see 'Gigot' and left the theatre entranced and encouraged by an example of what the motion picture medium is capable of . . . The lead is portrayed magnificently by Jackie Gleason. Gleason also wrote the magnificent musical score of the picture . . . he has talent in every cell of his large body."
CARL S. COVERDALE JR., THE MESSENGER

ALL SHOW BUSINESS TODAY"

LIFE

"(Gleason) acts the everything role with a gusto that is his hallmark . . . acted by the round man with a relish equal to his considerable skill . the whole picture assumes the proportions of a tour de force. This is a very unusual film but its elements and sentiments and emotions are so cannily used that the unusual will not militate much against popularity . . . a most delightful film." ARCHER WINSTEN, NEW YORK POST

"(Gleason) can play the role with both hands tied behind his back . . Gleason is a very talented mime." PAUL V. BECKLEY, NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

"Mr. Gleason is virtually the whole show." NEW YORK TIMES

". . . his body and facial movements are eloquent and utterly appealing. The full value of his immense talents as clown are realized." ALTON COOK, NEW YORK WORLD TELEGRAM & SUN

"Some of those who saw Jackie Gleason's Chaplinesque performance in 'Gigot' figure it to be a world classic . . . Jackie Gleason's an Oscar bet." EARL WILSON, NEW YORK POST

"He (Gleason) emerges as a motion picture star of the first rank in 'Gigot'. And he composed the music and in its field of nostalgic Parisiana it is most ingratiating music . . . 'Gigot' is a tour de force for Gleason . . . and no one could have done it better than Gleason." JACK GAVER, U.P.I.

"Gigot, a mute Parisian janitor with an outsized heart, shambled into town yesterday without saying a word. And not since Charlie Chaplin's prime has the screen contained such eloquent silence. And the word (Gigot) is pronounced, as all the ads point out, 'Gee! Go!' Which, in this reviewer's estimation, is not a bad idea." MIKE McGRADY, NEWSDAY

"A touching, sentimental tale, shot through with humor, is turned out in 'Gigot'. It is an unusual portrayal that Jackie Gleason puts forth . . . Gleason also did the touching score." MANUEL HERBTSMAN, FILM DAILY

"When the last scene faded out talk of Oscar filled the air. It is hard to believe that Jackie ever could win a prize for keeping quiet but it looks like a wham-bang season ahead." AL SALERNO, NEW YORK WORLD TELEGRAM

Back-to-School Slump But 1961 Bettered; Month's Best Product: MGM Has 3, UA, Embassy 2 Each

By MIKE WEAR

VARIETY's regular weekly boxoffice reports are summarized each month, resrospectively. Based on an average of 24 key situations, the source data constitute an adequate sampling of current releases but are not, of course, fully "definitive." An index of relative grossing strength in the U. S.-Canada market this monthly reprise does not pretend to express total rentals.

After the usual Labor Day holiday upbeat, film grosses followed the usual seasonal trend last month and began to decline. Even so, biz at firstruns in the key cities within VARIETY weekly gross estimates held about even or a bit better than a year ago. Towards the end of the month some disappointing new product brought sharply curtailed takes. The September weather was on the favorable side for theatre biz.

Again on top for the second month in a row was "Music Man" (WB) in the biz sweepstakes for September. "Brothers Grimm" (MGM), which held close to "Music" virtually every week, finished a solid second. The two pictures grossed $2,376,000 in the four weeks out in circulation last month.

"West Side Story" (UA), long on top or close to No. 1 position, wound up third although nearing the end of its engagements in several major city firstruns. "The Interns" (Col), which started out with an amazing showing late in August, soared to fourth position. It actually wound third a couple of times in weekly ratings.

"Lolita" (MGM), which has been high on the list for two months wound up fifth. "Miracle Worker" (UA) captured sixth spot by dint of a flock of fresh playdates.

"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) captured seventh position, showing its greatest strength early in the month. "Phantom of Opera" (U), a newie finished eighth, mainly by sheer weight of some sizeable gross totals.

"300 Spartans" (20th) was close behind in ninth position. "Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) took 10th spot, about the same as the month before. "Sky Above," also from Embassy, captured 11th place, rising as high as seventh in weekly ratings.

"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) rounds out the Top 12 although climbing as high as 10th in VARIETY weekly ratings. "Notorious Landlady" (Col), previously much higher; "Spiral Road" (U), "Kid Galahad" (UA) and "Best of Enemies" (Col) were the runner-up films. Last three were newcomers for the month.

A long string of new films were launched last month, mostly in the last two weeks. Few indicate smash grossing possibilities. However, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM) shapes strong enough to cop fifth place the final week of the month. "Damn the Defiant" (Col) also hints nice potential, being stout in Boston and Washington as well as nice in N. Y. and Philly.

"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) has been checking in with some big showings on arty playdates. "Marco Polo" (AI), just getting started, has been somewhat spotty thus far. "No Man Is an Island" (U) was big on first playdate in Detroit.

A big batch of oldies were unveiled during the month, with mostly indifferent results. Best of the lot appears to be "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue), which was strong enough the final week of September to take seventh position in weekly ratings. "Father of the Bride" (MGM) (reissue), often paired with "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" (MGM), checked in with some nice showings.

"That Touch of Mink" (U), champ and near the top for two months, managed to rack up about $100,000 just in keys covered by VARIETY playing subsequent-run and moveover. "Guns of Darkness" (WB), which was unbelievably slow in most keys, managed to register one or two good engagements. "El Cid" (AA), now playing mostly on subruns or at lower scale in nabes and smaller key cities, nevertheless managed to rack up some amazingly tall grosses, thereby adding to the high coin already racked up on hardticket engagements.

"Taste of Honey" (Cont), playing mainly in smaller or arty houses, managed to rack up around $75,000 just in the bigger key cities. "Judgment at Nuremberg" (UA), now playing subsequents on a popscale, still ran up close to $100,000 just in keys covered by VARIETY. Same is true of "Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA).

"Hatari" (Par), which has been prominent on the lists for the last two months, wound up 12th one week in weekly ratings.

Sept. Golden Dozen

1. "Music Man" (WB).
2. "Brothers Grimm" (MGM).
3. "West Side Story" (UA).
4. "The Interns" (Col).
5. "Lolita" (MGM).
6. "Miracle Worker" (UA).
7. "Another Town" (MGM).
8. "Phantom of Opera" (U).
9. "300 Spartans" (20th).
10. "Boccaccio" (Embassy).
11. "Sky Above" (Embassy).
12. "Pigeon Took Rome" (Par).

LIONEL LOBER'S FEATURE ROLLS NOV. 4 IN ISRAEL

Lionel Lober, son of United Artists exec Louis Lober and himself a former aide to Max E. Youngstein when latter was at UA, starts shooting an indie in Israel of his own writing titled "Who Stole Irving?" He leaves for Tel Aviv Nov. 4. All shooting will be on Israeli location.

It's a modern-day comedy with an all-Israeli cast save for a male name who, says Lober, "would be on the type of Groucho Marx; in fact I'm trying to interest him in it." Menecham Golan, Israeli who was associated in Roger Corman's "The Young Racers" (shot on the Riviera) will direct.

U.S. MAJORS IN JAPAN

United Artists Again Takes Top Rental Revenues

Tokyo, Oct. 2.

Distribution rentals of the nine U. S. majors for Japan climbed to $12,459,000 for the first eight months of this calendar year, topping last year's figure for the corresponding period by $2,159,000.

United Artists once agin headed the listings with rentals of $2,401,000 for the period. Metro followed with $2,020,000 and Paramount was in the third position with $1,701,000.

The other companies registered as follows: RKO (Disney & BCFC), $1,458,000; 20th-Fox, $1,281,000; Col, $1,223,000; Universal, $1,149,000; WB, $896,000 and AA, $356,000.

Tower's Re-Do for C'rama

Atlanta, Oct. 2.

It was a race with the clock but contractors finished in time for the invitational opening here tonight (Tues.) of the new Martin Cinerama Theatre with the local preem of "Brothers Grimm." Built originally as the Erlanger and then later called the Tower (Atlanta's last remaining legit showcase), the Martin Cinerama was remodeled at a cost of $500,000 and now seats 858.

Norris L. McCollum is managing director. Latest addition to his staff is group sales director Frances Jones, wife of the Atlanta Constitution's radio-tv editor. Local Cinerama outlet is a unit of the Martin Theatres chain, which, in its deal with Cinerama, is building other Cinerama theatres in New Orleans, St. Louis and Seattle.

350 Hot Tickets

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 2.

Two masked men fled with $586 and 350 theatre tickets when they held up the 17th Ave. Drive-in Theatre. One shot was fired, the bullet missing the head of Frank Kipta, an employee, by inches.

Kipta had entered the ticket booth to escort the cashier to the manager's office with the night's receipts when the robbers moved in just before 10 p.m.

Engel Abroad On Israeli Studio; McCarthy's Plans

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Samuel G. Engel, perhaps the longest-running 20th-Fox producer, who wound his contract with the company with delivery of "The Ion," is off to London and Paris to finalize financing the $7,000,000, 100-acre film studio he and Coast industrialist Victor Carter plan building in Israel. It will be situated in Caesarea, outside of Tel Aviv, and will be a combination of American, British and French capital. Engel was 27 years with 20th, including before the Fox merger.

Another veteran 20th-Fox producer, Frank McCarthy, for 14 years at the studio, also is part of the deep-cutting Darryl F. Zanuck studio reorganization plans. For a time there were discussions for McCarthy to produce a vidpix series under 20th Century Television Corp. prexy Peter G. Levathes, but Zanuck was unwilling to release a property McCarthy had in mind for the telefilms. McCarthy plans continuing indie film production on the Coast.

Engel and Carter have formed Cines Productions Inc. and Telemasters Productions Inc. for their Israeli production operations. March groundbreaking is planned. Engel will both produce there and rent studio space. From London and Paris he goes on to Israel.

Nudie Arter's $260,000 Gross So Far; 'Paradisio' Producer Off to Asia

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

"Paradisio," nudie art film produced for "slightly under $100,000," during first six months of distribution has collected approximately $260,000 in film rentals in 200 bookings and indications are take will amount to $1,000,000 domestic, according to Jack Harris, exec producer who financed film.

Harris stated at a press conference that he leaves this week for a month in Tokyo and Far East setting up bookings for pic, which is partially 3-D. Warner Bros., he said, has given up one of its licenses in Japan for "Paradisio," and will sub-distrib 82-minute feature for Harris.

While in Tokyo, Harris also will seek a co-production arrangement for "The Terrible Game," and following return here will head immediately for South America to line up local distribs for his nudie. After that, he said, he goes to Europe for similar release deals.

Two other story properties are on producer's sked, both to be made in Hollywood. First is "The Casting Couch," a comedy, which will be based upon incidents in silent days, and the other is tentatively tabbed "A Stranger and Afraid," with a dramatic approach to Hollywood.

"Paradisio," he said, which has never been presented for a MPAA Production Code seal but has never yet run into any censor trouble wherever shown, will start an engagement in flock of drive-ins in the Frisco area in two weeks. Film has been playing around country, he pointed out, in theatres which appeal to family trade, such as the Adams, Detroit; Roosevelt, Seattle; Paramount, Frisco; and Orpheum, Portland, Ore.

National Boxoffice Survey

Biz Continues Spotty; 'Grimm' Again No. 1, 'Story' 2d, 'Interns' 3d; 'Music,' 'Boccaccio' Next

Failure of many of the new films to measure up is making for a spotty biz picture in key cities covered by VARIETY this session. Besides this situation, several of the bigger grossers are beginning to feel the pre-fall downbeat trend.

"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) is moving back to first place, thereby indicating the marked holding power. It is considerably ahead of its nearest competitors. "West Side Story" (UA), long on top or near No. 1 position, is pushing up to second place.

"The Interns" (Col), which slipped back last stanza, is moving up to third spot. "Music Man" (WB) is down to fourth.

"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy), which has been gradually pushing upwards, is winding up with fifth money. "Man Is An Island" (U), a newcomer, is capturing sixth place.

"Thank A Fool" (MGM), fifth a week ago, is winding up seventh. "300 Spartans" (20th), will take eighth place. "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par), which finished 12th last round, is landing ninth position. "Damn the Defiant" (Col), which showed considerable promise last week, is winding up 10th, the first week out to any great extent.

"Rear Window" (Par), back on reissue, is taking 11th spot. "Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) rounds out the Top 12 pix. "Sky Above" (Embassy), "Miracle Worker" (UA) and "Lolita" (MGM) are the runnerup films in that order.

There's a long string of new pictures just getting around but few of them show much promise. "Gigot" (20th), just winding up its first week at the N.Y. Music Hall, hints possibilities although opening session in N.Y. was not sock. "Panic in Year Zero" (AI) is uneven this round playing in three keys.

"Pressure Point" (UA), another newie, is spotty. "Marco Polo" (AI), also new, is okay in Cincy and tall in Denver. It's not so good in N.Y. and Louisville.

"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy), still wow in N.Y., shapes great in Boston. "Flame in Streets" (Atlantic) is rated limp in Pitt, fair in N.Y. and dull in Denver.

"Very Private Affair" (MGM), hotsy in Boston, looks just good in N.Y. "Convicts 4" (AA), another new entrant, is mild in Balto and Minneapolis, and light in L.A. and Portland.

"Touch of Mink" (U), smash in Toronto, looms fair in K.C. "Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM), fast in St. Louis, looks light in L.A., good in Detroit and so-so in Philly.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9-10)

'Mein Kampf' Playoff in 92 Nations

Tore Sjoberg Declines to State Rentals, But Made Documentary for $100,000 — His Future Projects

PRODUCER GETS PLAQUE FOR DARING TO PRODUCE

Lawrence, Kans., Oct. 2.

Localites packed the Granada Theatre (about 1,000 seats) last Wed. (26) to see the world premier of "Carnival of Souls," first feature ever produced in Lawrence. Brief stage ceremonies found officials of Commonwealth Theatres, which operates the house as one of its more than 100 in the midwest, presenting a plaque of appreciation to Harold (Herk) Harvey, the producer for his "gameness" in plunging into film production in the midwest.

Richard Orear, president, did the honors for Commonwealth, and Harvey introduced a number of production staff and cast to the audience, most of whom apparently already knew them as neighbors.

Date for the film here is a test, from which Commonwealth will evaluate reaction for possible future use. One exec pretty well characterized the possibilities when he said we have played lots worse lots of times.

Herts-Lion International, Hollywood, has the film for national distribution from Harcourt Productions, which made it here, and American International has a franchise for distribution in the Kansas City exchange area.

Footnote, Circa 1962

Detroit, Oct. 2.

The secretarial contingent at WJBK here couldn't have been more excited if Cary Grant had been doing a personal at the station. As it was, he was merely on the 'phone—for 10 minutes — with Shirley Eder, who conducts the AMer's "That's Show Biz" stanza. Seems the femmecaster had dropped some nice words about Grant on the air, and the star just wanted to express thanks.

He had tried to reach her before she arrived at the studio, but the WJBK switchboard wasn't going for the "Mr. Grant" identification—until Miss Eder showed up. Luckily, Grant was persistent.

Swedish producer Tore Sjoberg, a New York visitor last week, spent $100,000 in making the successful "Mein Kampf," which played in 92 countries, and $30,000 in assembling his new one, "Secrets of Nazi Criminals." But he said he prefers not to discuss grosses because "look what happened to Johannson." The reference was to Ingemar Johannson, the fighter who became so enmeshed in tax troubles after he hit the well-publicized bigtime.

Sjoberg, who said he speaks "good Swedish and bad English and German," will be ready in about a month with the final effort in his documentary trilogy, this to be titled "Face of War."

The filmmaker said this will be a compilation of historical fact showing how 100,000,000 people have been killed in localized and global hostilities over the past half century. He has 150,000 feet of film and is cutting this to 8,500. He acquires his material mostly from governmental archives throughout the world.

Sjoberg, who conversed with a VARIETY reporter in understandable English, said that upon completion of the trilogy he'll shift to semi-documentaries — dramatized stories based on fact. "The Americans did these well, such as with 'Northside 777,' but for some reason abandoned this form. I can't understand why."

As for his relations with American film interests, he commented "I find they have a dollar sign where the heart ought to be." However, he and Trans-Lux, distributor of "Nazi Criminals" have gotten along fine and as a result T-L has been given first refusal rights on "Face of War." Columbia released "Mein Kampf."

MARIE MacDONALD RECOVERY

Farmington, Me., Oct. 2.

Actress Marie MacDonald was hospitalized briefly here with an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

With her 13-year-old daughter, Danice Karl, actress was vacationing at Kennebago Lake Camps at Rangeley when stricken. She had flown to the Rangeley Lakes area by private plane to purchase a lot on which to build a home in the Bald Mountain section.

She left the hospital Saturday (29) and flew back to Los Angeles.

For Christmas and 1963! AN EARTHQUAKE OF ENTERTAINMENT

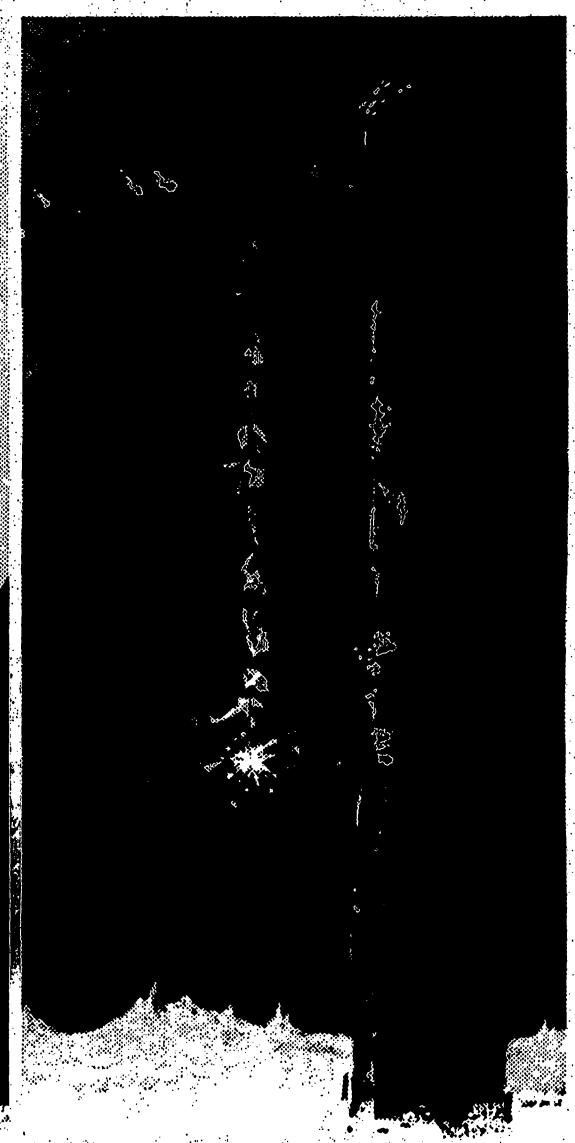
Trapped in a gigantic WATER SPOUT



Caught in a plunging AVALANCHE

Engulfed by a TIDAL WAVE

Carried off by a GIANT CONDOR

Pursued by fierce MAORI WARRIORS

BACKED BY A POWER-PACKED CAMPAIGN!

CONTACT YOUR LOCAL BUENA VISTA OFFICE NOW!

Walt Disney PRESENTS JULES VERNE'S

In search of the* Castaways

STARRING

MAURICE CHEVALIER HAYLEY MILLS GEORGE SANDERS WILFRID HYDE WHITE

FEATURING MICHAEL ANDERSON JR. • KEITH HAMSHERE • ANTONIO CIFARIELLO • SCREENPLAY BY LOWELL S. HAWLEY • ASSOCIATE PRODUCER HUGH ATTWOOLL • DIRECTED BY ROBERT STEVENSON • TECHNICOLOR® • Released by BUENA VISTA Distribution Co., Inc. / ©1962 Walt Disney Productions

Hollywood Production Pulse

ALLIED ARTISTS
Starts, This Year.....1
This Date, Last Year 5

AMERICAN INT'L
Starts, This Year 3
This Date, Last Year 4

"THE RAVEN"
(Nicholson-Arkoff Prods.)
Prod.-Dir.—Roger Corman
Vincent Price, Peter Lore, Boris Karloff, Hazel Court, Olive Sturgess, Jack Nicholson
(Started Sept. 21)

COLUMBIA
Starts, This Year.....15
This Date, Last Year.....19

"BYE BYE BIRDIE"
(Kohlmar-Sidney Prods.)
Prod.—Fred Kohlmar
Dir.—George Sidney
Janet Leigh, Dick Van Dyke, Ann-Margret, Bobby Rydell, Jesse Pearson, Maureen Stapleton, Paul Lynde, Frank Albertson, Trudi Ames, Ed Sullivan, Bryan Russel, Robert Paige
(Started May 3)

"THE RUNNING MAN"
(Peet Prods. Ltd.)
(Shooting in Spain)
Prod.-Dir.—Carol Reed
Laurence Harvey, Lee Remick, Alan Bates
(Started July 17)

"THE VICTORS"
(Highbroad Prods.)
(Shooting in England)
Prod.-Dir.—Carl Foreman
Vincent Edwards, George Hamilton, Christine Kauffman, Melina Mercouri, Jeanne Moreau, George Peppard, Rosanna Schiaffino, Romy Schneider, Eli Wallach, Michael Callan, Peter Fonda, Jim Mitchum, Tony Wallace
(Started Aug. 7)

"IN THE FRENCH STYLE"
(Casanna Prods.)
(Shooting in Paris)
Prods.—Robert Parrish, Irwin Shaw
Dir.—Robert Parrish
Jean Seberg, Stanley Baker, Philippe Forequet, Addison Powell, Jack Hedley, James Leo Herlihy, Claude Dauphin, Maurice Teynac
(Started Aug. 27)

WALT DISNEY
Starts, This Year 4
This Date, Last Year.....5

"SUMMER MAGIC"
Prod.—Walt Disney
Dir.—James Neilson
Hayley Mills, Burl Ives, Dorothy McGuire, Eddie Hodges, Una Markel, Michael Pollard, Wendy Tume, Jimmy Mathers, Jim Stacy, Peter Brown
(Started Aug. 6)

"SAVAGE SAM"
Prod.—Walt Disney
Dir.—Norman Tokar
Brian Keith, Tommy Kirk, Dewey Martin, Kevin Corcoran, Jeff York, Marta Kristen
(Started Aug. 22)

METRO
Starts, This Year 18
This Date, Last Year 15

"COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER"
(Euterpe Prods.)
Prod.—Joe Pasternak
Dir.—Vincent Minnelli
Glenn Ford, Shirley Jones, Stella Stevens, Dina Merrill, Roberta Sherwood, Ronny Howard, Jerry Van Dyke
(Started Aug. 2)

"TAMAHINE"
(Seven Arts Prods. Ltd.)
(Shooting in London)
Prod.—John Bryan
Dir.—Philip Leacock
Nancy Kwan, Dennis Price, Bernard Cribbins, John Frazer
(Started Aug. 11)

"TAKE ME TO THE FAIR"
(MGM-Ted Richmond Prods.)
(Shooting in Seattle)
Prod.—Ted Richmond
Dir.—Norman Taurog
Elvis Presley, Joan O'Brien, Gary Lockwood, Vicky Tiu, Yvonne Craig, Kam Tong, Guy Raymond, Edith Atwater
(Started Sept. 5)

PARAMOUNT
Starts, This Year 9
This Date, Last Year 8

"PARIS WHEN IT SIZZLES"
(Shooting in Paris)
Prod.—George Axelrod
Dir.—Richard Quine
William Holden, Audrey Hepburn
(Started June 18)

"COME BLOW YOUR HORN"
(Essex-Tandem Prods.)
Prods.—Bud Yorkin, Norman Lear
Dir.—Bud Yorkin
Frank Sinatra, Tony Bill, Lee J. Cobb, Molly Picon, Barbara Rush, Jill St. John, Carole Wells; guest stars Dean Martin, Dan Blocker, Phyllis McGuire
(Started Sept. 13)

20th CENTURY-FOX
Starts, This Year.....3
This Date, Last Year 24

UNITED ARTISTS
Starts, This Year 18
This Date, Last Year 24

"IT'S A MAD, MAD, MAD, MAD WORLD"
(Stanley Kramer Prods.)
(Shooting at Revue)
Prod.-Dir.—Stanley Kramer
Spencer Tracy, Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, Buddy Hackett, Ethel Merman, Mickey Rooney, Dick Shawn, Phil Silvers, Terry-Thomas, Jonathan Winters, Edie Adams, Dorothy Provine, Jimmy Durante, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Jim Backus, Ben Blue, Peter Falk, Paul Ford, Arnold Stang, Alan Carney, Doodles Weever, Buster Keaton
(Started April 26)

"THE GREAT ESCAPE"
(Mirisch-Alpha Prods.)
(Shooting in Munich)
Prod.-Dir.—John Sturges
Steve McQueen, James Garner, Richard Attenborough, James Donald, Charles Bronson, Donald Pleasence, James Coburn
(Started June 4)

"TOM JONES"
(Woodfall Film Prods.)
(Shooting in England)
Prod.-Dir.—Tony Richardson
Albert Finney, Susannah York, Hugh Griffith
(Started June 25)

"SUMMER FLIGHT"
Prods.—Stuart Miller, Lawrence Turman
Dir.—Daniel Petrie
Susan Hayward, Michael Craig, Edward Judd
(Started Aug. 20)

"FLIGHT FROM ASHIYA"
(Hecht Prods. & Dalei M.P. Co.)
(Shooting in Japan)
Prod.—Harold Hecht
Dir.—Michael Anderson
Yul Brynner, Richard Widmark, George Chakiris, Suzy Parker, Shirley Knight
(Started Aug. 27)

"THE MOUSE ON THE MOON"
(Walter Shenson Prods.)
(Shooting at Pinewood Studios, London)
Prod.—Walter Shenson
Dir.—Dick Lester
Margaret Rutherford, Ron Moody, Bernard Cribbins, David Kossoff, June Ritchie
(Started Sept. 3)

"JOHNNY COOL"
(Chrislaw Prods.)
(Shooting at Goldwyn)
Prod.-Dir.—William Asher
Henry Silva, Elizabeth Montgomery, Joan Staley, Gregory Morton, Steve Pack; guest stars Sammy Davis Jr., Joey Bishop, Telly Salavas, Jim Backus, Marc Lawrence, Hank Henry
(Started Sept. 17)

UNIVERSAL
Starts, This Year 11
This Date, Last Year 10

"LANCELOT AND GUINEVERE"
(Cornel Wilde-Bernard Luber Prods.)
(Shooting in Yugoslavia)
Prods.—Cornel Wilde and Bernard Luber
Dir.—Cornel Wilde
Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace, Brian Aherne, Ian Gregory, Michael Meacham
(Started May 7)

"A GATHERING OF EAGLES"
Prod.—Sy Bartlett
Dir.—Delbert Mann
Rock Hudson, Rod Taylor, Mary Peach, Barry Sullivan, Leora Dana, Kevin McCarthy, Richard LePore
(Started July 16)

"THREE ON A MATCH"
Prod.—Robert Arthur
Dir.—Michael Gordon
Kirk Douglas, Mitzi Gaynor, Gig Young, Thelma Ritter, Julie Newmar, William Bendix, Leslie Parris, Richard Sargent
(Started Aug. 7)

"PARANOIAC"
(Hammer Prods.)
(Shooting in England)
Prod.—Anthony Hinds
Dir.—Freddie Francis
Janette Scott, Oliver Reed, Sheila Burrell, Maurice Denham, Alexander Davion, Lilliane Brousse
(Started Aug. 7)

"THE LIST OF ADRIAN MESSENGER"
(Joel Prods.)
(Shooting in London)
Prod.—Edward Lewis
Dir.—John Huston
George C. Scott, Dana Wynter, Clive Brook
(Started Sept. 4)

WARNER BROS.
Starts, This Year 11
This Date, Last Year 10

"P.T. 109"
(Shooting in Florida)
Prod.—Bryan Foy
Dir.—Lewis Milestone
Cliff Robertson, Ty Hardin, James Gregory, Grant Williams, Robert Culp
(Started June 27)

"AMERICA, AMERICA"
(Athena Enterprises Corp. Prods.)
(Shooting in Athens)
Prod.-Dir.—Elia Kazan
Stathis Giallelis
(Started Aug. 20)

INDEPENDENT
Starts, This Year 18
This Date, Last Year 24

"55 DAYS AT PEKING"
(Samuel Bronston Prods.)
(Shooting in Spain)
Prod.—Samuel Bronston
Dir.—Nicholas Ray
Charlton Heston, Ava Gardner, David Niven, Flora Robson, John Ireland, Leo Genn, Robert Helpmann, Kurt Kaszner, Paul Lukas, Jerome Thor
(Started July 2)

"FACE OF TERROR"
(Carthay Films)
(Shooting in Spain)
Prod.—Jack Mills
Dir.—William Hole Jr.
Lisa Gaye
(Started July 23)

"YEAR OF THE TIGER"
(Kingman Prods.)
(Shooting in Viet Nam)
Prods.—Marshall Thompson, Wray Davis
Dir.—Alex Nicol
Marshall Thompson, Alex Nicol, Chieu Chinh, Pamela Sanders, Mario Darri
(Started Aug. 6)

"DEMENTIA"
(Filmgroup-Garrick Ltd. Prods. for Filmgroup Release)
(Shooting in Ireland)
Prods.—Roger Corman, Charles Hanawalt, R. Wright Campbell
Dir.—Francis Coppola
William Campbell, Luana Anders, Pat McGee, Mary Mitchell, Ethne Dunne, Sean O'Toole
(Started Sept. 10)

"PUSH BUTTON HONEYMOON"
(LeCamp Prods.)
(Shooting at Carthay Studios)
Prods.—Tom Alderman, John Hertelendy
Dir.—Dave Tomack
Aubri Martin, Roy Thinnes, Richard St. John, Helen Campus, Emil Sitka, Molly Dodd
(Started Sept. 10)

"THE LAST GRAVE"
(LoraJon Prods.)
(Shooting at Conejo Ranch)
Prod.-Dir.—Johnny Seven
Johnny Seven, Warren Kemmerling, Virginia Vincent, Ron Soble
(Started Sept. 26)

"THE BALCONY"
(City Film Corp. Prods. for Continental Release)
(Shooting at KTTV Studios)
Prods.—Bed Maddow, Joseph Strick
Dir.—Joseph Strick
Shelley Winters, Peter Falk, Lee Grant, Peter Brocco, Jeff Corey, Ruby Dee, Joyce Jameson, Arnette Jens, Leonard Mimoy, Kent Smith
(Started Sept. 17)

BRITAIN

ANGLO-AMALG
Starts, This Year 15
This Date, Last Year 11

"ON THE RUN"
(Anglo-Guild Prods.)
Prod.—Jack Greenwood
Dir.—Robert Tronson
Emrys Jones, Sarah Lawson, Delphi Lawrence, Patrick Barr
(Started Sept. 25 at Merton Park studios)

ASSO. BRIT.-PATHE
Starts, This Year 6
This Date, Last Year.....5

"DR. CRIPPEN"
(Torchlight Prods.)
Prod.—John Clein
Dir.—Robert Lynn
Donald Pleasence, Donald Wolfit, Coral Browne
(Started Sept. 10 at Associated British studios, Elstree)

BRITISH LION
Starts, This Year 8
This Date, Last Year.....9

"HEAVENS ABOVE"
(Charter Films)
Prod.—Roy Boulting
Dir.—John Boulting
Peter Sellers, Israel Jeans, Cecil Parker
(Started Aug. 7 on location in England and Scotland. Into Shepperton studios from Sept. 3)

BUTCHER'S
Starts, This Year 6
This Date, Last Year.....1

"NIGHT OF THE PROWLERS"
Prod.—John I. Phillips
Dir.—Francis Searle
Patrick Holt, Colette Wilde, Bill Nagy
(Started Sept. 24 on location in London. Into Shepperton studios from Sept. 27)

COLUMBIA
Starts, This Year 5
This Date, Last Year.....8

"LAWRENCE OF ARABIA"
(Horizon Pictures (G.B.) Ltd.)
Prod.—Sam Spiegel
Dir.—David Lean
Peter O'Toole, Maurice Ronnet
(Started May 1961 in Jordan. Halted. Resumed Dec. '61. To Morocco June '62)

DISNEY
Starts, This Year.....2
This Date, Last Year.....2

"THE THREE LIVES OF THOMASINA"
Exec. Prod.—Walt Disney
Assoc. Prod.—Hugh Attwooll
Dir.—Don Chaffey
Patrick McGoohan, Susan Hampshire
(Started Sept. 13 on location in Inverary, Scotland. Into Pinewood studios Aug. 22)

RANK
Starts, This Year 6
This Date, Last Year 9

"EVERYTHING I HAVE"
(Independent Artists)
Prod.—Albert Fennell
Dir.—Peter Graham Scott
Janet Munro, John Stride
(Started Sept. 10 at Pinewood studios. In Eastmancolor)

"LEFT BANK" (tentative title)
(Tricastle Films)
Prod.—Anthony Perry
Dir.—Guy Hamilton
Catherine Woodville
(Started on location in Chelsea, London, Sept. 3)

Burglary Season Opens

Buffalo, Oct. 2.

Safecrackers are continuing operations against theatre box offices here. Following an attempt to open the vault of the Lafayette Theatre which resulted in the burglars being frightened away before the job was completed, the safe at the Teck (Loew's) was heisted over the weekend by what police termed "professionals" and over $1,700 was stolen.

Current weekend was marked by two box office robberies one at the Cinema where the safe containing $850 was carted off the premises and opened and the Elmwood (nabe) where the safe was peeled with a loss reported around $700.

Pittsburgh Dissenter As United Artists Applies Showcase Format There

Pittsburgh, Oct. 2.

Penn Theatre, which has legit musical, "Sound of Music," for two weeks starting Feb. 4, is now working out its booking problems since dropping the "Premiere Showcase" plan of United Artists. UA films move over to the Gateway and Fulton Theatres of the Associated Theatre chain, headed by George and Ernest Stern.

Bill Moclair, manager of Penn, reveals he has already booked "Gigot" from 20th and had deals worked out with Paramount.

Moclair objected to the UA plan because of the theatres in the plan who are only a five minute ride from downtown. He said the plan, where seven hardtops and drive-ins, have a simultaneous run because of the huge distances involved between the theatres but he said Pittsburgh has its houses clustered and the nabes would be in direct competition with downtown. "Kid Galahad," first one here on the plan, did not get a downtown run even though every exhibitor here is complaining over the growing shortage of product.

NORBERT AUERBACH'S BROADER AUTHORITY

Norbert T. Auerbach, who has been United Artists' continental sales manager, is being promoted to Continental manager, succeeding Eric Pleskow, named last week to become a UA veep.

Auerbach will assume his new duties in Paris when Pleskow transfers his headquarters to New York next month. Auerbach, who joined UA in January, formerly was Columbia International's managing director for Europe and the Middle East. He left that post in 1960 to produce the indie French pic, "The Girl With the Golden Eyes."

U. of New Mexico Arters

Albuquerque, Oct. 2.

U. of New Mexico, which has a record enrollment of 7,500 students this fall, kicked off a 13-week series of art films last Friday (28) with the Swedish import "Wild Strawberries."

Series, offered on a cuffo basis to students and general public, is being presented by UNM Film Society and screens each film twice.

Next up, on Friday (5) is Soviet pic "Arsenal," to be followed by "Night of the Hunter," US. Others include "Quiet One," "Grand Illusion" and "M".

"ON THE BEAT"
Prod.—Hugh Stuart
Dir.—Robin Asher
Norman Wisdom, Raymond Huntley, Jennifer Jayne
(Started July 2 at Pinewood studios)

UNITED ARTISTS
Starts, This Year 6
This Date, Last Year 3

UNIV.-INT'L
Starts, This Year 3
This Date, Last Year 1

"KISS OF THE VAMPIRE"
(Hammer Films)
Prod.—Anthony Hinds
Dir.—Don Sharp
Edward de Souza, Jennifer Daniel, Clifford Evans
(Started Sept. 17 at Bray studios. In Eastmancolor)

Slap $255 Fine On 'Kipling's Women'

Atlanta, Oct. 2.

Last time Leonard Freeman, 28, manager of Kirkwood Adult theatre, was in Judge Robert Jones' section of Municipal Court, jurist warned him if he was brought up again he was going to lower the boom on him.

Freeman appeared Tuesday (for the eighth time), but this time it was on a different charge (disorderly conduct-showing an obscene movie), so the judge "let him off lightly" with a $255 fine or 30 days in jail.

Defense attorney Jack Turoff filed a certioraria appeal Thursday (27).

Freeman's troubles stemmed from showing a pic titled "Kipling's Women."

Capt. E. O. Mullen, a special investigator for the Aldermanic Police Committee, took a gander at "Kipling's Women" and grave Freeman a copy of charges and seized the film.

Freeman's previous (eight) appearances in Municipal Court had been for violating City of Atlanta's motion picture classification ordinance. (This statute was ruled invalid by Superior Court Judge Durwood T. Pye, who however, left it in effect for 30 days to give city chance to appeal).

When Freeman showed up in court Tuesday (25) Turoff started by asking Judge Jones if he had warned Freeman in court that if he was brought back he would be dealt with more severely. Judge said that was correct.

Jones added, however, that this warning came when the charge involved violating the rating ordinance. He said Freeman had not appeared before him before on a charge involving the showing of an obscene film.

Turoff attacked the ordinance under which Freeman was charged, contending that it is in conflict with a state law and thus is invalid. Jones replied that, in his opinion, there is no conflict between the city ordinance and the state law.

Capt. Mullen testified to arresting Freeman and seizing the film and in response to a direct question as to whether the film was obscene, Mullen replied: "In my opinion it was."

Mullen said his opinion was based upon the theme and "a display of nudity." Asked by Turoff if, in his opionion, nudity itself was obscene Mullen replied that it would depend upon the manner in which it was presented.

Mrs. Christine Smith Gilliam, former censor now acting as city's film reviewer, told the court she graded "Kipling's Women" objectionable before it opened at the Kirkwood and saw it again Friday at the theatre. Asked if she considered the film obscene, Mrs. Gilliam replied: "I so considered it."

Judge Jones viewed the picture at Columbia Pictures Corp.'s screening room on Film Row Wednesday (26) before the hearing began and in passing sentence on Freeman added that in his opinion film is obscene.

Assistant attorney Robert Lyle, who prosecuted the case, said after sentence was passed, that he had information that other prints of film had been procured and that picture would be shown.

"My instructions to law enforcement officers is to make a case and seize the film each time it is shown," Judge Jones said. "It will take a lot of film to keep it going."

'Longest Day' Into Atlanta As Reservists Benefit

Atlanta, Oct. 2.

Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day" will get its southern premiere Nov. 1 at Wilby-Kincey's Roxy Theatre under sponsorship of Atlanta Chapter of Reserve Officers Assn. Proceeds from sale of premiere tickets will go to Reserve Officers Memorial Building in Washington, a $1,500,000 project, with Atlanta unit's quota set at $10,000.

This will mark the first time that opening night of a motion picture road show engagement has been sold out to an organization for use in raising money for a worthy cause.

Ready NOW!

Your GIANT 5-ft. CUT-OUT

XMAS STANDEE

COLORFUL!
Eye-Catching!
Packed with CHRISTMAS CHEER!

This beaming, life-like reproduction of jolly St. Nick is one of the most beautiful STANDEES we've ever been able to offer for your Xmas Promotions! Prepared in 6 beautiful colors...Mounted and cut-out...with Sturdy Easel! It's a BIG Holiday Bargain.. and it's ready NOW!

Order HD-62-1
from your NSS Exchange

$3.75 each

NEW!

Miniature CUT-OUT
XMAS STANDEE

22 in. high
EASEL BACK
Same beautiful
6 color rendition

Specially designed for Away-From-Theatre Promotion ...these stunning, identical reproductions of your Giant 5 ft. STANDEE provide Countercards for your local merchants...for use in your Box Office and on Candy Counters ...and there's space at the bottom for theatre imprint or snipe!

HD-62-M

only 90¢ each
6 for $4.70

NATIONAL Screen SERVICE
PRIZE BABY OF THE INDUSTRY

Florida Makes It a Quartet, Next Year, Of Dixie Exhib Units

Atlanta, Oct. 2.

Tri-state (Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee) convention of theatre owners and exhibitors finished its joint annual three-day parley at Americana Motor Hotel with election of officers by Mition Picture Theatre Owners and Operators of Georgia and Alabama Theatre Owners Assn. Tennessee Theatre Owners Assn. leaders are holdovers for another year.

To the surprise of just nobody J. H. ("Tommy") Thompson, was reelected to his 16th consecutive term as president of MPTOOG. Thompson founded the Georgia organization 15 years ago and has served as its chief since that time.

He disclosed that next year Florida's owners and operators would be on hand to make the convention a four-state gathering.

Into office went entire slate of officers; O. C. Lam Sr. of Rome, executive vice president; E. D. Martin of Columbus, treasurer; John H. Thompson of Gainsville, secretary; Willis J. Davis of Atlanta, secretary to the board of directors and executive committee.

A woman exhibitor, Mrs. M. M. Osman, of Covington, was elected a vice president to serve with holdovers John H. Stembler, president of Theatre Owners of America, Harold Spears, Frederick G. Storey, James H. Harrison, Ray Edmondson and Warren Newman.

Alabamans re-elected W. W. Hammond Jr., of Albertville, to presidency, and upped Secretary-Treasurer Tom Coleman Jr., to a vice presidency to serve with J. A. Jackson, of Clanton, T. E. Watson, of Montevallo, and Roy Martin, of Columbus, Ga., A. B. Covey, of Montgomery, was named new secretary-treasurer vice Coleman. R. M. Kennedy, a former president, was renamed TOA rep.

Tennesseans sat tight with their leaders: Richard Lightman, president, Memphis; Mrs. Juanita Foree, Alcoa, vice president; Morton Tune, Shelbyville, executive secretary; Willis J. Davis, Atlanta, treasurer; Robert Hosse, Atlanta, chairman of the board of directors.

Fitelson Reps Ludi Claire In 'Cleo' Credit Claim

Ludi Claire is claiming a screenplay credit for "Cleopatra" in a case currently before the Writers' Guild of America. Miss Claire, actress and author, says she spent six months on the screenplay for producer Walter Wanger in 1959. Her claim is now a matter of Writers Guild arbitration.

William Fitelson, who is Miss Claire's attorney, this week in New York expressed the belief that Miss Claire's submitted screenplay closely resembles the final script by Joseph Mankiewicz in expanded form. Miss Claire's work centered on the Marc Antony role with Richard Burton in mind.

More Hard Ducats Loom

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

Though hard-ticket roadshowing of pictures is under fire in some film circles hereabouts it'll be in plenty evidence during the remaining few 1962 months. Two such screen attractions are likely to be running downtown simultaneously.

After a highly successful 34-week roadshow hard-ticket run, "West Side Story" (UA) will depart from the loop Mann, giving way on Oct. 18 to another of the same kind of attraction, Zanuck's "The Longest Day" (20th), also scaled at $2.75 top.

Then, on Dec. 27, still one more roadshow hard-ticket screen offering, "Mutiny on the Bounty" (MGM), will tee off at another of Ted Mann's downtown houses, the Academy, which has housed a considerable number of them for very long runs.

"Longest Day" and "Mutiny" will have their Twin Cities' roadshow runs exclusively here, just as "West Side Story" and all other hard-ticket films have had. Aside from a subsequent-run ozoner, the other Twin City, St. Paul, is sans a 70m-equipped theatre. In addition to the Mann and Academy, United Paramount's opp Century also boasts it here.

SUNSHINE, ALBQRQUE., GOING INTO CINERAMA

Albuquerque, Oct. 2.

Albuquerque should get its first Cinerama theatre around the first of the year, per Louis Gasparini, resident manager for Albuquerque Theatres Inc. Sunshine Theatre, hardtopper in continuous operation here for past 30 years, will be converted to Cinerama.

Job is expected to take about three months and cost estimated $150,000. House will be completely gutted, balcony will be permanently removed and new exits built.

This ends a hassle here between Albuquerque Theatres and Fox-Intermountain as to which would have Cinerama. Fox Intermountain had previously stated that the process would be included in new indoor house its planning in Winrock (Shopping) Center.

Houston Shoppers Get Twin Houses

Houston, Oct. 2.

Ground will be broken before the end of the year for the Gulfgate twin theatres, according to Theodore W. Berenson and William D. Lane, of Boston, developers of Gulfgate Shopping City, who were here last week to approve plans for the new theatre. With them was Richard A Smith, also of Boston, prez of General Drive-In Corp., which will operate.

Film situation will be located on Holmes Road and connected to the Gulfgate Shopping City by an overhead pedestrian bridge. The 1,000 seat theatres will share a lobby. Each will be equipped with a 54 foot screen and a stereo, high fidelity speaker system.

There will be parking space for about 1,600 cars at the theatre site itself.

Berenson and Lane said second twins are contemplated in Northline Shopping City here.

Group Commander Brien; First Task: 'Longest Day'

Lige Brien has been named 20th-Fox group sales director, with Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day" as his first assignment. He'll be working under Joe Sugar, 20th's new roadshow manager.

In his new post, Brien will be directing activities of company's group salesmen around the country, and coordinating ticket sales to various organiaztions, schools, charity groups, etc.

Back From 'Cleopatra'

Continued from page 5

Landau expressed surprise at this "because both Grant and Lewis personalities come across in their voices."

In the area of the serious film, he said "they are not frightened because they don't take us seriously." He said they "center their interest in the content of films or the artistic quality and don't worry about technique, while American filmakers are more interested in creating technical perfection, often at the risk of losing better moments in the films." Latter comment, he explained, as times "when we shoot a different scene because of an unimportant bit of bad lightening and use the better technical shot even when what it has to say might not be captured as well as the other shot was."

Landau said "Italian moviemakers are not concerned with the American films; they know people will come to see their own pictures." More importantly, he noted, "they are becoming more aware they are making an international mark."

Landau's next film release will be "Ballad of Dancer's Rock," through Universal-International.

Draft Eligibles Scarcely Rate Penalty of Lower Than Legal Compensation

Albany, Oct. 2.

Commenting, in its report to Industrial Commissioner Martin P. Catherwood, on request of the N.Y. State Theatre Owners Minimum Wage Committee for the exemption of youths, students and draft eligibles under the age of 22, from the provisions of the Jerry Act, increasing the minimum wage, effective Oct. 15, 1962, from $1 to $1.15 hourly, the General Minimum Wage Board observed the plea "particularly" applied to those employed as ushers in motion picture theatres.

"There is little doubt," commented the Board, "that the motion picture industry has suffered economically from the competition of other forms of entertainment and that some theatres are operating at a loss."

"It also appears," the Board continued, "that employers find the usher occupation one that is well suited for youth employment. What is not clear is whether paying young persons below the statutory minimum wage will enable the industry to continue to provide employment opportunities in the face of a multitude of adverse economic factors."

From the testimony heard "it appears to this Board that any reasonable differential in wage rates for the small group of workers involved, that took into account the needs of the workers as well as those of the industry, would have but a minimal effect on the ultimate destiny of this industry."

The Minimum Wage Board described as "not persuasive," the argument that "draft eligibles who are soon to be called upon for military training in the defense of the national welfare should be paid a lower wage."

The Board found "no compelling reason" for recommending less than the applicable minimum wage for youthful ushers employed in motion picture theatres.

Is There a 'Connection'

Continued from page 3

and (2) whether the Regents are acting in violation of the law in refusing a license after being so directed by the court.

Actually, the city police could have moved against the theatre and "Connection" distrib, Films Around The World, two weeks ago when the attorney informed the licensing division that a contract had been made with the Griffith for the showing of the film. Under the licensing statute, it's against the law to make an exhibition contract for a film that does not have a license.

(The N. Y. Times, which has given extensive news coverage to "The Connection" legal fight, refused to accept ads for the pic's opening which included the title of the film.)

Albany Incensed

Albany, Oct. 2.

Word from Manhattan that "The Connection" would unspool there despite its lack of a license incensed the State Education Dept. and the Board of Regents here in the state capital. Ephraim London's defiance was compared with the University of Mississippi situation as private view exalted above constituted authority.

Counsel for the state is still preparing a brief appealing from the victory of Films Round World against the original ban. With the case pending for final adjudication, Albany view is that the anti-censorship forces are being high-handed in trying to exhibit the film, with the four-letter word on the soundtrack, and sans any license. It's believed here that Irwin Shapiro has been pressuring for playoff, on the present publicity wave. There apparently was much disappointment because "The Connection" could not take drive-in dates during the summer.

Feeling here is that Attorney London has been rather too clever in this case. The "obscenity" provision of state regulation is outside the common meaning of merely vulgar language. Many in Albany see the Shapiro-London pair mounting an attack on a strong word-taboo for boxoffice notoriety's sake.

'P'As in Poe & Public Domain

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

American International Pictures, which currently has Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven" before the cameras and during past two years has made four other Poe yarns, will produce 10 additional Poe stories during the next five years.

Company toppers James H. Nicholson and Samuel Z. Arkoff stated that decision to sked 10 more of writer's famous terror tales was made because of outstanding b.o. success scored by the previouly-made "House of Usher," "The Pit and the Pendulum," "The Premature Burial" and "Poe's Tales of Terror."

Budgets ranging from $750,000 to $1,000,000 are skedded for each new film, all to be produced and directed by Roger Corman and starring Vincent Price. Corman turned out first five and Price, now in "Raven," also starred in three others.

First of the new 10 will be "The Masque of the Red Death," to roll April 10, 1963 from script by Robert Towne. Balance include "The Haunted Palace," scripted by Charles Beaumont; "Murders in the Rue Morgue," "The Gold Bug," "A Descent into the Maelstrom," "Ligeia," "The Thousand and Second Tale of Scheherazade," "The Angel of the Odd," "The Four Beasts in One" and "The City in the Sea."

PUERTO RICAN CHAIN EARNINGS, $385,557

San Juan, Oct. 2.

Commonwealth Theatres, dominant circuit in Puerto Rico with 42 houses, is basking in fiscal glow for the year ended last April 30. Chain's net sales for the annum hit $3,514,681, with earnings amounting to $385,557, or 77c per share.

There's no basis of comparison with past performance because of some basic operational changes, plus fact the chain only went public as of Dec. 14, 1961. Previously limited to mere theatre management, the company is now in active operations, and additionally has diversified into vending machines and concessions. It's assets in past year quadrupled, to $2,020,008.

Last month Commonwealth declared a 12½ cent quarterly dividend, bringing to 50c the total divvy declared since it went public.

Highschoolers Vote Their Faves

"Ben-Hur" was voted the best picture of the year by junior and senior highschool students across the country, according to a poll conducted for Scholastic Magazines, publ ers of classroom periodicals and paperback books. Following "Ben-Hur" were "Guns of Navarone," "Parent Trap" and "Blue Hawaii," in that order.

John Wayne was named favorite actor of the boys and Troy Donohue the choice of the girls. Among the actresses, Debbie Reynolds was first with the boys, and Connie Stevens with the girls.

In addition, the survey indicated that 85% of all highschool students are "periodic" filmgoers, with 46% going at least once a month, 33% twice a month or more often, and 16% going once a week or more.

THERE SHOULD BE MORE 'WORKING GIRL NIGHTS'

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

A Tuesday "Working Girls' Night" has proved such a boxoffice stimulant for loop film theatres and business booster for restaurants here that plans are being made to increase its number from the present one-a-year to more.

Members of the fair sex, who are employed downtown, receive cards entitling them to 50c admission at any of the loop firstrun theatres on the night. Otherwise the cost for them would be $1.25 or $1.50. Reduced prices also prevail for cardholders at many of the leading loop restaurants.

On the "Working Girl's Night" just held 25,000 cards were distributed in stores and offices to the femine help. More than 4,000 of these were redeemed at the loop showhouses. Every theatre reported a sizable gain over the normal Tuesday night gross. In one instance, there was a 300% gross increase over the preceding night without any attraction change.

The idea is that of United Paramount circuit publicity department head Everett Seibel. He lined up the theatres and restaurants and then got the local Downtown Council to sponsor the night. The Council comprises loop business people who call it a "salute" to their feminine employes.

House of Reps' Pious Gesture to Theatres Earmarked for Demise

Washington, Oct. 2.

The House, by voice vote last week (24), passed a bill stipulating public hearings before D.C. theatres could be domolished. The measure is not expected to clear the Senate, however.

Immediate beneficiaries of the bill would be the RKO Keith's and Loew's Capital, former scheduled to be replaced by an office building, while the latter is to be converted for office use.

A House committee report noted that at a public heading last Sept. 17, both theatres were described as "irreplaceable centers for live theatrical exhibits." Among those testifying were representatives for the National Symphony, Washington Opera Society, Washington Ballet Guild, Hayes Concert Bureau, and Washington Civic Opera and Civic Symph.

House bill directs the D.C. Board of Commissioners to come up with a plan for salvaging the two theatres and for operating them for municipal purposes. It also blocks any permit to demolish them.

SALES V.P. SUES ASTOR FOR $29,040 ON PACT

George Josephs, former sales veep of Astor Pictures, has filed suit in N. Y. Federal Court against Astor charging breach of his two-year employment contract and seeking $29,040 in unpaid salary. Exec alleges that the contract, made in March, 1961, was breached between April 2 and June 1 this year, when Astor refused to let him perform his duties or to pay his salary.

Astor, in moving for a bill of particulars, answers that Josephs voluntarily terminated his contract and that he refused to follow "reasonable orders" from Astor execs.

U's Preferred Divvy

Universal board yesterday (Tues.) declared the regular $1.06¼ quarterly dividend on the $4.25 cumulative preferred stock.

It's payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record on Nov. 15.

Levine Going Public?

Continued from page 3

tion of properties. For Par's part, it could be some tonic.

On a tangent, Levine's Rome visit last week, accompanied by Len Lightstone, his exec v.p., was for further cast and budget discussion anent the pic to be shot in Russia as a coproduction with Mosfilm and Italy's Galatea. Embassy is to supply two Yank stars, and will handle the film in the western hemisphere, Japan and all English-speaking countries. It's thought lensing could start by late December.

And on another tangent, Embassy is anticipating early closure of its first television spinoff, a catalog of 33 features ranging from "Hercules" to the current "Boccaccio 70," though all titles in current theatrical release would require a three- or four-year clearance before going on home screens. Initially, the package is headed for a New York indie telecaster, and at least one of the national networks is said to also be impressed with the goods.

Little Messages to Film Producers

BEYOND THE HANDOUTS AND INTO THE LOWDOWN

We dropped into a Public Library recently to look over the bound files of VARIETY. They were in pretty bad condition, we're glad to say. Glad because this is continued proof that the paper is constantly consulted by busy researchers. But don't get us wrong. It's news, not history, that we set out to write and we only mention the historic value of old issues of VARIETY because it may tickle your imagination, as it did ours, to realize anew that the stories in today's VARIETY will be read again years, perhaps decades, from now to help others understand what was going on in show business.

And there's something else worthy of mention—namely the reliance of daily newspaper amusement editors all over the United States and Canada upon the columns of this publication. Why? Because here they find grist for their own mills. Because here is gathered, every issue, the news beyond the handouts, a stream of information which is unique to, and exclusive with, VARIETY.

In short, making the obvious point for all producers and distributors, your display advertising in this weekly reaches not only the amusement trade broadly but—as a fringe benefit—the important-to-you amusement editors, too.

There's No Business Paper Like

VARIETY

For All-Round Influence

'Like You Said I Went Over the Heads Of Local Exchanges, Got Two Letters'

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

North Central Allied has failed thus far in its efforts to obtain from the film companies the kind of "relief" that many small exhibitors need to permit survival. Consequently, more of this area's theatres are in an increasingly critical condition and on death's threshold.

This is according to Martin Lebedoff, St. Paul neighborhood exhibitor and NCA president.

The "relief" being sought by NCA for the small exhibitors consists of ability to buy boxoffice pictures at a price they can afford to pay and while these films still enjoy the benefits of big scale exploitation and publicity.

NCA contends that the small exhibs can't do the aforegoing now and that, consequently, unidentified theatres "right and left" in the territory are on the brink of "falling by the wayside." NCA has been asking that distributors sell top pictures flat at "reasonable" terms to the smalltown theatres and "other little fellows," eliminating percentage in such cases, and also discontinue holding back such product so long. It's pointed out that "nowadays those are the only kind of screen attractions capable of drawing enough people to keep a theatre out of the red."

At a recent meeting regional group decided to instruct Lebedoff to "go over the heads of local distributor branch managers" to put the case up to companies' sales managers in New York. Initially the appeal was to be made by mail. If that did not succeed he was told to pay personal visits on distributor heads.

Lebedoff now is reporting to NCA directors that only two sales managers responded to his letters and both of them informed him that the matter is being taken up with Marshall Fine, national Allied States president and will be handled in that way. NCA is an affiliate of that body.

No decision has been made yet as to what step he'll take next, he says. His position is that the film companies themselves will suffer considerably "if small theatres are allowed to continue to perish as they're now doing." However, he points out that sales heads "for the most part are highly capable men of vision" and he believes they'll "see the light."

That May Be, But No

North Battleford, Sask., Oct. 2.

Saskatchewan appeal board has backed a decision of North Battleford's city council which rejected an application by the Capitol Theatre, a Famous Players house, for a reduction in its assessment.

The theatre management contended that economic conditions have resulted in a marked decline in the value of the building; that television reduced income, and that the building could not be readily converted to any other use.

WORCESTER, NEW HAVEN FIRST FOR FACELIFTS

Boston, Oct. 2.

New England Theatres are going to modernize and remodel their key city theatres, according to President Chester L. Stoddard. Work on the first house, the Capitol at Worcester is now underway. It will emerge with a new front, including marquee, box office, remodeled lobby and foyer areas, new seats and carpeting, fresh interior decoration, modernized booth and stage facilities, as well as a new screen.

The next house skedded for reconstruction is the Paramount in New Haven. Plans for remodernization and redecoration of other NET houses will be revealed as rapidly as decided Stoddard said.

Houston's Al-Ray Group Adds Outlet for Mex Pic

Houston, Oct. 2.

Al-Ray Theatre Co., operated by Albert Zarzana and Ray Boriski, has extended its situations in Houston area to five with the recent leasing of the former Avalon Theatre. The program policy has been changed from adult art films to Mexican product and the theatre name changed to the Fiesta.

A remodeling job has been carried out on the theatre front, highlighted by the new sign, and the interior has been painted. Opening was highlighted with live entertainment on the stage during the opening week and a remote broadcast on KYOK opening night.

Al-Ray Theatre itself, which has operated under several policies including the recent showing of Mexican product, will return to art film policy.

Circuit now operates the Boulevard, Galena and Venus in addition to the Fiesta and Al-Ray.

OPERETTA REVIVALS

Stanley, Pittsburgh, Dusts Off Some Old Tuners

Pittsburgh, Oct. 2.

Stanley Theatre, flagship of the Stanley-Warner chain here, will try a series of film operettas on Oct. 11 with "Rose-Marie," starring Ann Blyth and Howard Keel, as the first offering. On succeeding Thursdays, the theatre will show "The Merry Widow," Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald; "Great Waltz" with Luise Rainer; "Sweethearts," Nelson Eddy and Jeannette MacDonald; "The Chocolate Soldier," Nelson Eddy and Rise Stevens; and will wind up on Nov. 15 with "Girl of the Golden West" starring Nelson Eddy and Jeannette MacDonald.

The Penn Theatre had a pleasant experience with grand opera here a couple of weeks ago, grossing $3,200 in one day for the film showings of "Aida" and "Madame Butterfly."

NO TIME FOR LOAFING, SAYS CHAS. SMAKWITZ

In a message to theatre managers that obviously echoes the sentiments of just about every circuit exec, Charles Smakwitz, zone manager of Stanley Warner in New York and New Jersey, said "this is the time for action." Smakwitz was addressing a meeting of managers in his territory, the meeting being in West Orange, N. J., last week.

Smakwitz underlined the scarcity of product, so far as numbers of pictures are concerned, and emphasized that every picture contracted for should be exploited with maximum enthusiasm. He told his managers, also, that they should be on the alert to special shows augmenting the regular programming of features—specially arranged holiday offerings, rentals to outsiders, etc.

Stanley Warner is going with an October-December drive providing for cash prizes for campaigns and b.o. results.

K.O. Atlanta's New 'Classifying' Ways

Atlanta, Oct. 2.

Fulton Superior Court Judge Durwood T. Pye recently has ruled the City of Atlanta's newly-enacted motion picture rating ordinance invalid. But Pye did not immediately stop enforcement of the statute.

Jurist withheld an order granting an interlocutory injunction against enforcement of ordinance, sought by Columbia Pictures Corp. and nine other producing companies and distributors, until city has a chance to appeal.

City has 30 days in which to appeal. Judge said he would issue further orders after it acts. He did not rule on constitutionality of rating ordinance. Attorneys said, however, that constitutionality of law might be decided if case is taken to Georgia Supreme Court, which is likely to happen.

Fulton jurist ruled ordinance invalid on basis that the city charter does not authorize enactment of such statute. Authorization of such an ordinance could come only from "general and far-reaching construction" of provisions of the charter, Judge Pye said. He added that the ordinance is "unusual" in this country because it gives the government the right to classify motion pictures.

Columbia started attack on ordinance early in July and was joined Aug. 2 by nine other firms in a new suit against City of Atlanta, Mrs. Christine Smith Gilliam, city's former film censor and now designated as its "motion picture reviewer," and members of the Board of Review.

Attorneys pointed out at the time that they were attacking only the ordinance that requires prior submission of films to a reviewer for City classification. Companion ordinance that makes it a crime to show an "obscene" picture was not under fire.

Joining Columbia were 20th Century-Fox, Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Warner Bros., Universal, United Artists, Allied Artists, American-International and Buena Vista.

Present action marks third time a city ordinance to regulate motion pictures has run into legal trouble. Fulton Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson ruled a long-on-books censorship law, which had been attacked many times, unconstitutional last year, but his decision was reversed. Earlier this year the Georgia Supreme Court ruled the law unconstitutional. It had failed to pass on this law's constitutionality in reversing Judge Alverson.

Hardy Perennials of Dixie Film Biz

Atlanta, Oct. 2.

However beset the film industry may have been, and is, by tension, anxiety, forced retirement and career uncertainties, the Pioneers Breakfast held here recently during the Alabama-Georgia-Tennessee exhibitors convention called the roll on some remarkable hardy perennials. Those singled out were:

C. D. Touchon, United Artists, Atlanta, who has been a distributor for 57 years (since 1905). Exhibitor G. Tom Bailey, Atlanta, who has chalked up 56 years.
Mary Brockett, Nashville, 53 years.
O. C. Lam Sr., Rome, Ga., 52 years.
H. P. ("Dusty") Rhodes, Atlanta, 49 years.
William K. Jenkins, Atlanta, 43 years.
Hank Farris, Hartselle, Ala., 43.
E. E. Whitaker, Atlanta, 43 years.
I. Lawrence Shields, Columbus, Ga., 43.
Roy M. Avey, Atlanta, 42.
John F. Hackeney, Covington, Ga., 40.
W. T. Yarbrough, Hartwell, Ga., 46.
Mrs. E. C. Fain, Wetumpka, Ala., 41.
Walter Morris, Knoxille, Tenn., 44.
Mrs. Nell Allen Solenberger, Atlanta, 40.
Booker Albert E. Rook, Atlanta, 40 years.
Charlie Lester, of National Screen Service, Atlanta, 43 years.
Bernie Shapiro, Southern Poster Printing, Atlanta, 48 years.
Paul Wilson, 20th Century-Fox, Atlanta, 45 years.
Harry Ballance, 20th-Fox, 49 years.
W. M. ("Snake") Richardson, American-International, 52 years.
P. H. Savin, Atlanta, 53 years.
W. P. Stephens, A-I, 43.
V. J Bellon, A-I, 42.
Mrs. Frankie Ebglish, Paramount, 41 years.

Bigger Takes in Japan Predicted

Shiro Kido, in Manhattan, Reveals Fusion Of Shochiku and Eihai

Formation, by two of Japan's largest film companies, of a new import-export company in Tokyo was disclosed in New York by Shiro Kido, president of Shochiku International. The new company, Shochiku Eihai Co., is the joint venture of Shochiku and Eihai and thus becomes the largest film import-export company in Japan.

New company started officially Oct. 1, and will have a total of 26 import licenses at its disposal — 10 from Shochiku, 15 from Eihai and one bonus license given by the Japanese government.

Kido also stated that the Shochiku Theatre Circuit has formed "a working agreement" with the Tokyu circuit whereby the two will operate as one circuit in booking foreign pix. Shochiku formerly had its first run foreign film theatres booked by the Toho circuit. Toho will now be in competition with the Shochiku-Tokyu combine.

Kido predicted that this new competition will bring about bigger grosses for foreign films, as well as more intensive merchandising of the non-Japanese product. He also foresaw the use of tv to advertise foreign films, a media not utilized to any great extent for this purpose heretofore.

PODOLNICK WILL CHAIR TEXAS DRIVE-IN RALLY

Dallas, Oct. 2.

Earl Podolnick, prez of Trans-Texas Theatres Inc. of Dallas, was named convention chairman for the 11th anual convention of the Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Assn. which will be held here at the Statler Hilton Hotel from Feb. 5-7.

Cochairmen named were Harold Broosk of the Crossroads, L. E. Forester of Frontier, and S. K. Barry of the Fiesta Drive-In at San Antonio. Mrs. Evelyn Neeley of the Charles Weisenburg Theatres, will continue to serve as booth chairman with Don Douglas as executive secretary.

A Star's Lone Function

Los Angeles.

Editor, VARIETY:

"Everybody Is Not A Star" points up the abysmal ignorance of those responsible for the waste of millions and millions of shareholders' money in inept advertising. Parlay this bet across the board for all forms of Show Business.

There is one and only one function of paid display in the public prints or a 24-sheet stand on a billboard—to sell tickets.

The powers-that-be seem to have lost all regard for the guy or doll they are striving to sell. Not only is the clutter of names that don't sell tickets confusing to "he who runs may read" but half a dozen vignettes have far less collective impact than a single bold highlight of the show.

Ned Alvord

To Shoot in Hawaii

Honolulu, Oct. 2.

Japan's Shochiku Films will make another film in Hawaii next spring. Shiro Kido, vice-president, so reported during a stopover visit in Honolulu en route home after Venice Film Festival.

Studio made "Sanga Ari" in Hawaii early this year.

VALENTINE TO ARMSTRONG

Toledo, O., Oct. 2.

Loew's Valentine, first-run downtown house, operated by Loew's almost continuously since it became a film house in 1918, will be taken over by Armstrong Circuit Inc. of Bowling Green, O., on Dec. 23. Jack Armstrong, head of the firm, which has 23 indoor and drive-ins throughout the northwestern Ohio area, including the Paramount, Toledo cinerama showcase, and the State, deluxe Toledo nabe, said the Valentine name would be continued, and the first-run policy.

Loew's has been operating the Valentine and the Esquire in Toledo under management of Abe Ludacer. The Esquire was remodelled recently for 70 mm. films. The Valentine is owned by Scott Properties Corp., controlled by Edward Drummond Libbey Estate.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • Ci 6-4600
JACKIE GLEASON
as *GIGOT
*Pronounced GEE GO
A Seven Arts Production • Filmed in Paris in COLOR
A 20th Century Fox Release
ON STAGE "SOUNDS" and "KOL NIDREI"

MARILYN MONROE
A strictly factual account of her life and career is in the October issue of FILMS IN REVIEW, together with 20 illustrations and a detailed index of all her 28 pictures.
The October issue also contains a report on the recent Venice Film Festival; an index of all of John Gilbert's films; reviews of THE LONGEST DAY and 10 other current movies; reviews of books by Bette Davis, Joan Crawford and Marlene Dietrich; special departments about filmusic and films on tv; and a Letters Dept. containing movie material of permanent historical value.
This issue will be sent anywhere postpaid for 60c.
It will be given free to new subscribers — $5 a year in the U.S.A., $5.25 in Canada, $5.50 everywhere else.
FILMS IN REVIEW, 31 Union Square, New York City 3

IN PRODUCTION
COUNTERFEITERS
—
RIFIFI IN TOKYO
TITRA DUBBING CO.
1600 Broadway, New York
PLaza 7-6681

Deferred Income for Floyd Patterson

[Of Interest to Authors and Others]

Many individuals in show business, authors and others are on the alert to the outcome of the economics involved in the wake of last week's Patterson-Liston fight. The deal with Patterson was to provide him with a $2,000,000 payoff—$300,000 the first year and $100,000 for each of the next 17 years.

First there must be some resolution as to the conflict between the promoters and the Government, which confiscated the gate for the time being, at least.

Then the payoff to Patterson. The 18-year spread would reap vast tax benefits for the ex-champ. But the high-bracket people in other fields pay their taxes on royalties or just plain salary on the full sum and in the year that it's received. They'd like to spread their income for tax purposes, too.

Prizefighting Itself Takes A Blackeye, But Exhibs In General Do Satisfactorily

Newspaper sportswriters thought it (in advance) a debacle if Sonny Liston should become the heavyweight champion of the world. That he did, Floyd Patterson going down in two minutes and six seconds of the first round and coming up 11 seconds later looking disconnected.

Emotionalism was in high gear among the pundits. They were Patterson partisans until his defeat. Then they autopsied that perhaps their man had been a "hoax" champion right along.

The sports scribes care little for Liston's professed rehabilitation efforts. It has been printed in boldface that he's inarticulate, just plain inelegant and a law-defying nogood. It was obscured in the fine print until after the fight that Patterson, while not of the criminal genre, lacked the aura of a champion in his field that others in other fields, and even many of his predecessors in the ring, have held.

Against this background entered showbusiness via closed-circuit television to theatres and auditoriums, etc., radio, motion picture replays (Allied Artists) and other ancillary rights.

The contest was barely over last Tuesday (25) night when the U. S. Treasury moved in to impound the proceeds. Championship Sports, as the promoter, and Graff, Reiner & Smith, holding the ancillary rights were enjoined from collecting the loot immediately because of alleged past tax monies unpaid. Exhibitors were free to deposit their 45% share of the boxoffice.

Actually, despite all the rough talk about the fight, exhibs did well. They played to 60% capacity at scales up to $10. (The Fox in Brooklyn and the St. Louis Arena fared not so well; equipment broke down and refunds had to be given.)

But many showmen have expressed misgivings about future fight telecasts. The public can be resentful particularly in this last experience (1) the heavyweight champion turned out to be a pacifist and (2) the piped-in pictures were sub-standard.

The VARIETY reviewer caught the show at N. Y.'s Ritz Theatre. Definition and lighting were faulty in comparison to previous sports telecasts. The screen generally was hazy. The camera angles and close-ups, however, were good.

Important consideration weighed by exhibs is that the fight game has been given a blackeye.

Gene.

Rival-and-Critic

Theatre Network Television, which deals in closed-tv communications but adopted a hands-off policy regarding the Patterson - Liston fight, declared this week that the reception of the telecast images was sub-par because the promoters used inexpensive and inadequate equipment.

If modern projectors were used "the telecast would have been sharp and clear on the theatre screens," stated TNT. This outfit, which is headed by Nate Halpern, said the press reported "a clear and sharp" showing in Toronto and this was the only place where modern Eidophor projector was employed.

$10 Top Chills Fans

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.

Fight telecast drew slightly under $80,000 in eight Stanley Warner Theatres in this area. The $10 price undoubtedly held down attendance, but also upped the take since a lesser figure in the 14,000 seats total capacity of might not have drawn as much.

The Stanley, 2,100-seat flagship of the chain in midtown Philadelphia, was a sellout, and next proportionately highest sale was at the suburban 69th St. Theatre, where 1,000 of the 1,200 pews were occupied. The remaining six houses —Logan, Broadway, Kent and Orpheum, all in Philly, and the Warner, Wilmington, and Stanley, Camden, made up the balance.

IRS agents clamped down on the take immediately after the bout and walked out with $42,000 representing the promoters' share of the receipts.

Situation In L.A.

Los Angeles, Oct. 2.

Approximately 20 theatres and auditoriums in the Los Angeles area which showed closed-circuit telecast of the Patterson-Liston heavyweight championship fight Tuesday night (25) must turn over an estimated $165,000 to the Dept. of Internal Revenue within the next 10 days, under a directive served on various sites within minutes after Liston knocked out the champ in the first round.

Amount reps money due Graff-Reiner-Smith Enterprises, which owns ancillary rights to title bout and named by Government as owing $1,710,500 in Federal income taxes. Local situations grossed aroung $300,000 for brief event, and are permitted to retain their share of receipts under terms of deal with G-R-SE which called for a 55-45, split, bigger cut to go to G-R-SE whose ancillary rights include television, radio and motion pictures.

In its "Notice of Levy" served on theatres and auds, Government stipulated that any monies due Graff-Reiner-Smith Enterprises be withheld and turned over to IRS for tax purposes.

Bruce Hochman, legal rep of G-R-SE, last night stated he had already communicated with "the Government people in Washington" to arrange a meeting at their earliest convenience. "I believe that the differences are of a technical nature and look forward to ironing them out," he said.

It's understood that Government acted so promptly under a provision permitting an immediate demand for payment when the IRS commissioner knows or believes tax collections might be jeopardized if he awaited normal filing of a return, according to an official in Washington.

C-R-SE acquired ancillary rights to fight for a $2,000,000 guarantee to Championship Sports, Inc.

A Bit Fuzzy

Kansas City, Oct. 2.

Largest number of patrons ever to see a closed-circuit telecast turned out here to see Patterson-Liston. Count at the downtown Saxon Theatre was a capacity 3,200, and at the American Royal Arena with a special installation it was 4,500 (of about 5,500 available).

Saxon is an operation of Durwood Theatres, which also operated the American Royal set-up, but added an unusual twist in getting the Sports Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to come in as "sponsor." Stanley Durwood, circuit executive, said the committee would come in for a percentage, but no figures were disclosed.

Gate here is figured about $35,000, garnered from a scale of $10 top at the Saxon, down to $3.50, and a $5.50 top at the American Royal. The Internal Revenue Service added its own dramatics to the project by swooping into the theatre and arena to attach the promotion share of receipts pending payment of federal tax claims.

Projection was satisfactory at the Saxon, although fuzzy a bit in pre-fight sequences, and the American Royal picture was reported somewhat less than satisfactory.

Patterson Out, Feds In

Dallas, Oct. 2.

The closed circuit showing of the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson heavyweight championship fight at two locations here grossed $42,500 from 7,470 fight fans. State Fair Music Hall, scaled to $7 top, pulled 3,864 viewers, while the State Fair Coliseum, scaled to $6 top, drew 3,606 fans.

More than $15,000 in gate receipts were tied up by Internal Revenue Service agents, who served local promoters with a levy shortly before the fight got under way. This was in line with the IRS nationwide grab of the receipts.

Over $14,000 In Vancouver

Vancouver, Oct. 2.

Vancouver's contribution to Liston-Patterson championship go produced $14,000-plus from the plush 2,800-seat Queen Elizabeth Theatre. With the house split between $4 and $6, a sell-out crowd was in attendance. Sold out sign went up several hours before 7 o'clock opening.

Vancouver Forum, which has been used for previous title fight tv presentations, accommodates 6,000, but could not be booked due to prior commitment for an exhibition hockey game between New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Closed-circuit technicalities were handled by Canadian TelePrompter, under the direction of Cyril Trolt, by assignment from Graff, Reiner & Smith Enterprises Inc., with the fight pictures coming in on British Columbia Telephone lines via Seattle.

Albany Drew 1,900 at $5

Albany, Oct. 2.

Fabian's Palace played to an estimated paid attendance of 1,900 at $5 per seat, for the closed-circuit telecast of the Patterson-Liston one-two-bye-bye. It proved a profitable operation, despite reportedly "stiff" terms and disappointment of the audience at the brief bout.

The "picture" received here was good.

Reception Quality Poor

Detroit, Oct. 2.

A virtual capacity audience in about 11,000 seats in five theatres contributed approximately $50,000 to the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson gross. Tickets were $4 and $5.

Picture quality was poor here, ranging from a fuzzy out-of-focus image to an elongated one which made the fighters look more like string beans than heavyweights.

Participating theatres were the Michigan, Palms, Grand Circus, Woods and Riviera.

260 Seizures In All

New Orleans, Oct. 2.

U.S. Internal Revenue agents visited Municipal Auditorium, Loew's State and the Saenger theatres here Tuesday (25) and seized receipts of Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight championship scrap. Chester A. Usry, IRS agent in charge here, confirmed that other agents also seized receipts in Lake Charles, Lafayette, Alexandria and Shreveport. These were part of seizures in 250 theatres across the nation.

Tax agents sought to impound every dollar due the promoters of the fight and the organizers of the closed-circuit tv showing. Theatre operators were permitted to retain their share of boxoffice receipts—45% in some cases.

Usry claimed that fight promoters, Championship Sports Inc., owes $2,074,500 in income taxes, plus $100,000 in excise taxes, while promoters, Graff, Reiner & Smith Enterprises Inc., owe $1,710,500.

Sellouts In Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 2.

Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens (9,000) and Loew's Uptown Theatre (2,250), which were each scaled at $6.60 top for the Liston-Patterson bout, were sellouts for $68,000 and $12,000 respectively.

Local $80,000 take was not molested by the U.S. Federal Revenue seeking $3,900,000 allegedly owed in back income taxes by the fight promoters.

Henry Boulton, ticket manager of Maple Leaf Gardens, said there had been no court order or request from U.S. revenuers concerning Toronto's closed-circuit, this concurred in by Jack Clark, director of Loew's (Canada) Ltd.

No Profit In Regina

Regina, Sask., Oct. 2.

Closed-circuit tv made its debut here Tuesday (25) when the Patterson-Liston fight was screened in Exhibition Stadium. The result was n.s.g. Attendance was 1,841 for a gross of $8,000, with tickets selling at $3.50, $4 and $5. Stadium's capacity is about 6,100.

Picture was not too sharp, and sound system was poor.

Event was promoted by Features Sports of Ottawa, and handled locally by Charles Underhill. "There was no profit," said Underhill.

Take In San Antonio

San Antonio, Oct 2.

Closed-circuit television of the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson championship fight drew 6,699 local fight fans to the Joe Freeman Coliseum on Tuesday (25) night. The gross gate was $28,686.50, which brought some profit to Sports Inc. according to Jon Ferraris, who handled the ticket sales for the organization.

Home Entertainment Co. Changes Tag & Address; Servicing Tollvision

Los Angeles, Oct. 2.

A new company, Home Entertainment Co. of America Inc., has been formed here for the programming and licensing of pay-tv systems. Headquarters are in New York. Oliver A. Unger is chief exec officer, with William Sargeant, inventor of the system, veep in charge of technical development and operations.

According to Unger, the stockholderes of the long-established Home Entertainment Co., meeting last weekend, approved the change of its name to Home Entertainment Co. of Los Angeles Inc., as well as the sale of all its patents to HEC of America. Stockholders of the L.A. firm also accepted an offer to exchange all their shares for an equal number of shares in HEC of America.

Unger is also chairman and chief exec officer of HEC of Los Angeles, to which HEC of America has granted an exclusive franchise and license for metropolitan L.A. and environs.

POWER FAILURE COSTS $17,000 GATE REFUND

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

Tommy Anderson, local restaurateur and fight promoter, impresario in both of the Twin Cities for the Patterson-Liston fight closed circuit telecast, wasn't out any money as a result of the St. Paul Auditorium presentation never materializing for its audience of 4,500 yielding a $17,000 gate. This despite the fact that admission refunds were necessitated.

A power failure developed in the St. Paul Auditorium an hour before the fight started and couldn't be repaired in time for the telecast, so that the audience saw nothing of the ring happenings. However, Anderson carried insurance to protect himself against contingencies and he suffered no financial loss himself on account of the admission refunds.

In two Minneapolis halls the telecasts pulled 8,143 patrons for a $45,000 total gross at a $4-$6 scale. Thus, the entire Twin Cities' take was $62,000 which netted Anderson a "nice" profit, he says. His share was 45% of the gross.

There was much customer grumbling here because the fight ended so soon and the folks thought they didn't get their money's worth. In local fight circles it's felt that what occurred will hurt future closed circuit fight telecasts here.

As elsewhere, the Internal Revenue Service attached the telecasts' gate receipts here and in St. Paul because of income tax differences involving the corporation which had the tv rights. Anderson, however, is getting back from ITS his 45% share of the receipts.

INTEGRATED & STUNNED: BOUT POOR IN MEMPHIS

Memphis, Oct. 2.

Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson heavyweight fiasco last Tues. (25) drew a meek $10,699 house at Memphis's big city auditorium. Paid attendance of 2,320 looked on in amazement at the abrupt windup.

Bout was staged before an integrated audience as all attractions now held at the city-owned auditorium. Practically the entire house left the auditorium shaking their heads and muttering to themselves "Never again." House was scaled at $5.50 top with Louisville promoter Bill Cing handling the event on the local level.

TREASURY TO ALLIED: 'HOLD FIGHT MONEY'

Allied Artists, which closed deal with Graff-Reiner-Smith Enterprises to distribute Patterson-Liston fight film in theatres throughout the country, was served (26) by Government with a lien against all coin which will be owed G-R-SE for pic. AA is understood to be paying owners of ancillary rights $250,000 for subject.

New Hampshire Exhib's Antitruster

Concord, N. H., Oct. 2.

Area film exhibitors and several major film producing-distributing firms are charged with "block-booking" in a $5,500,000 treble damage antitrust suit filed in U.S. District Court here, Sept. 12, by the Concord Theatre Co. Inc.

The 13 defendants in the action include Loew's Inc., RKO Radio Pictures Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Paramount Film Distribution Corp., Warner Brothers Picture Distribution Corp., Republic Pictures Corp., Universal Film Exchange Inc., Concord Drive-In Inc., Maine & New Hampshire Theatre Co., Concord Amusement Co., a subsidiary of this firm, and Lockwood and Gordon Enterprises Inc., a Massachusetts company.

The Maine & New Hampshire Theatre Co. operates the Capitol theatre in this city, plus other theatres in New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, and one-third of its capital stock is owned by Paramount Pictures Inc., it is stated in the suit. Lockwood and Gordon Enterprises operate the Concord Drive-In and the Sky-High Drive-In in Boscawen.

The first of four counts in the 26-page suit asks for $2,000,000 in damages; the second and third, $1,500,000 each, and the fourth, $500,000.

'INTERNS' SCENE & AD EXCISED IN ALBERTA

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 2.

When the trailer for Columbia's "The Interns" was screened at the Rialto theatre, Edmontonians were given a revealing view other filmgoers in the province will miss.

Alberta's board of censors cut a sequence from the original feature in which a nurse does the twist, attired in brassiere and panties, but overlooked a shot of the dance in the trailer.

The board recalled the trailer from Calgary when the incident was brought to its attention and the dance bit has been cut from all future showings in Alberta.

NAGATA'S INTERNATIONALISM

Daiei Talks New Honolulu Theatre Partnership

Honolulu, Oct. 2.

Japan's Daiei Motion Picture Corp., in partnership with the local Pacific Motion Picture Corp. may build a theatre to replace the Kokusai Theatre, which is earmarked for demolition in connection with a redevelopment project.

Masaichi Nagata, Daiei president, was a stopover visitor, en route to Tokyo from Rome, where he discussed distribution plans for the studio's big "Shaka" ("Buddha") and firmed a co-production deal to produce "Zakery," a wartime spy story.

Daiei, he revealed, is also co-producing "Flight from Ashiya" with United Artists, cast including Yul Brynner, George Chakiris, Richard Widmark and Eiko Taki.

U.S. Film Distribs Expect to Get One-Third of W. German Grossers

By HAZEL GUILD

Frankfurt, Sept. 25.

It looks as if the U.S. will have at least one-third of the films—and hence a good third of the grosses—playing on West German screens during the 1962-63 calendar year.

Current schedule shows that 20th Fox is bringing out 22 new pictures and three run-overs from the previous year; Columbia has announced 27 new ones and one run-over; Metro has 34 new films and two run-overs; Paramount has 17 new pics; United Artists has 22 new films and one run-over; Universal looms with 14 new pics; and Warners has 18 upcoming films for German theatres.

Grand total for the U.S. is thus 161 films for the 1962-63 schedule, out of an "announced" release of 496 films for all of West Germany.

Critics in the movie industry (and they are numerous) report that of the 496 due to be released, 79 are supposed to be strictly West German productions. It is doubtful if half that many will actually be completed. Hence, it's likely that the Americans will be able to hold onto the strong third, or more, of the market here. If the trend set last year continues, it's likely that of the programs announced, about 80% will become an actuality.

A recent study of the 1961-62 calendar shows that there were 453 films slated, but 83 never made it, and 28 came out so late that they have run over into the current season.

The U.S., though, did better than average, with a considerably smaller number of drop-outs. Warners fulfilled its complete program. 20th Fox dropped four films, while three more announced for last season are coming up this year instead. Of Columbia's slate last year, "Mothra" was dropped, and "Barabbas" has run over. Metro has planned 37 films including run-overs, but the final number was 33, with two others running over into this year's release period, with the other pair dropped. Paramount delivered all but "Too Late Blues," and United Artists dropped one film and has postponed the other, "The Prisoner of Alcatraz" from last year to the current one. Universal dropped one, and released all the others.

German Side

On the German side last year, Bavaria had the largest number of drop-outs. Constantin had planned 40 films, and came out with the most of any German distributor last year, with one fall-out and three others carrying over into this period.

DFG (The German Film Guild, an association of theatre owners who experimented with financing their own productions) dropped four pics they had announced, Europa dropped three of its planned projects, and Gloria dropped one and carried three over into this year.

Neue Film Allianz brought out 16 pictures, including foreign imports and German pics. Nora substituted one film and is carrying another over.

Pallas was the sole German distributor to add four films during the program period, but dropped two (one of which, the Brigitte Bardot film "The Pillow" will be released here this season by Columbia).

UFA dropped four of its announced films, and since the company is now bankrupt, two of its other planned productions will be taken over this year by other distributors.

Of the German productions coming out this year, it's expected that Europa, Gloria and Constanin will be in the strongest position.

U.S. Imports

The U.S., in order to help fill out the time in the German cinemas with the dwindling local production slate, are coming up with many imports from foreign lands.

During the 1961-62 season, the seven major U.S. distributors in Germany showed only 64% in U.S. made films, while the other 36% of their product was foreign. Fox, for instance, had 13 U.S. pics and eight imports; Columbia had 12 U.S. films and 17 from other lands; Metro, too, had the major portion of its films from other countries, with 14 of U.S. origin and 19 from other countries; Paramount alone had strictly U.S. products, 15; United Artists had 18 U.S. and four foreign; Universal offered eight U.S. and three foreign; and Warners had 14 U.S. and three foreign.

And according to an initial glimpse of the upcoming schedules, it's about 65% U.S. domestic film that the same group will be offering in Germany this year, plus 35% originating from other lands. End result will be that, unless the Germans come up with some astounding surprises, the Americans will wind up with a hefty third or more of the total box office take in West Germany.

Marlene Dietrich Set For First German TV Show, Eurovision Too

Duesseldorf, Oct. 2.

Marlene Dietrich has been set as the star of the giant charity show being held at the new Kongresse Halle here Oct. 6. for UNICEF's world children fund.

Miss Dietrich will head the list of 14 stars of opera, dance and song, to pack the 4,500-seat hall. Tickets are scaled at from $5 to $37.50, with 80% of the total take going to the UNICEF children's collection.

The entire program will be broadcast by Eurovision, with listeners in every country being able to tune in to their local TV outlet, and hear via simultaneous translations, just what the program is all about. Viewers too, will be urged to make contributions.

This marks Marlene Dietrich's first television appearance. Among her scheduled numbers are "Sag Mir Wo Die Blumen Sind" (Where Have All the Flowers Gone"? a new song written for her by composer Max Colpet, which is also being recorded by Electrola.

The show is being produced by Ernst Gill and Siegfriend Lang, who have sold the television rights to the Second German TV network, in Mainz, and arranged for the Eurovision coverage.

Included in the cast are opera singer Lisa della Casa, dancer Margot Fonteyn with David Blair, singer Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, pianist Shura Cherkassky, plus such international talents as Yma Sumac, Charles Trenet, the Paraguayos, and Lys Asia.

METRO'S 'BOUNTY' IN BRITAIN, GOOD PRESS

London, Oct. 2.

The "Bounty" sailed into London from Boston last Thursday (27), and for a modest budget of about $15,000, Metro's British and Continental publicity departments got widespread coverage in the press throughout the United Kingdom and Europe.

The junket started on the previous Tuesday (25) when 84 newsmen from every European country met in Paris and were then taken by special train to Calais, where they joined the "Bounty" and sailed across the Channel to Dover. There was an official welcome by the Deputy Mayor and civic dignitaries, followed by a reception at the Town Hall. The European journalists left the frigate at Dover to spend the night in London, but the "Bounty" sailed to Tilbury, and on the following morning (27) a contingent of British journalists and photographers sailed on the final leg into the Pool of London.

The same evening, there was an official reception aboard, attended by Earl Mountbatten of Burma, leading industry executives and prominent members of the Variety Club. For the evening reception there was a guard of honor for the guests, and top brass were piped aboard.

From last Friday until next Thursday (4) the "Bounty" is open to public view without charge, and though it was raining on the first morning, Metro reported a long queue of people seeking admission. The "Bounty" will stay moored by Tower Pier until Sunday (7), when it starts the return journey to New York.

Sweet Biz Goes Sour

Frankfurt, Sept. 25.

The Labor Office of Baden-Wuerttemberg has just handed down a strict new ruling which is going to tighten up on the popcorn, candy, and ice cream sale in West German cinemas.

While many of the exhibitors are crying the blues about the movie business, and counting on the sale of sweets to help keep them in the profit margin, the Labor Office is complaining about "illegal competition." Seems some of the food stores object to the sale of sweets in the cinemas, during the evening hours when by law they must close their doors.

Theatre owners are being warned that they can't do any "off the street business." To prevent passers-by from hopping up to the box office and buying a bonbon instead of a theatre ticket, the new rule says all the food items must be sold solely to theatre patrons, and stashed away behind the ticket-takers.

UFA Int'l Plans 12 Co-Productions

Munich, Oct. 2.

At a time when the German film industry is waging an uphill battle to keep going UFA-International is embarking on a major program of coproductions with Italy, Spain and Brazil. Almost a dozen projects are either in work or skedded before the end of the year.

Currently filming is the Peter Goldbaum production of Somerset Maugham's "The Breadwinner," starring Gert Frobe; "The Great Prize," a musicomedy in color, starring Vivi Bach, Adrian Hoven and Elma Karlowa, and "Goodbye My Love," a romantic comedy in color, starring Barbara Frey, Dieter Borsche and Erik Schumann.

On the slate for immedite filming is a new vehicle for Liselotte Pulver entitled "Sister and Rivals" in which her costar will be Helmut Schmid. Production is to start later in the year on the Eva Bartok-Carlos Thompson starrer entitled "A Unique Vacation" and "What a Night" which has yet to be cast.

Among other UFA International joint ventures are "The Constant Wife," also adapted from a Somerset Maugham play, with Lilli Palmer, Peter van Eyck and Dorian Gray; "His Best Friend," starring Olympic ski champion, Toni Sailer; and "The Gypsy Baron," with Daniele Gaubert, Heidi Bruhl, Felix Marten and Carlos Thompson.

San Sebastian Dates

San Sebastian, Oct. 2.

Shift in dates that pushed the San Sebastian Film Festival forward by one month to early June this year was re-endorsed by the Festival executives who last week calendared the 1963 film gathering for June 7 to 16.

Fest president, San Sebastian Mayor Nicolas Lasarte, together with fest director Francisco Ferrer and execs Ramiro Cebrian, Felipe Ugarte, Miguel Echarri, Antonio Cuevas and Jose Aycarte, unanimously agreed to retain the early fest dates.

UNESCO's Music Seminar

Rome, Oct. 2.

UNESCO is to hold a convention in Rome — organized by its music section—the principal theme being: Music and its public. The convention is presided by Prof. Mario Labroca, former director and now consultant for Italy's RAI-TV (Radiotelevisione Italiana) and president of UNESCO's International Music Section. Included is a seminar on the employment of technical means (radio, tv, records, tapes etc.). European and American institutions and stations as well as representatives of major record firms will participate.

Two concerts of choral music will conclude the meetings. Works by Claudio Monteverdi and Pier Luigi Palestrina will be given.

International Sound Track

London

Latest Hammer horror item, "The Kiss of the Vampire," has just started rolling at Bray Studios, with Noel Willman as the Master-Vampire and Clifford Evans, Jennifer Daniel and Edward de Souza. It's being produced by Anthony Hinds and directed by Don Sharp for World release through United Artists . . . The London premiere of "Mutiny on the Bounty" at the Royalty Theatre on Nov. 19, which is being sponsored by the Variety Club, in aid of the Edwina Mountbatten Trust, will have a top admission price of $30. Orchestra seats will range from $15 to $6. Nat Cohen is Chairman of the Organizing Committee and Earl Mountbatten will be attending the presentation . . After 10 weeks on location in Somerset and Dorset the Woodfall production on "Tom Jones" has moved to London and interiors are now being filmed in a large 18th-century mansion near Park Lane. There will be further London locations in Lincoln's Inn, the Inner Temple and the Thames waterfront near London Bridge. The pic, which is for United Artists release, stars Albert Finney and Susannah York . . Meantime, Tony Richardson's latest production, "The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner," had its London premiere at the Warner Theatre last week. It's based on a short story by Alan Sillitoe, author of "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning," and he also wrote the screenplay. It's a British Lion-Bryanston presentation. Among the films selected for the upcoming London Film Festival are "Early Autumn" (Japan), which was shown at the Berlin fest "Baron Munchausen" (Czechoslovakia), screened at Locarno and Venice; "Vivre Sa Vie" (France); "La Commare Secca" (Italy); "Electra" (Greece) and "Homage at Siesta Time" (Argentina), all of which were shown at Venice . . . Lilli Palmer and George Hamilton are expected for this week's opening of "Rendezvous at Midnight" and "Crime and Punishment 1962" at the Cameo-Poly Theatre.

Paris

Tony Curtis who also did a walkon for "Paris When It Sizzles" (Par) told press here, before outing, that he had no intention of turning director for acting was quite enough of a chore . . . Film actor Roger Hanin going in for legit in a big way via appearance in a trilogy of Paul Claudel plays skedded for the Vieux Columbier next month and Shakespeare's "Othello" next February . . . Catherine Sauvage, singer and parttime film thesp, now also going in for legit via a top role in Fred Durrenmatt's (Swiss) "Frank V" due at the Atelier next month . . . And as a reverse a top pop singer, Philippe Clay, has devoted himself entirely to pix of late and refused to do a French version of Anthony Newely's hit London vehicle "Stop the World I Want to Get Off" as adapted by J. P. Caussimon "The Longest Day" (20th), "Hatari" (Par) and "Taras Bulba" (UA) getting a special dispensation to raise admission prices as much as 20% at firstruns due to their length and importance.

Brigitte Bardot starrer "Le Repos De Guerrier" (Warrior's Rest) big in two firstrun houses . . . Swiss-German director Bernard Wicki, one of the codirectors on "The Longest Day," off to Vienna to prep a new pic to begin Dec. 5 "No Night Without a Tomorrow" to star Carlos Thompson and Nadia Gray . . . oldtime actress Francoise Rosay resuming her course here for film acting . . French thesp Andre Chanu just completed simultaneous chores on two pix, "The Lucky Ones" and "The Sword and the Balance" . . . The government run short film fest at Tours, France to run Dec. 5-10 . . . French product snared nine of the 13 film prizes handed out in Venezuela this year . . . Title of Eddie Constantine's next pic is "Dynamite Girl" . . Fernand Lumbroso, importer of Eastern Bloc shows, beginning his first pic as a producer "An Honorable Young Man" which Jean-Pierre Melville directs and has Jean-Paul Belmondo and Charles Vanel . . . Among the top ten grossing firstrun Paris pix since last Jan. '62 are one Italian and two Yank pix. Former is "Divorce Italian Style" and latter Jules Dassin's "Phaedra" (UA) made in Greece and France, and "West Side Story" (UA). Others are French.

Otto Preminger in for the gala benefit preem of his "Advise and Consent" (Col) tomorrow (3) . . . French thesp Daniele Gaubert added to the cast of Harold Hecht's "Flight to Ashiya" (UA) now rolling in Japan . . . Singer-cleffer Jacques Brel to make his first pic for producer Christine Gouze-Renal. It is the first in a series of half hour shorts on singers which will be used both for theatres and tv . . . Actor Christian Marquand turning director for "Grands Chemins" (Big Roads) which will star Robert Hossein and Renato Salvatori. Marquand describes it as a French oater . . . In and out of Paris were Bing Crosby and Danny Kaye.

Rome

Another picture has joined the "Cleopatra" bandwagon: "Una Regina per Cesare" (A Queen for Caesar), in work here with French actress Pascale Petit as a youthful Cleo under direction of Tourjanski. . . . Akim Tamiroff also billed . . . "Toto and Cleopatra" is another upcoming local item exploiting vein . "Gone with the Wind" bringing Metro hefty returns in an nth revival in a Milan firstrun.

"No difficulty in shooting an Italian pic in the USA" sez Alfredo DeLaurentiis, brother's locally-quoted exec producer, "it only costs about three times as much" . Cineriz secured Italo release rights for Venice co-winner, "Youth of Ivan" five days before awards were announced . . Silvana Mangano going through makeup and costume tests for her upcoming Edda Ciano role (daughter of Benito Mussolini) in Dino DeLaurentiis' "Trial at Verona," with American Frank Wolff probably copping role of Count Ciano.

Madras

The 10 theatres in Madras which were threatened with denial of license over the question of parking space, have been given a further six months within which to find parking space for at least 25 cars adjacent to their premises. According to official word, a raw film plant being set up at Ootacamund in South India is expected to commence production by the second half of 1963 and finished product is to be available in the market by end of the year. Plant is being set up in association with Bauchet of Paris by the Indian Government. Likely that Nagi Reddy of Vijaya-Vauhini Studios of Madras will reopen studios he closed a month ago when workers struck work over staff retrenchment. French students Rene Faget and Jean-Pierre Kertudo and Japanese Professor Koji Morooka of Kieo University with a number of Japanese students in India currently studying commercial aspects of filmmaking here. Aussie danseuse Marillin given featured role in Hindi film "This Is the Path Of Love" being produced in Bombay.

United Productions of New York to produce film titled "Two Worlds, Two Loves" in English and Hindi, in Eastman color and located in South India and Bombay in association with Hunner Films of Bombay. Vice President of United Productions, Tao Prochon was recently in India finalizing plans. Cinemagoers in Bombay and all over Maharashtra State to pay increased admission prices on tickets from September 7th onwards at rates varying from 17 to 33⅓% over present rates. West Bengal Government has called for conference of industryites to devise ways and means to arrest deterioration in trade. Columbia release "Guns Of Navarone" in 22d week at the Rex in Bombay. Picture expected to complete 25 weeks' run. P. H. Krishna, Calcutta manager for Columbia, completed 25 years' continuous service with firm. B. Gopala Reddy, Minister for Information and Broadcasting with India Government, opened International Children's Film Festival at Lighthouse Theatre in Calcutta

'South Pacific' Sets All-Time UK B.O. Record, Bigger Than 'Wind'

London, Oct. 2.

"South Pacific" ended a phenomenal 230 weeks' firstrun engagement at the Dominion Theatre last weekend, and has shattered every record for a motion picture in Great Britain. The theatre gross for this single engagement exceeded $3,900,000, of which the distributor's (20th) share was not less than 50%.

Starting yesterday (Mon.) the film began its first suburban engagements in the London area, playing in four selected situations for extended run engagements at enhanced admission prices and with a reserved seat hard-ticket policy. Next month it will open in six more theatres on similar terms and is booked in a further six situations starting Christmas week. All these dates are in the 35mm Cinemascope version.

The Todd-AO version, which of course was used throughout at the Dominion, has so far played 29 engagements in Britain, plus 20 return dates, to a total theatre gross of almost $4,500,000. The average run was 35 weeks, and the champion dates were in Manchester, where it held for 117 weeks; Birmingham, 100 weeks, and Newcastle, 87 weeks.

Additionally, the C'scope version has filled 684 dates throughout the country to add another $1,000,00, or thereabouts, to the total gross.

All these engagements are prior to the general release of "Pacific," which is scheduled for next Easter on the Rank circuit. This release is not confined to the London area, but will extend throughout the country.

On the basis of its performance to date the film is expected to return to the producer around $7,000,000, probably equal to the original negative cost. It clearly outstrips the previous champ, "Gone With the Wind" (MG) which, with its latest release on the Odeon circuit, is estimated to have grossed about $4,000,000 since it was first launched in 1940. "Pacific" has set up its record since its original opening in April, 1958.

As an interesting footnote, Sam Eckman, Jr., who represents Magna in the United Kingdom, and who has therefore been actively associated with the release, was also the head of Metro in Britain during the launching of "GWT." And though "Pacific" has vacated the Dominion to make way for "Porgy and Bess," Eckman's interest in what happens in the theatre will continue, as he is Samuel Goldwyn's rep in this country.

Many Critics Needed To Cover 10 Preems At Dublin Legit Fest

Dublin, Oct. 2.

Every first, second and third string critic was recruited by Irish newspapers last week in an attempt to cover the first nights of 10 productions for the Dublin Theatre Festival, and the 10 are only about half the productions to be seen during the fest which continues through next Sunday (7).

Theatres, pocket theatres, a cathedral, church halls, a cinema and the basement of the bus station are all being used for presentations which range from two Eugene O'Neill plays, the unabridged version of "Long Day's Journey Into Night" and "A Touch of the Poet," to a musical, "Fursey," which is being premiered tonight. "Journey" is at the Abbey where it is alternating with the current comedy, "A Jew Called Sammy."

Productions have stretched Irish acting talent pretty thin, borrowing from radio players and importing some thesps from the outside. Producers have also been scarce, but Hilton Edwards, now head of drama for Telefis Eireann (Irish TV), took a vacation to stage "Othello" with his old partner Michael MacLiammoir as Iago and American Negro actor William Marshall in the title part. Presentation got a big reception when it opened its five-night run and is now on a European tour of one and two-night stands.

Another tv director, Jim Fitzgerald, is directing "Stephen D,"

(Continued on page 26)

Mashed Potato Served At London Stage Door

London, Sept. 25.

The Madison and the Mashed Potato, reputed to be successors to the Twist, were introduced to West Enders with the opening of a new Piccadilly spot, the Stage Door. Both new routines were demonstrated by Anthony Teague. He came to London recently as one of the Four Saints vocal group which supported Lisa Kirk in her Talk of the Town engagement, and stayed on.

Teague is supported at the Stage Door by two local girls, Vanessa Latour and Christine Hunter, with the Peter Akister Quartet and the Stage Door Johnnies providing the modern music and Latunes, respectively.

The Stage Door, designed to appeal primarily to the show biz community, is on a non-club basis, with an admission charge of $1.75 which covers the cost of the first nip. Simple dishes, such as bacon and eggs, omelette and fish 'n' chips are available at $1.50

French May Get Admish Tax Cut Via Common Mkt.

Paris, Oct. 2.

With the new film season in full swing, the French film industry still finds itself faced with the old problems; amortization, a need for detaxation and rising costs. However, this year there seems to be a possibility of alleviating the usual filmmaker gloom.

A temporary summer measure unblocking two-thirds of the admission tax on all first-run and subsequent-runs, plus a 50% detaxation for nabes, was considered a helpful step, but bigger tax cuts are still deemed necessary. Sterner Common Market demands for balanced cooperation between members are also considered a good sign.

With West Germany having only a 20% tax on grosses and Italy only 19%, it is felt that the stiff French rate of 33% may be reduced to put this country in line with other Common Market members.

Another bright spot are the Centre Du Cinema figures for the second fiscal semester showing that '62 finally had more attendance in Paris and the suburbs (responsible for more than 30% of the grosses, up over last year's second quarter, rather than the usual decline. Of course this was mainly due to a few big pix, but it proved there is still an active film-going crowd that's ready to shell out for quality pix despite raised prices.

There were some slight attendance reduction in hinterland spots, but these were made up by hiked ticket prices. Of course there is a long way to go for film stabilization here, but many industry people are beginning to think positively for a change, and that's a good sign.

Argentina Hopes To Recapture Spanish Market in Chile

Santiago, Oct. 2.

After more than 20 years in which Argentine films have been practically nonexistent in Chilean cinemas, the Argentinians are making a serious attempt to recover the Spanish language market they lost to Mexico.

As of October 10, Argentine films (distributed by Oscaldo Barzelatto and Oscar Scannapieco) are taking over the Cine Pacifico on an exclusive basis. Director Leopoldo Torre-Nilsson, whose "La Mano en la Trampa" will spearhead the offensive, is to arrive a week earlier to lecture at the U. of Chile. Periodic visits by stars are

(Continued on page 26)

6th MIFED Oct. 10

Milan, Oct. 2.

The sixth International Film Mart (MIFED) opens here Oct. 10th for a 10-day run, with organizers confident of another busy gathering, on the basis of advance bookings for Milan's bi-annual affair.

In fact, advance reservations have been so heavy, that MIFED topper, G. M. Franci, has already set the dates for the seventh market: April 12-25, 1963.

Decision was taken at a recent meeting of MIFED and Milan Trade Fair officials, at which it was revealed that 92% of this spring's participants had already signed for a new visit in 1963, and that a large group of new exhibitors had likewise expressed interest in taking part in the trade meeting.

Several sideline conclaves on various film topics are as usual planned for the Milan gathering.

Maybe Voluntary Prez for BFPA

London, Oct. 2.

The appointment of a new president is to be a top item on the agenda when the council of the British Producers Association meets in London tomorrow (Wed.), but it is not expected that a decision will be taken before the council meets again in November.

Arthur Watkins, the retiring prexy, who is vacating the post because of ill-health and a desire to devote more time to play-writing, had originally hoped to leave by the end of October, but is now likely to stay on until the end of the year. In any event, he would not go before a successor is appointed and installed.

At first, the BFPA deferred making a decision in the hope that a merger could be effected with the Federation of British Film Makers, but as these negotiations are now "in abeyance," a decision would have to be made fairly quickly.

There are, however, two schools of thought, one advocating that a voluntary president should be appointed for a limited term, in the hope that the merger negotiations could be brought to fruition in a reasonable time; and the other, which feels that a full-time, paid prez should be named immediately. At one time, it was suggested that the Association's financial position did not justify the appointment of a new paid officer, but the position has improved considerably in recent months, and finance is no longer an obstacle.

Watkins' decision to leave the BFPA also means he will be ankling the position of president of the International Federation of Film Producers Associations and his resignation will take effect when the general assembly meets in London on Nov. 1 and 2. As already reported in VARIETY, Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Assn. prexy, will be named to fill the vacancy.

KEITH PROWSE PROFIT SLIDES TO $237,888

London, Oct. 2.

London's leading theatre tix agency, Keith Prowse, which also holds shares in Westward-TV, commercial video outlet for Southwest England, took a dip in profits for the year ended March 31, 1962. As against last year's total of profits before tax of $354,802, company this year made $237,888. After tax KP took $94,648 as against $161,238 for the previous year. Dividend of 17½% was maintained, however.

Peter Cadbury, chairman of the setup and of Westward-TV, decided not to pay a dividend on the tv station this year but saw no reason to doubt that Westward would make a reasonable contribution to future KP profits.

The tv ad tax had adversely affected the video station's revenue last year, he said. As regards the future of tv, he maintained that the Pilkington Committee was "dead" and that the government would pay no attention to it.

'South Pacific' Quits West End After 4½ Yrs.; 'Budd' Stout 19G 'Dock Brief,' 'Consent' Strong

London, Sept. 25.

After four and a half years "South Pacific" makes its final appearance in the London West End grosses chart, and is exiting with a flourish. Its 230th week was an amazing $22,100, due no doubt to the closing date announcement, but at that gait, of course, could have continued for many months to come.

The major newcomer of the past week is "Billy Budd" at the Leicester Square Theatre, which was heading for a stout $19,000 or near, after more than $11,200 in its first four days. "The Dock Brief" was expected to top $11,000 for its opening frame at the Plaza, where it was launched with an invitational preem. "Advise and Consent" made a bolt start at the Odeon, Leicester Square, and its initial round of more than $18,000 was likely to be matched in the second sesh.

"Lolita" continues in fine style at the Columbia, with prospects of a mighty $15,000 or close for its third week. "Bird Man of Alcatraz" is also holding well at the Odeon, Marble Arch, with a nifty $10,000 in its fourth stanza.

Estimates for Last Week

Astoria (CMA) (1,474; $1.20-$1.75)—"West Side Story" (UA) (30th wk). Fancy $18,800.

Carlton (20th) (1,128; 70-$1.75)—"Oklahoma" (20th) (1st wk). Moderate $5,500. "If a Man Answers" (Rank-UI) follows Oct. 4.

Casino (Indie) (1,155; $1.20-$2.10)—"South Seas Adventure" (Robin) (re-issue) (5th wk). Sturdy $14,300. Stays until Oct. 27, with "How the West Was Won" bowing Nov. 2.

Coliseum (MG) (1,795; $1.05-$2.80)—"Dunkirk" (M-G) (re-issue) (2d wk). $7,000 or close, same as previous week.

Columbia (Col) (740; $1.05-$2.50)—"Lolita" (M-G) (3d wk). Heading for smash $15,000.

Dominion (CMA) (1,712; $1.05-$2.20) — "South Pacific" (20th) (230th wk). Amazing $22,100. Stays one more week, to be followed Oct. 2 by "Porgy & Bess" (BLC).

Leicester Square Theatre (CMA) (1,375; 50-$1.75) — "Billy Budd" (Rank) (1st wk). Prospects of brisk $19,000 or close, after solid $11,200 in initial four days.

London Pavilion (UA) (1,217; 70-$1.75)—"Something Wild" (UA) (3d wk). Neat $7,000. Around $7,300 previous week.

Metropole (CMA) (1,394; 70-$1.75)—"El Cid" (Rank) (41st wk). Fancy $8,300.

Odeon, Haymarket (CMA) (1,890; $1.05-$2.80) — "Barabbas" (BLC) (16th wk). Fine $7,500.

Odeon, Leicester Square (CMA) (2,200; 70-$1.75) — "Advise and Consent" (BLC) (2d wk). Hefty $18,000, same as opening round.

Odeon, Marble Arch (CMA) (2,200; 70-$1.75)—"Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA) (4th wk). Fine $10,000. Sturdy $10,700 previous week. "The Grip of Fear" (BLC) preems Sept. 27.

Plaza (Par) (1,889; $1.05-$2.20)—"The Dock Brief" (M-G) (1st wk). Nice $11,000 or near.

Rialto (20th) (529; 70-$1.20) — "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" (20th) (3d wk). "The Enemy Below" (20th) (3d wk). Steady $5,500. Previous week, $6,400.

Ritz (MG) (430; 70-$1.05) — "World of Comedy" (BLC) (13th wk). Smash $5,300.

Studio One (Indie) (556; 50-$1.20)—"Greyfriars Bobby" (BV) (3d wk). "101 Dalmations" (BV) (3d wk). Okay $4,800.

Warner (WB) (1,785; 70-$1.75)—"La Belle Americaine" (WP) (2d wk). Disappointing $7,000. Opening week was modest $8,400. "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner" (BLC) opens Sept. 27.

German TV Finances New Legit Theatre

Duesseldorf, Sept. 25.

Here's a timely switch! Television has just put a new legit theatre in business here.

New stage, titled the Komoedienhaus, opened with the musical comedy "Fireworks," starring Blanche Aubry, Karl Schoenbock and Dorothea Wieck, under the direction of Hellmuth Duna.

Funding for the attractive new house came through a contract with the Cologne outlet of the West German radio and television network. The tv outfit has a first-refusal right on filming all productions of the Duesseldorf stage. The tv company is building special facilities for easy filming of plays, and is planning to do the televersion of three initial efforts, "Fireworks," "Don't Do That, Angelika," and "The Man with the Cylinder."

The rebuilt house on Worringer Place was the site of the Duesseldorf Opera, years ago.

U.S. Pix Were Aug. Champs in Italian B.O. Sweepstakes

Rome, Oct. 2.

Though dropping a few percentage points under 1961 b.o. figures for August, Yank product for the first time this year held first place in the Italian firstrun sweepstakes. Total accrued by U.S. pix during the month was 45% (vs. 48% in '61), while second-place Italian (and French coproduction) items totaled 43%.

In 1961, the Italo-French total had been a mere 30% in the Italo keys. Difference, consists of pix from "other nations," which dropped sharply from last year. British pix were off several points, from 6.8% to 2%, the Germans also, from 5% to 2.40%.

Total boxoffice for month of August was likewise off, with August, 1962 total (key firstruns) registering $1,119,000—some $240,000 below the equivalent 1961 figure.

Early returns show "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (Par) as the first front-runner of the season, thanks to healthy initial runs in Milan, Rome, and other keys. "Gone With The Wind" (Metro) showed perennial strength via a firstrun revival in Milan which in 18 days had averaged a sock $1,600 at the Astra Theatre.

Looks Like Big Legit Biz in Australia As Summertime Begins

Sydney, Sept. 25.

The live theatre is holding up strongly in this keyer and prospects are bright for a good summer run—summer begins here officially October 1.

"Orpheus in the Underworld" is winding up as a smash run at the Tivoli for Garnet Carroll and the Elizabethan Trust. Sadlers Wells troupe will next do a season in Melbourne. Carroll, by arrangement with the Tivoli management brought in "Sound of Music" on September 28. "Music" wound up a 12 months' run in Melbourne. Carroll, one-time partner of the late Sir Ben Fuller, has another click with "Once Upon a Mattress."

J. C. Williamson Ltd. will bring in "Under the Yum Yum Tree" October 17, with Digby Wolfe, Fay Kelton, Alan Dearth and Melissa Jaffer.

"The Sentimental Bloke, a strictly Aussie comedy, is finishing a solid run and goes out on the road under the Williamson banner. Another click for the same outfit is Luisillo and his Spanish Dance Theatre.

Harry Wren, indie vaude-revue producer, brings in his "Starlight Revue" for a run after pulling big biz in New Zealand.

Steven Pallos to N.Y.

London, Oct. 2.

Steven Pallos, head of Britannia and Pax Films, is leaving for New York next Sunday (7) to negotiate coproduction deals. Though declining to give any names, the producer said he was to have talks with one major and one independent outfit.

During his two weeks' stay in Manhattan, Pallos also intends to negotiate U.S. distribution deals for two of his latest pix—"Jigsaw" and "Decoy."

Mexico May Lose 'Sanchez' Prod.

Carlo Ponti Pic, Budgeted at $1,600,000, May Not Get Permit Because of 'Unfavorable' Subject

Mexico City, Oct. 2.

Mexico's film unions, who have had a lean year of it because of slumping national production, are anxiously awaiting final decision by Carmen Baez of the Film Bureau as to whether or not "The Children of Sanchez" will be made here.

Union concern is understandable since they may lose approximately a fourth of a $1,600,000 budget earmarked for salaries, special services, etc. Also there may be a possible loss of future work in Italian productions and coproductions. "Sanchez" is a Ponti production for Embassy release.

Although scriptwriter Abby Mann is busy working on the screenplay, Carlo Ponti has departed for the moment, mystified by the incomprehensible ways of Mexican federal film officials and censors.

Bone of Contention

The bone of contention appears to be fact that Ponti presented a treatment for approval by the Film Bureau. Miss Baez said that the agency has never authorized picture production on the basis of only a synopsis, and will not do so now. Even in the 20-page treatment Miss Baez red penciled "doubtful" paragraphs requiring strict attention by Mexican censors. While the Film Bureau head admitted that the Oscar Lewis book is "a moving document," she is none too certain as to how it will be developed for the screen. Nor is it a theme that Mexicans can be proud of, Miss Baez added.

Miss Baez said that "we are not ashamed of our misery as seen by the eyes of an American writer and now being translated for the screen by another American" (Mann).

No final decision has yet been made, although censors have been giving opinions on the treatment. Miss Baez said a shooting script will have to be submitted for approval, and suggestions for deletion of scenes, and "certain changes" accepted within the framework of regulations which seek to restrict wrong interpretations of the country, its citizens, national heroes, etc.

Ponti Sez

Ponti, for his part, according to his rep, Dr. Carlos Agostini, is against any major change in the script. Allegedly he has been talking of doing film in Guatemala, or in Texas, possibly even in Rome, if "cooperation" in Mexico is not extended.

Agostini pointed out that it would be difficult to make changes in the script since the Lewis book deals with a poor family, and these cannot be turned into a fairly well-off lower middle class group. Ponti, Agostini and scriptwriter Mann all feel theme is constructive since it presents a poor family's struggles to lift itself above their misery and poverty.

Ponti's aim is to remove from screenplay those parts of the Lewis study which have no screen values, but he is adamant about any substantial changes.

"I've made films in all parts of the world, Italy, France, and United States," Ponti said before quitting Mexico. "I also hope to have a free hand in Mexico. I'll be back soon meanwhile awaiting the official decision before going on with preparations for the film."

Mexican writer, Carlos Fuentes, working with Mann on the screenplay, does not find the Lewis book either "negative" or "unfavorable" to Mexico. The situations depicted exist and the concern of authorities and Mexicans should be "what can we do to correct them" instead of bickering about granting a production permit. Fuentes said his main work is to inject "a Mexican spirit" into the screenplay.

Medallion Buys RKO Pkg.

Medallion Pictures, of which B. R. Schrift is president, bought the Brazilian rights to the entire RKO library of 729 features.

Deal was made with Fall River Investment S. A., which is La[illegible] American distributor for C. & C. latter having [illegible] the packa originally from RKO.

Schulberg Slates New Feature for Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 2.

Budd Schulberg has scheduled a Mexican-American coproduction, "Pilgrim," a film bio of the life of writer Alma Reed who was the great love of Yucatan socialist leader Felipe Carrillo in the '20s. As Governor of Yucatan, Carrillo and 13 of his brothers were shot down in 1924 in the revolutionary upheaval.

Film may be ready for shooting at the end of the year or early in 1963, and will be in both Spanish and English. The picture might be the first in a series of coproductions.

'Sodom' Targeted In Rome as Press Stunt?

Rome, Oct. 2.

"The devil is present in every sequence" of Robert Aldrich's "Sodom and Gomorrah," according to accusations contained in numerous letters received here this week by producer Goffredo Lombardo. Missives warned producer against releasing pic, stating that "this is only a warning—if the film is released you'll be sorry."

"Sodom," which gets a gala premiere at Rome's Barberini next week, will be handled by Titanus in Italy and certain foreign areas, with 20th releasing in the U. S.

According to Titanus sources, first threatening letter came in early this week, was mailed from Flushing, N. Y., on Sept. 22, and was on address-less letterhead of the "American Council of World Exorcism," said (in letter) to boast 45,000 members throughout the world.

Letters also attacked Italo films in general citing "Boccaccio '70" and "Dolce Vita" as other films which constituted a "grave danger for our children."

While many here suspect a publicity stunt (the words "down with 'Sodom and Gomorrah'") coincidentally appeared on many Roman walls this same week) there's no denying the effect the news has had. Almost all Italian dailies headlined it over the weekend, and calls are said to be pouring into Titanus offices here asking for further information. Titanus denies knowledge of an ad campaign in this connection, and has made no public statement on "Sodom" other than that it is not an immoral film.

Aldrich pic, shot in North Africa and Italy last year, features Stewart Granger, Pier Angeli, Anouk Aimee, Stanley Baker, Rossana Podesta, and many others.

JORIS IVENS TRAVELS

Dutch Documentarian Schools & Lectures In Chile

Amsterdam, Oct. 2.

Dutch film documentarian Joris Ivens is in Chile on a double mission. He's lecturing at the Univ. of Santiago, and also prepping a film on the city and harbor (now in disuse) of Valparaiso. The harbor used to bustle, but that was before the Panama Canal was opened.

Another project, upon his return here, is a short on the Mistral wind — the air current that originates in the Alps and blows through the south of France to the Mediterranean.

Kansai B.O. Drops 10%

Tokyo, Sept. 25.

The lucrative Kansai district, including the key cities of Osaka, Kyoto and Kobe, suffered a 10% b.o. drop this summer as compared to the same period last year, according to a Osaka National Tax Bureau survey. The district ranks second only to the Tokyo area as an earner of film coin.

Not surprisingly, pictures geared for the juve trade did the best biz during the vacation season. Most popular were "King Kong vs. Godzilla" (Toho) of the domestic product and "101 Dalmatians" (Disney) of the imports.

Costly Foreigners

Tel Aviv, Oct. 2.

Second Israel Music Festival (Aug. 16-Sept. 10) drew 80,000 admissions, lost only $30,000. That is very nominal against Greece's festival loss this summer of $100,000 and Holland's loss of $170,000.

A major item of overhead was $21,000 for visiting foreign artists, including Sir John Gielgud. Israel Philharmonic's own fees were only $31,000.

Blame the Femme Mgrs. When Legit Biz Falls In Poor Paris Season

Paris, Oct. 2.

When legit seasons are bad of late, one scapegoat has been that more than 30 of the 55 theatres are run by women. Now two of these women are being threatened with expulsion by the Municipal Council as they run city-owned houses that are on lease.

Council is not too happy with the results lately and may have both femmes out by December unless a new accord is reached. Concerned are Simone Volterra who has the Marigny and Germaine Roger who helms the operetta site, the Gaite-Lyrique.

The Marigny once housed the Jean-Louis Barrault company and then tried other entries, but never quite regained its popularity. It was closed for renovation more than two years ago, after which Miss Volterra wanted to turn it into a film house, but the city refused, wanted to keep it a cultural site. Culture Minister Andre Malraux, also had the idea of turning it into the National Centre for Cultural Diffusion, but it was felt too small for this. So Miss Volterra may be out unless she can convince the Council she has some theatrical properties of merit on tap.

The Gaite-Lyrique has a show "Visa Pour L'Amour," produced by Jean-Jacques Vital, a vintage-type operetta doing okay biz. Miss Roger's various operettas have been only intermittently successful and here too, it depends on confabs with the Council whether she also exits.

Future directors or plans for the two houses, in the event the present operators are ousted, are not clear at present.

Many Critics

Continued from page 25

an adaptation of James Joyce's "Portrait of the Artists as a Young Man," which looks like a winner in view of the current-Joyce upsurge. Adaptation is by Hugh Leonard.

The American Dance Company opened its European tour at the Shelbourne Ballroom and another ballet company, Spanish Fiesta Gitana, moved into the Gaiety at the weekend.

According to Festival Director Brendan Smith, bookings were up 120% over last year with most of the first nights SRO and the upsurge in bookings after the reviews was particularly strong. Just how many tourists the fest brings into the country is doubtful, it was reported to be around 1,300 last year, but there is to be a general assessment of the position immediately after the closing. This is partly due to the fact that Bord Failte (Tourist Board) is giving a grant of $18,000 against losses.

Whether it has brought many tourists or not the Festival has brought critics in from England as well as players, with Ian Bannen topping a pre-London presentation of O'Neill's "A Touch of the Poet" for Tennent Productions; Australians Peter O'Shaughnessy and Shirley Smith presenting "Courtship Through the Ages" (in a church hall), Agnes Bernelle doing a strong cabaret "From Brecht to Brecht" in a cinema (after the final show), Lea Padovani in for lead role in first English production of Aldo Nicolaj's "The Apricot Season."

A late-night Festival Club, with a $5.60 membership tab, is open in one of the hotels for patrons who have booked for at least five consecutive shows. It portends a new trend towards night spots for Dublin where this lack has been noted.

A Poser, French Musical Tastes

Despite Success of 'West Side Story,' Operetta-Type Musicals Are Still on Top

Paris, Sept. 25.

There has been a lot of talk, and printer's ink spilled, about local musical comedy tastes in both legit and films. The result is that general audiences still go for old-fashioned operettas and are little concerned with drama, integration of story, theme, music, or dancing.

Most Yank pic tuners fare poorly here and only "West Side Story" has broken through for fine results. This is thought an exception to the rule, due to its production values, rather than a new trend. But hopes have been raised. In the past only such musical pix as "An American In Paris" (MG) and "The King and I" (20th), shorn of most of its songs, did good biz.

In legit only Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun" has been done in French since the war. And it was so overloaded with production values for their own sake that Berlin, on seeing it, remarked that the only light thing was an elephant brought on in one scene. It was done at the Chatelet Theatre which is the cornerstone of French musicals and the one that usually sets the standards.

Mechanical Aspects

Shows staged there have an obvious story with most ballet numbers and songs just stopping things to unroll and depend on massive mechanical devices for their effect rather than on any cohesion with, or progression of, the story.

Characterization in these shows is so stereotyped that it makes little impact. Shows must divert, deep themes are taboo, and anything but comic and clean sex is usually out. Yet this theatre draws more than 1,000,000 people a year despite the usual Parisian remark that it is only for tourists.

No Govt. Support

Chatalet prexy, Maurice Lehmann, says he would like to modernize the musicals, but he has a high overhead, no government support and experimentation is just too costly. However, he thinks tastes are becoming more sophisticated and one of his saccharine entries of two seasons ago, "Secrets of Marco Polo," lost money. The current show "La Polka Des Lampions" has a more witty and less contrived book by Marcel Achard and is doing well, but it is light years away from a "West Side Story" or a "My Fair Lady."

Rave Reviews, No Biz

Roland Petit has tried to do Yank type musicals and has come a-cropper. A Yank road company of "Story" two years ago got rave reviews and managed to do a few weeks of top biz. But when they came back for a repeat there was not enough interest. Some think it was the high prices.

It looks like the general tastes for theatre and pic musicals will remain at the Chatelet level for some time. But the "Story" breakthrough is heartening and the pending reaction to "Porgy & Bess" (Col) is being watched. Time will tell if the regular audiences can be brought around to U. S.-type musicals.

UNESCO Facts & Figures

Latest look at the UNESCO catalog of musical productions and opera shows that, compared to the world-wide film industry's production programs, musicals are being ignored. The catalog makes a study of 159 full-length films and documentaries from 20 lands, of which only 105 have some music.

Except for the U. S., England, Russia, the Netherlands, Italy and Canada, light musicals or operas are just about completely out of the picture. The study included films about the history of music, lives of composers, light musicals, studies or experimental music or jazz.

FBFM Questions Costs Of Early Collections

London, Sept. 25.

A call for an inquiry into the charges made by the Customs and Excise for collecting the statutory Eady levy was made last week by the Federation of British Film Makers. FBFM prexy Lord Archibald recalled that the original estimate for collection was $42,000 a year, but the latest annual report showed a charge of $168,000.

Some years back, when the Customs and Excise was also collecting admission taxes (since abolished) the charge to the industry was around $100,000. There are now considerably fewer theatres with the bulk of the levy contributed by the two major circuits, and the cost of collecting from them would be negligible.

Polish Film Wins 5G At Bergamo Festival

Bergamo, Oct. 2.

The grand prize of the Bergamo Festival was awarded to the Polish film "The Magician" by Tadeusz Makarszynski, who received 3,000,000 lire ($5,000). The Polish entry competed with 63 other films. Eleven other films were shown out of competition because they did not conform to the festival regulations. Five prizes of 1,000,000 lire each ($1,700) were given to short films from France, Italy, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

In the past the Gran Premio went to a Belgian (Haesaerts' "Under The Black Mask") and to a German film (Hart's "Harbor Rhythm"). The U.S. won a prize of $5,000 twice, in 1959 with Robert Snyder's "The Hidden World," and in 1961 with Peter Kass's "Time Of The Heathen." In 1960 the Disney production "Donald In Mathmagic Land," directed by Hamilton S. Loske won 1,000,000 lire in the cartoon category, while last year Stanley Vanderbeck's "Mankinda" was awarded half the cartoon prize.

Though in theory Bergamo is a festival of films on art and art films, many experimental pix are shown. American films mostly fall into this category, and U.S. experimental short film makers are known in Europe due to the Bergamo fest.

Most films are recruited for showing in the fest, not through diplomatic post, but by personal contacts. The U.S. State Dept. has been asked to send films, but has failed up till now to make any films available, a fact much regretted by fest director, Nino Zucchelli.

By tight selection (out of 155 films seen by the selection committee only 74 were admitted) the festival has maintained a high artistic level, and gives film critics an opportunity to find out what is going on in international (15 participating countries) short film centres.

Argentine Hopes

Continued from page 25

also planned to reinforce the publicity angle.

Plans have been laid for the exhibition of approximately 30 films annually. Their importation is favored by the Latin American Free Trade Association: duties are 25% of those paid by European or U.S. pix and the 200% importation-deposit at the Banco Central does not apply to Argentine (or Mexican) product.

Whether the Argentine project of recouping the Chilean market will succeed is anyone's guess. Films can roughly be divided into two categories: popular fare beamed at lower classes (who dislike reading Spanish sub-titles) which have just about the same lack of artistic integrity as the Mexicans, and seriously made films by Torre-Nilsson and youngsters such as Kohon, Murua or Kuhn. Even though Chile and Argentina are neighbors the decadence of films from across the Andes during the Peron period created a deep-seated prejudice that can not be erased in a hurry.

Raf Vallone will appear in six tv episodes taken from Riccardo Bacchelli's novel "Il mulino del Po" (The Mill on the Po River). Sandro Bolchi will direct.

NEW SEASON: TENTATIVE SHAPE

TV Tally Sheet: The Presidents

"The Roosevelt Years":—This series, with 26 already in the can and representing an investment to ABC-TV of something like $2,000,000, was originally scheduled for release this season but, even with sponsor interest, was put off until the '63-'64 semester. This was in order to avoid programming conflict with the Churchill series, "The Valiant Years," which is getting a sponsored second-season go-round on the network.

"The Eisenhower Years"—This series was also scheduled as an ABC-TV entry (natch, where Jim Hagerty goes, so goes Ike). But the whole thing now appears off, because of Eisenhower's insistence that exposure of the series be delayed until after his death. Since it's figured that Ike could be good for another 15 years, if not more, web couldn't see tieing up that kind of coin.

"Harry Truman Story": This David Susskind-produced series was designed for network showcasing. However, it ran into such strong Madison Ave. sponsor resistance, that Susskind is now turning the series over to educational tv.

Herbert Hoover: He got a one-shot as an NBC-TV special last week in which he talked about Woodrow Wilson.

Susskind Now On an Educ'l TV Kick; Sets NET Pact for Pubaffairs Shows

By HERM SCHOENFELD

If what educational television needs is showmanship, David Susskind has become available to supply the missing ingredients. In a new tack on a diversified career as a network producer and host of the "Open End" show, Susskind is now in a firm alliance with John T. White, prexy of National Educational Television, to turn out several public affairs shows for NET.

In the works by Susskind are a one-hour documentary on the upcoming trip of President and Mrs. Kennedy to Brazil, a show that will spotlight some aspects of the Alliance For Progress. Another show set for NET will revolve around NATA and its recent shift in command to Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer.

NET, meantime, is trying to raise the coin to buy Susskind's series on President Truman. This is a $1,3000,000 venture in which NET is strongly interested, but will not commit for until it can raise the money either through underwriting from a corporation or a grant from a fund.

Susskind turned to NET with the Truman series after being rebuffed by the networks. Apparently, the combination of Harry "Give 'Em Hell" Truman and David "Give 'Em Hell" Susskind was too strong for the networks to buy. In any case, Susskind ran into an iron door at the networks which regard most public affairs shows as their private domain.

Susskind claims that, putting his money where his mouth is, he has already invested $393,000 in the Truman series. Two one-hour shows have already been completed, with some material also prepared for additional stanzas. Unlike other contemporary histori-

(Continued on page 52)

Brit. ATV in Bid For Yank Talent

London, Oct. 2

Weekend-only commercial tv programmer, ABC-TV, which serves the Midlands and North on Saturdays and Sundays, is making an all-out bid to take over the role of chief exponent of visiting Yank talent. This entails rivaling the mighty Associated TeleVision showcase, "Sunday Night At The London Palladium," which has become a "natural" video vehicle for a host of American stars during the seven years of commercial television.

But this season the ABC-TV station has swept into a healthy lead with U. S. names like Chubby Checker, Freddy Cannon, Little Richard, Dion, Buzz Clifford, Ketty Lester, Bobby Vee, The Crickets and others. The Palladium show, however, is kicking off with mainly domestic artists such as Shirley Bassey, Frankie Vaughan, Frank Ifield and Max Bygraves, although Pat Boone and the Everly Bros. as set as billtoppers later this year.

Lucy's 100G One-Shot

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Lucille Ball is drawing $100,000 to guest on Danny Kaye's General Motors spec Nov. 11 on NBC-TV.

CBS-TV has Miss Ball under contract, and it okayed her appearance on NBC-TV, just as it approved her gueststint on a Bob Hope show taped last summer for telecasting on NBC-TV this summer.

Ford Co-Sponsors Judy, Grace Kelly CBS-TV Specials

Ford Motor Co. is being buttoned up as the alternate sponsor of the two Chemstrand specials—Princess Grace Kelly at Monaco and the new Judy Garland hour. Both shows are slated for telecasting on CBS-TV.

Doyle, Dane & Bernbach, Chemstrand's agency, negotiated the deal with J. Walter Thompson, Ford agency. The deal is yet to be formalized on paper, but no hitches are expected. Doyle, Dane & Bernbach secured the two specials and placed them on CBS-TV.

Initially there was some question on the commercial demands which might be placed on Princess Grace by sponsor Ford. That question, though, has been settled for it was made clear that Princess Grace could not be tied to any product.

The Grace Kelly show, packaged by MCA, will be telecast Feb. 17, Sunday, at 8 p.m., preempting Ed Sullivan for that night. The new Garland special, packaged by Freddie Fields Associates, will be telecast on March 19, at 8:30 p.m., preempting Red Skelton. The Princess Grace special, to be shot in color, will be colorcast in the cities of New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, and St. Louis. Other colorcast cities might be added before airtime.

Cronin 'Shannon's Way' To Be Made in London As NBC-DuPont Entry

London, Oct. 2.

The first co-production for a regular American tv dramatic series is to be made in London in the coming month. NBC has made a deal with Associated-Rediffusion in London for a 60-minute play for the DuPont Show of the Week.

The subject chosen is "Shannon's Way" by A. J. Cronin, and it will be taped next month under the supervision of Lewis Freedman. Production is skedded for the end of November, and will be aired in New York on Dec. 16.

INITIAL RATINGS PUT CBS IN LEAD

By GEORGE ROSEN

It looks like another CBS year in the television programming sweepstakes.

The field is still in motion, but with most of the entries in, the nation's tv viewers, based on initial rating samples for N.Y. and projected over 30 major markets, have just about made their choices.

Having sampled the first week's shows and having made up their minds after the second week's installments, it becomes fairly evident that the CBS combination of star power, verve and glamor is paying off again on the Nielsen charts. The only question remaining is whether the No. 2 slot goes to NBC or ABC, and influencing this decision to a large extent will be the fate of ABC's two 7:30 anchor shows—"Combat" and "Gallant Men."

Hurting NBC has been the failure of its Monday and Saturday night anchor shows ("It's A Man's World" and "Saints & Sinners" on the former, "Sam Benedict" on the latter) to pull weight. With declining ratings on these three entries, NBC's chances of pulling Monday and Saturday out of the fire collapsed.

Thus as it now shapes up CBS should walk away with Monday and Tuesday, could very well take Thursday in one of the major surprises of the season (after the most disastrous Thursday season in CBS history), and is well on the way to a clean sweep on Saturday nights. And if Gleason as the Saturday lead-in comes through as anticipated, CBS will be in clover in extracting maximum Nielsen mileage from its potent star array and venerable properties such as Red Skelton, Garry Moore, Jack Benny, Danny Thomas, Lucille Ball, Andy Griffith, Ed Sullivan, "Perry Mason" (whose shift to Thursday looks headed for Nielsen endorsement), "Defenders," "Gunsmoke," etc.

With CBS projected anew into the forefront as an early winter selling season looms on '63-'64, Bill Paley's sales boys will again be in the enviable position of parcelling out the cream premium time to advertisers while the other two webs beat the bushes. That's why hot Nielsens are so imperative in the economic life of a network.

Thus the '62-'63 shapeup will shake down thusly:

Monday will practically be a walk-through for CBS, from "Tell the Truth" and "I've Got A Secret" as the openers and into one of the strongest comedy lineups in CBS history—Lucille Ball, Danny Thomas and Andy Griffith.

Again on Tuesday it looks like

(Continued on page 53)

BBC FINDS FLOYD'S KO RUNS HIGH PER SECOND

London, Oct. 2.

Clobbering hooks from Sonny Liston who laid out Floyd Patterson in 126 seconds in their championship bout last week hurt BBC-TV every bit as much as they did Patterson. For, under a come-what-may deal with the fight promoters, web picked up precisely 14½ minutes of film for a reported $50,000.

Network poser: "How to get our money's worth?" Answer, simply, was that the most expensive piece of footage BBC-TV has ever acquired also became the one of the most repeated. Channel, which had reserved a 50 minute hole for the fight in its "Sportsview" prime timer, aired the two-minutes-six second punchup no less than three times in the same program, once in slow motion, and twice in the national news bulletins.

"I wonder," said Peter Dimmock, host of "Sportsview" and man who okayed the buy, "if they will get as much money from television on the return match?"

E. William Henry's FCC Appointment Irks Powerful Solons on Capitol Hill

Washington, Oct. 2.

E. William Henry, 33 by age, a lawyer by profession and a New Frontiersman by politics, today (Tues.) took his oath of office for a seven-year term as a Commissioner of the Federal Communications Commission from Justice Byron White of the U. S. Supreme Court.

His predecessor, John S. Cross, an Arkansas Democrat with powerful Capitol Hill friends, officially went out of office at FCC Saturday, mulling over another Federal job offer.

Cross can, if he wants, become head of telecommunications for the National Astronautics & Space Administration at a salary of about $19,000. Indications are, however, that Gross will open a private Washington office as a consultant on legislative and regulatory matters involving the communications industry. He will be in business for himself, with no plans of joining any existing firm. Already he has sent letters to major broadcasters and electronics firms, offering consultant services at $5.000 plus expenses per client. Reportedly, he would limit clients to 10 and would not handle any client seeking reversal of any ruling he opposed as a FCC member.

Henry, a Yale man with a background in the finest Southern tradition, has made a pleasant impression with everyone in the initial days of his FCC career. Despite the political irritations involved in the dumping of Cross, no one blames Henry, and his nomination for the Commissionership sailed through the Senate Friday (28) without a dissenting vote.

Washington lives on politics. And it thus must be noted, for the future effect it may have on FCC matters on Capitol Hill, that House Commerce Committee Chairman Oren Harris (D.-Ark.) and other potent Arkansans are charred because Cross wasn't reappointed, and that Senate Commerce Committee Chairman Warren Magnuson (D.-Wash.) felt that if the White House didn't take Cross on for another term due to a preference for a more New Frontier type, then why didn't Kenneth Cox, head of the Broadcast Bureau and a Magnuson home-state favorite, get the job? The awful truth of the matter, politically speaking, is that Cox has been passed by twice as far as Magnuson is concerned.

Magnuson wanted Cox to be named FCC chairman at the time of the Kennedy election. But Minow, the brainy young man of the Adlai Stevenson law firm, got the job. Other alumni of the Stevenson law firm more senior in

(Continued on page 54)

Gleason's 61.4 Share in NY

Jackie Gleason's return on CBS-TV Saturday (29) night garnered Gleason a 29.4 with a whopping 61.4 share in the New York Arbitron. In the strictly one market New York Arbitron, Gleason way outdistanced the network competition for the 7:30 to 8:30 slot.

ABC-TV, according to the New York Arbitrons, for the measured period, registered a 7.2 and a 15.0 share with Roy Rogers. "Sam Benedict" was a poor third in the New York Arbitrons with a 4.9 and a 10.2 share.

Four Star Maps 6-Pilot Minimum For '63-'64 Season

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Four Star has firmed a minimum of six pilots to go into production in October and November for the 1963-64 season, according to Tom McDermott, production chief. Other pilots probably will be lensed, but haven't been definitely set. There will also be some spinoffs on "The Dick Powell Show" and perhaps one spinoff on the Nick Adams starrer, "Saints and Sinners."

Four Star has on its agenda a half-hour situation comedy starring Tom Ewell, who toplined a comedy series for the company a couple of years ago; an hour-long detective series starring Rory Calhoun; a comedy with Phil Ford and Mimi Hines; an hour-long dramatic series by Richard Alan Simmons, and a half-hour comedy to be made as a joint venture between Four Star and Cooper's company.

Cooper would not be in this series personally, would participate only in its production.

Dick Watts Postmortems B'way Preems on 'Today' In New Show Biz Kick

Having suffered in the early morning ratings in the past year, since Dave Garroway quit as host, the "Today" show has decided to go "show business" once more—in a very direct way. The NBC-TV ayem strip hired Richard Watts Jr., dramatic critic of the N. Y. Post, to postmortem the new Broadway openings at least once weekly and probably the morning after on big shows like Irving Berlin's "Mr. President."

Besides legit, "Today" will regularly review motion pictures. NBC News, which oversees "Today," is out now to line up a front-line celluloid critic.

To make it a three-pronged show biz effort, the Hugh Downs-fronted strip (he took over from newsman John Chancellor just a few weeks ago) has associate producer Don Silverman covering most of the out-of-town openings. He is not serving as a critic, but he is doing the talent scout bit. Idea is for Silverman to nail down hot new talent before somebody else does and then showcase it on "Today." Already holding regular Thursday auditions, plus the road trips, the associate producer of "Today" has used the Phoenix Singers. They have since appeared on "Today" and subsequently got signed to the hungry I in Frisco and to NBC-TV's "Tonight."

Silverman's talent hunt is running separately and distinctly from the regular scouting program undertaken under NBC-TV's talent veep Dave Tebet.

Paar Backs Down In Tiff Over Tix

Jack Paar and his network, NBC-TV, once more were at odds with each other, only this time the problem as resolved well before the tv emcee decided to do any walking. Paar, who now fronts a weekly primetimer, wanted to control tickets for the Friday stanza.

Reportedly, the network balked, one of the obvious reasons being that, as in all such cases, a tv network likes to lay aside a large block of the comps for agency and sponsor "friends." When Paar pressed his point, the web said okay, take over the handling and distribution of tickets. Paar allegedly told network brass that his reason for wanting the tix in his control was that his show required a particular kind of audience, a kind he knew best.

Status quo prevailed, however, when Paar learned that, in order to handle the tickets properly, he'd have to set up his own extra staff.

Fear Too Many British TV Channels Will Dry Up Sources of Supply

London, Oct. 2.

Sir Kenneth Clark, first chairman of the Independent Television Authority 1954-57), has warned that if Britain introduces extra video channels and extended hours the "sources of supply are bound to dry up." Result will be that tv schedules will "be filled with any kind of rubbish." This is what has happened in America, he says, where, apart from a few highlights, they fill in "perfectly cynically" and do not even try to make one program better than another.

Sir Kenneth's warning is revealed in the publication of the written evidence submitted to the Pilkington Committee inquiry into the future of British broadcasting (oral evidence is being treated as confidential). He goes on: "In my work at the producing end I have been struck more forcibly than ever by what a limited medium it is. There are very few things it can do well and these few are rapidly becoming exhausted."

Among the opinion against this views that of the scripters. The TV and Screenwriters' Guild asserts that as the market increases in size, so will the numbers of creative people to supply it. Five years ago, the Guild states, there was a grave shortage of writers to supply the then new network. Today needs of both outlets are being admirably met, say the writers.

Among the 275 submissions selected out of the 852 submitted, which are released in two volumes, is evidence from the current video operations. BBC outlines its plans for a second web (subsequently okayed by the government). Corp. is to plan both its networks centrally so that there's a diversity of programs on either channel, scheduled so that viewers who do not switch over will be exposed to informational fare at some time in the evening.

However, Corporation states that the "importance of attractive and popular light entertainment programs in persuading the viewer to stay with the channel is not to be gainsaid; thus the amount of such programs would be divided equally between the two." It's pointed out that BBC would mount many new features, however, for technically minded and other minorities. It's hoped to provide a pattern of reruns.

Independent Television Authority noted that there was no reason to lose any sleep over the fiscal position of the indie web, but if it had to face the competition of two BBC services free of the obligation to make ends meet and supported by public money, a "clear principle of fiscal equity would be raised."

Re press interests in the independent outfits, ITA said that arguments which would exclude the press from tv would have to be considered in relation to film and theatrical interests. If all were excluded, ITA believes, tv would tend to become a field of investment for business interests only.

On the present networking operation, regional companies turned thumbs down, naming it as not merely discouraging them (the locals) from producing programs over and above the ITA requirement, but often leaving no alternative but to accept more than 75c of their product from the network.

From outside [illegible] one of the most [illegible] came from the Minister of Education, which [illegible] that young viewers are in danger of [illegible] up at least [illegible] things [illegible] are not [illegible] able [illegible] get for [illegible] what [illegible] of [illegible] process [illegible] d 3) [illegible] is [illegible] a [illegible] ke [illegible]

ABC SETS 'ALUMNI FUN' FOR JANUARY KICKOFF

ABC-TV is launching a new Sunday afternoon game show in January with sponsorship by Cyanamid. Titled "Alumni Fun," show will have two panels comprising three prominent alumni apiece from various colleges. Winning team will earn a cash grant for the winning college's alumni fund and will return to compete with another alumni group the following week.

Formatted along the lines of "GE College Bowl," "Alumni Fun" is produced by the same team of Cleary, Moses, Reid Productions. The moderator for the show is yet to be set.

Skelton, Warners Join for Vidpix

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Red Skelton's Van Bernard Productions Inc. has joined Warner Bros. in a partnership deal to develop motion picture and vidpix properties, and it's likely Skelton may star in a film for WB under the new arrangement. Van Bernard is now scouting for a property for Skelton, a film which would be made under the VB aegis for WB.

WB-Skelton negotiations began last July. Guy della Cioppa, exec producer of Skelton's CBS-TV show, will be in charge of VB projects at WB. VB is now blueprinting several half-hour vidfilm comedies, also has some motion picture projects in the works, but no negotiations for properties have yet been set.

VB will operate as an indie unit with its own staff of writers, directors and producers. The company moves onto the Burbank lot Oct. 8, but will maintain present offices at CBS-TV's Television City, where Skelton tapes his series.

Cobb Draws 2G Per Day For 'Virginians' Stint

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

For his starring chores in Revue Studios' 90-minute vidpix series, "The Virginian," Lee J. Cobb draws $2,000 a day.

Cobb's commitment with Revue guarantees him $130,000 for 10 weeks of work in the NBC-TV sagebrusher. It's believed to be the top coin paid any telefilm series star.

General Cigar Coin On ABC's 'Fight of Week'

General Cigar Co. is joining ABC-TV's "Fight of the Week" on Saturday nights as sponsor starting next Oct. 6. Business was placed by Young & Rubicam.

Gillette Safety Razor continues into longtime participation in this show, the only network boxing series.

Val Parnell Steps Down, Lew Grade Moves Up at ATV

London, Oct. 2.

Commercial tv pioneer Val Parnell has turned in his Associated TeleVision stripes. With effect from Nov. 1, he moves out of the managing director's chair which will be filled by Lew Grade, present assistant managing director. Edward J. Roth, director general of Telefis Eireann, joins ATV in January as deputy managing director.

Parnell, who has been re-elected to the board of the station and will continue to present his Sunday night Palladium show, steps down from power with 21 months still to run on his contract. His reason? "I thought it about time that I should be relieved of some of the arduous tasks that go with the managing directorship of ATV, and give the younger ones a chance in this very modern field." Parnell is 70. Grade is 56.

As a direct result of his new appointment Grade has had to postpone his trip to New York. He has intended to plane out last Sunday (30), together with his production chieftan, Leslie T. Harris.

On the eve of his planned departure, Grade told VARIETY that so many urgent matters had arisen, that it would not have been possible for him to spend more than a couple of days in New York. He felt it would be better to delay his takeoff for a few weeks and allow himself sufficient time to make the necessary contacts with the major networks in connection with the company's extensive vidpic release program, which includes several new British series.

He is hoping that he will be able to make the trip towards the end of the month. Harris will also wait until Grade is ready to travel.

REXALL'S 'FLAIR' BUY

Rexall Drug Co. is buying into ABC Radio's "Flair" Oct. 31 to Nov. 9 as part of its 1c sale campaign. Rexall will buy the Charlotte Lord segments.

Rexall, through BBDO, conducts four such drives on ABC Radio annually.

ABC Radio Wouldn't Stay Down

The Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston bout may have been a bust, as far as the fisticuff art is concerned, but it was a powerful demonstration of network radio's drawing capacity. According to the Sindlinger Co., the ABC Radio coverage of the bout drew an audience in the continental U.S. of 67,783,000, the largest listenership for any commercially sponsored event in radio history.

Although the fight itself lasted only 126 seconds, the co-sponsors of the broadcast, Hudson Vitamins and Bristol-Myers, which paid over $400,000 for the event, were given their money's worth by the ABC crew who used every conceivable angle to keep the fight fans listening after the knockout punch.

The web' actual coverage started at 10:05 p.m. last Tuesday (25) with interviews by commentator Howard Cosell. At 10:35 p.m., blow-by-blow commentator Jack Drees took over and, after the knockout, the web repeated the Drees commentary leading up to the finale. For the next 40 minutes, Cosell collared everybody around the ring and dressing rooms, including Liston and Patterson, to keep the fight show on the air until 11:25 p.m., which covered ABC's commitments to the advertisers.

Faulk: From Brushoff to Mopup

Libel Suit Winner Vs. Aware Has Offers From TV, Radio, Pic, Books, Mags

INK SILLIPHANT FOR COL, SG PRODUCTIONS

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Sterling Silliphant, who created "Route 66" and "Naked City" for producer Herbert B. Leonard at Screen Gems, has signed a deal to produce and write feature films for Columbia Pictures and create and supervise the writing of vidpix series for SG. Deal, which calls for his exclusive services, was disclosed by Col veepee Sol Schwartz and SG coast chief Bill Dozier.

Silliphant's pix deal begins on windup of his chores for the two Leonard-SG series.

CBS Sits Pretty On Firm Cushion

In this anxious waiting period, when the new season bows and the national Nielsens are yet to come, CBS-TV finds itself in an enviable sales position. Fifty-five percent of CBS-TV's nighttime schedule has been sold on a firm 52-week basis. Seventy-five percent of its nighttime schedule has been sold on a firm 26 week basis and the latter category embraces participants as well.

It's not that CBS-TV isn't sweating out the first national ratings of the new season, as well as the other two webs. Unlike the other two webs, though, CBS-TV has more long range business on its nighttime schedule, sponsor partners in shows which may be hits, misses or maybes.

John Henry Faulk is on the threshold of a busy professional life again, with mag, book, pic and broadcasting commitments.

Faulk, who was awarded $3,500,000 in a libel suit against Aware, Inc., had the doors for reemployment in broadcasting initially opened to him by Goodson-Todman who hired him recently as a guest panelist on the daytime version of "To Tell the Truth" on CBS-TV. Following that initial step, his agent Harold Cohen & Associates, closed the following deals:

Westinghouse's WINS, N. Y., made a deal for Faulk to host 90-minute five-day a week daytime strip. Look mag has inked a deal to do an article on Faulk, which is due to appear in about two or three months. Simon & Schuster has a book set on the experiences of Faulk, with Bob Gottlieb and Joe Barnes slated as editors. David Susskind, for his "All the Way Home" pic, has signed Faulk to play a minor role.

Prior to his appearance on "To Tell the Truth," Faulk had not been employed in broadcasting or any other media for five years. It was about five years ago when his WCBS Radio, N. Y., afternoon show was dropped after an attack by Aware, an organization formed to combat an alleged Communist conspiracy in entertainment-communications. The Aware attack was the basis for the $3,500,000 libel award to Faulk.

In addition, it's understood several major record companies are negotiating for a Faulk album.

Mark Goodson of Goodson-Todman invited Faulk on "To Tell the Truth." Goodson, one of the witnesses in the libel suit, testified that Faulk would have been earning $150,000 to $500,000 a year had he stayed in television. In the early '50s, Faulk was a regular panelist on "It's New to Me," a Goodson-Todman show which had a network run for several years.

CBC-TV Picks Up Sales On World Series, Other U.S.-Originating Shows

Toronto, Oct. 2.

The baseball World Series, which tees off Thursday (4), will be sponsored in the Dominion by the Gillette Razor of Canada Ltd. and the Chrysler Corp. of Canada Ltd. over the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. tv web. Agency deals with CBC have been completed by Maxon Inc. for Gillette and BBDO for Chrysler.

General Motors and Imperial Tobacco sponsor the new tv series, "Our Man Higgins," with MacLaren agency acting for GM and McKim for Imperial. "I'm Dickens-He's Fenster," tab is being picked up by J. B. Williams Co. and Timex, with former placed through Parkson and Ronalds-Reynolds acting for Timex.

For the [illegible] time, "Candid Camera" is sponsored in Canada, where Allen Funt will invade the Dominion. The series is seen on the CBC-TV network — on a two-day [illegible] over the CBS web — with Colgate and Kimberly-Clark [illegible] the soap-strip bills, with Schaefer, Hills & Bates, [illegible] K.C.

Brit. Comm'l TV: Showmanship To Newsmanship In Seven Years

London, Oct. 2.

Bow out of veteran showman Val Parnell after seven years on the fourth floor at Associated Television marks the close of the first chapter in the history of Britain's commercial tv industry, a chapter which will bear witness to the triumphal rise of the independent web on the backs of a host of prominent showbiz personalities. Each bestowed a welter of light entertainment knowhow on the channel which undoubtedly figured as one of the prime factors in the rapid climb to national popularity.

Parnell, now, is being called the "last of the great showmen," a fitting title, according to the trade. But it makes his stepdown more pertinent; it's one more pillar falling in the original structure of commercial tv programming.

In other words, "tv-the-showman" is gradually giving way to "tv-the-journalist," with the commercial outlet shaking off the all [illegible] [illegible]

Commercial television [illegible] to be [illegible] BBC [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

VIDEO'S MASSIVE NEWS WEEK

British TV: Top 20 Ratings

(Week Ending Sept. 23)

	Viewing Homes (000's)
Coronation Street (Mon.)—GRANADA	7982
The Prime Minister (20)—(BBC-ITV)	7865
Hugh Gaitskell (21)—(BBC-ITV)	7747
Coronation Street (Wed.)—GRANADA	7630
Sunday Palladium—ATV	7160
No Hiding Place—AR	6456
Bulldog Breed—GRANADA	6339
Drama '62—ATV	6339
Emergency Ward 10 (Fri.)—ATV	5986
Double Your Money—AR	5634
The Verdict Is Yours—GRANADA	5399
Emergency Ward 10 (Tues.)—ATV	5282
Take Your Pick—AR	5085
Play of the Week—AR	5047
Morecambe & Wise Show—ATV	5047
Harpers West One (Mon.)—ATV	4997
Take a Letter—GRANADA	4976
This Week (Thurs.)—AR	4930
Z Cars (Wed.)—BBC	4813
Holiday Town Parade—ABC	4695

Elmer Lower: A Study in Time And Motion on Election Night

By ART WOODSTONE

Computer machines, 1,200 staffers, telephone lines, studio lines, cameras, camera cables, adding machines, cuts, wipes, fades, blinker boards, program cut-ins, program cut-cuts, 50 states, hundreds of minor campaigns, dozens of major campaigns, foreign reaction stories, domestic reaction stories, ethnic reaction stories, labor and management reaction stories, tote boards, checking and rechecking. These are the components, not all of them at that, of a tv network's news coveringe on election night.

Election coverage, according to Elmer Lower, general manager of NBC News, has become "first of all a study in time and motion. It has to be as precise as a Ford Motor Co. assembly line."

Lower has a reputation as networking's most experienced election coverage administrator. This was given credence when NBC News very recently made him general manager largely on the strength of the network's election night performances under his aegis. It was given further credence late last year, when CBS News, for which Lower once worked on elections unsuccessfully tried to rehire him to again handle this annual big prestige piece.

Everything, Lower noted, has to work with total efficiency or else election information doesn't arrive in NBC's N. Y. Studio 8-H quickly. "Without the election returns, analysis of the results can't take place."

If the first stress is on "time and motion," the second, Lower feels, is on analysis. He has a good deal of support in this: True, NBC news suddenly built a whole new reputation in 1960 when it beat CBS News in delivery of the returns, but a lot of people attribute the network's success in this area more to the work of its commentators and analysts, first and foremost Huntley & Brinkley.

In any event, Lower has hired a

(Continued on page 42)

Britain Reviving TV Quiz Games

London, Oct. 2.

Both BBC-TV and Granada-TV, on the commercial web, are setting out to give the quiz game show a face lift. While still retaining the proven formulae of a "Take A Letter," a "Take Your Pick," a "Double Your Money," Granada has introduced "University Challenge" a high-level, inter-varsity p & a dual.

A similar feeler into the quiz market is being worked out by BBC-TV which is picking up "Top Of The Form" from radio and adapting it for video. Here again, schools will compete for points on the q & a basis, the champ moving on to tackle all comers.

JACK IAMS EXITS AS N.Y. TRIB TV CRITIC

N. Y. Herald Tribune's radio-tv critic Jack Iams has resigned, winding his duties as of last Friday (Sept. 28).

Richard K. Doan, daily's radio-tv editor, has taken over reviewing chores, but is seeking a replacement for Iams as soon as possible.

Allen to Revamp WBC Night Strip

Steve Allen will be making some format changes in his late-night variety strip for Westinghouse Broadcasting and, after the first of the year, will hit the road to originate the show in other cities along the pickup line.

In the near future the 90-minute stanzas will be injected with more discussion and more human interest elements. To date the shows have featured a number of singing and instrumental talents. For this week, with Johnny Carson preeming as the steady host of NBC-TV's "Tonight," Allen is punching up his show with name talents, including Dick Gregory, Jo Stafford and husband Paul Weston, comedian Buddy Hackett, Betty Hutton and others.

Among cities slated for the tour away from Los Angeles are New York and Las Vegas.

Will Be Able to Tell Schirra From Shortstop In NBC Series Coverage

Should Astronaut Walter Schirra Jr. and the World Series collide in orbit over NBC-TV this week the network's news department has decided on a solution: NBC will carry full production of the manshoot from early morning until the afternoon start of the game. Manshoot is due to start today (Wed.) but postponements may delay it to World Series time, starting tomorrow (Thurs).

Once the game is underway NBC News will run a crawl at the bottom of the baseball picture, so that viewers can keep up with the Schirra orbits while staying continuously with the baserunners.

Meantime, NBC News has decided to give Merrill (Red) Mueller a 23-year vet of the department, a more prominent part in the manshoot coverage on tv. Mueller, who recently signed a fresh pact with NBC News, will appear as lead commentator. Mueller did the Canaveral job last time for NBC Radio. This time he and Roy Neal, who did tv from there, last time, and Frank McGee, who was anchorman then, will more or less divide up the job.

RIOTS, ROCKETS AND BASEBALL

The job of radio and tv in the massive coverage of race strife in Ole Miss, of the Giants-Dodgers in playoff and the preparations at Cape Canaveral for a manshoot have led to massive logistics.

If all three stories should be going at once, then the networks are really going to need wall stretchers, because television, being so addicted to delivering the story "now," might find that the stories, each important, will be overlapping. Supposing that Walter Schirra doesn't get off today (Wed.) and that the Giants swept the playoff in two games, today may prove a relatively quiet one to newsmen, but there's always tomorrow (there's always tomorrow even if Schirra does get off and the Giants don't win, because Mississippi is still fused and there's always the World Series).

In addition to their earlier mass coverage in Mississippi's university town of Oxford, the tv and radio networks were hanging on a string since last Saturday (29) afternoon, when they got White House word that President Kennedy wanted time on ABC, CBS and NBC to make a major policy statement about the need for Federal force in support of Negro James H. Meredith. Typical of the broadcast "alert," they waited anxiously 24 hours for word. On Sunday, Kennedy asked for an early evening slot. Late in the day, for reasons of his own, Kennedy asked for a delay until 10 p.m. on all webs. The webs readily accepted Kennedy's "program tactics," relapsing into a state of nervous watchfulness about what next would break.

The amount of coin lost commercially by each of three tv networks is impossible at the moment to estimate. All that anyone can safely say is that NBC and CBS, in particular, have devoted "many thousands apiece" to preemptions for special tv programs on the Southern revolt. All three networks have been heavy on manpower commitments in Miss,' that being in addition to their regular large complements in Canaveral.

After Kennedy spoke on Sunday two of the webs then began regular shows, so that NBC-TV's full hour "Du Pont Show of the Week," for instance, carried over to nearly 11:15 p.m. Ditto ABC.

Last Friday (28), CBS-TV's "Eyewitness" covered Mississippi's growing crisis. Sunday it was the only network to follow Kennedy's message with a special. (Incidentally, CBS News answered an equal time request from Miss. Gov. Ross Barnett with a nix).

At NBC-TV, on Monday (1), the network devoted a full hour, at 7:30 p.m., to the Mississippi crisis. Not that it was alone in such outlays but this NBC special news program was "costly" in many ways. Among them must be included the danger involved for a commercial hour called "It's a Man's World," which being so new is subject to all the vagaries of the sensitive viewership barometer, one of which is early preemption for something else. Last night,

(Continued on page 42)

Minow Pledges Hands-Off Policy By Govt. Towards Telstar Telecasting

Baby univision need not have Government Big Brother nightmares, Federal Communications Commission Chairman Newton Minow has told the broadcast industry.

In a New York speech to the International Radio and Televis on Society, Minow said world television responsibility and policing will be on the honor system. "Your government will not, cannot monitor or censor your world programs," he said, either the programs you send or the programs you receive and show to America.

"That's going to be the job of your conscience and your character. The penalty for irresponsibility will be more serious for the nation than the revocation of a station license.

"If this is too much responsibility for you, you should not be involved in international television," he added bluntly.

Having made his point, Minow went on to call the new Communications Satellite Act "a vote of confidence in our private operation of communications service."

"With that confidence," he continued, "goes reasonable expectation of responsibility and leadership. Your country will look to you to exercise your trust with responsibility. We will look to you to be concerned not only with commercial checks and balances but also with democratic checks and balances, not only with avoiding red ink, but preventing Red dictatorship."

Minow also said the Government prefers broadcast leadership and initiative in world programming and will help on both intramural and international problems, but only upon request.

Minow prefaced his point with a brief exposition of the satellite law after he had struck a blow or two for the commission.

He sought to launch the new television year with a recap of commission activities and achievements in the past year. He singled out: teachvee, UHF, feevee, and toughening and streamlining of FCC watchdogging.

He couldn't resist an introductory cuff at the industry for what he deftly indicated was fumbling the ball on his suggestions for improving kiddie programming.

LARRY WHITE JOINS G-T AS PROGRAM EXEC

Lawrence White, former veepee of daytime programs for CBS-TV, has been named director of program administration for Goodson-Todman Productions. He begins with G-T this week.

White was CBS daytime veepee from Feb. '61 until his recent resignation. Before joining the web in '59, he was with the Benton & Bowles ad agency for eight years.

CBS Radio Nabs $2-Mil. in Sept.

The CBS Radio Network has recorded more than $2,000,000 in billings during the past four weeks. Major contracts comprising this total include the following:

Mentholatum has bought a heavy schedule of news and "Dimension" programs as well as participation in 'House Party," through its agency J. Walter Thompson. Mogen David Wine has signed for a saturation campaign on CBS Radio utilizing news, "Dimension" programs, "Worldwide Sports" and "House Party."

Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical has renewed its segment of "Arthur Godfrey Time" for both Bromo Seltzer and Listerine, marking the company's second year on Godfrey. Standard Brands, for Chase & Sanborn Coffee, has renewed its heavy schedule in news and "Dimensions" programs, while John Morrell & Co. has renewed its segment of "Arthur Godfrey Time."

Other 52-week renewals, previously reported, include R. J. Reynolds Tobacco for cosponsorship of "It's Sports Time," and the Oldsmobile division of General Motors for full sponsorship of the Lowell Thomas News.

Rocky Vs. Morgenthau On NBC's 'Direct Line' But It Won't Be Debate

The Dems in N.Y. State have complained repeatedly that incumbent Gov. Nelson Rockefeller refuses to meet candidate Robert M. Morgenthau in open tv debate. Late last week, however, Rockefeller did agree to appear with Morgenthau on the same program, but apparently not in open debate.

WNBC-TV, N.Y. flag for NBC, got word on Friday (27) that the Governor agreed to appear with Dem Morgenthau on "Direct Line, Sunday, Nov. 4., with the two men splitting q & a time. So far, Rockefeller has not agreed to any other joint appearances.

Morgenthau's camp urged N.Y. radio and tv stations to "go ahead with plans for debates . . . with the request that the Democrat be allowed to go on alone if his Republican opponent fails to appear." No public reply from broadcasters has yet been given this request.

NBC Radio In Exec Reshuffle

George Graham's old role as veep and general manager won't be filled by NBC Radio. Instead exec veep Bill McDaniel has promoted several staffers and, ultimately, plans to add an eastern sales manager and a few more salesmen under sales striper Bill Fairbanks.

Bob Hitchens, who was manager of sales presentations at NBC Radio, becomes the web's first director of sales planning, reporting to McDaniel and thus assuming "some of the duties" held by Graham, who last week moved over as boss of NBC Enterprises. Hitchens' aide, Jack Bernstein, a onetime VARIETY staffer, takes Hitchens' old managerial job.

Howard Gardner, formerly manager of sales development, has become director of sales administration and development, reporting to sales boss Fairbanks. Joe Kelly takes over the Gardner vacancy.

Smoke Gets Into CBS' Eyes

Irritants are still bothering CBS-TV and The Tobacco Institute Inc., headed by George V. Allen, the signer of the blistering protest over "CBS Reports: The Teenage Smoker."

The Irritants are in the form in which Allen chose to make his protest public—releasing it to the press before the protest was received by CBS. In responding to Allen's protest, CBS News prexy Dick Salant said he would extend Allen the courtesy of first receiving the letter and then let it up to Allen whether the letter should be made public. Allen, phoned in Washington, said whether to make Salant's letter public isn't his decision. The rebuttal, he said, is "Salant's property" and up to him if he wants to make it public. Allen said that he had made his letter to CBS prexy Frank Stanton public at the time he did so that the contents would be available as a reaction to the show.

WHN, N.Y., Joins Mutual

WHN, the new Storer radio outlet in New York, will become the Mutual Broadcasting Gotham flagship Oct. 14.

The station will continue its own news operation while taking over the web's commentators and newscasts now on WINS (primarily) and WOR.

Reach WNDT-AFTRA Settlement Over N.Y. Board of Education Block

One of the "last two" obstacles to an agreement between WNDT, the met area educational tv station, and a performers' union was, it is reported, the N.Y. Board of Education.

An agreement was finally reached on Friday (28), after days and days of picketing followed by further days of legal haggling over language in an agreement. Union is the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists, which seeks jurisdiction of many categories of WNDT personalities who appear on the air.

While legal language was the other block, it is clear the Board of Education (which supplied a large amount of financial aid to WNDT) cautioned the station's management that it would be imprudent to agree officially on the right of N.Y.C. teachers to vote about unionizing in order to appear on WNDT. This apparently made WNDT reps think twice about the terms of an AFTRA accord.

Board of Education, for some time, had been engaged in a struggle with in-school teachers who sought recognition of another collective bargaining agency. The fur had not really settled fully when the WNDT case broke out.

With that as background, sources close to the WNDT-AFTRA negotiations reported that a lawyer for the Board of Education in N.Y. had cautioned the station against making an open agreement about the right for tv teachers to vote on unionization. Suggestion reportedly was that an agreement of this sort might "mar the relationship" of WNDT to the Board.

Whether the agreement, which was finally reached, has marred any relationship remains to be explained.

AFTRA and WNDT agreed in principle as early as last Tuesday (24) that an election should be held some six months hence. But the union said that even if it lost a general referendum for jurisdiction of the personalities appearing on WNDT in those six months, it wished to maintain jurisdiction of performers who fell within the usual AFTRA prerogatives — actors, dancers, singers, et al, and "hosts, narrators and emcees."

WNDT balked at the latter three categories. Agreement on Friday was signed, though, in which a compromise was reached.

If AFTRA loses a referendum six months from now, it will nonetheless retain control of announcers, actors and so on. It will also retain WNDT jurisdiction of hosts, except those who employ specialized knowledge and training —outside entertainment — and those who have a distinctive status in community affairs.

As it was reported, the ones to vote in the referendum over whether AFTRA becomes the collective bargaining agent for personalities at the station will be those who have appeared at least three times in six months.

If AFTRA loses it will not have jurisdiction over "community leaders," doctors, lawyers, engineers, and so on. In other words, it will lose its right to bargain in behalf of those outside-show-biz leaders and experts.

100 'SUPERCAR' ITEMS TO HIT THE MARKET

Independent Television Corp. claims its "Supercar" series has broken the "syndication barrier" as to merchandising.

With Licensing Corp. of America handling merchandising for the series, 100 different "Supercar" items are expected to be manufactured before the year ends. Licensing deals include items to be manufactured by Remco Industries, Louis Marx Co., Colorforms, Inc. and Ideal Toy.

"Syndication barrier" is a descriptive phrase used in connection with the difficulty of securing large merchandising exploitation with syndication entries.

Buffalo—WEBR Radio, next month returns its 15-minute bowling show, "Kegler's Korner," for the 15th season with Ray Hoemke, bowling expert, at the helm. Sponsor, Erie County Savings Bank, uses the show to pitch its special account service for bowling leagues.

UAA Sells Pix Package In 61 TV Markets

United Artists Associated's latest package of 33 post-150 pix has been sold in 61 markets.

Package, called "United Artists Showcase for the Sixties," has been bought by WBAP, Ft. Worth; KGW, Portland, Ore.; KONA, Honolulu; KATV, Little Rock; KFMY, Greensboro, N. C.; WTVY, Dothan, Ala.; KALB-TV, Alexandria, La.; and WRAL-TV, Raleigh, N. C. KPIX, San Francisco, bought other packages, "Box Office 26," and "A-OK" product as well, for a total of 91 pix.

UAA distributes about 2,000 features — United Artists, Warner Bros. pre-'48's, RKO Pictures J. Arthur Rank, Monogram, plus 234 "Popeye" and 337 Warner Bros. cartoons.

Anti-V.D. Drive Breaking Out On N.Y. TV Spectrum

A campaign to abate the rising venereal disease rate will be launched on New York television next week with commercials produced by Grey Advertising for the New York Department of Health.

Carrying the 10 and 20-second blurbs, which are aimed primarily at teenagers with education and "case findings" as objectives, will be WNBC-TV, WABC-TV, WCBS-TV, WNEW-TV and probably WPIX-TV (still undecided late last week). WOR-TV has demurred with the reply that it is a "family station." Educational WNDT-TV has yet to be negotiated.

Reason for the campaign, the first anti-VD drive since 1947, is the alarming increase in incidence of syphilis and gonorrhea, especially among teens, a 430% rise since 1957, and the Department of Health estimates there are four to 10 times as many cases as reported. Reported cases of venereal disease in 1960 totaled 16,872. Figure was up to 20,017 for New York.

(Continued on page 48)

Syndication Review

KEYHOLE
With Jack Douglas, others
Producer: Douglas
Director: Leon Barsha
Distributor: UA Television
30 Mins., Mon., 10:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
WOR-TV, N.Y. (film)

Jack Douglas' syndication entry, "Keyhole," presents a potpourri of interesting professionals on the job, such as a private eye and an aerial stunt man, and oddball and sometimes shady ways of life, card sharping, lonely hearts clubbing etc., in the slick style of the real-life pix shorts of yore. (The tv producer-director is not to be confused with nitery comedian Jack Douglas.)

Opener, caught on WOR-TV, New York, Monday (1), told the stories of Country Club Carl, a legendary golf bum whose heft and pretended clumbsiness conceal a great skill that allowed him to skin the locals; Marty the Slob, a gin rummy shark who clobbered suckers while working with a couple of femme shills; and a third character who got a plant job and conned fellow workers into thinking he had the inside track with the ponies.

It was a stanza that wafted a moral, but was more intent on hooking the viewers with light entertainment. Douglas' narration was in the lilting vain of those aforementioned theatrical shorties. It simply came down to an interesting easy-to-take half hour.

This one was acted by professionals, but several other shows in the stanza will be performed by the real-life folk in question. This one also was in color, as will be several others. Bill.

Paulsen Tapped For WNEW Program Slot

Varner Paulsen, vet broadcasting exec, has joined WNEW Radio, N.Y., as program director. He fills the vacancy created by the move-over of Mark Olds to the general managership of WINS, the new Westinghouse N.Y. outlet.

Paulsen had been program director of WIP, Philadelphia, since 1955. Like WNEW, WIP is part of the Metropolitan Broadcasting chain.

In another WNEW Radio appointment, writer-producer Nat Asch has been named special projects director in the program department.

Brecht's 'Galilee' On Canadian TV

Toronto, Oct. 2.

First major Bertolt Brecht play ever to be presented on North American tv, "Galileo" will be produced by Marie Prizek in third season of the "Festival" series this fall on the same time slot—9:30 p.m. Mondays — over the tv network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Most will be 90-mins. in length and will include classics, operas and ballets, plus seven 60-mins. concerts (already taped), including one by Grenn Gould and four by internationally-famed composers—Aaron Copland and David Raksin (U. S.), Sir William Walton (Britain), Louis Applebaum (Canada)—who conduct the CBC Symphony.

Besides Brecht's "Galileo," CBC "Festival" series will also have the Toronto-produced emanations of Anouilh's "The Lark," W. O. Mitchell's "Devil's Instrument," Verdi's "Othello" in English, and the National Ballet of Canada in "Giselle." Other dramas skedded include Betti's "The Gambler," Krog's "Break-Up" and Pulman's "Book with Chapters."

"Lark," an adaptation by Lillian Hellman, will star Kathleen Widdoes as the Maid of Orleans; Douglas Rain, Warwick; William Hutt, Inquisitor; Budd Knapp, Cauchon. In Franz Kraemer's production of "Othello," Richard Cassilly sings the title role opposite Ilona Kombrink as "Desdemona." Louis Quilico as "Iago"; and others. Ernesto Barbini conducts. Norman Campbell's classical ballet ("Giselle") has the National Ballet's prima ballerina, Lois Smith, dancing the title role, with Earl Kraul as the Duke.

'Bachelor Father' Put Into Syndication Hopper

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Off-network "Bachelor Father" has been placed into the market-by-market hopper by MCA TV, which recently concluded a three-day syndication division sales meet here.

"Bachelor Father" series, which had a five-year run on all networks, consists of 157 half-hour episodes.

Chi's Bale of Woe

Chicago, Oct. 2.

The season of gag promotions to herald the new premieres has yielded the usual tokens of vises and levels ("I'm Dickens, He's Fenster"), solo orchids ("Voice of Firestone"), apothecary jars with pink mints (a WIND medical series), etc. But topping the traffic of clutter for sheer bulk and uselessness is WBKB's gift of a bale of hay in behalf of the Roy Rogers-Dale Evans variety opus.

Last year the station delivered oversized garbage cans for "Top Cat" and the year before a slab of rock for the "Flintstones." Almost everyone knows somebody who can use a good garbage can, but what do you do with a bale of hay? Horse owners say it costs more to move Grade A timothy than it's worth per pound. So that even lets out the zoo.

It ends up a problem for the building maintenance men, which is okay at the Wrigley Bldg. where only one bale was dropped off. But what of Tribune Tower where a total of seven deposited? Things like this can have repercussions in the janitors' union.

Flock of Educ'l TVers Move In On Lady Bird's Austin Monopoly

Austin, Oct. 2.

Austin's tv spectrum has broadened with the advent of the state's fourth educational outlet, KLRN-TV, which last week began full operations on channel 9.

The station, operated by the University of Texas, will serve viewers in the Austin and San Antonio areas.

Licensee is a non-profit organization, Southwest Texas Educational Television Council.

Up to now, Austinites have been served only by KTBC-TV, Channel 7. Hungry for more video fare, some set owners had begun putting up outside rigs designed to pick up the grade-B signals emitted by tall-towered San Antonio stations with transmitters some 80 miles distant. Results here have been spoty, with some reception from San Antonio good.

Meanwhile, Channel 9 will begin to fill out the local tv diet with a range of cultural and educational fare. The station will be on the air 12 and a half hours a day, from 9:30 a.m. till 10 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Morning hours will be taken up with instructional material contracted for by some 40 elementary and secondary school organizations. (School contracts are station's financial bread and butter). Selected teachers from the schools will go before the cameras.

From noon on there'll be everything from women's shows to Dave Garroway (on tape).

As well as producing its own shows, the station will rely heavily on such taped fare as that provided by National Educational Television network (NET) which fields such highly respectable stuff as the BBC produced "An Age of Kings," the eight-play cycle of Shakespeare's historicals.

Naturally, many educators from San Antonio and Austin will show up with programs geared to their special fields. Among these will be such notables as University of Texas historian, Dr. Walter Prescott Webb, who is big enough to help anybody's ETV ratings.

Public service will be a watchword on KLRN-TV, with the "Operation LIFT" literacy series being an early salvo in this sector. Channel begins LIFT series Oct. 15.

News and public affairs panels will be locally produced.

Station is already beginning to work in adult for-credit courses.

Much credit for arrival of the new tv outlet must go to the University Radio/Television department's director, Robert F. Schenkkan. Under Schenkkan's sparking, educational television in the area has made great strides in the past few years. His department has grown into a major training ground-production operation, as well as the nerve center of varied instructional projects.

The department operates a major on-campus closed circuit teaching system, as well as a microwave network which links central Texas colleges in a round-robbin exchange of prime courses.

Riding herd on the KLRN-TV operation is longtime department standby, Harvey Herbst, now titled station manager.

Another key man in the whole works is the department's ingenious Chief Engineer Noyes (Nocky) Willett, self-taught Abe Lincoln of the amperes.

KLRN-TV will operate at full allowable power and height, beam-

(Continued on page 48)

Lombardo to Americana For WCBS on '63 Eve

Guy Lombardo's annual New Year's Eve telecast on WCBS-TV, N. Y., and other CBS-TV stations this year will emanate from the new Americana Hotel. The hour program will begin at 11:15 p.m.

This will be Lombardo's seventh consecutive New Year's Eve telecast on CBS. In 1960 it originated from the Hotel Astor, the other years it came from the Hotel Roosevelt.

Lombardo recently became a major stockholder in Guy Lombardo's Port O' Call, a motel-boatel-yachtel in Tierra Verde, Fla., where his band will perform this winter. However, since his contract with WCBS-TV specifies his annual New Year's Eve show must originate from a New York location. Lombardo recently signed for a two-week engagement at the Americana Hotel so that he would have a New York origination point for the New Year's Eve show. Soon after welcoming in the New Year, Lombardo will head for Tierra Verde and will begin a four-month engagement at his Port O' Call on Jan. 3.

Radio in France Very Much Alive Round-the-Clock

Paris, Oct. 2.

With video set sales burgeoning, the second web due, and tv the lead something-for-nothing show facet, radio is still not the forgotten man in France. In fact plans are afoot to augment the four French stations in all ways. This is mainly due to the fact that both radio and tv are under state control and handled by the Radiodiffusion-Television Francaise.

The growth of transistor sales, car radios, and the fact that radio is on from early morn to midnight every day to the 50 hour weekly of tv, give it a big audience still and plenty of power. Steps are on by the RTF to make it more effective, informative and educational as well as entertaining.

Radio mainly has it over tv on news and this is being stepped up via solid on-the-spot programs. For some reason there is also lesser censorship on radio even if it is also state handled. Local radio also has to compete with the private peripheral stations beaming into France like Radio Andorra, Radio Luxembourg, Europe No. 1 and Radio Monte-Carlo.

Europe No. 1 has still forged ahead in recorded music of all kinds but gotten somewhat too precious in their digest programs. They did score with a breakfast patter team in thesps Maurice Biraud and Micheline Francey. Luxembourg kept after country femme listening.

The French RTF tried to outdo these via its France I but mixed too many things to really come off. Paris-Inter, however, got in some solid interpretive news shows that scored in these changing, pertinent times. But evening shows are felt wanting. France 2 is a mixture of theatre, culture, quiz shows, talks and touristic gambits and is felt to need a tightening and more solid core to really come off well.

France 3, devoted mainly to culture, was livened up a bit this year with more incisive programs that had edge, wit and depth as well as didactic aspects. France 4 is mainly music. However talk is that in spite of France 3's spurt this year it might be done away with and programs spread among others and more emphasis put on budding FM stations. But this is conjecture as yet.

So it looks like radio, in spite of some flaws, is quite full in scope and coverage. It is holding its own with outside stations and tv, and RTF head Robert Bordaz is expected to give out with some more definite radio plans in a press conference next week.

CULL FILM ARCHIVES FOR VIDEO 'MM STORY'

"The Marilyn Monroe Story," a 30-minute telementary culled from the film archives being produced by Art Lieberman, for December release with Official Films to handle worldwide distribution.

Show will be scripted by Malvin Wald and edited by Philip R. Rosenberg, team who worked on the video specials, "Hollywood: The Golden Years" and "D-Day." A name is being sought to do the commentary and a special score is being written by Elmer Bernstein.

Lieberman says the show will be simple chronological exposition without sensationalism and without dwelling on the late star's death.

SYNDIES DIVERSIFY OR DIE

Teachvee Favored for Del.'s Lone VHF Outlet in FCC Precedent

Washington, Oct. 2.

In an unprecedented move, a Federal Communications Commission hearing examiner has recommended Delaware's only VHF outlet, channel 12 in Wilmington, be granted to educational station WHYY.

Channel 12, formerly owned by Storer Broadcasting, has been marked for commercial use. But examiner Walther Guenther's initial decision denied the competing application of Rollins Broadcasting Inc. which sought the channel for commercial purposes.

Decision is subject to further FCC review.

Storer had to give up channel 12 after buying WITI-TV in Milwaukee, Wis., and after failing to sell the Wilmington channel, turned it back to FCC.

Guenther's decision said: ". . . the record establishes that there is a distinctly greater need for the educational-instructional programs proposed by WHYY than for the additional entertainment programs proposed by Rollins.

"In so concluding, no judgment is passed on the value of entertainment programs, but where there is a choice to be made as in the instant proceeding the public interest would be better served by a proponderance of programs which educate and instruct and, as to the latter, likewise entertain."

Delaware is now served VHF by Philadelphia stations, an FCC spokesman said.

Hearst Corp. Launches $2,000,000 Balto AM-TV Center With Gala Brawl

Baltimore, Oct. 2.

Hearst Corp. last week dedicated its new $2,000,000 Maryland Broadcast Center, housing WBAL-AM-FM-TV, Baltimore, with a gala dedicatory dinner (running time approximately that of "La Dolce Vita") attended by a host of political, religious and broadcast dignitaries (long dais didn't have room for local Congressmen in from Washington).

NBC-TV sales veepee Don Durgin got off the best (and maybe the bravest) trade crack among the extended roster of wellwishers. During his brief talk, Durgin told William Randolph Hearst Jr. that Jack Paar (who long has been targeting Dorothy Kilgallen and the Hearst papers) had wanted to come, but NBC told him it wouldn't be necessary.

Web, however, was represented at the affiliate's blastoff by air talent in the person of newsmen Chet Huntley and David Brinkley. Pair duo-voiced the big, split-screen pitch for the new centre that wound up festivities — and were paid $1,800 for the stint. A station spokesman said the film will not be used for promotion other than viewing by Baltimore dignitaries and ad men.

Besides Durgin and Hearst, the speakers table had Richard Berlin, prexy of the Hearst Corp.; Don Provost, veepee and general manager of the Hearst radio-tv division; Rosel H. Hyde, FCC commissioner; LeRoy Collins, prexy of the National Assn. of Broadcasters and others (including besides Collins, another former governor and the current governor of Maryland, J. Millard Tawes, and Maryland Sen. J. Glenn Beall).

The new Broadcast Center is a blue and yellow, four-story building situated on a 300-foot elevation overlooking the city. Built with an eye to expansion, the plant already has three tv studios and three control rooms among its facilities. Earlier last month the Hearst Corp. dedicated a new $7,000,000 plant for the Baltimore News-Post American.

Brewery's 10-Strike

National Brewing, which has bankrolled "Strikes 'n' Spares" for five years on WBAL-TV, Baltimore, without so much as a summer hiatus, has signed for two more years of firm 52-week sponsorship.

Half-hour bowling show is aired Thursday at 8 p.m. and produced live by Claster Enterprises of Baltimore. Chuck Thompson is emcee of the spread which originates in WBAL's new bowling lanes in its own studios.

Official Films Nets 205G for Yr.

Official Films reports pre-tax earnings of $433,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1962.

In a report to stockholders this week, Seymour Reed, prexy of the syndication firm, said net income after taxes amounted to $205,000, equal to 7c a share on 2,829,328 shares outstanding June 30. Comparative figures for last year are not available, Reed said, because of acquisitions of several corporations whose activities were reported for fiscals years varying from that of Official.

Company two years ago showed heavy losses, Reed noted, stating that present management has pulled the firm out of the red by reducing overhead, developing a strong sales organization and acquiring salable new product.

He said the company currently has a catalogue of 36 tv series consisting of 2,604 stanzas running from an hour to a minute, with the majority in half hours.

"Biography," firm's latest production, has been leased in more than 140 markets and is slated for a second year's production, Reed pointed out.

ALL NEWS TOO MUCH, WMIN BACK TO MUSIC

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

All news programming, inaugurated last July 23, didn't work out for Twin Cities' radio station WMIN. Therefore, it's being abandoned and WMIN again is interlarding music with the news. Five of the station's eight announcers have been let out coincident with this programming change.

WMIN, as far as is known, was the first U. S. radio station to experiment with all news programming. Its owner, the Franklin Broadcasting Co., also has radio stations in New Orleans, St. Louis and Fort Lauderdale.

Chi's WNBQ Goes Factual In Prime Monday Time

Chicago, Oct. 2.

With parent NBC-TV turning back the prime Monday night period at 9:30 (CST) to local stations this semester, the Chi o&o WNBQ has committed itself to an ambitious series of weekly documentaries in the timeslot. Titled "Dateline: Chicago," the series will fall mainly into the bailiwick of Frank Jordan's local NBC News department with special contributions from Harry Trigg's program operation.

It tees off next Monday (8) with a 30 minute tape-and-film presentation, "The Disappearing Lakefront," dealing with the building boom along the Windy City shoreline. Other programs will focus on the key clubs, a Chi contribution to the nation's nightlifery; the custom of tipping; a profile of Albert Cardinal Meyer and the administration of the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago; and the new identity of Chicago as a world port.

Home Federal Savings will underwrite the first eight installments.

TRY VARIED SHOWS IN TIGHT MARKET

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

With the syndication market tight, more and more syndie houses are diversifying their product catalogs in order to keep afloat.

The diversfiication bug has bitten Desilu, Independent Television Corp., Screen Gems, Seven Arts Associated, Trans-Lux Television and others.

For some companies, it's not simply a matter of keeping alive, but of opening up new avenues of revenue for the future, in addition to the possibility of turning a profit now.

Seven Arts Associated, for example, has a good biz going with its pix catalog of Warner Bros. and 20th-Fox cinematics of comparable recent vintage. Yet Seven Arts Associated first took on the prestige "Boston Symphony Orchestra" series for distribution. Then, it announced its production of the new Emmet Kelly series.

In the case of Seven Arts Associated, one reason is the realization that fresh pix product for tv might dry up some day. Taking on additional properties in other categories allow the company to flex its muscles and prepare for the day when its cinematic product may be more in the nature of rerun biz, rather than a steady flow of first-run product. "Boston Symphony" vidtape series also opens up doors and is a talking point in the prestige field when film salesmen and station execs hold confabs.

Screen Gems has one of the most extensive cinematic catalogs, as well as entries in the vidfilm category. Years back it entered into a liaison with cartoon making especially for tv and Hanna-Barbera success story is well known. Now, in distribution, it's taking a cultural fling, handling market by market sales for "Festival of Performing Arts," the David Susskind-Jim Fleming series.

Desilu Sales, the syndication of Desilu, has gone outside the confines of its parent company for a supply of product. Desilu Sales has acquired a group of foreign pix for tv distribution. Upcoming entries include "Desilu's Little People," a puppet show in color, as well as other properties.

ITC In Market

Independent Television Corp., owned by Associated Television, of England, has been in the product diversification game for some time. It has acquired sports shows, entered in Canadian coproduction, and has had one of its most successful shows in the kidvid series, "Supercar."

Trans-Lux Television, always keyed to off-beat product, has fathered TAC, the distribution organization which acts as an exchange facility of the locally produced pubaffairs shows of stations throughout the country.

Sterling Television, which has merged with the Walter Reade Organization, now has some nifty Reade cinematics to add to its catalog. United Artists Television, formerly Ziv-UA, has gone out of its own stable to acquire the Ann Sothern series for distribution. UAT also abandoned its action-adventure accent when it made its production distribution deal with David Wolper for "The Story of . . ."

Even CBS Films has made the diversification plunge, picking up Kukla & Ollie, both off-network and fresh product, for a market-by-market ride. (Syndie subsids of the networks for the most part aren't as flexible.)

Import of these various product diversification moves is the realization that, for the long haul, it's best to have many eggs in the corporate basket.

WHDH's Win of Boston's Channel 5 Unveils Sharp Split Within FCC

Washington, Oct. 2.

WHDH Inc., the Boston Herald-Traveler subsidiary, won a permit to operate Boston's stormtossed television channel 5 for four months. Almost one year passed between the oral argument before FCC and the Commission's 4-to-1 decision, with no announcements of any kind made in the interim.

But, as it turned out, there was an inside leak and the New York Times published the news one day early. There is a vigorous investigation going on with FCC to locate who blabbed.

Commissioners Rosel Hyde, Frederick W. Ford, John S. Cross and Robert E. Lee made up the majority. Chairman Newton Minow wrote an outraged dissent, with the sort of strong [illegible] that hasn't been noticed around FCC since the late Freida Hennock used to disagree with the majority. Minow went to the extent of implying that he is going to remain anti-WHDH the next time around.

The majority determined that the public interest would best be served by a four-month grant to WHDH. Others can, of course, apply for the Boston channel when that time expires.

It marked the first time WHDH, which has been operating the channel for five years, has ever had a permit. And it was regarded in communications legal circles as a major victory. This is pegged on the theory that new applicants seeking the channel after the four-month period will shoulder the burden of proof that they could operate the channel to a greater extent in the public interest than WHDH already has. In his dissent Minow said, in effect, that the majority was elevating WHDH into a preferred status at the time of the license expiration.

Minow concluded the dissent with this final blast: "So far as I am concerned the existing temporary licensee (WHDH) will not enjoy a preferred position in any such proceeding (when it comes up for license renewal)."

The four-man majority preferred WHDH to the other two applicants, Greater Boston Television

(Continued on page 52)

Sing Along With Lenny

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

Local short-hair was watching the text flash onto the television screen as Leonard Bernstein was conducting the New York Philharmonic and a mammoth chorus in Mahler's "Veni, Creator Spiritus" during the CBS network's video program from New York's new Lincoln Center.

"What's this? 'Sing Along with Lenny'?" the child wanted to know.

WOR Tinting Up 29% of Shows

RKO General's New York station WOR-TV will telecast 29% of its total fall programs in color. On the air 112 hours a week, the station will average 32 hours of color weekly up to the first of the year, says Robert J. Leder, veep and general manager. Besides the station's staple feature pix, the colorcasts will include a special bloc of half-hour shows in color Monday through Friday at 10:30 p.m.

Week of Oct. 15-21, a peak of 65 color hours will be reached, with all of WOR's feature film shows, including the multiple-run "Million Dollar Movie" will be tint. Other color shows will include "Foreign Film Festival," "The Golden World of Opera," "Keyhole," "Kingdom of the Sea," "Danger Is My Business" and "Best of the Post."

7 ARTS LOCKS UP 15 MORE PIC P'KGE SALES

Right after CBS-TV closed for three of its owned & operated stations, the Seven Arts distribbery made 15 more deals for "volumes" four and five of tv its feature film catalog. The 93 full-lengthers in the two groups are a combination of Warner and 20th Fox releases.

Six of the 15 tv stations, according to Seven Arts, had already bought the 122 Warners of "volumes" 1 through 3. They were WJAR-TV, Providence; WLAC-TV, Nashville; WKZO, Kalamazoo-Grand Rapids; WBAY-TV, Harrisburg; WCSC-TV, Charleston, and WMTW, Portland.

Other buyers of the last to piles were WBEN-TV, Buffalo; KONO-TV, San Antonio; KBAK-TV, Bakersfield; KSLA-TV, Shreveport; WFMJ-TV, Youngstown; KFDX-TV, Wichita Falls, and three Newhouse Broadcasting outlets, WPTA in Harrisburg; WAPI-TV in Birmingham, and WSYR-TV, Syracuse.

4 Star: 5-Man Team To Cover the Country

Four Star Distribution has appointed two salesmen, Dick Feiner, formerly prexy of his own Teledynamics, and Jerry Weisfeldt, a sales exec with NTA for the last five years.

Len Firestone, veepee and general manager of the new syndication firm, says three more salesmen will be added to complete a five-man team that will work the whole country. Any of the salesmen, says Firestone, could be assigned to cover any market in the country at any time.

Crosley Ups Murphy

Cincinatti, Oct. 2.

John T. Murphy is Crosley Broadcasting Corp.'s new executive vicepresident. In recent years he was veep in charge of television.

WNBC-TV Satisfied To 'Leave It to the Girls' For Beef-Up of Ratings

There is a definite sense of relief at WNBC-TV, NBC's flagship in N. Y., because of an afternoon cross-the-board revival of "Leave It To the Girls." The veteran tv paneler, brought back three weeks ago, has already cracked through to No. 2 in its time slot—1 to 1:55 p.m. daily.

For years, WNBC brass has worried about local daytime emanations—and, in particular, the early afternoon time where the station generally rode far lower than two in the six-station sweepstakes (when Channel 13 was commercial, it was a seven-way fight). But the Arbitrons for N. Y. video, just last week, ran the 55-minute gabby girls program right in behind WCBS-TV, where network soaps prevail and triumph still from 1:30 to 2 p.m. (and where a local rerun does quite nicely from 1 to 1:30 p.m., as well).

For one thing, the "Girls" stanza is presently up to about 75-80% of sellout, which is pretty good for WNBC-TV in the period, compared to the recent past. True, this is the hot selling season, but WNBC authorities insist they held out little hope of anything like a three-quarter sell if the ratings were maintained at their old level.

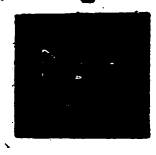
Network brass is evidently happy, too, since "Girls" serves as a reasonably hot leadin to the Merv Griffith network hour, which began Monday (1).

Producer Ted Bergmann is now distributing tapes of "Girls" via Ziv.

"all programs subject to change without notice"

We expected Monday, October 1, to be a big day for NBC Television. It had to be. "David Brinkley's Journal" was starting its new season with a full-hour chronicling of corruption in highway-building. Johnny Carson was making his debut as the star of "Tonight." And our afternoon schedule was opening its doors to the nighttime goings-on of "The Merv Griffin Show."

So we expected it to be quite a day. But two unexpected news happenings the day before—one grimly serious and the other a sports story—made our Monday's television programming even more unusual.



The violence at the University of Mississippi (and its aftermath) could not have been covered properly without our cutting into and changing our prepared schedule. This was done. Reports on the Southern crisis reached NBC viewers throughout the day and evening. On the "Today" show alone, there were five up-to-the-minute newscasts on the situation. And in the evening,

"It's A Man's World" was pre-empted for a special, full-hour program highlighted by exclusive interviews with key figures in the controversy. First things first.

The other unexpected event was, happily, much lighter in nature. In California, the National League pennant race wound up in a surprising stalemate. A play-off was to start the very next day between the Dodgers and Giants. We hurriedly made room in our afternoon schedules to bring NBC viewers the exclusive coverage of this two-out-of-three series. (As you may have heard, our cameras are also covering the World Series, which starts tomorrow on the Coast).

As we say, this past Monday was on the unusual side. Even at this network, we don't often have a day that embraces three major premieres and the sudden pre-empting of five hours for special news coverage. But it's comforting to know that when such days come, NBC's resources are ready.

This is NBC, the largest single source of news, entertainment and information in the free world.

THE LUCY SHOW
With Lucille Ball, Vivian Vance, Candy Moore, Jimmy Garrett, Ralph Hart, Alan Harper
Exec Producer: Desi Arnaz
Producer: Elliott Lewis
Director: Jack Donohue
Writers: Bob Carroll, Madelyn Martin, Bob Weiskepf, Bob Schiller
30 Mins.; Mon., 8:30 p.m.
LEVER, GENERAL FOODS
CBS-TV (film)

(J. Walter Thompson, Young & Rubicam)

Lucille Ball is back on tv and she's having a ball. In the first episode of her new series, "The Lucy Show," she pranced, clowned, jumped, ran, walked, was elated, and crushed. She had high moments and middlin' moments. It all didn't add up to hilarious comedy, but there were enough yocks in there to keep the fans' eyes dancing on the screen.

Viewers might have missed Miss Ball's projected feeling of having fun, throughout the first episode. There were some lulls in the initial outing, and the major characters weren't clearly dilineated. Miss Ball, though, is a winning performer. She has zest and a comedic frame of mind The first stanza might not win her "I Love Lucy" plaudits, but it surely has the quality of what could be a happy romance, and a love affair which might grow between viewers and the series with time. Miss Ball does command loyalties.

Preem episode, for some reason, did not explain that Miss Ball portrays a widow, with two children. Initialer also wasn't too clear on her relationship with Vivian Vance. It seemed Miss Vance was related and was sharing the house. Miss Vance, a fine performer, appeared to be a divorcee with a child. One line gave that away. It could be the pilot, which established the characters, was not used for the opening episode.

Impact of Miss Ball and her costar, though, was strong enough to break through the fuzziness of relationships and characters. Team of writers—Bob Carroll, Madelyn Martin, Bob Weiskopf, and Bob Schiller—delivered enough sight gags and yock lines to make up for most of the confusion.

Show concerned itself with the worries of mother when her daughter has her first car date. Playing Miss Ball's 14-year-old daughter was Candy Moore, a fetching lass with a knack of rendering lines capably. Her beau was played with proper embarrassed decorum by Tom Lowell. That was the foil, the rest was Miss Ball, assisted by her femme partner in hijinks, Miss Vance.

What was missing were adult males in the initialer. Miss Ball is much too lively to be relegated to the role of a worrisome mother. She seems to be more the merry widow type. Future episodes reportedly have a next door neighbor, Dick Martin, playing a prominent role. Horo.

REAL McCOYS
With Walter Brennan, Dick Crenna, Tina Louise, Tony Martinez, Lydia Reed, Norma Varden
Producer: Charles Isaacs
Director: Dick Crenna
Writer: Paul David
30 Mins., Sun., 9 p.m.
RALSTON PURINA, AMERICAN TOBACCO
CBS-TV (film)

(Gardner, BBDO)

It looks like a bumper crop of corn again for "Real McCoys" (sixth harvest) as the rural comedy switches from ABC-TV to CBS-TV.

New web preem Sunday (Sept. 30) looked like a budget chopper with limited cast and settings, and Dick Crenna doubling as director and thesp in his steady portrayal of Luke McCoy. Tina Louise guested as the fifth cousin from the West Virginia mountains who came to stay with the McCoys and do yeoman maid work like a good, strong mountain girl should.

Tall corn or no, after a stretch of six years the "McCoys" is strong enough to prompt imitation—"Beverly Hillbillys" on the same network yockers.

"McCoys" is produced for Brennan Westgate Productions at Desilu Culver Studios with Norman Pincus as exec in charge of production. Bill.

BEN CASEY
(Mrs. McBroom and the Cloud-Watcher)
With Vincent Edwards, Patty Duke, Bettye Ackerman, Joanne Linville, Harry Landers, Jeanne Bates, Nick Dennis
Exec Producer: James E. Moser
Producer: Matthew Rapf
Director: Sydney Pollack
Writers: Harry Brown, James E. Moser
60 Mins., Mon., 10 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV, from H'wood (film)

They pulled out all stops for "Ben Casey's opening show of the new season, "Mrs. McBroom and the Cloud-Watcher." Included were a child who was left sightless after brain surgery, a woman bitter about a hysterectomy, a doctor full of remorse about not having performed a completely successful operation and an understanding femme doctor who pulled everyone through.

Scripters for the opening session, Harry Brown and James E. Moser (latter is also show's exec producer) really piled it on making it an overwrought sentimental gusher. Even stone-faced Casey was caught choking up and holding back a tear.

Play centered around Patty Duke, the "Cloud-Watcher" of the title ("Mrs. McBroom" was her rag doll), who won over practically everyone on the hospital scene and who showed such juve courage when she discovered she was blind that Dr. Casey became his own brave self again and the woman who believed that she would never have a child to raise wound up in the youngster's arms for aid and comfort. Although not definitely stated, it was indicated that the blind youngster would be adopted by this woman and Dr. Casey could go on to his next case.

Miss Duke gave a tear-jerking performance as the blind youngster (after her score on stage and screen as young Helen Keller in "The Miracle Worker," she's become quite effective as a sightless person), Bettye Ackerman was crisp and clean as the femme medic and Joanne Linville brought a strong emotional feel to the woman who took in the youngster. Vincent Edwards was still very much the dreamboy-in-white. He displayed many varied moods as he went on a soul-searching spree because he believed he had failed his patient. The plot even took him to a seedy bar where he proceeded to get loaded. Casey on a bat is something to see.

Sam Jaffe, a regular on this show, was not seen on the preem. Gros.

STONEY BURKE
With Jack Lord, Warren Oates, Robert Dowdell, Bruce Dern, Kate Manx, Philip Abbott, Carl Benton Reid, Bartlett Robinson, Cleo Ann, Bill Hart
Producer-Director-Writer: Leslie Stevens
60 Mins., Mon., 9 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

ABC touts this new rodeo hour's lead as "a classic hero in a modern setting." Ulysses he isn't; more of a Ben Casey on the hoof.

Not that a saddle-bronc rider in pursuing the world's championship for 39 weeks (hopefully) can be compared professionally with a medico. But in the driving dedication of the hero and the all-out melodramatics of the format, Stoney and Ben are akin.

Stoney Burke, as portrayed by Jack Lord, is stoney enough, in the tight-lipped, lean, hard and hungry tradition of cowpoke supermen. He also can be tender, as in the wispy kiss he laid on the heroine at the wind of the preem.

Lord showed definite signs of being able to rally the appeal necessary to sustain this kind of a show. Particularly strong in support was Warren Oates as sidekick Ves Painter, who will be developed as a sometimes buddy whose loyalty is supposed to be shakey in a human way. Less prominent in the opener were feature players Robert Dowdell and Bruce Dern, other members of Burke's entourage. Kate Manx, daughter of a rich rancher and the preem love interest, had a classy attractiveness that contrasted nicely—if not wholey convincingly—with Lord's toughness.

Needed, however, was a clarity and focus and suspense. Steven's direction had some good modern touches, but when Lord straddles the bronc in the shute and his double comes out for the derring-do, it's as obvious as ever. Bill.

DR. KILDARE
With Richard Chamberlain, Raymond Massey, Stanley Adams, Patricia Barry, Otto Kruger, Ruth McDevitt, others Producer: David Victor
Director: Elliot Silverstein
Writer: E. Jack Neuman
60 Mins., Thurs., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
NBC-TV (film)

"Dr. Kildare" is good clean through. That goes for the doctor himself and the show as well. It has been said that there never was an interne as sweet, as well-intentioned or as smart as Kildare, and probably, in fact, there never was. But the Kildare character permeates this series, which, when it began its second season on NBC-TV Thursday (27), was as crisp and interesting as it was wholesome.

E. Jack Neuman delivered a script that was quick and slick. As often happens on this series, the hour combined three stories (that is, the stories of three patients at Blair General). Kildare, for a time, was serving on obstetrics, where he helped a truculent playgirl through pregnancy. He lost a teenage kid, who had complications in childbirth, and his mentor, Dr. Gillespie, (Raymond Massey) lost Blair General's chief benefactor to angina.

Neuman demonstrated for the umpteenth time that he has a remarkable flair for dialog and for tight plotting. If the writing holds anywhere near this level then "Kildare" is going to remain the true Thursday night untouchable.

Richard Chamberlain, who plays the title part, is a pretty boy who can act; he has a talent for underplaying and the trick adds to the value of the part. In this instance, he had strong help from Patricia Barry, as a hardened post-debutante, and from Otto Kruger, as an aging and charming post-adolescent. Kruger has rarely been better. He worked small points, even to the final Bronx cheer, to lift the character well out of the ordinary. Stanley Adams as chief resident in obstetrics was good, essaying his jovial part most jovially. Raymond Massey, as Gillespie, was just okay, no more.

It always looks like producer David Victor and his boss Norman Felton squeeze in every extra production value they can. Harkness Smith was cameraman for this episode and he obviously reworked every important shot to perfection. Tight close-ups were favored, and Elliot Silverstein's direction brought all the parts together wholesomely and effctively. Art.

GARRY MOORE SHOW
With Durwood Kirby, Alan King, Keely Smith, Roy Castle
Exec. Producer: Bob Banner
Producer: Joe Hamilton
Director: Dave Geisel
Writers: Vincent Bogart, Coleman Jacoby, Arnie Rosen, Norman Barasch, Carroll Moore
Music: Irwin Kostal
60 Mins., Tues., 10 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV, N.Y. (tape)

Garry Moore began his new season last Tuesday (25) with virtually everything and everyone intact except for Carol Burnett who left the show to go on her own. Although she gave the series a potent comedic lift, the opening hour managed to keep its bright and easygoing style within the vaudeo framework.

Moore and his production execs, Bob Banner and Joe Hamilton, have a flair for the variety techniques and deliver with a carefree quality that makes the hour attractive and appealing. The whole production setup shows taste and imagination and everything works out just right.

Moore is a likable host and comes off well in songs and sketches and even in the pitches for the sponsors' products. He's ably assisted in these departments by Durwood Kirby, a holdover from previous seasons.

On the guest list for the opener was Roy Castle, a British import, comedian Alan King and singer Keely Smith. Castle's bit, in which he sang "Ain't She Sweet" accomped by a chorus line of femme moppets was a week event, but King came across strongly with his standup jesting on travel, planes, wigs, etc., and Miss Smith belted "What Kind Of Fool Is He" in socko torch manner. Gros.

More TV Reviews On Pages 38, 39, 46 and 50

JACK BENNY SHOW
With Don Wilson, Dennis Day, Rochester, Sammy Davis Jr., others
Producer-Director: Fred de Cordova
Writers: Sam Perrin, George Balzer, Hal Goldman, Al Gordon
30 Mins., Tues., 9:30 p.m.
GENERAL FOODS, STATE FARM
CBS-TV, from H'wood

(Y&R; Needham, Louis & Brorby)

With Jack Benny moved over from Sundays as the "man between" Red Skelton and Garry Moore on Tuesday nights, CBS-TV has a two and a half hour comedy parlay that should be murder on the competition. Benny has the rough slot, starting opposite "Untouchables" and the Dick Powell anthology, and if he can execute the pivot play CBS should "own" that weeknight. There's no reason to believe he won't.

While it can't be said that the veteran comic had powerhouse material for his 13th season preemer on tv, he made it seem so. So well conceived is his comic characterization—and by now so familar—that he doesn't have to do much for hilarity beyond a show of exasperation, incredulity and dismay. And, of course, he's a dead shot whenever he does have a funny line to deliver. There was good cause for laughter in the opening show—and plenty of it—and that's paydirt.

Mostly Benny played the straight man, but with those takes and gestures that prompts the big yocks. First it was that familiar bit with the little girl who interrupts him onstage for his autograph—and a spunky little girl it was, this time. Next Dennis Day frustrated him, Rochester deflated him and Don Wilson grated him—variations of the traditional business that has been going on in the Jack Benny "family" since the radio days. It all built up to Sammy Davis Jr.'s guest appearance, which proved again that no one can make capital from being needled quite like Benny.

Show wrapped up with a takeoff on "Sing Along With Mitch," with strolling violinists in lieu of a men's chorus. Closing shot of the audience found them sawing upon miniature fiddles, along with the cameraman and stagehands. It was silly but effective business, worth it if only for Benny's caricature of Mitch Miller with the grotesquely bearded smile and the herky-jerky shoulder motions.

The bonus in the Jack Benny shows is that even the commercials are funny. Don Wilson got off a dilly for State Farm to the tune of "Sonny Boy," using a beefy lad for a prop. Les.

LASSIE
With Jon Provost, June Lockhart, Hugh Reilly
Producer: Robert Golden
Director: William Beaudine Sr.
Writer: Sumner Long
30 Mins., Sun., 7 p.m.
CAMPBELL SOUP
CBS-TV (film)

(BBDO)

The opener of the ninth "Lassie" season on CBS-TV kept Rudd Weatherwax's clever canine squarely in the spotlight throughout. The plot revolved around Lassie's friendship for a pigeon the pooch stole from a magic show because he thought the magician was hurting the bird in one of the tricks.

When Lassie's "parents" discovered from whence the foul had come, they notified the magician (who was called Mr. Magico no less) as to where his magic bird could be found. After picking up the pigeon, Mr. Magico sped on to his next engagement, but didn't see a road block until it was too late and ended up trapped in his car in a ditch. He managed to free the bird who, in turn, was found by Lassie and then, natch, the magician was saved.

The plot packed some solid kiddie audience excitement the show proved to be holding up well in this department. Jon Provost as Lassie's master and June Lockhart and Hugh Reilly as the parents did a credible job of seeing to it that the dog finally understood that the pigeon wasn't being harmed. They got Mr. Magico to give a command performance for Lassie to prove that the bird stayed safe at all times.

Sumner Long's script had its fair share of cliches, but was generally sound. William Beaudine Sr.'s direction kept the pact moving well and production values were good. Kali.

JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
With Ed McMahon, Skitch Henderson Orch, others Producer: Perry Cross
Director: Dick Carson
Writers: Herb Sargent, Allan Robbin, Jim Magee
105 Mins.; Mon.-Fri., 11:15 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
NBC-TV from N.Y.

There probably wasn't a more eagerly awaited show this season than Johnny Carson's probe into the night air as successor to Jack Paar. Since the latter left the show because of the late hours, the new custodian of "Tonight" has been preceded by some of the top figures of show biz who have been keeping this spot warm for this long heralded bow. Carson, of course, was yanked off a comfortable spot on ABC's "Who Do You Trust" and persuaded to change over. According to his work on the preem show, he'll grow into this new spot.

His opening wasn't especially auspicious, either in Carson's making a strong impress, or in the choice of guests. The best of the evening was an air of graciousness. Otherwise Rudy Vallee came on to plug either his book, his two-and-a-half hour show and his current click "How to Succeed etc." He refused to tell about the circumstances surrounding his engagement in the legituner, feeling that it was better told in his book and in a forthcoming article.

Tony Bennett is an excellent singer, but he didn't talk much, and Mel Brooks talked a lot without making too much headway. Joan Crawford provided a charming interlude. There were some interesting pictures of her during earlier days. Announcer Ed McMahon seemed a lost soul here with little to do. He's supposed to be Carson's "Hugh Downs."

Also on tap for the first show was the appearance of Tom Pedi, who does the Dash commercials, in a small gag, and Stanley Berman, the gatecrasher. The less said about the exploits of the latter the better.

Carson, of course, is an affable and engaging gent. He has a show in which he has to grow into.

Admittedly, he has to fit into a format created by someone else, which is particularly hard to do. He would do better in the long run working into a pattern that will be more self-expressive. Carson can handle himself well. He is personable, articulate and has a fine sense of humor. It's a matter of adjustment and a little time. He should make out well in this groove.

For some inadequately explained reason, Carson came on 15 minutes late during which time Groucho Marx was quite funny.

Commercially, Carson comes on to a full house. Philco took most of them on the preem and is given a good ride. Also, the Al Kelly promotionals plus fluffs provided laughs. Jose.

THE ORDEAL OF WOODROW WILSON
With Herbert Hoover
Producer: James Nelson
Director: Robert K. Sharpe
30 Mins., Tues., 10:30 p.m.
UNION CENTRAL LIFE INSURANCE
NBC-TV (film)

(Meldrum & Fewsmith)

A viewer might think that when the 31st President of the U.S. reviews the crucial years in the life of the 28th President something unique would come of it. Hoover pointed out that he served on President Wilson's staff at the time of the Armistice and the subsequent peace conference. He noted on this televised half-hour that he and others had advised Wilson to avoid a trip to France in 1918 because as President, he could better serve peace from home. That was about the first and last personal notation narrator Hoover made.

Otherwise, the former President's voice wavered (he is 88) through a series of comments that could be found in nearly any reputable history book. Also the program was not a worthwhile study of Hoover himself, since he was not being informal or spontaneous; he read from a prompter words that were quite prosaic.

Film footage of World War I was tired. In short, this "Ordeal of Woodrow Wilson" was a pedestrian effort. Art.

THE NURSES
(Night Shift)
With Shirl Conway, Zina Bethune, Viveca Lindfors, Ruth McDevitt, Arthur Hill, Morgan Sterne, Joey Heatherton, Hilda Simms, others
Exec Producer: Herb Brodkin
Producer: Arthur Lewis
Director: David Greene
Writer: John Vlahos
60 Mins., Thurs., 9 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV (film)

What Raymond Massey and Dick Chamberlain are to "Dr. Kildare"; what Sam Jaffe and Vince Edwards are to "Ben Casey," and what E. G. Marshall and Robert Reed are to "The Defenders," so are Shirl Conway as head nurse and Zina Bethune as student nurse to Herb Brodkin's "The Nurses." As the newest addition to tv's overexpanding 60-minute anthology series, "Nurses," for that matter, is a femme-slanted variation on a theme applicable to a dozen other shows as well—for whether it's couched in terms of lawyers, medics, nurses or even intrigue, somehow they're all of a stripe, cut to the same pattern, frequently one indistinguishable from the other.

If the analogy particularly fits the "Kildare" or "Casey" show, there is however this inevitable difference (as basic to Madison Ave. as the sliderule): the predominately femme audience attracted to such anthologies would rather dig a Dick Chamberlain and a Vince Edwards than a nurse. Plus the inescapable fact, that since it's competing with "Kildare" Thursday nights, "Nurses" is bound to get the worst of it on the Nielsen fever charts.

There are, unfortunately, other weaknesses, even more basic, to this new Brodkin CBS-TV entry, as for example, the fact that everything is painted with a broad brush stroke, everything and everybody fitting neatly into their black and white antiseptic niche—Shirl Conway as head nurse so full of compassion and humanity; Zina Bethune so full of dedication, zeal, beauty and emotional fervor as to make one's heart burst.

The initil 60-minute installment packed enough drama vignettes of the minor tragedies, exaltations and idealisms that could be possibly found in a tv maternity ward, all neatly interlaced in tinsel and blue ribbon—enough to sustain a daytime soaper for a six-month period. Out of it emerged the "larger drama"—of the Greek woman with a rheumatic heart doomed to die in childbirth, through which guestar Viveca Lindfors suffered with all the correct thespic nuances. The script licenses (one could almost lose count of errors, small and large; the digressions from normal nurse behavior patterns.)

Brodkin brought to it all the exacting production finesse one would expect. Unfortunately, he also brought to it the stuff of which soapers are made. Rose.

MISTER ED
With Alan Young, Connie Hines, Larry Keating, Edna Skinner, Richard Deacon
Exec Producer: Al Simon
Producer-Director: Arthur Lubin
Writers: Ben Starr, Bob O'Brien
30 Mins., Thurs.; 7:30 p.m.
STUDEBAKER
CBS-TV, from H'wood (film)
(D'Arcy Advertising Co.)

"Mr. Ed" has launched its third season and first in the exalted realm of prime time. The competition will be keener up in the rarefied air, but "Ed" probably has built up the following to hold its own.

Season's maiden outing had "Ed" bopped on the bean with a carrot pail, resulting in loss of memory until nicked on the noggin a second time. In between bumps there were some zany shenanigans involving Ed's owner, Alan Young, and his attempts to secure the services of a veterinarian. If you think that's easy, try calling one sometimes and telling him to rush over to treat your horse, who's just suffered amnesia.

Young ranks with Donald O'Connor as an all-time great in the art of conversing with animals. He makes what must be a difficult task look easy, and extracts a maximum of fun from his chore. The other regulars—Connie Hines, Larry Keating and Edna Skinner—were amiable and effective. Richard Deacon scored comic reaction points as a dubious vet. Tube.

RED SKELTON HOUR
With Red Skelton, Harpo Marx, Virginia Grey, Mahalia Jackson, others Producer: Cecil Barker
Director: Seymour Berns
Writers: Ed Simmons, Dave O'Brien, Martin A. Ragaway, Arthur Philips, Hugh Wedlock
60 Mins., Tues., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV, from H'wood

The Red Skelton show in its expanded hour format seems to be stretching things a bit, if the preem episode is an indication.

Where the highly affable comedian's slapstick really accelerated a half hour, it was stop-and-go in the doubled time. Guests Harpo Marx and Virginia Grey didn't help matters much in a labored and drawn-out sketch built around Skelton's George Appleby characteriaztion.

Marx, however, returned to team with the host in a pantomime routine involving American and German doughboys (WWI) for a close that was both funny and touching.

Production otherwise was spotty with Tom Hansen's choreography for 12 dancers being fresh only in one routine, featuring angelic figures in long robes and a gliding step as though they were on rollers. Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson belted two religioso numbers in her familiar style, but within the framework of the show, the turn seemed little more than a breather.

Better handling of guests in a more congealing format is called for in future shows. With Skelton, the Modernaires, a dozen dancers and David Rose's music, the nuleaus of a solid variety outing is certainly there. Bill.

MERV GRIFFIN SHOW
With Patrice Munsel, Shelley Berman, Adela Rogers St. John, Peter Nero, others Producer: Bob Shanks
Writers: Pat McCormick, Dick Cavett, David Lloyd
55 Mins., Mon.-Fri., 2 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
NBC-TV, from N.Y. (tape, color)

Merv Griffin wasn't kidding when he told reporters the other week that his new daytime strip for NBC-TV was going to be a direct takeoff on "Tonight" on the same network. He figured that there's no sense in trying to top a good thing. Whether what goes at night, after 11:15 p.m., also goes at 2 p.m. remains to be seen. Just the same the new Merv Griffin hour is not a bad show.

On opening day, Monday (1), Griffin showed a disposition once more to be slightly oversolicitous and traditionally "show biz" in his approach to interviews. For example, in his adlib (everything presumably will be adlib on the show) talk with comedian Shelley Berman, with singer Patrice Munsel and with authoress Adela Rogers St. John, he went in a little heavily with that bit about how "great" they all are. But apart from this idiosyncracy, which can be annoying, Griffin comes close to being as pleasant as any tv host around. There's something about his ease and self-effacement that smacks of Garry Moore, and that's pretty good.

Being a singer and pianist himself, Griffin has an affinity for music and, as he has explained, he intends stressing it on his cross-the-border. Actually, the stress on the initialer wasn't any stronger than it might normally be on "Tonight," another show he's emceed on an irregular basis. Peter Nero tinkled the keys for a slight interlude. In future weeks, Griffin will try and revive a big band sound by importing, each for a one week stand, the Duke Ellingtons, Count Basies, et al.

There's a gamey quality about this show, just as there is with "Tonight." People on it are likely to say things that are mildly "out." For instance, Berman's succession of softly told adlibs had a religious base. The comedian carried his jokes off well, but wisely, and the same time teasingly, telling viewers not to take him seriously by writing complaints to the network. Another thing, there were even unconciously offbeat—offcolor, if one prefers—adlibs about constipation. The audience laughed, even at one accidental mating of phrases that Griffin himself didn't perceive.

However mild—and it was mild Monday—the unexpected can only help this stanza. Art.

I'M DICKENS, HE'S FENSTER
With John Astin, Marty Ingels, Emmaline Henry, Frank DeVol, Dave Ketchum, Henry Beckman, Noan Pitlik, others
Producer : Leonard Stern
Director: Arthur Hiller
Writers: Stern, Don Hinkley
30 Mins., Fri., 9 p.m.
EL PRODUCTO, P&G
ABC-TV (film)
(Compton)

John Astin and Marty Ingels are a pair of likeable and funny guys who could play a major role in reviving the art of slapstick. They also bid strongly to have one of the video hits of the new season in the Friday night entry on ABC-TV, "I'm Dickens, He's Fenster."

It's about a pair of fast friends, one married and one playing the field, who work side by side as carpenters for a contractor. The basic framework may not allow for infinite comedy situations, but then neither did the "Honeymooners," to which this bears a slight, but only artificial, similarity. On the basis of their showing in the premiere, it would seem that Astin and Ingels are capable of many a delightful half hour if the quality of their material holds up.

Ingels, who plays the buffoon at a true-to-life and quite human level, has a good comic visage that somewhat resembles Red Skelton's. Astin, the average guy type with certain leadership qualities, is characterized as much by his flaws as by his virtues, tending to be brooding, a touch vain and a trifle paranoid. Both are loyal and large-hearted, and their chemistry makes for a warm show that should appeal to all segments of the audience—the highbrow included, now that slapstick is venerated as a form of art.

There were the traditional doors in the face and falls out of windows, but it perhaps typifies the comedy level when Dickens, hazy with sleep in the morning, socked his wife on the arm and kisses Fenster on the cheek. Oddly, since he inclines to be the straight man, Astin absorbs most of the physical punishment, but the timing is good and it clicks as pratfall comedy.

Ingels had a nifty slapstick scene with a magnetic cabinet catch that pulled metal objects off the stove and will surely profit from a running gag—in the tradition of Fibber McGee's closet—which is an alphabetically compartmentalized work apron. A proficient eye-roller, he runs the risk of making too much use of the talent.

Situation in the opener had Dickens (Astin) appointed foreman pro-tem of the carpentry crew with the initial task of firing Fenster (Ingels). He argued his buddy's case so well that he not only won his job back, but turned him into the only other candidate for the foremanship. That's where it was left at the finish. There were a lot of weak gags that were only for the laughtrack to enjoy but, happily, enough solid lines and visual business to make it a thoroughly satisfying outing.

In Emmaline Henry, who plays Dickens' attractive, patient and sensible wife, the boys have an excellent foil who has comic capabilities herself. Good production and a promising investment for P&G and El Producto. Les.

MAKE A FACE
With Bob Clayton, others
Producer: Art Baer
Director: Lloyd Gross
30 Mins., Sat., 11 a.m.
PARTICIPATING
WABC-TV, N.Y.

In these days of better programming for kids, both on the network and local levels, "Make A Face," a new ABC-TV, Saturday morning entry seems a bit dated. The half-hour was short on fun and all the lure of the merchandise prizes couldn't hide its format.

The Saturday morning entry is a kidversion of the game of the same title which had an ABC-TV daytime run sometime ago. Bob Clayton is okay as emcee. He handles the kids well, and the youngsters, brushed, bright and clean, were appealing. The plus aspects, though, end there.

The game pits two contestants against one another. There are rotating images and calling the correct numbers are the key to forming a face. When that is done, a section of a w.k. personality is shown on the screen and the real guessing begins. It's a tiresome format for half an hour and kids probably are wiggling before the 30 minutes are done. Horo.

EMPIRE
With Richard Egan, Terry Moore, Anne Seymour, Ryan O'Neal, Charles Bronson, others
Exec Producer: William Sackheim
Producer: Frank Pierson
Director: Arthur Hiller
Writer: Frank Nugent
60 Mins., Tues., 8:30 p.m.
CHRYSLER, AMERICAN TOBACCO, GENERAL MILLS
NBC-TV (film, color)
(Y&R; Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles; DFS)

Television has produced all manner of heroes from Superman to the medical man, and now NBC has introduced a new one, the business man. Jetting across the skies from Wall Street to his mining, cattle, oil and lumber empire in New Mexico, the corporation's fastest-draw comes to grips with a range of problems from high finance to employee relations and suffers the eternal conflict of Money vs. Principles. But, as it proves, the grey flannel suit is only modern dress for the old horse opera, and it doesn't look as though "Empire" is going to upset Red Skelton on Tuesday nights, although it may win a good following of political conservatives as a melodrama of benevolent big business.

Richard Egan portrays the ranch boss, yclept general manager, a sterling silver free-enterpriser for whom justice always comes before profit, indeed even at expense of it. As a man of tomorrow who flames his cigarets with a solid gold lighter and closes multi-million dollar deals with one foot aboard the helicopter, he turns out to be not much different from the oater hero of yesteryear when it comes to the everyday problems peculiar to the West.

Frank Nugent's script for the premiere could have been adapted to any number of Old West teleseries without a too drastic overhauling. Guest actor Charles Bronson gave the only notable performance as a lowly Mexican employe on the ranch who is accused of murdering the daughter of one of the older hands. Egan, convinced of his innocence, hires a proper lawyer who wins the case, and he lets Bronson come back to knowing that his return will jeopardize the well-being of the ranch. When nearly all the other boys walk off the job, Egan sticks by his guns—that is, his sense of Right—and eventually wins the angry mob back with an appeal to reason and fair play.

Only Egan's foil—Ryan O'Neal of the regular cast—is at all concerned about the price of justice to Garrett Enterprises Inc. Other members of the family corporation, Anne Seymour and Terry Moore, trust the wisdom of their general manager and take the crisis philosophically. Or maybe like the viewer, whose involvement in the conflict is compromised by the vastness of the ranch and the oil derricks, they figure what's another million more or less? It's hard to worry about the present and future income of a family as loaded as the Garretts, and it does seem that they can well afford benevolence, which presents a certain handicap to the script writers. Les.

BEVERLY HILLBILLIES
With Buddy Ebsen, Irene Ryan, Donna Douglas, Max Baer, Bea Benadaret, Raymond Bailey, others
Exec Producer: Al Simon
Producer: Paul Henning
Director: Ralph Levy
Writer: Henning
30 Mins., Wed., 9 p.m.
KELLOGG, R. J. REYNOLDS
CBS-TV (film)
(Leo Burnett; Esty)

Ever since, months back, CBS-TV latched on to "Beverly Hillbillies" as a new half-hour comedy series for the '62-'63 semester, a network-propelled enthusiasm for the program had been gaining unbelievable momentum. To hear them rave about it, this was one that just couldn't miss as the comedy click of the season. One can only suspect that CBS either fell in love with a title or began to believe the laugh track. For the unmistakable truth is that "Beverly Hillbillies," Episode One, was painful to sit through. It was as improbable and impossible as the characters who people it.

It's strictly out of Dogpatch and Li'l Abner, minus the virtues of the Al Cappisms. What is described as a "farcical situation" found a family of Ozark mountaineers striking oil in the front yard, disposing of the property for $23,000,000 and moving to Bevhills, with just enough of a "teaser" at the signoff to tip subsequent installments on their behavior pattern. Unfortunately, it was written—and played—just as tritely and badly as it sounds, involving, among others, such unfortunates as Buddy Ebsen, Irene Ryan, Max Baer and Raymond Bailey.

At no time does it give the viewer credit for even a smattering of intelligence. The lines were as cliche-ridden as the situations were obvious. The virtue of an Al Capp is that he can caricature with kindness, with subtle irony. In this new CBS creation, even the hillbillies should take umbrage. Rose.

JACKIE GLEASON SHOW
With Art Carney, guest; Sue Ann Langdon, Frank Fontaine, June Taylor Dancers, Newton Bros.; Sammy Spear, music director
Producer: Jack Philbin
Director: Seymour Robbie
Writers: Sydney Zelinka, Walter Stone, Will Glickman, James Shelton
60 Mins., Sat., 7:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV, from N.Y.

Jackie Gleason's back at his old Saturday night stand on CBS—and tv's the better for it. It's a throwback to an almost forgotten era in television (though less than a decade has elapsed), yet such have been the changing patterns of the medium, with its almost total allegiance to Hollywood film product and a recurring indulgence in trite plot formulae, that even a Gleason still garbed in the videocentricities of '55 is a welcome, refreshing change of pace.

For the boisterous Gleason of the trademarked comedics is as much a part of the video scene as a Jack Benny, a Danny Thomas, a Phil Silvers or a Red Skelton. And if, as was evident on the premiere of the "Great One's" return last Saturday (29), the material was frequently found wanting, by the same token a Benny, a Thomas or a Skelton is also on occasion left hanging high and dry and suffering from scripter malnutrition. What essentially is important is that a serious gap has been filled; a big and important chunk of show biz has been restored to the tv scene. For over the long haul—in Gleason's instance 39 weeks—any artist worth his salt can make a writer look good.

Bearing the unwieldy handle "The Jackie Gleason Show: The American Scene Magazine," the new Saturday 7:30 to 8:30 entry takes up precisely where Gleason left off way back—the June Taylor Dancers with the precision turns and those unique camera-angled choreographed patterns; dolls once again all over the joint (including a reprise of those corny Gleason intros); "Reggie van Gleason" and the other long familiar portraits including "Joe the Bartender" and the inevitable "Honeymooners" recreation with Gleason back at the old Ralph Kramden stand in cahoots with Art Carney as Norton. (One of the major landmarks in all of tv's excursions into comedy, "Honeymooners," will do periodic duty for the Gleason-Carney reunions, with Sue Ann Langdon, a regular on the new series, suitably ensconced in the ex-Audrey Meadows role as Alice the wife.)

If the musical lampoon on "Untouchables" (dubbed "The Retouchables") and with Gleason as "Eliot Flesh," left a lot to be desired and consumed too much time, it was important to the preem performance if only for the few moments which demonstrated that Gleason hasn't lost the touch. For here the inimitable rhythmic tricks and mimicry were in full play with Gleason as the foil guy for the moll Blance Latouche (Miss Langdon) (who, to illustrate the seriousness of Gleason's writer problems) turned out to be none other than the gang leader.

The "Joe the Bartender" bit was enhanced by Frank Fontaine's Crazy Googenham portrayal etched in Grade A Fontaine. As a regular on the show, he's an important asset.

There have been funnier "Honeymooners" segments. Yet there's no denying that having Gleason and Carney back in tandem is cause for celebration. There was a fetching midway performance by the Newton Bros. instrumentalists with an assist from the June Taylor Dancers on "Love Makes the World Go Round."

Even the show's old theme, in revival, sounded good. Rose.

THE PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN—SEPTEMBER 25:

"CBS last night aired a splendid filmed report of the Girl Scouts' 50th Anniversary Roundup held last July at Button Bay, Vermont.

. . . All the make-believe show business can contrive cannot duplicate the warm glow which intelligently handled film reporting such as this can project."

AND NOW FROM BOB DREW ASSOCIATES, PRODUCERS OF "THE ROAD TO BUTTON BAY"

THE BIG GAME

The tension and triumph of high school football

Here's what a special preview audience of football experts had to say:

"... a wonderful new technique of filming. Felt as if I had been personally involved in all the preparations for the game and as if I personally had been playing the game." E. H. Mosler, Jr., Chairman of the Board, The Mosler Safe Co.

"... reality at its best... this is life and this is the way it is, not only in these particular high schools but in each one throughout America." Cliff Montgomery, McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.

"Enjoyed it immensely, especially since I went through all the trials and tribulations therein. Really a true-to-life setup." Bill Stein, President, THE TOUCHDOWN CLUB.

"My warmest compliments to Bob Drew Associates for presenting such an absorbing lesson in human psychology and character. The picture is a masterpiece of technical skill." I. Robert Kriendler.

"... a gripping insight into the kids and coaches at off-guard moments. The technique covers an interesting emotional landscape down there in Miami." James Kelly, Compton Advertising, Inc.

To see and discuss the network availability of "The Big Game" and other Drew Associates full-hour television programs, call Bill Arnold, Time-Life Broadcast, LL 6-4205, New York.

TIME-LIFE BROADCAST, INC.

ANDY WILLIAMS SHOW
With Peggy Lee, George Gobel, New Christy Minstrels
Exec Producers: Bud Yorkin, Norman Lear
Producer: Bob Finkel
Director: Bob Scheerer
Writers: Mort Green, Bill Persky, Sam Denhoff, James Murray
Music: Collin Romoff
PARTICIPATING
60 Mins., Thurs., 10 p.m.
NBC-TV, from H'wood (color)

The pitfalls of being overrelaxed on tv were quite apparent on Andy Williams' opening stanza for the season. He has a nice flair for the casual air, but the emphasis on low-gear pacing slowed most of the show down to crawl and failed to sustain overall interest.

Admittedly the aim is to fashion Williams in the mold of Perry Como (nice guy and all that) but it's not an easy attitude to develop or to get away with. There was taste and good-natured humor a-plenty, but the show cried for more pep and production dash. It, after all, is still an hour musical show, and not just a visit to the boy next door.

The hour toyed with several new ideas and they had better be given a closer scrutiny before imbedding itself as a permanent part of the show. The ad-lib session, for example, in which Williams took song requests from the aud had some awkward moments when the singer blanked out on several lyrics.

Another segment that presented some problems was the visit to his hometown, Wall Lake, Iowa. Here the character vignettes were synthetic and corny. It helped establish Williams as a pleasant fellow with a well-rounded approach to small-town life but the point didn't have to be made over and over again.

In the song department, though, Williams is tops. He's got a straightforward lyric approach to a tune that makes his work highly attractive. His stage demeanor, too, shows a class and a style many of the younger disk performers should use as a model.

His guest roster for the kickoff program spotlighted Peggy Lee and George Gobel. Miss Lee, a familiar tv guester, did a fine job once again with "Them There Eyes" and "But Beautiful." Gobel had a low-pressure, but neatly executed bit, on the digit system of dialing and three of them did wonders with a harmony bit on "You Are My Sunshine."

The New Christy Minstrels, who'll be permanently slotted in the program, did very well for the folk genre and should develop into an important musical asset.

All production elements worked well including Collin Romoff's musical direction, DeeDee Wood & Marc Breaux's choreography and Edward Stephenson's art direction. All the ingredients for a likable musical hour are there so all they have to do is turn up the juice a bit. Gros.

MR. SMITH GOES TO WASHINGTON
With Fess Parker, Sandra Warner, Red Foley, Stan Irwin, Rita Lynn, Kay Starr
Producer: Hall Stanley
Director: Oscar Rudolph
Writers: Ben Greshman, Milton Pascal
30 Mins.; Sat., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

"Mr. Smith Goes To Washington" may yet evolve into something resembling the old Jimmy Stewart film of the same title. On the kickoff stanza, however, the only carryover to this new ABC-TV entry was the fact that Fess Parker, the headliner, also plays a Senator from the backwoods. A tall, handsome, country-flavored character, Parker registered as a highly promising personality who could supply a solid base on which this series could build.

The opening half-hour, however, was an attempt to mix situation comedy with some music with the result that it was neither fish nor fowl. Perhaps there's a future for such a blend, but the scripting will have to be considerably tightened. The main source of laughs on the preem stemmed from such folksy metaphors as "you're as welcome as a bowl of hominy grits" and "le's scrape off the varnish and get down to the wood."

There was virtually no story on the opener. It revolved around the attempt of a millionairess widow to crack Washington society. She gave a party for the bigwigs, but nobody showed up, so she took the hors d'oeuvres to a nearby orphanage where she, the senator, his wife and his uncle put on an impromptu concert. As a result of this good deed, she became the most popular lady in the Capital. One gag about Pres. Kennedy was okay, but the use of actual shot of Mrs. Kennedy, montaged into the party at the orphanage, was in questionable taste.

Kay Starr, in a guest star stint as the Washington hostess gave the stanza the benefit of her dynanism as actress and singer. Red Foley, as the uncle, was on hand for a couple of tunes while Sandra Warner, as the Senator's wife, was appealing. Herm.

ED SULLIVAN SHOW
With Eddie Fisher, Jack & Paula Carter, Al Hirt, Leo Bassi, Hugh Lambert Dancers, Sonny Liston, others
Producer: Bob Precht
Director: Tim Kiley, others
Writer: Buddy Arnold
60 Mins., Sun., 8 p.m.
REVLON, KENT, PILLSBURY
CBS-TV from New York
(Grey, Lennen & Newell, Leo Burnett)

The Ed Sullivan Show has probably the longest consecutive run of any show on the telespectrum. He is certainly the foremost purveyor of variety entertainment extant, having long outlasted his competition.

In the old days, Sullivan with his accumulated knowledge would have given some of the vet bookers on the sixth floor of the Palace Theatre Bldg. a run for their money. He has, since his early and rocky beginnings on CBS, learned to use virtually every medium of entertainment to suit his needs. His show spotlights with equal facility headliners in show biz, current events, politics and sports, and he fuses them into a harmonious presentation.

Sullivan's initial show of the season brought in some heavy artillery in all orbits. There was Eddie Fisher giving a preview of his Winter Garden revue two days before it opened; Jack Carter, showing off his comedy along with the singing talents of his wife, Paula Stewart, as well as a wide assortment of acts plus an even wider display of prominent personalities.

There was a danger that the preponderance of bows and interviews would lessen the overall entertainment impact. Among those showing up with appropriate bows and/or interviews were Sonny Liston, Mickey Mantle & Whitey Ford, whose punchlines were broken into by a CBS news bulletin; the skipper of The Weatherly which kept the America's Cup in the U.S. and the crew of the MATS Globemaster which aided in the rescue work in the recent GI plane disaster.

Fisher in fine voice made an excellent impact in the three numbers allotted him. He delivered with style and vigor and got off charmingly with Al Hirt tooting for him in the background to "Mein Papa." Hirt, incidentally was all over the show in solo as well as ensemble spots. His schmaltzy and full-bodied trumpet was evident in an entertaining manner. Although he breaks no musical frontiers, he shines in grooves long accepted.

Carter fused topical and other gags to overwhelm most audiences. He hit his top mark with the line that "JFK has brothers he hasn't even used yet." He hit hard and frequently with his gags, and wound up showing off his wife, Paula, who incidentally, is a fine singer.

Others on the show included Joya Sherrill, who got some good production in her single of "Katyusha" with a lot of surrounding talent to provide added vitality. Leo Bassi is an excellent foot juggler, and the Hugh Lambert Dancers provided good atmosphere for the Hirt tooting of "Malaguena." A quick glimpse of the Harvest Moon Dancers opened the proceedings.

Sullivan tried his hand at more than emceeing by acting as straight man for Bill Dana's "Jose Jiminez" characterization. Dana has had worthier material. Sullivan incidentally is developing surprisingly as a line-feeder, and more than incidentally came on "with bounce" to prove his complete recovery. Jose.

DAVID BRINKLEY'S JOURNAL
Producer: Ted Yates
Director: Frank Slingland
Writer: Brinkley
60 Mins., Monday (1), 10 p.m.
PITTSBURGH PLATE GLASS, DOUGLAS FIR
NBC-TV (film, color)
(Maxon, Cole & Weber)

David Brinkley began his second season as landlord of a primetime news program with style, pep and more guts than most other tv performers summon in a lifetime. His hourlong critical essay on "The Great Highway Robbery," exposing corruption, naming names, calling cheap concrete cheap concrete and payola by no other name but payola, offered great promise for the season.

NBC News puts out an "expose" series called "White Paper." Brinkley does not work on that particular project, but the "Paper" people could only be envious of the job the hotshot NBC reporter-commentator did on the premiere of his weekly stanza Monday (1) night. So important did Brinkley consider the subject of highway corruption across the U.S. that instead of his usual half-hour a week he got sponsors and network support for 60 minutes.

His preem made news. Giving ample credit to American newspapers for first exposing details of highway corruption by State officials, he proceeded to detail the case of the Florida highway builders. He then spent sometime on Oklahoma, on New Mexico and sketched in the facts of corruption in several other states.

Not once did he shun using a name when he felt a name was called for. Enterprising souls that Brinkley and his producer Ted Yates are, they even got some of the allegedly guilty to make statements on the air. Brinkley's sense of humor was thoroughly vented when he ultimately interviewed Rex Whitton, the Federal Highway Administrator, and unerringly made mince meat of the official's statements. His sense of fairness was also exercised when, later, he clarified part of Whitton's problem as being shorthanded in the face of overwhelming thievery in state highway agencies, among contractors and elected officials.

The shockingly carefree admissions elicited by Brinkley were numbing, in a funny way. Brinkley has such a soft approach and evidently so do his associate interviewers that even the guilty find it easy talking. All of them made light of their guilt in Brinkley's wily hands. Yet in the wily hands of his editors and cameramen who used little tricks of simple juxtaposition (one man's word next to another's) many obvious inconsistencies in testimony were revealed. It was a sign of excellent editing.

Like CBS-TV's report on gambling in Boston, which was just one city, this NBC show is bound to draw fire—but from many cities, many states and possibly even irate bureaucrats in the Federal system. It seemed, however, that all the way down the line Brinkley's astuteness and the transparently effective device of getting the guilty to convict themselves, should result in more noise than danger.

Color quality was first-rate on the preem. Art.

THE MAGIC LAND OF ALLAKAZAM
With Mark Wilson, Bev Bergerson, Nani Darnell, Mike Wilson, Bob Turner
Producer: Dan Whitman
Director: Andrew Sidaris
30 Mins., Sat.; 12:30 p.m.
LOUIS MARX CO.; LAKESIDE TOYS
ABC-TV, from H'wood (film)

Aimed at the smallfry is "The Magic Land of Allakazam," a half hour film show which preemed Saturday (29) on ABC-TV. There's nothing arty or elevating about this package which is turned out in Hollywood by Mark Wilson Enterprises. But it has that genuine air of make-believe which is certain to lure a hefty slice of the moppet audience.

Wilson is an affable magician-emcee and uncorks a variety of illusions. Among them on the initialer were the old "magic carpet" routine and a bit in which a clown and his auto "disappeared" while enclosed in a steel cage. Bev Bergerson was okay as the clown, Nani Darnell is Wilson's pretty blond assistant while young Mike Wilson works engagingly in a couple of sequences. Bob Turner, as a "wicked magician," rounded out the cast. Gilb.

THE DANNY THOMAS SHOW
With Marjorie Lord, Rusty Hamer, Angela Cartwright, Sid Melton, Pat Carroll
Exec Producer: Sheldon Leonard
Producers: Charles Stewart, Jack Elinson
Director: Leonard
Writers: Stewart, Elinson
30 Mins.; Mon., 9 p.m.
GENERAL FOODS
CBS-TV (film)
(Benton & Bowle's)

Those writing situation comedy for tv should take a good look at "The Danny Thomas Show." It shines with genuine laughs, with talent comfortable and funny in their roles. If "Danny Thomas Show" maintains the pace of its opener for the remainder of the season, the comedic Monday night bloc on CBS-TV should be a winner, indeed.

Preem episode opened with Thomas trying to do some music arranging in a frantic household. There was his wife, Marjorie Lord, vacuuming, and his daughter, Angela Cartwright, finger painting. It was hectic. The short take then shifted in focus, with the spotlight turning on visitors to the household, Pat Carroll and Sid Melton, playing husband and wife, with a new born babe.

Writing team of Charles Stewart and Jack Elinson, who also act as coproducers for the series, fed lines and situations, making the antics and woes of newly-made parents as fresh and funny, as the infant itself. Sid Melton was distressed and stricken because his baby son yowled in his arms. Putting the situation that way doesn't seem funny, for the situation on paper doesn't have the talent of Melton, nor the twists and turns the situation took. Thomas played the veteran father. Miss Carroll the distraught new mother.

Long and short of it was that the outing was funny for the full 30 minutes, and director Sheldon Leonard didn't miss a laugh. Horo.

LEAVE IT TO BEAVER
With Jerry Mathers, Tony Dow, Hugh Beaumont, Barbara Billingsley
Producers: Joe Connelly, Bob Mather
Director: Norman Abbott
Writers: Katherine & Dale Unson
30 Mins.; Thurs. 8:30
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

Now in its sixth tv season and its fifth on ABC-TV, "Leave It to Beaver" seems to be leaving less and less to its title hero, at least if the preem episode is indicative of the run of the show. For the opener, the plot centered around the Beaver's older brother Wally (Tony Dow), who got into a jam when he decided to take his girl to what turned out to be the most expensive restaurant in town.

The show has moved to a new slot and now is seen Thursdays at 8:30. It is family fair, but might hold for the kids in the household. Beaver is at that awkward age now where he's no longer a cute youngster and still not a teener so he's somewhat lost for many situations. Jerry Mathers plays the title role with much head bobbing but little other thespic values.

Big brother got out of his problem thanks to a little intervention from his father (Hugh Beaumont) who ironed out a potentially embarrassing situation when Wally left his wallet at home on the big date. Pop called up the joint and fixed it so his son could sign the tab. Beaver didn't do much of anything except to spill the beans to Wally that his parents had found the wallet at home and had set up the signing bit by phone.

Cheryl Holrdidge was as exuberant and wide-eyed as Wally's dinner date and Than Wyenn was an appropriate waiter. Ken Osmond, as a friend of Wally's, was a bit too much in his usual manner. Katherine & Dale Unson penned the script from an original story by series' producers Joe Connelly and Bob Mosher. Dialog and situation was okay for the moppet market but not for the older group. Norman Abbott directed in smooth, routine fashion. Beaumont and Barbara Billingsley were credible as the parents and Dow was an acceptable Wally.

Canned laughter in spots where there was nothing humorous happening was intrusive and the show seemed rather contrived. Kali.

DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
With Rose Marie, Morey Amsterdam, Mary Tyler Moore, Larry Mathews, Richard Deacon, Jerry Parism, Ann Morgan Guilbert, Jane Dulo, Geraldine Wall, Jerry Hausner, Frank Adamo
Producer: Carl Reiner
Director: John Rich, others
Writers: Reiner, others
30 Mins.; Wed., 9:30 p.m.
PROCTER & GAMBLE: P. LORILLARD
CBS-TV (film)
(Benton & Bowles; Lennen & Newell)

"Dick Van Dyke Show," which was one of the brighter situation comedies on tv last season, has returned intact this fall, but the preem show last Wednesday (26) was a faltering getaway. The kickoff illustrated an iron law for tv comedies: the weaker the gags, the stronger the laughs on the soundtrack. On the opener, the canned guffaws were in thunderous contrast to an anemic script.

Van Dyke, an appealing performer, tried hard in contending with a yarn which had him adopting two orphaned ducks. This was the takeoff point for some obvious and tasteless lines, a couple of which were even repeated, and some windup hokey sentiment in which Van Dyke explained to his son why it was necessary to let ducks live in ponds.

The highpoint of the half hour was a sequence in a veterinarian's outer office. Here there were some sharp thrusts at the animal lover screwballs played in good style by Jane Dulo, Geraldine Wall and Jerry Hausner. This episode points to the standard which this series has to achieve in subsequent stanzas.

Back again with Van Dyke, who plays a tv comedy writer his staff assistants, Morey Amsterdam and Rose Marie, who had subsidiary roles on the opener, his boss, Richard Deacon. Larry Mathews, as Van Dyke's son, registered as a good moppet performer and Mary Tyler Moore made an attractive wife. Other regulars in this series, Jerry Paris and Ann Morgan Guilbert, did not figure on the opener. Herm.

ADVENTURES OF OZZIE & HARRIET
(Rick and The Maid of Honor)
With Ozzie, Harriet, David & Rick Nelson, Jimmy Hawkins, Roberta Shore, Linda Hines, Pamela Austin, others Producer-director: Ozzie Nelson
Writers: Ozzie & Don Nelson, Dick Bensfield, Penny Grant
30 Mins.; Thurs., 7:30 p.m.
Participating
ABC-TV (film)

"Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" had another candle placed on its birthday cake Thursday (11) night, when it returned for its 11th year on ABC-TV. With the boys of the Nelson family maturing and with Rick Nelson a pop fave of the younger set, the end isn't yet in sight.

Opener, titled "Rick and The Maid of Honor," was typical for the long-running skein. It was light and pleasant, with a few chuckles tossed in. Focus of the outing was on Rick, whose thesping qualities could be described as "the Ben Casey of the wax works."

Rick, going through a series of feathery experiences, played it deadpan right through the closing few minutes, when he came out for a song, divorced from the drama. Song was "Teen Age Idol," a maudlin tuner which he sang stoney-faced, the likes of which have made him a disc fave.

Ozzie, in usual pro style, lent some chuckles to the situations, and Harriet was her usual warm self. The other Nelson family son, David, wasn't included in the preem episode. David, now married and with a child of his own, opens new horizons for the series, with mom and pop available for baby-sitting, and with fresh story lines now in order.

Jimmy Hawkins had color and credibility as a student friend of Rick who got married in the episode. Rick had his own problems as best man—another girl with matrimony in her eyes. Roberta Shore was fetching as Rick's girl friend. Skip Young as the fraternity brother joker was okay, as were other members of the supporting cast. Any real college marriages problems were studiously avoided in this light family fantasy. Horo.

BELL & HOWELL CLOSE-UP
(Meet Comrade Student)
Producer-Director: Nicholas Webster
Writer: Robert Lewis Shayon
60 Mins.; Fri., 7:30 p.m.
BELL & HOWELL
ABC-TV (film)
(McCann-Erickson)

ABC-TV, which was late getting into public affairs programming, has succeeded in closing the documentary gap in the last couple of years with its outstanding "Close-up" series. For the new season, Nicholas Webster, the producer-director of last year's memorable "Walk In My Shoes," was given a similar assignment for this report on the Russian educational system.

Because of the over-riding importance of the subject, ABC-TV moved this show out of the usual Tuesday at 10 p.m. slot into a prime Friday night time to reach the largest possible audience. In addition, 219 affiliates cleared this stanza, a new ABC-TV high for this type of show.

Once again, "Close-up" came to grips with a central question of the day. Once again, Webster and his crew fashioned a striking documentary with a professionalism up to the highest achievement of this series. It was an important, absorbing, persuasive documentary. There was only one thing wrong with it—it misinterpreted the Soviet reality.

The intention of "Meet Comrade Student" was to awaken and alarm the American public to the challenge of the Soviets, above all, to their heavy stress on the educational process. But this laudable intent cannot justify the journalistic gullibility which characterized this treatment of Soviet education, a social feature which reveals the whole profile of a civilization.

"Meet Comrade Student" portrayed a social order which, though regimented, gives top priority to the education of its youth in a superbly equipped school plant operated on a thoroughly equalitarian basis. According to the narration the Soviets allocate 21% of their budget to education. According to the film image, the school children were being stretched to the limits of their capabilities. They were being organized, disciplined, stimulated and cultivated throughout the day by a corps of dedicated, warmly human teachers. This system indeed appeared superior, and to too many in the world preferable to the slipshod, ramshackle, penny-pinching American way.

Unfortunately, like so many foreign observors in Russia who believe what they are permitted to see, "Meet Comrade Student" confounded Soviet pretentions with their performance and mistook the narrow visible fact for the wider social reality. The show's opening disclaimer that the Russians did not censor the ABC crew, but "chose the schools we saw and the homes we visited," failed to convey the extent of the Soviet guidance in the shaping of this report.

The unqualified assertion that 21% of the Soviet budget is devoted to education does not stand up under examination. Such an authoritative specialist on the subject as Nicholas DeWitt of Harvard, says that the 1960 figure was 13.8%. It is reasonable to assume that the 1961-62 totals have risen so immensely in the light of Russia's other commitments? In any case, Russian educational budgetary figures are misleading in meaning less because they include such items as cultural services, research, publishing, entertainment and broadcasting. But "Meet Comrade Student" accepted the self-serving Soviet statistic without a single note of reservation.

Similarly the documentary clearly implied that the Moscow elementary school No. 6, under study, was a typical Russian school. The show made no reference to the enormous disparity between urban and rural schools and even among the schools in Moscow, depending on their neighborhood location.

The narrator's assertion that School No. 6 was attended by a cross-section of the population, including children of scientists and street sweepers, and that "only the best students can qualify for higher education" overlooked the most conspicuous contradication in Soviet life—the emergence of a fully formed and highly privileged elite class. Over one-half of the students in the highest professional schools are children of this managerial class. But this elite still studiously perpetuates the myth of Soviet equality since it is among their most effective propaganda weapons in the struggle for the world.

Against the powerful thrust of the photographic images of the studying, playing, laughing children, "Meet Comrade Student" did strike a partially critical note on occasion, particularly in the section of boarding schools where the uniformity and drabness suggested a prison existence. Here there was heard some muffled reverberations from a totalitarian society.

Unfortunately, "Meet Comrade Student" could not solve problem of arousing the American public to the Soviet challenge and, at the same time, maintain a critical balance in appraising the efficiency and ruthlessness of the Soviets. When the script attempted to question the fundamentals of the Soviet system, it did so with the following reticence: "If in man there is a vital something, an elusive factor X, which forever escapes planners, then the Communists may find their success limited."

This formulation is a complete fudging of an excellent point. Why not pin down the "elusive factor X" by calling it by its right name: man's need for freedom. And if that need exists, the Communists will not "find their success limited," they will go crashing down to ultimate defeat. Herm.

PERRY MASON
(The Case of the Bogus Books)
With Raymond Burr, Barbara Hale, William Hopper, Ray Collins, William Talman, Adam West, John Abbott, H. M. Wynant, Jody Baker, others
Exec Producer: Gail Patrick Jackson
Producer: Art Seid
Director: Art Marks
Writer: Jonathan Latimer
60 Mins., Thurs., 8 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
CBS-TV (film)

"Perry Mason" is in a new Thursday night slot where he'll have to stand trial against "Dr. Kildare." That promises to be more intriguing than "The Case of the Bogus Books," which gaveled the new semester to order.

"Mason" made a weak opening argument for his sixth season on CBS-TV in a hokey whodunit that was shot through with implausibilities and teetered on some awkwardly-conceived characters. Raymond Burr's credible portrayal of the whizbang attorney, and the superior production values that have been typical of the series from its inception, saved the episode from descending to a mere guessing game wherein the viewer, freed from any involvement in the human "drama," merely tried to finger the culprit and dope his motive before Mason could.

At its best, the courtroom series always falls somewhere in that cozy area between drama and melodrama. The opening show lost its footing early and came off as pure meller. Of a whole skein of unlikelihoods, the first was that an impecunious clerk, fired from her bookstore job on suspicion of theft, should take her apparently petty case to as classy a lawyer as Perry Mason. From the size of his office alone, he would seem too expensive for her league. The second was that Mason would accept the case at all, on the vague hunch that there was more to it than met the eye. And the third was that the bookseller should leave "hot" volumes, worth $8,000, on the open shelves to throw off suspicion by his clerical help, when his ukase not to sell those particular books without his personal okay would only invite greater suspicion.

Once past the initial implausibilities, the rest of them could be accepted with a shrug, but the story was done for. Nor was it helped by the inconsistencies of the suspect characters. Mason managed to solve two crimes at once, exposing the murderer and the ring of first edition thieves, but the guilty parties were so unbelievable that it didn't seem a magnificent achievement.

"Mason" is entitled to an occasional dud, but it's unfortunate that this entry was picked for the season's premiere since that should be a best-foot-forward occasion.

Presumably the shabby script and performances won't be typical of what's to come this season, and if that is so "Mason" should plead a pretty good case for himself against the Thursday night competition. Les.

DICK POWELL SHOW
(Special Assignment)
With Dick Powell, June Allyson, Edgar & Frances Bergen, Jackie Cooper, Lloyd Nolan, Mickey Rooney, Barbara Stanwyck
Producer: Aaron Spelling
Director: Don Taylor
Writers: Ben Starr, Bob O'Brien, Ellis St. John
60 Mins., Tues., 9:30 p.m.
REYNOLDS METAL, AMERICAN GAS ASSN., KIMBERLY-CLARK
NBC-TV (film)
(Lennen & Newell; Foote Conte & Belding)

Rolling into its second season, the "Dick Powell Show" still impresses as solid tv entertainment dished up with a high gloss. Following last year's format, this show will star Powell in every third episode in an anthology of predominantly action dramas. This series, of course, varies in calibre from week to week, depending on the script, but overall, it manages to maintain a high level of performance.

The kickoff stanza last Tuesday (25) was a typical entry, certainly not at the top of this series' form. While the story was routine, the cast added up to a powerhouse roster of guest stars and the production was classy throughout.

The somewhat familiar yarn revolved around the attempt by a dying multi-millionaire, played by Lloyd Nolan, to find out whether his handful of "devoted friends" deserve to inherit his fortune. He hires Powell, playing an attorney-investigator, to determine who is to get his money. This assignment takes Powell on a round-robin trip in which he assumes various roles of portrait photographer, bartender, hunter, etc., to meet the various people in Nolan's life.

Each of the guest stars turned in sharp, miniature portraits of people on the make for Nolan's money. Barbara Stanwyck was a lush; Edgar Bergen and his wife Frances were a pair of incompetent parents; Mickey Rooney was a friendless caddy; Jackie Cooper a cowboy twisted by hate; and June Allyson was demented. In each instance, Powell dispensed a bit of advice to change their lives. At the windup, Powell also decided to divide up the money among the claimants, figuring that they deserved it as payment for Nolan's tyrannical treatment.

The story was pat, but the pacing skillfully sustained impact over the full hour. Don Taylor directed the names with a firm hand. Herm.

THE CHEYENNE SHOW
(The Durango Brothers)
With Clint Walker, Sally Kellerman, Jack Elam, Ellen Corby, Mickey Simpson, Charles Briggs, Warren Douglas, Phil Arnold, Chuck Hicks, Alex Sharpe
Producer: Burt Dunne
Director: Warren Douglas
60 Mins., Mon., 7:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

It's 12 to go for Clint Walker and he can forget all about "Cheyenne." As if to match it, the Warners' western has 12 sponsors scattered through the series. Eight years of busting jaws and shooting down varmints and Walker moves on to better things to indulge his thespic talent. To call the season's opener of "Cheyenne" no taller than any other sagebrusher is not giving it the worst of it. Maybe the mountain men and their women do things like that, but it's even a strain on the imagination to conjure up a right purty gal asking a stranger to marry her.

This sets off the plot and when the roving lawman ain't yet for marryin', her big brothers, and you never saw such a mangy group, are about to force him to. When he outwits them at every homicidal turn, one of them groans, "You're the doggonest hardest man to kill I ever saw." They even brought in a snake to give him the fatal bite. Walker is pretty much of a cad, however, for Lottie, the loveless rescued him more than once. actor, using his own method to

Walker is a type of method supplement his physical gifts. Sally Kellerman looked like a shining angel amid that brood of unwashed mountaineers and gave a spanking good account of her over-powering role. After the front 13, several of the cast now being groomed will assume the title role. Larry Ward may be first up. Helm.

SING ALONG WITH MITCH
With Mitch Miller, Leslie Uggams, Gloria Lambert, Bob McGrath, Louise O'Brien, Sing Along Gang, Jimmy Carroll, musical direction
Producer-Director: Bill Hobin
Associate Producer-Writer: Gordon Cotler
60 Mins., Fri., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
NBC-TV, from N.Y. (color)

Mitch Miller should do even better this year. In the move from a Thursday to Friday berth, he's been slotted at a time reasonable enough for the entire family to watch along and do practically anything else the Mephistopholean maestro suggests.

Miller has made "Sing Along" a national phenom via the tv series and his long string of clicko LPs for Columbia. It's practically a household phrase by now and the fact that Miller and his style have become a subject for parody (even Jack Benny took a comedic fling at the Miller sing on his opening show of the season earlier in the week) further establishes "Sing Along's" hold on the entertainment biz.

There's been no change in the formula in the switch to a new time slot. The accent is on musical nostalgia laid out with a simple beat and embellished by some production trappings to give the show its video values.

The show is divided into several segments centered on a specific theme. On the opener, for example, there was a segment on the waltz, on composers and the hit song for which they were best remembered, an adaptation of pic house slides culled from the vaults of the N.Y. Paramount, and the "everybody sing along" closer, of course.

The show has a bright pace and even though some of the numbers get to sound alike after a while, the total effect is quite pleasant.

His "Gang" of 25 stalwart singers carry the vocal lead and give the show most of its zing. Of his soloists, Leslie Uggams came off well with "Try A Little Tenderness," Gloria Lambert was properly perky on "Them There Eyes" and Bob McGrath fit the tenor bill perfectly on "Delia."

James Starbuck whipped up several lively motion patterns for the "Gang" and 10 girl dancers, all goodlookers: by the way, and the camerawork was sharp and flowing. The show should do well as long as family togetherness remains in vogue.

Incidentally, NBC-TV managed to get in a solid trailer for another of its shows without gumming up Miller's proceedings. During the closing sing along sequence, the camera flashed on the stars of "Car 54 Where Are You" doing their vocal bit for Miller & Gang on "Yes We Have No Bananas." Maybe that's what policemen do when they're moonlighting. Gros.

GENERAL ELECTRIC TRUE
(Circle of Death)
With Jack Webb, host-narrator; William Conrad, Wynn Pearce, Rachel Ames, Jo Anne Spencer, Jerry Gales, Charles G. Martin, Victor French, Don Harvey
Producer: Mike Meshekoff
Director: Webb
Writer: Dale Wasserman
30 Mins., Sun., 9:30 a.m.
GENERAL ELECTRIC
CBS-TV (film)
(BBDO)

A slick, suspenseful half-hour opened General Electric's new anthology series, "True," Sunday (30) night on CBS-TV. It had many echoes of "Dragnet" and the hands of Jack Webb, exec producer, and director, on the opener was very much in evidence.

Preem titled "Circle of Death" also was reminiscent of the many medico shows now prevalent, even though the setting was different. For all the familiarities, both old and new, it's to the show's credit that the characters and situations were credible and interesting. The moments of suspense were there, as well.

Whether the skein will turn out to be a hot half-hour is still a question with only one segment telecast. Last half of NBC-TV's "Bonanza" is no small competition. The sharp editing, laconic style of Webb proved to be an assist in the preem Dale Wasserman-scripted episode. Whether Webb's style will lend itself to the other demands of this anthology series is another question, it may prove to be too confining.

William Conrad, as the naval doctor, performed in fine, pro fashion, getting the most out of the lines and the situation. Preem plot centered around the problem of removing a "live" shell from the abdomen of a marine, wounded at Okinawa. Wynn Pearce, as the wounded marine registered all the facial agonies needed.

The sharply edited episode began with the induction of the doctor and then switched to the hospital ship, where most of the episode took place. Situation built on situation and it became of vital interest and concern that the shell be removed. The story was that of heroism which was capped by a happy ending. Production values were excellent and the supporting players were uniformly fine.

Series is keyed to articles appearing in True mag. Opener had promise. Horo.

THE UNTOUCHABLES
(The Night They Shot Santa Claus)
With Robert Stack, Ruth White, Nita Talbot, Murvyn Vye, Russell Collins, Isabel Jewell, Grace Lee Whitney, John Duke, Paul Picerni, Nicholas Georgiade, Abel Fernandez, Steve London
Exec Producer: Leonard Freeman
Producer: Alvin Cooperman
Director: Alex March
Writer: Mort Thaw
60 Mins.; Tues., 9:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

Lest its cops 'n' robbers format become too wearing on viewers, "The Untouchables" is varying the traditional blueprint for the show's fourth season which preemed Tuesday (25) on ABC-TV. Budgets are being upped and more production trappings presumably will help freshen up this film series which is based on the Prohibition era exploits of federal agent Eliot Ness in Chicago's gangland.

Changes won't be amiss either for with the series in a new day and time slot it's up against competition from CBS-TV's "Jack Benny Show" and NBC-TV's hour-long "Dick Powell" drama dish. Last year when in the Thursday at 10 groove it faced "CBS Reports" and NBC's "Sing Along with Mitch." Whether the format alterations will retain "The Untouchables'" loyal following and lure new viewers remains to be seen.

Inaugural episode, for example, was hardly a crackling, action-packed kickoff. The Mort Thaw teleplay, tagged "The Night They Shot Santa Claus," contained many clinches. Robert Stack, who portrays Ness, toiled determinedly throughout the better part of the premiere to solve several killings.

Tucked in the script was the civic-minded citizen who played "Santa Claus" by day and consorted with the underworld at night; his wife who originally professed not to know anything about her husband's "secret" background but came clean at the finale; the chorines who played dumb, the wardrobe mistress who told all, the q.t. girl friend and the sadistic ganglord.

All the familiar situations were there including Stack's arrest of the murderer in the closing minutes. But viewers were in for a surprise for instead of the law's inevitable triumph the suspect won an acquittal—all the witnesses were dead. That was a switch, indeed, and in keeping with the new format which isn't making Stack a 100% hero.

Stack, per usual, impressed as a relentless champion of the law. Ruth White gave an emotional reading to the role of the major victim's widow, Nita Talbot was well cast as the frightened girl friend, Murvyn Vye sparkled as the gang leader who got away with his crimes while Isabel Jewell provided a nice cameo as the wardrobe mistress who turned informer. Grace Lee Whitney and John Duke, among others, acceptably handled lesser roles. Paul Picerni, Nicholas Georgiade, Abel Fernandez and Steve London are credible as Stack's aides.

Direction of Alex March got a fair amount of suspense out of Thaw's mediocre script while exec producer Leonard Freeman and producer Alvin Cooperman draped the entry with its customary documentary polish. Charles Straumer's camerawork was good as was the Pete Rugolo score. Walter Winchell, who continues as narrator, supplies an authentic touch. Countless plugs of the many participating sponsors are an obvious distraction. Gilb.

MM

METROPOLITAN BROADCASTING TELEVISION
WNEW-TV New York
WTTG Washington, D.C.
KMBC-TV Kansas City, Mo.
KOVR Sac.-Stockton, Calif.
WTVH Peoria, Illinois
WTVP Decatur, Illinois

METROPOLITAN BROADCASTING RADIO
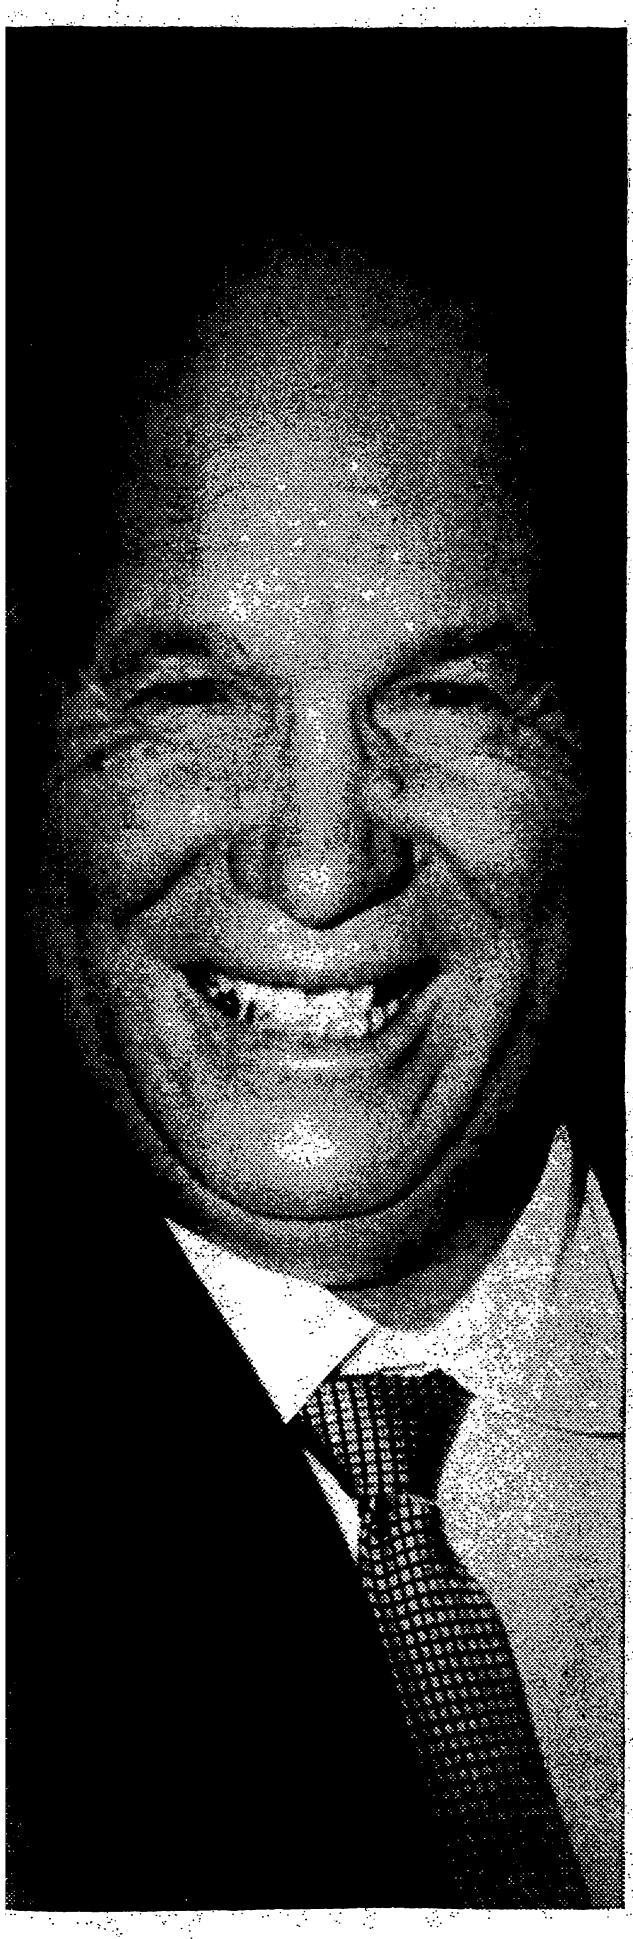
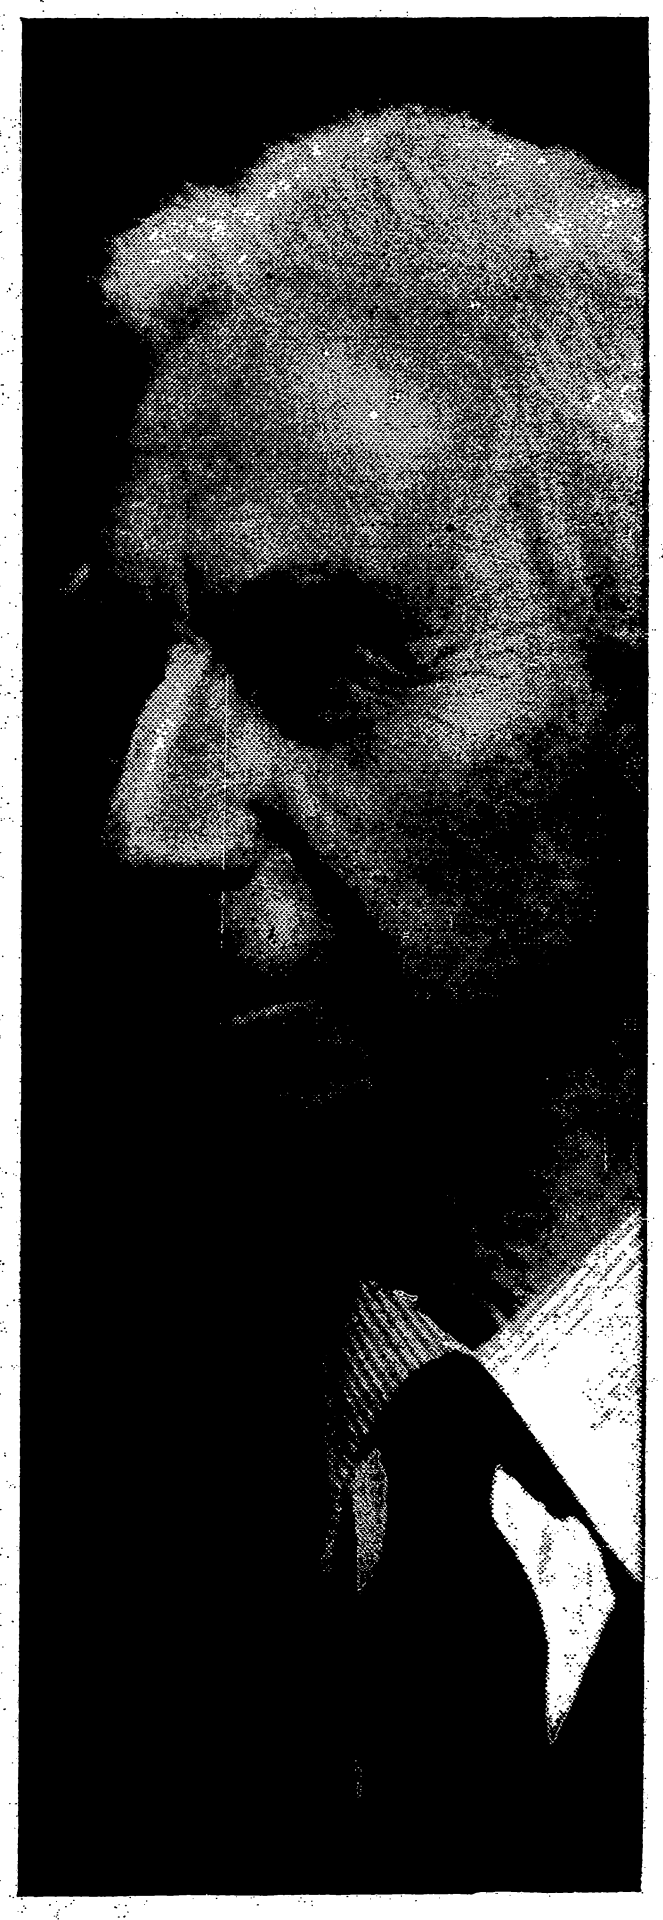
WNEW New York
WIP Philadelphia, Pa.
WHK Cleveland, Ohio
KMBC Kansas City, Mo.

FOSTER AND KLEISER
OUTDOOR ADVERTISING
Offices in California,
Washington and Oregon



METRO BROADCAST SALES
Station Representatives

WORLDWIDE BROADCASTING
WRUL Radio, New York



International accord

These six world-famous figures reached agreement on at least one subject: Each has appeared on "Open End," television's finest discussion program, for an extended two-hour conversation with host David Susskind. Produced by Metropolitan Broadcasting Television, "Open End" is one of many features on national, foreign and local issues presented each week on Metromedia's Television, Radio and International Broadcasting Stations. Our Foster and Kleiser Outdoor Division, turns to its community responsibilities in similar fashion by providing an extensive number of poster panels and painted bulletins each year for vital public service campaigns throughout California, Washington and Oregon. Metromedia, a diversified communications company, dedicated to a "quality operations" philosophy, presents the finest in entertainment, information and education to people living in an area covering two-thirds of the world. METROMEDIA

VARIETY-ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top 10 network shows on a local level and offers a rating study of the top 10 syndicated shows in the same particular markets. This week four different markets are covered.

Both the network and syndication study features the total area homes reached and the metro area ratings on each show. The total area homes reached reflects the audiences on the basis of the total market area examined. The metro area ratings are based on the metropolitan markets within the total area examined. Top 10 shows, both network and syndicated, are listed on the basis of their showing in the total area homes barometer.

Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY Coupled with the rating performance of the top 10 network shows, on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every market in the U. S.

MOLINE, EAST MOLINE, ROCK ISLAND, ILL. DAVENPORT IA.

STATIONS: WHBF, WOC. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

Rk.	PROGRAM	Sta.	Total Area Homes Reached	Metro Area Rtg.
1.	Sing A'long	WOC	108,300	49
2.	I've Got A Secret; Casey; Carnegie	WHBF	104,800	36
3.	Hennesey; Casey; Carnegie	WHBF	102,700	39
4.	Hazel	WOC	98,800	52
5.	Andy Griffith	WHBF	93,200	34
6.	Bonanza	WOC	87,900	46
7.	Danny Thomas	WHBF	85,100	29
8.	Gunsmoke	WHBF	79,300	37
8.	Garry Moore	WHBF	79,300	34
9.	Candid Camera	WHBF	77,500	28

Rk.	PROGRAM, Day & Time	Sta.	Dist.	Tot. Area Homes Reached	Met. Area Rtg.
1.	Shannon (Fri. 9:30)	WOC	Screen Gems	52,800	31
2.	Two Faces West (Fri. 10:00)	WOC	Screen Gems	46,800	22
3.	Peter Gunn (Tues. 10:00)	WHBF	Official	41,400	24
4.	Phil Silvers (Thurs. 10:00)	WOC	CBS Films	40,800	21
5.	King of Diamonds (Tues. 10:00)	WHBF	Ziv-UA	36,500	16
6.	Huckleberry Hound (Fri. 6:00)	WOC	Screen Gems	34,200	16
7.	Yogi Bear (Wed. 6:00)	WOC	Screen Gems	31,300	17
8.	Third Man (Wed. 10:00)	WOC	NTA	28,000	19
9.	Quick Draw McGraw (Mon. 6:00)	WOC	Screen Gems	27,300	16
10.	Bugs Bunny (Thurs. 6:00)	WHBF	UAA	16,200	7

Compet.	Sta.	Total Homes
Eyewitness	WHBF	35,900
Bachelor Father	WHBF	43,300
King of Diamonds	WOC	36,500
Straightaway	WHBF	32,000
Peter Gunn	WHBF	41,400
Hathaways	WHBF	15,500
Donna Reed	WHBF	28,300
Lawman	WHBF	44,900
Ozzie & Harriet	WHBF	27,200
Flintstones	WOC	37,100

ROCHESTER, N.Y.

STATIONS: WROC, WHEC. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Hazel	WNEM	109,500	44
2.	Sing Along	WROC	93,800	43
3.	Bonanza	WROC	91,700	34
4.	Dr. Kildare	WROC	89,000	39
5.	Dick Powell	WROC	70,800	36
6.	Andy Griffith	WHEC	68,800	32
7.	Twilight Zone	WHEC	68,400	31
8.	Price Is Right	WROC	68,200	29
9.	87th Precinct	WROC	67,200	29
9.	Hennesey; Carnegie	WHEC	67,200	33

1.	Third Man (Fri. 9:30)	WHEC	NTA	47,600	25	Shore; Breakthrough
						Africa; Moon
2.	Three Stooges (Sat. 9:00)	WROC	Screen Gems	44,400	14	Captain Kangaroo
3.	Keyhole (Fri. 10:30)	WROC	Ziv-UA	40,800	21	Eyewitness
4.	Shannon (Sat. 8:30)	WROC	Screen Gems	37,500	17	Defenders
5.	Beachcomber (Sun. 10:30)	WHEC	ITC	32,100	7	DuPont Show
6.	Whirlybirds (Thurs. 7:00)	WHEC	CBS Films	31,700	15	Top Cat
7.	Huckleberry Hound (Fri. 6:00)	WHEC	Screen Gems	29,700	13	Theatre
7.	Yogi Bear (Wed. 6:00)	WHEC	Screen Gems	29,700	13	Theatre
8.	Jeff's Collie; Velvet (Tues. 7:00)	WROC	ITC	26,800	12	My 3 Sons
9.	Everglades (Sat. 7:00)	WHEC	Ziv-UA	25,700	13	Chet Huntley

Shore; Breakthrough Africa; Moon	WROC	33,400
Captain Kangaroo	WHEC	17,200
Eyewitness	WHEC	33,600
Defenders	WHEC	54,900
DuPont Show	WROC	55,000
Top Cat	WROC	14,600
Theatre	WROC	17,900
Theatre	WROC	17,000
My 3 Sons	WHEC	44,700
Chet Huntley	WROC	21,600

ROANOKE

STATIONS: WDBJ, WSLS, WLVA. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	To Tell The Truth	WDBJ	84,800	33
2.	Perry Mason	WDBJ	75,700	24
3.	Ed Sullivan	WDBJ	71,500	26
4.	Pete & Gladys	WDBJ	70,700	28
5.	Hazel	WSLS	70,300	35
6.	Bonanza	WSLS	69,100	40
7.	Twilight Zone	WDBJ	62,500	22
8.	Dr. Kildare	WSLS	61,700	39
9.	Red Skelton	WDBJ	61,400	30
10.	Gunsmoke	WDBJ	61,100	29

1.	Death Valley Days (Mon. 7:00)	WDBJ	U.S. Borax	54,000	28	Wyatt Earp
2.	Amos & Andy (Thurs. 7:00)	WDBJ	CBS Films	40,600	15	Beachcomber
3.	Jim Backus (Sat. 7:00)	WDBJ	NBC Films	36,700	6	Riverboat
4.	Highway Patrol (Fri. 7:00)	WDBJ	Ziv-UA	36,600	14	Klub Kwiz
5.	Shannon (Tues. 7:00)	WDBJ	Screen Gems	34,100	21	You Asked; McGraw
6.	Grand Ole Opry (Sat. 5:30)	WDBJ	Flamingo	24,000	8	Roy Rogers
7.	You Asked For It; Meet McGraw (Tues. 7:00)	WSLS	Crosby Brown; ABC	23,900	9	Shannon
8.	Wyatt Earp (Mon. 7:00)	WSLS	ABC Films	22,800	9	Death Valley Days
9.	Three Stooges (Mon. 5:30)	WSLS	Screen Gems	22,300	13	Early Show
10.	Third Man (Mon. 7:30)	WSLS	NTA	21,400	8	Tell The Truth

Wyatt Earp	WSLS	22,800
Beachcomber	WSLS	20,800
Riverboat	WSLS	14,500
Klub Kwiz	WSLS	27,700
You Asked; McGraw	WSLS	23,900
Roy Rogers	WSLS	7,900
Shannon	WDBJ	34,100
Death Valley Days	WDBJ	54,000
Early Show	WDBJ	22,700
Tell The Truth	WDBJ	84,800

SACRAMENTO-STOCKTON

STATIONS: KCRA, KXTV, KOVR. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Hazel	KCRA	132,900	35
2.	Wagon Train	KCRA	130,400	34
3.	Dr. Kildare	KCRA	121,600	30
4.	Bonanza	KCRA	121,000	33
5.	Perry Mason	KXTV	106,300	33
6.	Gunsmoke	KXTV	105,800	28
7.	Ben Casey	KOVR	104,900	25
8.	Danny Thomas	KXTV	102,700	25
9.	Red Skelton	KXTV	100,800	30
10.	Dick Powell	KCRA	96,100	18

1.	Divorce Court (Sat. 5:00)	KCRA	Storer TV	63,000	19	Races
						Movie
2.	Tightrope; New Breed (Tues. 8:30)	KOVR	Screen Gems	61,900	16	Hitchcock
3.	Death Valley Days (Sun. 6:00)	KCRA	U.S. Borax	56,400	15	Wide World Sports
4.	Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:00)	KCRA	Ziv-UA	54,900	18	Broken Arrow
5.	Beachcomber (Fri. 9:30)	KXTV	ITC	54,500	13	77 Sunset Strip
6.	Wanted Dead or Alive (Fri. 7:00)	KXTV	CBS Films	50,100	13	Phil Silvers
7.	Shannon (Wed. 7:00)	KCRA	Screen Gems	50,000	14	Van Dyke
8.	Best of Groucho; Guestward (Thurs. 7:30)	KCRA	NBC Films	47,300	12	Ozzie & Harriet Donna Reed
9.	Tombstone Territory (Sat. 6:00)	KCRA	Ziv-UA	47,200	11	Wrestling; Relays
10.	Ripcord (Mon. 7:00)	KXTV	Ziv-UA	46,600	16	Movie

Races	KXTV	20,800
Movie	KXTV	55,400
Hitchcock	KCRA	70,700
Wide World Sports	KOVR	28,300
Broken Arrow	KXTV	42,400
77 Sunset Strip	KOVR	66,000
Phil Silvers	KCRA	44,800
Van Dyke	KXTV	65,300
Ozzie & Harriet	KOVR	75,600
Donna Reed	KOVR	93,400
Wrestling; Relays	KOVR	47,900
Movie	KCRA	44,700

Elmer Lower: Study In Motion

Continued from page 29

full-fledged political scientist from the Brookings Institute to give meaning and a sense of cohesion to the results of races, throughout the country, for the House of Representatives. He's Dr. Milton J. Cummings, who earned his Harvard doctorate analyzing the voting strength of Congressional districts. It might be said NBC hired him for his homework. (Web also has Cummings working as consultant on a two-parter, "Anatomy of the House.")

With Cummings (who replaces Richard Scammon, because the latter gave up NBC academia to become head of the Census Bureau), NBC will naturally use its regular commentators—besides anchorman Huntley & Brinkley, there'll be Richard Harkness on the RCA computer from New Jersey, there'll be Sander Vanocur, Frank McGee, Merrill (Red) Mueller and John Chancellor. Vanocur will specialize in [illegible] returns in the east, McGee on the south. Mueller on the midwest and Chancellor on the west.

Lower has found that coverage of a year like this one proves more costly and effort consuming than a presidential election, "because the emphasis is on so many different races."

Best and "most practical" way to solve the spread is to concentrate, according to the news exec. First of all, he explains, NBC will concentrate mostly on what the network's news brass figure are the four most interesting races, those in which GOP Presidential candidates might well be shaped for '64. He lists them as Pennsylvania, where the Republicans have mounted William Worthington Scranton (they named the town after his clan) has been mounted as a gubenatorial candidate. In Michigan, the gubenatorial race is by GOP's George Romney, in California by Richard M. Nixon, and in N. Y. by Nelson Rockefeller.

"If you consider this a warmup for '64, you necessarily turn your spotlight on N. Y., Michigan, Pennsylvania and California," says Lower.

As in '60, NBC will pay closer attention to 15 states than to the other 35. The 15 big states, which NBC News might well overrun with correspondents, et al., represent "two-thirds of the popular vote," and Lower says that it's necessary to go "all out" in these places.

Web will have to depend in some measure in the remaining 35 states on the wire services for returns.

H&B American Acquires Palm Springs Translator

Palm Springs, Oct. 2.

H & B American Corp has taken over operations of Palm Springs Translator Stations Inc., it was announced by operations v.p. Leon N. Papernow. Three tv channels now operated by Translator, only "off air" tv facility in the desert area, will be continued as long as public need exists.

H&B American owns Palm Springs TV Co., community antenna tv system carrying seven L. A tv stations to Palm Springs by direct cable.

TV's Massive News Pile-Up

Continued from page 29

NBC-TV had another Miss. special skedded.

NBC-TV had 15 men shuttling between Jackson and Oxford Miss., the capital and the school site. ABC News had 22 including five news staffers. CBS had a high number, although the precise count was not available at press time. (Lisa Howard of ABC News was threatened by Mississippi law officers and covered the yarn from Memphis thereafter.

In addition to all this, the three networks had full camera and correspondent teams in Canaveral for the planned six-orbit manflight. NBC, just for example, had nearly 50 men on the scene.

Should one of the ballgames on NBC-TV overlap with the manshoot, the web, at present, figures on running a crawl under the picture of the players. The crawl will give a word story on the progress of the Schirra flight. Should Ol' Miss continue burning, then a viewer is likely to see some pretty fancy sound and audio cutting from game, to crawl, to Miss.

In any event, the tv network braintrusters look forward to a day in the country. To make it restful, it'd undoubtedly have to be north country.

'Kangaroo' Pouch Swells

"Captain Kangaroo," enters its eighth year on CBS-TV, as a daytime strip, in its best sales position. For the fourth quarter, sales are at a peak, with 160 of the 260 available quarter hours sold out.

The kid strip, telecast Monday through Friday from 8 to 9 a.m., and Saturdays 9 to 10 a.m., has achieved a 60% sales level in the fourth quarter.

Sponsors include Continental Baking, Kellogg, Welch, Tinker Toy, General Foods, Crayola, Color Forms, DeLux Reading, Schwinn, and Matey. The Ohio Art Co. bought participations over an eight-week period starting Oct. 25.

What's in volumes 4 and 5 of Seven Arts' "Films of the 50's"?

Broadway from 20th Century Fox in:
FOR HEAVENS SAKE—starring
Clifton Webb, Joan Bennett, and Robert Cummings

CHICKEN EVERY SUNDAY—starring Dan Dailey and Celeste Holm, and many more top hits contained in Volume 4's 40 great "Films of the 50's."

Broadway from Warner Bros. in:
THE PAJAMA GAME—starring
Doris Day, John Raitt and Carol Haney

THE BAD SEED—starring
Nancy Kelly, Patty McCormack, and Eileen Heckart

NO TIME FOR SERGEANTS—starring
Andy Griffith, Nick Adams, and Myron McCormick and many more top hits contained in Volume 5's 53 great "Films of the 50's."

AND...SUSPENSE...COMEDY...SCIENCE FICTION...
ACTION...DRAMA...

Seven Arts Volumes 4 & 5 have everything—everything to please your audiences—top stars—top stories—top directors—they're all in Seven Arts'
"Films of the 50's" "Money Makers of the 60's"
Volumes 4 & 5 now available from Seven Arts.

BERNADINE
Pat Boone, Terry Moore
Janet Gaynor

KISS THEM FOR ME
Cary Grant,
Jayne Mansfield

AUNTIE MAME
Rosalind Russell,
Forrest Tucker, Peggy Cass

DAMN YANKEES
Tab Hunter, Gwen Verdon,
Ray Walston

SEVEN ARTS ASSOCIATED CORP.

A SUBSIDIARY OF SEVEN ARTS PRODUCTIONS, LTD.
NEW YORK: 270 Park Avenue YUkon 6-1717
CHICAGO: 8922-D N. La Crosse (P.O. Box 613), Skokie, Ill. ORchard 4-5105
DALLAS: 5641 Charlestown Drive ADams 9-2855
LOS ANGELES: 3562 Royal Woods Drive STate 8-8276
TORONTO, ONTARIO: 11 Adelaide St. West • EMpire 4-7193

For list of TV stations programming Seven Arts' "Films of the 50's" see Third Cover SRDS (Spot TV Rates and Data)
Individual feature prices upon request.

Armstrong Goal: Reach God-Fearing, Tax-Paying Set & Ratings Go Hang —On Other Madison Ave. Fronts

By BILL GREELEY

When they start to slice up the tv audience, they talk about mass viewers, the selective quintile, egg heads or the minority, or the young homemakers who have the buying power and so on. But Max Banzhaf, ad director of Armstrong Cork says he's most interested in an unsung, unTrumpeted segment of "God fearing, tax paying" solid citizens—"the hardworking, honest, intelligent citizens who are the backbone of any society like ours."

Thus for "Armstrong Circle Theatre," which preemed its 13th season last week (eighth as an alternate-week hour semi-documentary drama), the aim is not the highest rating possible—not "reach" or "frequency," the standard broadcast criteria, but "impact." It's an element, he says, that is impossible to measure. Same time, "Circle" weathered such competition as "$64,000 Question" in its hottest days, and it's on the books which show went down in flames of its own heat.

"In the society in which we live," says the ad director, "it's becoming increasingly difficult to appeal to a certain audience, or pick out who you want to." But over a season, Banzhaf figures that "Circle's" variety of subject matter gets a viewing somewhere from just about all of the God-fearing, tax-paying set.

It would be not too difficult to increase the audience with racket shows, or with the sordid, seamy or sensational. ("Circle's" dope and crime stanzas have always pulled higher ratings), but he says, such investigations always repulse many in the audience, and they are not viewed with the absorption of shows slanted to a prime concern of many viewers (example would be the study of the problems of entering college today, which the show treated).

Banzhaf laments the passing of video's so-called "Golden Age" from an advertising standpoint. He points out that the coming season will see four product categories accounting for 60% of all prime sponsorships—food, drugs, toilet preparations and soap. The same four, he says, account for 90% of all daytime. Adding three more products to nighttime, the figure is also 90%—cars, cigs and appliances. The 10% that Armstrong falls into has been steadily diminishing, along with the solo sponsorships that provided so many of tv's distinguished programs.

Anyhow, Armstrong Cork has prospered, as the ad director, and the lucrative video exposure hasn't hurt a lot to do with it. And "Circle" so far as he is concerned, is a fine show to present products which a viewer is likely to buy once every seven years (flooring, siding, roofing and other home-building and improvement products).

There is one thing he would like, however. That's a weekly instead of alternate-week hour—"But then you're talking about an investment of $10 or $11,000,000."

Author, Author

David Ogilvy of Ogilvy, Benson & Mather, is writing a book, Confessions of an Ad Man, which publishers' row has been hot after. Looks as though it will go to Knopf, which published Rosser Reeves' "Tel Bates" "Reality in Advertising." That one is now available in more than a dozen countries.

Toby Stein, project director with McCann-Erickson, has a cookbook coming out Oct. 18, "How to Appeal to a Man's Appetites," which publisher Stein & Day is pushing as sexy. Says the blurb, "This is a book for the woman who knows that a full stomach does not fulfill all of a man's desires and that the joy of cooking can have other rewards as well."

Knoxville—D. Lee Hoover, news director of WATE radio and tv, has resigned effective Oct. 1 to become editor of the weekly Giles Free Press at Pulaski, Tenn. Formerly associated with WKSR in Pulaski, Hoover joined the WATE combine in 1959.

London Agencies

London, Oct. 2.

Gene David, for 14 years art director of the American edition of Good Housekeeping, has joined Smith-Warden Ltd. here as art consultant . . . First national advertiser to use a Welsh language tv commercial is Shell-Mex & BP Ltd. A 60-second spot was transmitted from Cardiff by Wales-TV, latest of the indie contractors, on the station's opening night . . . Gift-for-Christmas advertising is expected to hit a record peak this year on television. A number of agencies are putting the final touches to exceptionally heavy campaigns. For instance, Remington, which claims "the biggest, most concentrated ad campaign ever mounted in the British market by any shaver manufacturer," is spending 70% more this year than last on the Yuletide plug. Estimate is that Remington's budget is set at more than $700,000 . . . John Butler returned after working more than a year in the St. Louis and New York offices of the Gardner Advertising Co.

'4 Window Girl' As MGM Series

MGM-TV has bought the rights to "The Four Window Girl or How to Make More Money Than Man," a book by Shepherd Mead, as the basis of a new half-hour comedy series.

It'll be produced by Norman Felton, MGM-TV's director of programming. Mead is the author of the book, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," which was converted into the current Broadway musical click.

New assignment now gives Felton six projects being developed for his Arena Productions. Other shows being prepared are "Ship's Doctor," half-hour comedy for which Arthur Rose is writing the script; "The Lieutenant," Gene Roddenberry writing; "Time of Decision," Howard Rodman writing; "Sister Mike," John T. Dugan, writing, and "The Mosaic," Jerry McNeely writing. Last four will be full-hour dramatic series.

'CBS Reports' Boost Power Of the Pen In Documentary On Carson's 'Silent Spring'

When "CBS Reports" does its hour telementary on Rachael Carson's "The Silent Spring" the theme of the 60 minutes will be "the power of a book." The pros and cons of Miss Carson's allegations about the effects of insecticides and other artificial agents will be examined.

The focus of the Jay McMullen production, under the aegis of exec producer Fred Friendly, though, will be on how the written word remains one of the most powerful means of communications in our democratic society. Threads in the theme will include how one woman finds herself arrayed against an entire industry, writes a book which makes the issues she raises a subject of national debate, all this in the space age. It will be telecast either later this month or in November.

Another "CBS Reports" project is an hour on the Nixon-Brown California contest, which will be picked up as an election package by the CBS-TV sponsors. Titled "California Battle Ground," it will be telecast on Oct. 31.

TRANSCONTINENT TV'S DIVVY

Transcontinent Television Corp. has declared a dividend of 12½c per share on the outstanding common stock, payable Nov. 15 to stockholders of record Oct. 31, 1962.

TTC prexy David C. Moore said the dividends declared this year have totaled 50c a share compared to 30c a year ago.

Monaco's Int'l TV Fest

Monte Carlo's third International Television Festival has been slated for Jan. 10 through 19 next year in Monaco with invites going out to tv folks throughout the world (15 countries took part last year).

A change in regulations this year will permit programs aired during the '62 calendar year from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31 to be submitted (last year's deadline was Dec. 15).

Gold Nymph Awards will be presented for the best performance by an actor and actress, best direction, best script, best kid show and best cultural, historical or scientific show in its contribution to international understanding.

Film Stuntmen Scream 'Murder' At No-Gore Video

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Newton Minow's crackdown on tv violence last year—which has had a snowballing effect on telefilm production in that more conscious efforts are being made to curb violent actions and scenes—has resulted in employment being off 50% from this time last year, according to Gil Perkins, top stuntman who reps all Hollywood stuntmen as member of Screen Actors' Guild board.

Perkins calls unemployment situation "very acute" for the 90 stuntmen who do just about all stunting in Hollywood theatrical and tv films. Most of this work entails fake fights, falls, homicides by violence, drownings, underwater strangling, vicious knifings, etc.

"At one time all 90 of us were pretty generally employed in telefilms," Perkins said. "That was several years ago. I noted the slack began last October, and I am sure that it stemmed from Minow's edict against violence in video. Others as well as myself pretty soon found out the reasons as jobs were disappearing. The sort of violence we simulated was being written right out of the tv scripts—and not written out by accident, but under orders."

Perkins, who in his official capacity as spokesman for stuntmen in the councils of SAG keeps tab on such matters, says he has noted far fewer stuntmen jobs available now than formerly on such vidpix series as "The Untouchables," "Cheyenne," "Gunsmoke," "Have Gun—Will Travel," "Bonanza" and "Rawhide"—Even though Perkins himself and three other stuntmen worked last week in an "Untouchables" episode.

The stuntmen's rep expressed view "that if Stanley Kramer had not used about 50 of us during the making of his 'Mad, Mad World'—and we're mostly doing just freak comedy stuff for that picture—we fellows would be in far worse shape than we are until Minow cracked down, all 90 of us worked very regularly when theatrical film jobs fell off around 10 years ago, or began to, tv picked up the slack as it increased in feature jobs. Then came Minow."

In good years, Perkins states, "An average good stuntman earns between $15,000 and $35,000, but this won't be a good year for many of us."

WERNER ON A BICYCLE BUILT BY BOEING

Mort Werner has flyingitis, a special and rare disease afflicting certain high-level personnel everywhere. The program vicepresident who has been back at NBC-TV some 14 months has, at a most conservative estimate, made 70 round trips in that time between N.Y. and Hollywood.

One joke at the web is that he quit NBC the first time, when—as overseer of the "Today"-"Tonight"-"Home" triumvirate—he had to travel too much. He went to Young & Rubicam and the N.Y.-To-Coast engines still burned. Then he went to Kaiser Industries, hopeful that he could sit down and rest awhile, yet in his shorttime there he made 17 roundtrips twixt the mainland and Hawaii.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY

Dick Pack, Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. v.p. in charge of programming, leaves Oct. 13 for Far East (Japan, Hong Kong, Thailand, etc.) in connection with expansion of WBC news operation . . . Quincy Howe joins the roster of WNEW Radio commentators with daily assignments in various newscasts throughout the day . . . Marvin Shapiro, formerly a BBDO time buyer, joins WABC-TV as an account exec . . . Carol Teitel set for a role in "The Eternal Light" on NBC-TV Oct. 7 . . . Joining the latest craze in the way of publications, ABC-TV has issued its own "coloring book" plugging its current primetime shows with cartoons and doggerel . . . Robert Robbins has Robert Goulet, Sue Lyon, Charles Boyer, Susan Hayward and Maximillian Schell on his "Assignment Hollywood" show this week . . . Clark Tyler and Neil Pultz, writer and chief engineer for ABC Radio's "Flair," have teamed on a new comedy for technicians. On the Cook label, it's to be titled "Listening In On Computer Conversations" and "The High Cost of Dying" . . . ABC Radio commentator Edward P. Morgan cited as "Citizen of the Year" by the Guardian Jewish Home for the Aged in Los Angeles . . . Ernest Borgnine will guestar Nov. 7 on Perry Como's NBC-TV hour. Borgnine's own ABC-TV series, "McHale's Navy," will do its regular tv stint the same night—only an hour-and-a-half earlier . . . Mike Laurence, ex-WMCA flack chief, has become a veep at Continental pubrelations, working for the present on "The Big Payoff."

Joe Franklin's preem week on WOR-TV (morning show is moving over from WABC-TV) will include Lanny Ross, Lionel Hampton and Dean Stockwell . . . New York Giant football coach Allie Sherman will host a half-hour Saturday night show on WPIX-TV, beginning this Friday, with scouting films of game highlights and inside slants . . . WPIX will carry the World Series games originating in New York on a feed from NBC . . . Archbishop of Canterbury Arthur Michael Ramsey will do a special hour telecast for WPIX's "Great Religious Leaders of Our Time" series. Spiritual head of the Anglican Communion (Episcopal Church in the U. S.) will be on the Oct. 14 stanza, 3 to 4 p.m.

Boris Morros Productions Inc. has been authorized to conduct a theatrical productions business in New York, with capital stock of 200 shares, no par value. Gerard L. Nierenberg was filing attorney at Albany.

Stanley Kramer bought Adela Rogers St. Johns' novel "Final Verdict" . . . Norman Jewison inked director deals with U and Tony Curtis' Curtis Enterprises for two films each, first for U to be "The Thrill of It All" . . . Arlene Francis into latter with Doris Day and James Garner . . . Hal Wallis closed with Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole for "Becket" . . . Sam Peckinpah acquired Max Evans novel, "The Hi-Lo Country," for indie filming, Evans also to collab on script and receive $50,000 plus percentage of profits . . . Samuel Bronston set Sophia Loren to star in "Fall of the Roman Empire" . . . Frank Harvey to write original screenplay, "The Navy Story," for producer Edmund Grainger at Metro . . . Wandra Hendrix returns to features in Peter Lawford's "Johnny Cool" . . . Russ Tamblyn into Robert Wise' "The Haunting" . . . Ray Russell will script "Genghis Khan" for AIP.

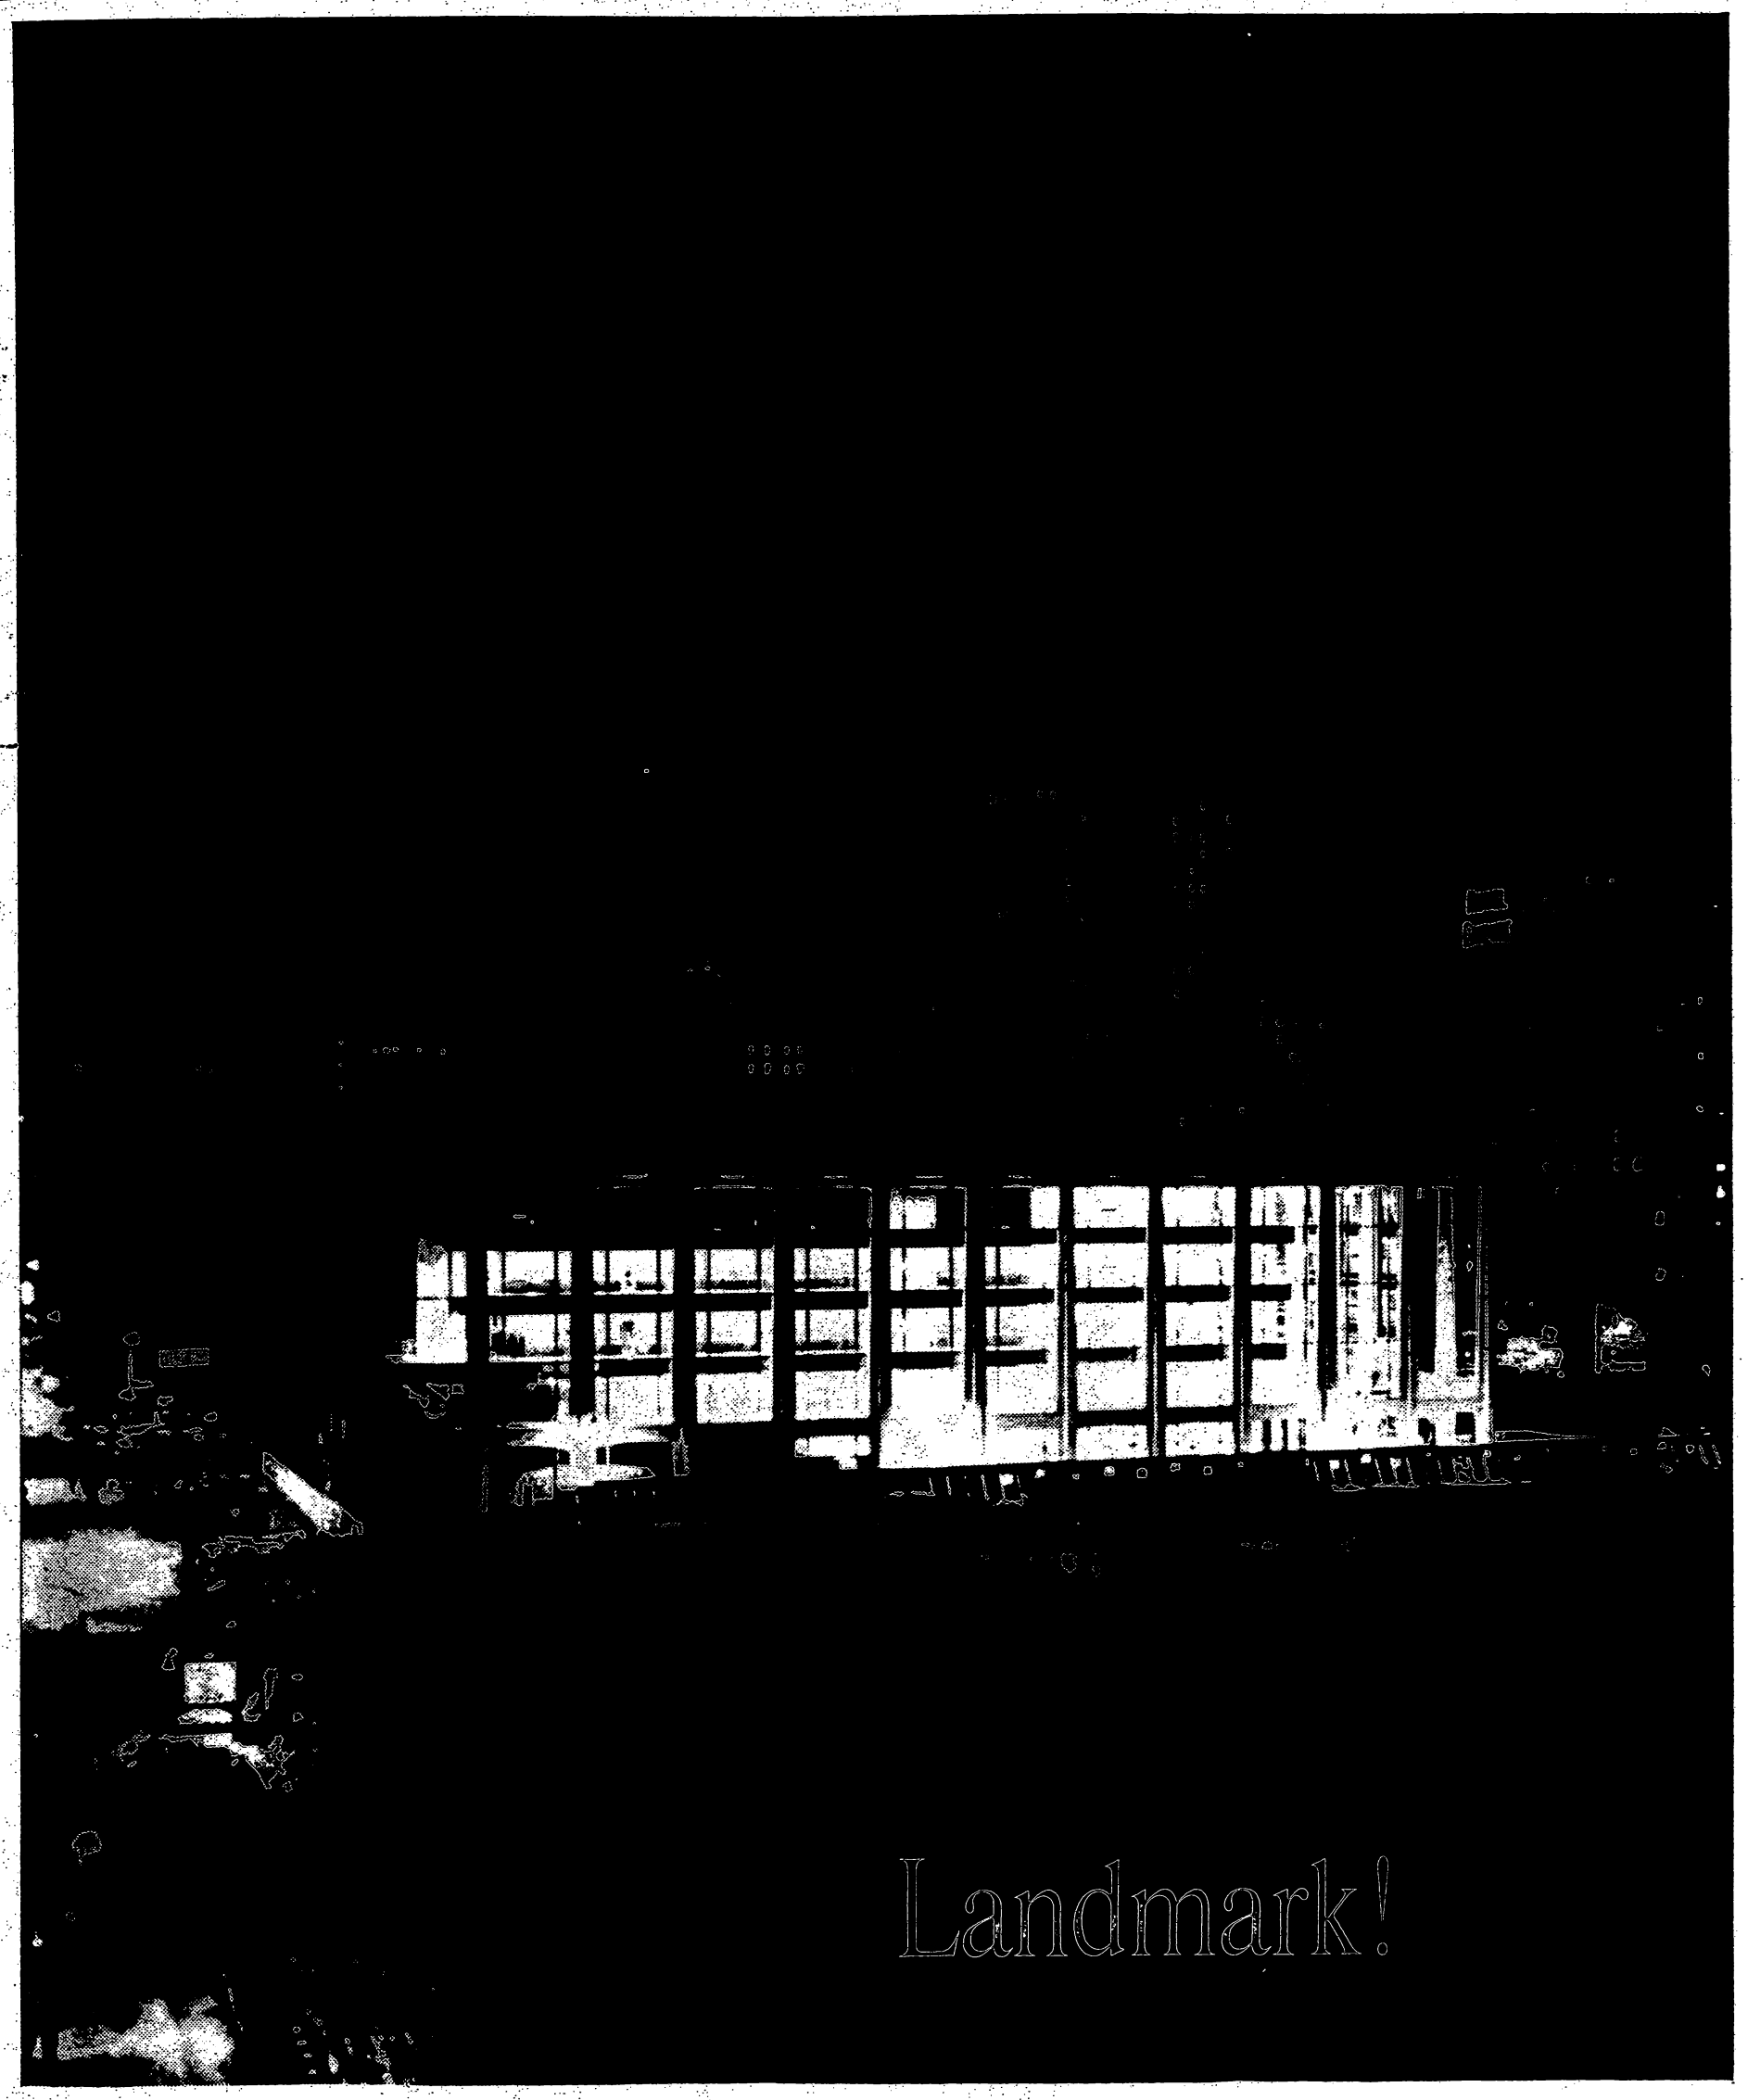
Ed Sullivan show on Nov. 4 will be a full hour musical profile of Richard Rodgers, with Rodgers himself conducting a symphony orchestra in the concert's finale. Diahann Carroll, Vic Damone, Peggy Lee, Roberta Peters and Cesare Siepi will headline the cast. Show will originate from Carnegie Hall . . . Allied Artists Television has sold its "Cavalcade of the 60's, Group 1" pix package to five more stations, including WSAV, Savannah, Ga.; WPRO, Providence, R. I. and WOKR, Rochester, N. Y. . . . James Lavenstein, administrative manager of CBS-TV's program department, negotiated the agreement whereby the National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences can on request secure prints of CBS-TV shows for its archives . . . The Mennen Co. has bought 13 morning minutes on CBS-TV, starting Oct. 1 . . . American Doll & Toy bought alternate week quarter hours on CBS-TV daytime for six weeks . . . William Cartwright set as producer-director at Wolper Productions . . . Westinghouse Electric has placed an eight-week order in "Captain Kangaroo," starting Nov. 6 . . . Composer Jacques Belasco has signed with Ashley-Steiner . . . Radio and tv sportscaster Chris Schenkel will emcee the welcome home luncheon for the N. Y. Football Giants Oct. 9 at the Americana Hotel . . . New York Giants football star Ray Wietecha guests on WCBS-TV's "Frank Gifford Show" Sunday (7) . . . Sebastian Cabot of CBS-TV's "Stump the Stars" to New Orleans Monday (1) to speak at kickoff luncheon for the United Fund Appeal . . . Vet comic Jack Oakie signed for character lead in several upcoming episodes of CBS-TV's "Real McCoy's" . . . Cy Howard, exec producer of CBS-TV's "Fair Exchange," in town from the Coast . . . Vera Miller, receptionist for CBS' 19th floor brass, on a three-weeks European vacation . . . Rod Steiger signed for a star role in upcoming episode of CBS-TV's "Route 66" . . . United Artists Television and United Artists Associated now occupy new exec offices on Madison Ave., combining for the first time all of the domestic film operations under one roof. WCBS-TV staff director Bob Goodman happily watching progress of his new songwriting effort, "Close to Cathy," . . . Len Chiamowitz, entertainment writer for Long Island's Newsday, and wife, Phyl, proud parents of adopted daughter, Melissa Anne.



IN HOLLYWOOD

Hal Rorke, agency exec in L.A. and Chicago (J. Walter Thompson), opened a Hollywood office to service tv clients which have no Coast office . . . Adrian Brown, for 10 years at McCann-Erickson, named chairman of the plans board and member of board of management. His job of creative director goes to Jonis Gold, his associate . . . Those short term network deals are beginning to show up. Media man at an ad agency checked off these figures of open time between January and June: ABC 40%, NBC 33% and CBS 15%. Those holiday minute buyers are dropping off like paratroopers on the Normandy beach. Some interpret it as a massive turnover after the holidays . . . Said a comedy producer to a team of writers, "quit stealing from yourselves and start stealing from someone else" . . . No sooner did Florence Halop come out of retirement than she got a featured comedy role in "Saints and Sinners" . . . Kurt Singer, who passed on last week, won high praise from his co-workers at RCA in Hollywood for his "custom designs of recording and re-recording consoles and that many of his published papers contributed importantly to advances in electronics" . . . John L. Sullivan, onetine performer, named veepee of KMPC's Johnny Grant and Hugh Brundage in sick bay . . . Harry Maizlish, KRHM owner, commissioned Paul Werth to prepare three-hour documentary on Metro.

IN CHICAGO

John McPartlin, ex-WBKB account exec, is putting a pair of new stations (AM-FM) on the air in suburban Highland Park. Expects to start Nov. 1 . . . WNBQ, unable to arrange a prime time debate, has Sen. Everett Dirksen and Democratic challenger Sidney R. Yates set for separate grill sessions on "City Desk" . . . Freelance voice Ken Nordine has a one-man show of his paintings at Handmaker Galleries . . . Sun-Times cookery editor Alma Lach tapped for once-a-week duties on WBBM-TV's "Lee Phillip Show" . . . Francois Pope and sons, of the erstwhile "Creative Cookery" stanza on WBKB, have purchased a wholesale bakery and are now in the gourmet pastries biz. First offering is a "limited edition" brandied fruitcake . . . WLS femcee Martha

(Continued on page 54)

The opening, Sunday a week ago, of Philharmonic Hall, first building in the Lincoln Center complex, was an event of great cultural importance to the New York community. And the community saw it on Channel 2.

For two hours and seven minutes, the CBS Television Network cameras captured all of the splendor and excitement of the Lincoln Center opening. And New York audiences loved it. Arbitron reports that it was the highest-rated program on any station in the New York area during the entire evening—achieving an average 28.5 rating, nearly as large as the ratings of the next two stations combined! Putting it another way, an estimated audience of 2,800,000 was tuned to Channel 2 throughout the 127-minute program!

This significant broadcast—and the overwhelming response—is another landmark in Channel 2's record of extraordinary service to the nation's number one community, via the public affairs programming of WCBS-TV and the CBS Television Network. Another reason, too, why CBS Owned WCBS-TV continues to be New York's number one television station month after month, year after year!

WCBS-TV

Channel 2, New York

ARMSTRONG CIRCLE THEATRE
(The Cross and the Dragon)
With James Daly, Duke Farley, Sab Shimono, Alek Primrose, Viraj Amonsin, Khigh Dheigh, Chao-Li
Producer: Robert Costello
Director: William Corrigan
Writer: Robert Crean
60 Mins.; Wed., 10 p.m.
ARMSTRONG CORK
CBS-TV (tape)
(BBD & O)

"Armstrong Circle Theatre" returned for another season on CBS-TV Wednesday with a typical news-drama, this one concerning the lack of religious liberty in Red China.

Titled, "The Cross and the Dragon," the hour dealt with the fate of Bishop James Edward Walsh, a Catholic missionary in Shanghai, imprisoned and hounded by the Chinese commissars. Teleplay by Robert Crean hammered at the obvious, using stock characters for the depiction of the Chinese Communists, and many cliched situations.

For all its weaknesses as drama, it did have impact before the hour drew to a close. The impact may have been more in terms of a propaganda rather than drama, but nevertheless the piling of injustice on top of injustice had to register. It's a pity that "Armstrong Circle Theatre," one of the few drama-documentary formats left in network tv, didn't translate this topical themes to high drama. Stories such as that of Father Walsh warrant more than was offered Wednesday night.

James Daly portraying Father Walsh gave an inspired performance, overcoming the many limitations of the script. Daly, telling the commissars off for debasing his church, was first-rate. He lent dignity, warmth, humor and strokes of tragedy and heroism to his role. The two heavies, Khigh Dheigh and Chao-Li, delivered in their stock evil Communist menace roles.

Duke Farley lent warmth and humor to his role as Father Lally. Viraj Amonsin as the opportunistic Chinese priest was credible, as was his counterpart Sab Shimono, portraying the Chinese priest who stuck to his beliefs. A dramatic dialogue between a priest and a commissar could be an electric occasion; it wasn't realized in this synthetic drama. Horo.

DISCOVERY '62
With Frank Buxton, Veronica Gibson
Producer: Selig Alkon
Director: Richard Dunlap
Writers: Sol Stember, Harold Azine, Ronald Liss
25 Mins.: Mon.-Fri., 4:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV, from N.Y.

When FCC chief Newton Minow blasted television as a "vast wasteland" early last year, he put special stress on the absence of stimulating children's programs on network television. "Discovery" was designed to fill this vacuum and, to date, is the only cross-the-board juve-slanted tv show on the webs.

Preem stanza Monday (1) indicates that this show is making a valiant effort to parlay entertainment with education within the limits set by commercial considerations. Frank Buxton, host of the series, is a young man whose evident enthusiasm about his job helps to create interest in this stanza. He's getting a nice assist from Veronica Gibson, who has a straight man's role of asking the questions.

The show, which is a fresh departure in praiseworthy direction, still is hindered somewhat by a self-consciously pedantic tone. The preem, which explored the animal hospital at the Bronx Zoo, tried to cram in all sorts of facts and statistics about the animals and their feeding habits. The main impact, however, derived from the stanza's closeup on the vet's techniques and, if the episode in which a pair of pliers was removed from an alligator's stomach was reminiscent of "Ben Casey," that was an effective way of conveying the information.

Buxton's need to pitch the commercials, which are not clearly differentiated for the children from the main body of the show, is one of the commercial limitations kiddie shows have to live with. However, the intrusion of a promo for "The Rifleman," in which sex and violence was distilled into 60 seconds, was totally unnecessary. Herm.

THE RIFLEMAN
With Chuck Connors, Johnny Crawford, Paul Fix, Vito Scotti, Tony Rosa, Pepe Hern, Sara Taft, Enid Jaynes, Alex Montoya
Producers: Jules Levy, Arthur Gardner, Arnold Laven
Director: Joseph H. Lewis
Writer: Robert Culp
30 Mins., Mon.; 8:30 p.m.
PROCTER & GAMBLE
ABC-TV (film)
(Benton & Bowles)

"The Rifleman," which returned to ABC-TV Monday (1) for its fifth season, is solving the problem of putting an hour-long hoss opera into a half hour. Solution is simple. Split the yarn into two parts with the first half done one week and part two the following week. That was the technique used on the tersely titled "Waste," the initialer for this film series' '62-'63 bow.

Authored by Robert Culp, the script was a suspenseful tale of how rancher McCain, his young son and a federal marshal were captured by Mexican bandits while exploring a deserted town. Director Joseph H. Lewis guided the tale with a flair for tension and the cast's performances reflected his touch. Finale of Part I had the rancher turning the tables on his guard, but things were ominous since the rest of the outlaws were closing in to recapture the trio. How it all turned out will be seen next week.

Chuck Connors, in his familiar title role, again scored as the laconic, fearless frontiersman. Johnny Crawford is good as his son who inevitably accompanies him on his varied missions while Paul Fix, as the marshal, had little to do in this stanza aside from looking uncomfortable while buried from the neck down.

Competent support was provided by Vito Scotti as the toothsome bandit chieftain whose colleagues included Tony Rosa, Pepe Hern and Alex Montoya. Sarah Taft ably portrayed a menacing old woman while Enid Jaynes brought a sexy quality to a Mexican peasant girl. Howard Schwartz's camerawork helped put the characterizations into sharp focus with his varied angled closeups.

Procter & Gamble is bankrolling this series off the Four Star belt line on behalf of such products as Tide detergent, Zest soap and Prell shampoo. Plugs are almost as frequent as the hoofbeats. Gilb.

"THE ANDY GRIFFITH SHOW"
With Ronny Howard, Don Knotts, Frances Bavier, Karl Swenson
Producer: Aaron Ruben
Director: Bob Sweeney
Writers: Ray Allen Saffian, Harvey Bullock
30 Mins.; Mon., 9:30 p.m.
GENERAL FOODS
CBS-TV (film)
(Benton & Bowles)

"The Andy Griffith Show" moved into its third season on CBS-TV last Monday (1). It is proving to be a durable and consistently entertaining family series which conveys a nice balance of humor and seriousness to make it a fast and right half hour.

On the opening seg, Griffith's son, who's played by Ronny Howard, is suspected by his Pa and Pop's deputy, played by Don Knotts, of carrying his imagination too far when the boy announces he's found a friend in the woods who wears a silver hat, has 12 extra hands and blows smoke through his ears. After some light moments on the subject, Griffith decides the matter is worthy of more serious consideration after his son brings home a quarter which the man in the woods gave him.

As it turns out, there actually is such a man. He's a telephone lineman who wears a steel hat, refers to his tools as "extra hands" and does a trick for the boy using the smoke bit. Ray Allen Saffian and Harvey Bullock's script was clever and had some nice touches. Likewise Bob Sweeney's direction which kept things moving well and had some nice bits interwoven.

Griffith is a strong actor who displays an equal capacity for both comedy and heavier going. His cracker twang and mugging are not overdone and therefore score as solid assets. Knotts is a very funny man, making with the double takes and other smoothly-handled comic details. He's a delight throughout. Howard is right and effective as Griffith's son and Frances Bavier is fine as the boy's aunt. On the opener Karl Swenson played the mystical friend in the woods with smooth effectiveness.

Production values were sure, under the guidance of Aaron Ruben. "The Andy Griffith" show shapes up as a fine entry in the family sweepstakes and should continue its winning ways for all concerned. Kali.

Foreign TV Reviews

MAIGRET
(Voices from the Past)
With Rupert Davies, Ewen Solon, Fay Compton, Charles Gray, Catherine Lacey, Richard Vernon, Victor Lucas, Philip Howard, Nicholas Pennell, Roger Williams, Dervis Ward, Terence Alexander, Michael Earl, Helen Shingler, Frederick Peisley, Maitland Moss
Producer: Gerard Glaister
Writer: Giles Cooper
50 Mins., Mon., 9:25 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

All the virtues of this top-grade Simenon skein were represented in this well-chosen opener for the return set. Rupert Davies, as the detective, repeated his smooth impersonation in depth, and the strength of the tales largely depends on this central conviction, helped by Ewen Solon as the reliable sidekick, Lucas, and, briefly, by Helen Shingler's calm-and-collected Madame Maigret. The Gallic atmosphere was also cleverly translated, although it might have been helped by more exterior establishing shots. This segment was short on them.

Show concerned the mysterious death of a titled ex-diplomat, which aroused the hush-hush tendencies of the Quai d'Orsay, the French Foreign Affairs headquarters. Under suspicion was the housekeeper, Jacquette (Fay Compton), who had been the corpse's mistress and feared that he would marry Isabelle (Catherine Lacey), an old flame who had just buried her husband. Also involved were a nephew (Charles Gray), who stood to inherit, and Isabelle's son, who had reason to take sides against his mother's longstanding liaison.

It was all sorted out logically and satisfactorily. Jacquette had faked a murder because she hated the disgrace of her master's suicide. Again, Maigret's implication in the story was deftly brought out. It reminded him of the embarrassing nervousness in his youth, when he had been received by a high-society dame, similar to Isabelle. His brusque lack of sentiment also contributed to the fully-flavored ambience.

Supporting thesps were slickly fitted to their parts—and this is another example of the care taken in preplanning. Catherine Lacey, as the artistic Isabelle, Charles Gray, as the suave nephew, and Fay Compton, as the bristling and suspicious Jacquette, could not be faulted.

The series, in the overall charge of Andrew Osborn and produced by BBC-TV in association with Winwell Productions, looked likely to hold up well for further innings. Gerard Glaister's direction of this one was slick and substantial, and Giles Cooper dramatized the original by summarizing its essentials and not cluttering it up with side issues. Otta.

TELEVISION PLAYHOUSE
(Peace with Terror)
With Peter Cushing, Brian Wilde, Sheila Manahan, Toby Perkins, Arthur Lovegrove, Keith Smith, George Woodbridge, Bert Platt, Billy Milton, Robin May, Alister Williamson, Carl Bernard, Fred Kitchen, Carole Allen, Edward Webster
Producer: Quentin Lawrence
Writer: Jacques Gillies
60 Mins., Fri., 9:45 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

The third regular drama skein on the commercial web was dropped when the thesps went on strike, and returned with a play originally planned for Associated TeleVision's "Drama 62" series but withdrawn from it because its theme of religious mania wasn't thought suitable for Sunday viewing.

Jacques Gillies is a bold and in-

(Continued on page 50)

DENNIS THE MENACE
With Jay North, Gale Gordon, Herbert Anderson, Gloria Henry, Sara Seegar, Cherylene Lee, Jeannie Russell, Robert John Pittmann, Arthur Wong, Billy Booth, others
Producer: Winston O'Keefe
Director: Charles Barton
Writer: Budd Grossman
30 Mins., Sun., 7:30 p.m.
KELLOGG, BEST FOODS
CBS-TV (film)
(Leo Burnett, Lennen & Newall)

"Dennis the Menace," the Screen Gems series opening its fourth season on CBS-TV, instead of growing sturdier with age seems to have become weaker, judging from Sunday's (30) preem.

Part of the fun and charm of previous outings was the disorder of the adult world compared to the kid world of Dennis. In his fencing with Mr. Wilson, now played by Gale Gordon, Jay North as Dennis many times made more sense. It was then that the mischief and adventurers of Dennis drew chuckles for the fun was well grounded.

What happened in the preem episode of the new season would have made the Dennis of cartoon fame blush. Scripter Budd Grossman made the kid act like an adult for a good part of the outing—courting a cute Chinese girl. The whole thing seemed precious and absurd, with the chuckles as bare as the script's insight into a kid's world.

Cherylene Lee as the Chinese girl was fetching. Sara Seegar making her debut as Mrs. Wilson seemed warm and affectionate, a good counterpoint to Gale Gordon, as Mr. Wilson. Herbert Anderson and Gloria Henry as the patient parents of Jay North (Dennis) handled themselves in their usual pro fashion. Charles Barton managed the directorial chores competently. Horo.

TELEPOLL
With Ron Cochran, Dr. Solomon Dutka, others Producer: Larry Johnson
Director: Roger Shope
30 Mins., Sun., 7 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
WABC-TV, New York

"Telepoll" is a public opinion program given its first ride on Canadian tv and imported to the States this week via WABC-TV, in N.Y. Devised by Ted Cott, the half-hour weekly stanza, it was, in its first outing Sunday (30), novel and it may prove to be a good way to excite viewers to greater interest in public issues.

Idea is simple—a variety of issues are discussed each week, and 1,000 pre-assigned viewers are "polled" for their opinions by telephone. Dr. Solomon Dutka, of Audits & Surveys Inc., which will do the surveying, said that the statistics he'll supply next Sunday to last Sunday's questions will be no more than 3% off what they would have been had he chosen to call all of the nearly 4,000,000 telephone families in town.

Issues raised by the preem were treatment of drug addicts and punishment of drug pushers; school prayers; Cuba and armed intervention, and divorce laws. Perhaps the producers wanted to assert the efficacy of their polling system by choosing to review four distinct problems in the course of one 30 minute period. But certainly no justice was done by such brevity to any of the four issues.

Paul Schoenstein, a reporter dominated by the prompting machinery of tv, gave a confused and cursory study of dope addiction and pushing. Afterwards, three questions were posed by host Ron Cochran, among them whether the period of penal confinement for convicted pushers should be lengthened. The manner of posing the issues differed in each case. Lawyer William Vanden Heuvel gave both sides of a "brief" (it was just that) on school prayers. Next, another reporter, Joseph Newman, just as bound as the first reporter when it came to coping with tv delivery, gave a sketchy portrait of Cuba today. This set up further questions, including whether the "magic town" 1,000 advocated armed intervention. Three questions were asked about whether the divorce laws of N.Y. should be altered so that grounds other than adultery might be used. These questions followed a too-brief "debate" between lawyer Vincent Malone and psychologist Dr. Rose Franzblau. If they got off more than four or five sentences apiece, they were lucky. Art.

VOICE OF FIRESTONE
With Cesare Siepi, Risë Stevens, Mischa Elman, Sally Ann Howes, Arthur Fiedler; Hugh James, announcer
Producer: Frederick Heider
Director: Lee Tredanari
Writer: Alan Hirshberg
30 Mins.; Sun., 10 p.m.
FIRESTONE
ABC-TV, from N.Y.
(Sweeney & James)

"Voice of Firestone," which has been around NBC and ABC and was dropped a couple of years ago because of its low ratings, came back last Sunday night (30) on ABC-TV as one of the few remaining waterholes of culture on tv. As before, this show is presenting some of the top longhair performers in a setting that is as broad in its appeal as good music can achieve.

The preem stanza was produced with flawless taste. The settings were rich and varied, the performers were topnotch and the music struck at attractive balance between the classical and the popular. Whether or not this show ever attains those fancy rating figures, it fills a definite audience need.

Program of the kickoff included Cesare Siepi's rendition of an aria from "Don Giovanni" and Risë Stevens doing a selection from "Samson & Delilah." Also in the longhair vein, venerable violinist Mischa Elman contributed a Massenet piece while Arthur Fiedler batoned the studio symph in a glistening orchestral piece. In the popular vein, Sally Ann Howes charmed with a showtune medley, including "Almost Like Falling Love" and "Easy To Love." Finale featured the guest stars and a massed assemblage of dancers in an attractive production number framed around "I Love You" and "Shall We Dance."

It was a well-paced, consistently appealing stanza. Herm.

ROY ROGERS-DALE EVANS SHOW
With Cliff Arquette, Pat Brady & Sons of the Pioneers, Mello-Men Dodie, Debbie, Dusty & Sandy Rogers
Producer-Director: Bob Henry
Writers: Borden Chase, Elon Packard, Stan Davis, Bob Henry
Musical Director: Ralph Carmichael
60 Mins., Sat., 7:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (tape)

Roy Rogers and his family, wife Dale and kiddies Dodie, Debbie, Dusty and Sandy, went to the Seattle World's Fair and took some pictures. That was the peg of the opening show of a series that will be formatted on the different doings of the Rogers clan. If the preem is an indication of what's to come, the ABC-TV dialers are in for a run of "home movie"-styled entertainment.

The singing cowpoke and his breed are the folksy type that will have trouble winning over the sophisticated viewer. The hinterlanders, however, may find some identification here to give the series a rating.

The Rogers family played the parts of typical tourists as they wandered through the wonders of the Seattle exhibition viewing the Gayway, the Dupen Fountains and the Indian Village among other stations. It was all very innocent and rather dull.

Worked into the camera tour were some songs by Rogers, Dale Evans, Pat Brady & The Sons of the Pioneers and The YMCA Boys' Choir of Racine, Wisc., and some folksy comedy by Cliff Arquette in the dual role of Charley Weaver and Mrs. Weaver.

They're all nice folks and in a current tv paraphrase nice guys don't necessarily finish last. Gros.

ANSWERING SERVICE
With Betty Furness, guests
Exec Producer: Arthur Gross
Producer: Ted Cott
Director: William Beal
30 Mins., Mon.-Fri., 10:30 a.m.
WABC-TV, New York

This new series for ABC-TV's New York key is a remake of a similarly styled show that Betty Furness ran on another Gotham outlet under the tag of "At Your Beck And Call." It's earlier success prompted WABC-TV to grab it for its own morning schedules and it shapes as an okay buy.

It seems that the housewife has lots of things on her mind during the morning hours and Miss Furness and her guests are available to straighten 'em out. Format

(Continued on page 50)

This is a critic with a suicidal view. He says: "My own objective as a critic is to liquidate myself, to make myself useless. The only way I can accomplish this is to assist in the creation of a nation of critics." His name is Gilbert Seldes. Each week, his reviews of contemporary television reach more than 8,000,000 families. It's one reason why more people buy TV GUIDE each week to read about television than buy any other magazine to read about anything else.

review

TV GUIDE

BEST-SELLING WEEKLY MAGAZINE IN AMERICA

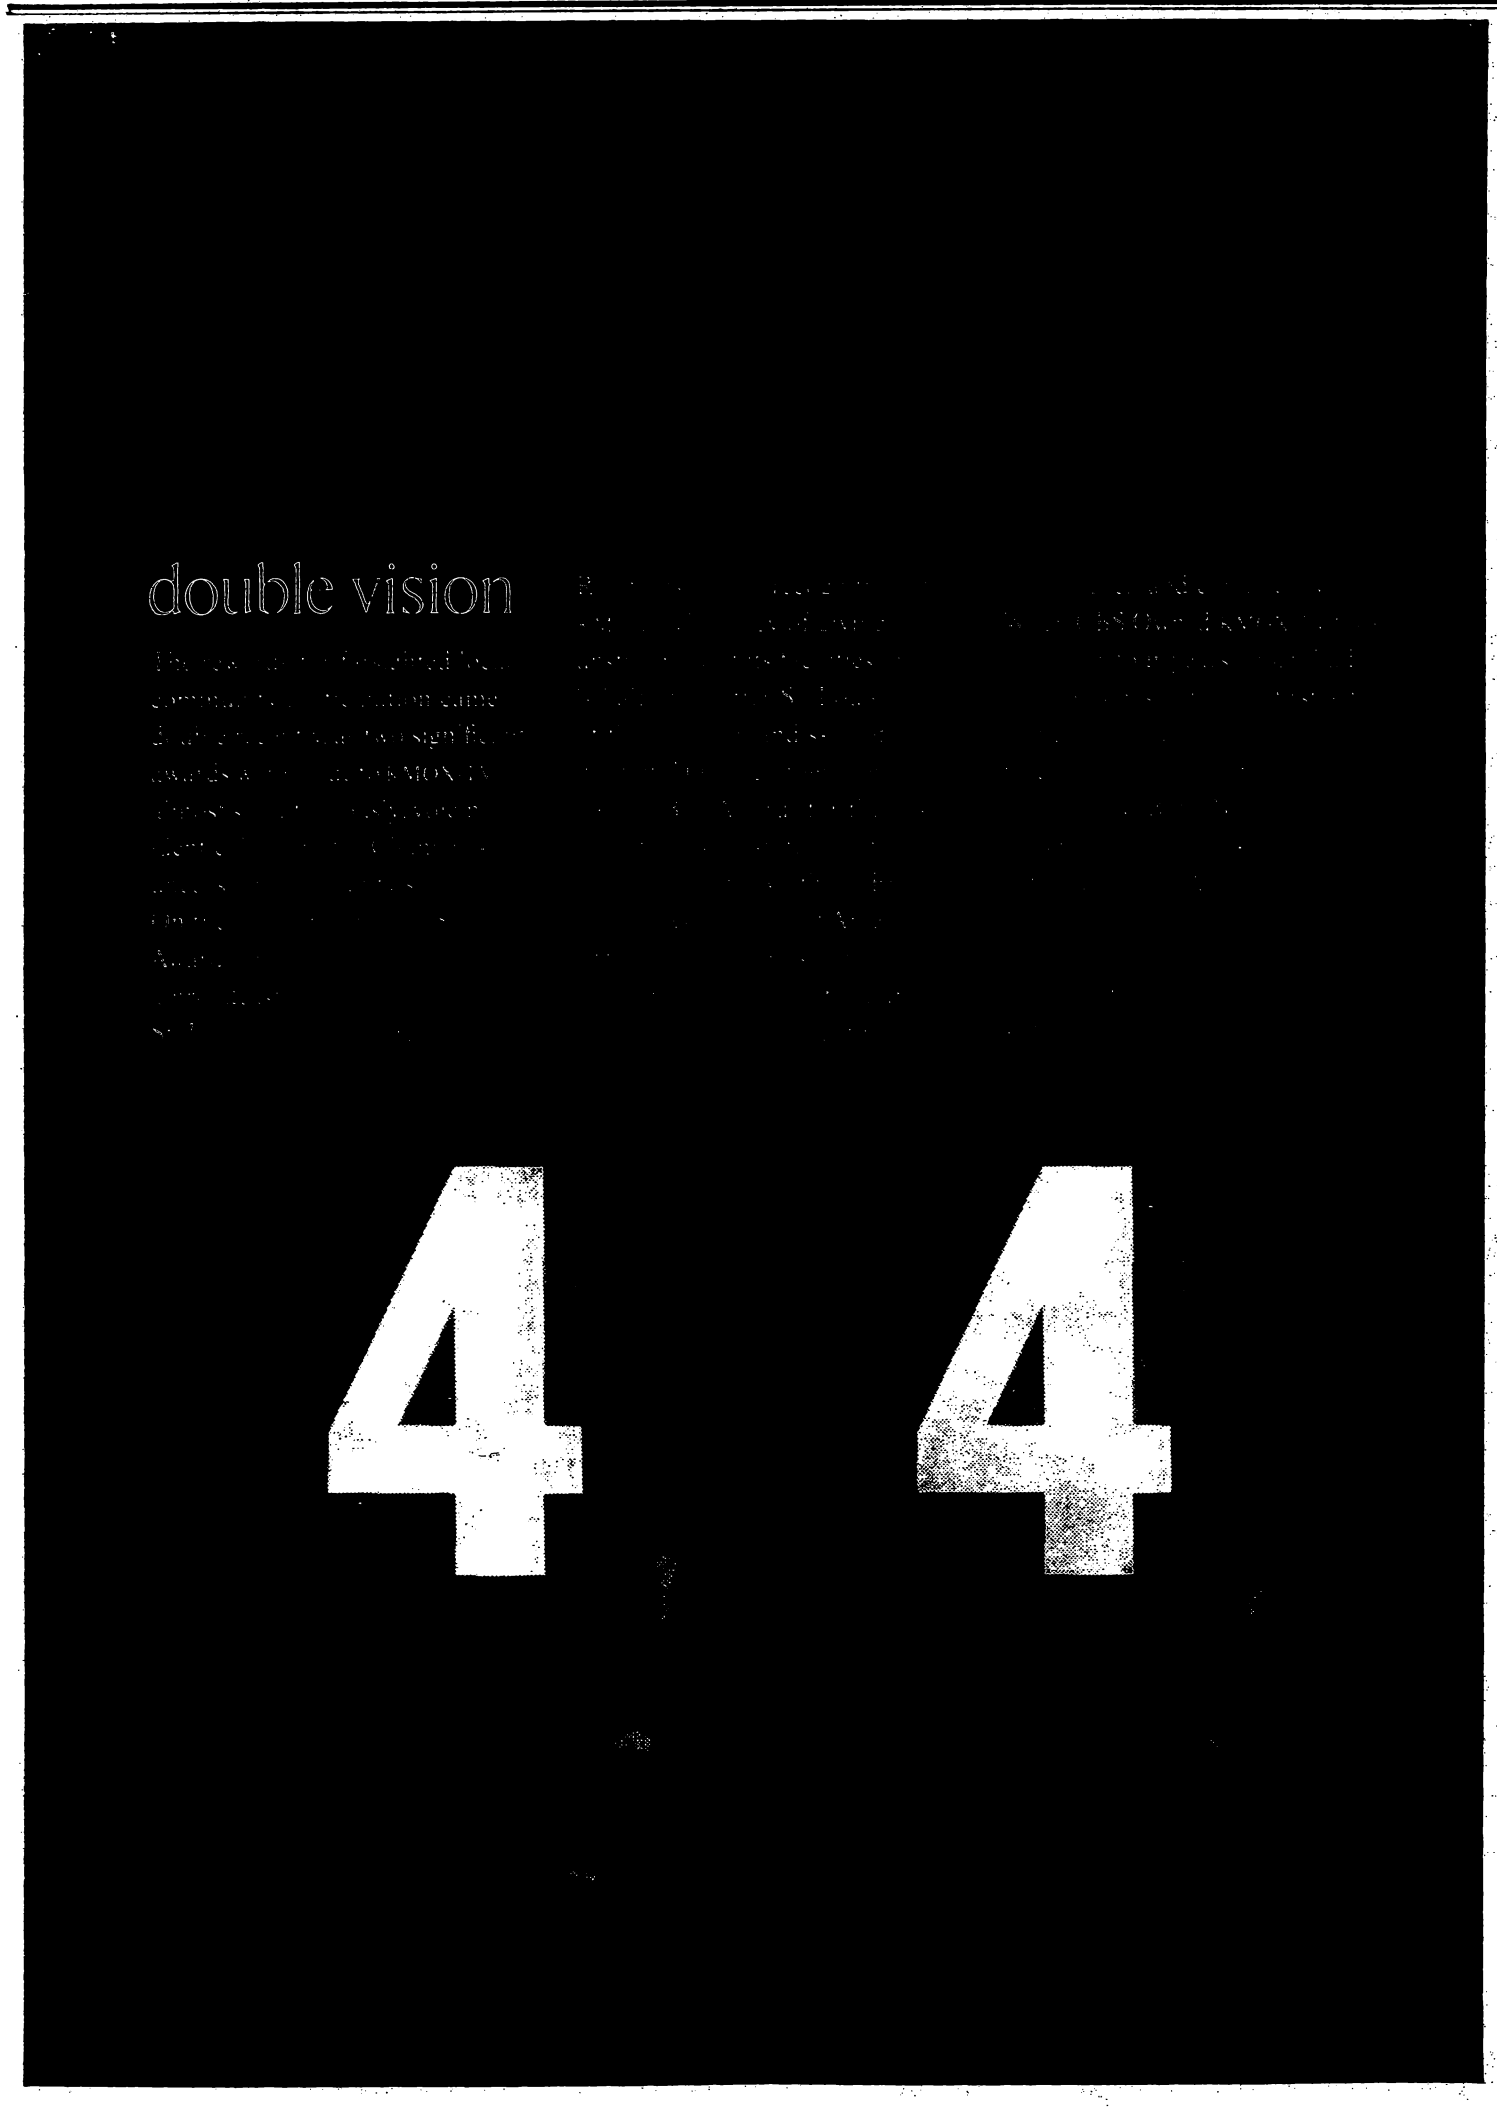
To WNDT, Off & Running, Adjacencies, Lead-Ins, Audience Flow for the Birds

WNDT finally lit the torch of educational television in the New York metropolitan area last week with the inauguration of regular programming that ended a two-year obstacle course of license-transfer and union hurdles. The 68th educational outlet in the country, WNDT now is in the position of becoming a prime influence on the casting standards. Not only covering most populous, affluent and critical market in the nation, WNDT is operating right at the doorstep of the guiding brains of commercial television. There is no reason why they can not learn from each other.

The first week's programming effort by WNDT illustrated one of the key differences between educational and commercial broadcasting. The latter are searching for shows to please the mass audience. The educationalists are searching for audiences to view their shows. But judging from WNDT's schedule, the search is not going to be a frantic one. WNDT will apparently be satisfied with small or big audiences without concern for lead-ins, audience flow, adjacencies and all the other compulsions of commercial tv which determine its form and content.

In the sphere of children's programming, WNDT has already indicated that it will have strong impact in uplifting programming levels. A 90-minute layout starting at 5 p.m. last Thursday (27) was a splendid achievement and points the direction for the future. Uneven showmanship, some slurring of production details were distinctly secondary to the consistently stimulating and entertaining material presented with a keen awareness of the intellectual level and needs of youngsters in the audience. Although there are other good kiddie shows available on New York tv, such as "Captain Kangaroo," the Sonny Fox and Sandy Becker segments, etc., they are still saddled with the task of selling the kids cereals, toys, games, etc. WNDT fortunately only has one objective: stretching the minds of the child viewers.

The children's shows opened with "Once Upon a Day," featuring Mrs. Rachel Leibert, a teacher, and folksinger Peter Haas in songs and readings. Last Thursday, Haas performed with ample charm on a group of varied songs. Mrs. Liebert contributed a reading from "Pinocchio," a story which was sufficient to keep two elementary school children, viewing with the reviewer, completely engrossed. Another segment, titled "Scienceland," revolved around a walk in the woods and a study of beetles, seeds, etc. Another short session was devoted to foreign folk songs and dances and still another to some elementary lessons in astronomy and the meaning of magnetic fields around the moon. Near the 6:30 p.m. mark, possibly aimed for more adult viewers, there were demonstrations of the art of boxing, singing and dancing in Thailand. It was short and neat.



At 6:30 the station had a "music interlude," in effect, suspending telecasting for an hour. This is based on the civilized idea that if you have nothing to say, you keep quiet, a luxury which the commercial broadcasters obviously cannot afford.

At 7:30 p.m., WNDT resumed with a lesson in Japanese brush stroke painting. This half-hour raised the question of whom does educational tv program for. Clearly, this half-hour, one of a series of 13 produced by KQED in San Francisco, will draw only a minuscule audience. Is it not a waste of a valuable facilities to program this type of show in prime time? Which ever way that question is answered, however, WNDT's freedom to ride with the odd-ball, the way-out, and the unpopular must be untrammelled.

At 8 p.m., the station presented a critical analysis of United Nations in a show titled "International Essay." Narrated by John G. Stoessinger of Columbia University, this was a complete catalog of the financial and political difficulties facing the UN. In the light of commercial tv public affairs shows, this one was far too long, running 90 minutes. In the sphere of public affairs shows, WNDT must learn to tighten its approach. It is essential to elaborate the issues adequately, but not at the expense of exhausting the viewers.

For the final 90 minutes, WNDT continued to repeat the showing of "The Killing of The King," a drama produced by the British commercial broadcasters, Associated-Rediffusion. It was a rich historical drama, based on the execution of Charles I by Oliver Cromwell, with a superb characterization of the King by Paul Rogers, supported by a fine cast.

In the coming weeks, now that the agreement with AFTRA has been sealed, the WNDT schedule will have far more resources to tap than it did in its opening week. The extent of its possibilities in the New York market are immense. Herm.

One-Sixth Still Open On NBC Election Night

Another sixth down and just one more sixth to go in the NBC-TV selloff of its election night coverage. Oddly, too, the two latest sponsors are Block Drug and Carter Products, rivals but with non-competing products this time.

NBC, initially, got an order for a twelfth, but would not firm it up unless a matching order came in. Hence, the Block and Carter balancing act, which followed by some 72 hours the purchase of a third sponsorship by Purex. Before Purex, Lincoln-Mercury and Lopton Tea bought a sixth each.

Anti-V.D. Drive

Continued from page 30

by 1961. It's estimated that two out of three persons are not aware that they are infected.

Department of Health has high hopes for the campaign, which will be extended to newspapers, billboards, car cards and other media, because it will be the first drive that does not take a direct medical approach to the problem. Grey agency blurbs, produced by Klaeger Productions, literally soft-pedal the pitch. The 20-second spot features a rose with the pedals slowly dropping. Voice-over urges viewers to contact health officials for info on venereal diseases (newspaper ads will carry a phone number to call for VD literature). Shorter commercial has similar text with the visual being an eye with a tear.

Commercials will be made available to other cities, since the problem is not limited to New York City.

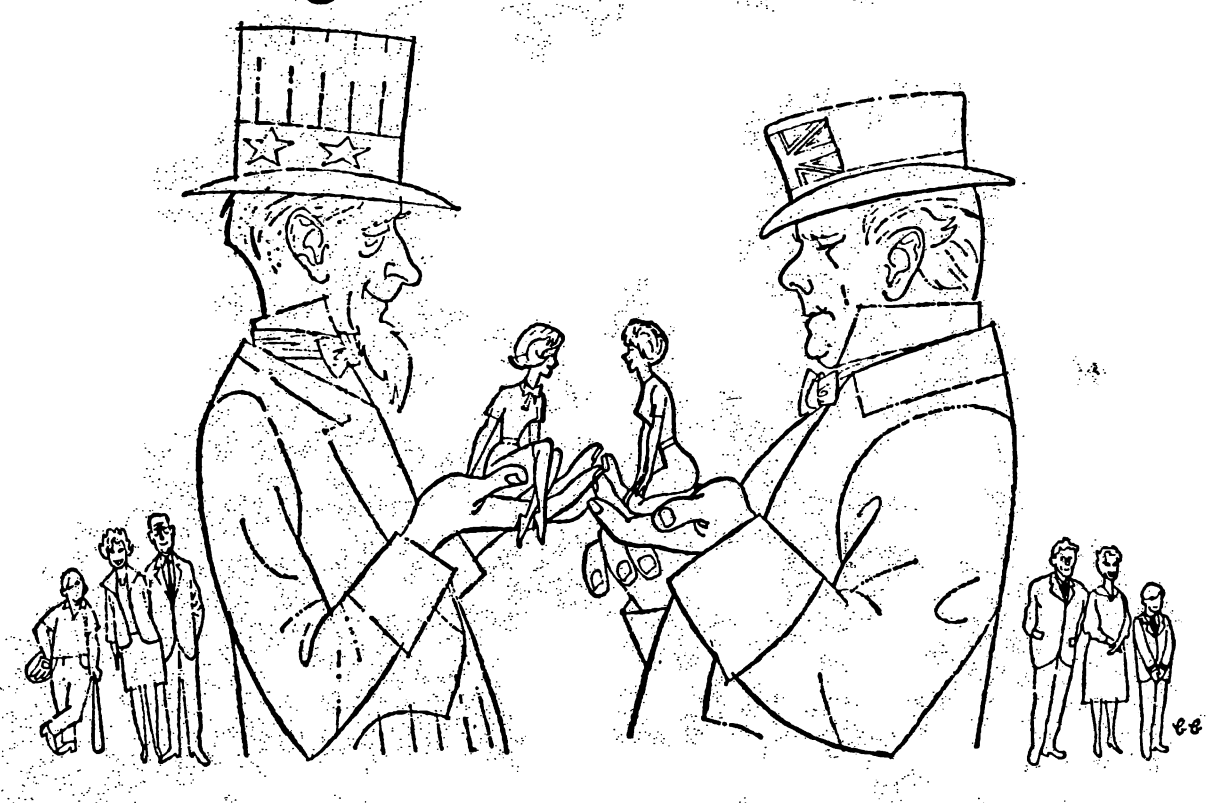
Educ'l TVers

Continued from page 30

ing a grade-A VHF signal the customary 50 miles or so.

Other educational channels in the state are the pioneering KUHT, University of Houston; KERA, Dallas; and KRET, Richardson (Dallas area).

KTBC-TV, operated by the LBJ Co., (Mrs. Lyndon Johnson is company board chairman) vice-president has no financial interest occupies the capital city's only commercial outlet.



Also allocated here are UHF channels 24, 67 and 18 (educational).

Austinites have long yowled about being in a "one-channel" town, but KLRN-TV, highbrow though it may be, changes that. What's more, signs are that KVET radio station owner Willard Deason is beaming in on Channel 24 with a vengeance. He and another applicant, Homer Dalton Cobb, of Midland, will go before an FCC examiner in November to plead their cases.

Mgt William Morris Agency

"FAIR EXCHANGE'

was off to a highly auspicious start...the first hit among the new filmed dramas may be here at long last...!" – Jack Gould, NEW YORK TIMES

Jack Gould, NEW YORK TIMES
"'Fair Exchange' should be a winner...The two families are altogether reasonable and real human beings who bring a note of charm and warmth to the readjustment that attends the arrival of the young visitors in their homes..."

Nick Kenny, NEW YORK MIRROR
"The only ornament of the plethora of premieres so far this season is 'Fair Exchange'. If the initial canto is any augury, this could well be the situation comedy of the year. It is the first series with a shred of originality."

Jack Hellman, DAILY VARIETY
"'Fair Exchange' is a pure fun show...'way out' comedy has long been Cy Howard's forte and he hired a pair of skilled hands to keep the big laughs pumping. The casting is near perfect and this and the writing will carry the show through..."

Ben Gross, NEW YORK DAILY NEWS
"For more years than I care to mention I have been waiting for a situation comedy series which would be different ...Well, finally such a show came to CBS-TV in 'Fair Exchange', the first hour-long weekly program of its kind ...it is certainly a good start..."

Bob Hull, LOS ANGELES HERALD EXAMINER
"'Fair Exchange', the best new comedy of the season, seems assured of becoming a pace-setter in the field of television comedy...It could switch the industry from its present pre-occupation with dour dramas and wide-open-space horse operas to longer and funnier comedies...Someone at CBS seems to have remembered that people tune in their TV sets to be entertained..."

Hank Grant, HOLLYWOOD REPORTER
"Most importantly, the new series, 'Fair Exchange', is the first situation comedy series to go the hour-long route and significantly seems to justify its length....It held interest throughout with a premise which is a solid one for comedy..."

A DESILU PRODUCTION ■ CBS TELEVISION ■ FRIDAY EVENINGS

Television Reviews

Continued from page 46

is based simply on a viewer phone call to the station with a query directed at one of the panelists. Not only is the answer given in a forthright manner, but the best question of the day gets a prize and the best question of the week gets a bigger one.

With Commissioner Henry Barnes, Dr. Emerson Day and Oleg Cassini on the panel for the opening show Monday (1), the queries centered on cancer, traffic and fashion. The trio fielded the queries neatly as Miss Furness tossed 'em out in an effervescent manner. The questions ranged from "How can you overcome a fear of cancer after a successful operation?" (the winner for the day) to "at what age should teenagers starts wearing makeup?"

Tuesday's show covered heart disease, children and religion. Women's magazine topics such as these are tailor-made to keep the stay-at-home femme at her screen and on the phone at the same time. Gros.

RUFF & REDDY SHOW
With Bob Cottle, Andy Bader
Producer-Writer: Cottle
Director: Dick Schneider
30 Mins., Sat., 9:30-10 a.m.
MARX TOYS, HORSEMAN DOLLS, SELCHOW & RIGHTER GAMES
NBC-TV from N.Y., (color)
(Ted Bates; Manchester; Doner-Harrison)

This moppet stanza had a previous three-year run on NBC-TV, and after a two-year lapse has been reincarnated around the new hostmanship of Bob Cottle, ex-WHDH-TV, Boston.

No reason why it shouldn't perform serviceably for the peewee set, although a fresh piece of business it isn't. It's interchangeable, in fact, with any number of kidshows, the components including a cartoon ("Ruff & Reddy" cat and dog adventures off the Hanna-Barbera drawing boards); a "magic window" informational segment; and a trio of puppets manipulated by Andy Bader. Cottle's guise is that of "Captain Bob," skipper of an old tub.

One thing about most kidshows: the sponsors really climb aboard, and the resultant hawkstering babel would, seemingly, succeed only in confusing the pre-schoolers. But apparently the sales slide-rule psycholigists can prove otherwise.

In his maritime image, Cottle gave it a good try, but the result was just passable. His approach was typically coy, and thus indistinguishable from most others. The cartoon was frisky enough, with the usual action-suspense values. The puppeteering was limited for the preem (29), but didn't suggest it would be any more engaging in the future. Pit.

SWITCHBOARD IN THE SKY
With John Roberts, narrator
Executive producer: Lew Klein
Producer: Charles Keller
Director: John Toutkaljian
30 Mins., Wed. 8:30 p.m.
COLGATE
WFIL-TV, Philadelphia

In "Switchboards in the Sky" WFIL-TV's aptly tagged "Frontiers of Knowledge" series provided an intellectually absorbing and visually interesting half-hour. Program showcased the first use of Telstar by a local station. Host John Roberts opened the session speaking from Space Hill, Andover, Maine. His intro was beamed by Telstar's giant antenna system to the orbiting satellite and relayed back to earth where it was filmed. When the narrator calmly asserted, "I am speaking to you from outer space" the earth bound viewer got a jolt. He noted the signal was amplified 10,000,000 times and transmitted back to earth. "My voice and picture have traveled nearly 7,000 miles round-trip up to the satellite and back."

As Roberts was speaking from the station in Maine, lensers were busy filming the big horn from underneath and other angles making interesting patterns. He gave some statistics—the horn is 10 stories high, with a sound that can be transmitted to a satellite orbiting the earth at 16,000 miles an hour—hundreds of miles away.

There were inside glimpses of behind-the-scene activity and the scientists, with their usual matter-of-fact approach to realized dreams or to the wonders ahead, explained the roles of transistors, solar cells microwaves and the miracles performed in the laboratories. They envision a world in the near future when satellite towers in the sky may carry millions of telephone calls and hundreds of tv programs from all over the earth.

The 30 minutes racked up a mass of clearly stated information for the generally unitilated audience and should have greatly assisted and delighted the present large crop of space happy youngsters. Gagh.

POLITICS & POKER
With Jim McGovern, others
Producer-Writer: McGovern
Director: Ed. Swanson
30 Mins.: Sun., 9:30 p.m.
KMSP-TV, Minneapolis, (tape)

With "Politics and Poker," this 20th-Fox, ABC-affiliated station again achieved a programming success in its documentary series. Coming at a time when political campaigns occupy much attention hereabouts, it hit the bullseye by giving a behind-the scenes look into Minnesota politics. Probed were politicians and officeholders' problems and difficulties, the manner in which these even seep down to their wives and children to the latter's detriment and possible solutions and remedies.

The show proved worthy of preempting the network in prime time. It assumed importance alone by affording ace staffer Jim McGovern another chance to demonstrate his standout ability as a skillful producer-writer-narrator-interviewer.

Like its McGovern predecessors, "Politics & Poker" included a number of touches which prevented a profusion of talk from becoming tedious. By injecting some action and bits of melody into the proceedings were spiced up and avoided tedium.

Interviewed by McGovern were a former St. Paul mayor, two U. of Minnesota political science professors, a League of Women Voters' officer and an officeholder's wife. They told what they thought about the American political scene and particularly as it applies in this state. As narrator McGovern also voiced some opinions. A good touch, was getting the guests on and off, then bringing them back for their brief stretches of talk. In this way he broke up the individual appearances and made the unbosoming of conclusions more effective. The program thus gained in pace and variety. Rees.

TV Followup Comment

DuPont Show of the Week

Last season on NBC-TV, Irving Gitlin's boys put on an hour about a N.Y. Police Emergency squad that for pictorial qualities alone was a winner. Again using the same framework, the Sunday night "DuPont Show of the Week," a Gitlin team, headed by producer Fred Freed, did a similarly successful hour called "Fire Reseue." Here was a crew of special N.Y. firemen seen in a series of catastrophes that were filmed with matching sound.

Highly mobile cameras were used by some pretty brave cameramen—at least as brave as the courageous firemen they followed into burning loft buildings, onto the roof of a paint shop next door to a nine-alarm fire in Queens, on a racing truck in mid-Manhattan traffic and also into the fire house of Fire Rescue team No. 1 where there was some human, if slightly self-conscious horseplay. One of the crew was killed on one of the emergencies filmed by the NBC News crew. An event both saddening and dramatic.

"Fire Rescue" on Sunday (30) and "Police Emergency" last season marked a mobility that documentaries rarely, if ever, before achieved in tv. The ability to get sight and sound on the spot of real danger (and without any rehearsal) is impressive. Art.

Naked City

The second "Naked City" of the new season, aired by ABC-TV on Wednesday (26), was a good piece of telefilm. There were lots of elements that helped make the hour-long program worthy, but the one factor that put it up among the winners was the performance of a young actress, who has a large talent. It was the first tv role done by Sandy Dennis, the girl in Broadway's "A Thousand Clowns."

The Ernest Kinoy script was professional, although probably not the best he's turned out for video. It was about a young lady, a schzophrenic, who shot a professional football hero after building up an imaginary love affair with him. It was so clear that the role was a "nervous one," the kind that a poor actress could mutilate and thereby ruin the full hour. Miss Dennis' acting was tender, properly hesitant, even a little creepy but always winning.

All the other thesping by guest players was excellent too. Aldo Ray was entirely convincing as the football player who became a 200-pound bundle of anger and confusion when the world at large assumed that he really had been playing around with the young girl. The other guest was Bill Daniels, as mama's boy who loved the fruity female. His part wasn't big and it could have been a failure, since it was tenuous, but he, like Miss Dennis, did it beautifully.

Obviously, when all the visual and vocal pieces click together this well, the director deserves favorable attention. He was John Peyser. Art.

Foreign TV Reviews

Continued from page 46

cisive thriller-writer, but "Peace with Terror" was not his best. It concerned a Bible-punching fanatic, Parsons (Peter Cushing), with a small and seedy following that included a dimwitted ex-con, Warblow (Brian Wilde). Parsons had the mad idea of blowing up a brasshat in the War Office, to draw attention to his sect. Warblow was smuggled into the basement, and planted the explosive during the night.

The plan went predictably awry, but not before Warblow had killed a sergeant who found him hiding. The latter part of the tale had its tension, but Gillies took too long to prepare it, wasting time with establishing Parsons' indifference to wife and child, both in need of the love he aimed at a vengeful Jehovah. Parsons was, in fact, conceived too crudely throughout, and despite a fervent performance from Peter Cushing, failed to win the necessary respectful horror for his intentions.

Brian Wilde clicked as the foolish, but humane. Warblow, but equally could not convince that he was spellbound by the crazy Parsons. Other thesps were okay, with Sheila Manahan registering as the unfortunate wife. Quentin Lawrence produced with pace and took advantage of the nerve-stretching chances when they came. His only fault was a tendency to closeup Parsons, which helped to make him ludicrous rather than awe-inspiring. Otta.

HARPERS WEST ONE
With Jan Holden, Philip Latham, Bernard Horsfall, Jayne Muir, John Kelly, Rona Leigh, John Garvin, Gordon Ruttan, David Calderisi, Elizabeth Ashley, Gay Cameron, Derek Benfield, Andre Charise, Gerald Case, Paul Bacon, Beaufoy Milton
Writers: Geoffrey Bellman, John Whitney
Producer: Rex Firkin
Director: Dinah Thetford
60 Mins., Mon., 8 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

Back-room boys and girls of a large department store are the central figures of "Harpers West One," which has been revived after a long nap. Jan Holden, as the personnel officer, is the sole surviving regular in the team, and this opener was pretty torpid stuff, a conventional bit of fabrication that had little in the way of insight or atmosphere. As before, indeed, the big-store setting contributed little to the flavor of the story, and the opener erred in not involving Miss Holden very closely in the plot. As she was the show's only familiar character, she shouldn't have been left on the sidelines.

Main narrative concerned a Spanish salesman in the antique department, who was presented with a valuable vase by a frustrated woman customer, for favors not yet received. When the husband was close to finding out, the woman denied the gift, and the salesman was accused of stealing it.

This was placidly sorted out by the male personnel man, Oliver (Philip Latham), while on the other floor, the publicity chief (Bernard Horsfall) cunningly persuaded a columnist to mention the food department's cheeses in his pillar.

It was all garrulous, idealized beyond belief, but, on its knee-high level, quite neatly compiled by scripters Bellman and Whitney. It was helped by acting of some charm, especially from David Calderisi as the maligned Spaniard and Gay Cameron as his girlfriend. Elizabeth Ashley convinced as the predatory customer, and Philip Latham and Bernard Horsfall did enough to suggest that they might win an undemanding public in later segments. Dinah Thetford directed. Rex Firkin's production without fuss. Otta.

UNIVERSITY CHALLENGE
With Bamber Gascoigne
Producer: Barrie Heads
Director: Peter Plummer
30 Mins., Fri., 10:45 p.m.
Granada TV, from Manchester

As a technical fault put paid to the picture for much of the opener, little can be said about the visual impact of this new quiz series imported from America. The one gimmick was that the two teams of university students were ranged above each other in tiers, and this certainly made a change. It also helped the presentation, for any question could be answered, even before it was completely put, by the first contestant to press a button and show a light. Thus, both teams had to be in view if this aspect of the program was to mean anything to viewers.

Four students apiece, from Reading and Leeds in the initialler in the British series, were thrown a "starter" question. The one who answered it correctly scored points for his team, who were then allowed to have a corporate shot at a "bonus" question. The winning team from the session competes against another university in the next segment.

The program was presented at feverish speed, which might with advantage be slackened. Only the quickest-witted could participate with the teams, who were thrown a series of fairly erudite questions about the names of obscure Premiers, choreographers, and writers, and even had to guess that a piece of prose was written by Hemingway or Virginia Woolf by its style. The teams coped well, and emcee Bamber Gascoigne made an intelligent host, although, again, he might shine more brightly when is allowed to slow down.

Some irritating noises, like gongs and bursts of fanfare, seemed out of keeping with the rigorous standard of knowledge expected. But it made a deft and welcome mind-teaser, especially for those who have progressed beyond the baby queries of other quiz games. Otta.

Syracuse—Syracuse University's campus radio station WAER-FM signed on the air Oct. 1 with a brief ceremony inaugurating a signal change and power boost on the FM band. WAER this month joined the educational Radio Network, enabling it to broadcast and receive from other campus stations as distant as Washington, D.C.

Metro Broadcast Sales

Offices: New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco.
Representing a selected group of major Television and Radio Stations in major markets

Including: WNEW-TV, the Big Independent Television Station serving the total N.Y. market.
WNEW Radio... the advertising investment that makes the difference in the N.Y. market.

PERRY'S BACK

(Tonight, that is) NBC 9 to 10 P.M.

Direction
GENERAL ARTISTS CORPORATION
NEW YORK • CHICAGO
BEVERLY HILLS • CINCINNATI • DALLAS • LONDON

'Can't See Script for the Suds'

Coast Writers Rap Current Season as 'Chasing After Successes'

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

"You can't see the script for the suds" just about expresses the opinion of the new shows on tv by members of Writers Guild of America, West, TV branch, at their special membership meeting last Friday night (28). David Chandler, novelist-teleplaywright, picking up Richard Powell's remark that "we don't exist just to sell soap," criticized his own craft for falling back on "soapiness formula." But he left himself an out—"they're corporate authored and we're not eastern writers."

What he intended to imply was that the original teleplay passes through so many hands, dictated by the sponsor and the ad agency, that little is left of what was written. As for trends, Chandler called it "chasing after successes." He added, "and for all this we get less pix than our secretaries used to get."

Writers are also troubled about their public image and have proposed to take their case to the people via a local show. The networks gave them a rejection slip in the fear that what they write might offend sensitive sponsors. But they'll have a quarterly magazine coming out soon, which should partially assuage their hurt feelings. Even England's Pilkington Report inferentially reflected on the poor quality of writing by WGA members.

Said a voice from the floor, "we can write better if they'll let us."

Powell, chairman of the special tv craft forum, mistook the temper of the 200 attending members. On the agenda were comments on the Pilkington Report, pay-tv and Telstar. When it appeared that their personal interests were too far in the future, nearly half of them left the room. Christopher Knopf told of inviting Newton Minow to attend one of the Guild meetings so they could tell him to his face what they thought of his "wasteland" crack but got the old runaround. They'll try for someone less important. Someone suggested a sponsor and that broke up the meeting.

NAB-FCC Talks Set On Radio Band Jam

Washington, Oct. 2.

National Assn. of Broadcasters and Federal Communications Commission have tentatively scheduled a conference on radio band population for Dec. 5-7.

George Hatch, KALL, Salt Lake City, and NAB Radio Development Committee chairman will head the broadcasters delegation.

Jackie & Mamie Join On NBC-TV News Special

Jacqueline Kennedy and Mamie Eisenhower will appear Nov. 11 on the same tv program when NBC-TV—via its news department—does a special on the National Cultural Center due for D.C..

Mrs. Kennedy, the First Lady, and her immediate predecessor are cutting brief interviews for NBC News. Sander Vanocur will front the hourlong Sunday afternoon (4:30 p.m.) special. Jack Sughrue is producing.

AFTRA's Coast Local Asks Nat'l Board to Pin Unfair Listing on Five

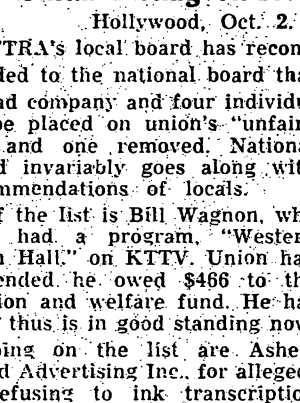
Hollywood, Oct. 2.

AFTRA's local board has recommended to the national board that one ad company and four individuals be placed on union's "unfair" list, and one removed. National board invariably goes along with recommendations of locals.

Off the list is Bill Wagnon, who once had a program, "Western Town Hall," on KTTV. Union had contended he owed $466 to the pension and welfare fund. He has paid, thus is in good standing now.

Going on the list are Asher-Gould Advertising Inc., for allegedly refusing to ink transcription code and failure to pay re-use fees to four singers on radio spots, in amount of $350 plus late payment penalties, also for not paying pension-and-welfare coin.

Foy Willing joins the list for alleged failure to pay eight members $400 for a phone recording session, also for not paying pension-and-welfare. Martin Beck, producer of the televised Miss California prelims in the "Miss World Contest," is tabooed by AFTRA for alleged failure to pay announcer talent fees amounting to $88 plus late payment penalty, also for failure to pay pension-and-welfare.



Producer J. C. Stevens, who had the now defunct "Pet Life" show, joins the taboo list for allegedly failing to pay pension-and-welfare coin for his own performances on his program.

George Martin, owner of The Inn in Studio City, is on for allegedly failing to pay 10 performers talent fees totaling $723 plus pension-and-welfare, for a tv remote at his restaurant, also for refusing to sign AFTRA's local tv code of fair practices.

LOOK IN AT

ED SULLIVAN TV SHOW

OCT. 7th

First Appearance in U.S.A. of One of Britain's Foremost Funsters

DENNY WILLIS

IN HIS 'HUNTSMEN QUINTETTE'

INCLUDING JOHNNIE MACK

4th CONSECUTIVE YEAR

'FOL DE ROLS' (HUGH CHARLES)

Personal Manager—PETE DAVIS

27 Elgin Mans., Elgin Avenue, London, W. 9

Phone: Cunningham 2349

Susskind

Continued from page 27

cal shows, such as the Winston Churchill series, the Truman series will not be based on stock footage. Rather it will attempt to recreate the crucial decisions made during the Truman administration by interviews with the living participants in each situation. Among the crises to be covered are Truman's decisions to drop the atom bomb on the Japanese and to defend Korea.

Susskind regards educational television as "a refuge where he can do the things that must be done." He is planning to do "Brecht on Brecht," "The Zoo Story," "Rhinoceros" and other works of similar calibre on educational television.

Money is not a significant problem for Susskind who regards the $125,000 per hour going rate for commercial network television a figure inflated by "parasitical factors." Among these, Susskind points out are the selling agents' 10% fee and the automatic 30% studio charge. NET is currently prepared to spend about $40,000 per hour show and that apparently is sufficient for Susskind to work within.

Although NET is not able to command the ratings typical of commercial network offering, Susskind asserted that a show on the 68 educational tv stations can hit a vast audience through the outlets' policy of repeating one show many times. In addition, NET makes tapes available cuffo to universities where additional large audiences see NET presentations.

But while NET is "a heaven in a hell of indifference" to Susskind, he's still very much interested in network assignments. His company, Talent Associates-Paramount, is still producing the "Armstrong Circle Theatre"; and his "Hedda Gabler" special with Ingrid Bergman is upcoming on CBS-TV. Susskind is also busy in film production currently. He's now working on the picturization of "All The Way Home" and is preparing for the Oct. 17 preem of "Requiem For A Heavyweight."

WHDH

Continued from page 31

Corp. and Massachusetts Bay Telecasters Inc. Two commissioners, T. A. M. Craven and Robert T. Bartley, took no part in the case. (Craven's former engineering firm at one time was connected with an applicant; Bartley was in Texas when the oral arguments were presented.)

Minow's opinion was that none of the three applicants should have been given a permit. Minow felt WHDH should have been allowed to continue operation of the tv station as an "interim trustee," while the case was thrown open for new companies to apply. (Commissioner Cross believed FCC would have to have permission from the U. S. Court of Appeals to achieve Minow's objective, but Minow didn't agree.)

Original Findings

The FCC majority stuck by the commission's original findings back in April, 1957, that WHDH was "superior" to Massachusetts Bay. The majority opinion weighed at some length the comparison between the WHDH and Greater Boston applications, concluding that WHDH wound up with a higher score on the factor of greatest significance, "past broadcast experience and record."

WHDH originally won channel 5 in April, 1957. Later, following Oren Harris Congressional investigations of alleged influence peddling at FCC, the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington remanded the Bostotn case to FCC. The court ordered new hearings on charges of ex parte contacts preceding the original grant.

The FCC majority, in the Wednesday (26) decision, found different stains on all three applicants, but concluded, "... the public interest would be better served by a grant to WHDH."

Ford and Cross both wrote concurring statements with the majority opinion. Cross made it obvious he had wavered considerably before joining the majority. Cross called it "a Hobson's choice in favor of the least undesirable of three demerited applicants." Ford's statement suggested he was more favorable to WHDH than the remainder of the majority.

Ford felt the majority had overemphasized the "error in judgment" of Robert Choate, WHDH prexy, hosting two luncheons in Washington while the channel 5 case was pending which were attended by George C. McConnaughey, then FCC chairman. Both Choate and McConnaughey have insisted the Boston case was never discussed. But the majority criticized the incidents and viewed them as weighing against WHDH's standing as an applicant. They found other factors in WHDH's favor which turned the decision to the newspaper-owned company.

The majority felt the factor of diversification of mass media of communications was of lesser importance in the Boston case than normally because of the highly competitive newspaper situation in Boston, plus the large number of broadcasting stations.

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Even before "Discovery—'62" began telecasting this week, ABC-TV had indications of widespread interest among the country's opinion-makers in the daily show slanted for youngsters. Several weeks ago, Tom Moore, v.p. in charge of the ABC-TV network, mailed a limited number of letters to educators, librarians, etc., outlining the nature of "Discovery" and including a bibliography compiled for the show in cooperation with the American Library Assn. The network has since received requests for over 3,000 copies of the bibliography from such diverse sources as public school systems and the Department of Welfare's Homemaking Center in N.Y. Ellen M. MacKinnon, in charge of audience information for the network, is handling the requests for the "Discovery" bibliography.

John S. Hayes, prexy of Post-Newsweek Stations of Washington, D.C., and Jacksonville, Fla., is one of the nation's busiest speakers these days, and it is all for sweet charity's sake. In San Francisco last March, Hays was elected volunteer president of the United Community Funds and Councils of America, a big job calling for a lot of talk. Since then, he has crisscrossed America and Canada encouraging United Fund chapters to put more moxie in their efforts and collect more money this year for health and welfare purposes in their communities.

Sidelight for the job was the privilege of introducing President Kennedy on all three tv networks Sept. 18 when the chief executive urged all Americans to contribue to United Fund drives. They kick off in October in most areas.

Hayes' first speech as leader of the national charitable effort was in Anchorage, Alaska. Since then he has addressed large gatherings in Seattle, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., Grand Rapids, Mich., Boston Newark, Toronto and others places. Immediately ahead are more speeches in Austin, Tex., Cleveland, Miami and Washington.

Canadian Broadcasting Corp., referring to a story in the Sept. 19 VARIETY in which Canadian commercial broadcaster K. C. Soble charged that CBC could "dish it out but couldn't take it," contends that it contained some errors. A. K. Morrow, director of English networks and the Toronto area, wires: "CBC is not, as article states, 'regulator of the private stations with which it competes.' Board of Broadcast Governors is the regulating body of both public and private broadcasting in Canada. Furthermore, this report erroneously states it is the CBC's ruling 'that all stations in Canada must carry 55% Canadian program content.' Wrong again. Canadian content ruling is a BBG regulation."

Two staffers of WBKB, Chicago—Richie Victor, a director, and Larry Einhorn, an a.d.—have created what they call a "non-game" which already is showing signs of being this year's successor to the "Executive Coloring Book" as a gag gift. Called "New Frontier-ola," it's satirical updating of Monopoly in the Kennedy era, the object being not to win all the money but to lose it. Although packaged pretentiously with dice and game board, it's meant for reading rather than playing and, in Chi where it's being test-marketed, is being sold in book stores. Goes for $3.95 a copy.

One of the properties in the game, bearing a price tag of $4,000,000, is a corporation called Vast Wasteland Electronics. Deed describes it as "Packager of sexy, violent and sadistic programs on long playing records for FM stations. This is a wholly-owned subsidiary set up by the three commercial television networks to get the FCC off their backs." One of the "Chance" cards reads, "You are a member of the John Birch Society. Move three spaces to the left." That's a sampler of the reading matter contained.

Einhorn and Victor have formed a company and are negotiating with Pocket Books Inc. for national distribution.

A Minneapolis story last week erred in citing WTCN, of that city, as the 20th-Fox-owned station in the market. WTCN is, of course, an independent owned by Time-Life Broadcast Inc. The Fox-owned station is KMPS-TV, an ABC affiliate.

Institute of Broadcasting Financial Management will hold its second annual conclave in Milwaukee Oct. 17 at Coach House Motor Inn for three days. Program, focussing on current financial and business management topics, will include an address by H. W. (Dutch) Cassill of Blackburn & Co. on "How Much Is Your Station Worth?" and another by Arizona State business administration prof. Robert E. Hill titled "Dollars and Decisions In the Broadcasting Industry."

Workshop sessions will deal with taxation, music licensing, systems and procedures, and governmental financial reporting.

WANT TO PLAY IN THE BIG LEAGUE?

The Northwest area is really big league . . . 810,800 TV homes and over $5 Billion in spendable income.

Why not sign up with the first place club—KSTP-TV. The Northwest's first TV station, KSTP-TV serves and sells this vital market most effectively, most economically.

KSTP television 5

100,000 WATTS NBC

MINNEAPOLIS · ST. PAUL

Canada B'casting Corp. Is Dealt A $5,000,000 Blow

Ottawa, Oct. 2.

Canada's austerity program has hit the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. a $5,000,000 blow. CBC president J. Alphonse Ouimet announced in Ottawa that the corporation's budget for the rest of the current fiscal year (to March 31, 1963) would be slashed by that much.

The big cut's chief consequences include elimination of CBC's Ottawa-Montreal-Toronto FM web, but the three individual stations will continue airing in FM; sharp reduction in construction funds for CBC's new headquarters building in Ottawa which will continue but at a slower pace; temporary suspension of plans for a French-language AMer in Ottawa; postponement of plans for a consolidation of CBC's Montreal facilities; postponement of tenders for the consolidation of Toronto facilities and of plans for new AMers in Edmonton and Calgary.

Other postponements caused by the cutback include radio developments in Canada's Atlantic coast provinces, reapplication for a license to preem a tv station in Quebec City. Work has been suspended on the CBC's civil defense emergency broadcasting plan under which studios and relay stations would be manned 24 hours a day. Filling of staff vacancies is also slowed. CBC has 8,000 staffers with a yearly turnover of 10%.

Bulk of the slash will show in the corporation's capital budget of $10,000,000 which gets a $4,000,000 cut. The other million will be missing from the operational fund. Since CBC is publicly owned, the government austerity program scored a direct hit.

New Season

Continued from page 27

CBS, with the powerhouse Red Skelton (full hour), Jack Benny (half-hour) and Garry Moore (hour) combo taking the play.

Wednesday shapes ABC's night, with the second-week bounceback of "Wagon Train" to take a commanding lead after succumbing to NBC's "Virginian" first time out. Combination of "Wagon Train," "Going My Way" and "Naked City" looks too strong for anyone to overcome.

Thursday could well be the surprise night of the week, particularly in view of the strong "Kildare"-"Hazel" pairing on NBC. But the CBS parlay of "Mr. Ed," "Perry Mason," "Nurses" (which was only slightly overtaken by "Kildare" and which triumphed over "Hazel" on the N.Y. rating), plus the hour Hitchcock now looks like the action to beat.

Friday could be anybody's night with the odds favoring ABC's combo of "Gallant Men," "Flintstones," "I'm Dickens-He's Fenster," "77 Sunset Strip."

CBS to all intents and purposes has Saturday locked up tight, from Gleason, through "Defenders," "Have Gun" and "Gunsmoke." A not-strong-enough "Benedict" contributed toward the NBC loss.

Sunday should belong to either CBS or NBC. Too early to tell, but "Bonanza" plus some good duPont entries could turn the trick.

CBS TURNS UP 'PENNY'

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

CBS-TV is developing a half-hour teenage situation comedy, "Penny," for the 1963-64 season.

No producer has been assigned the telefilm project as yet. Web is testing for the title role, and Wendy Turner is among those tested.

TAX ADVANTAGE!

ARIZONA LAND, near Sperry-Rand and G.E. Plant, etc. in BOOMING PHOENIX, ARIZONIA. Will accept pre-paid interest or any deal to help buyer tax-wise. Have 240 acres at $2,500 per. Sell all or part, May trade. Has $175,000 mortgage payable 35 years at 5%.

Owner, ED CLARK
1417 E. Colter St., PHOENIX, ARIZ.

ROBERT TAYLOR, '330' DUE FOR '63 COMEBACK

Two tv "dead ducks"—Robert Taylor and a stanza called "330 Independence Drive"—have been resuscitated, it appears. NBC-TV reportedly has made a deal with producer Four Star to put both together in a new pilot effort for the '63-'64 season.

Last season, a Taylor-fronted hour on NBC-TV, called "Detectives," bombed. Taylor is not working the tv first-run route this year.

And a pilot of "330," allegedly based on the exploits of the Health, Education & Welfare Department of the U. S., got raked over the critical coals when it appeared as one of the "Dick Powell Show" hours last year. NBC and producer Four Star have decided to rework completely the original format, which was more brawn than brain. Taylor will star as a science sleuth.

'Bullwinkle' Goes Back To Color After NBC-TV Gets Affils Squawks

NBC-TV thought when this season started that it might be wiser—economically, that is—to televise "Bullwinkle" in black-and-white rather than color. But the forces of color at the network won a "minor skirmish" last week and soon the Sabbath afternoon kidvid half-hour will return once more to tint.

Having begun a couple of weeks ago in the Sunday-5:30 p.m. slot (it was at 6:30—and in color—last season), "Bullwinkle" was black-and-white. A couple of NBC-TV's affiliated stations, however, warned—for reasons of their own—that they'd not carry the stanza unless color was once more added. It goes multichrome, as a consequence, on Sunday (7). (Show, a cartoon affair, has always been produced in color, so that only the transmitting equipment had to be changed.)

Who Killed Lincoln? Booth or TV

Raymond Massey, Once Known as 'Honest Abe,' Now Answers to 'Dr. Gillespie'

By GUY LIVINGSTON

Boston, Oct. 2.

Raymond Massey and wife, Dorothy, visiting Hub Sunday (30), had some pungent comments on identifications. For those who thought Massey would go striding down the ages 10 feet tall as Abraham Lincoln because of his "Abe Lincoln In Illinois," there's a real switch ending. "He's now dubbed in Japan as Dr. Gillespie!"

Massey's wife, Dorothy, native New Englander, and a graduate of Yale Law School, no less, told VARIETY "The public has finally killed Lincoln. Mr. Massey has been known as Lincoln for 23 years. But, after only six months of playing 'Dr. Gillespie' on tv, we went to shop at a downtown department store (in Beverly Hills, where they now reside), and he was greeted by shouts of 'Hello, Dr. Gillespie!' "

The Masseys, in for the day, held a sparsely attended tv press conference at the Ritz, and visited with old friends. They joked about the change in identification. Of course, as Massey pointed out, there's a whole new generation that has never seen his Lincoln, and more's the pity. To them, he is "Dr. Gillespie." Which, all goes to show once again the tremendous exposure of tv, according to Massey. "I don't think that tv is a wasteland," he declared forcefully. I think it's the greatest chance to be seen that any actor ever has. And, I don't hold with some of the younger members of the profession who look down their noses at

(Continued on page 54)

NEWS

...est ... is ... 962 National ... and ... n ... rs' A
... RC ... ot Ne ... erage ... rican...

3 AP AWARDS

KPRC and KPRC-TV won three awards recently at the 1962 meeting of the Texas Associated Press Broadcasters Association.

KPRC was judged first in the state in five-minute news shows and first also in 15 minute news shows in cities of 200,000 or more population.

KPRC-TV's coverage of Hurricane Carla last year earned the television station an award in the spot news film category of the competition.

4 N.P.P.A. AWARDS

KPRC-TV and its personnel garnered four awards at a similar meeting of the National Press Photographers Association. Tom Jarriel took first place for his Galveston coverage of Hurricane Carla. Chuck Pharris won a second place in the feature news division with his picture story "Photo Day at Rice University," and a third place in the general news category with his coverage of the Ashley-Lima murder verdict. In addition, KPRC-TV was adjudged a runner-up as The News-film Station of The Year. KPRC-TV was the only station in the nation to win 4 awards.

KPRC RADIO 950 HOUSTON TELEVISION

REPRESENTED NATIONALLY BY EDWARD PETRY & CO.

From The Production Centres

Continued from page 41

Crane planes to Washington this week to rep the AWRT membership at Congress of American Women Leaders . . . Paul Saliner plucked the 9:30 strip on WGN Radio for his "Gadabout" show . . . Jim Unrath of the WFMT staff gets associate producer's credit for "Born To Live," Studs Terkel's radio opus that copped the UNESCO prize in the Prix Italia competition . . . WIND and WLS both have new medical public affairs series assisted by U. of Illinois Medical Research Center . . . When a recent survey indicated that women of voting age were adept at identifying radio personalities than key political figures, WIND gm Ed Wallis declined the commercial interpretation and editorialized on the regrettable aspect . . . WBBM Radio veepee E. H. Shomo gives a reception party today (Wed.) for CBS Radio prexy Arthur Hull Hays, in town for the web's "Third Dimension" presentation.

IN LONDON .

Eight Commonwealth broadcasters—from Hong Kong, Tanganyika, Jamaica, Uganda, Sierra Leone and Sarawak—landed at Westward-TV hq as part of an official introduction to Britain. Visitors are in for a broadcasting training course . . . Anne Gregg, on-screen interviewer-personality, joins Anglia-TV from Ulster-TV . . . Josh White taped a series of songs for BBC Radio while stopping off here between Europe-U. S. flight . . . Anglia-TV fall schedule includes five new local shows . . . Scottish-TV prepping 10 programs for schools . . . Granada-TV planning an art skein for teenagers . . . Another video showcase for visiting Yank artists will be opened when BBC-TV introduces "Like . . . Music" at the end of the month.

IN WASHINGTON

Don Colee, v.p. and general manager of WTTG-TV, appointed chairman of the 1962 March for Muscular Dystrophy. WTTG, a Metromedia station garnered $52,000 for local Muscular Dystrophy chapters last summer with its "Carnivals for Muscular Dystrophy" pub service promo . . . Tom Paro was named station manager at NBC o&o WRC-TV after seven year hitch with NBC-TV spot sales in New York . . . Shelley Berman will face 10 local high schoolers on Oct. 7 on "Youth Wants to Know" on WTOP-TV here and WABC in New York . . . Maury Povich, son of Washington Post sports columnist Shirley Povich, has been named publicity director of WWDC radio . . . Scott Goings, pop singer, MC and comedian, joins WGMS radio as sales rep . . . George Griesbauer signs on as account exec with WMAL-TV. He replaces Charles Macatee who was promoted to national sales rep for WMAL-TV and radio . . . Bobby Mitchell, all-pro halfback for Washington Redskins will have pre-game Q & A show on WWDC . . . Malcolm LaPlace former news director of WYLD in New Orleans joins WMAL-TV and radio news staff.

IN BOSTON

WNAC-TV's big party for ABC-TV brass and talent, which had more than 400 vip's, press and adreps and their clients to be subject of a brochure on "how to give a party," brainchild of Al Korn, advertising director Donald W. Parker, chief engineer WHAM, Rochester, N.Y., becomes technical supervisor for WBZ radio . . . A panel of foreign studes studying U.S. at Brandeis U. voiced their opinions in "America TV Through Foreign Eyes" on WGBH-TV, Channel 2 . . . WNAC-TV projects the new Boston image in station idents and special programs . . . WBZ-TV to present three 9 min. public forums dealing with "morality, modernization and manpower in Massachusetts government" in late November . . . WNAC to broadcast Yom Kippur services from Temple Ohabei Shalom, Brookline, 10:30-11 p.m., Sunday (7).

IN PITTSBURGH .

Don Riggs, KDKA-TV personality, has landed the Carling commercials for the brew firm's regional NFL broadcasts . . . Dave Kosick added to the news staff of KDKA . . . Ed Schaughency begins a news series on Oct. 4 dealing with early Pittsburgh history.

Scripts will be written by John Kulamer . . . WTAE hosted area agencies and press corps last week at its studios where it held a preview of fall ABC shows.

IN ST. LOUIS . .

Sportscaster Jack Buck has been signed for the KMOX radio play-by-play of the St. Louis U. basketball games for the 1962-63 season. Buck replaces Harry Caray, longtime "voice of the Billikins." Both University and station officials declined to discuss the change. However, local trade chatter sez Caray's ousting was the finale of a running feud between the announcer and University athletic brass, who didn't cotton to his outspoken on-the-air criticism of Billiken teams of recent years. Caray does Cardinal baseball play-by-play on radio Jack Buck also reports Sunday American League Football games for the ABC-TV Network . . . KMOX-TV's ace newscaster, Spencer Allen, and photographer Charles Bohn, will jet to Rome next week to shoot film of the Ecumenical Council. The footage will be used on the station's "Road to Unity" special series. Spencer will take his wife, Deane, along on the Rome junket—a 25th wedding anniversary present . . . Jimmy Hill, backfield star of the Football Cardinals, has signed as sports director of radio KXLW . . . KTVI-TV will televise a series of locally produced once-monthly specials titled "The St. Louis Story." Premiere on Friday, Oct. 26 . . . Radio station KMOX will broadcast a new dramatic series called "Theatre Workshop" on alternate Sunday evenings, starting Oct. 28. The programs will offer original plays or adaptations to be written and acted by area college students and station personnel . . . Educational station, KETC-TV, has boosted power fourfold with its new transmitter amplifier . . . KMOX-TV weatherman Jim Bolen sidelined with a case of laryngitis. Julian Bell substituted.

IN DETROIT

S. L. A. Marshall, Detroit News military analyst who is a retired brigadier general and former war correspondent, will host his own commentary program on WWJ-TV in the 6:15 p.m. Saturday slot . . . Alan Thayer, a summer replacement in the WJBK news department, retained as a newscaster . . . WWJ-radio will broadcast the 70-game Detroit Red Wings hockey games with Budd Lynch describing the action and Carling Brewing picking up the tab . . . Louis J. Miller, vet Michigan newscaster, is the editorial voice of WJBK-TV and WJBK-radio, commenting three times daily across the board on current events . . . Organist August Maekelberghe begins his third season of Sunday recitals, using the finest church organs in the Detroit area, on WWJ-radio.

IN PHILADELPHIA

"Bandstand's" Dick Clark, named distributor for Dr. Pepper, soft drink, in the Philadelphia-South Jersey area. Starting Oct. 15, Clark will become the national voice for the beverage, hitherto popular chiefly in the South . . . Ann Blair reports Capitol news and views for Triangle Stations in new series "Windows on Washington" . . . Les Keiter succeeds sportscaster Mal Alberts on WFIL-TV . . . Eagles' Football schedule kicks off on WCAU-TV, with Steelers game from Pittsburgh (6). Jack Whitaker and Bosh Pritchard handle the play-by-play . . . Troy Donahue and Connie Stevens guest at the Television and Radio Advertising Club (TRAC) luncheon, at the Warwick (4) . . . Gordon K. Thomas, WBG newsman, named president of the Pennsylvania United Press-International Broadcasters Assn. . . . Roy Neal, former WPTZ broadcaster, now producer of special events for NBC, Los Angeles, just had his first book, "Ace in the Hole," published by Doubleday . . . The 38th annual convention of the National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters meeting at the Ben Franklin (21-24).

IN MILWAUKEE . .

Roger W. LeGrand, general manager, WITI-TV (Milwaukee's Storer link) hosted tent party and dedication of new tower . . . Charles H. Rowell ankled WSBT-TV & WSBT, South Bend, Ind., for post with WTMJ-TV & WTMJ. Awhile back, same Chuck Rowell was staffer Chuck Powell on WFOX . . . WXIX-TV inaugurated "Movie of the Week," (Friday's 9:30 p.m.) with Wisconsin Factory Outlet and Bell-Mann Drugs snatching the tab . . . A new series, spotting Dr. Albert E. Burke former Yale U. professor, now Sundays, 3:30 p.m., on WTMJ-TV with Cuban problem first coverage . . . WISN-TV now showing new test series of cartoons "The Best of Huck & Yogi," Tuesdays, 9:30-10 p.m., in shot at adult viewers . . . Dick Sherwood's music now on "Teen Time," Thursdays, 5:30 p.m., on WISC-TV, Madison . . . Bruce Turner doing the newscasts on WLUC-TV (Wausau) 6 p.m. & 11 p.m. 'cross-the-board . . . Jim Murphy sharpening WISN newscasts . . . Bob Siegrist & the News, now on WRIT 6-6:15 p.m. 'cross-the-board.

IN MINNEAPOLIS

Comedienne Phyllis Diller, slated to appear in the Hotel Radisson Flame Room Nov. 12-29, will record some radio blurbs for a local sponsor during her stay here . . . Time-Life's WTCN Radio, ABC affiliate which carried Liston-Patterson heavyweight title go, followed abbreviated match by switching to Minneapolis Auditorium to pick up comments of fans who had watched on closed-circuit tv. About one-fifth of those interviewed, apparently unconvinced by what they had seen, said they'd pick Patterson in the return fight . . . Al Tighe doing play-by-play coverage of University of Minnesota grid games on KSTP with Steve Cannon handling sideline commentary. Stan Hubbard station's pre-game lineup includes 20-minute taped interviews with Gopher asst. coach Bob Bossons . . . Three tv debates between Minnesota Gov. Elmer L. Anderson and DFL challenger Karl Rolvaag set for Oct. 4, 16 and 30 on WTCN-TV. Same channel will carry debate between Rep. Clark MacGregor and opponent Irving Keldsen Oct. 21 . . . "Rifleman" star Chuck Connor, in town last week, predicted demise of his series within year "unless demand picks up.

IN MEXICO CITY

Dubbing boom in Mexico is in high gear with 94 episodes completed weekly and a total of 600 to be dubbed in remaining months of the year from 80 American series. From a slow start about three years ago dubbing now provides work for over 200 actors . . . Mario Moreno set to do a videotape for the Ed Sullivan Show to be made in Mexico with Mexican comic interpreting role of a tourist guide . . . The over four-week suspension of the "Tongaloa" series is slated to end, according to Jose Celis, Mexican producer who insists he is not on the outs with CBS and that balance of 25 segments will be completed in Mexico . . . Mexican actors are forming cooperatives to produce radio soap operas and other material, with two groups now active in field: Cooperativa Proa headed by Antonio Gonzalez, Salvador Carrasco, Emma Thelmo and others; and the Alfa Cooperativo including actor group led by Carlos Gonzalez Duenos

Radio Review

"ON THE LINE WITH CONSIDINE"
With Bob Considine
Five Mins.; Mon.-Fri., 6:50 p.m.
MUTUAL OF OMAHA
ABC Radio
(Bozell & Jacobs)

Vet broadcaster and syndicated columnist Bob Considine has joined the staff of ABC News and with this move his "On the Line With Considine" news commentary has been brought into ABC Radio's evening news feature "Newscope" as a five-minute segment, going on at 6:50 p.m.

On the opening seg, Considine, who will be a sort of roving reporter for ABC News, beamed his report from Oxford, Mississippi, where he offered some commentary on the shocking events taking place there last Monday (1). He told of martial law, offered the opinion that the "goons" who were doing most of the roughnecking were townies and not "Ole Miss" students and went into the arrest and events surrounding Gen. Edwin Walker. On the latter subject, Considine, who presumably is writing his own scripts, commented that the retired General had "disgraced himself and discolored for all time his reputation as a soldier and a gentleman."

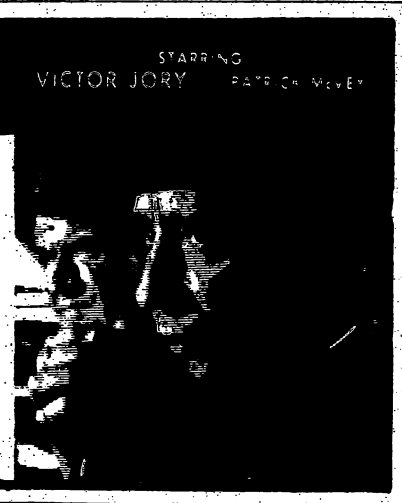
In describing the events of the day, the reporter who has been doing this show on radio and tv for Mutual of Omaha for the past 11 years, most recently as a 15-minute spot on NBC Radio, discussed things like a war reporter, speaking of attacks and counter-attacks in graphic and interesting manner. It was too bad he didn't have more time.

In addition to his daily commentary on the show, Considine will also be an active member of the ABC news department. "Newscope" is a nightly ABC Radio feature, running from 6:30 to 7:15. Considine is a worthy addition.

Kali.

Who Killed Lincoln?

Continued from page 53



tv. That's just 'doggone' snobbishness."

Massey said: "The exposure of tv is 20 times greater than that of any other medium."

He said his portrayal of the character he plays in the "Dr. Kildare" series is not the benevolent father type, neither is it the irascible crochety Lionel Barrymore film version. His "Dr. Gillespie" is a humanitarian, a man of great honor. And above all, says Massey, the character is human. "I don't think that doctors are as hardboiled as laymen usually think they are.

On Japanese tv screens, he is "Dr. Gillespie," or the Japanese equivalent of the name, speaking Japanese. Was "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" dubbed in Japanese?

"MANHUNT"
STARRING VICTOR JORY
LEADS ITS COMPETITION!
4-STA. DENVER
34 Rating
56% Aud. Share
3-STA. SAN DIEGO
23 Rating
43% Aud. Share
Source: ARB
For full details, contact
SCREEN GEMS, INC.

E. William Henry

Continued from page 27

years, are currently Secretary of Labor and Ambassador to Denmark. Stevenson himself is officer in charge of the U. S. operation at the United Nations.

Minow and Henry were not acquainted before Henry's appointment. Henry was selected by Attorney General, Robert F. Kennedy.

FCC employes staged a farewell party for Cross and chipped in to buy him an expensive camera. His colleagues on the Commission adoped a resolution complimenting his service. It was lettered on parchment, read by Minow at the party and given to Cross.

BOB CARROLL
Starring as HOST of
"REMEMBER THAT SONG"
WBBM — CBS-TV — Chicago
Also "TONIGHT Show," NBC
Oct. 2nd

To reach Main Street, U.S.A., turn at Mutual. Start selling on the big "buy-way." Mutual Radio owns Main Street, U.S.A. with 453 listenable affiliates. Mutual Radio delivers 97 of the top 100 Main Streets in America. Mutual Radio | 3M A Service to Independent Stations.

MUSIC BIZ'S SELF-DECEPTION

Clarify Copyright Extension

VARIETY report last week of President Kennedy's signing of the copyright extension bill may have slipped in not including the obvious.

The bill, of course, extends until Dec. 31, 1965 only those already renewed copyrights which would finally expire between Sept. 19, 1962 (date of the signing) and the 1965 date. It is designed to keep works of the 1906-09 era out of the public domain until Congress can revamp the whole copyright statute. Unaffected are copyrights which might come up for a 28-year renewal during the time in question. They can be given the normal regular renewal.

Ballroom Ops Waltzing Into Harmony With AFM as Curbs on Wires Fade

Chicago, Oct. 2.

A rapprochement appears to be in the making between ballroom operators and the American Federation of Musicians over remote broadcasts from dance palaces. Ops at the 15th annual convention of the National Ballroom Operators Assn. in Chicago last week were heartened by a statement by AFM secretary Stanley Ballard that the union's executive committee would move to remove restrictions (primarily standby musicians) on the broadcasts.

The change of heart after two decades of severe limitations on the part of the musicians union was enthusiastically received by the ballroom owners. Joe Malec, reelected prexy of the NBOA for his second term, opined that resumption of the remote broadcasts would result in a new upsurge in ballroom attendance.

He said that it would also be good for the bands and in promoting live music in general. Malec reported that several union locals in southern California and Texas had tried easing restrictions on remotes and had increased both radio listenership and ballroom attendance.

Another trend noted by attendees at the convention was the development of more and better local and regional bands. It was felt that the increase in the area orchs stems from the continuing decline in the number of name bands. The ballroom operators say that the big bands are getting harder to get and more expensive as college and other concerts take more and more of their time.

Tone of the convention seemed optimistic, with most ballroom men registering the opinion that the dance hall biz had "bottomed out" several years ago. There were reports of three or four darkened ballrooms being reopened and talk of several new plush dance halls in the planning or construction stage.

In addition to Malec, the following officers were reelected: Harold Austin, Buffalo, N. Y., vice-president; Dale King, Norfolk, Neb., treasurer; and Eddie Schlma, Des Moines, Ia., executive secretary. New members of the board are James Potter of Edelstein, Ill., and Lloyd Aude, Green Bay, Wisc. The association will meet in St. Paul next year.

Paul Anka to Promote NBA Basketball; Sinatra, Deano's Racetrack Buy

Singer Paul Anka is segueing into the sports field. Anka is part of a group, headed by his manager, Irving Feld, which is promoting NBA basketball in Baltimore this season. The group also has an option for an NBA Baltimore franchise.

Super Attractions Inc., a national promotion company operated by Feld, will sponsor nine basketball games this season at the new Baltimore Civic Center 14,000-seat hall opening at the end of October.

Get Piece of Mass. Track

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 2.

Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin have purchased an interest in and have become directors of Berkshire Downs, a racetrack at nearby Hancock. Sinatra has also been elected a v.p. of the association which operates the track.

The Name's the Same

The Tatman tag is back on the NBC payroll. Larry Taylor, general professional manager at Bourne, had his name changed from Tatman to Taylor by NBC execs when he was signed as a singer to the radio network more than 25 years ago but now his son, Skip, has joined the net as a page boy in New York under the original family handle of Tatman.

When Taylor switched to CBS after his NBC hitch, his name was changed to Larry Tate. He returned to the Taylor name when he went into the music business.

Senate Judiciary Unit Backs Soft Disk Piracy Bill

Washington, Oct. 2.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has recommended passage of a softened record piracy bill. Main and only change the committee made in the measure as passsed previously by the House was to reduce its penalties from 10 years in prison or $10,000 fine or both to one year or $1,000 or both.

Reliable sources said the committee felt gravity of the offense (counterfeiting of records and labels) is not commensurate with the House penalties. "If the penalties are not enough to deter counterfeiting," the sources commented, "they can be stiffened at a later date."

There is a reasonably good chance, if and when the Senate passes the bill, that the House will concur in the changes and not shelve the measure or force it into joint conference. The bill could get lost in the adjournment rush, however.

Exact language of the bill now reads:

"Whoever knowingly and with fraudulent intent transports causes to be transported, receives, sells or offers for sale in interstate or foreign commerce any phonograph record, disc, wire, tape, film or other article on which sounds are recorded, to which or upon which is stamped, pasted, or affixed any forged or counterfeited label, knownng the label to have been falsely made, forged or counterfeited, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both."

The bill, for which the committee found almost unanimous music industry support, is designed to stop the industry's loss of some $20,000,000 a year via counterfeiting.

Carl Fischer Acquires Signature Music Press

Carl Fischer, the music publisher, has purchased the catalog of Signature Music Press, formerly the Kickapoo Music Co.

Fischer has moved the entire Signature stock from the firm's Shawnee, Oklahoma, headquarters to its distributing and business offices in New York. The Signature catalog is mainly religioso music.

'TIP SHEETS' TEST TRUTH

By MIKE GROSS

The hype-happy music business has now put itself into a position whereby it is hypeing itself. The latest addition to the hype parade is the "Tip Sheet," designed to supply info to the trade on what records are breaking around the country.

The big problem with the "Tip Sheet" as several industryites are quick to point out is that "we hype them on what to list, they in turn hype the radio stations and then we get excited by the hype from the radio station by believing that it's an authentic breakout."

However, the "Tip" industry keeps growing and the music industry keeps supporting 'em. Average price for a "Tip" sheet comes to about $100 a year and the sheets are being bought primarily by the record companies and the radio stations. Some diskery execs say that the "Tip Sheet" has its place in the recording world because "you can never tell what information can be useful to you." Others, however, admit that they subscribe to it because "Everybody's afraid not to try it because we really don't know where the answer is in the promotion of records."

The sheets are run, for the most part, by disk jockeys who have developed the idea as a supplement to their income. Even former deejays, who feel that their finger on and their information of the music pulse of the country, have gotten into the act. Most of them concentrate on pops but now some are emerging who gather information about rhythm & blues records only.

One of the newer ones is Cherise Productions which is based in Chicago. Cherise surveys seven areas: New Orleans, Nashville, Atlanta, St. Louis, Miami, Chicago and New York. The rates for these areas are $70 for the first area and $20 for each additional area or a package deal of $150 per issue for all seven areas.

Ted Randal is another who has made his mark in the "Tip Sheet" parade. Ted Randal Enterprises operates out of San Francisco which now has 10 stations under its wing. Along with the programming, the firm is printing "The Tip Sheet," which is being subscribed to by

(Continued on page 61)

Biggest-Yet Prevails All Ways With Philly

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.

Philadelphia Orchestra is playing largest number of concerts in its history during 1962-63 and is launching the new season with its largest advance sale. In addition to the regular 28 pairs of Friday matinee and Saturday evening concerts, the Orchestra has added a new series of seven Thursday nights. It also has raised the Monday evening performances to 14.

Also new are three "Pops" concerts, conducted by Arthur Fiedler and Andre Kostelanetz, three Pension Foundation programs, five children's concerts and six senior student and junior student concerts for a total of 94 appearances in the Academy of Music.

Eugene Ormandy will conduct the major part of the programs. Otto Klemperer will appear with the Philadelphians over a five-week period and other guest maestros will include Charles Munch and Leopold Stokowski. The latter will repeat the program with which he made his Philadelphia debut, Oct. 11, 1912.

Piano soloists include Van Cliburn, Ruth Slenczynska, David Bar-Illan, Philippe Entremont, Ivan Davis, Robert Gaby and Jean Casadesus. Violinists include Isaac Stern, Ruggiero Ricci and Anshel Brusilow, the Orch's concertmaster. Also appearing as guest soloists are Met soprano Ann Moffo, organist E. Power Biggs, Eliane Magnan, French cellist and mezzo-soprano Carolyn Stanford.

N.Y. Court Clears Way for Interim Writ Vs. AFM on Bandleader Taxes

The seesaw battle in N. Y. Federal Court over the American Federation of Musicians' 10% traveling tax and Local 802's jurisdiction impost took a turn Thursday (27) in favor of the plaintiff orchestra leaders who are fighting the levies. In a preliminary ruling, Judge Richard H. Levet paved the way for a temporary injunction before trial against collection of the taxes.

The judge, however, didn't rule the bandleaders' suit a class action and so the anticipated injunction will only apply to the seven original plaintiffs in the case and some 54 orch leaders who signed on as intervenors. The original seven are Ben Cutler, Dan Terry, Angie Bond, Ralph Flanagan, Claude Garreau, Vic Ash and Marty Levet. Among the intervenors are Stan Kenton, Ralph Marterie, Eddie Wittstein and Skitch Henderson.

The action resulted from a similar case lost some months ago by the Orchestra Leaders of Greater New York when Judge Levet ruled that they weren't proper plaintiffs because they weren't union members. In his opinion last week, Judge Levet accepted two of the plaintiffs who also aren't members, finding in the case of Dan Terry that he had been bounced from the union because of his association with the suit.

In his findings, the judge drew almost the same conclusions that he did in the OLGNY case except, of course, for his ruling on the plaintiffs' union standing. He affirmed that orchestra leaders are employers and that they are engaged in interstate commerce, two facts which are very important to the leaders in their antitrust case against the union which comes up soon in federal court. He also found the taxes to be illegal from the standpoint that there is no written authorization by sidemen as to their collection and that it is illegal for an employer orchestra

(Continued on page 61)

What, No Chipmunk

Metronome Records, the European indie, is establishing a clicko disk menagerie. The company is currently riding high with its release of "Alley Cat" on the Atco label and several years ago it hit with The Singing Dogs on RCA Victor.

"Alley Cat" was composed and recorded by Danish Metronome exec Bent Fabric and released in the U. S. via Atco. Fabric's "Alley Cat" album is out this week. David Thorne's vocal version, "The Alley Cat Song," produced in New York by Richard Wolfe, is being released through the Riverside label.

Col, Victor in Hot Campaign on 'Mr. President' Score

There's a hot disk campaign brewing on Irving Berlin's score for "Mr. President" between Columbia and RCA Victor.

Columbia, which has the original Broadway cast album rights, will be running against the Victor entry which will star Perry Como. Robert Ryan and Nannette Fabray will star in the cast set.

This marks one of the few occasions in which Victor has given a Broadway show, other than one with which it had an original cast album deal, such complete disk coverage. It's also expected that Como will back up his "President" plugs with performances of the Berlin tunes on his NBC-TV show.

Two "Mr. President" albums have already been etched by Col. They are a dance LP by Lester Lanin on Col's subsid label, Epic, and an instrumental treatment by Andre Kostelanetz.

Victor will not release its Como package until after the show opens in New York on Oct. 20 so that it and the "cast" set will virtually be getting off at the same time.

Meantime, Victor is full speed ahead on its "Oliver" promotion. The original cast album hit the market this week and in support of the Lionel Bart score, the company is issuing four singles.

The "Oliver" singles are by Lena Horne, the Limeliters, Della Reese and Norman Luboff, who perform, respectively: "Where Is Love?" "Who Will Buy," "As Long As He Needs Me", "Consider Yourself." "Oliver will preem in New York in late December following its current road tour.

Decca Shifts Its H'wood Offices to Revue Studios

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Decca has moved its local offices from Hollywood to the Revue-International Studios, five miles over the hill in San Fernando Valley. Company, since it set up a Hollywood recording outpost 25 years ago, did its waxing at large, elaborate quarters on Melrose Ave., where the lease expired last week. Savings obviously will be great, since it now will be housed within its own studio.

Sonny Burke, Decca recording chieftain here, stated that the shift will lead to "greater efficiency; it is most expeditious." Coastal sales headquarters, however, will continue present perch on Santa Monica Blvd.

The valuable recording equipment Decca used at Melrose studios will be shipped to Decca waxing studios in Nashville and N.Y. Burke is making a deal with United Recorders Inc. here to do Coast waxing at indie's plant.

New 'Mario Lanza' Gets Big Salvo From Victor's Heavy Promotional Guns

With hopes that it has come up with another Mario Lanza, RCA Victor is sighting its promotion guns on Italian tenor Sergio Franchi in one of the most expensive ballyhooed buildups ever given a Red Seal artist.

From the time he arrived in the U.S. last Tuesday (25), the Victor promotion machinery has been geared to the Franchi drive. The action began Sunday (1) when Franchi headed out on a 10-day tour to meet deejays and distributors at special receptions in such key cities as Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and Pittsburgh, among others.

He's being accompanied by Stan Walker of the publicity department and Mort Barnett of the promotion department. The drive is being tied in with the release of his album, "Italy's Brilliant New Tenor: Sergio Franchi in Romantic Italian Songs."

Franchi will return to New York from his promotion trek in time for rehearsals of Ed Sullivan's CBS-TV show which will be aired Oct. 14. The following Sunday (21) he does a concert at Carnegie Hall under the auspices of S. Hurok.

The Victor a&r exees are already at work blueprinting a recording program for him. Plans are in the works to star him in operettas as well as on pop singles if the right material comes along.

Franchi came to the attention of Bob Yorke, Victor veepee in charge of the commerical records department, through Norman Luboff, a Victor pactee, and songwriter Bob Russell who caught the singer on "Sunday Night At The Palladium," London tv show.

'Oliver,' 'Fringe;' Franchi's 'Songs,' Williams' 'Willing' Top New LPs

"OLIVER" (RCA Victor). This is an unusual Broadway cast album in that it's being released more than three months before its Main Stem preem. It's a Broadway cast album, nevertheless, because this is the way Broadway is going to hear it and it's a knockout. Lionel Bart has written a snappy score for this longrunning West End musical and its impact on U.S. audiences will be just as imposing. The British cast headed by Clive Revill and Georgia Brown is topnotch and the score with such leaders as "As Long As He Needs Me," "Consider Yourself," "I'd Do Anything" and "Oom-Pah-Pah" will get plenty of play in all areas.

"BEYOND THE FRINGE" (Capitol). Although "Beyond The Fringe" isn't scheduled to open on Broadway until Oct. 27, this, too, falls into the original Broadway cast category. The quartet of zanies (Alan Bennett, Peter Cook, Jonathan Miller and Dudley Moore) who make up the cast will be doing the material in the grooves on the stage. And the material is wild and funny. "Fringe" is a London import but its humor will hit Statesiders for big laugh results. It's not too precious and it's not too British. It has a bright view and a lunatic appeal that overcomes any national barriers.

SERGIO FRANCHI: "ROMANTIC ITALIAN SONGS" (RCA Victor). The people at RCA Victor are going all-out on a buildup for Sergio Franchi, a tenor imported from Italy. The company will get plenty of help from his debut disk. It shows off Franchi's tenor techniques with an impact that is sure to win him lots of U.S. fans. The repertoire is culled from the most popular of the Italian genre and he sings with a gusto that packs excitement in every groove.

ANDY WILLIAMS: "WARM AND WILLING" (Columbia). Andy Williams has done quite well in the album market since switching to Columbia from his original Cadence berth. His vocal stylings are quite pleasing and are especially suited to this songbag of romantic ballads. Under Robert Mersey's orch direction, the sound is warm and glowing and Williams makes the most of it. For pullout programming play, "Stranger On The Shore," "If Ever I Would Leave You" and "The Way You Look Tonight" are highly recommended.

LESTER LANIN ORCH: "MR. PRESIDENT" (Epic). Irving Berlin's score for "Mr. President" lends itself easily to Lester Lanin's breezy and bouncy dance tempo. There's also enough variety in the 15 songs to give the package pace and interest. "Is He The Only Man In The World" and "Let's Go Back To The Waltz" have the easy three-quarter time tempo. "The Secret Service" and "Meat And Potatoes" are bright and carefree and "The Washington Twist" covers the current dance craze in slick terms. Package is a natural for the programmers who go for tasty and attractive material.

ZOOT SIMS ORCH: "NEW BEAT BOSSA NOVA" (Colpix). As long as the Bossa Nova stays hot, this package will have no trouble riding the trend. It's a jazz oriented package but never strays too far out to lose its mass appeal. Zoot Sims' tenor sax leads the way with some nifty riffs and Kenny Burrell moves into the spotlight occasionally with some slick guitaring. Included in the package are "Rocado Bossa Nova" (Parts 1 and 2), a topnotch single release which should serve as an excellent trailer for the album.

BILLY ECKSTINE: "DON'T WORRY ABOUT ME" (Mercury). Working within a framework of rich strings and voice backings designed by Billy Byers and Torrie Zito, Billy Eckstine moves through a romantic love mood with ease. He's got some solid standards in his songbag this outing and the new powerhouse ballad, "What Kind Of Fool Am I," to give programmers plenty of opportunities for Eckstine play. Pullout sides could be the title tune, "Don't Worry About Me," "Exodus" and "Till There Was You."

NO STRINGS SEXTET: "NO STRINGS" (Columbia). The fresh and imaginative sound that emerges from the Broadway production of Richard Rodgers' "No Strings" has been excellently duplicated on record by the same group that's used as part of the stage action. Peter Matz, who arranged and conducted, has developed some haunting jazz phrases to embellish "The Sweetest Sounds," "Loads Of Love," the title song and other Rodgers' delights.

"ENOCH LIGHT AND HIS ORCH AT CARNEGIE HALL PLAY IRVING BERLIN" (Command). Enoch Light and arranger Lew Davis have whipped up an exciting set that will delight the stereo stalwarts with its solid sound and standout repertoire of vintage Irving Berlin material. Current publicity attendant to Berlin's first musical in over a decade, "Mr. President," will give the package added promotional values. The stereo techniques are kept in check and bring a brightness to "How Deep Is the Ocean," "Blue Skies," "Always," and several others that have become a permanent part of musical Americana.

DIZZY GILLESPIE: "DIZZY ON THE FRENCH RIVIERA" (Philips). Dizzy Gillespie makes an auspicious bow for Philips. It's a package pegged on the jazz festival at Antibes, recorded in France, but with plenty of impact for the U.S. jazz buffs. Fact that the set includes some rhythmic Bossa Nova material may even give it a chance with pop consumers. "Desafinado" could be the side that could give Gillespie a hot run on the deejay turntables.

"DAMN THE DEFIANT" (Colpix). Clifton Parker has captured the mood of the sea in his score for "Damn The Defiant." His melodic patterns are well-conceived and build with dramatic intensity that makes the package an entity within itself. The tie with the pic, currently on release, should give it smooth sailing on the retail level.

LALO SCHIFRIN ORCH: "BOSSA NOVA — NEW BRAZILIAN JAZZ" (Audio Fidelity). Lalo Schifrin, an Argentine pianist, leads a topflight combo through some Bossa Nova paces that will delight the programmers. The package is loaded with new stuff like "Boato," "Chora Tua Tristeza" and "Bossa Em Nova York." They all fit the fresh Latino pattern and they all get a special lift from such expert sidemen as bassist Chris White, drummer Rudy Collins and flutist-saxaphonist Leo Wright. Two Latin percussionists, Jose Paulo and Jack Del Rio, are also on hand to give it much of its authentic flavor.

"SERMONETTE: BILLIE POOLE" (Riverside). Billie Poole is a fine jazz singer who makes her Riverside disk bow via this session. Working with solid blues values, Miss Poole scores in the torchy, belting or medium tempo groove with equal strength. There's an occassional touch of soul here and she registers with strong feeling and musical values at all times. There's a distinctive approach which impresses nicely too as she ranges through this array which includes "Lazy Afternoon," "Sometimes I'm Happy," "Sunday Kind of Love," "Time After Time," "I Could Have Danced All Night" and others.

JUDY COLLINS: "GOLDEN APPLES OF THE SUN" (Elektra). One of the finest femme folk singers around today, Judy Collins has come up with a second solid set for Elektra. She displays a clear, dramatic voice here that she can use to advantage in any format, be it belting out a folk swinger or lending delicate emphasis to a tender ballad. The tune collection is also rightly-selected and her guitar playing, along with that of Walter Raim, adds a nice touch. The clarity and definition in her style are expertly conveyed, and the LP makes a strongly effective impression throughout. It's a solid addition to any folk library.

ROBERT FARNON: "THE SENSUOUS STRINGS OF ROBERT FARNON" (Philips). This is a natural for mood music fans. It's a lush and schmaltzy set fashioned for easy listening. The strings are highlighted, of course, but the soft brass sounds also add to the pleasure of songs like "Something To Remember You By," "The Touch Of Your Lips" and "Isn't It Romantic."

LAWRENCE WELK
Presents His Newest Dot Album
"BABY ELEPHANT WALK"
and
"Theme from the Bros. Grimm!"

LOSS JOINS MECCA BOARD

London, Oct. 2.

Bandleader Joe Loss has been named to the board of Mecca Dancing which operates a chain of 50 dance halls throughout the country.

Although Loss now has an exec berth, he still batons his orchestra at the Hammersmith Palais.

Longplay Shorts

Teresa Brewer, recently signed by Philips Records, is in Nashville this week to cut two singles under the direction of Shelby Singleton. Country singer Mother Maybelle Carter, just pacted by sister label Smash Records, due to record a single in two weeks.

Bob Newhart, Warner Bros. disker, out on his first national tour following a year in Hollywood working on his weekly NBC-TV show. He's working his way through the midwest and Texas . . . Bobby Darin's debut LP and a Frank Sinatra deluxer highlight Capitol's 21-album October release . . . Caedmon's Recording director Howard Sackler has been signed by NBC-TV to direct the Shakespeare sequences starring Michael Redgrave which will be telecast on NBC-TV's "Shakespeare" "Soul Of An Age" on Nov. 30 . . . Rusty Warren's latest Jubilee LP, "Rusty In Orbit," hits the market this week.

On Otto Klemperer-Philharmonica Orchestra performance of the complete Brandenburg Concerti highlights Angel Records' October presentation of six new albums . . . Stereo Sound Studios, headed by Jerry Newman, opened a new soundproof isolation booth in its main New York studio . . . Martin Kadish will represent Elektra's distribution setup in 11 western states and Mel Posner will cover the east . . . Peter, Paul & Mary, new folk group clicking on the Warner Bros. label, hits the campus circuit latter part of October and November . . . Johnny (Crazy Otto) Maddox has just completed his annual trek to Hollywood to record three albums for Dot Records . . . Comedian Charles Manna, Decca disker, is currently being featured in the nationally syndicated cartoon strip, "On Stage" . . . Richard Ellsasser's second LP for the Kapp label is "Hollywood Movie Themes."

Pete Seeger's score for the film short, "Indian Summer," currently on the bill at the Murray Hill Theatre, N.Y., is now a Folkway Records release with Seeger playing it . . . The Tarriers will have a new Decca release out the end of the month. It was recorded live at the Bitter End folk nitery in New York . . . Vanguard Records issued a Cisco Huston LP, "I Ain't Got No Home," which was waxed by him four months before his death by cancer in 1961.

Top Singles Of The Week

(The 'Best Bets' of This Week's 100-Plus Releases)

THE BROTHERS FOUR . . . . . .25 MINUTES TO GO
(Columbia) . . . . . The Tavern Song
The Brothers Four's "25 Minutes To Go" (Hollist†) is a crackerjack saga about a condemned prisoner. Despite its grisly theme, it's a brightly styled slice with potent impact. "The Tavern Song" (Bigaeff†) is a bright version of the p.d. tune.

* * *

THE KINGSTON TRIO . . . . . .ONE MORE TOWN
(Capitol) . . . . . .She Was Too Good To Me
The Kingston Trio's "One More Town" (Sausalito†) is a catchy folk-type number tailormade for this group's smoothly rhythmic attack. "She Was Too Good For Me" (Harms) dishes up this oldie in a solo arrangement that makes a nice impression.*

* * *

DELLA REESE . . . . . .AS LONG AS HE NEEDS ME
(RCA Victor) . . . . . .It Makes No Difference Now
Della Reese's "As Long As He Needs Me" (Hollist†), from the British musical, "Oliver," shapes up as an excellent commercial ballad especially in the framework provided by this songstress. "It Makes No Difference" (Peer†) is another potent ballad with high-flying chances.

* *

FRANKIE VAUGHAN . . . . . HERCULES
(Philips) . . . . . .I'm Gonna Clip Your Wings
Frankie Vaughan's "Hercules" (Tin Pan Alley of London) gives this British singer another big chance to crack into the U. S. bestseller lists. It's a hardhitting rocker with a solid lyric. "I'm Gonna Clip Your Wings" (MRC†) is a routine conception.

* * *

LINCOLN CHASE . . . . . .SWEET TORTURE
(Swan) . . . . . .I Just Couldn't Say Goodbye
Lincoln Chase's "Sweet Torture" (Roosevelt†) is a neatly swinging rhythm entry with a relaxed sound which could make a big dent in juke circles. "I Just Couldn't Say Goodbye" (Studio†) is an okay ballad in a bluesy groove.

*

FREDA PAYNE . . . . . .HE WHO LAUGHS LAST
(ABC-Paramount) . . . . . .Slightly Out Of Tune
Freda Payne's "He Who Laughs Last" (Alcon†) gets into the bossa nova swim with a tricky vocal which this songstress handles with considerable style. "Slightly Out Of Tune" (Hollis†) puts the popular "Desafinado" to English lyrics, which will give it even wider plays.

* * *

PAT THOMAS . . . . . .DESAFINADO
(Verve) . . . . . One Note Samba
Pat Thomas' "Desafinado" (Hollis†) works over this bossa nova hit with smart English lyrics projected in swinging style by this femme newcomer. "One Note Samba" (Leeds) is another neat slice in a similar Latin groove.*

* * *

LINK DAVIS . . . . . .LITTLE RED BOAT
(All Boy) . . . . . Forget-Me-Nots
Link Davis' "Little Red Boat" (Longhorn†) moves along at a toe-tapping clip sparked by this singer's savvy rhythm vocal of this charming tune. "Forget-Me-Nots" (Longhorn†) reverts to a more conventional ballad groove.

* * *

THE LIMELITERS . . . . . .WHO WILL BUY
(RCA Victor) . . . . . Funk
The Limeliters' "Who Will Buy" (Hollis†) is a charming, antique-styled number from the upcoming "Oliver" legit musical worked over in highly skillful style by this combo. "Funk" (Amadeo) is a clever takeoff on a contemporary jazz expression.*

* *

THE EVERLY BROS.
I'M HERE TO GET MY BABY OUT OF JAIL
(Cadence) . . . . . Lightning Express
The Everly Bros.' "I'm Here To Get My Baby Out Of Jail" (M&M Cole†) breaks out the vocal duo on their old label (the sides are culled from a previously released LP, "Songs Our Daddy Taught Us") with a sharp folk item that has catch-on qualities. "Lightning Express" (Peer†) runs at a slow ballad pace carrying a pleasing vocal accomp with it.

* * *

ENRICO . . . . . GIGOT
(20th Fox) . . . . . .Allo! Allo! Allo!
Enrico's "Gigot" (Songsmiths), title tune of the 20th-Fox film, is an appealing ballad which this Continental singer handles with commercial impact. "Allo! Allo! Allo!" (Songsmiths*), from the same pic, is another attractive number with chances.*

* *

MALCOLM DODDS . . . . .IN ALL MY WILDEST DREAMS
(Amy) . . . . . .A Rendezvous With A Broken Heart
Malcolm Dodds' "In All My Wildest Dreams" (Integrity) is an arresting ballad with a melodic idea reminiscent of "Nature Boy" and some good lyrics which this singer puts over very effectively. "A Rendezvous With A Broken Heart" (Integrity*) is an okay conventional ballad side.*

*

BIG DEE IRWIN . . . . . .AND HEAVEN WAS HERE
(Dimension) . . . . . .Everybody's Got A Chance But Me
Big Dee Irwin's "And Heaven Was Here" (Aldon†) is a strong ballad with a blues quality which this performer belts for top impact in the contemporary pop music idiom. "Everybody's Got A Dance But Me" (Aldon†) is another solid rhythm number due for plenty of spins.

* *

RALPH MARTERIE . . . . . .NIGHT RIVER
(United Artists) . . . . . Procuitto
Ralph Marterie's "Night River" (Malipiero†) is a sweet-sounding instrumental with a lilting melody due for across-the-board spins. "Procuitto" (Joy) is another nifty orchestral selection in a jazzier groove.*

* * *

THE J'S WITH JAMIE . . . . . .LAUGH IT UP
(Columbia) . . . . . .Nowhere To Go But Up
The J's With Jamie "Laugh It Up" (Berlin), from the upcoming Broadway musical, "Mr. President," is a bouncy inspirational tune with a crisp sound that should give it wide circulation. "Nowhere To Go But Up" (Chappell*), title song of another legit musical, is also in the uplift groove.* — Herm.

*ASCAP. †BMI.

Pickwick's Prez Sees $1-Billion Disk Sales in 8 Years as Retailers Triple

The number of retailers selling records will grow from the present 80,000 to an estimated 250,000 within the next eight years. According to Cy Leslie, president of Pickwick International, the growth will be marked by the entry of such offbeat outlets as barber shops, bowling alleys, beauty parlors, coin-operated laundries and drycleaning stores, gas stations and possibly even banks.

Leslie figures that the success of the "superstore" concept makes the transition inevitable. These "superstores" that feature one stop shopping have shown that in any location where people spend a sufficient amount of time, an impulse item such as records can be sold successfully.

"For example," he says, "the automatic laundry and dryeleaning stores are finding that the customer actually makes a variety of purchases while waiting for the machines to complete their functions—limited only by the variety of products actually on sale in vending machines in a given location. Coin-ops have become worthwhile outlets for soft drinks, cigarettes, health and beauty aids, hosiery and notions as well as detergents and laundry bags. Inevitably, this list will include records."

Leslie noted that gas stations in New England and the midwest are adding items such as children's toys, beach bags and rubber life rafts to automotive accessory items. "These items," he said, "because of their size, can't be vended. But of their high turnover, the gas stations have been highly pleased with their sales results." He assume that the same attendant who takes cash for a beach ball will also be able to sell records from a rack.

"Soft drink manufacturers are cultivating barber shops and shoemakers," he added. "Beauty shops are starting to realize that they can sell more to women than cosmetics. All of these retailers and more are going to add record racks just as department stores, drugstores, variety chains, supermarkets and discount operations did in the decade just passed."

The Pickwick president cited a recent study published by the Small Business Administration indicating that America's newlyweds (mainly 20 through 24 years of age) are entering the consumer's market at the rate of about 3,000,000 a year. "These young people are geared to one-stop shopping, and this trend will build with the growing market potential of this age group," Leslie continued, noting that the prejudice of an earlier generation against rack purchases and the one-stop shopping concept has largely disappeared.

"Last year, he pointed out, "the record industry sold over $500,000,000 at retail. A trebling of outlets during the next eight years could well mean retail sales of more than $1,000,000,000 for the industry as a whole.

Cozy Cole to Stress That 'Basic Beat' in Upcoming State Dept. African Tour

Rhythm and melody will be the key to Cozy Cole's repertoire when he plays in East and West Africa on his tour for the State Dept. Coe, a jazz drummer, and his quintet take off Oct. 14 on a trek that will run between 14 and 20 weeks.

It's a basic beat that's quite universal, he says, and easy for everyone to dig. In his overseas songbag will be tunes like "One O'Clock Jump," "Stompin' At The Savoy," "Lullaby of Birdland," "Caravan" and "Topsy."

"As far as I'm concerned," Cole points out, "there are just two kinds of jazz—good and bad." He says he's still using the basic pattern he used in 1935. "The difference now, though, is that I include more improvisational stuff."

Before taking off for Africa, Cole put his first album for Coral Records into the groove. He'll be featured with drummers Ray McKinley, Gene Krupa and Panama Francis. During his stay in Africa, he expects to tape material with native drummers for possible release in the U.S.

Disk Biz Again Tops Books in Sales Volume

The record business has topped the book business in retail sales volume for the second consecutive year.

Sales of books, not including textbooks and encyclopedias, came to $509,640,000 in 1961, according to the American Book Publishers Council. According to the Record Industry Assn. of America, the retail volume of the disk industry for '61 was $513,100,000.

Cap's $1,300,000 Govt. Contract

Capitol Records has wrapped up a $1,300,000 Government contract for its custom pressing division.

In addition to utilizing Capitol plants in Scranton (Pa.) and L.A. for pressing over 1,000,000 12-inch disks, the 18 Government agencies involved will do all their recordings in Cap's New York and L.A. studios. Among the agencies for which Cap will be making records are the Army, Navy, Air Force, Treasury and the Veterans Administration.

The contract, which is between Cap and the Government's General Services Administration, runs for one year beginning Nov. 1. The work will be handled by Capitol's Custom Services Dept. under the direction of Bud Harden. In some instances, Cap will present a complete package show contracting for musicians, performers, announcers and writers.

BOSSA NOVA MAKING THE CARNEGIE SCENE

The Bossa Nova is going into New York's Carnegie Hall. The Brazilian-beat bash, which has been set for Nov. 21, will be cosponsored by Sid Frey, president of Audio Fidelity Records, and Show Magazine. It will feature Stan Getz, Clark Terry, Bob Brookmeyer, and other American jazz tootlers along with Joao Gilberto, Antonio Carlos Jobim and Vinicius de Moraes, Brazilian musicians.

Frey, who will record the concert for his AF label, is currently in Brazil arranging for other artists to make the Carnegie scene. Leonard Feather has been set as show's emcee.

Billy Vaughn's Many Splendored Awards

Billy Vaughn, Dot Records disker, is on an award-winning splurge overseas. So far, he's been honored for his record work in Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Sweden and Belgium.

Vaughn is the only American artist ever to receive Holland's "Golden Tulip Award" and Switzerland's "Golden Cowbell Award" presented to him for "continuous high record sales over a period of five years."

In addition, Vaughn just received a third gold record from Germany (his Dot recording of "Wheels") and is still the only American orchestra leader ever to receive a gold record for sales in Germany. His other awards were for "La Paloma" and "Sail Along Silv'ry Moon."

The Dot musical director received these unprecedented trophies during a recent overseas promotion trek. He was accompanied by Dot's international director James N. Bailey.

American Symph Orch Adds Associate Batoners

The new American Symphony Orchestra has signed three associate batoners and a manager for the coming season. Warner Bass, David Katz and Jose Serebrier are the conductors and Stewart Warkow is manager.

The orchestra will debut Oct. 15 at Carnegie Hall, under Leopold Stokowski's baton.

GUY LOMBARDO
Now, HARRAH'S CLUB
Lake Tahoe
Opening, AMERICANA HOTEL
New York—December
TV: ED SULLIVAN SHOW,
CBS-TV (December)
New Year's Eve Party
Bookings: LARRY OWEN
50 Broadway, New York—WH 4-0938

Disneyland Hits Wham 96G With 'Dixieland Night'

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Disneyland's two-night (last Friday-Saturday) "Dixieland Night" grossed $96,025 (after taxes, of course), drawing 19,597 payees. Gate admish each night was $5 plus tax with pre-sold tix $4.50 plus tax. Some 20% of the stubs were pre-sold, accounting for $17,635 of the total admission coin.

Some 6,042 customers were clocked on Friday (28) and 13,550 moved through the wicket on Saturday. Last year the park tossed a "Dixieland" caper for only one night and drew 14,000 on a Saturday.

In changing the admish fee, the park was closed to regular patronage for a short interval. When the boxoffices reopened the upped scale prevailed. Just what the park's profit was is difficult to calibrate—and won't be for some days—as all the upscale admissions permitted all comers to use all the park's rides for free.

Talent costs over the two nights approximated $17,500 and the lineup included: Louis Armstrong, Dukes of Dixieland, Firehouse Five Plus Two, Teddy Buckner band, Kid Ory combo, New Orleans All-Stars (flown in from their title city), Clara Ward Singers, Jazz Society Marching Band, Albert McNeil Choir—plus the park's own formidable assemblage of regularly employed musicians.

It's a foregone conclusion that Disneyland this year will set an all-time high attendance mark (over 5,000,000 admissions) largely due to night patronage.

UA REGIONAL MEETS TO PUSH HOLIDAY BIZ

United Artists Records will introduce its sales plans and merchandise for the upcoming holiday season in a round of regional meetings to be held Oct. 10-15. The initial session will be held at the new Americana Hotel in New York, followed by meetings at the Executive House, Chicago, Oct. 11; Cabana Hotel, Atlanta, Oct. 12, and the Beverly Hilton Hotel, Beverly Hills, Oct. 15.

Morris S. Price, UA director of sales, will helm the sessions. Art Talmadge, diskery prexy, will attend the N.Y. and Chi. meetings while Price and Phil Picone, eastern regional sales manager, will handle the Atlanta and coast affairs. The entire UA staff will be at the N.Y. meet.

The program being introed at the conclave is called "Holiday Sales-O-Rama" and features pop LPs by Le Roy Holmes & Teicher, Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme, Ralph Marterie, Shirley Bassey, Tito Rodriguez, Renata Tebaldi and Al Caiola; a Musicor album by Gene Pitney; a country & western LP by Judy Lynn; jazz sets by Billie Holiday and Herbie Mann and the soundtracks from "Taras Bulba," "Phaedra" and "Two For the See Saw."

GEMA Warring With German Exhibs, Juke Assn. & Am. Forces Network

Frankfurt, Oct. 2.

GEMA, the performing rights group which collects fees for musicians and composers in Germany, seems to be in a scrap in just about every area to get its money. The battle to collect fees from American Forces Network (AFN) near here is still going on. GEMA is negotiating with top officials in the U.S. in its struggle to get coin from the soldier network.

And in the city of Hamm, West Germany, a theatreowner is being sued because he refuses to pay fees for GEMA music being played in his four houses. Ludwig Hoeper maintains that in one of his neighborhood theatres, business is so bad that only four seats are sold.

His GEMA contracts are based on the number of seats in the cinema, not the number of tickets sold. He claims that the high musicians' union fees are contributing to the downfall of the cinemas in West Germany.

Since 1959 when his contract with GEMA expired, he has been letting the music run and paying no fees. Current court negotiations are continuing. He argues that GEMA must be more realistic at a time when German cinemas are facing the worst crisis in their history, and fees must be lowered.

Meanwhile, GEMA is battling on another front, with the jukeboxes. About 3,000 jukebox owners are members of ZOA (that stands for Central Assn. of the Organization of Automatic Machine Group), and these 3,000 control about 90% of the country's estimated 50,000 jukeboxes.

Since 1959, the record-spinners have been feuding with GEMA about the music union fees, which were set at 78 marks (about $19.50) per machine per year. That, GEMA maintains, is only about five cents for each machine daily, and surely not an unreasonable fee. And in light of GEMA's own increased expenses of operation, and increased salaries of its employees, the union's costs have gone up at least 20% since 1959.

ZOA, however, doesn't want to pay. One initial court decision called for raising the fee to 85 marks ($21.25) yearly. The next court round is due in October, and it still remains to be seen what the coin machine will have to ante up to the union.

Robert Shaw Chorale On 9-Wk. Iron Curtain Tour

Robert Shaw Chorale took off Sunday (30) on a nine-week tour for the State Department for appearances in Russia, West Berlin and Yugoslavia.

Group, which records for RCA Victor, will do 36 concerts; 28 in Moscow and six other Russian cities, three in West Berlin and five in Yugoslavia. This tour will mark the first time a U.S. choral group has been allowed into Russia.

Csida Returns To Trinity Music Org

Joe Csida has returned to the publishing end of the music business. The former Capitol Records veepee renewed his affiliation with Ed Burton and the Trinity Music operation this week.

Csida, who left Trinity to take over as veepee in charge of Capitol's eastern operations two-and-a-half years ago, will again be partnered with Burton in publishing, management and indie disk production.

The management firm, initially known as Csida-Burton, was changed to Burton Management when Csida exited. With Csida's return, a new tag will be given to the firm. There's a possibility that it will be called Csida-Burton-Schuster Management. The "Schuster" in the tag represents Irwin Schuster, who is general professional manager of the Trinity operation.

Trinity was launched as a Broadcast Music Inc. affiliate in 1954 when Csida exited his post as an exec with Joy Music.

PHONOGRAPH SALES IN DIFFERENT SPEEDS

Washington, Oct. 2.

Phonograph sales are on all tones depending on which figures are seen. Stereo distributor sales rose in July to 202.125, the year's second highest, compared to 183,000 in June. Yet, the stereo distrib sales figures for the first seven months of 1962 fell behind the 1961 seven months ttoal. Stereo distributor sales so far in 1962 are 1,258,287 contrasted to 1,314,367 in 1961.

Monaural distributor sales for first seven months of 1962 have climbed to 463.700 according to Electronic Industries Assn. Last year's seven-month tab was 398,341. But monaural distrib sales dipped slightly from 91.526 in June to 90,175 in July.

Factory stereo sales for the first seven months in 1962 are 1,388,667 contrasted to 1,307,415 for the same period in 1961. This increase held despite a drop in stereo factory sales from 278.989 in June to 220,694 in July.

Cumulative seven-month monaural factory sales are up to 489,111 in 1962, a jump from the 432,647 1961 figure. But again factory monaural sales slipped to 89,699 in July. The June figure was 104,548.

Guitarist Juan Serrano Inks Leventhal Mgt. Pact

Juan Serrano, flamenco guitarist who recently arrived in the U.S. from Spain, has been signed to a personal management contract with Harold Leventhal. Under the pact, Evaristo Gonzalez, Serrano's Spanish manager, will co-manage the guitarist's affairs with the Leventhal office.

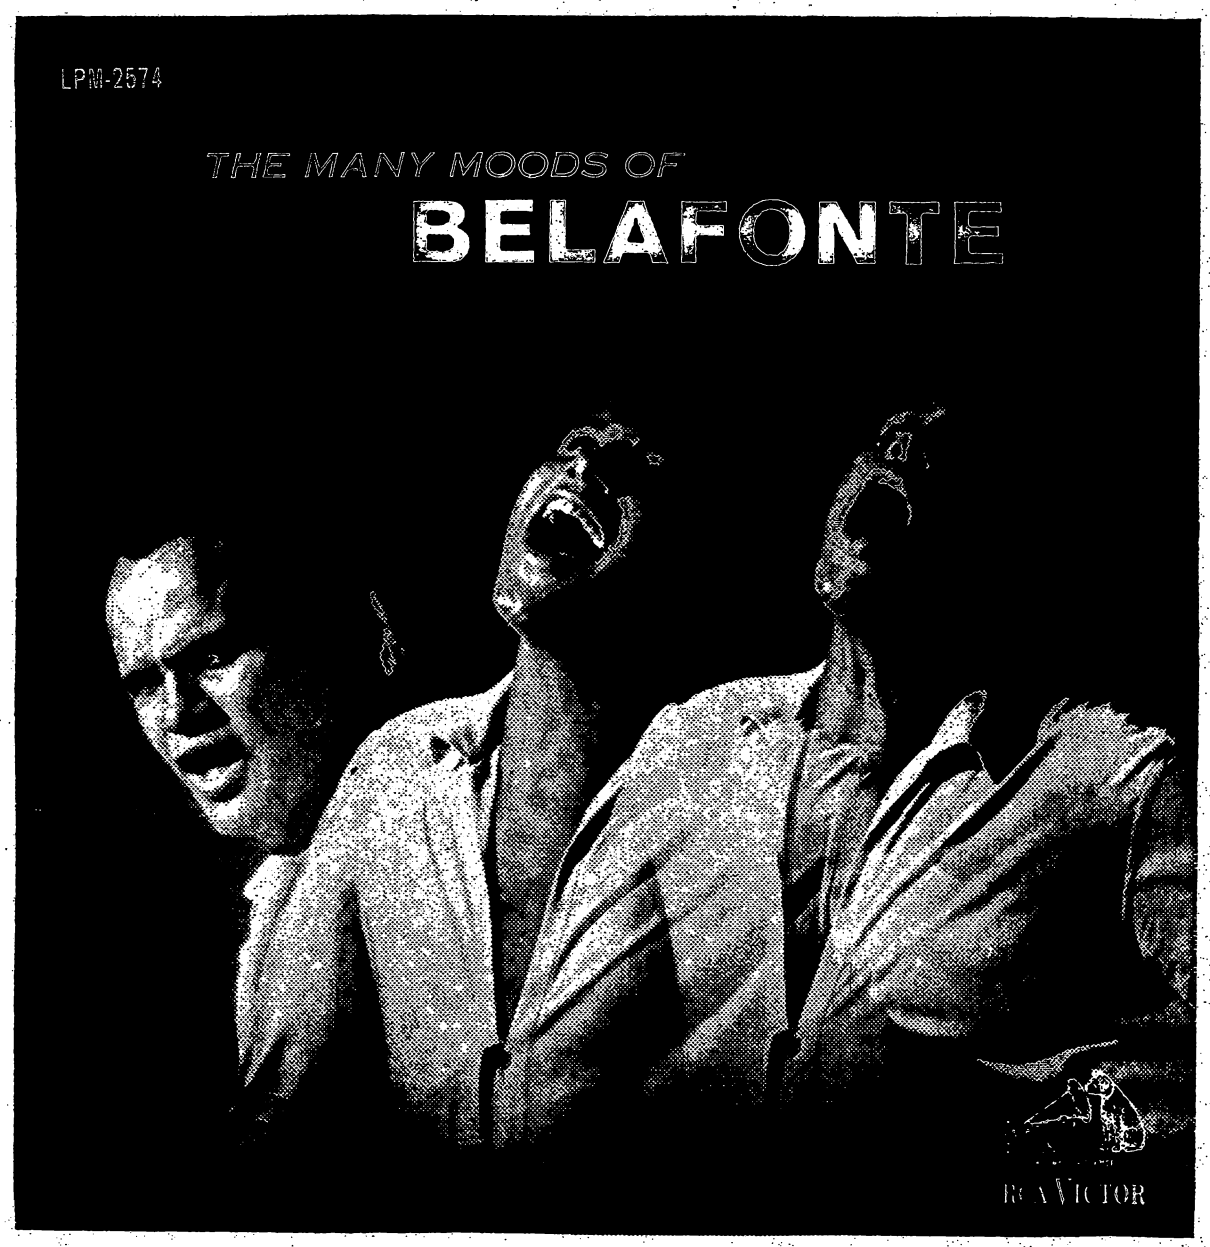
Serrano made his stateside debut at the Bitter End folk club in Greenwich Village this past summer, where he was held over an extra four weeks past his original two-week gig. He has also been inked by Elektra Records and his first LP is to be released this week.

The guitarist is currently at the 2nd Fret Club, Philadelphia, and opens Oct. 16 at the Gate of Horn, Chicago. He will give his first New York recital at Town Hall on Nov. 30.

Listener Blends His Own Music Via Audio Fidelity's New Gimmick for Stereo

Audio Fidelity Records has come up with a new wrinkle for the stereo sweepstakes. It's a gimmick called the Triple Play Process which enables the listener to mix his own musical blends by using the controls of his stereo set.

The first disk using this process is called "Pop Plus Jazz Equals Swing." With this platter, a listener can blend a pop track with a jazz track using his stereo controls to get whatever effect he wants from straight pop to jazz.



Tom Wilson, Audio Fidelity artist & repertoire man, originated the Triple Play Process, in collaboration with Richard B. Olmsted, prexy of Olmsted Studios, and William Hamilton, chief engineer for AF. Benny Golson, jazz arranger and musician, orchestrated and conducted special scores for the process. Jazzsters Bill Evans, Curtis Fuller, Wayne Shorter, Freddy Hubbard and Eric Dolphy play the hip portion of the disk and violinists Julius Held and Harry Lookofsky are part of the string ensemble of the pop portion of the waxing.

Some of the tunes included in each selection feature both a pop and jazz version of the same title like "Out of Nowhere." "Autumn Leaves," "Stella by Starlight" and "If I Should Lose You." Other selections feature couplings of a jazz tune with a pop number like "Molten Swing" with "You're Driving Me Crazy." "Groovin' High" with "Whispering" and others.

This new disk, along with eight other releases from Audio Fidelity, will be featured at the New York High Fidelity Show which opens today (Wed.) at the Trade Show Building for four days.

An album that became a legend before its release!

The legend really began with the last "take" of the recording . . . a finale in which Nature, herself, chose to lend a hand. Through the comparatively sound-proofed studio came the crackle of lightning and a tremendous thunderburst . . . as if on cue. Belafonte continued on through the song and ended to the sound of torrential rains. And it's all in the album! It is a once in a lifetime recording, and those who were there have already made it a living legend! Album also includes "Try To Remember," "Summertime Love" and repertoire ranging from calypso and work songs to Broadway's best. Look for the ads in Time, The New York Times Magazine Section, Playboy, Cue!

AVAILABLE IN LIVING STEREO, MONAURAL HI-FI AND TAPE.

RCA VICTOR TMK(S)

The most trusted name in sound

Inside Stuff—Music

The group of music biz tradesters who have been meeting as the Conference for Jazz has split into two committees to continue work on the improvement of the public image of jazz. One committee, which will plan a public forum on jazz and its problems, consists of Sid Bernstein of General Artists Corp., Voice of America deejay Willis Conover, jazz jock Mort Fega and Arnold Shaw of Marks Music who was recently named temporary chairman of the Conference.

The other committee, whose function is to contact jazz tooters and interest them in the work of the Conference, comprises impresario George Wein, Herald Tribune jazz critic George Simon, Conover and The Rev. John G. Gensel of the Advent Lutheran Church.

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has established a new award to be known as the Pied Piper. According to Stanley Adams, ASCAP president, the award will be given to deserving individuals or organizations as a symbol of the Society's recognition of their work on behalf of American music. Mitch Miller and Lawrence Welk will be the first recipients because their tv shows "devoted solely to music have done most to revive interest in the great songs of our musical heritage as well as offering new works of quality." Adams will make the award to Welk on the bandleader's ABC-TV show on Oct. 6. The Pied Piper statutette was designed by the American sculptor William Phillips.

Jan Peerce, dependable boxoffice tenor at the Metropolitan Opera and especially on its spring tour, has been taking concert engagements far afield in recent seasons. As with other Met singers of U. S. origination and training, he was a latecomer to European audiences. One of the little known items of the past summer was his hit with the Stuttgart, Germany, Philharmonic. Because of his Jewish faith and sympathies Peerce was most reluctant to accept that engagement, but succumbed to manager Thea Dispeker's persuasion. The Germans could hardly have been more receptive apparently. Peerce has a brother-in-law who is a rather well known tenor, too: Richard Tucker.

Composer Sidney Wyche will conduct a series of 10 songwriter workshops for new tunesmiths in October, November and December. The workshop will be limited to 10 cleffers. It will be called the Unicore Workshop after Unicore, the New York publishing firm with which Wyche is affiliated.

Helen Shapiro to Epic, MGM Gets Brigitte Bardot; Other Signings

Epic Records has tied in with Britain's Electric & Musical Industries (EMI) for the exclusive American distribution rights to single and album releases by Helen Shapiro. Under terms of the agreement, Epic will also release material recorded by Miss Shapiro in England as well as any product she waxes in the U. S. A hot disk seller in England, Miss Shapiro didn't fare too well in the U. S. market on two singles issued by Capitol Records during the past year. She's due in New York on Oct. 24. While in N. Y., she'll appear on Ed Sullivan's CBS-TV show on Oct. 28 and will confer with Epic execs to discuss future plans.

MGM:Brigitte Bardot, Others

French film actress Brigitte Bardot moves into the disk arena via the MGM label. She'll be released on a coupling of "Sidone" and "Theme From a Very Private Affair." The disk is being tied in with "A Very Private Affair," new Metro film release.

Also added to the MGM roster is singer Frank Cherval. He's bowing next week with "Tag Along" and "How Come." Other labels tied to MGM also have been on a pacting spree. Marie & The Decords joined Cub; Annita Ray has been added to Chorco, and Dick Roman and Pat Gallo are now in the Charlie Parker Records hopper.

Dot: Jody Daniel

Dot Records has signed Jody Daniel, 21-year old ex-football player from North State Texas Teachers College. He began singing professionally during the past year working clubs in the Dallas area. His initial release is "I'd Like to Have You Back Again" and "Release Me."

Cameo-Parkway: Three Young Men

The recently united singing group, The Three Young Men (Dick Riddle, Pat Fox and Bob Ruby), have been tagged by the Cameo-Parkway diskery. Their first LP, which will come out under the Cameo banner, is being cut under direction of Dave Stephens and will have a folk-oriented theme with a number of selections from Broadway musicals.

Command: Dick Van Dyke

Dick Van Dyke has been tagged by Command Records' chief Enoch Light to cut an album of Broadway showtunes. Recording session, scheduled Dec. 26, marks the actor-comedian's entry into the record market.

Cadence: Barry Gordon

Barry Gordon, 13-year old thesp now appearing on Broadway in "A Thousand Clowns," has been signed to the Cadence label. His first Cadence Record is "You Can't Lie to a Liar" and "You Can't See the Trees (For the Forest)." Several years ago, young Gordon etched a Christmas disk for MGM.

Reprise: Count Basie

Frank Sinatra's Reprise Records has signed a two-album deal with Count Basie. One of disks will feature Sinatra and Basie, with tunes arranged by Neal Hefti. Second will be Basie alone. Reprise owns masters and has worldwide distribution rights.

Charles: Connee Boswell

Connee Boswell will not etch under the indie Charles Records banner. A longtime Decca pactee, Miss Boswell will bow on Charles with two of her own compositions, "I Don't Mind" and "You Ain't Got Nothin' (Nothin' At All)."

Franco Columbo's G. Ricordi (N.Y.)

The G. Ricordi Co. in New York has been purchased by Franco Columbo and the firm will now be known as Franco Columbo Inc.

The firm will continue to be the exclusive U. S. representatives of all Ricordi companies throughout the world, as well as of Editions Salabert of Paris and other European publishers. It also will expand its activities in the educational field.

Columbo, who joined Ricordi Milan in 1936, has been president of Ricordi in N. Y. for the past several years.

ANOTHER YANK SINGER MAKES IT—BUT O'SEAS

Tales multiply of American opera singers getting breaks in Europe which could never be in the United States. A recent instance is the case of James King, 32-year old Kentuckian with four children. While in Italy to sing "Tosca" as prize winner in a Cincinnati competition this tall tenor was summoned by U. S. talent manager Thea Dispeker to Berlin. That was only four months ago.

King has since obtained a permanent all-year berth with the Berlin Opera, has sung guest dates in Munich and Salzburg, is pending for Covent Garden, London and in various other continental opera houses.

He is all but unknown in his native land.

NATIVE MUSIC EMPHASIS

Milwaukee Talks Spring Season Of All-Americans

Milwaukee, Oct. 2.

Harry John Brown, resident director of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra, contemplates a 1963 Spring Festival of contemporary work of both midwestern and United States composers. Milwaukee Symphony Board has approved the suggestion.

Brown thinks all-American symphony orchestra is duty bound to play contemporary music, as does Richard Korn's orchestra of America in Manhattan.

Soloists lined up are: Jennie Tourel, soprano; Erica Morine, violinist; Ivan Davis, pianist; Gerald Souzay, baritone; Raya Garbousova, cellist.

Russki's Top 10 Popskis In U.S. Radio Swap For America's Hit Parade

Washington, Oct. 2.

Radio station WWDC here has come up with an inspired gimmick that could kill or cure the international situation. The station has pulled off an even swap with the Soviet Union of each nation's 10 top pop tunes. And therein lies the potential crisis.

Irv Lichenstein, program veep for the station, dreamed up the whole thing four months ago, and wrote to Nikita Khrushchev suggesting a cultural exchange on a no-brow level. The move won a State Dept. OK, the station said.

Not a peep was heard from Mr. K. until last week when a plain package arrived at WWDC containing a tape of 10 songs by a 100-voice choir. A station newsman translated the titles and came up with this provocative list of Russia's 10 top titles:

(1) "The Pear Tree"; (2) "Evening Bells"; (3) "The Broad and Rolling Steppe"; (4) "From a Far Off Land"; (5) "All Alone I Stand in the Road"; (6) "Do Not Blame, Do Not Scold Me"; (7) "At The Smithy"; (8) "Will I, Won't I." Numbers nine and 10 were untranslatable, according to the station. A WWDC spokesman described the Russian tunes as either resembling a Fred Waring number or a plain old folk ballads.

To live up to its end of the bargain, the station sent to Moscow Radio the 10 top disks in the nation's capital: (1) "Rambling Rose"; (2) "Alley Cat"; (3) "I Remember You"; (4) "Lie To Me"; (5) "You Don't Know Me"; (6) "You Beat Me To the Punch"; (7) "Monster Mash"; (8) "If I Had a Hammer"; (9) "What Kind of Fool Am I"; (10) "King of the Whole Wide World."

These were described as a conglomeration of ballads, novelties, rock 'n' roll and folk tunes.

The station spokesman said WWDC would play the Russian songs intermittently while it monitored Radio Moscow to see if the Soviets are airing "Monster Mash," for example.

WELK'S WOW 217G ON 7-CITY, 14-DAY TOUR

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Lawrence Welk orch, which for past several years has exhibited greater earning power than any band in history, wound up a 14-day eastern and midwest tour Saturday (29) with a great $217,000.

Welk and his 40-entertainer aggregation finaled with seven-day stand at annual Corn Festival, Mitchell, S.D., where they took in SRO $121,000 for 17 shows. As Welk's deal was $40,000 guarantee against 70%, troupe reaped $84,700 for its end.

Tour included Allentown (Pa.) Fair, where troupe grossed $128,000 in five days for 10 shows, or $89,600 in pocket; two days at Springfield (Mass.) Fair, $42,860 net.

Agenda also called for stopovers at McCormick Place, Chicago; Fort Wayne Coliseum; Memphis and Des Moines.

UP SILVERMAN AT MARKS

Robert Silverman has been upped at E. B. Marks Music to director of publications. He's been with Marks for the past three years in an editorial capacity.

Felix Greissle will continue as editor-in-chief.

Orchs Recapture Longhair Lead As Maestros Get Bigger Spotlight

The longhair pendulum is swinging back to the orchestras. For the past several years, the pianists were in the forefront of the classical music scene with Van Cliburn, Glenn Gould and Sviatslov Richter heading the lists in concert and on disks.

More recently, though piano repertoire on disks still outsold the singers, emphasis turned toward the vocal talents by virtue of the Metropolitan Opera debuts of Leontyne Price, Joan Sutherland and Eileen Farrell. Now, however, the focus seems to have turned back to the symphony orchestras like Bernstein's New York Philharmonic, Ormandy's Philadelphia and Leinsdorf's Boston.

Adding to the opening of New York's Lincoln Center is the fact that several major orchestras now have new conductors: Krips was announced to take over San Francisco, Martinon has replaced Reiner in Chicago and Leinsdorf took over from Munch in Boston.

On the record market, the orchestras have long been potent factors. It's been estimated that Leonard Bernstein's classical LP sales for Columbia Records have almost reached the 1,000,000 mark. (With the soundtrack and original Broadway cast album of "West Side Story," both on Columbia, also going for him, Bernstein may become the number one name in record race.)

A dark horse among the big orchs is the Cleveland with George Szell conducting. The Clevelanders scored a major coup by being one of the four orchestras to appear in the current opening week ceremonies of Lincoln Center. The others are the New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia and Boston, all recognized as the big guns of the big longhair ensembles. Cleveland, incidentally, records for Epic, Columbia's subsidiary label.

Capitol, too, is getting into the big orch act. In recent months it has had special promotion drives on packages cut by Dr. Otto Klemperer which will be culminated by the maestro's first appearance in the U. S. in years this season with the Philadelphia Orchestra as his kickoff stand.

There is also a group of young conductors emerging on the orch scene to keep the ball rolling. Among the young batoners are Thomas Schippers and Loren Maazel. Schippers has conducted at the Metop (when he was 25) and with all the major U. S. and European groups. Schippers, who records for Columbia, will be guest conductor with the New York Philharmonic at Lincoln Center later this season.

British Disk Best Sellers

London, Oct. 2.

She's Not You (RCA)	Presley
It'll Be Me (Columbia)	Richard
I Remember You (Columbia)	Ifield
Roses Are Red (Philips)	Carroll
Sealed With A Kiss (HMV)	Hyland
Things (London)	Darin
Breaking Up Is Hard To Do (RCA)	Sedaka
Telstar (Decca)	Tornados
Don't That Beat All (Columbia)	Faith
Guitar Tango (Columbia)	Shadows

Partly Non-Union Symph Menaced

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 2.

Demand for a closed union threatened the opening of the Fort Wayne Philharmonic season last night (2). However, the orchestra board decided to go ahead with plans for the concert. Only 21 of 48 members showed up for rehearsal last Thurs. (27)—one less than on Wednesday night. Those present included 13 members of Local 58, American Federation of Musicians. The union is said to be considering disciplinary action against members who sided with non-members in the dispute.

Local declared it had about 39 members in the 48-piece Philharmonic. Musicians are often brought in from Indianapolis or the area to fill special chairs. There are nine nonunion musicians. These play in the orchestra as a hobby, and support themselves with other employment. They receive $5 for each rehearsal and from $10 to $12 for a performance, depending upon the positions held. The initiation fee for joining the union is $65, with the annual dues of $18 to $20.

EMI 12-MO. EARNINGS DROP TO $13,445,600

London, Oct. 2.

The giant Electric and Musical Industries group which embraces not only a major disk operation but is involved in the electrical field, reports gross sales for the year ended June 30, 1962 increased slightly to $231,226,800, compared with $230,832,000 in the previous year.

But despite this better-than-expected sales total, profit was lower at $20,692,000, against $21,940,800. Final dividend of 12½% makes an unchanged total payment of 17½%.

After provisions for depreciation and interest, the before-tax earnings are down from $15,254,400 to $13,445,600.

Overall sales could have been better but for the dip in sales of Capitol Records in the U.S. Profits of Cap, which is owned by EMI, fell substantially due to increasingly competitive conditions in the Yank record market.

Bing Taking 'Holiday' One-Shot With Decca

Bing Crosby will be returning to the Decca Records fold for his first new LP on the label in several years. This latest session has been produced by the crooner's Project Records and is strictly a one-shot deal with his former label.

The album is tagged "Holiday in Europe," featuring a variety of European-oriented tunes. Arrangements are by Bob Thompson and Decca has slated Oct. 15 as release date.

Although he hasn't had a new waxing on Decca for years, Crosby has been a constant Decca project. Several of his disks have been repackaged and some of his material has been resassembled into a series called "Bing's Hollywood Story," which contains many of his film performances.

CHINESE DUO TOURS PAST BAMBOO CURTAIN

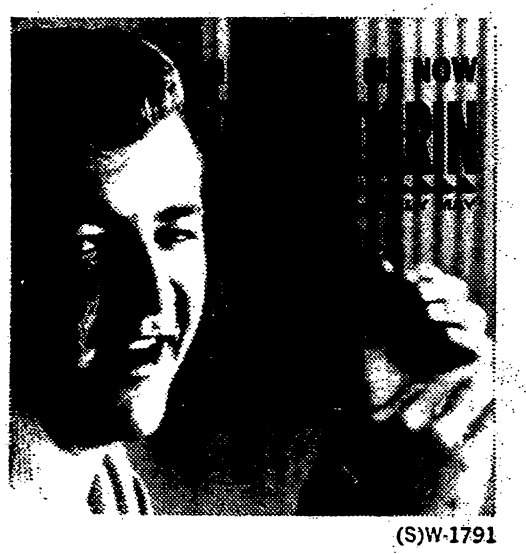
Hong Kong, Sept. 25.

Two Chinese sopranos from Communist China are currently among a group of artists from behind the Bamboo Curtain appearing in concert engagements at the City Hall and Astor Theatre.

Miss Kuo Su-chen, operatic singer, appeared as a prima donna on the Moscow stage when she sang the part of Tatiana in Tchaikovsky's "Eugene Onegin" in 1958. Since then, she has sung in Austria, Cuba and Switzerland. The other soprano Miss Chang Li-chuan was a festival winner at the sixth World Youth Festival held in Moscow.

The group appearing here comprises seven artists, including a tenor Shih Hung-eh who was recently awarded the Golden Medal at the World Youth Festival held at Helsinki. The concerts are well attended.

8 Zorah Berry Concerts



Buffalo, Oct. 2.

Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra will present eight special attractions this fall and winter in its Zorah Berry series. They are Mantovani, Robert Shaw Chorale, National Canadian Ballet, Grace Bumbry, New York City Opera ("Rigoletto" and "Figaro" and "Turn of the Screw") and Wrightson & Hunt.

Berry division is a holdover of part of the original privately sponsored series taken over by the Orchestra several years ago.

oh!
look at me
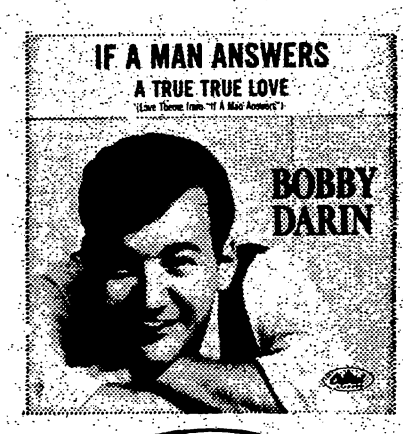
now!



(S)W-1791

The great Bobby Darin comes to Capitol. His first single "If A Man Answers" b/w "A True, True Love" #4837 is a sizzling smash. Now as a torrid follow-up, here's Darin's first Capitol album, "Oh! Look At Me Now." It too, is a sure-fire hit soon to zoom up the charts!

So see your CRDC representative and get set to cash in on Darin's million-seller sound. Stock both! Double Darin sales!

Capitol RECORDS

©CAPITOL RECORDS, INC.

VARIETY

ALBUM BESTSELLERS

(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart
1	1	49	WEST SIDE STORY (Columbia) Soundtrack (OL 5670)
2	4	6	MUSIC MAN (Warner Bros.) Soundtrack (W 1459)
3	2	20	PETER, PAUL & MARY (WB) Peter, Paul & Mary (W 1449)
4	3	23	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Modern Sounds in Country & Western (ABC 410)
5	12	10	TONY BENNETT (Columbia) I Left My Heart in San Francisco (CL 1869)
6	5	16	DAVID ROSE (MGM) Stripper (E 4062)
7	13	4	NAT KING COLE (Capitol) Ramblin' Rose (T 1793)
8	7	11	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Hatari (LPM 2559)
9	8	24	ANDY WILLIAMS (Columbia) Moon River (CL 1809)
10	10	8	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Ray Charles Greatest Hits (ABC 415)
11	9	6	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Something Special (T 1747)
12	6	14	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Pot Luck (LPM 2523)
13	11	16	ROME ADVENTURE (Warner Bros.) Soundtrack (W 1458)
14	30	3	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Baby Elephant Walk (DLP 3457)
15	16	19	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Best of Kingston Trio (T 1705)
16	14	89	CAMELOT (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5620)
17	24	47	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Breakfast at Tiffany's (LPM 2362)
18	17	9	BOBBY VINTON (Epic) Roses Are Red (LN 24020)
19	15	12	JOHNNY TILLOTSON (Cadence) It Keeps Right On A-Hurtin' (CLP 3058)
20	18	22	ACKER BILK (Atco) Stranger on the Shore (129)
21	45	2	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Swingin' Safari (DLP 3458)
22	43	2	MARTIN DENNY (Liberty) A Taste of Honey (LRP 3237)
23	39	5	GEORGE MAHARIS (Epic) Portrait in Music (LN 24021)
24	40	2	FRANK SINATRA (Reprise) Sinatra & Swinging Brass (R 1005)
25	26	41	JOAN BAEZ (Vanguard) Joan Baez, Vol II (VRS 9094)
26	32	15	VINCENT EDWARDS (Decca) Vincent Edward Sings (DL 4311)
27	21	14	MUSIC MAN (Capitol) Original Cast (W 990)
28	—	2	ROY ORBISON (Monument) Roy Orbison's Greatest Hits (M 4409)
29	—	1	RAY CONNIFF (Columbia) Rhapsody in Rhythm (CL 1878)
30	23	4	JUDY GARLAND (Capitol) The Garland Touch (W 1710)
31	22	19	JIMMY SMITH (Verve) Bashin' (V 8474)
32	25	6	PETER NERO (Victor) For the Nero Minded (LPM 2536)
33	38	2	OLDIES BUT GOODIES (Original Sound) Various Artists, Vol. IV (OSR 5005)
34	36	8	HERBIE MANN (Atlantic) Herbie Mann At The Village Gate (1380)
35	27	14	JOAN BAEZ (Vanguard) Joan Baez, Vol I (VRS 9078)
36	20	7	RAY CHARLES (Atlantic) The Ray Charles Story (Atlantic 2-900)
37	33	13	LETTERMEN (Capitol) Once Upon a Time (T 1711)
38	—	1	LIMELITERS (Victor) Folk Matinee (LPM 2547)
39	—	7	DION (Laurie) Lovers Who Wander (LL 2012)
40	—	1	STAN GETZ—CHARLIE BYRD (Verve) Jazz Samba (V 8432)
41	37	24	NO STRINGS (Capitol) Original Cast (O 1695)
42	—	2	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Mr. Piano (KL 1290)
43	—	12	LIMELITERS (Victor) Through Children's Eyes (LPM 2512)
44	—	1	MOMS MABLEY (Chess) Moms Mabley Breaks It Up (LP 1472)
45	41	23	BILLY VAUGHAN (Dot) Chapel by the Sea (DLP 3424)
46	34	19	MANTOVANI (London) American Waltzes (LL 3260)
47	25	6	ROBERT GOULET (Columbia) The Two of Us (CL 1826)
48	29	7	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Sinatra Sings of Love and Things (W 1729)
49	44	20	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Young World (DLP 3428)
50	—	72	JOHNNY MATHIS (Columbia) Johnny's Greatest Hits (CL 1133)

Tremblay Sets Season

Ottawa, Oct. 2.

Tremblay Concerts preems its 34th season Fri. (6) with the French National Orchestra (110) under baton of Charles Munch. Series will include Met baritone George London, Oct. 24; Singing Boys of Mexico, Nov. 22.

Next year comes San Pietro Chamber Orchestra of 22 from Naples, Jan. 14; Leontyne Price, Feb. 22; Cleveland Orchestra (105) under George Szell, April 24; pianist Grant Johannesen, May 15. Season tickets scaled to $28, payable in installments.

Mex Talent Agency Moves Into Music Biz

Mexico City, Oct. 2.

The Campei Agency, affiliated with GAC in talent division, is expanding in the entertainment field. Firm has deposited a $16,000 advance with the Federal District Musicians Union as guarantee for musicians who will cut for diskery affiliate of Campei.

Recording studios for diskery is to be set up in Insurgentes Sur office building where Campei occupies five floors. Campei began activity here as musical representatives.

N.Y. Court

Continued from page 55

leader to make payments to a union.

The AFM is currently enjoined from collecting the taxes from the plaintiffs. Motions on the temporary injunction still have to be heard by the court and the actual document issued but both sides are agreed that there will be a temporary restraint.

According to Max Aarons, Local 802 secretary, the union "expected" this setback. He added that "there is no doubt that there will be an appeal" of Judge Levet's findings. The OLGNY currently is appealing the loss of its case on the taxes.

In discussing the tax cases before the decision last week, Al Manuti, 802 prexy, said that the union is "prepared to fight this up to the Supreme Court if necessary." As to the eventual outcome of it all, Manuti felt that "this problem will be around for a long time." In the battle for orch leader support, he stated that the union has "affidavits from over 500 leaders in support of the taxes." Dissident orchestra leaders have filed 54 intervenors and claim another 56 are waiting in the wings.

Both sides apparently are now prepared to fight it out to the extent of the legal possibilities. What with appeals and new suits, it promises to be a long, drawn-out battle. It has already been going on for a couple of years.

Self-Deception

Continued from page 55

manufacturers, distributors and radio stations throughout the country.

Gavin's 'Record Report'

Also coming out of San Francisco is Bill Gavin's "Record Report," a weekly summary of recording activity. Nashville is represented with a National Music Survey sheet offering "a condensed up-to-date picture of record activity at $30 per quarter or $100 per year, payable in advance."

Perhaps the daddy of them all is Robert Kerr who has gone deeply into the disk surveying business. In addition to his report, he conducts seminars with the various ends of the industry or mutual enlightment.

It's the johnny - come - lately, though, who is disturbing the industry. New solicitations for "Tip Sheet" subscription pour in at a steady pace and there are even some anglers who've established an "independent reviewing service" stating that they will supply reviews to "promote outstanding recording achievements" but fail to say where these reviews will appear.

With information on record activity coming in from so many divers sources, the companies are beginning to wonder how far this self-deception can go and whether or not they've become victims of their own hype.

National Musitime (Wired Service) Settles With 24 Music Publishers

Selmer Ups Divvy

H & A Selmer, the band instrument manufacturer, has declared a semi-annual dividend of 20c per share on its common stock. The melon will be payable Nov. 1 to holders of record Oct. 15.

This dividend is 5c higher than the one paid by the company on March 1, bringing total dividends for 1962 to 35c per share, compared to 20c a share for 1961. The company's directors also declared the quarterly preferred stock divvy of $1.50 per share payable Oct. 15.

Barcelona Bash & Bunko Ballots

Barcelona, Oct. 2.

Public protest forced annulment of awards to the winning tunes at the fourth Mediterranean Song Festival last week. With seven Mediterranean countries represented by song entries and performing artists, fest organizers unaccountably changed the ground rules for public balloting and popular vote to determine the cash and trophy victors. Ostensibly, the new regulations made it possible for a runner-up entry to win the main prize with a total runner-up vote higher than that of the song designated in the top spot.

This was the official explanation made public when some 4,000 spectators protested angrily when the following honors were announced:

"Nubes de Colores" (Color-hued Clouds)—a winning Spanish entry composed by Augusto Alguero with lyrics by Antonio Guijarro.

Je 'aime Je T'aime"——a strong French contestant for top prize.

"La Muralla de Berlin" (The Berlin Wall)—Spanish entry.

"Tierra Gris" (Gray Earth)—Italy.

"Bricciole de Luna" (Crumbs of Moonlight)—Malta.

"La Solita Storia" (The Same Old Story)—Italy.

"Rivivere" (To Live Again)—Italy.

"Toi Suele au Monde"—France.

Vociferous spectator protest shocked millions of television viewers who were unaware that ballots had been stuffed during the course of final night voting. Protest continued long after the transmission was interrupted, forcing an official scrutiny which revealed that over a thousand votes earmarked for the opening night eliminatory scrutiny, were somehow included in the final tally.

Decision to annul results was taken by the Director General of Radio and Television. Since the song fest is sponsored by Barcelona tv authorities and Barcelona Municipal authorities, corresponding government officialdom moved in to nullify first and investigate later.

Whatever findings are eventually revealed, fact remains that this year's Mediterranean Melody Mart in Barcelona takes its place with some of the grand-scale manipulations laid at the doorstep of San Remo and Naples in past years. However, until investigators submit their findings it is not certain as some reports indicate, that the annual three-day song fest has been written off the books by embarrassed entertainment authorities.

Village Gate, N.Y., Bash To Benefit Costa's Widow

Eddie Costa, jazz pianist who was killed in an auto crash July 28, will be given a musical tribute at the Village Gate in New York's Greenwich Village next Monday (8).

Disk jockeys Mort Fega, of N.Y.'s WEVD, and Willis Conover, who is conductor of "Music U.S.A." for the Voice of America, will emcee the bash that will feature 10 of the bands with which Costa played. Among jazzsters appearing will be Woody Herman, Clark Terry, Phil Woods, Zoot Sims, Al Cohn.

Proceeds from the concert will go to Costa's widow.

Harry Fox, agent and trustee, through his attorney Julian T. Abeles, has brought to a successful conclusion for his music publisher principals, the action instituted in N.Y. Federal Court against National Musitime Corp. and its officers Charles Y. Rynd and Jerome K. Levy. The action was instituted on behalf of 24 of Fox's music publisher principals, for the alleged infringment of 38 of thier outstanding musical compositions, through the unauthorized manufacture, distribution, sale and licensing of recordings and reproductions and copies thereof on tapes, for reproduction in the public performance for profit thereof.

It was the defendants' contention that such use came under Section 1(e) of the Copyright Act, in the manufacture of parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical works, whereby the only obligation to the copyright proprietor was a royalty of 2c for each tape manufactured of each composition. However, in the institution of the action Abeles took the position that such use of a copyrighted work came under the purview of the preamble of Section 1(e) "for the purpose of public performance for profit to make any arrangement or setting of it or of the melody of it in any system of notation or any form of record in which the thought of an author may be recorded and from which it may be read or reproduced." Accordingly, Abeles contended that the extent of the obligation of the tape manufacturer for any such use, was a matter of negotiation with the copyright proprietor, as in the case of the current license agreement entered into by Fox, on behalf of his principals, with Muzak Corp.

The defendants interposed an answer, denying liability and counterclaiming against the plaintiffs in the sum of $500,000 for alleged violation of the Sherman and Clayton Acts, in that plaintiffs and other copyright proprietors had entered into combinations and conspiracies with Fox, as agent and trustee, in restraint of interstate trade and commerce and were thereby monopolizing the business of reproducing musical works on the parts of instruments serving to reproduce the same mechanically, to the substantial damage of the business and property of defendants. The defendants, in addition to their demand for judgment for $500,000, demanded that a permanent injunction be granted declaring all the agreements between Fox, as agent and trustee, and the plaintiffs and others, void.

The matter was concluded last week by defendants withdrawing their said counterclaims and National Musitime conceding its liability to plaintiffs as alleged in the complaint. This resulted in an agreement between Fox, as agent and trustee, and National Musitime on the same basis as the existing agreement with Muzak Corp. Pursuant thereto it made payment for all past uses of the musical copyrights of Fox's principals, and obtained a three-year license for the use thereof, on the same terms and conditions as the Muzak agreement. Abeles' associate John S. Clark was instrumental with him in achieving this result. O'Brien, Dorscall & Raftery represented Musitime.

Fox feels this sets the pattern

(Continued on page 62)

JUDY'S 'CARNEGIE HALL' SET NEARS $2-MIL. SALES

Judy Garland's "Judy At Carnegie Hall" on the Capitol label has become the second two-record set in the disk industry's history to be certified by the Record Industry Assn. of America as having cracked the $1,000,000 sales mark. The other package was RCA Victor's Harry Belafonte recording, also at Carnegie Hall.

The Capitol package is now pushing the $2,000,000 sales mark. Miss Garland was given a gold disk award last week at Las Vegas' Sahara Hotel by Glenn E. Wallichs, Cap president. In addition to the gold disk, Miss Garland and the album also won Grammy awards from the National Assn. of Recording Arts & Sciences.

On the Upbeat

New York

Joseph Lilley is doing the background music for Paramount's "Papa's Delicate Condition" . . . Nashville songwriter-singer Roger Miller will be handled for all personal appearance bookings with W. E. Moeller of Jim Denny Artists Bureau . . . Toni Carroll, MGM singer is set for a two-weeker at Boston's Statler-Hilton beginning Oct 15.

Philadelphia

Although it's been playing the Harlem Club, Atlantic City, every summer, Larry Steele's "Smart Affairs" makes its first local appearance since the Earle Theatre in 1952 when the revue with its cast of 49 opens a 10-day run at the Uptown, Oct. 12. Sarah Vaughan will share headline honors . . . Bassist Bill Crow, just back from Russia and U.S. tours with Benny Goodman, rejoined Gerry Mulligan's band at the Red Hill Inn . . . Joey Dee starts on a coast-to-coast theatre tour Oct 2 to make personal appearances with his new pic, "Two Tickets to Paris."

Al Martino at Frank Palumbo's, Oct. 17-24; followed by the DeJohn Sisters, Nov. 1-11; and Al Alberts, Nov. 20-25. Alberts has bought a cafe, the Cove, in Hazelton, Pa. . . .

Record distributor Ed Barsky won the golf championship of the Woodcrest Country Club for the third straight year . . . Joan Baez booked into Town Hall Nov. 21 . . . Keely Smith current at the Latin Casino until Oct. 10; Johnny Mathis at the spot, Oct. 11-24 . . . Maynard Ferguson plays Sunnybrook Oct. 6 . . . Bobby Vinton set for Sciolla's Nov. 12; Bobby Rydell opens Nov. 21 . . . Jody Sands at the Erie Social Club, Oct. 5-7.

Mark Murphy, who just concluded a run at the Village Vanguard, N.Y., making his local debut at the Picasso . . . Tony De Santis, Frankie Avalon's road manager, let out by Chancellor Records, in economy move . . . Chubby Checker off for a 17-day tour of Brazil and Peru, Thurs. (25) . . . Frankie Brent, who just wound up at the Club Al Jo, opens Fremont Hotel, Las Vegas, Oct. 4 . . . Joe Casolaro, former Benny Goodman vocalist, who has been teaching school in Clayton, N.J., returning to show biz making his debut at Caruso's, Chester . . . Duke Hazlett at Latin Casino's Turf Lounge Oct. 4 . . . Don Weise, added to Roulette national promotion staff, to work out of Philly.

Jack Jones in for 11 days at Blinstrub's, Boston, opening Oct. 8 . . . Natt Hale, assistant to ABC-Paramount Records prexy Sam Clark, back after a lengthy recuperation period following a heart attack . . . Mahalia Jackson concertizes at Carnegie Hall Oct. 12, under the Harold Leventhal banner . . . Bill Simon has been reelected to the board of the N.Y. chapter of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences . . . Paul Eakins and his organ will be at the N.Y. High Fidelity show, which opens today (Wed.) . . . Freda Payne's first ABC-Par single will be a vocal version of the bossa nova click, "Desafinado," tagged "Slightly Out Of Tune."

London

Ian Ralfini named assistant a&r controller of Pye Records and Roger Clifford is new exploitation manager . . . Chris Whent, Riverside label chief in this area, moved to the Continent to o.o. operations there . . . Mantovani's internal surgery a "great success" . . . Everly Bros. set for Associated TeleVision's Sunday Palladium show Oct. 21 and ABC-TV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars" Nov. 10 . . . Local thrush Susan Singer joins the Little Richard package show due to tour here next month.

Tornados' instrumental "Telstar," which got off the pad here in fine style, is to get a rush U.S. launching on the London label . . . Springfields booked for BBC Radio's pioneer c&w show, "Country Club," starting Oct. 25 . . . Pubber Jack Heath and musical director Woolf Phillips have linked to form Baton Music and the Baton Agency. Group has taken over Good Music which runs Palette Records . . . Pete Sullivan, assistant recording manager to HMV's Walter Ridley, is headed for Decca where he dons full a&r robes . . . George Shearing returned for tour of U.K. with Sarah Vaughan . . . Sydney Grace, of the Grade Organization, planes to N.Y. this month to bid for some leading Yank singers for British dates . . . Kenny Ball and band leave Oct. 20 for their first Aussie trek.

The HIT! OF THE WEEK

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN

TV's Dr. Kildare

Sings

LOVE ME TENDER

K-13097

M-G-M Records

HEAR

BABY ELEPHANT WALK

from HOWARD HAWKS'

HATARI

A PARAMOUNT Picture

FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

DICK GREGORY

CURRENTLY FOR FOUR WEEKS

EDDIE FISHER SHOW

Winter Garden, New York

AND OCT. 4

MERV GRIFFIN SHOW

NBC-TV

Booked Exclusively By

ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION

JOE GLASER, President

50 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK 19 JUdson 2-7700

CHICAGO • MIAMI • HOLLYWOOD • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

VARIETY SINGLE RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart		Label
1	1	6	SHERRY Four Seasons	Vee Jay
2	2	9	RAMBLIN' ROSE Nat King Cole	Capitol
3	7	3	MONSTER MASH Bobby Pickett	Garpax
4	3	5	GREEN ONIONS Booker T. & MG's	Stax
5	5	7	PATCHES Dicky Lee	Smash
6	6	7	LET'S DANCE Chris Montez	Monogram
7	9	4	DO YOU LOVE ME Contours	Gordy
8	4	11	SHEILA Tommy Roe	ABC-Par
9	13	5	RAIN, RAIN GO AWAY Bobby Vinton	Epic
10	8	8	TEEN-AGE IDOL Rick Nelson	Imperial
11	21	8	ALLEY CAT Bent Fabric	Atco
12	16	3	I REMEMBER YOU Frank Fields	Vee Jay
13	26	6	SURFIN' SAFARI Beach Boys	Capitol
14	10	7	VENUS IN BLUE JEANS Jimmy Clanton	Ace
15	15	10	SHE'S NOT YOU Elvis Presley	Victor
16	11	13	LOCO-MOTION Little Eva	Dimension
17	14	7	SILVER THREADS AND GOLDEN NEEDLES Springfields	Phillips
18	12	9	YOU BELONG TO ME Dupress	Coed
19	17	3	TORTURE Kris Jasen	Hickory
20	23	5	LIE TO ME Brook Benton	Mercury
21	36	4	IF I HAD A HAMMER Peter, Paul & Mary	Warner Bros.
22	18	16	TWIST AND SHOUT Isley Bros	Wand
23	29	2	HE'S A REBEL The Crystals	Phillies
24	43	2	POPEYE Chubby Checker	Parkway
25	19	7	YOU BEAT ME TO THE PUNCH Mary Wells	Motown
26	25	8	SEND ME THE PILLOW YOU DREAM ON Johnny Tillotson	Cadence
27	41	2	LIMBO ROCK Chubby Checker	Parkway
28	33	2	WHAT KIND OF LOVE IS THIS Joey Dee	Roulette
29	37	10	RINKY DINK Dave Cortez	Chess
30	35	2	ONLY LOVE CAN BREAK A HEART Gene Pitney	Musicor
31	34	10	DEVIL WOMAN Marty Robbins	Columbia
32	38	4	IT MIGHT AS WELL RAIN UNTIL SEPTEMBER Carol King	Dimension
33	39	2	I LEFT MY HEART IN SAN FRANCISCO Tony Bennett	Columbia
34	22	5	BEACHWOOD 4-5789 Marvelettes	Tamla
35	—	1	DON'T GO NEAR THE INDIANS Rex Allen	Mercury
36	24	10	YOU DON'T KNOW ME Ray Charles	ABC-Par
37	44	3	IF I DIDN'T HAVE A DIME Gene Pitney	Musicor
38	31	14	BREAKING UP IS HARD TO DO Neil Sedaka	RCA Victor
39	28	6	COME ON LITTLE ANGEL Belmonts	Sabrina
40	—	1	ALL ALONE AM I Brenda Lee	Decca
41	45	3	PUNISH HER Bobby Vee	Liberty
42	30	2	HIDE AND GO SEEK Bunker Hill	Mala
43	—	1	GINA Johnny Mathis	Columbia
44	32	8	YOUR NOSE IS GOING TO GROW Johnny Crawford	Delfi
45	—	1	DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT Andy Williams	Columbia
46	—	1	LEAH Roy Orbison	Monument
47	20	12	SHAME ON ME Bobby Bare	Victor
48	—	1	WHAT KIND OF FOOL AM I Sammy Davis Jr	Reprise
49	—	2	BLUEBIRDS OVER THE MOUNTAIN Echoes	Smash
50	27	4	HULLY GULLY BABY Dovells	Parkway

Nat'l Musitime

Continued from page 61

for other tape manufacturers' license agreements. However, he has instructed Abeles to institute legal proceedings against any other manufacturers who are not yet convinced of their liability to the music men. It is Abeles' intention to join as party defendants in said actions all utilities furnishing wire service for the purpose of the public performance of such tapes. In this respect it is his contention that the copyright proprietors' right of recovery are under the general damage provisions of the Copyright Act, pursuant to which the manufacturers and those furnishing the wire service are severally liable in the sum of $5,000 for each such use. This is upon the theory that the use of the infringing tape by every such utility for the purpose of public performance, is separate and apart from its liability for the public performance thereof.

The plaintiff music publishers were Shapiro-Bernstein, Peter Maurice, Famous Music, Robbins, Feist, Miller, Bourne, ABC Music, Hill & Range, Sam Fox, Joy Music, E. H. Morris, Bregman, Vocco & Conn, 20th Century Music & Triangle Music, Leeds, Laurel, Valendo, Lombardo, Hollis, Fairway and Planetary Music Pub. Corp.

DISCOVER THE BEST IN CHILDREN'S RECORDS

FOLKWAYS RECORDS is the leading producer of recordings created for children by artists who LOVE children. Here are some of Folkways' 100 children's records that the N.Y. Times recently reviewed as "best for children."

Songs to Grow On, Woody Guthrie (FC7005) $4.25. Amer. Folksongs for Children, Pete Seeger (FC7001) $4.25. Music Time, Charity Bailey (FC7307) $4.25.

NEW RELEASE

This Is Rhythm, Ella Jenkins (FC7652) $5.95.

(All Folkways Records come with accompanying texts and instructional notes.)

Write for Folkways' complete children's catalogue

FOLKWAYS RECORDS 121 W. 47 St. New York 36

Breaking Wide Open

ASHES

Screamin' Jay Hawkins

C-1117

ABC-PARAMOUNT

MMMM

Now Hear This!

THE DUKES of DIXIELAND

New Smash Album

DIXIELAND HOOTNANNY

on Columbia

All selections published by Mills Music, Inc.

MILLS MUSIC, INC., N. Y. C.

JOANIE SOMMER'S NEW HIT

WHEN THE BOYS GET TOGETHER

WARNER BROS. RECORD NO. 5308

EMILIO PERICOLI SINGS "ROMANTICO AMORE"

WARNER BROS. RECORD NO. 5303

MUSIC PUBLISHERS HOLDING CORPORATION

Post-Fair Format of Seattle Expo Taking Shape; Dingwall Consultant

Seattle, Oct. 2.

Pattern for the postfair operation of the Seattle World's Fair site has been virtually set, with naming of Fair general manager Ewen C. Dingwall by Seattle Mayor Gordon S. Clinton as manager of the city-owned site.

Dingwall will leave his Fair employment Oct. 1 to become consultant, without pay, to develop a complete range of programs for postfair activities. After a two-month vacation (November and December) Dingwall will take over as head of the managing group for the site. He will work for a group of as yet unnamed private trustees who will put together a non-profit corporation which will plan and promote permanent use of the Civic Center.

Salary for the job is not set. Dingwall presently gets $27,500 per year as Fair manager, so it's assumed his pay will remain the same.

Naming of Dingwall and plans for postfair use of the Civic Center were approved by the City Council. Action, without opposition, came as somewhat of a surprise. In past weeks many plans have been voiced for postfair operation of the Fair site and some city councilmen were said to be against the naming of Dingwall as manager.

N.M. State Fair Pulls Record B.O.

Albuquerque, Oct. 2.

The 1962 New Mexico State Fair ended an 11-day stand last Sunday (23) breaking practically all records. The 25th annual exposition clocked 553,000 through turnstiles and would have done more had it not been for steady rain on final day. Other 10 days were clear and sunny.

Nine nights of rodeo competitions—which also featured western television and recording artist as headliners—pulled 80,500, the best audience in fair's history. House was scaled from top of $3. Racetrack, where pari-mutuel betting is legal, grossed $4,263,000, a new record for 11-day season. Track drew crowd of about 81,000.

Top show biz draw was two-day booking of Paul "Wishbone" Brinegar and Sheb Wooley from "Rawhide" series on Sept. 15-16 at opening stands of rodeo competitions. Duo pulled full house (12,000) Saturday, and 11,000 on Sunday (16).

Singer Pat Boone, in first appearance here, attracted estimated 8,000 each of three nights he was on. Homer & Jethro racked up 7,000 their first night out (20) and 11,000 on Friday (21). Slim Pickens and Don Collier of "Outlaws" video series pulled full house Saturday (22) and about 3,500 on final night. Jimmie Rodgers and The Fairmont Singers backed all nine nights of headliners during rodeo shows.

Babes Bigger Than Bingo —In Reno, or Elsewhere

Reno, Oct. 2.

Reno has again discovered that babes are bigger than bingo. The Riverside Hotel here, which recently dropped entertainment in favor of bingo, has decided to go back to entertainment. It opens tomorrow (Thurs.) with Denise Darcel in the headline spot. Hotel operator Raymond Spector will follow Miss Darcel with other names.

Spector, who recently took over the Riverside, initially cut out the entertainment in order to experiment with bingo on a mass basis. New thinking around the hotel indicates that while Bingo brought in small spenders, talent brings in the better heeled splurger.

Suddenly It's Spring

Jimmy Durante and Helen Traubel have been teamed for a stand at the Copacabana, N. Y., starting April 4. Duo have worked off and on for a number of years.

Each have had separate dates at the Jules Podell hospice.

AGVA Denies Jurisdiction Dispute With Mpls. Waiters

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

Although two of the new local membership nightclubs—one is the just opened local Black Sheep affiliate—employ waitresses who sing or dance or do both, Hal Krieger, American Guild of Variety Artists branch manager here, denies there's any jurisdictional dispute between AGVA and the waiters Union as to which the gals should belong.

Such a report had been circulated in entertainment circles and had been picked up by morning Tribune columnist Will Jones. The following is how Krieger explained the situation to Jones who ran the rebuttal in his column:

"There is no jurisdictional dispute between AGVA and the Cooks, Waiters and Waitresses Union over this matter. AGVA cannot enter into a dispute with a union which does not represent the entertainer. In the case of any club which employs waitresses who entertain, we feel that their interests would be best served if they were members of the Cooks, Waiters and Waitresses union.

"However, we also feel that such time as they do not function in that capacity, but enter into the purview of AGVA's jurisdiction by performing they, in addition to membership in any other union, also should become members of AGVA."

'We Tried,' Says Living Rm. Chi., In Sudden Fold

Chicago, Oct. 2.

The marquee on the Chi Living Room read "God Knows We Tried" last Wednesday (26) as creditors swarmed around the locked door of the shuttered nightclub. The closing came without notice and with owner Allan Segal in New York as the climax of a series of financial troubles that came to light Sept. 12 when Arlington Park Race track revealed that Segal had cashed $22,000 worth of checks at the track and stopped payment on them.

Segal had earlier said that he had purchased controlling interest in the club from his brother Dan Segal, owner of a club bearing the same name in New York. However, incorporation papers in the files of the Illinois Secretary of State reveal that Allan Segal is not listed as one of the officers. Only the names of the club's press agent and manager were submitted as officers of the corporation.

The nightclub appeared to be keeping its head above water for the two weeks before its foldo during an engagement by singer Steve Lawrence. Management had decided to turn out the lights following Lawrence when Jack Begun, manager of fighter-turned-singer Jody Berry, offered to lease the club for two weeks to take advantage of the fight mob in town for the Patterson-Liston match.

However, employees and creditors, including cooks, waiters, liquor dealers, the insurance company, the electric and gas companies and the Internal Revenue Service demanded day-by-day payment and Begun tossed in the sponge.

B'klyn's Town & Country Club Luring Top Names With 1-Show Nightly Policy

The one-show nightly policy at the Town & Country Club, Brooklyn, is nabbing some top boxoffice names for this room which is located in the far reaches of the borough. Latest to be inked is Milton Berle who goes in for four weeks starting April 19. He'll be preceded by Sophie Tucker, also down for one-a-night. But both will play two shows on weekends.

With this policy, some performers feel that niteries are becoming as easy to work in as legit, where eight shows weekly prevail. It's also felt to be the magnet that is luring top names to this remote nitery, which many regard as a sleeper jump from Broadway. None of the Broadway cafes can offer a one-show nightly deal.

Ben Maksik, T&C operator, has several items working for him to make this policy feasible. The

(Continued on page 64)

4 GI CLUBS IN HAWAII OFF 'UNFAIR' AGVA LIST

Honolulu, Oct. 2.

Four military base clubs at Hickam Air Force Base and Pearl Harbor have been taken off the American Guild of Variety Artists' "unfair" list and AGVA members again can accept bookings at the four clubs.

Mike Rita, Hawaii AGVA director, says the clubs have agreed to comply with union regulations and also have settled a claim made by entertainer Helen Grayco (Mrs. Spike Jones).

Cafe Assn. Maps Cutting Act Costs

Chicago, Oct. 2.

A new attempt to bring order into the chaotic structure of nitery salaries will be made at the convention of the Associated Night Clubs of America which meets at the Executive House here for three days starting Oct. 15. Some 50 bonifaces are expected to attend the conclave.

Although the primary purpose of the meet has been announced as giving new talent a chance to be seen, efforts will be made to eliminate what has been described as "cutthroat" bidding for acts. This is the second confab held by the group; first was in Houston in January.

Auditions for the new talent will be held at the Happy Medium, operated by Oscar & George Marienthal. However, executive sessions are expected to centre around the rising salaries of name performers.

ANCA president is Gene Norman of the Crescendo, Los Angeles; Saul Hockman, of the Crown Room, Minneapolis, is first vice president; Manny Rubin, 2d Fret, Philadelphia, is second veepee; Doug Weston, Troubador Cafe Theatre, Los Angeles, is secretary, and William Martin, Montagu Club, Houston, is treasurer. Board chairman is Bill Newkirk, of the Tidelands, Houston. Board members are Oscar Marienthal; Ralph Watkins, Basin St. East, N.Y., and Enrico Banducci, hungry i, San Francisco. Mariental is convention chairman.

D'Oyly Carte Highlanders Among Edmonton Dates

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 2.

Bookings for 1962-63 season in the Celebrity Concert series here are: D'Oyly Carte, Gilbert & Sullivan; Royal Scots Greys and Argylle and Sutherland Highlanders; Obernkirchen Children's Choir; Richard Leibert, organist; Byron Janis, pianist; San Francisco Opera Quartet; Richard Lewis, British tenor; Roger Wagner Chorale.

The Highlanders group will perform in Edmonton Gardens. Others in the series will appear in Jubilee Auditorium.

Deputy Provincial Secretary E. R. Hughes also stated that lines carried in newspaper advertising in Edmonton promising "the birth of a baby before your eyes" were also deleted from promotion of the film.

Favorite of Show Folks'

hotel MARYLAND
Corner Rush at Delaware
MO 4-8600
OWEN W. NICHOLLS, Exec. Mgr.
AAA 350 ROOMS
Overlooking LAKE MICHIGAN—just 3 minutes from the "loop"

Surrounded by fascinating dining and nite spots . . . Home of famous CLOISTER INN, fine air-conditioned restaurant, intimate cocktail lounges. Adjacent 500-car garage. 1-day valet; beauty salon, barber shop. All rooms with private bath, shower. Studio apts., "VIP" suites. SPECIAL RATES from $6.00 FOR ENTERTAINERS.

FREE REHEARSAL FACILITIES and current issue of "VARIETY"

GRACIOUS HOSPITALITY AND PLEASANT LIVING

DIRECTION: LOUIS F. BELLER & CO.

EMMETT KELLY

Mgt.: LEONARD GREEN
300 E. 51st St.
New York City
PL 2-1764

JOAN ST. JAMES

TALENTED TRIOIST

Exciting Piano Rhythms With Charm for both Listening and Dancing

New York Appearances:
PIERRE HOTEL
VANDERBILT
SHERATON
EMBERS

HENRY W. HERRMAN
1270 Ave. of Americas, New York
Rockefeller Plaza
Circle 6-6992

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL COMEDY MATERIAL
For every branch of theatricals
"WE SERVICE THE STARS!"
35 Gag files $15, plus $1 postage
FOREIGN: 35 for $30

- 3 Parody Books, per Bk. $10
- 5 Blackout Books 1-2-3 Each . $25
- No. 4 for $35—No. 5 for $30
- Minstrel (white face) Budget $25
- "How to Master the Ceremonies" $3 PER COPY . . NO C.O.D.'s

BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C. 19, CO 5-1316
(We TEACH M.C'ing and COMEDY)
(Let a real Professional train you)

MICKEY AND BONNIE

NEW SENSATIONAL SINGING DUO

NOW APPEARING AT THE DUNES HOTEL LOUNGE, LAS VEGAS, NEV.

THANK YOU,

- ★ MAJOR RIDDLE, for 6 wonderful weeks at the Dunes Lounge. Thanks for signing us to 18 weeks in 1963.
- ★ NEVADA LODGE, Crystal Bay, Lake Tahoe.
- ★ OLYMPIC HOTEL, Seattle (World's Fair).
- ★ RANCHINN, Elko, Nevada.
- ★ TIDELANDS MOTOR INN, Tucson, Ariz.

THANKS to Al Berkman, our personal manager, arranger and coach, for keeping us busy every week since we started our act.

NOW BOOKING FOR 1963

For future bookings write, wire or phone AL BERKMAN, 8565 Melrose Ave., Hollywood 69, Calif., OL. 5-5541 (Day or Eve.)

'Minstrel Show' Click Proves TV Can Hypo Vaude, Sez Leslie Macdonnell

By ROGER WATKINS

London, Oct. 2.

At a time when the "Black And White Minstrel Show" is about to weigh in for a second season on BBC-TV against, incidentally, the top-rating Palladium show on the commercial tv channel, Leslie A. Macdonnell, head of the Moss Empires group, is readying announcement of a further three-months' extension of the Minstrels' run at the Victoria Palace, London, one of the chain's two flagship theatres.

The production is also due to hop to Melbourne, Australia, this month and has been doing solid biz as the leading summer show in Morecambe, a major seaside resort.

The London life and times of the show more than justifies Macdonnell's belief that tv can be harnessed to work for the live theatre.

Before the show opened" last May, he said "we had in excess of $300,000 in advance bookings for the Minstrels. This becomes even more remarkable when it's realized that our top price is only $2. In other words, more than 200,000 people booked to see the show before it opened which is more than even 'My Fair Lady' had."

Video-to-Variety Pioneer

Macdonnell, pioneer of the video-artist-to-variety school, predicts that in 24 hours of announcing the three-months' extension of this vidinspired spectacular, he will again be SRO at the Victoria Palace. "When I came into Moss Empires," he said, "the trade thought that television was going to kill the variety theatre. And it did hurt some of the theatres in the provinces."

"But I have always believed that the tremendous potential of tv can be harnessed for the theatre. In fact, there are three ways in which the variety hall can compete (a) by providing maximum comfort for patrons; (b) plenty of color and (c) by featuring successful tv talent."

This is not to say, however, that all video shows can make a successful transfer from the small screen to the big stage. "Cool For Cats," a case in point, was a financial disaster according to Macdonnell, despite its expensive production.

'Popularity via Videxposure'

Macdonnell and Moss Empires are hauling 'em in in London and the provinces, etc. with headliners like Bruce Forsyth, Morecambe & Wise, Charlie Drake and some others, all of whom have made their name or, at least, consolidated their popularity through videxposure.

"This year," Macdonnell pointed out, "I am using five television names in Pantomime at the Palladium. Already we have double the bookings that we had last year when we only used one headliner from tv."

Macdonnell states that his plans for future acquisitions from tele are "extremely elastic" although he's convinced that he could put on stage productions of Granada-TV's "Spot The Tune" and "Bootsie And Snudge" and clean up.

Tv people are beginning to realize, he holds, that a live production of a video show can give added impetus to that show, if only from the artist's point of view. "Playing to an enthusiastic audience is a magnificent stimulus for them," he says.

KINGSTON-DENNY ORCH SRO $14,091, SAN JOSE

San Jose, Cal., Oct. 2.

Kingston Trio and Martin Denny Orch grossed an SRO $14,091 in a one-nighter here Saturday (29) under Irving Granz's promotional banner. They played to 3,900 payees. Kingstons got $6,000 against 60% of the take and paid the Denny crew out of their end.

A gig in Sacremento on Friday (28) was also very profitable, with 4,200 paying $15,100. Talent terms were the same. But on the previous night Granz lost about $1,000 when the show pulled only $6,200 in Fresno.

Moulin Rouge's Beefcake

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

Beefcake replaces cheesecake at Frank Sennes' Moulin Rouge tonight (Tues.) when a boxing show, the first sporting event at the spot, pits welterweights Johnny Newman and Eddie Pace.

Joe Louis is promoting. Ring is on nitery's stage, with drinks sold to ticket-buyers.

N.Y. Harwyn Club 209G Bankruptcy

The Harwyn Club, N. Y., an eastside spot, last week filed a voluntary petition under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act in N. Y. Federal Court. An updated financial statement accompanying the papers listed liabilities of $209,300 and $10,000 in assets.

Settlement terms will be submitted later. The Harwyn has been in financial difficulties for some time. It was padlocked some months ago for a few days because of arrears in taxes.

Liberace Capacity $11,120 At Knoxville Civic Aud

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 2.

Liberace scored again here with a capacity house last week at the Civic Auditorium. His one-night stand grossed $11,120. Attendance was 2,660.

He packed the auditorium beyond capacity and the orchestra pit had to be used for extra seating, according to Gene Frye, the aud's assistant manager. Robert Frost, a local promoter, arranged the date.

Cole's Orient Trek

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

GAC, which continues to expand its booking of American acts on Far East swings, has about finalized deal for Nat King Cole to make the route next winter. He played the Orient two years ago.

Vicki Benet started a trek yesterday (Mon.) of Okinawa-Japan-Korea, under GAC skedding, and Delta Rhythm Boys tee off Nov. 23.

$16,405 TAX ARREARS FOLD SEATTLE NITERY

Seattle, Oct. 2.

The Magic Inn, longtime Seattle nightclub and restaurant, has been closed by the Internal Revenue Service for nonpayment of $16,405 in withholding, and admissions' tax liens for the first half of this year. Notice of seizure by the IRS was posted Friday (21), with sale set for Saturday (7).

Jim Kirk, who owns the restaurant, said he was working with lawyers and seeking a backer to help him pay the tax bill. It was the first time in 17 years that the club has been closed. During early postwar years as the private Magicians Club, it was one of the town's top nightspots.

Stripper Lays Down Her G-String to Organize Nine Peelers in T'ronto Local

Toronto, Oct. 2.

Founder and present prexy of the Exotique Dancers League, associated with the American Guild of Variety Artists, blond Jennie Lee took time out from her stripping at the Victory Theatre here to organize a Toronto local of nine North American peelers, employed and unemployed.

Miss Lee claimed she was interviewed three times by investigators of the U. S. Senate's McClellan subcommittee but was not called because she "had nothing bad to say." Stating that a stripper should have a year's apprenticeship before being admitted to the union, she said that "exotic dancers should have some qualifications and should be able to do more than just take off our clothes."

She claimed a membership in the Exotique Dancers League of some 100 out of the 1,000 peelers in North America; but, in the past, AGVA had sometimes tended to ignore the striptease acts.

Davis Smasheroo $61,800 Holbrook Big 17G, Seattle

Seattle, Oct. 2.

Sammy Davis Jr. show at the Orpheum, booked by Northwest Releasing Corp., took tremendous $61,800 gross in week of seven performances ending Saturday (29).

At World's Fair Troupe Rapsodia Romina had slow biz in opera house for week ending Sunday, despite critical acclaim. Hal Holbrook, as Mark Twain in Playhouse same week, grabbed a smash $17,000.

N.Y. Americana's Royal Box Sets Talent Slate

The Royal Box of the Americana Hotel, N.Y., has set its talent until the end of the year. Latest to be signed is Keely Smith who goes in Nov. 26 for four weeks.

Schedule now has Harry Belafonte preeming the new room next Monday (8) to be followed by Tony Martin Oct. 27. Miss Smith moves in four weeks later. Guy Lombardo Orch, playing its first N.Y. date away from the Roosevelt Hotel, starts Dec. 20 for three weeks.

Town & Country

Continued from page 63

largest of which is the 1,500 capacity in the main room. A heavyweight name to back up the salesmen has been responsible for luring a lot of organization and banquet trade. The cafe's reliance on a la carte business has now become minimal, although with top attractions Maksik sets aside some segments for drop-in business.

Maksik, during a previous try at names some years ago, had to offer hard cash. He spent as high as $40,000 weekly for such headliners as Jerry Lewis and Judy Garland. He initially signed Victor Borge at $35,000. But the policy ended disastrously for a variety of reasons including overpayment to his stars.

However, with the one-show nightly gimmick he offers ease along with cash and he's able to gross as much as most Broadway rooms because of the huge number of seats. With upbeat in advance sales because of heavy plugging, the pattern may become more widespread in the cafe field.

Iowa GOP Shelves Cold Food & Talks in Favor Of Stars as Fundraisers

Des Moines, Oct. 2.

Pearl Bailey will headline a Republican fundraising show at the 4,139-seat KRNT Theatre Oct. 11-12 when the GOP hopes to pick up at least $60,000 for its fall campaign. Others slated for the bill are Edgar Bergen & Seven Friends, Jackie Mason, George Murphy, Andrews Sisters and Manny Harmon's Orch.

Murphy is producing the show whose talent cost is a reported $10,000 for the two-day event. Admisison will range from $10 to $25 for the two-and-one-half-hour show and advance reservations are heavy. No political speeches are promised—only introduction of candidates in the Nov. 6 elections.

The idea of giving party contributors a good show for their money instead of cold food and speeches is a switch. To quote one candid Republican: "We have to draw people for the candidates, who are not really very good attractions. The stars are the attractions and serve as bait for contributions."

Republican state chairman George Nagle said similar shows may be held in other Iowa cities next year, replacing some of the traditional fundraising dinners, if the Oct. 11-12 shows prove profitable.

Circus Con

San Antonio, Oct. 2.

A con man has moved in on the Alzafar Shrine Circus. He has been talking to people over the phone for donations "to take underprivileged kids to the circus." Then he sends a woman around to pick up donations.

M. V. Johnston, general chairman of the Shrine Circus, said that local police have been given his name and location of his headquarters.

"HE PLAYS TO PACKED HOUSES!"

BOSTON RECORD

"The newest and hottest night club personality."
BOSTON HERALD

"Mysterious, Handsome and Tops."
HERB LYONS, Chicago Tribune

"Subjects fall in his spell, and have a hilarious time." CHARLEY DAWN, Chicago American

"He stopped the show opening night."
MIAMI DAILY NEWS

HOTEL
FONTAINEBLEAU

MIAMI BEACH, Florida

Dear Dante:

Since the Fontainebleau opened, we've never had an entertainer who produced such a fantastic and exciting audience reaction that you have created, and the most amazing thing is, how the capacity crowds were made up of many people who had seen your show several times and brought their friends.

I have never seen a classier nor funnier show in my entire life.

I am only sorry that your schedule wouldn't permit you to stay with us longer. I can now see how you can last up to a year in the same club.

I hope you will find time in your schedule to play for us at your nearest convenience.

Sincerely yours,
Ziggy Lane
Entertainment Manager

MANAGEMENT: OSBORNE & ASSOCIATES, 5701 N. Sheridan Rd., Chicago, Ill.

BOSTON SMASH HIT
THE GLAMOROUS NEW HOTEL
AVERY

Show folks are raving about the all new Hotel Avery. All new, large, beautifully furnished deluxe rooms with private bath, television & radio. Air conditioning.

AVERY & WASHINGTON STS.

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly
PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST — THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST

Now in its 143rd Issue, containing stories one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, interruptions, Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc. (20 Pages).

$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3
Foreign
$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4
No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON, 280 W. 54th St. New York City 19, CO 5-1316

NICK LUCAS
And
The Troubadors
Now Appearing
TAHOE
State Line, Nev.

YVONNE MORAY
Currently
Ru Ge's Supper Club
Bethlehem, Pa.
ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP.

'I Look At My Own Check—

[AND I THINK, WHO ARE THESE COMICS?']

Washington, Oct. 2.

Compensation paid American cultural exchange performers continues to attract Congressional snipers. Lastest marksman is Rep. William B. Widnall (R-N.J.) who followed up his resolution setting a ceiling of $425 a week (approximately the Congressional pay scale) on travelling players with a veiled rap at the Joey Adams tour.

"Should a comedian sent abroad under the cultural exchange act get a bigger salary than the Vice President of the U. S., generals, admirals, Federal judges and Cabinet officers?" Widnall asked.

He cited the contributed services of many top performers on USO tours and said high pay to certain players whom he claimed are favored by the State Dept. "is carrying President Kennedy's concern for the arts 'to ridiculous lengths.'"

Widnall said he has received a flood of support for his position and his bill from around the country.

WORLD'S TOP ATTRACTIONS

BILL HALEY

and his COMETS

Now Headlining Throughout Europe

DAVE "BABY" CORTEZ

and his "RINKY DINK" Quartet

Apollo Theatre, N. Y. Week Oct. 5

Howard Theatre, Washington Oct. 12

EXCLUSIVE BOOKING

JOLLY JOYCE AGENCY

58 W. 48th St., New York

PL 7-1786, PL 7-1530

Affiliated Offices PHILA., LAS VEGAS and FRANKFURT, GERMANY

DONNA LYNN

Jimmy Durante's SINGING PROTEGE 12—GOING ON STARDOM!

Agent ERNESTINE McCLENDON TN 7-2287, New York

Music - Music - Music

CLUBS — LOUNGES — RESORTS and all those who DEMAND the FINEST

SINGLES — ORCHESTRAS ENSEMBLES

TWIST - LATIN - NOVELTY

Contact BAYS AND ANDERSON

Presenting Outstanding Artists

510 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y.

ELDORADO 5-5633

Funny Albeit Ribald As Usual Friars' Luncheon Salute to Johnny Carson

By JOE COHEN

The Friars' fall season of luncheons started Thursday (27) in the main Ballroom of the Astor Hotel on a level that will be difficult to duplicate for the rest of the season. It was an unusual luncheon, too, inasmuch as many of those on the dais admitted hardly knowing the guest of honor, Johnny Carson, who started helming the "Tonight" show on NBC-TV Monday (1). Red Buttons seemingly exemplified the feeling of most of the agents and comics in the room. "Johnny Carson is my best friend—starting Monday."

Jack E. Leonard in his usual emcee role had one of his more brilliant afternoons, hardly uttering a non-productive word. Of course, he had an early start. Prior to the ribald main event, in the room set aside for the dais, he started muttering four-letter words to get into practice. Yet as the afternoon wore on, it became evident that these feeds are able to get along without the lurid language.

There were many triumphal moments. There were many auditions for future guests of honor and future emcees (Leonard goes out of town occasionally). Indeed it's reported that NBC first became interested in Carson for "Tonight" as result of his ability to handle himself at these Friars functions.

Of the perennial Dean Harry Delf, Leonard said, "He always gets these things off to a flying stop." Gene Baylos was introduced as the Emmett Kelly of the mountains. Seeing Herbert Siegel, General Artists Corp. board chairman and principal stockholder following a realignment of executives, he warned him to get back to the office to see whether he was still on the payroll. Leonard's lines have added authority because of his up-to-the-minute knowledge of events in the trade and in global affairs alike.

There were many heavyweights on the rostrum with the top emphasis coming from Buttons who spoke of his adventures in filming "The Longest Day" and "Hatari." Former film presented, said Buttons, a lot of problems inasmuch as it starred Paul Anka, Tommy Sands and Fabian with only one comb among them. He spoke feelingly of the African jungle as result of his "Hatari" experiences. There are only two rules to remember. "Never go into the jungle at night and, No. 2, never go into the jungle during the day."

Phil Foster made short shrift of the guest of honor, whom he said nobody knew for good reason, and thereupon engaged in a four-letter word duel to Leonard. Joe E. Lewis was also confused on the guest of honor. He thought it was Kit Carson.

Nipsey Russell, Negro comic headlining at the Blue Angel, made his second appearance at these functions and is becoming a promising member of this cabal. He warned Carson to be wary of commercials. "I took a bath in Clorox and it didn't help." Of the present Mississippi incident on the enrollment of a Negro student, he told of a white native of that state berating a Negro for protesting the beating of a few colored people. "Why didn't you holler when Joe Louis was beating up all them white folks?" The guy was solid and clever.

There were other surprises. Leonard seemed stunned after heckling "Tonight" director Ed McMahan, who said "I thought this

(Continued on page 68)

RENE BARDY APPEALS ON MCA TURNDOWN

Hollywood, Oct. 2.

French producer Rene Bardy has filed an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court from a lower court decision denying him the right to intervene in the U.S.-MCA antitrust litigation. The action was settled last week when the Government and MCA agreed on a consent decree.

Bardy, who has a $1,000,000 action pending in Nevada against MCA Artists Ltd. and a number of other defendants, had sought to intervene to protect his rights to the assets of MCA Artists in the event he should win his suit. Both the U.S. and MCA opposed his intervention move in the lower court.

Dissolution of MCA's agency, in stipulation with the Government, leaves Bardy with no protection should he win, according to his attorney Morton Galane. Bardy sued MCA Artists and others over his revue which was booked at El Rancho, Las Vegas, by MCA. He claimed he wasn't properly represented.

Texas State Fair Eyes Peak Gate

Dallas, Oct. 2.

State Fair of Texas opens its 77th annual 16-day run Saturday (6) with another strong entertainment lineup that expo officials hope will top the 1959 all-time attendance record of 2,801,305. Last year's turnstile take was a hefty 2,764,398 and the gate fee is the same this fall—$1 for adults and 50c for kids under 12.

Country's largest state fair has a permanment investment of over $35,000,000 in its 200-acre showplace just two miles from midtown Dallas. The 1962 expo will have an "Exposition of Nations" theme, to be carried out in scores of special events and activities.

Top show lure is the return of Anna Maria Alberghetti in the touring company of "Carnival," which opens Friday (5) for 24 performances in the air-conditioned, 4,120-seat State Fair Music Hall. There's been a hefty advance sale, with tickets scaled at $4.95-$1.65. Anna Maria fills the two-week run here, her sister Carla takes over for a week each in St. Louis and Kansas City, and Anna Maria resumes the role in Chicago in November.

"Ice Capades," the 22d edition of the John H. Harris touring icer, gets 24 showings (13 nights and 11 matinees) in the Ice Arena, a 5,000-seater, with tickets scaled from $3.75-$2.25. Children's scale is $1.75-$1. The blades show, a regular at the expo, annually draws more than 100,000 patrons.

Special free shows again are numerous. First will be the Red Foley Show in the Cotton Bowl next Monday (8) at 8 p.m., when the rustic singer will be joined by Slim Wilson, "Uncle Cyp" Brasfield and The Promenaders (8). The Gil Gray Circus, a three-ringer, will be in the Cotton Bowl on Dallas Day, Oct. 10, and Circus Night, Oct. 11.

The Dallas Symphony Orchestra on Oct. 12, elementary school kids' day at the fair, will give a repeat of last year's music spectacular, "1812 Overture," punctuated with cannon blasts and climaxed by a fireworks display. The Air Force Band of the West from Colorado's Air Force Academy, will also participate in this free spectacular.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, will receive the Texas Music Festival Award Oct. 9, when the Texas Music Educators Assn., and the fair, will present outstanding high school bands, choruses and orchestras from throughout the state in a mass concert in the Cotton Bowl.

Hawaii Going to Dogs?

Honolulu, Oct. 2.

Wilbur Clark, owner of Las Vegas' Desert Inn, suggested during a stopover visit that dogracing might be a "pretty good idea" for Hawaii. He also opined that horseracing would be too expensive a proposition.

He pointed out the general public likes to gamble but added that he doesn't think gambling is good for poor folk. The hotel man arrived from California by ship, then flew on to Tokyo after a two-day stay.

Early Season Miscues of Paris Vaude House Has Showmen in Tizzy

Paris, Oct. 2.

Vaudesters are wondering where the music hall is heading as the new show season starts. Since its renaissance in 1954, when the conversion of the Olympia from pix to two-a-day led to a plethora of top song names, good attendance and other vaude houses, it has had off and on seasons. The early attempts do not seem too reassuring so far this season.

It is felt that house directors are content to use the same acts every year. Also, the dearth of new name singers and the reluctance of the real draws, due to fear of overexposure, to appear more than every few seasons, are a hardship for houses.

But the many fine acts that show up in boites around town, and who rarely do music halls, belie the directors' claims that it is hard to find new talent.

Decision of Olympia head Bruno "L'Arlesienne," in which Jose-

(Continued on page 69)

"The Audience Roars With Laughter"

DON TANNEN

Just Concluded

QUEEN ELIZABETH HOTEL

Montreal

MAY JOHNSON ASSOCIATES (CANADA) LIMITED

Sept. 22, 1962

Mr. Don Tannen
General Artists Corp.
New York

Dear Don:

I am certain you will be interested to know that patrons are still talking about your wonderful performance here at the Bonaventure Room of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Many have expressed the opinion that it was the best entertainment they have seen in some time. I must say that I concur in their opinion, for I, too, thoroughly enjoyed every show that I saw, and you were certainly able to vary your material to fit every audience, truly a mark of good showmanship.

On behalf of the management and the May Johnson office, best wishes for your continued success. We shall look forward to your return to the Bonaventure Room in the very near future.

Yours most cordially,

James Nichols

MONTREAL MATIN

"American comedian and personality DON TANNEN is a comedian with multiple talents. He attains perfection in whatever he does. [He plays the piano, he sings, he mimics, tells stories, he presents satirical impressions, opera, French and hillbilly singers. He even does ventriloquism to perfection and that's a show in itself.] The audience roars with laughter. Chanteuse June Forrest joins DON TANNEN in a hilarious take-off of two temperamental opera singers. This was improvisation at its best. Clever, brilliant and original."

THE GAZETTE, Montreal

"The comedy which sustains MR. TANNEN is deft, very well organized and presented so that his listeners can sit back, relax and enjoy themselves without being bothered by maybe missing some obscure psychological point. His material is very sharp and particularly in his impressions of various personalities, remarkably subtle. This is because Mr. TANNEN is more than a night club comedian, he is a good comedy actor."

Thank you,
MR. JAMES NICHOLS of the MAY JOHNSON ASSOCIATES

Direction: GAC

Hotel St. Regis, N.Y.

Peter Duchin Orch (10) with Nancy Manning; Ray Bari 4; $3 and $4 cover.

These are sentimental days in Gotham. Within a span of a week, two new potential New York landmarks made their debuts—the Lincoln Center Performing Arts' Philharmonic Hall and the Americana Hotel—and two nostalgic occasions further punctuated the social-theatrical scene. These were the closing of "My Fair Lady," the fairest musical of them all, after seven seasons, and the debut of 25-year-old Peter Duchin at the posh Hotel St. Regis.

As he incepted the straight dansapation policy in the Maisonette, a veteran waiter confided that he was at the time-honored Central Park Casino when "his father first started playing piano for Leo Reisman." Eventually Eddy Duchin was to become a darling of the gadabouts of the 1920s, and later a fixture in the 1930s and '40s in the Persian Room of the Hotel Plaza.

The sentimality has created an outpouring of publicity for Eddy Duchin's personable offspring which might prove embarrassing if not maudlin in another circumstance, but in this case, has created an extraordinary show biz kickoff for a promising new talent.

Those who had dined, danced and romanced to Duchin pere's tiptop terp tunes turned out in full force to lend their collective prestige—and cash-on-the-table support—to the new generation maestro. Result has been an avalanche of publicity in top socialite columns that normally doesn't befall even the most popular of society dansators, Coleman, Lanin, Straeter et al included.

Comparison of son to father is inevitable but the analogy exists only in lineage and the fact both maestros preside at the ivories. Even the family resemblance is minimal, save for the same classic profiles. Peter is fuller of face, and, as for his "style," his a rocking back-and-forth style at the ivories while Eddy Duchin was more the "poet of the Steinway" (to borrow Carmen Cavallaro's metaphor), in that he mouthed the lyrics of his dreamy ballads and thus seemed to interpret instrumentally, with greater depth, the lyrical meaning of the medleys he was performing.

Top sharp contrast is young Duchin's staccato "beat" which gets young and old alike up on that floor. Where the Thursday night formal preem was loaded with "names" that are part of the regular "cast" of society columnists Igor Cassini ("Cholly Knickerbocker"), Joe Dever, Julia McCarthy ("Nancy Randolph"), Aileen Mehle ("Suzy") et al., on Saturday night the youngsters were out in force. The kids were cutting up more a la Roseland than the Maisonette. The Twist, in one frenetic dance set, made some of the old guard waitering staff shudder but even they admitted that "maybe this new straight dance policy will catch on."

There is no disputing Duchin's dansapation and boxoffice prowess but the jury is still out on him, as it is on Ted Straeter at the competitive but equally conservative Savoy Hilton, whether a class hotel room can get by with a straight dance policy. The Maisonette traditionally has been partial to the "Continental" school of chanteuses and or femme singles ranging from Patachou to Dorothy Shay ("the Park Ave. hillbillie"), from Fernanda Montel and Genevieve to Julie Wilson.

Management desire to cut down on talent budgetitus or at least minimize the competition for the same names evolved the band experiment at both the St. Regis and the Savoy Hilton. This is an evolution of a past season's fad when Le Club experienced mild success with its snob membership policy and "discotheque" dancing to disks policy. It remains a question whether, in the long run, it will hold up with open-door class hotels.

This still does not minimize young Duchin's b.o. draw—and ditto Straeter—who certainly has already evidenced his potent pull. As a matter of fact young Duchin had good training all summer at a new Bridgehampton (L.I.) beach club, and the same class clientele, among others, gave showed up at his winter stay. The Cesar Balsa management of St. Regis is sanguine, having signed him until next spring, presumably with the usual two- or four-week options.

Duchin has Nancy Manning up front for the vocals and is spelled by the Ray Bari Quartet as the relief combo. There is a $3 Monday-Friday cover and it tilts to $4-a-head on Saturdays. Rudy Melzer, the maitre d', has been a busy gent at the rope not only with the preem glam turnout of the W. Averill Harrimans (Duchin's godparents), the Jules C. Steins (his mentor, although Ashley-Steiner is his agent), the Dick Hallidays (Marty Martin) et al., but with the kids thereafter. Even Pierre, headwaiter at the adjacent La Boite, says the excitement generated by Duchin's opening has spilled over in his more intime room.

Since the heyday of the big name bands (Goodman, the Lombardos, Spitalny, Lopez, Whiteman, Bernie, Shaw, Heidt, Russ Morgan, Olsen, Aaronson, the Dorseys, Glen Gray, Ted Lewis, Himber, Ray McKinley, et al.) at the old Pennsylvania (now Statler), New Yorker, Astor Roof, Biltmore Roof, Essex House, Roosevelt, Commodore, Waldorf and kindred spots, many of the former prime dansapation rooms are no more, and the policies have expired with them. The Lombardos kept the Roosevelt Grill on the map and even that tradition was severed this year when they signed with the new Loew's Inc. (Tisch) Americana. Vincent Lopez alone has remained a Times Sq. landmark at the Hotel Taft just marking his 20th anni, in itself a Ripley. For the rest, the rooms have either found it necessary to fortify Emil Coleman, Stanley Melba, Milt Shaw, Straeter (until now) and that ilk with glam names of the calibre of Hildegarde, Lisa Kirk, Diahann Carroll, Chevalier, Belafonte, Lena Horne, Eddie Fisher, Dinah Shore, the MacRaes and others.

Duchin is reversing field with a 10-man complement of tiptop musicians, with himself as the personality maestro. Time—and the competition from the Waldorf's, Plaza's and Americana's names—will tell the b.o. end-result. There are manifestations of a dansapation renaissance to support such a move. Show-wise observers of the hotel ballyhooligans are "Mr. Dubious." As is this VARIETY reviewer. Paired with a personality he is as socko a potential, as in the era when The DeMarcos and Eddy Duchin, or Morton Downey and Emil Coleman, or ring back even a bit further Harry Richman and George Olsen, and the like, were the Big City's preferred entertainment. Abel.

Basin St. East, N. Y.

Della Reese, Jacey Parker Trio, Lenny Kent; $3.50 minimum.

Dynamic is the word for Della Reese, the current headliner at Basin Street East, N.Y. The shapely Negro chirp scores consistently with an array of blues and pop tunes, belted out in strong and winning style. Also on the card are the Jacey Parker Trio and comedian Lenny Kent.

Miss Reese drives through her numbers with a deep-throated strength that wows 'em all the way. Backed by a 10-piece band that can swing out too, she bases most of her turn on audience requests, when they are part of her book. There's a touch of soul in her work too and this, coupled with her natural exuberance, makes her set a spellbinder from start to finish.

She also spotlights various individuals in her band for a nice change of pace. Billy Brooks, Carl Pruit and others shine here.

The Jacey Parker Trio breezes through a slick songbag in fine style. Paced by the piano playing of Miss Parker, who also does a bit of vocalizing, the unit develops a bright, swinging sound. Vocally, the femme leader comes on a bit too strong but is okay on "I Like the Likes of You" and some others. Her ballad rendition of "'Tis Autumn," however, is overdone. The group's wailing instrumental version of "Fascinating Rhythm" is a real swinger.

Lenny Kent, probably best known for his "resume" bit on several editions of the "Tonight" tv show, doesn't register too well. His material often lacks real comic punch and his delivery doesn't have the timing or versatility to put this basically weak stuff across.

Some pokes at audience members work out okay as does some of Kent's topical, marriage and star ribbing material. He's much more effective when he gets into the blue area. But generally he lacks solid patter. Kali.

Blinstrub's, Boston

Boston, Sept. 29.

Arthur Godfrey Gambol, Arthur Godfrey, Carol Sloane, Richard Hayes, Buffalo Bills (4), Lang Troupe (6), Godfreyettes (8); Godfrey's CBS Radio Dixieland Band (6), directed by Johnny Parker; choreographed, staged and directed by Danny Daniels; produced by Arthur Godfrey; Michael Gaylord Orch (10); $6 minimum.

Opening night response to this big $28,500 package in Blinstrub's 1,700-seater augurs well for its 10-day stand in the biggest money presentation the south Boston nitery has ever presented. The "Arthur Godfrey Gambol" is a big overwhelming production, and plays like a tv spectacular.

It's so long, that even Godfrey quipped opening night, Saturday (29), "the second show starts the minute the first show ends." First-nighters couldn't get enough of Godfrey, who works hard during the show. He's on stage most of the time in a singing, dancing, emceeing stint, which brings perspiration.

High spot is a rollicking "Bill Bailey" in which Godfrey sings and terps with the show girls while on the big stage filled with the cast. He opens the show with the Lang Troupe, four men, two femmes, who amaze with teeterboard acro stuff in which femme is sprung from chair into air in series of flips and somersaults. There's a triple flip in the finale which is breathtaking.

Carol Sloane, diminutive dark-haired songstress, delights with "Why Can't You Be Good," and a schmaltzy "Talk to Me" with Godfrey accompanying and humming along. Buffalo Bills hit another peak with their "76 Trombones" and "Lyda Rose" which win solid mitting from overflow crowd.

Godfrey takes over with some standup comedy, touching on Boston and the Kennedys. Richard Hayes, getting a big hand, swings into a fine rendition of "She's My Kind of Girl." The eight showgirls are lookers and register in fast, zingy terp numbers that rate kudos for choreographer Danny Daniels, who also staged and directed.

Godfrey rates posies too for not intruding into all the action and letting his acts work on their own to great extent. Godfrey had to beg off at end of first show with a talk bit, despite clamoring from ringside for special numbers. He signs off with "Fairytales" to tumult.

The Redhead is fairly winded by the end of the show which clocks out a bit over two hours, and wins all the way. His showmanship is on the mark and slick. With some cutting and pruning, a speedy pace, which show now lacks, could be evolved for bigger plusses. This show, in for nine days, exits Sunday (7).

New show opens Monday (8). Guy.

Royal York, Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 25.

Royal Hawaiian Revue, starring Haunani Kahalewai, with Donald Paishon, Mamo Howell, Mate Ng, Bully Judo, Tangi, Hula Dancers (4); Moxie Whitney's Royal York Orch (11), with Roberts; $2 cover.

Bandleader Moxie Whitney is back at the Royal York, and his first bill is the Royal Hawaiian Revue. Show is soldout for forthcoming fortnight in the 450-seat Imperial Room, with many turnaways.

Whitney took a year's sabbatical at Honolulu's Royal Hawaiian Hotel, where he flew eight of his sidemen. This stand interrupted his 11 seasons at the Royal York, where a 17-months' strike saw some 1,200 members of the Hotel & Club Employees local walking out. The Toronto Musicians union refused to cross picket lines.

Stately contralto Haunani Kahalewai, who is under contract to the Royal Hawaiian Hotel and who sings under the Capitol label, scores on her first appearance here. Her male vis-vis, with whom she does some duets, is Donald Paishon. He's also a featured singer at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

With her regal bearing and that deep contralto, the tall and exquisitely-costumed brunet instantly makes a hit with the patrons and segues into "My Lovely Hawaii." She continues with "There is No Place like Hawaii" and into "Isle of Golden Dreams." The customers couldn't get enough of that voice.

Paishon sings "Our Hawaiian Paradise," with shapely Mamo Howell doing the native-ritual fingerwavings and hand interpretations. He also duets a moving "Hawaii Wedding Song" with Miss Kahalewai.

Interspersed are the hip gyrations of Mate Ng, a pert and saucy Tahitian dancer who staccatos across the floor; four sexy hula dancers and the Samoaborn Tangi who does a drill on a darkened floor lit only by the two torches he manipulates. Revue is a slam-bang show in which 14 separate numbers are crowded into the 35-minute presentation.

Whitney conducts throughout, plus the dance seshes. He manifestly includes a number of Hawawiian dances for the customers in keeping with the revue motif. All were carefree and enjoyable. McStay.

Living Room, N. Y.

Tommy Leonetti, Kathy Keegan, Hal McKay, Bob Ferror Trio; $4.50 minimum.

Danny Siegel's Living Room is hitting a swinging stride with the talent headed by Tommy Leonetti, plus Kathy Keegan and Hal McKay leading up to the main event.

Leonetti is a veteran by now in this room. He has the feel and the tempo of the spot, and proceeds to hit the paydirt from the start with a strong assortment of familiar as well as new tunes. For example, one of his more interesting items is a rendition of a bossa nova, the new Brazilian tempo. This one concentrates on a single note.

Number, incidentally, was translated by Leonetti's wife from the Portuguese to Italian. It took the long way around, but it makes its point. There are also ballads and rhythm tunes that add up to a highly satisfactory semester.

Miss Keegan is a petite puncher. She packs a lot of power for a miniature miss. Her straight renditions make their mark easily and her windup is an assortment of impressions of femme singers including Lena Horne, Peggy Lee and Judy Garland. There are times during her turn when she seems to remind of these singers. Although this attribute gives her a lot of color, her stylings make it on their own.

Hal McKay opens the show sans fanfare and he handicaps himself considerably. It takes him a long time to get started, but he finally makes it with his Irish stories which seem more natural to him. Some of his early material has been around. However, his Hibernian segment gives him a strength not visible in the early part of his act.

The Bob Ferro Trio showbacks effectively. Jose.

Fairmont Hotel, S.F.

San Francisco, Sept. 29.

Phyllis Diller, Ernie Heckscher Orch (11); $2.50 cover.

Phyllis Diller has come a long way since her break-in days at the Purple Onion in this town and not the least measure of her success is the fact that she is now on the top of Nob Hill, a quarter of a mile straight up from the Purple Onion Cellar.

She is packing the joint and wowing the audience every show with her rapid fire, stand-up, one-liner patter. Gal comics are a rarity anyway and to find one like Miss Diller who can and does grab a house's attention and hold it for a straight 55 minutes out there all by herself is something to see.

She sets up a comic image with her coal scuttle hats, long cigarette holder and fancy gloves and she milks it for all it's worth. Her humor is sharp comment on domestic bliss and the casual social situations between man and wife in the swimming pool, two-car garage suburban set.

It's a solid show and especially good for the current convention crop inundating Frisco this fall.

Ernie Heckscher's orchestra plays for dancing. His only other chore is a straight intro for Miss Diller and a straight closing "thank you" at the end. The rest of the time she's on her own and that's good enough for socko audience response with the laffs coming like waves. This should be one of the room's most successful bookings this year.

The Mills Bros. open Oct. 18. Rafe.

Flamingo, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, Sept. 28.

Dick Shawn, Brenda Lee, Half Bros. (2), Casuals (6), Nat Brandwynne Orch (14); presented by Morris Lansburgh; Miss Lee's Act produced by Dick Barstow; lighting, Hugo Granata; $4 minimum.

Brenda Lee is splitting a month with Ella Fitzgerald here, Miss Lee doing the first two frames. Both chirps co-star with Dick Shawn, in for the full four weeks.

Miss Lee is a tiny, animated songstress with a highly commercial, earthy tonal quality, and she's hip to the showmanship despite her tender years. However, because most of her fans are also teenagers, her value to a casino is questionable.

Shawn has developed into one of the strongest attractions to play Vegas—his ability to lure players has been proven, so he's a good balance for Miss Lee. He has a new kind of entrance this time—opens while singing "Where Or When" from the side of the room, then wanders into the audience, getting involved in a "fight" with a planted jealous husband, all of which looks quite authentic.

Shawn revives his trademark "Massa Richard" bit, the "Clan" number, and his "Cockamamie" dance routine, plus other classic sketches which are guaranteed yock-pullers.

Miss Lee sings 15 songs, including her "three favorites," "Break It To Me Gently," "I'm Sorry," and "All The Way." She works hard on most of the songs, winding with a rousing "Bill Bailey." Male instrumentalists called The Casuals (6) do fine job of backing.

The Half Bros. (2) are held over for this bill, and expand the turn from previous show, demonstrating again why the act is firstrate in juggling skill and comedy. The brothers, Dante & Roberto Half, are handsome, smooth showmen.

Nat Brandwynne's orch (14) backs the bash, the lighting is by Hugo Granata, and Miss Lee's act was produced, written, and directed by Dick Barstow. Duke.

Jazz Workshop, S.F.

San Francisco, Sept. 28.

Stan Getz Quartet; no cover, no admission, two-drink minimum.

In what amounts to a tour de force, tenor saxophonist Stan Getz triumphs over the bad acoustics in this Broadway boiler room and is packing the customers in nightly.

Getz, whose cool tenor style has won him polls around the world, has added guitarist Jimmy Raney, who has a solid jazz rep on his own. The pair devote their time to brilliant exchanges between tenor and guitar and a series of interesting variations on ballad themes.

The new element in the Getz group is the bossa nova. This Brazilian rhythm was introed to the U.S. audience via the film, "Black Orpheum," and Getz's record on the Verve label of "Desifinado." Currently riding the strength of that click single and click LP, Getz is reaching an audience far beyond jazz and should be a solid bet for any club not strictly a hipster handout.

Al Harewood, drums, and Tommy Williams, bass, make a first class rhythm section. Rafe.

Freddie's, Mpls.

Minneapolis, Sept. 27.

Jerry Lester, Frank Oliveri Trio; $1-$1.50 cover.

It takes a good comic to warm up self-conscious customers in a near empty room. Jerry Lester, in his first outing here in 14 years, transformed his audience dearth to mirth at show caught. Counting the house was easy: 150. Slim turnout didn't seem to faze Lester in the slightest.

Yet comedian ad libbed throughout. To make things even more difficult for him, there were a couple loud, tipsy hecklers in the room. Despite the disappointing crowd and the pair of pests, Lester stayed on for nearly an hour, won plenty of laffs and, at the end, had everybody with him including the hecklers.

Frank Oliveri trio, regular house combo, turns in a neat trick with several jazz offerings preceding Lester. Its fine efforts are wasted, too, on thin audience.

Lester remains through Oct. 6, after which June Christy comes in for fortnight stand. Rees.

Sahara Inn, Chi

Chicago, Sept. 26.

Patti Page, Lou Nelson, Frank York Orch; $3.50 cover.

Patti Page emerged looking like a champ in a show in the Club Gigi that took place at the same time as the heavyweight championship of the world on the other side of town. She packed the house despite the competition, and the opinion seemed to be unanimous that the show at the Sahara Inn was a better buy than the brief encounter at Comiskey Park.

Miss Page, who broke into prominence on the Don McNeill Breakfast Club radio show in Chicago, hasn't appeared in the Windy City for six years. Her last cafe engagement here was at the late Chez Paree in 1956. It was also in Chi that she cut her first "self-duet" record—the highly successful "Confess" on the Mercury label. (Miss Page is switching to Columbia Records at the end of the year after 15 years with Mercury.)

Singer is a performer with great charm and a "down home" quality that scores equally well with the citybillies and the country folk. There's a little bit for everybody in her hourlong turn, from her buoyant "Strike Up The Band" opener to her disclick "Tennessee Waltz" closer. In addition to her smoothly handled ballads, she clicks with exceptionally clever arrangements of "Hawaiian Wedding Song" and "Bill Bailey."

Showopener Lou Nelson is a poised and knowledgeable low-key gagster with a good supply of sharp comments on politics, astronauts, tv commercials, doctors and hospitals. He also does a clever routine on how a French singer sexes up a harmless song with suggestive gestures, and closes with a nostalgic song and soft-shoe dance.

Frank York's augmented house orch backs the show impeccably with the aid of Cole and Miss Page's drummer Hal Blaine.

Tony Martin opens Oct. 10 for two weeks. Mor.

Mister Kelly's, Chi

Chicago, Sept. 24.

Louis Nye, Libi Staiger, John Frigo Trio; $2.50 cover.

Louis Nye has subtly changed the approach to some of his comedy since he was at Mister Kelly's a year ago. His turn is as artfully constructed as before, and he uses his facile face with the same owlish virtuoso ability. But he has added an extra dimension of "inside" humor, and he does it well.

The mainstays of his turn are still there—the surefire army indoctrination lecture routine, the wild takeoff on a Nazi officer pinning medals on heroes, and his hilarious version of "Rashomon"—and they are topnotch routines that bear repeating. He also has a nifty new opener in a panto of a conductor leading an orch in one of those tropical numbers complete with bird calls.

Some of his newer material has intriguing concepts in it that are not always fully realized. His essay on the proper etiquette for two people in a shower strikes occasional comedic chords, but is frequently dependent on the built-in giggles in such a situation. His asides and throwaways are increasingly hip, and often have people yocking for different reasons.

Curtain raiser is Libi Staiger, an experienced legituner thrush making her cafe debut. She is further described under New Acts. Next up at Mister Kelly's is Prof. Irwin Corey and Sandu Scott Oct. 15 for three weeks. Mor.

Liborio, N. Y.

Mancheno, Carmelilla, Luisita Sevilla, Miguel Galvez, Alejandro Manzano, Gabriel Ruiz, German Le Batard Orch; no cover, no minimum.

Perez Blanco's refurbished and enlarged spot is becoming one of the more renowned of New York's Spanish cafes. This Cuban expatriate seemingly has attracted a lot of his former Habanero compatriates and with them a tide of aficonados who relish an authentic type of Latin entertainment.

The current bill is one of the Liborio's best. The backbone of this display is an alignment of three talented Castilian heel clickers who provide some picturesque moments. The trio is headed by Mancheno, who has appeared previously on the local scene. He works with Carmelilla and Luisita Sevilla, two lithe heel-clickers with spirit and understanding of Spanish dancing.

Trio's work, of course, is authentic and colorful. They run through the more popular of the Iberian terps in a vigorous vein. There are changes of pace and costume, all of which add up to an ole reception. Accompaning the threesome are guitarists Aljandro Manzano and Gabriel Ruiz, with Miguel Galvez doing the flamenco vocals.

There are also two singers on the bill. Opener Fernando Leiva, accomped by bandaneon player, does a brief turn in good voice. Victor Santini, who emcees throughout the show, hits an excellent stride in a series of Latin pops, well delivered, but which seem to be a concession to the non-Latins. German Le Batard Orch showbacks and provides dance incentive. Jose.

Flame Room, Mpls.

Minneapolis, Sept. 25.

Hildegarde, Alphonse Semole, Stewart Scott Orch (7); $2-$2.50 cover.

Back for her annual Minneapolis visit, Hildegarde is enlivening the Hotel Radisson's plush supper club which reopened a fortnight ago after being shuttered 10 months. Preem show, however, wasn't up to the chantoosie's previous efforts.

She was disturbed by opening night bugs including fouled up lighting and misplaced props. She also was visibly ruffled by several patrons' chattering during her numbers. But a robust crowd overlooked these flaws and cheered every offering lustily.

Hildegarde's definitely a show biz phenom. Besides being remarkably gifted and having a great flair for showmanship, she seems to be defying laws of nature. She looks younger and more vibrant than she did in her last appearance here 15 months ago. Complaining of a touch of laryngitis, the songstress wasn't up to par on her warbling at her opener, but she more than atoned for this with her nifty keyboard work on the 88.

Her playing of an Isidore Achron concerto, unusually heavy stuff for a nitery, was a solid show-stopper rating prolonged mitting and bravos. She scores well, too, with "Twelfth Street Rag" and a vocal medley from "Carnival."

Alphonse Semole, Hildegarde's pianist-director this trip, carries out his supporting role nicely. Stewart Scott band should be oke, too, in backing the headliner after first night rough edges are ironed out.

Hildegarde remains through Oct. 3. Kitty Kallen follows. Rees.

New Fack's, S.F.

San Francisco, Sept. 28.

Jerry Vale, Mel Young, Vernon Alley orch (7); $2 admission weekdays, $3 weekends; $2.50 minimum.

This is singer Jerry Vale's first club date in Frisco and he is building a steady cadre of fans who are going to pack the joint next time he comes back. Meantime, he's getting high power word of mouth and is building.

Vale, who has a light and pleasing pop voice, is especially good in the old ballad, sentimental song and Italian melody classification. For instance, when he sings "Mama Femina" or "Sorrento" the San Francisco Italo-Americans, especially the women, are totally gassed. He has an appealing manner with the girls and club op George Andros says that, despite the light b.o. opening two nights, he expects him to end up a winner.

The show is a little long what with Vale's penchant for encores and the hour opening set by comic Mel Young. Latter does some hilarious pantomimes to records. His classic "Hey There" takeoff on Rosemary Clooney and his "Tired" caricature of Pearl Bailey are always good. He's added a socko "Music Man" number which really should be his closer. It's a strong turn with a lot of double time articulation.

The Vernon Alley orchestra which accompanies Vale and doubles as house dance band, is a first-rate collection of local men who are not only good dance musicians but also good jazz soloists. Arrangements by Frank Teel and Jerry Cournover are excellent.

Duke Ellington opens Oct. 11. Rofe.

Chateau Madrid, N. Y.

Roberto Iglesias "Ballet Espanol" (11) with Rosario & Esperanza Galan, Paco Ortiz, Leo Heredia; Pupi Campo & Carbia Orchs; $5, $6 minimums.

Roberto Iglesias, who has now entered the ranks of the regulars at Angel Lopez' Chateau Madrid, has brought with him a talented company of flamencoists. Iglesias apparently feels that the fire of Castile still burns brightly over Manhattan's Latin loop, and his company gives its all in keeping the torch high.

Iglesias and his dancers provide fierce, torrid and picturesque dance renditions which are finely choreographed in concert style and delivered with an air of dramatic intensity. The group is young and lively, and able to show a sense of lightness. More of the latter would give the company better balance.

The troupe has two femme soloists, Rosario and Esperanza Galan, who are twins, but seem to be on different sides of the choreographic fence. Rosario, partner and wife of Iglesias, is scorching and fiery, while Esperanza looks at the lighter side. Indeed, the latter in the midst of a solo number swings into the Israeli "Hava N'gila."

The cantator is Paco Ortiz and Leo Heredia is the guitarist. Both are skilled and rise to meet the needs of the occasion.

The dancing covers a wide variety from a 16th century ballet design to the Jota de la Dolores, later depicting a country festival honoring the Virgin. The Jota has color, dynamism and a soupcon of lightness. The company, of course, takes off on individual solos in the flamenco vein and does itself proud in this direction.

Iglesias, now a staple in the field, meets the needs of a variety of cafes and concerts. The essential ingredient, a good show, is his chief attribute. Jose.

Blackstone, Chi

Chicago, Sept. 26.

Robert Clary, Franz Benteler Orch; $2 cover weekends, $1.50 weeknights.

Blackstone manager Doug Boone has kicked off the entertainment season in the posh Bonaparte Room in high style with the manic Gallic song-and-dance man Robert Clary. The pint-sized troubadour is the first male performer to appear in this Napoleonic nest, and from the look of the large and enthusiastic opening night crowd his stay will be eminently successful.

Clary packs a lot of show into his 35-minute turn. His material is well chosen and arranged for his effervescent style, and he handles a wide range of moods with authority and eclat.

His enthsiastic and mobile-faced approach is particularly effective in such bubbling numbers as "Cock-Eyed Optimist" and "Too Good For The Average Man." He also does a top dramatization job in singing both parts of the "Sue Me" duet from "Guys and Dolls" and also in the "Officer Krupke" number from "West Side Story."

He's on target with his ballads, setting a nostalgic mood for "When The World Was Young," dishing out a tender version of "Maria" and bowing out to his "I'm In Love With Miss Logan" number from "New Faces." It's a dynamic, high voltage turn, and keeps the auditers engrossed all the way.

Franz Benteler's firstrate house unit plays topdrawer Continental terp music between shows and backs Clary with care.

Betty Johnson takes over Oct. 22 for three weeks. Mor.

Eddys', K.C.

Kansas City, Sept. 28.

Joannie Sommers, Dick Haviland, The Continentals (6); $1.50-$2 cover.

Joannie Sommers and Dick Haviland are both newcomers here, and they combine for a solid 60-minute show, with Miss Sommers taking 35 minutes of the time. She is another of the heavier names which Eddys' is going in for during the fall and winter season. Evidently the policy is working as the house was nicely filled for the opener.

Haviland is heralded as a Miami comic, as he rings up a fair share of laughs. Certainly his approach is professorial, as at opening when he tosses the king's English on a yarn about the doctor and the baby and the poor dry mother. His lesson on French has blue tinges, albeit clever enough, but he has a genuinely good comic song in "I Always Say Hello To a Flower." Closing pantomime on a medic show is a bit gory for the dinner hour, but the customers laughed this up, too.

Riding the crest of a current top 10 list, as well as the Pepsi commercials, Miss Sommers has a ready audience and sings much to their liking. Some 10 vocals enable her to range widely, from opening "I Feel a Song Coming On" to "I Love Being Here With You" and "Old Devil Moon."

Show holds through Oct. 11. Quin.

Ye Little Club, L.A.

Karen Dolin, Eduardo Sasson; two-drink minimum.

Los Angeles, Sept. 26.

Karen Dolin, after number of "casuals" around town during past couple of years, last week joined holdover Eduardo Sasson at Marshall Edson's Ye Little Club. She delivers a pleasant, if not startling, group of standards.

Singer is a looker, dresses well, has nice performance style and mikes well. Vocally, she is a touch above average but loses much impact in maintaining level of delivery that hasn't sufficient variation. Arrangements are good, but her style needs more freedom and flair. Insecurity in voice shows at times, chiefly because she fails to keep vowels bright and resonant on lengthy sustained areas.

Much of Miss Dolin's material is special, including a nice intro for "Do It Again" and closing "Love Being Here With You" that has good lyrics personalized to club and its personnel. Torchy blues on "Stuck On You" is good, along with well balladed "Little Boy Blue." Club regulars Joe Felix, piano, and Jack Smalley, bass, back singer.

Sasson remains among top flamenco guitarists working locally, but act suffers because of lack of punch. Fingering of "Malaguena" is handsome.

Doodles Weaver and Gloria Grey follow Oct. 9. Dale.

Village Gate, N. Y.

Charlie Byrd Trio, Miriam Makeba, Inman & Ira; $2.50-$3 admission.

Jazz guitarist Charlie Byrd, who is more-or-less a Washington, D.C. fixture, couldn't have picked a better time to take a break from the home base, what with the Byrd-Stan Getz Bossa Nova album high on the charts. He joins Miriam Makeba and folk singers Inman & Ira (previously reviewed), but will wind his Village Gate stand as Getz comes into the Greenwich Village cellar.

Long a fave of the guitar buffery, Byrd's articulate and spectacular handling of the instrument should spellbind Gate audiences. Eschewing the amplified guitar favored by most jazz men (and the r&r menagerie), Byrd has a thoroughly distinctive style that combines great skill in not only jazz but also flamenco and classical techniques.

His book presents highly imaginative tours of standards like "Whoopee" and specials like "House of Chan" and "Taboo." Backing for subtle and powerful rhythmic effects are Teter Betts on bass and Bill Reichenbach, drums. Billed with Afro singer Miss Makeba, Byrd makes for a solid night of a sort of exotic music that is becoming less foreign all the time. Bill.

Club 76, Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 12.

Lil Hardin Armstrong; 76c cover.

First woman jazz pianist and singer in five-year history of the Club 76, sepia Lil Hardin Armstrong (she's former wife of Louis Armstrong) is currently jamming the customers into this petite room. She's on five times nightly, ranging from 45 to 60 mins. Attractive pianist-singer, in a white-sequined gown (when caught), does a bouncy swing-and-ragtime piano, and for song interpretations includes "Just for a Time," "Brown Gal" and "Standby," her own compositions, which she has disked.

Also delivered were a languid "Up the Lazy River," a novelty treatment of "Scotch Play," a good-humored "Lullaby of Broadway" and her smash "Georgia" and "Basin Street Blues."

McStay.

Hotel Roosevelt, N.O.

New Orleans, Sept. 28.

Johnny Desmond, Beatrice Kraft, Leon Kelner Orch (11); $2.50 weeknight minimum; $4 Sats.

Johnny Desmond wows the check-grabbers in Seymour Weiss' plush Blue Room with a smooth show that entertains all the way. The singer proves himself a capable pro on the nitery circuit, parlaying an excellent set of pipes with a showmanship flair that goes over big. He also has a likable stage demeanor that scores.

Desmond infuses his songalog with freshness and vitality. His patter is engaging and never gets in the way of his musicalizing. While his forte is the rhythm tune, he's at home with sentimental ballads, too. His "Come Back to Sorrento" and "September Song" make a deep indent on table-holders.

Desmond, who was on for 40 minutes, scored solidly.

Teeing off the show is Beatrice Kraft, who socks over a number of intricate and exciting dances of the Far East. Wrapped in gold lame cloth and veils, she does an expert job on the lifted eyebrow, weaving neck and barefoot-with-bells routines.

Maestro Leon Kelner's crew backs show expertly and plays for customer terping. Crew puts strong stress on melody, backed by solid rhythm, and makes a hit with dancers. Kelner handles emcee chores okay.

Show runs until Oct. 10. Linz.

Stardust, Chatsworth

Chatsworth, Cal., Sept. 30.

Kitty Kover, Mervin (Chubby) Strover, Fred Haynes, Wes Mellermol combo; no cover, no minimum.

Out in the northwest end of the San Fernando Valley (in Chatsworth) another of those burgeoning show biz combos—plush bowling emporium and supper room—teed off last week with Kitty Kover playing to a packed (250 capacity) house. Miss Kover, no stranger to local boites, is a trim golden blond who comes on like a tornado, with her own intro lyrics to "Hey, Look Me Over," and pours out songs and chatter for a highly entertaining, energetic hour.

Her voice is medium register and sometimes too strong with mike assistance, but volume came in handy to override the loud-talking opener audience. They seemed not to be paying too much attention, but after each number did enthusiastic mittwork. Interestingly, however, when the mike went dead on one occasion the chatter stopped abruptly. Maybe she should throw away the mike.

Miss Kover is in for a month, Tuesdays through Saturdays. Pry.

Slate Bros., L.A.

Los Angeles, Sept. 28.

Vic Dana, Betty Regan, Ronnie Schell; $1.50 cover, plus two-drink minimum.

Vic Dana returned Thursday night (27) to Slate Bros., where six months ago he made his nitery debut. This time he's the headliner and shows he has everything it takes to keep it that way in top spots anywhere. Youngster has looks, showmanship and talent.

Dana is that rare performer, a singer who has concentrated on sound training and solid technique. At this point, he continues to work with intensity. Material ranges from serious ballads to rhythm, beat and belt. Latter is his best, amply displayed in "Sing You Sinners" and "Can't Believe You're in Love With Me." "Build a Mountain" and "What Kind of Fool Am I?" from "Stop the World" are tops. Arrangements, clipped phrasing and personalized styling are fine.

London comedienne Betty Regan and comic Ronnie Schell support. Miss Regan looks good, performs smoothly but gets too overtly risque in act that looks like she is trying too hard. She never quite captures the audience. Performer would be more suitable in a smart supper club, using more subtle material.

Schell, billing himself "America's slowest rising comedian," is bright youngster whose best bit is a central casting skit with sexy angles. Record impresh of Mario Lanza's "Be My Love" goes well, but comic needs to be stronger.

Herbie Dell Trio's backing is fine.

Show is in two weeks. Dale.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF OCTOBER 3

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL — Richard Hayman, Nicolyn Emanuel, Eugene Slavin, Thatcher Clarke, Lila Gage, Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Symphony Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli)—Penny Nicholls, Bob Andrews, D'Angolys, Two Pirates, Balcombes, Eddie Mendoza, Eric Whitley, Jeff Hudson, Harry Currie, Keith Leggetth, Maureen Wilson, Wendy Faulkener, Jackie Griffiths.

SYDNEY (Tivoli)—June Bronhill, Peter Graves, Rosina Raisbeck, Eric Reiman, Lola Brooks, Lorna Forbes, Barry Balmer, Halinka de Tarczynska, Gloria Mcdonall, Beryl Cheers, Tony Jenkins, Julie Day.

BRITAIN

BLACKPOOL (Tower Circus)—Charlie Cairoli & Co., Bronleys, Hugh Forgie & Co., Circus Williams' Lions, 2 Carmenas, Circus Knie's Horses, Zebras & Ponies, Diors Sisters, Four Soranis, 2 Dominicis, Willem Lenz & Chimpanzees, Tibor Alexander's Canine Revue, Desmond & Marks, Circus Knie's Elephants, Dagenham Girl Pipers, Our Sammy, Little Jimmy & Circusettes.

WINTER GARDENS PAVILION—Arthur Haynes, Nicholas Parsons, Morris & Savage, Des Lane, Trio Reyros, Leslie Noyes, Johnny Hart, John Tiller Girls, Danny Williams.

OPERA HOUSE—Ken Dodd, Kaye Sisters, Eddie Calvert & C-Men, Raindrops, John, Three Houes, Barbara Law, Derek Tavernes Singers, Malcolm Goddard Dancers, Jimmy Currie's Silver Cascade.

LIVERPOOL (Empire) — Frank Ifield, Dallas Boys, Anita Harris, Harry Bailey, J. & P. Barbour, Franklin & Doves, Tommy Wallis & Beryl, Alan Field.

LONDON (Palladium)—Bruce Forsyth, Morecambe & Wise, Johnson & Carr, Eve Boswell, Angela & Fred Roby, Amin Bros., Ugo Garrido, Janet Mahoney, Angela Bricewell, Johnny Shack, Jimmy Lee.

MANCHETER (Palace) — Bill Maynard, Derek Dene, Donna Douglas, Dick Francis, Show Maidens, Henri Vadden & Partner, Seatarers.

NEWCASTLE (Empire)—Russ Conway, M. & B. Winters, Bryan Johnson, Peter Crawford Trio, Terry Kaye, Sandra Peters, Esme Browne Dancers.

VICTORIA (Palace) George Mitchell Minstrels, Tony Mercer, Dai Francis, John Boulter, Leslie Crowther, Margo Henderson, George Chisholm & Jazzers, Schaller Bros & TV Toppers, Jackpots, Mitchell Maids.

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

AFRICAN ROOM—Kurli Renito, McMurray & Jeff, Johnny Barracuda.

BASIN ST. EAST—Della Reese, Lenny Kent.

BLACKJACK — T. C. Jones, Johnny Foster Orc., Ann Hathaway.

BLUE ANGEL—Nipsey Russel, Alberts, Jo Mapes.

BON SOIR — Jack Douglas & Reiko, Felicia Sanders.

CAMELOT — Murray Franklin Show, Johnny Bachemin, Dick Havilland, Roy Sedley.

CHARDAS — Lily France, Lia Della, Eleemin Horvath Orc.

CHATEAU MADRID—Roberto Iglesias & Co., Pupi Campo Orc., Carbia Orc.

COPACABANA — Joe E. Lewis, Tina Robin, Joseph Mele Orc., Frank Marti Orc.

CRYSTAL ROOM — Milt Trenier.

EMBERS — Dorothy Donegan Trio.

HAWAIIAN ROOM — Angela Martin, Dems Regan, Kevin Bennet, Qai & Hulabelles.

HOTEL ASTOR — Lane Orc.

HOTEL NEW YORKER — Verna Lee, Milt Saunders Orc.

HOTEL PIERRE — Joseph Sudy Orc., Robert Simpson, Leigh Green, Phil Wayne Trio, Kelly Preston.

HOTEL PLAZA — Eutyna Ranieri, Emil Coleman Orc., Serenitals.

HOTEL ST. REGIS — Peter Duchin, Nancy Manning.

HOTEL ROOSEVELT—Jan Garber Orc.

HOTEL SAVOY HILTON—Ted Straeter Orc., Ray Hartley.

HOTEL WALDORF-ASTORIA — Gordon & Sheila MacRae, Milt Shaw Orc.

INTERNATIONAL — Linda Bishop, Betty Kean & Lew Parker, De Marlos, Mike Durso Orc.

LATIN QUARTER — Corbett Monica, Goofers, Julie Gibson, Wallenda Ballet, Jeannine Pivoteau, Tonelys, Jo Lombardi Orc., Irving Fields Orc.

LIVING ROOM — Tommy Leonetti, Kathy Keegan, Hal McKay, Bob Ferro Orc.

NO. 1 FIFTH AVENUE — Hankinson & De Malo, Cedrone & Mitchell, Mary Ellen.

ROUNDTABLE — Steve Alaimo, Davy Jones, Orchid.

SAHBRA — Four Avatons, Esther Tobbi, Lee Fuld Badoc & Sharobi, Louis Bannett Orc.

SQUARE EAST — "Second City," Alan Arkin, Howard Alk, Andrew Duncan, Eugene Troobnick.

STROLLERS — Talbots.

TRUDE HELLER'S — Ray Milan & Quarternotes.

UPSTAIRS & DOWNSTAIRS — Sudie Bond, Myrt DeGroot, Cy Young, Hal Buckley, Arthur Siegel.

VIENNESE LANTERN—Fernanda Montel, Ernest Schoen Orc.

VILLAGE BARN — Joseph Pope, Perl & Ray, Tex Fletcher, Becker Bros., Lou Harold Orc., Shaw Orc.

VILLAGE GATE — Miriam Makeba, Charlie Byrd, Simon & Fra.

VILLAGE VANGUARD — Miles Davis 5, Blossom Dearie 2.

CHICAGO

BLUE ANGEL — "Calypso Latina," Jamaica Slam, Lord Bando, Jimmy Lara, Miriam Della, Angela Renee, Gloria Drew, Selma Simone, Tino Perez Orc.

CONRAD HILTON — "Girls, Girls, Girls," Dr. Ray, Bobby Clark, Manuel Del Toro, Gabriele Weber, Dennis & Darlene, Boulevar-Dons Orc., Boulevar-Dons (3), Jimmy Palmer Orc.

DEL PRADO HOTEL — "Hits of Broadway," Sue Cooke, Ann Hilton, Blanche Schulz, Kenny Adams, Robert Scherkenbach, Charles Abbate, Dale Vann, Bobby Wolf.

DRAKE HOTEL — Carmel Quinn, Jimmy Blade Orc.

EDGEWATER BEACH — "Strawhat Revue," Lucia Navarro, Henry Noel, Cherri Ann Schear, Andrey Deckman, Philip Dana.

GATE OF HORN — Will Holt, Travelers Three, Green & Willard.

LE BISTRO — Mike Clifford, Willie Restum Trio.

LONDON HOUSE—Oscar Peterson Trio, Larry Novak Trio, Jose Bethancourt Trio.

MISTER KELLY'S — Louie Nye, Libi Staiger, John Frigo Trio, Marty Rubenstein Trio.

PALMER HOUSE — Kim Sisters, Ben Arden Orc.

PLAYBOY — Glenn Haywood, Bobby Sargent, Sir Richard Drake, Danny Appolinar Trio, Doris Lee, Casey Anderson, Kiki Paige, Frank Rand, Harold Harris Trio, Bob Davis Trio, Jim Atlas Trio, Joe Iaco Trio.

PEPE'S—Gus Van & Roaring 20's Revue.

SECOND CITY — The Establishment, John Bird, Eleanor Bron, John Fortune, Jeremy Geidt, Carole Simpson.

SAHARA INN—Patti Page, Lou Nelson, Frank York Orc. Lounge: Joy & the Boys, Ronnie Brown Trio, Frank Fiore Combo.

SHERATON-BLACKSTONE — Robert Clary, Franz Benteler Orc.

SHERMAN HOUSE — Henny Youngman, David Romaine Orc.

SUTHERLAND LOUNGE — Nancy Wilson, Johnny Young Trio, Flip Wilson.

LOS ANGELES

BEN BLUE'S—Monkeys Uncles.

CIRO'S—Donn Arden Revue.

COCOANUT GROVE — Xavier Cugat, Abbe Lane, Augie & Margo, Freddy Martin Orc.

CRESCENDO—Frances Faye.

DINO'S — Gigo Galon, Jack Elton, Steve LaFever.

INTERLUDE—Troy Walker & Hustlers.

SLATE BROS.—Vic Dana, Betty Regan, Herb Dell Trio.

STATLER HOTEL—"Chip Off the Old Block" (2d Edition) Revue, Skinnay Ennis Orc.

YE LITTLE CLUB—Karen Dolin, Joe Felix Group Four.

LAS VEGAS

CALIFORNIA CLUB—Johnny Paul.

DESERT INN—McGuire Sisters, Jack Durant, Donn Arden Dancers, Carlton Hayes Rev. Lounge: Dave Apollon, Les Femmes, Michael Kent.

DUNES—Geo. Burns, Carol Channing, Four Preps, Bill Reddie Orc. Lounge: "Vive Les Girls."

EL CORTEZ—Kay Martin and Bodyguards.

FLAMINGO—Dick Shawn, Brenda Lee, Nat Brandwynne Orc. Lounge: Billy Eckstine, Harry James, Bob Sims.

FREMONT—Newton Bros., Joe Pasko, Swingin' Lads, Ricky & Cents.

GOLDEN NUGGET—Judy Lynn, Diplomats, Tony Lovello, The Features.

HACIENDA — Four Tunes, Johnny Olean, Keynotes, Cathy Ryan, Lynne Davis, Grover Shore Trio.

MINT—Pat Moreno's "Artists & Models of '62," Bill Bird, Gil Lamb.

NEVADA—Jay Orlando, King Henry 4.

NEW FRONTIER — "Life Begins at Minsky's," Tommy Moe Raft, Carrie Finnell, Stunning Smith, Baby Bubbles, Maureen Diaz, Frank Sorrello, Murray Briscoe, Jack Mann, Dick Rice Orc. Lounge: Bob Crosby Ink Spots.

RIVIERA—Harry Belafonte, Dave Astor. Lounge: Kay Stevens, Big Tiny Little, Pat Yankee.

SAHARA—Judy Garland, Ray Bolger. Lounge: Louis Prima, Gia Maione, Sam Butera, Freddie Bel, Arthur Ellen.

SANDS—Nat King Cole, Gary Morton, Hale Nafal, Copa Girls, Antonio Morell Orc. Lounge: Dave Burton, Danny Costello, Morry King, Ernie Tewart.

SHOWBOAT — Skeets Minton, Muggsy Spanier, Ken Linley, Rusty Isabel.

SILVER SLIPPER — Hank Henry, Sparky Kaye, Bobby Clark, Cindy Ember, Danny Jacobs, Red Marshall, Dolores Frazzini, Marge Elizarde, Slipperettes, Geo. Redman Orc. Lounge: Chas, Tea garden Orc., Jack Prince, Johnny LaMont.

STARDUST — "Lido de Paris," Eddie O'Neal Orc. Lounge: Kim Sisters, Tunetoppers, Bourbon St. Six, Nalani Kele, Apollos.

THUNDERBIRD—"Flower Drum Song," Jack Soo, Arlene Fontana, Garwood Van Orc. Lounge: Dinah Washington, Dukes of Dixieland, Arthur Lyman.

Ray Sinatra Orc. Lounge: Shecky Greene.

TROPICANA—"Folies Bergere of '62," Billy Maxted Jazz Band, Al De Paulis 4.

RENO-TAHOE

CRYSTAL Bay (Tahoe) — Novelites, Ronnie Gomes Trio.

HAROLDS — Rusty Draper, Andre Tahon Co., Johnny Mann Singers, Delta Queens, Don Conn Orch.

HARRAH'S (Reno)—Deedy & Bill, Nick Lucas, Judy Lynn, Tony Lavello, Top-Notchers, Red Coty.

HARRAH'S (Tahoe)—Jimmy Durante, Helen Traubel, Dorben Singers & Dancers, Leighton Noble Orc. Lounge: Louis Prima with Sam Butera & Witnesses, Tunesmen, Twin Tunes, Tunetimers, Joe King's Zaniacs, Sawyer Sisters, Lancers.

HOLIDAY — Royal Hawaiian Revue, Lloyd Lindroth Quartet, Mariachi Los Comperos, Dianne Left and Right Hand Men.

MAPES—Gaylords, King's IV, Nalani Kele Polynesian Revue, Joe Karnes.

NEVADA LODGE (Tahoe) — Bob Hall-Cindy Layne Quartet, Gwen Harmon and Players, Larry Riera and Royals.

NEW CHINA CLUB—Eagle Eye Shields, Tony St. Thomas.

NORTH SHORE (Tahoe) — Bobby Page and Musical Pages.

RIVERSIDE — Hank Penny, Frankie Fanelli, Jackie Jocko, Buddy LaPata.

SPARKS NUGGET—Billy Daniels, Paul Gilbert, Step Brothers, Little Bertha, Moro-Landis Singers and Dancers, Foster Edwards Orc. Lounge: Billy Maxted, Maaka Nua Revue, Richie Bros.

WAGON WHEEL (Tahoe)—Theatre Bar: Novelites, Maaka Nua's Hawaiian Revue, Newton Bros., Sawyer Sisters, Marily Esquires, Bon Rose. Pavilion: Juan Esquivel Orc., Music Violins of Mexico, Tomma Jean.

MIAMI-MIAMI BEACH

AMERICANA — Jack Young, George Arnold's "Artists and Models On Ice," Nicky Powers, Joan Dave, Phil Richards, Johnny Hamilton, Wilton Clary, Mal Malkin Orc., George DeWitt, Angelito, Wells & Four Fays.

CARILLON — Walters "Scandeles de Paree," Mel Torme, Tony & Eddie, Ricky Dunn, Ralph Young, George Dorris Roger Sloan Ballet, Jacques Donnet Orc., Line (16).

CASTAWAYS — Preacher Rollo 5, Jerry Geraldi & Lesley, Ralph Font Orc., Candi Cortez, Jimmy Roma, Bill Bernardi.

DEAUVILLE — Barry Ashton's "Vive Les Girls," Arnauts, Paris & Claire, Martha King, Verona Bros., Line, Les Rhode Orc., Mel Greene.

DIPLOMAT — Gene McDaniels, Mandy Campo Orc., Can Smith Orc.

EDEN ROC — Devlin & Premiers, Luis Varona Orc., Monroe Kasse Orc., Art Freeman Orc., Toni Steele Twisters.

FONTAINEBLEAU—Jack Young's International Follies, Marsh & Adams, The Rivieras (Two), Napoleon Reed, Line (16).

Crowther's Influence

Continued from page 2

itself to the importing chaps, would rate as their prime blurb showcase, same status it enjoys back home.

Granting the special nature of such an issue, it still seems a relevant portent that Monday's premiere Times edition carried a supermarket of screen attractions, and with substantial accent on art product. As for instance, Joe E. Levine's two full pages, one each for "Long Day's Journey Into Night" and "Divorce — Italian Style," the latter prominent with Timesman Bosley Crowther's critical cheer.

So it goes in other keys, too—the heavy reliance on a Crowther toot to help cue the biz.

Also giving their attention to the Times' Coast debut are the ad officials at the major companies. To be soon determined for them is whether the paper can exert a leadership comparable to that in its own bailiwick, where, it's said, the power of the Times to stimulate advance sales for roadshow attractions surpasses any of the six other Gotham dailies, on occasion even outdistancing the combined field.

'Mr. Prez'

Continued from page 1

negatively, the local society pages erupted with excitement over the audience down front. In their most elegant finery sat the tops in Washington politics and society, plus a few hundred social and business leaders from throughout the East. The women were in ball gowns for the British Embassy after-theatre dance.

President Kennedy saw only the second act the had remained in the White House to view an especially arranged closed circuit telecast of the Liston-Patterson fight), but First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy, Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and hordes of top officials of the national government saw it all. Society leaders were out in full force. President Kennedy's mother, one brother (Attorney General Bobby) and three sisters were there.

Present from New York, among others, were CBS board chairman William and Mrs. Paley, Alfred Gwynne and Mrs. Vanderbilt, Music Corp. of America board chairman Jules C. Stein, publisher Henry Luce and his wife, playwright Clare Boothe Luce, and the heads of several major corporations.

The opening night benefited two Kennedy family charities, with seats scaled at $100, $35 and $15. Lord & Taylor picked up the tab for the night (giving the charities the full value of all tickets) and decorated both the theatre and the British Embassy, where Ambassador and Lady Ormsby-Gore hosted a ball for the $100 ticketholders.

At the request of the Secret Service, both the President and Vice President were placed in boxes, with JFK at stage right and LBJ at stage left. President Kennedy's rocking chair was brought to the theatre for him. At curtain time, cast members bowed to each box and then to the audience.

The Washington Post's Richard L. Coe called the show a timid bore" and said he felt as if he had "wandered into a children's playlet of interminable length." He concluded: "The cold truth is that 'Mr. President' is the most solemn musical comedy ever I did see."

The Washington Star's Harry MacArthur wrote, "The degree of its future success depends entirely upon how much demand there is for an oldfashioned musical show."

Commented Tom Donnelly in the Washington Daily News, "'Mr. President' is more on the order of 'The Hardy Family Goes to the White House'. . . As for me, I generally think America is a pretty land to live in. It's clinkers like 'Mr. President' that shake my faith."

The musical plays here three weeks.

Ice Show Review

Festival der Liebe

(Festival of Love)

Passau, Germany, Sept. 28.

Musical on ice, with Ingrid Wendl, Emmy Puzinger, Helmut Loefke, Fernand Leemans, Tilo Gutzeit, Yvette Busieau, Bill Hinchy, Michele Colberg, Herbert Bobek, Richard Ledwig, Ted Roman, Juergen Inze, Alfred Riedl, Gottfried Orling, Wilhelm Deja, Lucien Meyer, Mr. Jacky. Book, Will Petter; music, Robert Stolz; directed by Petter; choreography, Edith Petter; costumes, Ella Bei and Gerdago; settings, Felix Smetana; technical direction, Josepf Wurm. World preem at Nibelungen Hall, Passau, Germany.

In its 11th time around, Vienna ice show "Festival of Love" is an impressive and charming production. New edition tops its predecessors for it has a perfect blend of music, story and choreography. All this is evident in the blade extravaganza's preem at Passau's sold out Nibelungen Hall.

Following its stand at this 7,000 seat arena, show is booked for a European tour which will take it through June, 1964. Will Petter's book is a frothy, romantic contrivance that gives the overall production full opportunity to display its gloss and pageantry. Initial act, tagged "Fiesta," has Emmy Puzinger portraying an American girl who experiences a variety of flirtations in a Mexican village.

Another act labeled "The Clown" has a nitery background. Both acts are replete with ballet and solo numbers in addition to a "floor show" in the nightclub. Latter is a nice showcase for Ingrid Wendl and Helmut Loefke who make a handsome couple with their acting and skating.

Miss Puzinger and Fernand Leemans, as another duo, impress in their dramatic parts. Rita Lengfeldner scores in a sequence called "High School on Ice." Also registering in varied scenes are Yvette Busieau & Bill Hinchy, Michele Colberg and Tilo Gutzeit. Herbert Bobek heads the roster of five comedians.

Composer Robert Stolz fascinates the audience with a multitude of beautiful melodies and exciting modern rhythms. The main ballet, "Carnival in Venice," shows his skill in combining that city's peculiarities in rhythm with haunting romantic tunes. As in previous shows, Stolz actually squanders melodies in the ballet and dance scenes.

Will Petter directed with imagination. His creative ideas are best demonstrated in the ensemble numbers and comics' routines. Choreographer Edith Petter drew the ultimate from the dancing skaters. Her ballets, "Carnival in Venice" and "Fiesta," are breathtaking. Lush costumes were devised by Ella Bei and Gerdago.

Felix Smetana's settings are excellent while the 22-man orchestra under Karl Goetz's baton flawlessly interpret the Stolz score. Lighting effects are particularly good. Maas.

Bon Soir's New Partner

A new partner has stepped into the Bon Soir, N.Y., replacing Nat Sackin who reecently withrrew from the venture. Bob Petrino became associated with the spot last week. Ernie Pagano remains senior partner.

Petrino will be in charge of booking the club.

Legit 'From Dixie'

Continued from page 1

with the start of the 1962-63 season. The deal between the union and the producer-theatre owner organization stipulates that each booking contract contain a provision that no discrimination or segregation will be practiced against any performer or patron at the theatre by reason of race, color or creed.

The trade reaction was that it would eliminate the south as a territory for touring productions. That was considered a dire prospect in view of the development in recent years of a southern route for touring shows, principally those travelling by bus-and-truck and playing split-week stands. However, bookings for the current term reveal that the south has not been lost to professional legit and, at worst, only two weeks or so have been clipped from touring time in that territory because of the Equity-League stand against playing segregated showcases.

In most southern states, except those in which professional legit has been dropped at least temporarily, desegregation of theatre audiences is principally a local matter. Some cities permit it, while others remain segregated. Those allowing integration are consequently open for legit bookings.

Little Rock, Ark., where U.S. troops were sent five years ago to enforce the integration of Central High School, is on the itinerary of some touring shows this season. The productions are playing Broadway Theatre League time in the city's Robinson Memorial Auditorium on a subscription basis to a closed membership. There's no boxoffice sale of tickets and the subscription series is open to Negroes.

Desegregation of audiences is now, permitted in Memphis and integration is also being allowed in some Virginia towns, despite a state law requiring the segregation of audiences. The law has been generally disregarded in the past, notably for sporting events.

The elimination of certain southern cities for touring productions because of their segregation policies is making the routing of shows in the south a little more difficult by causing some big jumps from one date to another. It's understood, however, that there is a movement on the part of civic and cultural-minded organizations in the south to promote greater desegregation of theatres for professional legit.

Among shows scheduled to play the south this season are "My Fair Lady," "Sound of Music" and "Carnival." The southern dates are to be played by bus-and-truck productions of all three musicals. The "Lady" tour is being arranged by Irving Squires, who was company manager of the Broadway production, which closed last Saturday (29). The "Sound" and "Carnival" tours are being booked by National Performing Arts.

The playing time available in the south is reflected in the following partial lineup of cities to be played by one or more of those shows: Norfolk, Raleigh, Greensboro, Atlanta, Knoxville, Huntington, Charleston, Wheeling, Altoona, Louisville, Chatanooga, Greensboro, Charlotte, Jacksonville, Little Rock, Houston, Corpus Christie, San Antonio, Austin, Fort Worth, Abilene, Lubbock, Amaraillo and El Paso.

Friars

Continued from page 63

was going to be one of your rare moments of courtesy." Alan Gale did well as did Gene Baylos, Harvey Stone and Corbett Monica. Latter is gaining added stature though he now also overindulges on those four-letter fests.

Carson got back at many of his tormentors during his brief speech at the end. He is a funny and inventive chap. Most of his lines will not be publicly presented on "Tonight" but their value at laughgetters for the stag set was unquestioned. He was presented with a portable multiple band radio by the Friars. There were about 1,000 showing up at $15 a head.

New Acts

NIPSEY RUSSELL
Comedy
35 Mins.
Blue Angel, N.Y.

Nipsey Russell has been maturing at such Harlem spots as The Baby Grand, as he puts it, where "I've been doing a 20-year stretch at hard labor." His reputation as a funny and betimes erudite chap has gone beyond the confines of 125th St. to the point where he has been offered a wider range of spots with one stipulation by many, that some of the gamey material would have to go. Apparently, Russell has now seen the light and has come downtown with an act that is probably one of the more naturally funny assemblies of random thought and wit. Despite his veteranship in the Harlem hospices this is his first New Act recording in these columns.

Although, a few indigoisms intrude now and then, Russell has a turn that can go almost anywhere. He inevitably invites comparison with Dick Gregory, who preceeded Russell on the bigtime circuit. The similarity is evident only on his dissertation of some of the current topics relating to Negro questions. Otherwise, Russell's range is wider, there's hardly any other similar points of interest, except that they are eligible for the same spots. Intratrade, of course, it's known that Russell antedated Gregory excepting that the latter was "discovered" first by the ofays.

Russell works in straw hat, which he describes as a symbol of affability. The gab is, for the greater part in that vein. His blue lines seem to fit in with his character and background and his choice of material is generally original and funny.

He had the Blue Angel assemblage going and it's likely that he can do the same in either mass or intime spots. An excellent routine which winds up his efforts is a demonstration of the Twist and related dances. It's an extremely pleasant routine. Jose.

ELAINE STEELE
Songs
30 Mins.
Club 70, Ottawa

Brunet looker Elaine Steele has a solidly built stint of canarying, flexible enough to cover unexpected situations, angles or goofups. Femme's pipes are pleasant and staging is nice with good showmanship throughout. Her selection of tunes gives the stanza balance and gabbing bits are scripted plus okay ad libs. Big item in Miss Steele's session are the clicko arrangements backing her warbling.

She's good for niteries, lounges, television. Gorm.

JO MAPES
Songs
15 Mins.
Blue Angel, N.Y.

Jo Mapes is a newcomer to the local scene in the ballad field. She's a pleasant singer and speaker, has apparently done considerable research on her material, and delivers an likeable passel of purties.

Each one of the songs is well rendered. Her introductory remarks pave the way for a good reception and she shows a clear and fluid delivery. However, her routine doesn't build to a climax. She needs some redesigning of her act and a few songs to provide a stronger focal point to pave the way for greater effectiveness. Jose.

RITA CARROL
Songs
32 Mins.
Gatineau, Ottawa

Rita Carrol was half the Carrol Sisters until one married and left the act. As a single she is standout, socko for niteries, lounges and television. Miss Carrol is a brunet looker with plenty showmanship and ability who handles musical instruments, warbles and does slick impressions. She has lots of sound and all of it good.

Opener has "Darktown Strutter's Ball" in Yiddish, followed by a string of impressions, with no attempt at visual aping, of canaries like Brewer, Sherwood, Washington, Reese, Clooney and Merman. Her close resemblance to Garland should cue the addition of a Judy impression. Gorm.

THE ALBERTS (3)
Comedy
20 Mins.
Blue Angel, N. Y.

The Alberts, trio of zany imports, should have an excellent future in the United States despite the inadequacy of their Blue Angel bow. They are of the old school of clowns who come on with a multitude of props, have perfected innumerable bits of hoke, and skilled at many things, and can be extremely funny.

To achieve these ends, the lads need a proper setup. Mostly, they need space, an elevated stage, and room to operate. The intimate confines of the Blue Angel is no proper showcase for them.

The lads make their entrance from the back of the room in parade style. After they go on stage, it's anything-for-a-laugh type of thing, although their comic arrangements are orderly and well thought out. For example, some of their amplified equipment couldn't work because the spot didn't have "English electricity" meaning that the voltage here is unsuitable for appliances. They had to work feverishly in order to maneuver into their tricks. Their numerous entrances and exits were blocked for space reasons. However, they are funny. They are good for clean and solid laughs, but need the larger spaces available in mass rooms to achieve their values. The Latin Quarter or the International are much better suited for their wares. Jose.

ROSE & LADEN
Comedy
30 Mins.
Blinstrub's, Boston

Eddie Rose and Lenny Laden, top bananas with Sam Synder's "Water Follies" for several seasons, have put together a nightclub act which they are breaking in here at Blinstrub's big 1,700-seater. They offer a rousing 30 minutes of unrestrained comedy jinks in which Rose heckles Laden offstage and on. They do bits from films, carbons, snatches of songs, while keeping rapidfire gags going at jet speed. Laden, personal emcee type, opens the turn with Rose, who's w. k. as a water comic, heckling from offstage. He comes on in trademark red stocking cap and dress suit with white sneakers for big visual laugh effects. Both get off rounds of slapstick comedy bits which are welcomed enthusiastically.

Rose takes the 88 for comedy pianoistics, and Laden goes into sharp impresh bits of Henry Busse, Bonnie Baker, Morton Downey. He's slick with the falsetto voice and imitates musical instruments in fine fashion. Rose cuts in with some acro whirls, teetering on stage edge. Laden takes it straight with nice rendition of "Anybody Seen My Girl" and show tunes.

They are a refreshing duo and work along Abbott & Costello lines with plenty of slapstick and sight gags. In an era of conversational, angry and sick comics, the return to natural comedy values employed by this pair goes over big here. They look good for all visual situations, including television, nightclubs, arenas, etc. Should hit top of comic team contemporaries rapidly. Guy.

WALLY KOSTER
Songs
29 Mins.
Club 70, Ottawa

Longtime w.k. on Canadian television, principally via CBS's now-off "Hit Parade," Wally Koster makes top use of his fine baritone pipes on the club and lounge circuits. Unlike many tv performers, Koster exhibits nice showmanship and staging and wisely confines his stint to chanting, gab being used only to introduce the titles. He stays onstage throughout, at no time trying to "sit," figuratively, with the customers, but this doesn't lend any aloofness to the stanza. His video acceptance has been established.

He can now add niteries, lounges and disks to his potentialities. Gorm.

ADA MOORE
Songs
35 Mins.
Village Gate, N. Y.

Sepia songstress Ada Moore, returning to the New York scene for the first time in seven years, last week did a one-shot at the Village Gate that has lead to a near-future booking at the club.

While she wowed the audience in the single appearance, the act would no doubt carry even more punch if Miss Moore would get some new gowns and stick to the old songs. Not that casual dress doesn't suit the singer's easy style, but the flat shoes and sleeveless, beige dress somehow didn't have it.

Singer's going-away idiom is the blues, the oldtime and seldom-heard blues which she puts across in a genuinely gifted way. She is also on solid ground with some easy ballads of the '30s and '40s that she sang with deep feeling. Book falters, however, when she goes modern with phrasing on standards out of the Carmen McRae school. Bill.

GREENBRIAR BOYS (3)
Songs
34 Mins.
Le Hibou, Ottawa

Of the bluegrass - chanting Greenbriar Boys, two are from New York City, third from New Jersey, but their Kentucky sound is genuine and sincere. There's no attempt at gimmicks, hillbilly atmosphere or comedy, although the stint is happy throughtout and so leaves the customers happy. Threesome have piped in a few clubs and made a disk for Vanguard, but strength is chiefly for coffeerooms, some lounges and would be okay for niteries where bluegrass music could be sold. Gabbing is only for introducing titles and giving history and meaning of songs.

Boys play guitar, five-string banjo and mandolin which, plus piping, produces plenty sound. Gorm.

THE MILLIONAIRES (3)
Songs
30 Mins.
Suburban Lounge, Detroit

Good sounds emanate from The Millionaires, an interesting blending of voices trained in gospel singing and operetta. The trio is versatile, ranging from country through rock 'n' roll to ballads. In addition, there is plenty of acting ability in these three young, goodlooking lads.

They have plenty of material—several standup 30-minute nightclub routines, and a seemingly limitless repertory of instrumentally-backed numbers for lounges, etc. In this latter category, the trio dons hats, beards, etc., to add "atmosphere" to the particular song it is presenting.

Each has a voice of solo quality, yet they harmonize well, too. Ron Van Horn and Bill Morris received their training as gospel singers, while Glenn Dunno has appeared in operettas and musical comedies. As instrumentalists, Van Horn strums the bass, Morris is the pianist, and Dunno, the drummer.

The Millionaires produce good sounds, look good, and project well with the infectious enthusiasm of youth. With their versatility, they can fit in most anywhere and certainly will be assets to any nightclub, lounge, revue, tv or radio show, or what-have-you that requires good voices and plenty of savvy showmanship. Tew.

LIBI STAIGER
Songs
28 Mins.
Mister Kelly's, Chi

Miss Staiger comes to the nitery scene with impressive show biz credentials. She played a feature part in "By The Beautiful Sea" with Shirley Booth, portrayed the role of Emma in "Plain and Fancy" on Broadway, and did the Cleo part in "Most Happy Fella" at the City Center and in London. In addition, she has played tunetents throughout the east, and is now prepping for the lead in the new musical comedy based on the life of Sophie Tucker.

Songstress is a comely redhead with a rich, vibrant and exciting contralto. Her vocal resources are so potent as to make her handling of standard ballads seemingly effortless. With no need to worry about projection or volume, she can explore the nuances of an evergreen like "Bowl of Cherries" or "Had To Be You" and find shadings that a less well-vocally-endowed singer would have to strain for.

Her belters, such as "Hard Hearted Hannah" and "Give A Little, Get A Little Love," are handled with the same air, but there's little doubt that she could display her astute phrasing to better advantage with more complex arrangements. Her rendition of "Remind Me" and "Little Girl Blue" are haunting; she produces vocal fireworks with "Fireworks"; and her Tucker medley is a tuneful impression of Soph without being a caricature.

If Miss Staiger faults at all, it is that she sings at the tablers instead of to them. This is no doubt a carryover from her legituner days and will be remedied with more cafe experience. For now, she's a tough act to follow, ready for solo billing in the hotel supper clubs, and has definite potential as a topliner for the bigger clubs. Mor.

House Reviews

Music Hall, N. Y.

"Sounds," Marc Platt production (Leon Leonidoff, senior producer), with Richard Hayman, Joseph Tekula, Choral Ensemble (Will Irwin, director), Corps de Ballet, Rockettes, Music Hall Symphony (Raymond Paige, director); "Gigot" (20th), reviewed in VARIETY June 20, '62.

It's like the sound of stereo, this edition at the Rockefeller showcase. And all-resident except for Richard Hayman, whose harmonica presentation is an appropriate element for the audio motif arranged by producer Marc Platt. It hardly needs adding that "Sounds" is not only just an earful, but mounted with the Hall's typical visual dazzle.

Raymond Paige's Hall Symph gives it an overture keynoting with a melodic melange punctuated by an assortment of instrumental effects. The Corps de Ballet, choeographed by Platt, contributes an amusing item in which a clutch of fireflies overcomes a wicked spider (an outsize aerosol pesticide does the trick); the choral company, nicely staged, vends some pop standards; and the Rockettes are impressively-maneuvered (by Russell Markert), per usual, as one man's secretarial pool.

Hayman's effort segues from some routine renditioning into a hi-fi effect abetted with tapes beamed either side of the auditorium. Makes an effective frame for the turn.

Show finales elaborately enough with a sort of ode to the road, with several authentic '63 models wheeled out on a tiered stage There's a film clip, too, not altogether effective, of some flashy jobs tooling over asphalt and dirt.

As a frontispiece to the layout, the Hall presents its traditional "Kol Nidrei" for the Jewish holy days, with chorale and Joseph Tekula, 'cellist. However reverent, it may be a perennial question in some minds as to the propriety of liturgical music in an otherwise secular divertissement. At the least, the Hall presents it apart from the main format, and with respectful staging. Pit.

Alhambra, Paris

Paris, Sept. 23.

Jane Breteau presentation of two-act (20 scenes) musical revue, "Les Plumes Rouges" (Red Feathers); book by Jean Marc Thibault, Roger-Pierre, Jacqueline Cartier; lyrics by Thibault, Pierre; music, Claude Stieremans; choreography, Michel Descombey. Stars Thibault, Pierre; features Sophie Daumier, Claudine Coster, Jacques Jeanneau, Pierre Stephen, Andre Thorent; staged by Thibault; sets and costumes, Jacques Dupont. Opened Sept. 21, '62 at Alhambra, Paris; $3.75 top.

With music hall vaude having its ups and downs these days, the big Alhambra has been experimenting. Last season it had a hit entry by Roland Petit and Zizi Jeanmaire that combined ballet and song. Now it has two comics, Jean-Marc Thibault and Roger-Pierre, who give out with a sort of musical comedy-house revue show which looks in for a run.

It may not be an export item for it still hues somewhat too closely to the old operetta format. But it has enough modern drive and zest in music and terping to herald a big step forward in both legituner and revue looks.

Simple tale revolves around a star's standin of a musical revue who is killed on stage. A young police inspector is called in on his wedding day and solves the case with his wife tagging along after him.

Music is functional, if not catchy, and Michel Descombey has assimilated modern York dancing to give some rock and roll aspects a sharp flair and dynamism.

Thibault and Pierre are two good natured comics. They rely more on good will and pleasant takeoffs on police and today's youth than on the sharp satire so prevalent in Yank tuners.

This entry also caters to regular local audience preferences for the proven and simple in revue and musical outlooks. But it has enough brightness, flair and precision to make for more advanced musical buff entertainment too.

Smart, movable sets, neat costumes and knowing staging by Thibault help keep this simple show bowling along. Dancers are flexible and more animated than is usual in local shows. A knockabout comic fight sequence pays credible homage to some of Jerome Robbins' balletic battles in such shows as "West Side Story."

Four other houses, Olympia, Concert Pacra, ABC and Bobino, keep to established two-a-day standards. But the Alhambra may veer into a musicl comedy centre if it keeps up these type shows. It appears to have a long run in store for its new revue. Mork.

Orpheum, Seattle

Seattle, Sept. 24.

Sammy Davis Jr., Pat Henry, Barbara & Hal Looman, Bobby Jones, George Rhodes Orch (28); admission $2.50-$4.50.

Sammy Davis Jr. again proves he is one of the most versatile talents around today in this show that runs nearly three hours and still leaves 'em asking for more.

Davis acts as emcee for the first half of the show, with orchestra splendidly led by George Rhodes, in pit. Band moves to stage for second half, which is all Davis and all good.

Young Bobby Jones, 12 years old, does a walloping job on the electric organ, displaying a precocious talent, but perhaps a bit too long. The Lomans' two dance sequences are sharp and spectacular, combining the finesse of ballet, along with a swinging appeal, to make it a top dance turn.

Pat Henry, a "non-sick" comic, scores heavily with his easy humor, punching over some of the funniest lines heard here this season.

But it is Davis who holds the crowd. He does just about everything and does it well. His songs range from new show tunes like "Once in a Lifetime" and 'What Kind of Fool Am I" to standards. He also displays romantic appeal in "Moon River," backed only by a guitar.

His comedy is delightful, with quips on his friend, Frank Sinatra, topical, sallies and sly slants on racism. His dancing is top drawer, whether doing a fast Twist number or a nostalgic soft-shoe routine.

His impersonations are magical—with a line or a single gesture he creates Nat King Cole, Louis Armstrong, Jerry Lewis, Marlon Brando, Dean Martin and others. He also does a great job in a near-production number on Sinatra.

Davis works with ease and assurance, without some of the frenetic pace of past appearances here, to create a memorable evening. Recd.

Paris Vaude

Continued from page 65

phine Baker does a dramatic role, Coquatrix to bring in an old play, was considered a bad move. It might have fared better in a regular theatre for patrons expected a dynamic, feathered Miss Baker rather than the star in a straight costume role.

Alhambra comes on with a cross between a revue, musical and vaude show in "The Red Feathers" headed by comics Jean-Marc Thibault and Roger Pierre. Though good, it still manages to camouflage straight vaude.

But the Bobino and the ABC are hewing to regular formats and the Olympia welcomes Edith Piaf back this week. The Concert Pacra, the oldest music hall, goes in for six shows a week instead of only weekends and will use big names for lower prices.

Shows Abroad

Rattle of a Simple Man

London, Sept. 20.

Michael Codron presentation of comedy in three acts, by Charles Dyer. Staged by Donald McWhinnie; decor, Vic Symonds. Stars Sheila Hancock, Edward Woodward; features Daniel Moynihan. Opened Sept. 19, '62, at the Garrick Theatre, London; $2.80 top.

Cyrenne ..... Sheila Hancock
Percy ..... Edward Woodward
Ricky ..... Daniel Moynihan

"Rattle of a Simple Man" is almost an impresario's dream play. It has a single, comparatively inexpensive set, a cast of only three, and a lot of funny dialog, which makes it a very attractive proposition for Michael Godron.

There is one fundamental flaw, inasmuch as Charles Dyer's three-act comedy has a basic situation just about strong enough to sustain a 10-minute revue sketch, but by skillful writing, deft characterization and a wry sense of humor, he has succeeded in sustaining his flimsy plot for a full three acts.

There are moments when it shows signs of sagging, but interest is adroitly revived by a neat twist. The one false move in the introduction of the third character can be readily overlooked.

It sounds like too much of a cliche to suggest that his main character is the conventional prostie with a heart of you-know what. But there it is, and credit the author with making the character believable.

Sheila Hancock, a dish by any standard of measurement, portrays a club hostess who brings a shy middlelaged provincial to spend the night at her basement flat. He's on a weekend holiday, full of liquor and bravado when he met the girl at the club, and accepted the wager to spend the night with her.

But as he talks, he hesitatingly reveals tha he's 42, not 35 as he pretended, is in a rut, takes his mother to the movies every Monday, is a Scoutmaster, and has never been with a woman.

The girl also lives in a world of fantasy, claiming wealthy parents, a lavish upbringing and a classical education. In reality they are lonely people, living contrasting lives, but superficially having much in common; and Dyer ably establishes this strange yet very believable relationship.

The playwright goes somewhat awry halfway through the second act in introducing the girl's brother, a not very likeable person who tries to get her back to the family and on the path of virtue. The scene misses sorely, and needs major revision if it is to match the conviction of the rest of the play. But even with that modification, there must remain an element of doubt about the show's success, particularly outside the West End of London.

Miss Hancock, a revue performer of considerable talent, who is currently riding high via a tv series, establishes herself as an actress of charm and ability in a role that calls for frequent and sudden changes of mood. It's a tour de force which keeps her on stage throughout the entire evening, and she doesn't miss a trick or a chance. It's a vital and ingratiating study, full of sincerity and understanding.

Edward Woodward offers a performance of matching skill, and interphets a difficult role with delicacy and insight. It is hard enough for a mature man to have to confess to virginity, but it is even more difficult when he has to question his own manhood. Woodward, in his ill-fitting new suit colored scarf and rosette and fattle from the soccer game he's attended, handles the scene to perfection.

Daniel Moynihan, on the other hand, has a strictly conventional role which he plays well enough, but it's out of character with the rest of the comedy.

Though the two stars deserve their full share of praise, much of the credit for the production must go to Donald McWhinnie's direction. It's no sinecure staging a play in which there are only two characters on stage at any one time, but is even more difficult when the plot has been exhausted in the first few minutes. McWhinnie has done a masterly job. Vic Symonds' basement flat is admirably designed. Myro.

A New York production of a translation by Kimon Friar of "Burn Me to Ashes," by Nikos Kazantzakis, is planned by Lillian Bari and Jeanne Bennett.

Miss Pell Is Missing

London, Sept. 13.

Murray Macdonald & John Stevens, Ltd. presentation of a comedy in three acts (five scenes) by Leonard Gershe. Staged by Murray Macdonald; decor, Anthony Holland; lighting, Joe Davis. Stars Wilfrid Hyde White. Opened Sept. 12, '62, at the Criterion Theatre, London; $3.20 top.

Louise Pell ..... Amanda Reiss
Genevieve ..... Jean Aubrey
Oscar Ritter ..... Michael Nightingale
Richard Pell ..... Wilfrid Hyde White
David Madison ..... Richard Briers
Pauline ..... Barbara Hicks
Otis Kirby ..... Brook Williams

From a Saki short story, Leonard Gershe has developed a frail three-act comedy which has only the slenderest chances of survival despite the marquee lure of Wilfrid Hyde White. It's short on wit and originality, and cannot stand up to the keen competition around the West End.

The piece is set in Washington Square in 1915 and is about as dated as the period. The action is confined to the library of the Pell household. It is quickly established that the terrifying head of the family, Augusta Pell, is missing from home, and nothing has been heard of her since she disappeared some six weeks previously. That, apparently, is a matter for rejoicing among other members of the family, but to prove they are doing something about it, deliberately hire an incompetent private detective to trace her, which she does.

It's all trivial, and hardly helped by excessive padding, in which the young niece resents that the fiance chosen for her by her aunt had failed to woo her and immediately sets about wooing and winning the private eye. There's other incidental detail which also prolongs the action but otherwise contributes little.

Even a smooth and bland actor like White occasionally looks ill at ease with the material at his disposal, though succeeds in adding a gloss to pedestrian dialog and situations. Amanda Reiss makes an appealing contribution as the scatterbrained niece, and Richard Briers is midly amusing as the over-anxious sleuth. Brook Williams plays the jilted fiance with calculated pomposity, and the cast is rounded off by Jean Aubrey as a housemaid, Barbara Hicks as a cook, and Michael Nightingale as a lawyer.

Murray Macdonald has staged his own presentation with zest, and Anthony Holland has designed an attractive library set. Myro.

Big Fish Little Fish

London, Sept. 19.

John Gale, in association with James H. Lawrie, presentation of a comedy-drama in three acts (six scenes) by Hugh Wheeler. Staged by Frith Banbury; decor, Jac Venza; lighting, Richard Pilbrow. Stars Hume Cronyn, Jessica Tandy, Frank Pettingell, Thomas Coley; features Frederick Jaeger, Carl Paffe, Viola Lyel. Opened Sept. 18, '62, at the Duke of York's Theatre, London; $3 top.

William Baker ..... Thomas Coley
Jimmie Luton ..... Hume Cronwn
Edith Maitland ..... Jessica Tandy
Basil Smythe ..... Frank Pettingell
Hilda Rose ..... Viola Lyle
Ronnie Johnson ..... Frederick Jaeger
Paul Stumpfig ..... Carl Jaffe

Only a moderate stayer when it was first presented in New York about 18 months back, "Big Fish Little Fish" probably won't have more than a limited run at the Duke of York's Theatre. It is a patchy play and takes too long to get to the point, and there's just too much competition around for this sort of show to click.

In essence, Hugh Wheeler has an interesting idea in developing the friendship theme into a full length play, but his craftmanship has gone awry. The entire first act serves only to introduce the characters, and the message only begins to take shape half way through the second act.

It needs a long sharp pull to save the show, and Wheeler almost succeeds, thanks largely to an interesting and offbeat theme. The big fish of the title, well portrayed by Thomas Coley, is a middleaged writer in a rut.

His promising academic career was ruined when he was involved in a scandal with one of the male pupils at the school where he was a lecturer. Since then, he has had an undemanding job with a publishing house, has drifted along for 20 years or more with a married woman, and has collected a few possessive friends.

Theoretically, his friends are only concerned with his future, but when the testing time comes they prove to be primarily interested in themselves.

Though Coley makes a dependable contribution, the role really calls for more inspired playing, with the result that the acting honors largely fall to Hume Cronyn, who repeats his original New York role with striking success. His is a lively and ingratiating performance, and the final scene between the big fish and his ultra-possessive friend is one of the dramatic highlights.

Jessica Tandy, back in the West End after more than 20 years on Broadway, is as fresh as ever as as the mistress, and the veteran Frank Pettingell, gives a striking study as another old friend, with day dreams of an imaginary fortune.

Frederick Jaeger's brisk and confident portrayal of a successful young writer dominates the scene, and there are useful studies by Viola Lyel as another friend and Carl Jaffe as a swish publisher.

Frith Banbury's staging seems too leisurely for the overlong and labored opening act, but he gets sensitive performances from the cast once the play gets into its stride. Jac Venza's apartment setting has the virtue of simplicity and modesty, and Richard Pilbrow's lighting is flawless. Myro.

La Bete Dans la Jungle

(The Beast in the Jungle)

Paris, Sept. 21.

Theatre Vivaut (Living Theatre) presentation of two-act (six scenes) drama by James Lord and Marguerite Duras, adapted from the story by Henry James. Staged by Jean Leuvrais; sets and costumes, Andre Acquart. Stars Loleh Bellon; Jean Leuvrais; features Martine Vadel. Opened Sept. 18, '62, at the Theatre Athenee, Paris; $3.50 top.

Catherine ..... Loleh Bellon
John ..... Jean Leuvrais
Elisabeth ..... Martine Vatel

The main drama in this adaptation of a wellknown Henry James short story is in what is not said. "La Bete dans la Jungle" ("The Beast in the Jungle") could be revealing in a story or even as a film, where there is greater latitude for insight into the characters. On the stage it is difficult. Despite the sobriety, eloquence and the intermittently moving drive of the enterprise, its nature limits the play to off-Broadway calibre production.

The drama offers a challenging vehicle for two sensitive actors. It is somewhat reminiscent of the foreign stories and films about the difficulty of communication, the fragility of emotions and the mystery of human memory. In this version a man and woman meet again after many years. They go on seeing each other, and the story is a series of scenes as they talk around what might have been love but has been kept bottled up like a beast in a jungle.

The yarn is neatly orchestrated, played and set with a sort of hypnotic quality in its feel for pauses, floating emotions and loss. But it remains a surface affair without the sweep and insight to bring it dramatically alive. It is still a creditable near-miss by a new private repertory company here, Le Theatre Vivant (Living Theatre).

Loleh Bellon, as the compassionate woman, and Jean Leuvrais, as the man with the smothered feelings, do a lot to keep their scenes fraught with a shimmering feel of loss. There is just not enough substance in the play itself to bring it off. Mosk.

Brecht on Brecht

London, Sept. 12.

English Stage Co. and Robert L. Livingston & Robin Fox presentation of a staged reading in two parts, arranged by George Tabori. Staged by John Bird. Stars Lotte Lenya, Barry Foster, Norman Rossington, Valerie Gearon, George Devine. Opened Sept. 11, '62, at the Royal Court Theatre, London; $2.50 top.

George Tabori has fashioned fascinating entertainment in "Brecht on Brecht." It is a natural for Brecht fans, but also rates a wider audience. The production is scheduled for a limited engagement at the Royal Court Theatre, but seems a strong bet for a transfer to a regular West End situation.

From the program it would appear as if there are some variations between the London production and the original off-Broadway presentation, which opened at the Theatre de Lys, N.Y., at the beginning of the year. However, both have the important factor of Lotte Lenya. She's a sensitive and highly dramatic singer, and plays a dominating part in the production, though she has to share many of the honors with her talented colleague on stage.

Miss Lenya, it must be con-

(Continued on page 74)

Shows Out of Town

A Matter of Position

Philadelphia, Sept. 30.

Fred Coe & Arthur Cantor presentation of a comedy in three acts, by Elaine May. Staged by Fred Coe; settings and lighting, David Hays; costumes, Ruth Morley. Stars Mike Nichols; features Beatrice Arthur, John McMartin, Michael Gorrin, Mimi Randolph, Mark Dawson, Evelyn Russell, Rex Everhart, Robert Barend, Robert Ader, Rose Arrick. Opened Sept. 29, '62, at the Walnut Theatre, Philadelphia.

Howard Miller ..... Mike Nichols
Selma Miller ..... Rose Arrick
Milton ..... Robert Ader
Mrs. Enright ..... Evelyn Russell
Policeman ..... Rex Everhart
Delivery Man ..... Paul Haney
Mr. Enright ..... Mark Dawson
Telephone Repairman ... Robert Barend
Mrs. Miller ..... Beatrice Arthur
Mr. Miller ..... Michael Gorrin
Mr. Dupar ..... John McMartin
Mrs. Shawl ..... Mimi Randolph

Making allowance for its preposterous three and a quarter hours' running time opening night, and the fact that there are three weeks (two in Philly and one in New Haven) to make the necessary cuts, Elaine May's "A Matter of Position" still seems a dubious prospect for Broadway.

The new comedy tends to be "a matter of position" for the audience. Firstnighters who could make an exit feasibly did so, with approximately one-third of the house gone before the final curtain.

The play's major flaw at this stage is the lack of validity to the central character, played by Mike Nichols. As a $90-a-week marketing statistician obsessed with the idea of having everybody love him, he wakes up on the day when everything goes wrong. Unable to cope with people by merely placating them, faced with mounting bills and stymied in his job, he stages a slapstick rebellion by going back to bed.

The trouble is that we can never quite peg this hero and his quick transitions. On the face of it, he seems an extraordinarily insecure person, finding escape in a regression to childhood, playing with jigsaw puzzles and crayon books, and welcoming the companionship of an eight-year-old neighbor. But he also takes time out to philosophize about his nondescript existence and getting away from it all.

He is either a jerk acting like a psychopath, or there may be actual derangement, but there isn't anything very sympathetic about him. The initial telling off of his hard-headed but genuine and understandable wife is a weird bit. He taunts her about his revelations of their wedding night and sex didoes to the boys at the office, just to make washroom or bar chit-chat.

There is no denying Miss May has a shrewd ear for the commonplace. Some of her family vignettes and dialog passages are funny, even though she works at times on the assumption that any inanity is funny if done in Jewish dialect, or that the same treatment can make a gross expression hilarious.

There is a second act imbroglio sequence that is strictly Soupy Sales. It all winds up in a spirited bedroom free-for-all, with relatives and in-laws pitted against the hulking building superintendent, who is finally routed when our hero's mama sets fire to the janitor's denims.

As the wife, Rose Arrick is a tower of lucidity in the Bronxian babel. A former A & P checker, rescued by marriage from living with her heroically depressed mother, she prefers even a nutty husband to loneliness. She is the sardonic slavery who rustles up breakfast to get her breadwinner to the office on time, a frustrated fury who can only find cliches when her guileful spouse torments her with cutting reproaches and criticism. She is a drab rebel ready for battle when her bruised mate has blown the works—job, apartment, bankroll—in his fleeting moment of courage.

The performances in this overextended romp are generally top-grade. Outstanding, however, are the contributions of John McMartin as a sensitive young go-getter, and Michael Gorrin as the hero's inarticulate and groping father. Mark Dawson plays the janitor and Mimi Randolph the sadsack hero's mother-in-law. Gagh.

Arte Johnson, Marlyn Mason, Tom Hatten and Sylvia Lewis will appear with Joyce Jameson, Ken Berry and Ann Guilbert in the "Billy Barnes' L.A." revue, opening next Wednesday (10) at the Coronet Theatre, L.A.

Night Life

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.

Sidney Kingsley presentation of his own drama in two acts and three scenes. Staged by the author; setting and lighting, Albert Johnson; costumes, Alice Gibson; associate producer, M. Kirshner. Features Neville Brand, Carol Lawrence, Walter Abel, Carmen Mathews, Salome Jens, Philip Bosco, Murray Roman, Bobby Short, Alan Bergmann. Opened Sept. 29, '62, at the Locust Street Theatre, Philadelphia; $5 top.

Neil ..... Philip Bosco
Frenchy ..... Leonardo Cimino
Waiter ..... Raymond St. Jacques
Baron ..... Robert Dryden
Nick ..... Alan Bergmann
Red ..... Jock Livingston
Cracker ..... Victor Thorley
Cigarette Girl ..... Jessica Walter
Kazar ..... Neville Brand
Chinky ..... James Greene
Lew ..... Walter Abel
Ceil ..... Carmen Mathews
Jimmy ..... Bobby Short
Young Man ..... Mike Baseleon
Young Woman ..... Paula Wayne
Sonny ..... Murray Roman
Gia ..... Carol Lawrence
Woman ..... Kim Townsend
Anna ..... Salome Jens
Young Man ..... Barry Newman
Girl ..... Cynthia McAdams
Gigolo ..... Larry Farley
Woman ..... Elizabeth Moore
Iggy ..... Robert Weil
Boy ..... Cal Bostic
Girl ..... Doris Chambers
Woman ..... Alicia Townsend
Boy ..... Joseph Mascolo
Harry ..... Harrison Dowd
Harry's Girl ..... Marilyn Hanold

A clinical chronicle of the doings of New York's key club set furnishes Sidney Kingsley an approach to the larger troubles of the world in "Night Life." On the entertainment side the play is good enough. Its characters are varied and quickly etched, if familiar. But when the playwright cuts through the sugarcoating of frivolity to give the message, he leaves a been-here-before reaction.

The Albert Johnson setting is a reasonable facsimile of an East Side trap. The homeless-after-midnight while away the hours in its draped seclusion, kid around at the piano bar, break out into spontaneous song, dance and amour. Upstairs the underworld moguls hold kangaroo court and play cards.

The assortment of characters, their emotional problems and vivid language may possibly insure the new Kingsley work an audience of sorts. For despite its tendency to preach and pontificate, it is a showy piece mostly about sex.

The author, who also directed, employs the gimmick of spotlighting a player or group in private colloquies or moments of introspection. The rest of the cast, virtually all on stage throughout, are frozen into tableaux. The device seems sound enough, but when a half-dozen principals voice their inner thoughts in none-too-rapid succession it creates a deep freeze.

Neville Brand portrays the rugged union leader, an apparent carbon of Teamsters president James C. Hoffa. To increase his threat potential, he has read the life of Lenin and is convinced that with the help of hoodlum funds and tactics he can control the entire U.S. labor movement and thereby the country itself. He is a Kingsley-created monster to be destroyed by his arch-antagonist, a somewhat rhetorical, personally dislodged attorney.

The latter is one of those troubled idealists familiar to playgoers. He has run away from the love of a sincere cafe singer, and is deciding to give up his $100,000-a-year practice to work for the U.N. Then he has a peculiar vision on the stage apron, an hallucination about some fellow he bayonetted in Korea.

The climax finds the attorney and the labor goon involved in melodramatic switchblade business as the crowd in the cafe watches in stationary horror. But if Kingsley's sermons on the plight of contemporary society are unmoving, his theatrical sense is as sound as ever.

There is much that is effective in the enlivening side business. Carmen Matthews and Walter Abel are unaffectedly superb as elderly couple living it up to their mutual distress. Salome Jens makes a striking figure as the sexually shook-up movie star who hopes to find partial escape with the barrister played by Philip Bosco. Murray Roman caricatures sick comics and Carol Lawrence's song and dance contributions are charming. There is a genuine feeling of tension between the villain and hero when they are not acting as amplifiers for the playwright's preachments. Gagh.

Nancy Marchand is standby for Margaret Leighton in "Tchin-Tchin."

Offer Summer Musical Producer Rent Cut, But He Nixes Next Year

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 2.

The Charlotte Coliseum-Auditorium Authority voted last week to give Ben Kapen's Charlotte Music Theatre a $400-a-week rent reduction for next season. But it declined to award him a share of the parking fees or other concession proceeds to help whittle down a three-year deficit of $75,868.

Kapen wasn't present when the authority met, not having been invited to attend, but he commented later that the group is "giving the theatre the kiss of death." He added, "The only conditions under which I would return next season would be a fighting chance to liquidate that $80,000 and make a profit."

As for finding a way to come back under the present terms, the producer asserted, "I'm not even going to consider it. It's out of the question, absolutely out of the question. The only thing that could happen would be that they would have to change their minds."

The authority offered Kapen a renewal of his present sliding-scale three-year contract. Its first-year terms would include a maximum rental of $1,225 per week. The second-year maximum would be $1,425, and the third would return the maximum rent to the level of the past season, $1,625.

By unanimous vote the authority echoed chairman Arthur R. Newcombe's sentiments, "We are in complete sympathy with the idea of having good summer theatre. People in Charlotte want it, and we want to give them what they want. But on the other hand, we must keep in mind our responsibility to the taxpayer."

An uncertified financial statement showed a $9,993 operating profit for the 1962 play season, which began with a deficit of $85,860. On the basis of these figures, Kapen's corporation, Village Theaters, still has obligations of $75,868, constituting funds owed backers and unpaid trade accounts.

The report shows that a rebate on state taxes, increased boxoffice receipts and miscellaneous income put the season into the black. The rebate from amusement taxes totaled $6,924. The boxoffice boost was $4,849 and miscellaneous income totaled $2,598.

Only three productions lost money this year. They were "Rosalinda," $6,642; "Pal Joey," $3,266; and "Flower Drum Song," $367. The profitable shows were "Under the Yum Yum Tree," $7,812; "Bye Bye Birdie," $7,804; "Carousel," $4,402; "Music Man," $4,097; "Damn Yankees," $2,716; "Gypsy," $1,548; "Pajama Game," $965, and "Can-Can," $73.

Kapen was asked to reply by Oct. 1 to the authority's rental contract offer.

Drury Would Keep New Novel From H'wood But May OK Legit Version

By LES CARPENTER

Washington, Oct. 2.

Allen Drury's sequel to "Advise and Consent," called "A Shade of Difference" (Doubleday; $6.95), is not for sale to Hollywood, says the author.

The new book, against an United Nations backdrop, is a savage attacker of the dead-end liberal; i.e., the liberal who sees every issue for the face value of the political cliche attached to it, without thinking through all that may be involved. The mind of this sort of liberal delves no deeper than the slogan concept of public affairs.

Because a number of leading book critics on the bigger dailies fit such a description themselves, the book predictably may have some printed word harpoons thrust into its vitals. The novel did not make the Book of the Month Club (as "Advice and Consent" did), but is the Literary Guild choice.

Fears For Treatment

Drury's feeling about the film rights to "A Shade of Difference" are hinged on his concern about the American image globally. The novel treats the most inflammatory of subjects, the Negro-white relationship. Author's fear is that a film version, which necessarily must be a condensation (he has written 603 pages of story) might

(Continued on page 75)

'Elixir of Love' Launches Houston's Opera Season

Houston, Oct. 2.

The Houston Grand Opera Assn. opened its eighth season with the "Elixir of Love," by Donizetti, to be sung in English in Cullen Auditorium, Univ. of Houston, last Friday-Sunday (28-30). The other three productions for the season, also to be presented with the Houston Symphony Orchestra, are Verdi's "Il Trovatore," Nov. 29 and Dec. 1; a double-bill of Puccini's "Il Tabarro" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," Jan. 17 and 19, and Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," March 28 and 30.

An extra production is possible this season because the Ford Foundation is providing 17 singers, all auditioned by conductor Walter Herbert.

'Mary' Profit Now $829,378 on 100G

The three companies of "Mary, Mary," one on Broadway and two on the road, earned a combined operating profit of $116,506 during the five-week period, July 30-Sept. 1. That figure, altered somewhat by other income and certain expenses, rocketed the net profit on the overall venture to $829,378 as of the start of last September.

The hefty five-week take enabled Roger L. Stevens, producer of the three companies, to make a profit distribution of $110,000. That brought the total payoff thus far on the Jean Kerr comedy to $810,000. On the basis of an equal split between the management and the backers, the latter's share represents a net return of 405% on their $100,000 investment in a period of a year and a half.

It cost $71,006 to open "Mary, Mary" in March, 1961, at the Helen Hayes Theatre, N.Y., where the comedy, costarring Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson and Edward Mulhare, is currently in its 83d week. That tab included a heavy preliminary advertising expense and a small tryout profit. Both road companies, one playing prime time and the other a bus-and-truck presentation, were financed from profits earned by the parent Broadway production.

The unit playing maior cities with Julia Meade, Scott McKay and Tom Helmore costarred began touring last May 31 with Teresa Wright as femme lead. Production costs of about $35,000 were rapidly recovered by the company, which had registered a profit of $71,409 as of Sept. 1.

The motorized presentation, in which Lee Bowman stars, cost $33,044 to produce. It opened Aug. 4 in Central City, Colo., and as of Sept. 1 had recouped $30,804 of its production cost.

Included in the overall profit on the three-company venture is income from the sale of the film rights to Warner Bros. on a staggered payment deal up to a ceiling of $500,000. The film income is split between Mrs. Kerr and the production on a standard 60-40 basis. The authoress is the wife of Walter Kerr, N.Y. Herald Tribune drama critic.

For the five weeks ended last Sept. 1, the Broadway production cleared $22,636 and the company touring key cities netted $63,066 in three weeks in San Francisco, one in Seattle and another divided between Seattle and Omaha. That troupe is now in Chicago. The bus-and-truck company, currently playing one-niters, earned the $30,804 operating profit in four weeks in Central City.

Old House for Barn Staff

Gilford, N. H., Oct. 2.

The former Harris farmhouse adjoining the Lakes Region Playhouse here has been purchased by Alton Wilkes, owner of the summer theatre, for conversion into quarters for the playhouse staff.

The property, including the 200-year-old brick house, reportedly cost $35,000.

New Lineup of Personnel At Citizens in Glasgow

Glasgow, Oct. 2.

The Glasgow Citizens Theatre, a leading legit group in Scotland, has an entirely new face in personnel with its resumption of operations this week at its theatre in the Gorbals of Glasgow. The only members of the 1961-62 season returning are Anne Kristen and John Bryden Rodgers.

The theatre has a new producer, Piers Haggard, and a new designer, Michael Knight.

Get Brown, L'ville, For Road Legits

Louisville, Oct. 2.

The Brown Theatre, a firstrun film house, has been leased by the Louisville Theatrical Assn. to play touring legit shows. It will get bookings that previously played the Memorial Auditorium.

After renovations underwritten partly by the city and the Louisville Foundation, the theatre becomes part of many projects to improve the community culturally. The project was proposed by the Louisville Central Area, Inc., an organization working to improve the central downtown area.

The prospect of Louisville having a real legit house, with acoustics and equipment suitable for small-cast dramatic shows, has apparently sparked interest in subscriptions for the upcoming Theatre Guild season. The current total is 2,200, with a goal of 3,000. The four-play series which the Theatre-Guild American Theatre Society will present includes "Mary, Mary," Oct. 11 (this will play the Auditorium while renovation is under way at the Brown); "Sound of Music," Dec. 25; "Shot in the Dark," Jan. 10, and "Take Her, She's Mine," Feb. 4.

Fourth Avenue Amus. Co., owners of film houses in Louisville and Indianapolis, has agreed to relinquish its lease on the Brown, and the Louisville Memorial Commission, governing body of the Auditorium, will acquire the Brown as a separate facility to play shows more suitable to the smaller house.

The Louisville Theatrical Assn., of which George E. Gans is president and Maurice Settle manager, will operate the Brown and book shows there. Settle will also continue to handle bookings for the Auditorium.

Changes and improvements in the Brown will include new wiring, stage equipment, stage floor and several rows of new seats in the theatre, at a cost of $40,000-$50,000.

Suggests Actor Co-Ops To Provide Employment Security for Legiters

Edinburgh, Sept. 25.

An actor's cooperative should be set up to give performers the security they need, it has been suggested by John Cairney, Scot film and stage actor, currently appearing in a new play, "Young Auchinleck." Under the proposed scheme, actors aged 17 or 18 could sign for seven years for a regular salary. More experienced players would sign for shorter periods at higher salaries.

The actors, Cairney suggests, would still be allowed to accept television and film work, but the payments would go into the cooperative to be used for better publicity or in commissioning plays. Cairney adds, "If some company or organization had the courage to take on even a dozen young actors and said: 'You are ours,' it would give them much-needed security and give the theatre more money. In no other job would I train as long and work as hard, and really apply myself so assiduously and get nowhere at all.

"We work all day, and the end of every job is the beginning again. How would you like to get your books every fortnight or be fired every three days? I would like to see the theatre in every country made a part of the municipal and national life—as much as any library, swimming baths, or car park, and things which are there for the citizens' use if they want."

V.I.P. Audience Sees Last of 'Lady'; Casts of Other Shows in for Party; Each Boff Boffo Still at Finale

By ABEL GREEN

"My Fair Lady" producer Herman Levin had a VIP "paper" list of lastnighters Saturday (29) at the Broadway Theatre and, among them, was a Ripley—an attractive young lady who came with Judge Simon H. Rifkind's party who had "never seen 'MFL'." There must have been others that night, because it was loaded with many teenagers whose papas seemingly brought them to participate in an historic Broadway occasion. But there were many others who had been at the premiere, or in the early weeks, seven seasons and 2,717 performances and $20,257,000 in b.o. takings ago.

"MFL" seven years later proved to one sentimental returner a multiple tribute to many talents. Perhaps not the least of these redounds to Alan Jay Lerner, the librettist, whose perceptive, sophisticated adaptation of the Shavian original brilliance brought the "Pygmalion" legend to fullest musicomedy flower.

It pointed up anew that "MFL" ranks with "Oklahoma!", "South Pacific" and "Annie Get Your Gun" as classic examples of well nigh perfect musicals with thoroughly integrated book, lyrics and tunes—a homogenous whole wherein song and story blend naturally, unobtrusively, automatically.

As it unfolded for its final performance on Broadway the salvos for each successive, now familiar Lerner & Loewe tune seemed salvoer. In fact the hyper-enthusiastic applause verged on the artificial in its surcharged fervor during the proceedings and after librettist Lerner made the curtain speech with the cast. As the latter crisscrossed hands and arms in traditional "Aud Lang Syne" interlacing, some of the choristers were openly in tears as the news photographers flashgunned the cast and audience alike at this historic performance.

Producer Levin, in the lobby, called it the "happiest wake" he had witnessed, referring to the acclaim at the pre-final performance (at the Saturday matinee) and even the attractive girl selling the souvenir booklets was just about running out of stock. Seemingly the sentimentalists and show

(Continued on page 72)

Hey! Now Wait a Minute; Isn't That a Non-Musical?

Honolulu, Oct. 2.

The Honolulu Community Theatre netted $13,550 in it's 1961-62 season, helping whittle down a deficit of about $42,000 incurred since 1955.

It's still the same old story. The musicals make money, the non-musicals don't. "West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music" were the big grossers last season.

The season opens next month with "The World of Suzie Wong."

'Milk' a Year Old, Still in the Red

"Milk and Honey," which celebrates its first anniversary on Broadway next Wednesday (10), is still in the red. As of last July 31, the musical had a deficit of $73,987 on its $400,600 investment. The backers have been repaid $260,390 thus far.

On the basis of grosses in August and September, there were several profitable and a few non-profitable weeks during period. However, an overall operating profit is figured to have been registered by the production on the two-month spread and the deficit is now estimated at around $60,000. The weekly operating nut has been reduced by royalty waivers.

RCA Victor, which recorded the original cast album of the musical, has a substantial interest in the Gerard Oestreicher presentation, with an investment of $100,000. Under a special arrangement, the diskery is to get 12½% of the management's 50% share of any profits on the venture.

Among the backers of the musical are costars Robert Weede and Mimi Benzell, with respective investments of $1,600 and $2,500. Sharing headliner billing is Hermione Gingold, who succeeded Molly Picon last month. Don Appell wrote the book and Jerry Herman the music and lyrics for the show.

"Milk and Honey" cost $421,878 to bring to Broadway. Production expenses totalled $373,974, another $21,122 was dropped on the out-of-town tryout, and an operating loss of $26,782 was registered on 10 preview performances. Another preview was included in the first week of regular performances.

The musical, which can clear over $12,000 weekly on its potential gross capacity of $62,805, has been just about breaking even at the $40,000 mark. The royalties during most of July came to a combined $200 weekly for the authors, $66.67 weekly for director Albert Marre and around $25 weekly for choreographer Donald Saddler.

TO PREMIERE 'L'AVARE' AT GUTHRIE IN M'PLS.

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

A new play, "L'Avare," of undisclosed authorship, is understood to be one of the four productions scheduled for the season opening next May 7 at the Tyrone Guthrie repertory theatre under construction here. The other shows, all revivals, will be Chekhov's "The Three Sisters," Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman," and the previously announced "Hamlet."

George Grizzard, who will play the title role in "Hamlet," the opening show, has a clause in his contract as costar of the upcoming Broadway production "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" allowing him to leave the Edward Albee drama and come here to start the repertory company rehearsals in March.

Individuals who contributed to the $2,000,000 fund used to build the Guthrie Theatre will have priority in choice of performance dates and seat locations.

May Re-Tag Edinburgh Scottish Int'l Festival; Musical Accent for '63

By GORDON IRVING

Edinburgh, Oct. 2.

To mark the 150th anniversary of Verdi's birth, the Teatro San Carlos, Naples, will send a company to the International Edinburgh Festival in August of next year. A repertory of three operas will also include one by Rossini.

The musical emphasis in the 1963 Festival will be on Hector Berlioz, with the Covent Garden orchestra and chorus presenting the composer's major works. The opener will be a performance of his "La Damnation de Faust," with Georg Solti conducting. The Festival will also feature the music of Bartok.

Under the direction of Lord Harewood, artistic director, Edinburgh is being given a musical rather than a dramatic accent. The Concertgebouw Orch or Amsterdam, last here in 1957, will make its fourth visit. The English Opera Group, under the auspices of Covent Garden, will perform at the King's Theatre, with Benjamin Britten's "The Rape of Lucretia" on the program.

A loss is again expected from the 1962 Festival, which has been one of the worst from a weather viewpoint. Some visitors have called Festival "a Russian bore," in a reference to the heavy load of Russian music.

The name of the affair may be changed to Scottish International Festival, to attract the people of the heavily populated area of Glasgow and west Scotland into the audiences. At present lack of late-night train service prevents most Glasgow citizens from attending Festival events.

Can Vienna Opera Ballet Improve?

Union Limits Work to Four Hours Daily — Milloss Gives Job a Try Vienna, Oct. 2.

Vienna Opera has chosen a choreographer, notably lacking up to now with only rare and poor performances of the opera ballet. The choice is Aurel von Milloss, Hungarian born, but has worked the opera houses of Rome, Florence and Milan (La Scala) since the late 1930s. He is credited with having done much to revive ballet in Italy, asking contemporary composers (Dallapiccola, Rieti, Casella, Malipiero and painters (De Chirico, Fiume, Carra, Campigli, De Nobili) to collaborate with him and having trained a new generation of dancers. Two years ago he went to the opera in Cologne.

Viennese engagement is so far a "trial-marriage" as Milloss and the dancers must first get acquainted with each other's working methods. Also there is the difficulty that the local dancers' union does not allow more than four hours daily and only three hours on performance days. Milloss is used to work his dancers 8-10 hours a day in rehearsal periods and soloists even more than that.

His first ballet evening will be seen around Nov. 15. "Abstractions" to Prokofieff's 3rd piano concerto (first performed in Rome 1957) will open the program. It represents as Milloss himself puts it "his first impression of contact with Balanchine." Next will be Dallapiccoila's "Marsias" (premiere 1948 in Venice) and last a Hungarian dance-comedy, "Terszill Katica" to music by Sandor Veress, a pupil of Bartok. It was first given at the Florence May Festival in 1950.

'MFL' 10½-Mil Profit

Continued from page 1

ing the closing of the musical is covered in a separate story in this issue and for a more complete history of "Lady" see Page 2 of last week's VARIETY.

Another Broadway closing Saturday night was "Night of the Iguana," which registered a 316-performance run at the Royale Theatre. The Tennessee Williams play, produced by Charles Bowden, was capitalized at $150,000 and is figured to have broken about even on its investment. That takes into consideration the production's 40% share, less 10% commissions, of income from the sale of the film rights to Seven Arts on a sliding scale arrangement ranging from a minimum of $250,000 to a maximum of $400,000.

There's a possibility the touring rights to the play may be leased to another management, but it's understood Bowden wants cast approval. A London production is also regarded as a possibility.

Bette Davis, Margaret Leighton and Alan Webb were originally co-starred in the production. Shelley Winters succeeded Miss Davis in the role played during the end of the run by Priscilla Morrill. Other recent replacements included Patricia Roe for Miss Leighton and Leo Lucker for Webb. Miss Roe costarred in the final weeks with Patrick O'Neal who had featured billing when the play opened in New York.

On the road, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" called it quits Saturday in Boston after eight weeks of a scheduled 11-week run at the Shubert Theatre there. The Boston stand was unprofitable for the musical which, otherwise, played to healthy business during most of its post-Broadway tour. The Theatre Guild-Dore Schary presentation ended a 67-week Main Stem run last February at a slight deficit on its $400,000 investment.

Subsequent earnings on tour have resulted in a net profit of around $300,000, including revenue due from the sale of the screen rights to Metro for $500,000, of which the production gets $180,000 as its 40% share, less 10% commissions.

The musical, for which Meredith Willson wrote the music and lyrics and Richard Morris the book, starred Tammy Grimes in the title role, except that Karen Morrow subbed for a few weeks prior to the start of the Boston engagement.

Off-B'way Reviews

Sweet Miani

Edmund Brophy, in association with Donal Currie, presentation of a musical in two acts, with book by Stuart Bishop, music and lyrics by Ed Tyler. Staged by Louis MacMillan; musical direction, Robert Lenn; musical staging, Edward Earle; sets, Stuart Slade; lighting, Norman Finkelstein; costumes, Andre; music consultant, John Wallowitch. Musicians, Natalie Charlson, David Skine, Wallice Tukarcxky. Features Sheila Smith, Virgil Curry, Leeretia Gould, Paul Michael, Isabelle Farrell. Opened Sept. 25, '62, at the Players Theatre, N.Y.; $4.50 top weeknights, $4.90 weekends.

Cast: Sheila Smith, Virgil Curry, Leeretia Gould, Paul Michael, Isabelle Farrell, Victor Pierantozzi, Elida Jensen, Maury Haydn, Shirley Dalzell, Edward Earle, Peter Dunlop.

"Sweet Miani," a spoof of South Seas films of the 1930s, is absurd, corny and overdone. But it's also kind of funny, and those willing to forgive its many flaws might find it mildly enjoyable.

Presented with all the subtlety of an erupting volcano, Stuart Bishop's book contains all the cliches that of the Dorothy Lamour jungle films, including sacrificial virgins, amnesia victims, domesticated apes and perfectly-timed typhoons. And of course the characters burst into one of Ed Tyler's deliberatively awful songs at the drop of a sarong.

Among the stock types are the native beauty saved from death in the nick of time, a dumb blonde who finds true love on the desert island, a Bloody Mary-like priestess, and a prudish spinster who loses her inhibitions as well as most of her clothes. The ending, needless to say, is revoltingly happy.

Sheila Smith, a deft comedienne with a nice singing voice, is the saronged heroine and Virgil Curry is amiable as her lover. Shirley Dalzell, Peter Dunlop, Maury Haydn and Is belle Fletcher are also good in supporting roles. The sets, by Stuart Slade, are properly exotic, and there are clever touches on Louis MacMillan's staging.

The show starts off slowly, fizzles out at the end, and what comes between is erratic. But there are several amusing scenes and delightfully prepo terous moments, and though it's far from memorable, "Sweet Miani" is strangely likable. Kenn.

Digging for Apples

Ned Hendrickson & Frank Thomas presentation of a revue in two acts by James E. Butler and Robert Bowers, with lyrics by Butler and music by Bowers. Staged by the authors; music director, Bowers; choreography, Gretchen Vanaken and Bob Cotton; lighting, Bob Cotton; pianist, Helen Smith; sets and graphics, Gerald E. Proctor; production stage manager, Paul Caffrey; production coordinator, Maxine Reis; sound engineers, David Griffin and Robert Phillips. Opened Sept. 27, '62, at the Washington Square Theatre, N.Y.; $2.90 top weeknights, $3.90 weekends.

Cast: Bob Cotton, Jeff Furst, Paula Shaw, Vinnie Van, Gretchen Vanaken.

Despite its title, "Digging for Apples" has nothing to do with fruit or, incidentally, with good taste or entertainment.

Although the revue often deals with important and controversial topics, the treatment is childish and banal. Typical of the attempts at humor is the skit showing Jacqueline Kennedy preparing to disrobe as Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner stands by with a camera.

The opening number is a silly song with only "doo-doo" and "la-la" for lyrics, done in total darkness. It seems pointless, but turns out to be the best thing in the show. Kenn.

OFF-BROADWAY SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Anything Goes, Orpheum (5-15-62).
B. Fenstermaker, Sher. Sq. (9-17-62).
Blacks, St. Marks (5-4-61).
Brecht on Brecht, de Lys (1-3-62).
Digging Apples, Wash. Sq. (9-27-62).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St. (5-3-60).
Hanley plays, Cherry Lane (10-1-62).
Hostage, One Sheridan Sq. (12-12-61).
Man Is Man, Living Theatre (9-18-62).
Man's a Man, Masque (9-19-62).
Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Phoenix (2-26-62).
Portrait-Monks, Martinique (5-28-62).
Premise, Premise (11-22-60).
Sweet Miani, Players (9-25-62).
Wilder Plays, Circle in Sq (1-11-62).

CLOSED

Albee plays, Cherry Lane (9-4-62); ended limited engagement of 30 performances last Friday (28).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

O Say, Provincetown (10-8-62).
Angels of Anadarko, York (10-10-62).
Whisper God's Ear, Cricket (10-11-62).
P.S. 193, Fourth Street (10-16-62).
Love of Two Hours, Actors (10-26-62).
Anvil, Maidman (10-30-62).
Intimate Relations, Merm'd (11-1-62).
Living Room, Gramercy Arts (11-7-62).
We're Civilized, Jan Hus (11-8-62).
Cherry Orchard, Theatre 4 (11-14-62).

Roland Petit Will Dance, Stage Ballets in Paris

Paris, Oct. 2.

After the successful song and dance show starring Renee Jeanmaire at the Alhambra Music Hall last season, dancer-choreographer Roland Petit will return to long-hair, mixing classical and modern, in a series of four ballets in December at the Palais De Chaillot.

The company will be government-backed this time and share the theatre with the state subsidized Theatre National Populaire, which headquarters at the house. Rosella Hightower is the leading ballerina of the Petit troupe.

The ballets to be presented are Hector Berlioz's "Le Corsaire" ("The Pirate"), "Carnival Romain," Maurice Ravel's "Rhapsodie Espangole" and Paginini's "Caprice."

Last of 'Lady'

Continued from page 71

biz buffs were stocking up on her stock-in-trade before it was too late.

As the better known numbers—"Loverly," "Bit of Luck," "Rain In Spain," "Danced All Night," "Street Where You Live," "Show Me," "Grown Accustomed To Her Face" and "Without You" — unfolded, the outfronters applauded like they clap for a songwriter's "and-then-I-wrote" medley. The audience rapport with the score, the plot and the cast (capitally performed with nary a letdown by Michael Allinson and Margot Moser, with the expert support of Melville Cooper, Gordon Dilworth, Margery Maude and others) was like a combination old-home-week and a sorority reunion. Incidentally, when they come to casting that W. C. Fields legit musical, Dilworth is an uncanny lookalike and with the same wild-eyed, zany, offbeat comedy approach.

Dick Maney, Boswell to Levin, Lerner, Loewe & Co., has broadcast the statistics on "MFL," notably his complete summation in last week's issue, and to many at the last night it was cause to observe—as did Lisa Kirk and her writer-husband Bob Colwell — "Why does it have to close? Especially with all the business it's still doing."

There was a closing night invitation midnight party hosted by Levin in the foyer of the Broadway Theatre which the town's legit casts and other show biz names attended in honor of the past and present "MFL" casts. It lasted far in the a.m. but did not halt the IATSErs striking the sets to haul away the Oliver Smith scenery and Cecil Beaton costumes.

Incidentally, all through Sunday, the Gotham disk jockeys were further saluting the Lerner & Loewe score as a valedictory to "MFL," and Maney's excellent roundup story in last week's VARIETY got generous quotes and credits.

Incidentally, the Playbill publishers miscuessed on the demand. Last night programs were exhausted.

Closes With a Glow

Having established numerous records during its six and a half year Broadway run, "My Fair Lady" set another for its 2,717th and final one last Saturday night (29) at the Broadway Theatre, N.Y. According to the producer, Herman Levin, the musical took in $10,191 at the final performance.

That's believed to be the highest closing-night gross in Broadway history. "Lady" also drew $7,057 at the final matinee, for a total of $17,248 for the two last performances.

Subtle Distinction

Just before the closing performance of "My Fair Lady," last Saturday night (29) at the Broadway Theatre, N.Y., a couple of last-nighters spotted pressagent Richard Maney, in conversation with the show's librettist-lyricist, Alan Jay Lerner, in the lobby. He was wearing the standard opening-night p.a. attire, a tuxedo.

"I'll bet," one of the observers remarked, "that this is the first closing night Maney ever attended that wasn't also the opening night."

Legit-Concert Tie-In Deal

An arrangement has been worked out in Northampton, Mass., whereby a concert series at the 2,200-seat Smith College auditorium there will enable the town to have a legit season at the 953-seat Academy of Music. Involved in the setup is Broadway legit press-agent Dick Weaver, who's expanding his activities to local sponsorship in certain New England towns of touring legit production and concert presentations.

The New England enterprise was to have originally been handled by Weaver and Paul Anglim, another legit p.a. However, Anglim is now occupied as advance agent for the bus-and-truck production of "The Sound of Music," which began touring last week. Prior to going out with the show, he and Weaver worked out a deal in Northampton providing for them to secure legit bookings for the Academy in return for the right to present concert bills at the college auditorium (John M. Greene Hall).

Because of the small seating capacity at the Academy, there's little potential profit to be made by the house from the booking of legit shows, which on their infrequent visits to the town generally play spit-week stands. Weaver and Anglim suggested that if they could present a concert series at the college, anticipated profits from that operation could then be used to offset anticipated losses on their booking of legit productions into the Academy.

Presentations scheduled for the Academy include "The Matchmaker," "Mary, Mary," "A Shot in the Dark" and Hal Holbrook's one-man show, "Mark Twain Tonight." "Matchmaker," which the Phoenix Theatre, N. Y., is co-sponsoring with the N. Y. State Council on the Arts for a five-week tour of the state, is scheduled to open the season at the house with an Oct. 12-13 stand.

Among concert entries slated for the college auditorium are The Limeliters, Ferrante and Teicher, Cornelia Otis Skinner and the Jose Greco terp troupe.

Legit Followup Comment

Camelot
(MAJESTIC THEATRE, N.Y.)

After almost two years on Broadway, "Camelot" is still an astonishingly beautiful production, with sets and costumes that delight the eye. But with the departure of the original stars, the musical has lost much of its dramatic impact, and what remains is an elaborate but unexciting pageant.

William Squire, now playing King Arthur, is a competent actor, but his performance lacks the depth and insight that Richard Burton brought to the part. Arthur is the only fully-drawn character in Alan Jay Lerner's book, and if "Camelot" is to evoke an emotional response from the audience, the King must be brilliantly played. Squire comes close at times, but he does not do justice the potentially compelling role.

Guenevere is a more superficial character, but the part does require a vivacious personality in the early scenes. Janet Pavek, however, is stolid throughout, and although she sings well, her portrayal is bland. Among the other cast replacements, Tani Seitz comes off best, contributing a good performance as the gluttonous Morgan Le Fey. Christopher Cary is adequate as the distasteful Mardred, but Laurie Main is too loud and broad as King Pellinore.

Robert Goulet continues to be a satisfactory Lancelot, and it is he who draws the biggest applause from the television-viewers in the audience. The score, by Frederick Loewe, remains pleasant listening, although it cannot compensate for the disappointing performances. Kenn.

The Premise
(PREMISE THEATRE, N. Y.)

Improvisational theatre has become a national legit and cabaret vogue. Acting groups using this format have sprung up in several cities and have also appeared recently on national tv shows. The Premise Co. was the first such troupe to be a New York hit almost two years ago and has since become a staple item off-Broadway, where it continues to draw SRO crowds and has stretched its weekend performance schedule to three shows nightly.

"The Premise, which is produced by Theodore J. Flicker, in association with David W. Carter and Allan H. Mankoff, is also being presented by affiliate groups in Washington and London. The original N. Y. company is the one currently in London and the New York operation has two units and a workshop all active. The company and others like it have made a profit-making theatrical project out of what had been essentially an acting school teaching device.

Material used in "The Premise" is part sketched in advance and part audience-suggested. There is enough of the latter format to keep things lively and enough of the former to maintain the requisite safety for public performance. The most important factor here is the personalities and flexibility of the performers. The troupe caught, consisting of Sandy Baron, Gayle Coffin, David Dozer and Al Mancini, is an almost consistently sound unit.

Baron leads the company, introducing segments to the audience and generally setting the pace. He is a controlled and meticulous actor, able to skillfully create credible and real characters. His rabble-rousing Southern senator is a finely designed combination of stupidity, cliche, humor and ferocity and his army sergeant likewise captures the blank perseverance of an officer dealing with a loser of an enlisted man. Other fine contributions include a befuddled yet persistent driving instructor and free-wheeling bits in a variety of scenes.

Mancini registers humorously in several scenes, but tends to overplay. Although the results are usually funny, his excessive liveliness between scenes and equivalent mugging during sequences tend to wear. Nonetheless, he is an asset to the company, turning in several nice bits, including a dimwit private assigned to guard the pushbutton that would send the world into total war. It's funny, but too long.

Miss Coffin is a relative newcomer to the group. Although she hasn't completely settled into the groove, she turns in some strongly effective bits, like a nutty method actress who needs motivations and sense memory aids to take a driving test. Dozer doesn't often come across effectively. He seems to lack the exuberance of his teammates and also is a slower improviser. When things get going and require sharp agility, he's not always there.

Improvisations cover characters and locations suggested by the audience, plus some film plot bits with titles from the house. A "Gone With the Wind" sketch at the show caught turned out to be hilarious, although it got out of hand. Other items include topical material on the Kennedy family, Castro, Nixon, Khrushchev, Rockefeller, cops in drag, the Moses-Barnes disputes and other bits. Psychology also takes a drubbing and so does the military.

It all adds up to a lively and often eye-watering evening. At its present pace, it would appear that "The Premise" is due for several more anniversaries off-Broadway, both entertaining patrons and providing an excellent showcase for fine young talent. Kali.

Scheduled B'way Preems

Stop the World, Shubert (10-3-62).
Come on Strong, Morosco (10-4-62).
Virginia Woolf, Rose (10-13-62).
Seidman and Son, Belasco (10-15-62).
Step on a Crack, Barrymore (10-17-62).
Mr. President, St James (10-20-62).
Fun Couple, Lyceum (10-22-62).
Night Life, Atkinson (10-23-62).
Perfect Setup, Cort (10-24-62).
Matter of Position, Booth (10-25-62).
Beyond Fringe, Golden (10-27-62).
Tchin-Tchin, Plymouth (10-29-62).
Calculated Risk, Ambass. (10-31-62).
Nowhere to Go, Winter Gard. (11-10-62).
D'Oyly Carte, Center (11-13-62).
Little Me, Lunt-Fontanne (11-17-62).
Lord Pengo, Royale (11-19-62).
Never Too Late, Playhouse (11-27-62).
Harold, Longacre (11-29-62).
Counting House, Biltmore (12-13-62).
Oliver, Imperial (12-27-62).
Hot Spot, Shubert (3-2-63).
School Scandal, Majestic (1-24-63).
Tovarich, Broadway (3-7-63).

Road: 'Fringe' $69,918 in Toronto, 'World' Sets Record $73,015, Philly; 'Fun' $15,159, Balto; 'Setup' 12G, S.F.

The road was crowded with tryouts last week, including both hot tickets and low-temperature ones. Continuing at a wow pace was "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," which established a house record at the Shubert Theatre, Philadelphia. "Beyond the Fringe" was powerful in Toronto and "Mr. President" and "Oliver" were big in Washington and San Francisco, respectively.

The top-grosser for the week was the Civic Light Opera production of "Kismet" in Los Angeles. "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" closed last Saturday night (29) in Boston and the Broadway-bound "Fun Couple" postponed its opening at the Forrest Theatre, Philly, from last Monday night (1) to tonight (Wed.).

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates tryout and RS indicates road show. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

Where subscription is mentioned, the gross is the net after the deduction of commissions. Grosses for split weeks are projected when shows play guaranteed dates.

BALTIMORE

Fun Couple, Ford's (C-T) ($4.88; 1,819; $51,132) (Jane Fonda, Bradford Dillman). Previous week, $18,069 for five performances, Playhouse, Wilmington.

Opened here Sept. 24 to two unfavorable notices (Gardner, Morning Sun; Pantell, Evening Sun) and one no opinion (Clark, News-Post).

Last week, $15,159.

BOSTON

Come on Strong, Wilbur (D-T) (2d wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,241; $37,126) (Carroll Baker, Van Johnson). Previous week, $17,244.

Last week, $14,827.

Seidman and Son, Colonial (C-T) (1st wk) ($4.95-$5.95; 1,685; $50,585) (Sam Levene). Previous week, $21,085 for five performances, Shubert, New Haven.

Opened here Sept. 24 to five affirmative reviews (Guidry, Monitor; Kelly, Globe; Hughes, Herald; Maloney, Traveler; Norton, Record).

Last week, $25,115 with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription.

Unsinkable Molly Brown, Shubert (MC-RS) (8th wk) ($6.25-$6.75; 1,717; $59,000) (Tammy Grimes). Previous week, $47,958 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $49,024 with TG-ATS subscription. Closed here last Saturday night (29).

CHICAGO

Mary, Mary, Blackstone (C-RS) (4th wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,447; $42,000) (Julia Meade, Scott Mckay, Tom Helmore). Previous week, $34,369 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $32,943 with TG-ATS subscription.

Sound of Music, Shubert (MD-RS) (46th wk) ($5.95-$6.50; 2,100; $72,000) (Barbara Meister, John Myhers). Previous week, $42,325.

Last week, $39,334.

DENVER

My Fair Lady, Auditorium (MC-RS) (1st wk) ($5.50-$6.50; 2,200) (Ronald Drake, Caroline Dixon). Previous week, $26,829 for six performances, Capitol, Salt Lake City.

Last week, $51,723 for seven performances.

DETROIT

Step on a Crack, Fisher (D-T) (1st wk) ($4.95; 1,616; $35,000) (Gary Merrill, Donald Madden). Previous week, $16,313, Hanna, Cleveland.

Opened here Sept. 24 to [illegible] News) and one pan [illegible] Press).

Last week, $7,200.

LOS ANGELES

Kismet, [illegible] (1st wk) [illegible] week, about $[illegible] with Civic Light Opera subscription, Curran, San Francisco.

Last week, about $77,800 with CLO subscriptions.

MILWAUKEE

Carnival, Pabst (MC-RS) ($6.20-$6.70; 1,623; $58,000) (Carla Alberghetti, Ed Ames). Previous week, $58,133, Fisher, Detroit.

Last week, $39,789 with TG-ATS subscription.

MONTREAL

Hostage, Her Majesty's (C) ($4.50; 1,704; $32,000). Opened tour here Sept. 24.

Last week, about $9,000.

PHILADELPHIA

Matter of Position, Walnut (C-T) (1st wk) ($4.80-$5.40; 1,349; $40,800) (Mike Nichols).

Last week, $4,145 with TG-ATS subscription for opening performance Saturday night (29) which drew three pans (Gaghan, News; Murdock, Inquirer; Schier, Bulletin).

Night Life, Locust (D-T) (1st wk) ($4.50-$5; 1,418; $41,641).

Last week, $5,068 for opening performance Saturday night (29). The opening, postponed from the previous Thursday (27), conflicted with the local preem of "A Matter of Position" and consequently the critics attended a special Sunday night (30) performance which drew three pans (Gaghan, News; Murdock, Inquirer; Schier, Bulletin).

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off, Shubert (MC-T) (3d wk) ($6.60-$7.50; 1,907; $72,674) (Anthony Newley). Previous week, $71,722 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $73,015 with TG-ATS subscription, a house record.

SAN FRANCISCO

Oliver, Curran (MD-T) (1st wk) ($6.25-$6.50; 1,758; $65,000) (Clive Revill, Georgia Brown). Previous week, $76,615 with CLO subscription, Philharmonic, Los Angeles.

Opened here Sept. 25 to three endorsements (Eichelbaum, Examiner; Knickerbocker, Chronicle; Speegle, News Call Bulletin).

Last week, $52,364 for seven performances with CLO subscription.

Perfect Setup, Geary (C-T) (1st wk) ($5.40-$5.95; 1,483; $41,000) (Gene Barry, Angie Dickinson, Jan Sterling). Previous week, unreported.

Opened here Sept. 25 to one lukewarm notice (Knickerbocker, Chronicle) and two unfavorable (Eichelbaum, Examiner; Speegle, News Call Bulletin).

Last week, about $12,000 for seven performances.

TORONTO

Beyond the Fringe, O'Keefe (R-T) (1st wk) ($5-$5.50; 3,211; $92,062). Previous week, $45,019 with TG-ATS subscription, National, Washington.

Opened here Sept. 24 to three endorsements (Cohen, Star; Evans, Telegram; Whittaker, Globe and Mail).

Last week, $69,918.

WASHINGTON

Mr. President, National (MC-T) (1st wk) ($5.50-$7.90; 1,673; $68,464) (Robert Ryan, Nanette Fabray). Previous week, $54,627 for seven performances with TG-ATS subscription, Colonial, Boston.

Opened here Sept. 25 to three negative notices (Coe, Post; Donnelly, News; MacArthur, Star).

Last week, $59,035 for seven performances with TG-ATS subscription.

SPLIT WEEK

Mary, Mary (bus-truck) (C-RS) (Lee Bowman). Previous week, $58,181 with TG-ATS subscription, Orpheum, Minneapolis.

Last week, $28,544 for six performances: Orpheum, Davenport, Ia., Monday (24), one; Coronado, Rockford, Ill., Tuesday (25), one; Paramount, Waterloo, Ia., Wednesday (26), one; Orpheum, Madison, Wis., Thursday-Friday (27-28), two; High School, Appleton, Wis., Saturday (29), one.

STRATFORD (ONT.) FEST $51,089 IN FINAL WEEK

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 2.

The Stratford Shakespearean Festival ended a 15-week repertory season here last Saturday (29) with a $51,089 take for the final week's presentation of four performances of "Macbeth," three of "The Tempest" and two of "Cyrano de Bergerac." The performances of "Macbeth" and "Tempest," including six matinees, represented a special offering at reduced rates for highschool students. "Cyrano" was presented at regular prices with a top of $5.

The potential capacity gross for the nine performances at the 2,258-seat Festival Theatre was $51,955. The previous week's take for the same program was $51,496.

Edinburgh and Glasgow Set Own Shows, Old Vic

Glasbow, Oct. 2.

The Glasgow Citizens Theatre, under new producer Piers Haggard, has lined up a series of revivals for its fall season.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" opened Sept. 17, and will be followed by "A Streetcar Named Desire," "The Good Woman of Setguan," "Uncle Vanya" and "Arms and the Man." A revue is scheduled for Christmas.

The company will include Anne Kristen, Robert Baird, Brian Carey, Gloria Dolskie, Peter Vaughan, Alex McAvoy, Marillyn Gray and Jean Taylor Smith.

The Gateway Theatre, Edinburgh, premiere coming up Nov. 12 with the production of Robert Kemp's "The Perfect Gent," a Scot. comedy. Other productions planned include "The Good Soldier Schweik," "Juno and the Paycock," "The Rivals" and "The Birthday Party."

Touring productions due here include "Akin to Death," a new thriller by Derek Bond, with Griffith Jones and Noelle Middleton, and Julia Lockwood and Barry Sinclair in "No Time for Love," by James Leggat, both skedded for the King's Theatre, Edinburgh. The Old Vic of London is slated for a Scotland tour, offering "Julius Caesar" and "The Tempest."

Peter Duryea, Dan's Son, To Join Houston Group

Peter Duryea, son of film star Dan Duryea, has been signed by producer-director Nina Vance for a season of winter stock at her Alley Theatre in Houston. The youth, who's been active in summer stock the last three years, recently completed a stint as actor-stage manager at the Mt. Kisco (N. Y.) Playhouse.

He'll appear in 12 of the 40 plays scheduled for presentation at the Alley Theatre during the 1962-63 season which begins there Oct. 24.

Touring Shows

(Figures cover Sept. 30-Oct. 14)

Beyond the Fringe (tryout)—O'Keefe, Toronto (Oct. 1-6); Colonial, Boston (Oct. 8-13).

Calculated Risk (tryout)—Shubert, New Haven (Oct. 9-13).

Carnival (2d Co.)—Music Hall, K.C. Oct. 1-3; State Fair, Dallas (Oct. 5-14).

Come Blow Your Horn—Moore, Seattle (Oct. 8-13).

D'Oyly Carte Opera Co.—Auditorium, Winnipeg (Oct. 2-6); Northrop, Mpls. (Oct. 8-9); Bushnell, Hartford (Oct. 11-14).

Fun Couple (tryout)—Forrest, Philly (Oct. 3-13).

Hostage—Royal Alexandra, Toronto (Oct. 1-6); Hanna, Cleve. (Oct. 8-13).

Kismet—Philharmonic, L.A. (Oct. 1-13).

Little Me (tryout)—Erlanger, Philly (Oct. 8-13).

Lord Pengo (tryout)—Locust, Philly (Oct. 11-13).

Mary, Mary (2d Co.)—Blackstone, Chi (Oct. 1-13).

Mary, Mary (bus-truck)—Mostly one-niters (Oct. 1-13).

Matter of Position (tryout)—Walnut, Philly (Oct. 1-13).

Mr. President (tryout)—National, Wash. (Oct. 1-13).

My Fair Lady—Auditorium, Denver (Oct. 1-7); Auditorium, Oklahoma City (Oct. 11-13).

Night Life (tryout)—Locust, Philly (Oct. 1[illegible] Nowhere to Go But Up—[illegible] (Oct. 1[illegible]

Oliver—[illegible]

Perfect Setup—[illegible] (Oct. 1[illegible]

Playboy of the Western World—[illegible]

Seidman and Son—[illegible]

Shot in the Dark—[illegible]

Sound of Music—[illegible]

Sunday in New York—[illegible]

Take Her, She's Mine—[illegible]

Tchin-Tchin (tryout)—Wilbur, Bos[illegible]

B'way Still Spotty; 'Man' $33,112, 'Wholesale' $32,626, 'Milk' $28,501, 'Thousand' $23,652, 'Affair' $13,923

Broadway had another up-and-down session last week, with receipts indicating the probable demise soon of at least a couple of shows. Holding steady, however, were the sellouts "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Two shows closed last Saturday night (29), "My Fair Lady" and "Night of the Iguana," and another, "Come Blow Your Horn," exits next Saturday (6) to tour. Productions debuting this week are "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," tonight (Wed.) at the Shubert Theatre, and "Come on Strong," tomorrow night (Thurs.) at the Morosco Theatre.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep. (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% repealed City tax (diverted to an industry-wide pension and welfare fund), but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Grosses have been reduced by commissions where theatre parties are mentioned.

Asterisk denotes show had cut-rate tickets in circulation.

Affair, Miller (D) (2d wk; 12 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 840; $33,500). Previous week, $14,499 for four performances and two previews.

Last week, $13,923.

Camelot, Majestic (MC) (95th wk; 761 p) ($9.40; 1,626; $84,000) (William Squire, Janet Pavek, Robert Goulet). Previous week, $49,852. Understudy Robert Peterson succeeds Goulet next Monday (8) and Kathryn Grayson takes over Oct. 23 for Miss Pavek.

Last week, $54,118.

Carnival Imperial (MC) (77th wk; 612 p) ($8.60; 1,428; $68,299). Previous week, $32,076.

Last week, $32,321.

Come Blow Your Horn, Atkinson (C) (84th wk; 669 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,090; $42,522). Previous week, $13,647. Exits next Saturday (6) to tour.

Last week, $8,812.

Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Alvin (MC) (21st wk; 167 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,334; $65,096) (Zero Mostel). Previous week, $65,768.

Last week, $65,777.

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, 46th St. (MC) (51st wk; 401 p) ($6.90; 1,342; $66,615). Previous week, $67,503.

Last week, $67,529.

I Can Get It for You Wholesale, Shubert (MC) (28th wk; 220 p) ($8.60; 1,461; $60,000) (Lillian Roth). Previous week, $35,536. Moved last Monday (1) to the Broadway Theatre.

Last week, $32,626.

Man for All Seasons, ANTA (D) (45th wk; 357 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,214; $49,600) (Emlyn Williams, Thomas Gomez, George Rose). Previous week, $33,668.

Last week, $33,112.

Mary, Mary, Haye (C) (82d wk; 652 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,139; $43,380) (Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson, Edward Mulhare). Previous week, $35,462.

Last week, $38,465.

Milk and Honey, Beck (MC) (51st wk; 407 p) ($8.40-$9.60; 1,-28[illegible]; $62,895) (Robert Weede, Mi[illegible] Previous week, $[illegible]

Last week, $28,501.

No Strings, 54th St. (MC) (wk; 228 p) ($[illegible] Previous [illegible] Last week [illegible]

Sound of [illegible] (MD) [illegible] 1,407; $[illegible]

Previous week, $43,352. Moves Nov. 5 to the Hellinger Theatre.

Last week, $46,028.

Take Her, She's Mine, Biltmore (C) (41st wk; 324 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 936; $40,180) (Art Carney). Previous week, $25,078.

Last week, $26,456.

Thousand Clowns, O'Neill (C) (26th wk; 204 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,076; $44,730) (Jason Robards Jr.). Previous week, $28,286.

Last week, $23,652.

Closed Last Week

My Fair Lady, Broadway (MC) (341st wk; 2,715 p) ($8.05; 1,900; $72,311) (Michael Allinson, Margot Moser). Previous week, $36,540.

Last week, $50,117. Closed Saturday (29) at an estimated $10,500,000 profit on a $360,000 investment (see separate story).

Night of the Iguana, Royale (D) (40th wk; 316 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 999; $42,000) (Patrick O'Neal, Patricia Roe). Previous week, $12,396.

Last week, $12,096. Closed Saturday (29) and is figured to have broken even on its $150,000 investment (see separate story).

Opening This Week

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off, Shubert (MC) ($8.60; 1,461; $60,000) (Anthony Newley).

David Merrick presentation of musical by Anthony Newley and Leslie Brisusse. Capitalized at $75,000, opens tonight (Wed.) at a cost of about $17,000.

Come on Strong, Morosco (D) ($6.90-$7.50; 999; $41,960) (Carroll Baker, Van Johnson).

Hillard Elkins and Al Goldin presentation of play by Garson Kanin. Capitalized at $115,000, opens tomorrow night (Thurs.) at an estimated cost of virtually its entire investment.

Other Theatres

Ambassador, Barrymore, Belasco, Booth, Broadhurst, Cort, Golden, Hellinger, Longacre, Lyceum, Music Box, Playhouse, Plymouth, Rose, St. James, Winter Garden.

Minn. Univ. to Present D'Oyly Carte on Campus

Minneapolis, Oct. 2.

The Univ. of Minnesota's 1962-63 Artists Course series will open Oct. 8-9 with the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co. in performances of "The Gondoliers" and "The Mikado," at the 5,800-seat Northrop Auditorium on the campus. It will be the British troupe's first Twin Cities visit.

The booking is unusual in that the second of the two performances will not be included as a subscription season item. Most such touring legit offerings play the Minneapolis Orpheum or St. Paul Auditorium, which house the Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription shows.

Other of the Artist Course series will be the Goldovsky Opera Co.'s English version of "La Traviata" (a return engagement) and concerts by tenor Richard Tucker, violinist Isaac Stern on the course for the fourth time, pianists Philippe Entremont and the Soviet's Sviatoslov Richter and Metropolitan Opera singer Anna Moffo.

Freedley's Encore

"More Mr. Cat" by George Freedley Frisel; $3.50; is a forthcoming sequel to the author's "Mr. Cat," which had considerable success here and in England. Freedley is curator of the theatre collection at N. Y. Pub[illegible] Drama critic for the N[illegible] night-club writer and lecturer. Current subject is the [illegible] for many [illegible] minute [illegible] the Metro[illegible] by Carl [illegible] of Mayfair [illegible] cycle to [illegible] [illegible] Dist[illegible] the Wes[illegible] open [illegible] Late Mr[illegible] [illegible], Chap[illegible] [illegible] Rog[illegible]

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. This information is published without charge.

Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading, (DB) Double Bill.

Legit

BROADWAY

"Fanny Brice Story" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: man, about 30, must sing, handsome, affable; man, John Garfield type, must sing; femme, dance, attractive and sad, pert; femme, Thelma Ritter type, wise, sympathetic but not sentimental; man, authoritative showman, gentleman. Mail photos and resumes to Casting Department c/o producer.

"I Can Get It For You Wholesale" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Open call tomorrow (Thurs.) for dancers who also sing: men at 2 p.m. and women at 4 p.m., at Broadway Theatre (1681 Broadway, N.Y.).

"Oliver" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Seeking future possible replacements: boys, 7-10, must sing, 54" tall or shorter. Mail photos and resumes or call Casting Department at above address and number.

"Sound of Music" (MD). Producers, Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein 2d (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.); casting director, Eddie Blum. Auditions for possible future replacements for girls, 7-16, and boys, 11-14 all with trained voices, characters. Mail photos and resumes to above address.

"Student Gypsy or Prince of Liederkranz" (MC). Producer, Edward Padula (Padula Productions; 1501 Broadway, N. Y., Suite 2405; OX 5-8170). Available parts: man, middle age comedian, European accent, sings; man, middle age, vagabond, baritone; femme, exotic, saucy, young and pretty soubrette, singer-actress; femme, attractive, soprano; man, early 20s, tall, handsome, legit baritone, typical operetta hero; man, early 20s, dancer, young villain; femme, middle age, legit contralto, tyrant, heavy build; man, singer-actor, shy and retiring officer; man, middle age, European accent, regal, sings; femme, early 20s, pantomimist, smiles at everything, mute; nine femmes, ensemble, young, attractive, dancing secondary; nine men, ensemble, tall, handsome, legit voices, dancing secondary. Mail photos and resumes to Robert Fagan c/o producer at above address. Auditions set after receiving applications. Do not phone or visit.

OFF-BROADWAY

"Elizabeth The Queen" (D). Producer, Equity Library Theatre (226 W. 47th St., N. Y.; PL 7-1710). All parts available except Elizabeth I. Some non-Equity actors will be used as bits and walk-ons. Script available at Samuel French (25 W. 45th St., N. Y.). Auditions today (Wed.), 6-11 p.m., at ELT rehearsal studio (Master Institute, 103d St. & Riverside Dr., N. Y.). All Equity members must bring membership cards.

"Hazel Flagg" (MC). Producer, Peter Cereghetti (c/o Wellington Hotel, 871 Seventh Ave., N. Y.; CI 7-3900). Available parts: femme, early or mid-40s, widow, attractive, Madison Avenue type; leading man, early 30s, political expert, mag writer; leading lady, early 20s, energetic, too much vitality; man, about 60, smalltown doctor; femme, exotic; man, heavy dancer; man, middleaged, Ted Lewis-Al Smith type, talkative. All parts must sing and dance. Mail photos and resumes to producer. Appointment will be made after receiving resumes. Do not phone or visit.

"Lady Killer" (MC). Producer, Lance Barklie (127 Lexington Ave., N. Y.; MU 5-4631). Available parts: corpulent, lusty, actor-singer, move well; femme, a serving wench, cockney; actress to play six different femmes, must be proficient in dialects; court fool, dancer-actor, tenor; actor to play several different men, proficient in dialects. Mail photos and resumes to producer at above address. Do not phone.

National Repertory Theatre Foundation (322 E. 50th St. N. Y.; PL 2-5640). Producers, Michael Dewell & Frances Ann Hersey; director, Jack Sydow. Auditions later this season for actors with training in classic theatre, speech and movement. No one need apply whose work is known to the producers and director. Tours under the auspices of ANTA. Mail photos and resumes to Dewell, c/o theatre, at above address. Do not phone or visit.

"Premise" (R). Producer, Theodore J. Flicker (154 Bleeker St., N. Y. 12, N. Y.). Available parts for actors and actress experienced in improvisational theatre. Mail photos and resumes to director, George Morrison c/o producer. Do not phone or visit.

"Sitting Ducks" (MC). Producer, Lance Barklie (127 Lexington Ave., N. Y.; MU 5-4631). Available parts for three actors and three actresses, age 25-35, must sing-act-dance, have good timing, good sense of comedy and broad farce. Mail photos and resume to producer at above address, do not phone.

"South of Heaven" (MD). Producer, Lance Barklie (127 Lexington Ave., N. Y.; MU 5-4631). All Negro cast. Available parts: leading lady, 40's, Ethel Waters type, strong legit voice; leading man, early 20's, young Belafonte or Poitier type; femme, comedy lead, 30's, Butterfly McQueen type; ingenue, soprano, pretty. Mail photos and resumes to producer at above address. Do not phone.

"When Burlesque Was King" (MC). Producers, Jerry Gross & Stephen Weinroth (Jerry Gross Productions, 620 W. 171st St., N. Y. 32, N. Y.; WA 8-9580). Available parts for attractive, strippers and specialty dancers, 18-30. Mail photos and resumes to above address or phone for appointment.

OUT OF TOWN

Compass Improvisational Theatre. Producer, William Court Cohen (235 E. 39th St., N.Y.). Equity company to play in Boston early fall. Seeking male and femme with or without improvisational experience. Mail photos and resumes to David Shepherd c/o above address. Do not phone or visit.

BALTIMORE

Relay Players. Director, Gavin Fletcher (21 Holly Rd., Severna Park, Md.; area code 301 647-2088). Parts available for male and femme actors for this repertory company which will open shortly with productins of "Hamlet" and some one-acters by Eugene Ionesco. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address.

MILWAUKEE, WISC.

Hotel Pfister. Producer Joyce Henry (c/o hotel, Milwaukee 2, Wisconsin). Series of tab musicals opening in early fall for a 52-week season. Parts available for three men and three femmes, singer-performers with legit and non-legit voices, dance ability preferred. Mail photos and resumes to producer c/o hotel.

Cabaret

LAS VEGAS

Tropicana. (c/o Ray Evans Agency, 119 W. 57th St., N.Y.; CI 6-2230). Spots available for showgirls over five feet, eight inches tall; male dancers over five feet, 11 inches tall; femme dancers over five feet, seven inches tall. For audition appointment call Miss Frank, above number. Show goes into rehearsal in November.

NEW YORK

Strollers Theatre Club. Producer, John Krimsky (154 E. 54th St., N.Y.; PL 2-4711). Parts available for experienced and authentic French music hall performers for a new French revue to open before Xmas. Mail photos and resumes to Ivor D. Balding, c/o above address.

PUERTO RICO

Americana Hotel. Auditions for showgirls for this new San Juan hotel tomorrow (Thurs.) and Friday (5), from 2-4 p.m., at the Albert Hall of the Americana Hotel, N.Y., (Seventh Ave. & 52d St., N.Y.). No experience is necessary and girls selected will be guaranteed 12 weeks work, beginning in November.

Television

"Camera Three" (educational-dramatic series). Producer, CBS (524 W. 57th St., N. Y.; JU 6-6000); casting director, Paula Hindlin. Accepting photos and resumes of general male and female dramatic talent, c/o above address. No duplicates.

NBC-TV. (30 Rockefeller Plaza, N. Y.; CI 7-8300). Casting director Rick Kelley is accepting photos and resumes of male and femme dramatic performers for several shows. Mail information to him, c/o above address. No duplicates.

Films

"All The Way Home" (D). Producer, Talent Associates-Paramount (444 Madison Ave., N.Y.; PL 3-1030). Seeking stand-ins for Robert Preston & Jean Simmons: man, must be six foot one, 180 pounds, brown hair; femme, five foot four and one half, brown hair, slim. Mail photos and resumes and exact measurements to Alan Shayne c/o producers.

Miscellaneous

Riverside Chamber Singers. Director, Alan Baker (321 W. 22d St., N. Y.; CH 3-0369). All-AGMA sextet auditioning for a low bass who's an excellent sight reader and has good solo quality. Must be willing to tour for up to four weeks at a time. For audition appointment call David Dodds, NE 9-6718 or TR 3-7736.

SHOW PEOPLE ARE ALWAYS WELCOME at Bradford HOTEL
275 TREMONT STREET BOSTON in the Heart of Theatre District - next door to Shubert Theatre
THEATRICAL RATES
Weekly
All Rooms with Television, Radio, Private Bath
Phone: HAncock 6-1400

REWARD FOR BEAUTIFUL BLONDES*
REVLON will care for your hair free in exchange for six days a year of your time.
For information call Miss Martin JU 6-1355

BLONDES WANTED
ALL TYPES OF HAIR COLOR MODELS wanted for Hair Fashion Beauty Show in New York City. Free hair coloring. Coiffures by World Famous Hair Stylists. National Publicity Coverage. For appointment call MISS IRENE — MU 6-2495.

Shows Abroad

Continued from page 70

Brecht on Brecht

ceded, has much of the cream, including standout songs composed by her late husband; but there are also noteworthy contributions from the four other cast members. Particularly excellent are George Devine and Valerie Gearon, though they do not always have the best items, but Barry Foster and Norman Rossington are also first rate and make the most of their many opportunities.

As with the New York original, the show is divided into two parts, "Life" and "Theatre," though there appear to have been changes in the items in each of the two sections. As a means of projecting Brecht's personality, the first part is the more expressive, though the second serves best to demonstrate his skill as a playwright and philosopher.

Inevitably, there are dull patches in each, and they seem more frequent in second part. Excepts from some of his plays do not always fit snugly into the sleek format devised by Tabori.

The only decor is a blown-up photograph of Brecht in a characteristic pose, with hand on chin and holding a half-smoked cigar. That provides the appropriate background for the occasional tapes of his investigation before the Senate Committee on un-American Activities, and also of his recording of "Moritat," from the "Threepenny Opera." Myro.

Johnnie Couer

Paris, Sept. 20.

Yvonne Printemps-Francois Perier presentation of two-act (nine scenes) comedy by Romain Gary. Staged by Perier, assisted by Jean Chouquet; set and costumes, Alexandre Trauner; music, Jean Wiener. Stars Francois Perier; features Henri Virlojeux, Francoise Delbart, Maurice Chevit, Michel De Re, Roger Carel. Opened Sept. 17, '62, at the Theatre Michodiere, Paris; $3.50 top.

Johnnie ..... Francois Perier
Archie ..... Henri Virlojeux
Frankie ..... Francoise Delbart
Grinberg ..... Maurice Chevit
Bliss ..... Michel De Re
Harry Le Rat ..... Roger Carel

Though it deals with nuclear bombs, Cuba, the United Nations and East and West tensions, this first play by French novelist-diplomat Romain Gary has a curiously old fashioned air. Being done only once a week, alongside a hit long-run play, it does not seem likely for future transfer to a regular basis and its export prospects are slight, except possibly off-Broadway.

The story involves a young Texan who has fled a rich family to find his own place in the world, and his experiences in politics, peace crusades and such efforts. The play contains biting comment on hypocritical politicians, venal journalism, mob psychology and American and Continental customs. But the effect is surfacey and confused.

Alexandre Trauner has devised a garret room setting in a skyscraper, but the staging fails to make this character-like affair into telling theatre. Director-coproducer-actor Francois Perier is hard put to make the hero either a person or a solid satirical symbol. The others are varyingly effective, especially Roger Carel as a sanctimonious gangster. Incidental music by Jean Wiener has a nice bounce.

Gary, who spent several years in the U.S. as French Counsel in Los Angeles, can write about the country without the inconsistencies usual for non-American authors. But he touches only the surface and a theme that has been done better before. Mosk.

Pomme, Pomme, Pomme

(Apple, Apple, Apple)

Paris, Sept. 20.

Ludmila Vlasto & Georges Vitaly presentation of a two-act comedy by Jacques Audiberti. Staged by Georges Vitaly; sets and costumes, Yves Faucheur; music, Michel Mery. Stars Marie Daems, Dominique Paturel, Jean-Pierre Marielle, Francoise Vatel. Opened Sept. 12, '62, at the Theatre La Bruyere, Paris; $3.50 top.

Vevette ..... Marie Daems
Dadou ..... Dominique Paturel
Zozo ..... Jean-Pierre Marielle
Pomme ..... Francoise Vatel

"Pomme, Pomme, Pomme" is an offbeat intellectual and philosophical legit romp of the sort called "theatre of the absurd." But though talky, it has an impish drive and a blend of words and action that make it diverting if controversial theatre. It should have a run here and could be adapted for specialized success abroad.

Roughly, the play is the Adam and Eve story transplanted to the chic section of Paris. Here a penniless couple, given lodging by an unseen but penurious father.

The man seems poetic and innocent, while the woman is realistic and wily. Another character tempts them with promises, mainly of power and riches. A rounded girl may be the serpent.

Georges Vitaly's direction has the right pace, mood and gestures to underline the flamboyant, verbose but illuminating and penetrating text. The Yves Faucheur sets are imaginative and the functional simple music of Michel Mery is also good.

Marie Daems' brittle Eve character, Dominique Paturel's droll Adam, Jean-Pierre Marielle's tour-de-force liming of the Devil, and Francoise Vatel's rounded and beguiling impersonation of both the serpent and the apple, are first-rate. Mosk.

Rathgeb a Professor

Winooski Park, Vt., Oct. 2.

Donald Rathgeb, manager of St. Michael's Playhouse here for the last two years, has been appointed assistant professor of drama at St. Michael's College.

Rev. Paul A. Morin, academic dean, said the addition of full-time teachers in art and drama will further extend the local college's courses in the humanities.

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Beyond Fringe, Fortune (5-10-62).
Black Nativity, Phoenix (8-14-62).
Blitz, Adelphi (5-8-62).
Blow Horn, Prince Wales (2-27-62).
Boeing-Boeing, Apollo (2-20-62).
Breaking Point, Lyric (9-5-62).
Brecht on Brecht, Royal Ct. (9-11-62).
Chips With, Vaudeville (4-27-62).
Do Something, Royal E. (9-13-62).
Doctors of Philosophy, Arts (10-2-62).
Every Night, Palladium (6-1-62).
Gentlemen Prefer, Princes (8-20-62).
Lock Daughters, Her Majesty's (5-17-62).
Minstrels, Vic. Palace (5-25-62).
Miss Pell, Criterion (9-12-62).
Mousetrap, Ambassador (11-25-52).
Mrs. Puffin, Duchess (7-18-61).
Music Midnight, Westm'r (5-4-62).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).
New Men, Strand (9-6-62).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
One For the Pot, Whitehall (8-2-61).
Period Adjustment, Wynd. (6-13-62).
Photo Finish, Saville (4-25-62).
Plough & Stars, Mermaid (9-25-62).
Premise, Comedy (7-26-62).
Private; Public, Globe (5-10-62).
Rattle of Man, Garrick (9-19-62).
Repertory, Aldywich (12-15-60).
Sail Away, Savoy (6-21-62).
Signpost, Cambridge (2-9-62).
School for Scandal, Haymarket (4-5-62).
Sound of Music, Palace (3-18-61).
Stop the World, Queens (7-20-61).
10 Little Niggers, St. Mart. (9-10-62).

CLOSED

Big Fish, Duke of York's (9-18-62); closed last Saturday (29) after 15 performances.
Infanticide Ginger, Arts (8-29-62); ended limited engagement of 26 performances Sept. 22.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Escape Eden, Lyric, H'smith (10-3-62).
Fiorello, Piccadilly (10-8-62).
Rock-A-Bye, Phoenix (10-16-62).
Eastward Ho!, Mermaid (10-17-62).
What a Crazy World, Royal E. (10-30-62).
Happy Days, Royal Court (11-1-62).
Cheap Bunch Flowers, Arts (11-12-62).
Witch of Edmonton, Mermaid (11-21-62).

HOW TO PRODUCE OFF-B'WAY
Four detailed lecture-discussions covering all problems of off-Broadway production ★ Includes shortcuts to easy, low-cost solutions ★ Conducted by Dorothy Olim and Gerald Krone, active producers ★ Sessions with an Attorney, Press Agent and Accountant, specialists in off-B'way.
Call SU 7-0193 or write Miss Olim, 65 West 95th Street, N.Y. 25, N.Y. ★
★★★★★★ Begins Oct. 15th ★★★★★★

40's W (New York) 413 W 47 ST.
SPECIALLY FOR YOU
Beautifully new 3 and 2 large rooms featuring hi ceilings, hot water heat, incinerator, ultra modern kitchen and bath. See Today!
AGENT 11 to 6, PL 7-0694

FOR RENT
Attractively furnished office suite located in heart of Broadway district. Suitable for theatrical tenant. 1000 sq. ft. or portion thereof.
OX 7-2290 — MR. SIDEN

FOR SALE OR LEASE
Lucrative summer theatre, steakhouse and cocktail lounge located in thriving upstate New York resort area. Outside activities reason for sale or lease. Property may be seen by appointment.
Box V-3383, VARIETY,
154 W. 46th St., New York 36

So Who's on First?

Larry Weber, who appears regularly on "The Edge of Night" television series, is partnered with Jay Chase in the upcoming off-Broadway play "Angels of Andako." The actor is the son of late L. Lawrence Weber, a legit producer, and Chase is the son of the late Mary Chase, talent agent.

Chase is also Weber's brother-in-law, his sister, Beverly Chase, formerly with CBS and later the Henry C. Brown agency, being Mrs. Weber. Play is authored by Herman Goldberg, head of the Psychology Dept. at Hofstra College, and Duke Marston, of the Old Boston line of liquors.

Family affair aspects of "Angels of Andako" are increased by Mrs. Jay Chase's attitude. Learning of the proposed Broadway production, she said to her husband, "You're not going to make me a Long Island widow for three months. I'll be the gofer." So she has driven in every day during rehearsals and made herself the errand girl who goes out for coffee and such essentials during rehearsals and production confabs.

Legit Bits

Legit pressagent Marian Graham is a patient at St. Luke's Hospital, N.Y.

Irving Squires will be company manager for "Moby Dick," opening a pre-Broadway tryout tour Nov. 1 at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto.

Roger Stuart Newan is playing the title role in the off-Broadway revival of "The Hostage," succeeding Geoff Garland, who left the cast to appear in the touring production.

Keith Baxter was erroneously identified in last week's VARIETY review of "The Affair" as Donald Howard, the character he portrays in the play. The actor's last previous Broadway appearance was in the role of the young King Henry VIII in "A Man for All Seasons."

A one-man performance by Bramwell Fletcher of "Parnassus '63," a program of poetry, drama and prose, is scheduled for cuffo-admission presentation tonight (Wed.) in the Eizner & Lubin Auditorium of N.Y. Univ., and again on Dec. 16, a Sunday, at the Helen Hayes, N.Y.

Elaine Stritch contradicts a recent VARIETY item that she was ill and missed a performance as lead in the London production of "Sail Away." Joyanne Delancey, she says, did not sub for her but for Sheila Forbes, who was out for a week with an injured ankle.

Byron Webster is appearing as King Pellinore in "Camelot" this week prior to Arthur Treacher's takeover of the assignment next Monday (8), when Webster will resume the role of Squire Dap in addition to understudying Treacher.

Hal March and Warren Berlinger have rejoined the cast of "Come Blow Your Horn" and will continue with the comedy on its road trek which begins next Monday (8) in Seattle.

Elaine Malbin and David Daniels will have the lead assignments in the bus-and-truck production of "Carnival" which begins touring Oct. 18 in Hartford.

Elizabeth Ashley has returned to the cast of "Take Her, She's Mine" after an eight-day wedding trip. She was spelled by standby Jean McClintock.

Ruth Morley is costume designer for "A Matter of Position."

George Morfogen is assistant stage manager for "The Fun Couple."

Russian ballerina Galina Ulanova, who arrived in New York last week, is the subject of "Days with Ulanova," a photo-profile by Albert E. Kahn, to be published in October by Simon and Schuster.

The Goodman Theatre, Chicago, has signed Donald Davis to open its 1962-63 season Oct. 26 in Jean Anouilh's "Becket." "A Passage To India" is set for later production.

Diana Sands is subbing for Barbara Baxley for two weeks in the off-B'way "Brecht on Brecht."

Godfrey Cambridge returned last night (Tues.) to the off-Broadway production of "The Blacks" after a series of vaude and cabaret dates.

Jean Dalrymple has been named a member of the Advisory Committee on Arts for the National Cultural Center. She is now director of the Light Opera Co. of the N.Y. City Center of Music and Drama.

Bruce Becker and his wife, Honey, having completed their summer season as producers of the Tappan Zee Playhouse, Nyack, N. Y., are now concentrating on getting their off-Broadway Bouwerie Lane Theatre ready for occupancy, either by themselves or some other theatrical producer.

Joey Faye will appear in "Little Me."

Broadway producer David Merrick will write an introduction to "Watchman, What of the Night?" the Jed Harris book about his experiences as a legit producer-director, to be published this fall by Doubleday.

Orson Bean will costar with Paul Ford in "Never Too Late."

"The Anvil," by Julian Davis, is scheduled for an Oct. 30 opening at the Maidman Theatre, N.Y., under the production auspices of Charles R. Wood, who presented the play in Charlestown, W. Va., in 1960 and again last summer.

A production of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," is planned for a late November opening at the Stage 73 Theatre, N.Y., by the Repertory Theatre group.

William and Jean Eckart are set designers for "Never Too Late."

The Actors Studio, N.Y., will be cosponsor in New York with the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre & Academy, Stratford, Conn., of the Nov. 29 closed circuit telecast for the National Cultural Center in Washington.

The American Playwrights Forum will present Monday night readings and productions of new plays at the Sheridan Square Playhouse, N.Y., beginning next Monday (8).

"The Coach with the Six Inches," a dance drama based on James Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake," which choreographer Jean Erdman created under a grant-in-aid from the Ingram Merrill Foundation, is planned for a limited off-Broadway run this fall under the production auspices of The Arts Program of the Assn. of American Colleges.

Raoul Pene Du Bois, who's been painting in Paris for the last five years, will design the sets and costumes for "The Student Gypsy or The Prince of Liederkranz."

Sonia Moore, acting instructor and author of "The Stanislavski Method, is back in New York following a trip to Europe.

Rouben Ter-Aruntunian will design the sets, costumes and lighting for "Hot Spot."

Gerald Sanford's "Children of the Center Ring" was the winning entry in the first annual original play contest conducted by the Players Workshop, Burlington, Ia., which intends preeming the work at its new 265-seat community theatre next December.

Louise Lasser, who entered the legit ranks as a member of the chorus and understudy to Barbara Streisand in "I Can Get It for You Wholesale," has moved on to the ingenue assignment in "Nowhere to Go But Up."

A N.Y. Shakespeare Festival production of "Macbeth," sponsored by the N.Y. City Board of Education and the N.Y. State Council on the Arts, is scheduled to open Nov. 5 at the Hecksher Theatre, N.Y., for a seven-week stand, to be followed by a six-week tour of city schools and then a two-week upstate tour which will begin March 16 in Middletown, N.Y., and end March 30 in Rochester. Michael Higgins will play the title role in the production, for which Gladys Vaughan is director, Ming Cho Lee scenery and lighting designer and Theoni V. Aldredge costume designer.

The Hedgerow Theatre School, Moylan, Pa., under the direction of Jasper Deeter, began its seventh year last Monday (1).

An off-Broadway production of Maia Rodman's translation of "Bar of All Saints," by Yerzy Broszkiewics, is planned for this season by Leonidas D'Ossetynzki, who'll also direct.

Bhaskar and Co. will present an evening of Indian dances Dec. 3 at the 92d Street YMHA in Manhattan.

Bits of London

London, Oct. 2.

Frances Cuka, Sybil Thorndike, Naunton Wayne, George Baker, Joyce Carey, Gordon Boyd and Eira Heath will be principals in the Linnit & Dunfee's forthcoming musical, "Vanity Fair."

Nicolette Roeg will play a lead in "Fiorello" due Oct. 8 at the Piccadilly.

Alan Klein, 22, has the written book, music and lyrics for "What A Crazy World," after seeing only two other shows. The tuner opens Oct. 30 at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, East London.

Jimmy Thompson threw a party Sept. 20 to launch his new revue, "Before the Fringe."

Jean Scott is subbing as Eliza in "My Fair Lady" while Tonia Lee is on vacation.

Eric Maschwitz has written a play, "Port of Call," which Freeric Piffard will present.

Both Brian Rix and Harold Fielding are interested in Charles Dyer's "Wanted, One Body." The author's "Rattle of a Simple Man," which recently opened at the Garrick, got a reasonably good press.

'Seasons' Profit $330,000 So Far

The Broadway production of "Man for All Seasons" is figured to have earned around 550% profit thus far on its $60,000 investment. The net as of Sept. 1 was $318,394, and business during the subsequent four weeks indicates that amount has now been increased to about $330,000.

Distributed profit to date on the American National Theatre & Academy presentation of the Robert Whitehead-Roger L. Stevens production totals $280,000. The backers' share is 40%, representing a net return thus far of $112,000 on their investment.

The Robert Bolt drama is now in its 46th week at the ANTA Theatre, N. Y. Emlyn Williams, who succeeded Paul Scofield in the title role, is costarred with Thomas Gomez and George Rose.

Drury's 'Difference'

Continued from page 71

result in a motion picture harmful to the U. S. interest when screened around the world. He states that he has taken great care to write a book which, if read in full and understood, will do his country no damage anywhere.

Drury has passed no judgment yet on Broadway legit rights and is presumably willing to talk about that to prospective producers. "Advise and Consent" was both a play and a film.

Tighter Writing

"A Shade of Difference" starts a few months after 'Advise and Consent" leaves off and stars a number of the same performers. But other principal characters are new because most of the action has been moved from Washington to the UN. In the second book, Drury has conquered the hemorrhage of words which exhausted many who read "Advise and Consent." He has, in this book, disciplined his descriptions and written a much tighter novel, alive with action from the opening pages to a majestic ending.

The central message is that the UN is a pitifully imperfect thing but vitally necessary in a nuclear age. In depicting the painful inadequacies of the UN in sharp, high drama, the book at times seems bitter and anti-UN. But keep on reading.

It is a complex story that Drury has woven, obviously difficult to perform, but very easy to follow as he tells it. The plot is in no way too big for such a skilled writer to manage in novel form.

Drury intends to keep many of his characters running through two more sequels. The next, to be called "Capable of Honor," will concern a national political convention and the election of a new President to succeed Harley Hudson, who became President at the end of "Advise and Consent" and is President throughout "A Shade of Difference."

The fourth book will be titled "Preserve and Protect," and it will be the story of the beginning of the Administration of the President elected in "Capable of Honor."

O'Neill's 'Mansions' in Sweden

Royal Academy Theatre, Stockholm, to Produce Unfinished, Posthumous Drama

Eugene O'Neill's unfinished posthumous drama, "More Stately Mansions," is to be given its world premiere in Stockolm either late in October or early in November by the Royal Drama Theatre there. The Swedish presentation, which went into rehearsal Sept. 4 under the direction of Dr. Stig Torsslow, is titled "To Win the Whole World." Torsslow is head of the theatre's school.

A lengthy rehearsal period is required for the play, which is broken into four acts and eight scenes. The Swedish production is expected to run about four hours and 15 minutes. In English, with fewer words required, the play would run around three hours and 25 minutes. Cast as leads are Inga Tidblad and Jarl Kulle, who appeared last spring in the Royal Dramatic's presentation of O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night" in Seattle and New York.

The play, which Dr. Karl Ragnar Gierow, managing director of the Royal Dramatic began editing four years ago, was originally slated for production by the theatre two years ago, but it was decided at that time that additional editing was necessary. In its original form, the play would have taken eight to 10 hours to perform. Plans for a production by the Royal Dramatic last year were also cancelled.

"Mansions," set in the period from 1837 to 1846, was to have been part of an O'Neill cycle of 11 plays dealing with an American family from 1755 to 1932. It's predecessor in the uncompleted series was "A Touch of the Poet." O'Neill, who had intended to destroy "Mansions" with several other incomplete plays, overlooked one typewritten manuscript of the work. His widow, Carlotta Monterey O'Neill, decided to let Dr. Gierow edit it for the Royal Dramatic, which has also preemed other O'Neill works.

To Bring More Stagers Here for Legit Teaching

The Institute for Advanced Studies in the Theatre Arts will bring directors from Spain, France and Germany to New York for its current fourth season of operation. The stagers will work with professional American actors at the Institute on classics of their respective countries.

Don Jose Tamayo, director of the Teatro Espanol, Madrid, will work on Lope De Vega's "The Knight From Olmedo" in October, and Jean-Louis Barrault, director of the Theatre de France, will work on Robert Lowell's translation of Racine's "Phedre" next April. An undesignated director formerly associated with the Berliner Ensemble is to work on a Bertolt Brecht play in January.

While at the Institute, the directors will also hold seminars for qualified American stagers and, in collaboration with Actors Equity and the New Dramatists' Committee, lecture on aspects of legit in their native countries to professionals.

'Funny Thing' Net Passes $100,000

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," which completed repayment of its $300,000 investment last month, is figured to have now passed the $100,000 profit mark. That's based on an Aug. 25 audit, plus estimated subsequent income.

The Harold Prince production, which had netted $38,393 as of Aug. 25, has gone clear on each of the five subsequent weeks. At capacity, "Forum" cleared around $15,000 weekly, which means a five-week total of about $75,000. However, a slice of approximately 20% (most or all, of which presumably goes to stager George Abbott) is taken off the top, with the balance split equally between the management and the backers.

The Zero Mostel-starrer, currently in its 22d week at the Alvin Theatre, N. Y., has a book by Burt Shevelove and Larry Gelbart and music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim. As of the week ending Aug. 4, full royalties and salaries were paid the authors, director, star and choreographer Jack Cole, all of whom had been on half-royalties from the start of the pre-Broadway tryout tour.

Wing Future May Hinge On Helen Menken Stand

The future of the American Theatre Wing apparently hinges on whether the organization's executive committee can persuade Helen Menken to continue as president. The former actress, who's been the motivating force and financial angel of the nonprofit group in recent years, submitted her resignation earlier this month on the ground of illness.

The executive committee, which is scheduled to meet again in a week, decided at a meeting in New York last week to postpone acceptance of Miss Menken's resignation pending the effort to get her to reconsider. The Wing, formed during World War II to provide entertainment in New York for servicemen, has been chiefly active in recent years as a school for theatre aspirants.

Australian Shows

(Week Ended Sept. 29)

(Figures denote opening dates)

BRISBANE

Lusillo Dancers, Majesty's (9-25-62).

MELBOURNE

Aspern Papers, Union (9-24-62).
Death Salesman, Emerald (9-12-62).
Gondoliers, Her Majesty's (9-24-62).
Orpheus, Princess (9-27-62).
Under Yum Tree, Comedy (8-8-62).
Wrong Side, St. Martins (9-28-62).

PERTH

My Fair Lady, His Majesty's (9-8-62).

SYDNEY

Barry Humphries, Macquarie (9-19-62).
Beyond the Fringe, Phillip (9-8-62).
Billy Liar, Ensemble (7-10-62).
Once Upon a Mattress, Palace (8-3-62).
Romanoff & Juliet, Indep't (9-12-62).
Sentimental Bloke, Royal (6-20-62).
Sound of Music, Tivoli (9-28-62).

'Come On Strong' Does So In Advance Promotion; But How is the Show?

"Come On Strong," which opens tomorrow night (Thurs.) at the Morosco Theatre, N. Y., is getting intensive promotion treatment. In addition to sheet music and record representation on its title song, the Garson Kanin play also has tie-ins with Peter Pan Foundations, New York radio station WNEW, Revlon cosmetics and a number of Manhattan restaurants and night spots.

The song, written for the Hilard Elkins-Al Goldin presentation by Sammy Kahn and James Van Heusen, has been published by E. H. Morris and an RCA Victor recording by Lena Horne is used in the production. Other disks, as yet unreleased, have been cut by Sammy Davis Jr. for Reprise and the Jays and Jamie for Columbia.

A special bra designed by Peter Pan for Carroll Baker, who costars in "Strong" with Van Johnson, is to be promoted by the outfit in full page newspaper ads. Oleg Cassini, who designs for Peter Pan bathing suits, has created a swimming outfit for Miss Baker which Peter Pan is promoting in ads throughout the country. Cassini, also designed Miss Baker's costumes for the show.

A "Come On Strong" eye makeup has been devised by Revlon, which has also designed Miss Baker's makeup for the production. Table cards or posters are to be carried in the following spots mentioned in the play: the Stork Club, Little Club, Danny's Hideaway, Le Club, Latin Quarter, Downey's, Twenty-one Club, Luchows and Longchamps.

The tie-in with WNEW, the station mentioned in the play, involves a contest and plugs. Also, Vogue magazine is devoting full-page layouts highlighting Cassini's costumes and the November gift issue of the Diners Club mag has Miss Carroll and Johnson on the cover, plus an article by Kanin.

Frank Conroy, John Beal, Russell Collins, Gerald O'Loughlin and Roland Winters are in the cast of "Calculated Risk."

'American Mercury' Sold—Again

American Mercury, the mag found in '24 by H. L. Mencken and George Jean Nathan, has changed hands again, but apparently will continue in the rightist orbit. It's been sold by Defenders of the Christian Faith to a McAllen, Tex., group called Survival of Freedom Inc., reportedly for around $200,000.

One of the purchasers is Edwin A. Walker, the resigned U.S. army general who's scheduled to write military analysis for the mag, tf at liberty. AM has made the Ideological pendulum from liberal to arch-conservative, and was often described in the last decade as anti-Semitic. Its last owner was the Rev. Dr. Gerald B. Winrod, who purchased it early last year from industrialist Russell Maguire. The minister was alleged to have sympathized with the Nazi and Fascist movements.

Feteing Aggie Underwood

Women from all parts of California attended the champagne tea in honor of Agness Underwood thrown by the Los Angeles District, California Press Women Inc., at the home of Zepha Bogart, in North Hollywood. Among the guests were Jane Ardmore, Marilyn Beck, Marcia Borie, Reba and Bonnie Churchill, Maria Metolova, Elaine St. Johns, Ann Wardell Saunders, and newspaperwomen from the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, the Los Angeles Times, the Citizen News, Valley Times and Van Nuys News.

The champagne tea was followed by a dinner at which Sam Zelman, director of the West Coast news department of CBS-TV, spoke on "How News is Covered by the TV Medium."

'Days With Ulanova'

Presence in the U.S. of the Bolshoi Ballet for a second tour has resulted in Simon & Schuster advancing from Oct. 30 to Oct. 23 the release date of its pictorial volume at $10, "Days With Ulanova." The book gives advance evidence of being a runaway item for the culture trade and the Christmas gift bonanza.

Actually the 300 photographs are wonderfully interesting, revealing not only Galina Ulanova as a human being but revealing a good deal of how the Russians operate their ballet, a kind of substitute with them for religion. Oddly enough it was an American, Albert E. Kahn, from San Francisco, who put Ulanova, the legend, into pictorial biography, a curious oversight, apparently, on the part of the Russians themselves since hardly more than formal theatrical poses of Ulanova have heretofore been available.

Though he speaks no Russian, Kahn and his wife became friends with Ulanova and her theatrical designer-husband during the Bolshoi's first visit to the U.S. Thereafter he made some four trips to Russia in connection with this book, financed by S&S in a remarkable demonstration of risk capitalism. Kahn's text is about as good as his pictures. Which signifies a very exceptional book, indeed. Land.

Satevepost's New Pub

C.L. MacNelly, former veepee of Ted Bates Inc., named new publisher of the Saturday Evening Post. Before joining Bates, MacNelly was an account exec for Doherty, Clifford, Steers & Shenfield Inc. and Pedlar & Ryan.

M. J. Culligan, Curtis Publishing president, said MacNelly's appointment completes the reorganization of the Curtis mags' publisher system. Publishers had been named previously for Holiday, Ladies Home Journal, American Home and Jack & Jill.

CHATTER

Mrs. Jane B. Parton, wife of American Heritage Pub. Co. prez James Parton, died of cancer in New York. Before her marriage in 1950 she was a personal assistant to hotelier Conrad N. Hilton.

Seven new titles will be added to Sunset Books list this fall, according to Lawrence Lane, publisher. Book division, an offshoot of Sunset Magazine, was founded about 10 years ago and totals about 100 titles in seven categories today. These include juves, travel, hobby, garden, home, cook and building.

This year's "Silver Lady" award from Hearst-sparked Banshees goes to Fred Lasswell, who draws "Barney Google & Snuffy Smith," and the presentation will take place at the Nov. 1 luncheon in his honor at the Waldorf. Arthur Bugs Baer, J. D. Gortatowsky, Frank McLearn, Bob Considine, Joseph Willicombe Jr. and Bradley Kelly are the committee in charge.

Warren J. Reynolds, assistant publisher of Parade, the Sunday newspaper magazine supplement now in 70 U.S. dailies, elected to the board of Parade Publications Inc., according to prexy Arthur H. (Red) Motley's announcement.

James P. Stearns, 37, area manager for the Manchester Union Leader and New Hampshire Sunday News in Franklin, N.H., was found dead in the basement garage at his home in that city. Medical authorities said it was a case of suicide from carbon monoxide poisoning. He served as a member of the Franklin City Council, clerk of Municipal Court and secretary of the Franklin Chamber of Commerce.

Herbert E. Kimball, former treasurer of the Rumford Press in Concord, N.H., which prints many of the country's leading magazines, named new business manager of the University of New Hampshire.

Wendy Sanford, on NBC-TV producer Lewis Freedman's staff ("DuPont Show of the Week"), has collabed with adman-turned-author George Mendoza on "The Puma and the Pearl," which Walker will publish soon. Publisher heralds it as "an allegory of lust and destruction."

Adela Rogers St. Johns in town in connection with her new book, "Final Verdict" (Doubleday), story of her father, Earl Rogers, celebrated trial lawyer. Perhaps for the first time, a hotel is listed among the acknowledgements: Mrs. St. Johns pays tribute to the Savoy Hilton for providing her a refuge to get the book written with specific acknowledgements to former manager, Eugene Voit, p.r. director Gail Benedict and Augusta Bornn, credit manager.

The Frost Room at Dartmouth College's Baker Library in Hanover, N.H., has been presented the manuscript of Robert Frost's 1928 book, "West-Running Brook," by Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Thornton of Oxford, N.C. Thornton was president of the firm that published the book. The title of the volume is derived from a stream in New Hampshire which was known to the poet when he was a farmer and teacher in Derry, in that state, from 1900-1911.

Edmund H. Shoshany has joined Fawcett Publications as manager of the education department. He will headquarter in Fawcett's Greenwich (Conn.) offices and will direct promotion of school-oriented titles published under the Premier and Crest imprints.

Publishing Stocks

(As of Oct. 2, closing)

Allyn & Bacon (OC)	23	—1
American Book (AS)	45¾	— ¾
American Heritage (OC)	6¾	— ¾
Book of Month (N.Y.)	22⅝	+ ¼
Conde Nast (N.Y.)	7⅞	+ ⅛
Cowles Mag. (N.Y.)	10¾	— ⅞
Crowell Collier (N.Y.)	22½	— ⅞
Curtis Pub. (N.Y.)	7½	— ⅜
Ginn & Co. (N.Y.)	21½	—1
Grolier (OC)	27¾	—3
Grosset & Dunlap (OC)	12	— ⅜
Harcourt Brace (N.Y.)	25¾	— ⅝
Hayden Pub. (OC)	4¾
Hearst (OC)	25
Holt, R&W (N.Y.)	25	+ ½
L.A. Times-Mirror (OC)	27
Macfadden Bartell (AS)	1¾	— ⅛
McCall (N.Y.)	17¾	+1¼
McGraw-Hill (N.Y.)	21½	+1¼
Meredith Pub. Co. (OC)	21	—2
Nat'l Per. Pub. (OC)	8	—1
New Yorker (OC)	80	—1
Pocket Books (OC)	6	— ¾
Prentice Hall (AS)	30½	+ ½
Ran'm House (N.Y.)	10¾	— ¾
Scott Foresman (OC)	19	— ¼
H. W. Sams (OC)	28½	— ½
Time Inc. (OC)	63½	—1½
Western Pub. (OC)	23½	—2
World Pub.	10	—1

OC—Over the Counter.
NY—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
(Supplied by Bache & Co.)

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Palm Springs.

How did it look from the bleachers? Well, from Lincoln Square, now made into a Circle, to this sunfield is 3,000 miles and our sound and picture had to be relayed back from San Diego and bounced off a mountain 20 miles away. So the wonder is that anything worth commenting on came through at all.

Since the two-hour CBS show was a first of the New York Philharmonic's contribution to the performing arts in a home of its own, something it has never had in its 140-year history, naturally millions of peasants like us in the sticks hung on through the whole two hours.

But personally I thought the Corning Glass Co.'s commercials were vastly more entertaining.

Next, I thought Leonard Bernstein as the conductor just about stole his own show because as a performing artists he sure performed.

In fact, he sometimes looked as if he'd burst a blood vessel trying to squeeze a better performance out of his sidemen on what, after all, was hardly more than a vamping-till-ready passage.

Third in the list of performers was the building itself. In fact, to be far too honest about it, the building put on the best performance of all. Unfortunately in the march of time the building will age and wither, and be considered old hat by the next generation, whereas Bernstein (who hates the name Lenny) will grow in stature for the next 40 years, and perhaps henceforth he will, as they say in Greyhound commercials, "leave the driving to us." Maybe his drive got the Philharmonic up to where it is, but drive alone is a poor substitute for music people like to hear.

Thirty years ago I saw a reading machine in Cagnes, a hill town in the South of France where beats of the '20s lived. Bob Brown, who was a good commercial writer between these beatnik bits, invented it. The reading traveled along like a tripewriter ribbon. It had a chance as a new invention.

What killed it was that Brown used the mangled prose of 21st century writers to illustrate it. Had he teamed his revolution with an old resepctable piece of 18th century prose like the Declaration of Independence he might have succeeded.

Then years later in Hollywood I was invited as the only roundhead to a scance of musical eggheads. I remember Aaron Copeland was there. So were Schoenberg, Stravinsky, Zam, and one who was acclaimed the musical genius of them all but whose name eludes me. It will come back later . . . Now it comes to me. His name was Trembley. George Trembley.

Paul Whiteman was there and they all sort of looped up to Pop because he had once played a fiddle in the Philadelphia Philharmonic and had escaped to become King of Jazz. These people were molto simpatico to jazz, but actually thought of themselves as above jazz and the classics. Pop tried to help some of these ultra-eggheads by suggesting if they could write pieces maybe 10 or 15 minutes long he could slip them into his radio show and get them some coin. They looked at him baffled. Trembley, the gentlest and most talented of them, never wrote anything that ran less than four hours.

I haven't seen or heard of many of them since. Of course Schoenberg got a berth at UCLA till he died there and Copeland kept going until he was handed the rich plum of composing something original for the opening of Lincoln Center. You heard it. It was that 12 tone "Connotations for Orchestra" bit that followed Beethoven's Gloria from Missa Solemnis, billed locally as "Miss Solemnis."

The Reading Machine All Over Again

It was Bob Brown's reading machine tied in with 21st century prose all over again. What a new place should have opened with is some tried and true classic like "Ireland Must Be Heaven 'Cause They Have No Navy There." Then you can take in the new building without being pestered by the new music which insists cacophony is our most important product.

I was tempted to turn down the sound on Copeland's "Coming the Orchestra" and watch Bernstein work himself into a sweat such as the San Francisco Giants have not shown all season or they would have won the National League pennant. For that matter the Dodgers and Yankees never sweated out their assignments like Maestro Bernstein either.

But you can't do that to an old composer you once met in a modest framehouse in a side street in Hollywood which bulged for one night at least with the world's choicest musical brains. Here Aaron Copeland, now being introduced by Beau Bernstein and an audience rocking the new building with applause as if he had surpassed Beethoven, Mozart, Bach, Wagner and that one-fingered composer George Barnum Shaw.

At that point I turned down the sound and let my mind wander down memory lane. It was in that same Lincoln Square where I got my first newspaper job 50 years ago. It was a tradepaper called The Retail Tobacconist. I had to walk all over town, asking storekeepers what of cancer's best friend was selling best and give the proprietors a free copy of our paper. I covered from the old Highlander ball park where the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center now stands to Lincoln Square in one day, ended with bunions, wornout shoes and a sweat quite matching Leonard Bernstein's. I said to the editor, 'To hell with this. I'm going to try Park Row." So I moved from there to The Sun, which shows how much easier it was to become a newspaperman in those days.

When I saw Leonard Bernstein, still mopping sweat from his hard labor on the podium, I thought Lincoln Square is as hot now as it was in 1912. And then when he kissed Jackie Kennedy on the cheek I thought, "This guy has guts as well as sweat." Imagine kissing that goddess of the White House without the President's expressed permission. She whispered something but all we got was Bernstein's obvious explanation, "I'm all sweated up!"

But then I thought of Mozart who wanted to marry Marie Antoinette when he was about 10 and was kissed by her as a reward for at least trying and how he blew his topyears later when Mme. Pompadour refused to kiss him. "Who is this woman who refuses to kiss me?" he demanded. "The Queen kissed me!"

It is quite possible that Bernstein would have ducked kissing Mme. Pompadour. But he said "May I?" to Jackie Kennedy, on the night of his great triumph, with CBS cameras letting us in the bleachers and in the sun field know how society accepts an artistic triumph in midtown Manhattan. Then after he bussed this goddess on the cheek he mopped his face and said, "I'm all sweated up!"—a phrase that will go down in history with phrases which have become immortal.

Harold C. Schonberg, the N. Y. Times music critic, might have considered the whole scene irrelevant. Mrs. Bernstein might have thought her husband could have used the time better to take a shower and change to dry evening clothes, but who thinks of those things at 44 when the First Lady of the Land wants to pay her respects?

This scene is likely to be repeated many times in the near future. The N. Y. Philharmonic and its $15,000,000 music hall is the first, but coming up is L.A.'s $25,000,000 Music Center, another in Washington, D.C. and scores of smaller soundboxes throughout the land. Lincoln Center is pencilled in to run up a tab of $150,000,000 before the whole project is off the drawing boards. The others might learn not to pile novelty as novelty as Lincoln Circle did on its opening night.

No kidding, Lenny (ooops!) it was a great night but a lousy program. And don't pay too much attention to what people applaud. They even applaud boxers being knocked unconscious only to subsequently die of a brain hemorrhage.

And frequently they are the same people.

Dore Schary

presents his unabashedly sentimental reminiscences of a glorious boyhood that revolved around his parents' celebrated kosher catering establishment in Newark

The author at Summer at Camp Bell-O

THE cast includes his father, Hugo, who often talked to walls; his legendary mother, Belle, who could prepare—without measuring—just enough chicken soup for exactly 800; Rosie, colored queen of the Schary pantry, who was as fluent in Yiddish as the author himself; and assorted bootleggers, marriageable and unmarriageable daughters, musicians and waiters.

Here is the enchanting saga of Dore Schary, who proves in these memoirs that a man can become a great success in America in spite of a happy childhood.

For Special Occasions

By DORE SCHARY

$3.95, NOW AT YOUR BOOKSTORE

RANDOM HOUSE

Broadway

Arthur Leighton, manager of the Helen Hayes Theatre, in Manhattan Eye & Ear Hosp.

Video actor John Griggs one of victims of out-of-town closing of Dore Schary's stage play "Banderol."

Melina Mercouri and Jules Dassin in from Europe yesterday (Tues.) on the Queen Mary as was actress Joyce Grenfell.

Theodore B. Sills, documentary film writer-director, who has been in Berlin on a U.S. Info Agency assignment returned over weekend.

Attorney-author Louis Nizer is the "fall guy" of the Circus Saints & Sinners' opening-of-the-fall season luncheon Oct. 23 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"An Evening With Danny Thomas" is the $100-a-plate dinner at the Plaza on Oct. 20 for benefit of the comedian's pet St. Jude Research Hospital charity.

Bruce Stauderman, joining Ogilvy, Benson & Mather as a producer-writer, something new there, in from Cleveland to lease East End Ave. apartment.

Lynn Wimmer and new bride doing the Broadway-Cape Cod honeymoon bit. He's Chi-based p.r. director for Burton Browne's string of Gaslight key clubs.

Comedian Charlie Manna is now a comic strip character. He's being depicted as himself in the Chi Tribune Syndicate's "On Stage" drawn by Len Starr.

Michael (Mike) Denicoli has been operating his own tonsorial parlor at the Friars Club since he exited the Variety Barbershop more than a year-and-a-half ago.

Conductor David Blum begins second season for his chamber music group, the Esterhazy Orchestra. Will play obscure [illegible] from the great writers for strings.

The 29th edition of "[illegible] Star," the United Jewish Appeal benefit show, will again be produced and directed by Max Wolff for its Nov. 19 outing at Madison Square Garden, N. Y.

The General Services Administration, Washington, has entered into an agreement with Del E. Webb Corp. of Los Angeles for construction of the U. S. pavilion at the N. Y. World's Fair.

Philharmonic Society ordered 100 tickets per concert kept available for single sale at the box office, despite unprecedented subscription sale this season in the new hall at Lincoln Center.

Former legit actor George Keane now rates as a Chartered Life Underwriter, a big shingle to hang up in insurance biz. Mrs. Keane is the former Betty Winkler, longtime leading lady in radio soap operas.

Unusual family fealty for the bedded Magda Gabor, at Mt. Sinai Hospital sees mama Jolie and sisters Zsa Zsa and Eva (Mrs. Dick Brown) Gabor bringing their own wine and sandwiches for luncheon breaks while hospital-sitting.

Igor Stravinsky who has since entered Soviet Russia for more of his 80th birthday concertizing scored for a peculiarly local reason when he appeared earlier in Tel Aviv. Israelis thought him best of all outsiders interpreting the Israeli anthem, "Hativah."

Gabrielle Hammerstein, a singer from New York, sentenced to six years on a charge of espionage by East German authorities, according to a press dispatch, is not related to the better known show biz Hammersteins. Miss Hammerstein's mother is Dr. Gertrude Rosenhain of Jackson Heights, L.I.

Maurice Chevalier bivouacing with pal Claudius Charles Philippe, exec veepee of the new Americana Hotel, until returning to Paris to "rest." Vet French star says he's been "overdoing it a bit with one-nighters, the Louis R. Lurie joint birthday party etc." and figures that France is his best retreat for the moment.

Earnings of Restaurant Associates Inc. and subsidiaries for the nine-month period ending July 31, 1962 were $287,505 or 37c per common share, it was announced today by Jerome Brody, president. Gross operating revenues for the period totaled $17,529,292. These figures do not reflect income from overseas operations of the company.

Erich Leinsdorf, now conductor of the Boston Symphony, in an interview on "Today" over NBC-TV, after he had batoned the orchestra in the second concert at the new Philharmonic Hall in the Lincoln Performing Arts Center, said it was not only "high time that New York had two grand halls," but also he "hoped" that "within 10 years there will be a third one," centrally located.

4½ Hrs. From B'way

By Walter Winchell

(Formerly of McVicker's)

Herb Lyons, once a p.a. planting syndicated and other columns, now 3-dots for Chi-Trib. (wotta comedown!)

NBC's Ch. 5 winds up at 1 a.m. with "WW File," the ½ hour Desilu series Revlon fired. Now in its 8th orbit.

Ruth Etting's former Svengali, Moe (The Gimp) Snyder, in tears meeting Broadwaites he hadn't seen in 30 years.

Ben Hecht, whose newspaper essays and plays kept Chicago on the map, says he enjoys coming home to the Loop "because it reminds me of my poverty."

Jack Eigen's NBC radio mikes (an 80-station hookup) now star at the new Sahara, not too far from the Loop. A Vegas-type spot. Patti Page is current ticket-seller.

Reason that the Capone family lawsuit ("property rights" versus "Untouchables" in Federal Court here postponed from Sept. 28 to Oct. 29: Jewish holiday and His Honor is devoutly religious.

Oscar Fraley, author of the book, "The Untouchables" gets $500 weekly from Desilu for use of the title for the No. 1 tv melodrama. Plus juicy residuals. Plans his own H'wood indie film firm. Jots down books between his UPI sports reports.

Club Alabam still doing hefty biz it did when Prohibition began. Most popular with the Broadway crowd. Especially the "private" upstairs room where playboys in their 60s enjoy femme love songbelters, whose tips are usually 20s and 50s.

No. 1 spot for New Yorkers and Coasters here between planes and trains is still the Pump Room in the Ambassador East. Where the Everybodies meet the Somebodies. Vincenzo Paganucci, star salad-mixer knows them all by their Dun & Bradstreet ratings.

Great Northern Hippodrome the onetime 4-a-day vaude house is gone. This long-ago song-and-dance-man always blows a kiss at the site when he passes on foot or in a cab. McVicker's, too. It was at the latter that "Winchell & Green in 'Puppy Love'" got 2 years bookings after many defeats in the east.

Cast of Characters at the Liston-Patterson ringside: Don Ameche, Dale Robertson, Ben Hecht, Budd Schulberg, Oscar Fraley, Toots Shor, "Miss Universe of '56" and mate Roney-Plaza chief G. David Schine, Dapper Dan Parker, Gen. MacArthur's wartime pilot, Col. Tyler, ABC-TVIP Tom Moore, Mutual net prez Robert Hurleigh, Joe DiMaggio and the Mai Britts (S. Davis, Jr.)

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins

(Stampa Estera; Tel. 6-5906)

Jeff Richard skied in from Los Angeles.

Greek actress Aliki Voujouklaki in to look over pic plan.

John Barrymore Jr. to Madrid, due back soon for "Last Musketeer."

Samuel Steinman poured for Rome's film and social set to honor the visiting Paul Bensons.

Ingrid Thulin to Venice to start work on "Agostino." Mauro Bolognini directs pic based on Alberto Moravia short story.

"Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (Par) and "Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA) battling it out for the firstrun boxoffice lead in Rome.

Dino DeLaurentiis to the U. S. for long swing anent openings of his Columbia release, "Barabbas." Producer was lensed, before departure, for BBC-TV's "picture parade" show.

Carl Foreman, Rosanna Schiaffino, George Hamilton, Eli Wallach, George Peppard, Jim Mitchum and Vince Edwards headquartering in Salerno for locations on "The Victors."

In-and-out: Leonard Lyons; Sophia Loren to Paris; Martin Jurow, to set details on his upcoming, "Pink Panther"; Susan Strasberg left after a long stay; Nico Minardos in from Athens; Walter Giller in for Sancro's "Queen Bee"; Ron Randell here for "Gold for the Caesars"; Jacques Charrier in city to shoot "Carmen of Trastevere" for Glove Films.

London

(HYDe Park 4561/2/3)

Jerome Whyte arrived last week on the Queen Mary.

Dawn Addams met the press after the screening of "The Thousand Eyes of Dr. Mabuse."

Sir Michael Balcon hosted a luncheon for the critics after the press screening of "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner."

William D. Swanson, operator of the Las Palmas Theatre in California, in town looking for a director to stage his upcoming revue.

Theo Cowan, who left the Rank Organization earlier in the year to set up his own publicity agency, moved from Wardour Street to Clarges Street, Mayfair.

United Artists organized a "James Bond-Dr. No" stakes at Wembley Greyhound Stadium last Friday (28) to mark the preem next Friday (5) of "Dr. No."

Shepperton Studios hosts at a luncheon for Arthur H. Page, who is retiring from the managing directorship of Mole-Richardson after 30 years in the industry.

Harry Field, general manager of A.B.-Pathe's tv commercial and advertising films division, planed to N.Y. last week to organize production of German commercials series.

The Variety Club tossed a small cocktailery for Mrs. Frances Goldwyn, who deputized for her husband at last night's (Tues.) delayed preem of "Porgy and Bess" at the Dominion.

Ray Harryhausen, associate producer and visual effects expert on Charles H. Schneer's "Jason and the Golden Fleece," is to marry in London next Friday (5). His bride will be Diana Bruce, a native of Scotland.

Chicago

(DElaware 7-4984)

Robert S. Taplinger Associates, the pubrel firm, opened a Chi office, with vet publicist Art Desmond in charge.

Boxoffice staff for "Longest Day" show at Roosevelt Theatre starting Oct. 11 is Jack Ehlert, Dave McCarthy and Chuch Carey.

Femme producer M. J. Boyer prepping another USO show set for a Nov. 12 takeoff to entertain troops in the Mediterranean area.

The Archway Lounge, southside jazz spot, folded Sunday (30). Owner Harold (Killer) Johnson goes to the Sutherland Lounge as a host.

The Wrigley Building (which houses the Chi office of VARIETY) restaurant has a new manager, Andre Ballestra, formerly chief of the Le Manoir.

Two Northwestern U. students, Stuart Hagmann and Maria Horaites, copped a first prize at the Venice International Film Festival for a 16m film, "Good Night, Socrates."

Chi and Milwaukee film press and exhibs were guests last Wednesday (26) at a luncheon for "Mutiny On Bounty," which opens in November on hardticket at the Cinestage.

Bob Newhart in town last week with publicist Sam Honigberg on their way to a batch of college concert dates in Michigan and Ohio. Newhart tapes a Garry Moore show Oct. 5, then heads for more concerts in Texas.

Final figures are in for the International Trade Fair, held this summer at McCormick Place. Attendance is placed at 600,000. Fair authorities estimate that out-of-towners spent $20,000,000 in stores, hotels and restaurants during the show.

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz

(66 Ave. Breteuil; SUF 59-20)

Yves Montand mulling a film with John Berry, longtime Yank pic director resident here.

Paul Guers into Jacques Demy's second pic, "La Baie Des Anges" (Bay of Angels) opposite Jeanne Moreau.

Films come in sixth place in the entertainment budget of the average Frenchman, according to some statistics here.

Gloria Lasso, Hispano romantic pop singer, who was a star here some years ago, now turning to more dramatic poetic songs.

Lebanon readying its second film fest to take place at Beyrouth Oct. 18-26. It comes under the Society of Touristic Encouragement.

Jules Dassin prepping a thriller, "The Light of Day," based on an Eric Ambler book. It will be shot in Istanboul, Turkey, with Melina Mercouri starring. It may roll early next year.

Greek director Michael Cacoyannis looking for a 15-year-old actress for his filming of Greek tragedy, "Iphighenia In Aulis," which he begins in Greece for United Artists next spring.

Actor Pierre Brasseur prepping an exposition of his paintings as well as a new play (he wrote it), "The Old Horns," and a return to the stage at Theatre De France in Paul Claudel's "Sharing at Noon."

William Sabatier into the French legit version of Lillian Hellman's "Little Foxes" due at the Sarah Bernhardt in November. Simone Signoret has adapted and stars. French title is "Renards Entre Eux" (Foxes Among Themselves).

Carlo Rim, who just finished a vidfilm skein of 13 pix (half hour) based on Guy De Maupassant tales, next does 13 based on "Don Quixote" with pop singer-actor Phillipe Clay to play the sad faced knight. Francis Blanche would be rotund squire Sancho Panza.

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan

(319 N. 18th St.; LOcust 4-4848)

Dave Milgram, Milgram Theatres chief, visiting studios on the Coast.

Music publisher Milton Kellem now associated with the N.Y. brokerage firm of Herzfeld & Stern.

Zsa Zsa Gabor to be guest of honor and introduce the new models at Pitcairn Oldsmobile agency across the Langhorne Speedway, Langhorne, Pa., Oct. 4.

Donald R. Hicks, former Pittsburgh branch manager for Paramount, now in charge of the company's local exchanges, succeeding Edward G. Chumley.

Stephanie and Nicholas, the Strolling Duo, returned to the Publick Room of the Treadway Inn. She's the widow of former society bandsman Sylvan Herman.

West Philadelphia High School to honor alumnus Herman Levin, at its 50th anni dinner (Oct. 25). Committee is trying to round up some of its other show biz alumni, Jeannette MacDonald, Wilbur Evans, Martin Gable, Marty Gosch and Rebecca Welles to attend the ceremonies.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke

(DUdley 4-4141)

Billy Conn in to say hello to pals Tommy McDonnell at the Stardust, Cornelius J. Jones at the DI, and Jackie Heller at the Flamingo.

Blossom Seely, in for George Burns-Carol Channing Dunes opening, is house-guesting with Ruth Etting and hubby Myrl Alderman, who now live here.

Vince Anselmo, Thunderbird flack, turned down offer from Gov. Grant Sawyer, who wanted him to take leave of absence and be his publicist during current campaign for reelection.

Milton Berle, here to cut ribbon for his brother Phil's Fantastic Fair shopping center, gleefully telling local Dodger fans about signing Don Drysdale. Sandy Koufax, Maury Wills, Duke Snider, Willie Davis and Frank Howard for his Dec. 24 Desert Inn opener.

Palm Springs

By A. P. Scully

(Tel 324-1828)

Harpo Marx and Red Skelton, neighbors now, did a Skelton show together.

Red Skelton, piloting three French poodles, explains, "The little one's the father."

Death of Bob Howard, husband of Andrea Leeds Howard, one of the great losses to the town.

L.A. Angels, who train here, looking for land where they can spend $500,000 for three fields and a clubhouse.

Bob Hope, who stepped into a gopher hole on the Bermuda Dunes golf course, was ordered to treat a twisted ankle with hot packs when the temperature was 112.

Backers of scheme to pull down old Desert Inn and build a six-story hotel against the mountains have pulled out because of city council's horsing around. Idea was Marion Davies when she owned the historic hostel.

Hollywood

Stephen Boyd back from Europe.

Dominic Frontiere stricken with appendicitis.

Len Kaufman to Japan to flack "Flight to Ashiya."

Al Stern and Mann Scharf have severed their flackery partnership.

John J. Glavin added to sales staff of Consolidated Film Industries.

Tay Garnett to have one-man show of his paintings at Burrel Galleries in December.

Sandra Dee to make nine-city bally tour for "If a Man Answers," teeing off in Chicago Oct. 10.

Leonard "Buzz" Blair on loanout from CBS to Screen Gems to produce Treasury bond drive film.

Mark Braly rejoined Capitol Records, after military leave-of-absence for past year, as news bureau manager.

Ralph Martin, former new director at WDGY, Minneapolis, joined KHJ Radio news staff as newsman and newscaster.

Frank Whitbeck comes out of four-year retirement to spearhead series of promotion meetings at Metro for "Billy Rose's Jumbo."

Shirley Booth and Don De Fore waxed public service announcements for American Humane Assn.'s "Be Kind to Animals Week" next May.

National Screen Service will distrib special theatre accessories prepped by Hollywood Preview Engagement Committee for "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?"

Sir Cedric Hardwicke will direct pre-Broadway showing of "A Wilde Evening With Shaw," two-character show based on writings of Oscar Wilde and GBS, at Pasadena Playhouse Oct. 15 as benefit for PP Children's Theatre Fund.

Paul Pumpian set as publicity director of Gene Norman operation, including Crescendo and Interlude niteries and GNP Crescendo Records, with Sheldon Davis Associates continuing to handle Norman personal pub.

Mpls.-St. Paul

By Bob Rees

(2208 Kenwood Parkway; 374-4015)

Local fave Hildegarde makes way for Kitty Kallen Thursday (4) at Hotel Radisson Flame Room.

Minneapolis Symphony opens 60th season Oct. 12. It'll run 30 weeks, two more than ever before.

Preem of "Longest Day" at Mann Theatre, Oct. 17, will be a benefit for Variety Club Heart Hospital, with all seats $10.

University of Minnesota 1962-63 Artists Course kicks off Monday (8) with D'Oyle Carte production of "The Gondoliers." Will also offer "The Mikado" the following night.

Reid H. Ray Film Industries of St. Paul elevated Clyde L. Krebs to veepee in charge of national sales. Also named James E. Holmes veepee for midwestern operations.

Portland, Maine

Mahalia Jackson to sing at City Hall Auditorium, Oct. 17.

Raymond A. Gilvard named chief producer-director of GWAN-TV. He formerly was director of the station's news programs.

Arthur Bennett Lipkin, newly appointed conductor of the Portland Symphony, has started rehearsals of the 65-piece orch Tuesday.

Vickie Crandall, operator of the Brunswick Summer Playhouse, returned to N.Y. after the most successful season she has had there.

Club Graymore is finished with strippers. In their place the club will feature revues. Opener will be Revue la Parisien, 12-performer group, which recently played the Lido in Paris. Capacity of the nitery has been increased from 400 to 500.

Berlin

By Hans Hochn

(760264)

Writer Werner Bergengruen observed his 70th birthday.

Friedrich (Frederic) Hollaender intends to open a theatre of his own in Berlin.

Jules Dassin and Melina Mercouri were in to bally their film, "Phaedra" (UA).

U.S. music publisher Irving Mills here for confabs with his local colleague, Paul Siegel.

Maria Schell and Paul Christian-Hubschmid are starred in Rialto-Gloria's "I'm Also a Woman," which Alfred Weidenmann is directing at CCC studios.

McAlmon's 'Lost Generation'

Continued from page 2

Stein and Picasso and Stravinsky and almost anyone you can name.

The "new" American writers were there, too, and it was this bunch which Gertrude Stein named "the lost generation". McAlmon was perhaps the most illustrious member of it—he is surely the most "lost" of its alumni.

At that period, along about 1925, almost all the Americans who were involved with the arts in Paris assumed automatically that McAlmon and Hemingway were the two "bright young men", it was a toss-up which of the two would become the "most important" writer. History has shown, of course, that Hem won hands down. He won without even trying; McAlmon didn't care. It was the same as (earlier) in Hollywood. McAlmon did what came naturally. And then he quit. Hem (as we called him in those days in Paris) cared; he cared very much. He took copious notes. Then he wrote his stories. Then he edited them and reedited them. He was never finished tinkering with them until they appeared in print. But Bob (as we called him then) wrote whatever he felt like writing, and that was that. He wouldn't even correct his misspellings or his grammar.

Prof. Robert E. Knoll has achieved a unique and fascinating work in his book, "McAlmon and the Lost Generation" (Univ. of Nebraska Press; $7.50), which is subtitled "A Self Portrait." This gives the impression (on the cover) that McAlmon wrote it himself, as an autobiography. He didn't, of course, never would have, though he did write a hunk of autobiography called "Being Geniuses Together," published in England in 1938. What the Lincoln (Neb.) prof has done is to accumulate all the possible bits and pieces of McAlmon's writing and use it as the basis for a biography, assuming that all of McAlmon's writing was allegedly based on fact and quoting a goodly number of McAlmon's yarns (McAlmon wrote mostly poems and short stories) in chronological fashion to give a full-length portrait. It's a fascinating notion, of course, and almost a success.

McAlmon himself was almost a success (and that word "almost" is used here in the sense that almost making it is equal to missing by a mile because he was not lazy. He just plain didn't care. But the good prof from Nebraska misses the boat just as far, even though it is obvious that he does care. He misses because he didn't know McAlmon who died in 1956) and didn't know any of the other characters. He was forced to rely on weather-worn hunks of paper and time-worn remnants of memory (not his own).

In other words there are quite a few factual mistakes in the book. Due mostly to the fact that (as Prof. Knoll is too young) he wasn't there when it all happened, and (b) Robert McAlmon was the most ornery, most stubborn, most prejudiced, most cantankerous, most argumentative, most opinionated gent of his era. He was in Paris at the same time as Hemingway, Dos Passos, Kay Boyle, Djuna Barnes, Whit Burnett, Martha Foley, Mat Josephson, Sam Putnam, Elliot Paul, Ford Madox Ford, Ezra Pound, et al. He was a talking and boozing friend of James Joyce. He was married to Bryher, the lady novelist and her millions of pounds, a goodly hunk of which she permitted him to spend. He was the first to publish a book by Hemingway. But his memory was naturally spotty. And that was all that Dr. Knoll had to work with—McAlmon's written memory.

How is it possible, for instance, to write a book about this period without mentioning Elliot Paul or Isadora Duncan? This book manages.

Despite which, this is a fascinating book and deserves to take its place on that long and remarkable list of books that have been written about this era—books by Richard Aldington, Margaret Anderson, George Antheil, Sylvia Beach, Donald Friede, William Carlos Williams, Konrad Bercovici, Peggy Guggenheim, Malcolm Cowley, Harold Loeb and, oh, gosh, there must have been 50 so far. And Morley Callaghans' to come in a few months. Will it ever stop? Probably not. Why should it?

(Wolfe Kaufman, one of the also-rans of the era, will write about some of his own remembrances of Paris in those years in the next VARIETY Anniversary number—Ed.).

'Casey' Comm'ls

Continued from page 1

commercials by a Casey nurse.

Rules now call for all actors portraying members of the medical, dental and nursing professions "not to wear the garb of the respective professions or use props or settings which imply that they are bonafide members of the professions."

Code Authority added there is no ban on actors in medical dramas appearing on sustaining programs and commercials "as long as they are cast in their true to life identities without benefit of white coats, stethescopes or other props or settings that would give viewers the impression that they actually are doctors, dentists or nurses."

Piaf & Zanuck

Continued from page 2

were three enormous panels signifying the tricolor and before it a miniscule figure, Edith Piaf.

Miss Piaf literally had Paris at her feet as she belted out two songs in her still rich and throbbing voice. Loudspeakers had her booming out over Paris with wild applause from the assembled people and those in the dining room. Then a dazzling display of fireworks lit up the Tower and were as impressive as Zanuck's war fireworks in the pic.

The consensus of the star-studded audience at "Longest Day" was that it was a major filmic achievement, and top selling daily France-Soir called it an astonishing fresco on the famed D-Day Allied invasion landing during the last world war.

Among the stars present were Audrey Hepburn, Mel Ferrer, Jean Seberg, Line Renaud, Deborah Kerr, Simone Simone, Curt Jurgens, Christian Marquand, plus plenty of pic personalities surrounding Zanuck.

Big diplomatic and military turnout also had incumbent American Ambassador to France James M. Gavin at the preem. A General at the time, Gavin was played by Robert Ryan and got big applause when his film figure appeared on the screen. In fact all known historical personages in the pic, many of them present, got recognizant applause.

Also worth lauding is pub man Georges Chavenne who set up and arranged the affair. Pic opens here officially Oct. 10 at two first-run houses and looks destined for a solid and profitable career judging from its preem reactions.

Tonight's (Wed.) preview of "Longest Day" at the Warner Theatre, in New York, sponsored by the International Rescue Committee, is being followed by a gala dinner at the Americana Hotel for 60 guests. Among the attendees will be 21 generals who actually participated in the D-Day landings.

Preceding tomorrow (Thurs.) night's premiere, there will be a cocktail party honoring Dr. Jonas Salk, whose Salk Foundation will benefit from the proceeds of the charity opening.

Javits' Arts Bill

Continued from page 2

Senate leadership into moving the measure to the head of the line, a line that is more a mob scene as the adjournment bell begins tolling. Bringing up will be hard enough, passing it will be on the uphill side of impossible.

But the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee's surprising 9-4 approval of the far-reaching bill last week has struck hope in the hearts of subsidy supporters. The committee action was an eye-opening Javits coup in itself.

The committee docket contained only a mild, tried-before bill by Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) creating a Federal Advisory Council on the Arts under the White House roof. The Council's main and only function would be to form sort of a Government cheering section for all the arts.

A special Labor and Public Welfare Subcommittee on the Arts had chosen the Humphrey bill from among three after a series of hearings and a subsequent decision that the best approach would be the modest, timid approach of the Humphrey plan.

Javits had argued long and forcefully during the hearings in the closed subcommittee sessions for a bolder stroke. His theme was "if we are going to be beaten, let's lose on something big." The disagreement was only in degree because there were no opponents of Federal arts legislation.

Javits carried the fight to the full committee and won. The 9-4 vote was on substituting an amalgamation of the Javits bill and another by Sen. Joseph Clark (D-Pa.), which called for state grants, for the Humphrey measure. The vote on recommending the amalgamation to the Senate was unanimous.

As manufactured by the committee, the new bill creates an independent U.S. Arts Foundation composed of 12 trustees and a director, all appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Its scope would be limited to the visual and performing arts.

Specific duties and functions of the Foundation would include actual presentation of productions, active encouragement of all arts groups, cooperation with trade unions and trade associations, and, most significantly, grants and loans to states and non-profit groups and productions, particularly to provide the arts in remote areas of the nation.

To do all this, the Foundation would get an appropriation of $5,000,000 in its first year of operation, and $10,000,000 a year thereafter. The appropriation would be divided equally, with half going to the states in grants, the other half for all other functions.

The state grants would be distributed equally among all 50 states, but any share unused by a state would go back in the pot for redistribution. If all states use the money, it breaks down to about $100,000 each. As in all other Federal grant programs, state projects would have to get Foundation approval before the handout is made.

A committee aide, remembering a series of tries on lesser bills dating back to 1956, called recommendation of the Javits-Clark measure to the Senate "the first breakthrough on the Congressional front of any arts legislation this far-reaching."

Chief significance of the whole thing is that it seems definitely to move a lot closer the day when the U.S. actually gets into show biz with drawn checkbook.

Cantor-Salk Spec

Continued from page 2

dience at any convenient broadcast time," Cantor stated. Maizlich leaves shortly for New York to discuss the matter with network chiefs.

Cantor, who is credited with raising over $1,000,000,000 for charity and originated the March of Dimes at the request of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, plans the show as a tribute to Dr. Jonas Salk, discoverer of the initial vaccine against polio, and hopes that the program will bring in the $15,000,000 needed to construct Dr. Salk's planned institute for research for vaccines against all dangerous viruses.

Baseballers-TD

Continued from page 1

Boyer, Bill Stafford and Tex Clevenger, of the N. Y. Yankees. Band will play a 45-minute concert and the ballplayers will hold the podium for a 20-minute spiel and a question-and-answer period. The ballplayers will appear separately on the different dates.

Barzie has already line up 60 dates for the sports-music bash. Tour begins in Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 22 and will run through March 1.

'Don't Make Stars Fall-Guys'

Continued from page 1

screen," said Curtis, "so can you blame him for trying to protect his investment?" Noting the recent crises involving Marlon Brando, Elizabeth Taylor and Marilyn Monroe, all of whom were widely criticized for asking—and usually getting—highly beneficial contractural terms, Curtis pointed out that nobody had guns placed at the heads of the managements who agreed to such terms. Obviously somebody thought those deals would be profitable.

And don't blame stars for those "percentage of the gross" deals, he went on. Too many actors got burned when they agreed to taking a "percentage of the net." For some strange bookkeeping reasons, he said, "there was very seldom any net on which to get a percentage. But the companies themselves did okay, what with their studio overheads and their distribution fees."

Remembering his own nine months of inactivity waiting for "Lady L" to get underway at Metro (see separate story), and citing production problems on "Mutiny on The Bounty" and "Cleopatra," Curtis suggested that stars could hardly be held responsible when pictures were given production go-aheads even when final-and-completed shooting scripts were not available.

When this reporter noted that management's usual explanation in such cases was that the picture "had" to start, because of the stars' availabilities, Curtis commented "nonsense!" and added, in effect, "a pox on both your houses." Stars, he acknowledged, should not tie themselves up for a project without having the guarantee of a completed script, and management should certainly not commit themselves to a production start without the assurance that everything will be ready for that start.

On Time

He said that every film in which his own Indie firm has been involved has started on sked and wound up within four or five days of the projected finish date, either before or after.

Curtis finds it quite incredible that the company execs make the kind of deals they do with stars and then turn to the public prints to cry about how the stars are "ruining us," at the same time filling the columns with "blind items" about temperament, poor behavior, etc. He asked, "Can you imagine General Motors kicking the hell out of one of its cars?"

Curtis also suggested that lack of major company foresight, taste and talent is responsible for one of the current industry phenomena—the emergence of what he calls the "new middlemen or the non-producing producers," specifically the Mirisch Co. and Seven Arts. Emphasizing that he was not knocking them, Curtis said that these two companies had assumed a responsibility and function in the industry which normally should be exercised by the major companies themselves.

The Mirisch Co. and 7A, he said, by optioning a wide range of properties, signing production and directorial talent and putting packages together, are thus filling a vacuum created by the major companies' abdication of their responsibility. The net result is fine, in that it means that pictures are being made, he said, but from the actor's point of view he has misgivings.

To the actor, said Curtis, the rise of the new middleman simply means another barrier between the performer and his major company employer. As an example he cited what one must assume to be a hypothetical case: "Hey, Tony, I got this property. It's just right for you. Great! Terrific! Of course, we can't pay you what you usually get—we just don't have the dough . . ."

They don't have the dough, suggested Curtis, because "they have to get their cut, in addition to that going to the producing producer, the director, etc."

Curtis was also skeptical of the property-acquisition talents of some of these middlemen. "It's the shotgun technique," he said. "They option everything in sight, the good and the bad." But in doing this, he admitted, they are simply doing what the majors should be doing.

For his part, said Curtis, he can make a better business deal (more money) by dealing directly with a distrib. He recounted how he had been approached on a couple of different occasions by middlemen wishing him to star in a property called "A Most Contagious Game." Eschewing the deals then offered, the star played a waiting game. Eventually, the property was back on the free market and Curtis picked it up for his company, went to United Artists Coast veep, Bob Blumofe, and made "a very satisfactory deal." No middlemen.

The star, in New York to tub-thump the approaching release of UA's "Taras Bulba," also has just completed Universal's "Forty Pounds of Trouble," as well as a cameo role in Paramount's "Paris When It Sizzles." On his upcoming agenda are several properties, including "Monsieur Cognac" and Col's "Playboy."

Della Reese

Continued from page 1

the Starlite and probably anywhere on Cocoa Beach.

It all began some months ago when the motel, whose room gets a lot of trade from neighboring Cape Canaveral, polled its patrons as to who they would like to see in its room. Miss Reese was high on the list and the Starlite went after her. She was hired at the highest price ever paid an entertainer for that room—a reported $6,500 for the week.

On the signing of the deal, in which Miss Reese demanded that she play to both Negro and white audiences, the Starlite announced her booking in local papers. The arrangement was to have some nights for whites and some for Negroes at the club which has one of the biggest entertainment rooms on the Beach.

The announcement brought threats to the hotel of bombings, beating of patrons and other reprisals including extreme political pressures. All these caused the Starlite management to revamp its pact with the singer, offering her several one-nighters and the possibility of a gig in a Negro club as alternatives to her appearance at the Starlite. They then arrived at the current arrangement.

Another bug in the situation is that there is a Cocoa Beach ordinance forbidding Negroes to stay overnight anywhere on the Beach. Negroes have to stay 10 miles away at Cocoa. Miss Reese was to have stayed at the Starlite, which, incidentally, was press headquarters for the Col. Glenn space flight and functions as a press depot for all major space events at the Cape, although the actual headquarters move from shot to shot.

This can become a big issue in this area which periodically has international attention focused on it and is also trying to build up its entertainment rooms. Among reprisals allegedly threatened over Miss Reese's planned appearance were such political angles as trouble with the local Alcohol Beverage Control board.

Sonny Liston

Continued from page 1

Sullivan show was the first step in that direction.

Glaser's Cugat & Lane three-year booking contract is for all fields except television packaging.

Liston Documentary

Latching on quick to the new heavyweight champ, East End Productions has come up with a half-hour documentary about Sonny Liston for syndication. Titled "The Other Side of Sonny Liston" and narrated by former Notre Dame football coach Frank Leahy, the film delves into the new champ's past criminal record and his plans for the future.

Charles Romine, prexy of East End, completed the show several weeks ago. Romine said that the company preferred to gamble on Liston winning the championship before offering it for sale.

OBITUARIES

FRANK LOVEJOY

Frank Lovejoy, 50, veteran actor who worked in many media, suddenly died in his New York hotel suite Oct. 2 apparently of a heart attack. He was appearing at the Jersey Theatre, Bergen Mall, N. J., in "The Best Man" in the role he created on Broadway.

Lovejoy first came to national prominence in "Home of the Brave" and had appeared in the teleseries "Meet McGraw." He was in many feature films.

A rabid baseball fan, Lovejoy had been watching the Dodger-Giant playoff game and then retired for the evening. It was a dark night at the Jersey Theatre. The actor had plans for a Bermuda vacation soon, his first getaway in three years.

In the course of his career he once estimated that he had done more than 5,000 radio shows, including parts in "Gangbusters," "Mister District Attorney" and "This Is Your FBI." He made his Broadway debut in 1934 in Elmer Rice's "Judgment Day."

He is survived by his actress-wife, Joan Banks (Lovejoy), having been Marie Wilson's original girl-friend on radio's "My Friend Irma," among other credits. Lovejoy had been married once before, to Frances Williams, a featured singer in Billy Rose's Aquacade at the 1939 N.Y. World's Fair. She is the mother of Lovejoy's two surviving children, Judith, 18, and Stephen, 17.

BARRY LUPINO

Barry Lupino, 80, comedian-pantomimist and member of a noted British theatrical dynasty, died Sept. 26 in Brighton, England. He came from a family that has been identified with the theatre since the mid-seventeenth century, and was the 13th member of the line that had been famous in the pantomime field.

Lupino started in the theatre on his first birthday in a Drury Lane production of "Cinderella." Trained in stage artistry by his father, George Lupino, he was one of 15 children, all of whom were at one time connected with the theatre.

Other members of the clan include Stanley Lupino, a comedian; Lupino Lane is a cousin, and Ida Lupino, of Hollywood, is also a cousin. Barry Lupino was most noted for his depiction of Dame in the Christmas pantomimes, traditionally played by a man. "Aladdin" and "Jack and the Beanstalk" were other characterizations for which he was famous. He also helped in authoring about 50 pantomimes.

Lane, who was married three times, had three sons and two daughters.

PATRICK HAMILTON

Patrick Hamilton, 58, novelist and playwright, died Sept. 24 in Sheringham, Eng. Originally an actor, he made his first stage appearance in 1921. Two years later he wrote his first novel and from then on concentrated on novels and playwriting for stage and radio.

His several novels were perhaps more serious in intent than his plays, but the latter always provided striking entertainment. His plays included "Rope," "The Procurator of Judea," "John Brown's Body," "The Duke in Darkness," "Ethel Fry," "The Man Upstairs" and "Angel Street," which was filmed by Metro in 1944 and called "Gaslight." "Rope" was filmed by Warner's in 1948.

Of these two thrillers, "Rope" and "Angel Street," were hits. Both had healthy runs in London, on Broadway and in other countries.

Survived by his wife.

LUDWIG BEMELMANS

Ludwig Bemelmans, 64, humorist, satirist and artist, died of cancer of the pancreas Oct. 1 in New York. He was probably best known for his "Madeline" books of illustrated rhymes of which there are five. He was working on a sixth when he was taken ill.

Like all of his works, the "Madeline" series was marked by sharp prose of strong satirical values, accompanied by illustrations that were at once primitive and sophisticated. This series dealt mostly with cafe society, from the standpoint of the restaurant, cabaret and hotel industry.

He also wrote several children's books, and all his writings total some 30 tomes. His first novel was "Now I Lay Me Down To Sleep." He also gave the military a going over in "My War with the U.S.A." and satirized Hollywood in "Dirty Eddie." A World War II tome he wrote was called "The Blue Danube."

Bemelmans was also an acclaimed painter with several one-man shows to his credit. He also saw some service in Hollywood, where he was a script writer for a time. The author-painter also made several contributions to magazines, among them Vogue, The New Yorker, Town and Country, Stage and Holiday.

He is survived by his wife and daughter.

CHARLES F. RIESNER

Charles F. (Chuck) Riesner, 75, early Hollywood screenwriter-director, died Sept. 24 in La Jolla, Cal. He also achieved fame as a tunesmith for Leo Feist Music, his best-known song being "Goodbye Broadway, Hello France." He was a Warner Bros. producer until his retirement 12 years ago following a heart attack.

His picture career began as a scenarist for some of the pioneer studios—Keystone, Vitagraph and Century—and his efforts included several early Charlie Chaplin reels, among them "Gold Rush" and "The Kid." He subsequently worked for Universal, Metro and WB. He acted in Universal two-reelers for a time, then segued into features, including a "Self-Made Failure" and "Her Temporary Husband."

Films he directed included "Traveling Saleswoman" (Col), and "The Cobra Strikes" and "In This Corner," both for Eagle-Lion. He had also written a tv series, "Night Watchman," and three novels.

Born in Minneapolis, he broke into show business on the Keith-Orpheum vaude circuit, and later starred in musicals such as "Queen of the Movies."

DAVID G. TAFT

David Gibson Taft, 46, vice-chairman of the Taft Broadcasting Co. board of directors, died of a heart attack Sept. 27 at his summer home in Biddeford Pool, Me., while preparing to return to his residence in Cincinnati, headquarters of TB radio-tv properties in five cities.

A son of the late Hulbert Taft, publisher of the former Cincinnati Times-Star, he entered radio in 1940 with WKRC, the founding station, which he rejoined after four and a half years of Army service in World War II. He rose from private to captain and served as liaison officer for Gen. Joe Stillwell after being wounded in Burma.

Taft became general manager of WKRC-FM in 1947, managing director of WKRC-Radio in 1951 and general manager of WKRC-TV in 1955. He also was in charge of Taft's transit radio subsidiary during its operation. In 1961, because of a heart condition, he assumed a less active role in broadcasting affairs.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, four daughters, mother, two sisters and brother, Hulbert Taft Jr., president and board chairman of the company.

ROBERT F. MANN

Robert F. ("Bob") Mann, 41, news director for WQXI, Atlanta indie radio station owned and operated by an Esquire Mag subsidiary, died Sept. 23 of a heart attack at his home in Chamblee, an Atlanta suburb.

Mann, a veteran of broadcasting and the Atlanta news field for some 24 years, had been with WQXI for two years. Prior to that he was with Storer chain's WAGA-TV and state-owned radio WGST in Atlanta as well as with other Alabama and Georgia stations.

Mann, known to his listeners as "Bob," was noted for his radio interpretations of stories concerning politics. He was a native of Jacksonville, Fla.

Survivors include his father, wife, son and daughter.

ALFRED E. HUMAN

Alfred E. Human, 69, music editor, died in Cresskill, N. J., Sept. 28. At his death he was editor of the Brief Publishing Co., a monthly digest of trade publications for information of company executives, and president of the Gould Foundation, which he founded to administer medical endowments.

His music activities began in 1920 as editor of Musical America. Later, he became editor of Musical Courier and Musical Weekly and founded the Chamber Music Society of New York. He also served as president of the American Section of the International Society For Contemporary Music.

He founded what were called the first non-commercial magaines for the world of music as Encore, The Violinist and The Flutist. In 1945 he became editor of the Musical Digest.

Surviving are his wife, stepson and two sisters.

CHARLES H. O'DONNELL

Charles H. O'Donnell, 76, a retired vaudeville performer, died Sept. 10 in Pompano Beach, Fla.

He launched his career with the team of Lane & O'Donnell, a comedy acrobatic act. They played, in addition to all the major U. S. vaude houses, several major European cities in 1912. He later married the former Ethel Blair and they formed the team of O'Donnell & Blair, which became an international favorite, touring the world several times. The act also made a series of film shorts.

His wife, son and daughter survive.

FLORENCE MULFORD

Florence Mulford, 86, soprano who sang at the Metropolitan Opera in the "Golden Age," died Sept. 8 in Winter Park, Fla. She was a member of the Met for three seasons, beginning in 1903, and again from 1912-17. A mezzo-soprano, she appeared in the American premiere of "Parisifal" and "Hansel and Gretel." She was on tour with the Met in San Francisco at the time of the 1906 earthquake.

Her two sisters survive.

BEN KAPLAN

Ben Kaplan, 65, former radio editor of the Providence (R.I.) Journal-Bulletin, died Sept. 12 at Rhode Island Hospital after a two-year illness.

Kaplan had worked on newspapers in Elmira and Binghampton, N.Y., and Worcester, Mass., before going to Providence. His newspaper career spanned 25 years, and between that and the wholesale jewelry business which he had at the time of his death, he was in the advertising business.

Survivors include his wife and son.

EUGENE GERBASE

Eugene Gerbase, 73, veteran film exchange manager, died Sept. 29 in Denver after a nine months' illness. He began his career as usher in Denver's old Isis theatre in 1911. He was with General Film in 1914, later becoming branch manager for First National, Universal and Republic Pictures. He remained with the latter as head of its Denver branch for 25 years.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters and a son.

DUKE HICKEY

Duke Hickey, 62, veteran film industry publicist, died, apparently of a heart attack, in Indianapolis Sept. 28. At the time, he was on field assignment for Universal Pictures, his employer the past 14 years. At one time he had worked as field coordinator of the community service department of the Motion Picture Assn. of America.

Hickey's home was Cleveland. Surviving are his wife and two sons.

JAMES R. LEONARD

James R. Leonard, 56, chief engineer of WCET educational tv station, Cincinnati, since 1954, following 24 years with Crosley's WLW radio engineering staff, died Sept. 19 in Cincinnati. He was a graduate of Cincinnati College of Music, where he became an instructor in radio-tv equipment operation.

His wife, son, daughter and brother survive.

GWYNNE A. BURROWS

Gwynne A. Burrows, 63, an Atlanta schoolteacher for 35 years who became wellknown as "Uncle Dan" on Educational Television, died Sept. 24 in Atlanta. When educational tv (WETV) came to Atlanta he originated "Uncle Dan's Nature Study Program" and took the "Uncle" role. The program won a number of awards.

He is survived by two sisters and his stepmother.

STEPHEN POLLITZER

Stephen Pollitzer, 82, chairman of Leichner Ltd., manufacturers of theatrical makeup, died Sept. 22 in Sutton, Eng. Born on the Continent, he went to Britain from Canada and became responsible for marketing of Leichner greasepaint in the United Kingdom. During the war he helped keep entertainment for the armed forces supplied with necessary makeup.

RAMON S. FERNANDEZ

Ramon S. Fernandez 40, a supporting player who appeared in more than 200 films, died of a heart attack Sept. 22 in Mexico City. Familiarly known as "Tarzan," he portrayed roles in jungle pictures and also was seen in a variety of horror films.

While never a star, Fernandez was seldom in need of a part.

A. T. BROADWELL

A. T. Broadwell, 32, assistant manager of the New Mexico State Fair, died recently of cancer in Albuquerque following prolonged hospitalization. He had been assistant manager of exposition from April, 1961, and prior to that was records officer of fair.

Wife, three children, parents and two sisters survive.

JULIO TABOADA JR.

Julio Taboada Jr. 36, film and legit actor, died of a heart attack Sept. 15 in Mexico City. Son of late actor Julio Taboada and actress Aurora Walker, he started his stage career in tent theatres.

Taboada later appeared in films and tv. In addition to acting, he also directed legit and tv works.

His mother survives.

EDWARD O. CALLIGAN

Edward O. Calligan, 64, retired artists rep, died Sept. 21 in Santa Monica, Cal. At various times he had handled such talent as Mary Martin, Bob Hope and Edward Arnold.

Son and daughter survive.

Father, of Ralph E. Donnelly, general manager for Associated Independent Theatres of New York, died Sept. 26 in Oceanside, L. I., after a long illness. Survivors also include his wife, daughter, Lillian Donnelly, who is with the Charles Stern talent agency in Hollywood, another daughter and two brothers.

Richard A. Mooney, 62, manager of the Brooklyn Academy of Music for eight years, died Sept. 24 in New York. He was for a number of years associated with the operation of Lewisohn Stadium. His wife, brother and five sisters survive.

John S. (Sherb) Herrick, 49, former announcer on WOKO, Albany, and ex-ballcaster on WABY, Albany, died Sept. 17 in that city after a long illness. His wife and seven children survive.

MARRIAGES

Nina Joan Daggett to Ted Coodley, Hollywood, Sept. 15. Bride is advertising exec; he's an AIP makeup man.

Karin Huebner to Guenther Pfitzmann, West Berlin, Aug. 21. Bride is an actress; he's an actor.

Jan Campbell to Daniel A. Bohr, New York, Sept. 22. Bride is with the Ashley-Steiner Agency; he's an actor.

Vera Morgan to Val Joyce, Dublin, Sept. 15. Bride's a singer; he's a radio announcer.

Betty Joan Stephens to Sloan Wilson, Dublin, Sept. 19. He's an actor-writer.

Janet E. Mick to John Peterson Warwick, Sept. 30, New York. Bride is an actress; bridegroom, son of the H. Paul Warwick, is exec veepee of Warwick & Legler agency.

Beverly Anderson to Lenny Traube, Sept. 21, Greenwich, Conn. Bride is a talent agent; groom is a legit pressagent and the cousin of Leonard Traube, former VARIETY staffer.

Barbara Ann McNulty to Thad Moore, Winston-Salem, N.C., Sept. 1. He's program director of radio station WNCS there.

Nancy Jane Bennett to James P. Harrison, Charlotte, N.C., Sept. Bride is with news dept. of WBT-WBTV in that city.

Jo Ann Phillips to Charles E. Bizzell, Greenville, N.C., Sept. 1. He's with the ad dept. of tv station WNCT there.

Sarah Ann Vaughn to Clarence E. Koontz, Gaffney, S.C., Aug. 26. He's office manager of radio station WEAC in that city.

Countess Katherine Geneviève Buxhoeveden to Hans Holzer, Noreton, Ct., Sept. 29. He's a producer and writer.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. John Courtland, daughter, Hollywood, Sept. 20. Father's a film director.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Springer, daughter, Hollywood, Sept. 20. Mother is singer Mildred Springer.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baker, son, Barnet, Eng., Sept. 21. Father is a BBC news caster and emcee.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller, daughter, Sept. 15, New York. Father is the playwright; bride is a photographer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Romaine, daughter, Sept. 21, New York. Mother is actre... Shirley Blanc

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Barrett, son, Sept. 23, New York. Mother is actress Diana Barth; father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Low, daughter, Sept. 15, New York. Father is the director of business affairs in the tv-radio department of Young & Rubicam ad agency.

Mr. and Mrs. John Archer, daughter, Hollywood, Sept. 25. Father's an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stone, son, Philadelphia, Sept. 25. Father is WCAU ... ster.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Grossman, daughter, Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 4. Father is associated with WROC there and is a nephew of Al Grossman, theatrical agent.

Mr. and Mrs. ... Dahe, daughter, New York, Sept. 26. Mother is actress Patty Lavelle, father is a film distributor.

In Memory of My Dear Pal

BILLY GLADSTONE

OCTOBER 4, 1961

Bill Eichler

ARTIE (Mr. Kitzel) AUERBACH

October 3, 1957

MARIO LANZA

October 7, 1959

Mario Lanza Institute
Philadelphia, Pa.
Incorporated 1962

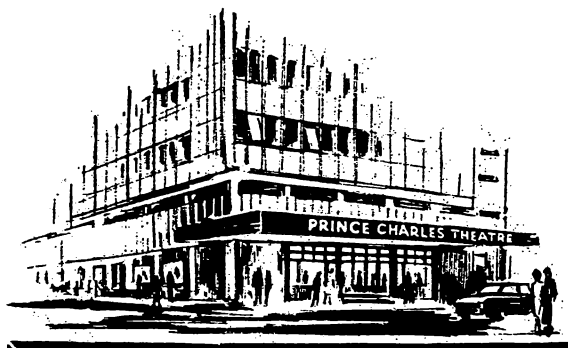
We have lost a dear friend—

ALFRED E. COHAN

"Any man's death diminishes me because I am involved in mankind. And therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for thee."

Al, Charley, Herman and Jerry

THE PRINCE CHARLES THEATRE



LONDON'S NEWEST AND MOST BEAUTIFUL INTIMATE PLAYHOUSE

OPENING IN DECEMBER

SOLE DIRECTION

HAROLD FIELDING

FIELDING HOUSE
13 BRUTON STREET, LONDON W.1

THE PRINCE CHARLES THEATRE
LEICESTER SQUARE, W. C. 2

A development for

ATLAS SECURITIES LTD.

Chairman ALFRED ESDAILE

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage at New York, N. Y.
© COPYRIGHT 1962 BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
Vol. 228 No. 7 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1962 72 PAGES

SHOWTUNES' PREMIERE BLUES

Humphrey Urges Congressional Nod To Arts & Humanities; Also Pix

Washington, Oct. 9.

Lost in the rush for adjournment this year, but due for Congressional attention next year is a new proposal by Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D.-Minn.) to authorize a Congressional medal of Merit for significant contributions by Americans to the arts and humanities.

"American men and woman who have captured the spirit of our times," Humphrey said, "in their music, literature and paintings are recording for posterity the freedom, beauty and sense of progress which America and her people so proudly and ably possess."

George Stevens Jr., chief of motion pictures for the U. S. Informa-

(Continued on page 70)

USE 'OWL BALLET' IN PSYCHIATRIC WORK

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Illinois Ballet Co. will premiere a psychiatric ballet on Saturday (13) which demonstrates "the interplay and inter-reaction between a Nightingale of Paradise and a corps de ballet of owls." The dance is designed to help in the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders, according to its creator, Daniel Jordan, a Ph.D. candidate

(Continued on page 70)

THEATRE CRIX NEED BRIEFING

By MIKE GROSS

Now that the new Broadway musical season is under way, an old cry is again being raised over the drama critics' appraisal of the music. The strongest voice to come into the fray so far belongs to conductor Andre Kostelanetz who claims that it is not logical to accept a first impression of a melody as final and that something should be done so that the critics can be pre-briefed on the music.

"Love at first sound," says Kostelanetz, "is not an impossibility

(Continued on page 50)

WGN Sees TV in Color 100% Within 10 Years as Prices of Sets Slide

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Based on the current growth rate of color tv set sales and a predicted major price drop four years hence, WGN-TV exec veepee Ward L. Quaal estimates that black-and-white television will literally be a thing of the past in 10 years. He expects that tint tv will have a 90% saturation in the 'Seventies and that there will be virtually no b&w transmission in that decade.

In an address to the Indiana Broadcasters Assn. last Friday (5), he predicted that Chicago—which now has an estimated 123,000 color sets—will have 2,225,000 in 1972 and over 3,000,000 by 1975. Quaal bases that estimate on present growth patterns, on expectations

(Continued on page 70)

SEATTLE FAIR NEARS 9,000,000 ATTENDANCE

Seattle, Oct. 9.

It looks good for the Seattle World's Fair in the race to clock 9,000,000 through the gates before its Oct. 21 closing. The 8,500,000 mark was passed Friday (5), when 42,638 payees brought attendance to 8,515,716.

With 16 days to go, an average of just over 30,000 will make the 9,000,000 figure. Could be done,

(Continued on page 52)

Will Soviet Dig N.Y. City Ballet?

New York City Ballet opened last night (Tues.) at the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow. Reports of the reception by the ballet buffs there are awaited in Manhattan with curiosity and eagerness. Three years ago City Ballet was passed by the Dance Selection Committee of the American National Theatre & Academy. Instead the U. S. State Dept. nominated Lucia Chase's less distinguished American Ballet Theatre to tour the Soviet Union.

Suggestion by VARIETY that the Balanchine troupe present its "Stars and Stripes" romp to Sousa

(Continued on page 70)

When Does a Vidtape Impinge on Religion? Case of Joe E. & Jackie

How unorthodox is a vidtaped performance when projected on the holiest of Jewish holy days. Rabbi-turned-comic Jackie Mason seemingly saw nothing askance in projecting his jokes on the Jack Paar-NBC show a week ago Friday night (28), when the Jewish New Year's began, but nitery comic Joe E. Lewis' taped interview was cancelled as the debut feature of the "new" Hy Gardner show over WOR-TV on Sunday (7) because it coincided with the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur).

Actually Lewis had taped it the

(Continued on page 57)

NBC's First Femme V.P.

NBC has got its first lady vice-president. At a board meeting on Friday (5), the network okayed Marion Stephenson as a striper.

The first in the network's 40-odd-year history, the lady veep is in charge of administration for NBC Radio.

'EDDIE FISHER AT WINTER GARDEN'

A Star-Spangled Triumph

By JOHN McCLAIN Drama Critic (New York Journal-American)

ECHOES OF AL JOLSON and the great days of the Winter Garden reverberated up and down Broadway last night as young Eddie Fisher took the stage of that hallowed hall and stood an enthusiastic and resplendent first night audience on its diamond-decked ear. This is a more mature Eddie, both in timbre of voice and professional poise.

He sang for a solid hour and then when there was some hint of his retirement the customers hollered him back into action. He was still going strong when I fled to beat the crowd 15 minutes later; may, in fact, still be there.

Great Material

There is just no way to criticise his choice of material, because he sings just about everything ever written and does it wonderfully well. Here is just a partial run-down: "Back in Your Own Back Yard," "Don't Let

(Continued on Page 67)

ASCAP's Record $24-Mil., 1st 8 Mos.

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Interim fiscal report covering eight-month period from Jan. 1 through Aug. 1 was given to Coast ASCAP membership last week at the Hollywood Palladium at the Society's membership meeting.

The report disclosed receipts of $23,876,769, slightly higher than similar period of 1961 when the organization took in $19,683,305.

Monies were received as follows: from licensees, $23,585,658; from interest on U.S. Treasury Bonds, $165,342; membership dues, $125,648. There will be

(Continued on page 48)

NBC-TV Didn't Bankroll Berlin Escape Tunnel, 'Only Bought TV Rights'

Facing reports that it financed the cost of an escape tunnel between East and West Berlin, NBC-TV sources insist that its news department did nothing more than "pay for tv rights."

Network concedes that there were apparently four engineering students who burrowed a large tunnel beneath the Wall, and, according to one NBC exec, the money for "rights" went "to somebody in this group" of four.

NBC News acknowledges that Gary Stindt, NBC News film chief

(Continued on page 70)

YOU AND 98 MILLION OTHER AMERICANS watched Schirra orbit . . . and World Series through Super Universal ZOOMAR LENSES on NBC, ABC, CBS.

GOOD SHOW!

Regional Acting Companies Divide Unprecedented $6,100,000 Ford Grants

Grants totaling $6,100,000 to nine theatre companies throughout the country were revealed today (Wed.) by the Ford Foundation. The windfall subsidy, directed at strengthening resident theatre in the U.S., marks an expansion of the Foundation's arts program whereby selected professional groups are to be aided in reaching and maintaining new levels of artistic achievment and financial stability.

The individual grants range from a high of $2,100,000 for the Alley Theatre in Houston, to $100,000 for the Fred Miller Theatre in Milwaukee. Sandwiched between are grants of $1,250,000 to the Mummers Theatre at Oklahoma City; $863,000 for the Arena Stage of Washington; $593,000 to the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre and Academy at Stratford, Conn.; $500,000 for Univ. of California Extension in Los Angeles; $337,000 to the new Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis; $250,000 for the Actors Studio of New York, and $197,000 to the Actor's Workshop of San Francisco.

Theatres granted the larger sums are those the Foundation believes are now beefed up to reach significant new levels in their development, but require enlarged seating capacity to maintain them. All nine theatres are regarded by the Foundation as capable of steady artistic development and of achieving a sustaining level of income from other sources within a reasonable period. The Foundation, which first began supporting the arts in 1957, has until now limited its assistance to individual artists and to experiments and demonstrations. Aid on this level is to continue, according to Henry

(Continued on page 70)

Topical Joke

Astronaut Wally Schirra's historical sixtupie orbiting occurred the same day that David Merrick's "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off!" premiered at the Shubert, and the topical gag was the astronaut's admonition to the U.S. space missle authorities,

"Stop the world, I want to get back on!"

Showfolk Rally 'Round The GOP Flag at D.C. 'I Miss Ike' Spectacular

Washington, Oct. 9.

Republicans flavored their partisan politics with charm and superb performances of Marguerite Piazza and others last Wednesday (3) at an "I Miss Ike" rally.

Former President Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, now a blonde, occupied the seats of honor at the Constitution Hall spectacular where most entertainers seemed politically non-partisan.

Singer Pat Boone, a last minute substitute for film star John Wayne, was the only performer to fire a poison arrow in the direction of uninvited Democrats.

In accepting a silver tray from elder Republicans, Boone told the audience:

"I think of citizenship as people who support their Government rather than being supported by it."

In appreciation for the applause he received as "an up and coming young Republican," Boone gratefully offered to sing for the guests.

"I would like to sing one of Mrs. Eisenhower's favorite songs, but it seems we didn't remember the lyrics," he said. "So George Murphy wrote them as he thought they should go." He then sang one

(Continued on page 70)

Lenny Bruce, Free On $2,600 Bail, Faces Dope Rap Hearing in Cal. Ct.

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Comic Lenny Bruce is free on $2,600 bail following his arrest Saturday (6) in North Hollywood on suspicion of possessing narcotics. He's due to appear for arraignment Oct. 10 in Van Nuys Municipal Court.

Bruce and three other men were seized in a hobby shop owned by Robert Coogan, brother of actor Jackie Coogan. According to police, Bruce and Robert Coogan were under influence of narcotics when arrested.

Aside from Bruce and Coogan, Donald Kolbrener, of Culver City, was also taken into custody. The fourth man was released for lack of evidence. Bruce denied possessing one ounce of heroin. Police also reported finding methadrine, a narcotic, in Coogan's desk.

NO. 3 AUCTION SALE OF JEROME KERN'S LIBRARY

More of the Jerome Kern library is scheduled for auction Oct. 16 by Parke-Bernet, which previously sold off parts of the Kern collection in 1927 and '29. Latter yielded around $1,000,000 gross at the time. The new offering contains manuscripts and first editions of English and American authors, plus the composer's own copies of his works. This is by order of the daughter, Mrs. Betty Kern Cummings.

Authors represented include Boswell, Keats, Hardy, Mark Twain, Beerbohm, Bronte, Darwin, Dickens, Galsworthy, O. Henry, Kipling, Melville, Millay, Shaw and Wilde.

10/10

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

JOHNNY CARSON

"TONIGHT" show, NBC-TV

We are thankful for all the gracious notices accorded us on the inauguration of our "TONIGHT" show.

A heartfelt acknowledgment to a fine fellow performer PAUL ANKA for our theme song "JOHNNY'S THEME" on which I happily collaborated.

2 From Show Biz, Killion & Marks, On Satellite Corp.

Washington, Oct. 9.

George L. Killion, MGM board chairman and American President Lines prexy, and Leonard H. Marks, prominent Washington radio-television attorney, were selected by President Kennedy as two of 13 leading Americans to set up the nation's new space age Satellite Communications Corp., as it is tentatively known.

Only other media man among the 13 was Philip L. Graham, publisher of Newsweek magazine and the Washington Post.

Edgar F. Kaiser, Lafayette, Calif., prexy of Kaiser Industries, is the appointee expected to be designated chairman.

Directors of the corporation, after it is formed, are expected to be chosen from those creating it.

President Kennedy's choices will serve without pay and will arrange the corporation's procedure, as well as determine how the public sale of stock will be handled. Initial financing, according to Marks, may involve $500,000,000.

Marks believes the corporation will tie together all of the communications of the world and slice present costs into mere fractions.

Other appointees are David M. Kennedy, Chicago banker; Sydney J. Weinberg, New York banker; Bruce G. Sundlun, Washington attorney; Fyrne L. Litschigi, Tampa, Fla., attorney; Beardsley Graham, Lexington, Ky., research firm executive; Leonard Woodcock, labor leader; Sam Harris, New York lawyer; George J. Seldman, Boston and N. Y. lawyer; and John T. Connor, Rahway, N. J., drug exec.

Frank Scully's Memoir, A 'Gay Knight' Indeed

By ROBERT DOWNING

"This Gay Knight," by Frank Scully (Chilton; $4.95), is the inspiring personal account of a modern literary and spiritual Don Quixote's joust with pain, social injustice, and the scrambled mores of his time.

Scully, at 70, has been bedridden for much of his adult life. He would be distinguished for his prodigious output in VARIETY "Scully's Scrapbook," if for no other accomplishment. Add to that continuing achievement, authorship of an earlier book, "Cross My Heart," plus Scully's many crusades on the right side of the angels in their own California city, and one discovers a singular and shining individual in these pages.

A native New Yorker, Scully studied at Columbia, and wrote for the N. Y. Sun. He has edited the famous "Fun in Bed" series; ghosted Frank Harris' life of Bernard Shaw, and he jogged the peace of mind of sluggards with his controversial tract, "Behind the Flying Saucers." His activities with civic groups, medical foundations,

(Continued on page 64)

B.A. Revolution Temporarily Kayos Show Biz; Radio's Major Role

Actor-Citizen Award

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

A Screen Actors Guild award will be presented annually to an individual "for outstanding achievement in fostering the finest ideals of the acting profession and advancing the principles of good citizenship."

Award, voted by the guild's board, will be presented at SAG's yearly membership meeting, held each November. This year the meeting will be held Nov. 12 at the BevHilton, and more than 1,500 actors are expected to attend.

Austerity Binge No Bar To South Korea's $5-Mil. Resort to Lure GI Dollar

Tokyo, Oct. 9.

Despite South Korea's austerity program, a $5,000,000 luxury resort community, replete with plush hotels and a nightclub with imported acts and a gambling casino, is said to be under construction on 130 acres near Seoul, South Korea.

The project is obviously designed to attract the dollars of U. S. military personnel who normally take leave in Japan or Hong Kong because of Korea's limited recreational facilities.

Called the Walker Hill project, in honor the late Maj. Gen. Walton H. Walker, the resort will annually receive an estimated 150,000 U.N. soldiers at its five hotels, plus hundreds of foreign tourists. Presumably, the project will be off-limits to Koreans.

Officials estimate that the project will produce an annual income of $2,000,000, to be used in the nation's reconstruction plans. In addition to a main building and five hotels, the resort will contain 13 motels, a hilltop bar and two mansions. Athletic facilities will include an 18-hole golf course, horseback riding, swimming and boating.

The nitery, a 500-seater, will have a revolving stage, and be housed in the four-story main building along with the casino, bowling alleys, a Turkish bath, a PX, a Bank of America branch and facilities for overseas phone calls, telegrams and for processing film.

MOWBRAY WALKS OUT IN CINCY; NOT FOR CAFES

Cincinnati, Oct. 9.

Nitery entertaining is not for Alan Mowbray, who walked out on it after a brief sampling last week at the Club Diplomat, Cincy's new hilltop theatre restaurant. The management was equally content to replace the stage, screen and tv star with comic Will Jordan after opening night of the week engagement, with singer Sheila Reynolds in support.

Mowbray diverted from his w.k. characterizations in a standup gagster switch and exited in less than 15 minutes of his initial date as a cabaret headliner. Material did not move tablers.

Miss Reynolds, established with Cincy cafe society by engagements at the former Beverly Hills casino on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, successfully filled out the opening night's second show with Wally Johnson's orch. Jordan reported Friday (5).

Shaffners' 1st O'seas Trip; Map 2d 'Farewell'

Neil Shaffner and his wife-partner Caroline, the "Toby and Sue" characters in the last of the tented repertory companies, having completed their farewell tour, sail today (Wed.) on the S. S. Excalibar for the Mediterranean. It's the couple's first voyage overseas after 35 years of trouping in Iowa and Missouri; they'll hit France, Italy, Greece and Lebanon.

As of now the Shaffners are retired professionally but a couple of projects are dangling. One would have them do a second "farewell tour" next summer to be photographed in detail and used as setting and background for a proposed television series. That's very "iffy."

Buenos Aires, Oct. 9.

"Army events," as the local press now terms the recurrent conflicts between different segments of the Armed Services messed up business for all branches of show business in Buenos Aires—which was the center of operations. These conflicts lasted about five days, but film theatres interrupted exhibition only on Friday (21) when matters looked most threatening, and for the afternoon performances of Saturday (22).

On Friday, all Government offices shuttered a little after noon, and staffs were sent home, businesses followed suit. Film and legit theatres also suspended operation, and the opening of Tennessee Williams' "Orpheus Descending" by the Alfredo Alcon-Maria Gallo company at the Alvear Theatre, had to be postponed.

Sept. 21 is traditionally the first day of spring here, celebrated by student frolics, art balls, charitable drives, and the general renewal of plays in legit theatres.

Most offices organize picnics, go in for practical joking, and students are permitted to invade the streets in their distinctive white

(Continued on page 70)

Puts Onus on Parents For Hooligan Behavior Of Kids Attending Pix

Galena Park, Tex., Oct. 9.

"How can we remedy in a matter of four hours, with a handful of ushers what should have been learned in the home for the past 12 to 16 years?"

That's part of the Galena Theatre's reply to complaints of youthful misbehavior at this town's only theatre. City council last week appointed a committee to probe numerous reports of this misbehavior.

The theatre operators, Albert Zarzana and Ray Boriski, issued a statement placing the responsibility for rowdyism on the parents and the city. Theatre, the management said, is "not in the rehabilitation" business, "but is merely trying to give that area entertainment and in doing so, endeavoring to gain a livelihood."

STATEMENT REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF AUGUST 24th, 1912, AS AMENDED BY THE ACTS OF MARCH 3, 1933, JULY 2, 1946 and JUNE 11, 1960 (74 stat. 208) showing the ownership, management and circulation of Variety, published weekly at New York, N. Y., for October 1, 1962.

1. The names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager, are:

Publisher—Variety, Inc., 154 W. 46th street, New York 36, N. Y.

Editor—Abel Green, 154 West 46th street, New York 36, N. Y.

Managing Editor—Robert J. Landry, 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

Business Manager—Harold Erichs, 154 West 46th street, New York 36, N. Y.

2. The owner is: Variety, Inc. 154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.; Syd Silverman, 154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.; Estate of Sime Silverman, 154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.; Harold Erichs, 154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.; Abel Green, 154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y.

3. The known bondholders, mortgagees and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent, or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: None.

4. Paragraphs 2 and 3 include, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting; also the statements in the two paragraphs show the affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holder, who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner.

5. The average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the 12 months preceding the date shown above was .....

Harold Erichs,
Business Manager.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 28th day of September, 1962.

Joseph Winter,
Notary Public 31-9710300.

(My commission expires March 30, 1964.)

YOUNGSTEIN-PICKMAN ACTION

Nothing But Respect From Roddy McD On Logistics & Direction of 'Cleopatra'

Anybody looking for some inside dope stories on "Cleopatra" production snafus is wasting his time talking to Roddy McDowall. Latter, who has just returned to the States after participating in 20th-Fox's two "white hopes" ("Cleo" and "Longest Day"), has nothing but respect for all the talents involved in the recently completed Epic of Rome, particularly those of writer-director Joseph Mankiewicz, who was writing as well as directing through much of the filming.

Says McDowall: "You really cannot imagine the scope of the film!" Even the sets impressed him, and McDowall, having been around sets for approximately 27 of his 34 years, isn't easily impressed in this department. Anent the rumors to the effect that the two-week windup location junket to Egypt had been fairly harrowing, McDowall said rather that everyone had been mentally and physically rundown by the time they got to Egypt—after almost a year of continuous work in Rome. The 20th logistics experts had worked out everything extremely well in advance, so that the desert shooting itself went off smoothly.

But Egypt, he allowed, was not a very pleasant place to work. "You always had the feeling that you were in a police state," he said. Alexandria, where the company was based during shooting, impressed him as being "surprisingly tacky"—no glamor left under the Nasser regime, and the lot of the common people still "depressingly poor." He was glad to get out.

Anent his four days of work doing his cameo in "The Longest Day," McDowall had particular praise for producer Darryl Zanuck, who directed his sequence. Although he had known Zanuck from his years as a child star at 20th while the now 20th prexy was studio boss, McDowall had never been directed by DFZ before. "He's quiet, understanding. He has a sense of humor—he knows how to handle actors," says McDowall.

Phil Silvers Sets 2 With Columbia

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Phil Silvers, through his Tranan Productions, has concluded a two-picture deal at Columbia Pictures, with first film to be "The Velvet Cage," story by Devry Freeman. Rod Amateau has been set to make his feature film bow as producer, with film to go early next year. Silvers stars. Deal was consumated with Columbia studio head Sol Schwartz.

Second picture will be developed by Silvers as starring vehicle for himself and Peter Sellers. Negotiations are on for British writer John Dighton to script from Silvers' original idea. Story is a sophisticated comedy involving two brothers, separated during their youth, who eventually are found leading the same scurrilous lives.

'LIFE OF BUDDHA' OPENS IN HONOLULU

Honolulu, Oct. 8.

"Shaka" ("The Life of Buddha") opens its Hawaii premiere tomorrow (10) at the Kokusai theatre. It's a Daiei Motion Picture Co. of Japan spectacle, which runs 160 minutes.

Because of Hawaii's racial makeup, the fact it's probably the most heralded production ever to come out of Japan, and the anticipated word-of-mouth, film is expected to draw capacity audiences for some weeks.

This is, incidentally, the U.S. premiere.

So Who Pays Premiums?

Brigadier Film Associates, N. Y., has figured out the promotional "stunt of the year" for its documentary package, "Smashing of the Reich" and "Kamikaze." Suggested in the exhib manual:

"This is a real way out stunt which, if executed, can only result in reams of space. There are many parachute jumping clubs scattered all over the country today whose members jump for pleasure and excitement. Contact one of these clubs in your area and get them to select one of their senior members to leap with a film can, ostensibly containing a print of the war combination strapped to his pack. He should be met at the airport immediately after his landing and escorted directly to the theatre with appropriate fanfare. This is a guaranteed newspaper, radio, television and wire service break and can be of inestimable assistance in launching the pictures."

Creditors Get Peek Into Mickey Rooney Subsids' Books in Bankruptcy

Los Angeles Oct. 9.

Two corporations set up by Mickey Rooney, Fryman Enterprises and Barbroo Corp., must produce their books for inspection by the court, under a ruling handed down by Federal bankruptcy referee Joseph Rifkind, who is exploring the complicated financial difficulties of the actor. In his voluntary petition for bankruptcy, Rooney stated he had debts amounting to $484,914 and assets of only $500.

Ruling also gives all Rooney's creditors an opportunity to examine thesp's books. Principal creditors are the Federal Government and State of California, to whom he owes $106,686 and $9,826, respectively, in income taxes, according to petition.

Rifkind set Dec. 31 as deadline date for any of actor's creditors who wish to object to discharge of his debts or make their objections known.

In his testimony before Referee Rifkind, Rooney said he works for Barbroo, which pays him $52,000 annually, and receives another $8,000 to $10,000 yearly from a trust fund set up for him when he was young.

MCA ADDS PARKING

Buys Plots Near Universal Lot Due For Expansion

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Music Corp. of America, continuing its Revue-Universal studio expansion program, has acquired two lots with 100-foot frontage across from Universal City studio. It plans to raze storefront structures and provide additional parking space for studio wokers.

MCA last month ordered $10,000,000 of expansion and construction to begin early in 1963.

Cut Media Guaranty

Washintgon, Oct. 9.

Congress has cut U.S. Information Agency's media guaranty funds to the lowest level ever, allowing only $1,000,000 for the year. Soft currencies in certain countries are guaranteed by dollars under the program affecting all media, including films.

The House had voted $1,500,000. The Senate slashed it to $1,000,000 and the House subsequently accepted the cut.

IDEA--SPARKMEN WILL PRODUCE

Max E. Youngstein, exec vice-president of Cinerama and president of the subsidiary Cinemiracle, is leaving both posts to go independent in association with Jerry Pickman, who recently exited as v.p. and domestic sales head of Paramount Distributing. Youngstein's contract with the Nicolas Reisini-controlled Cinerama expires Dec. 31 and it's presumed he'll bow out by at least that date.

Both Youngstein and Pickman have been in intense negotiations, presumably will reveal specific plan momentarily. But it is known they plan a theatrical production company along the lines of Seven Arts and the Mirisch Bros. Blueprinted is a scheme to make perhaps 10 pictures a year and taking all the legit, music, etc., rights.

The immediate parties are assured of substantial backing. Also, states a key source, "six pieces of major manpower are ready to join them."

Youngstein-Pickman pair are to be joined later by a third operator, identity withheld. A takeover of or substantial buy into, an existing theatrical (not film) outfit is foreshadowed. Details are unlikely to be made public before first of year.

Contemplated entity would offer "full service" to indie producers, from financing of the negative to the distribution skills of exploitation, advertising and publicity. Both Youngstein and Pickman are known partisans to strong field exploitation of the kind United Artists has maintained in recent years.

Division of authority between the prospective partners would assign Youngstein to selection of properties, negotiations with producers, stars, dramatists and so on, pretty much his work when with UA. Pickman would mastermind the marketing of the finished product.

Goal of "quality" short of point-of-no-return production costs engages the interest of Youngstein in the new venture. Meanwhile regarding the financier behind the new company he's a former behind-scenes banker. He's distinct from the third partner as to whom this hint: still in his 40s.

Guesswork around town is that Dr. Vilem Zwillinger, who is a big financier, is a financial partner and backer. Zwillinger is not well known in show business except to an inside few.

Youngstein has been prominent in the picture business for years, formerly as an ad-pub exec. A non-practicing lawyer, he hit the top as coowner and v.p. of United Artists when Arthur B. Krim and Robert S. Benjamin took over this company from Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin and turned it into a striking success. The takeover was in 1950. Youngstein decided to bow out last year to join Cinerama.

Pickman and Youngstein have had a long association. When Youngstein was ad-pub director of Paramount, Pickman was publicity head. Youngstein left to join UA and Pickman was given the ad-pub reins. Not much later Pickman became domestic distribution chief.

Both Youngstein and Pickman are close to production problems and nuances. Their new move, together, implies new excitement to the industry because of background and their never-stand-still impulses.

It's obvious that many a home-office exec and production official will be watching closely.

Dick Zanuck Heads Studio as 20th Readies Active Prod.; DFZ Due West

Prem's 'If' Booking

Film producer Otto Preminger, sitting in his office late last Friday (5), was in telephonic touch with such people as Col distribution chief Rube Jackter.

"Rubie," he said, "if you're Jewish I wish you a Happy New Year. If not, hold it 'til January first."

Mexicans Sensitive On Theme, Ponti-Levine Film Deferred, Could Travel

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Mexican government's indecision over script approval has forced postponement for possible full year on "Children of Sanchez," producer Elliott Kastner revealed. On the eve of N. Y. trip to confer with Joseph E. Levine, who is financing picture, a coproduction between Abby Mann and Kastner in association with Carlo Ponti, Kastner said, "we will definitely do the picture, either in Mexico or in another area but we now must await Mexico's decision before we can schedule a definite starting date."

"Sanchez" was to start end of next month in Mexico City. Postponement has necessitated juggling of commitments for director Vittorio DeSica and star Sophia Loren. DeSica has two commit-

(Continued on page 14)

VITALE RETURNING DISPUTED NEGATIVES

Charles Vitale and his Cee Vee Motion Picture Service of Queens, N.Y., agreed to give up all prints he held of Allied Artists and Walt Disney pictures under terms of a consent decree which last week ended a suit brought against distributor Vitale by the two producers. They had charged he had been licensing the prints without authorization.

Plaintiffs, as represented by the N.Y. law firm of Sargoy & Stein, said they were "satisfied" with the monetary relief, unspecified.

Federal Court suit charged Vitale with holding without authorization prints of AA's "Herod the Great" and Disney's "People and Places" travelogs plus the cartoon "The Story of Anyburg U.S.A." and the feature "Stormy the Thoroughbred."

Producer Richard D. Zanuck, son of 20th-Fox prexy Darryl F. Zanuck, has been named production chief at the company's Beverly Hills studio. Officially, young (28) Zanuck carries the title of the president's production representative, but, in effect, he becomes Hollywood production boss, thus to continue working in tandem with his father, with whom he has been associated most recently in DFZ Productions, Inc.

The obvious charge of nepotism is dispelled by the younger Zanuck's now-proven production know-how, attested to by talent, agents, et. al. who have worked with him in recent years. He also works well with his father and thus the appointment will facilitate liaison between the prexy's New York h.q. and the Coast. Previous production bosses at 20th were the late Buddy Adler, who succeeded the senior Zanuck in 1955; Bob Goldstein, who took over in 1960 and was succeeded by Pete Levathes last year when the prexy of 20th-Fox TV was named exec veep in charge of all production. Since the resignation of Levathes from studio post at the time of Zanuck's takeover this summer, Stan Hough has been acting as the prexy's temporary studio rep. Hough, whose job previously was assistant production manager at the studio, has now been named production manager, responsible to the studio boss and concerned with production efficiency. Former production manager Doc Merman resigned his post when the new 20th management took over.

Rounding out these new appointments, all of which were approved at the 20th board meeting in New

(Continued on page 6)

Irving Briskin's Columbia Tie

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Irving Briskin, who terminated his post as vice-president with Columbia earlier this year, returns to studio with a two-picture independent deal calling for one picture a year. First will be "Scandal's Child," unpublished novel by Edmund Schiddel, author of "Devil in Bucks County," which Briskin has purchased. Picture will be made next year in $3,000,000 budget area, producer said.

Film is set in Pennsylvania, will have four top starring roles.

VARIETY
Trade Mark Registered
FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.
Syd Silverman, President
154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700
Hollywood 28
6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141
Washington 4
1202 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445
Chicago 11
400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984
London, S.W.1
49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3
SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents
ABEL GREEN, Editor
Volume 228 120 Number 7

INDEX

Bills	57	Night Club Reviews	58
Casting	66	Obituaries	71
Chatter	69	Pictures	3
Film Reviews	6	Radio	20
House Reviews	54	Record Reviews	46
Inside Legit	64	Frank Scully	68
Inside Music	50	Television	20
Inside Radio-TV	42	Tollvision	16
International	18	TV Film	22
Legitimate	60	Television Reviews	32
Literati	68	Vaudeville	51
Music	46	Wall Street	12
New Acts	57

DAILY VARIETY
(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)
$20 a year. $25 Foreign.

Hornblow: Defense Dept. Off-Base In Attitude on Service Pictures

American Government, in undertaking to impose "drastic restrictions" on cooperation between the armed services and Hollywood producers, is showing "serious, even tragic, shortsightedness," states Arthur Hornblow Jr. This producer was in New York last week and pointed to a piece in the N.Y. Times quoting Arthur Sylvester, Assistant Secretary of Defense, as saying the clubs were in order.

Filmmaker Hornblow read into the piece that the Government has been providing a "generous favor" in cooperation with armed service productions whereas, he insists, it "has been nothing of the kind."

Governmental objections toward the servicing of film producers and television impresarios was particularly noticeable in the cases of Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day" and a Jack Paar tv'er on Berlin.

Hornblow offered this: "As

(Continued on page 71)

For Collectors of Data

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Chicago-made film portraying the killing of John Dillinger at the Biograph Theatre in Chicago in 1934 by FBI agents will play the same Biograph Theatre next Friday (12).

The picture, "True Gang Murders," was produced by distributor Dan Goldberg and Chi newsman Harry Mantell.

New Edicts On Use of Troops

Washington, Oct. 9.

U.S. Defense Dept. is almost finished with the toughening of its regulations governing the use of U.S. military forces in motion pictures.

Bad press during location of shooting of "Longest Day" is blamed for the first revision in the regulations since 1954. Ordering the restudy and rewrite of the regulations was Arthur Sylvester, Asst. Secretary of Defense with jurisdiction over film cooperation.

Most important of the changes, it's thought, calls for a daily report in expansive detail to Washington on how many troops were used and how.

Y. Frank Freeman To Sound Guilds, Unions on Goldwyn Code Notions

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Y. Frank Freeman, Assn. of Motion Picture Producers board chairman, will meet this week with guilds and unions to discuss the Motion Picture Industry Code of Ethics proposed by Samuel Goldwyn. Latter, when he made proposal, suggested that Freeman head up such a Code but Freeman said, "I am not going to head it up."

Exec reported, "I will do whatever I can to see if there is any interest in such a Code." Meetings with the guilds will be held to determine their participation. He said he would ask them to meet with the MPAA, noting, "We must first find out if all groups want to work together and if it can be done legally."

Freeman tributed Goldwyn, whom the film industry recently honored on occasion of his 80th birthday and 50th anniversary in motion pictures, but, in refusing to lead project, declared: "I'm 72 years old and at a place where you go to the foot of the ladder and don't start heading things."

GEORGE BRECK

Ready and waiting, to be discovered!
Call SU 7-6117, New York City

Allied's Fine To Attend TOA

Marshall Fine, prexy of Allied States, will attend the annual convention of Theatre Owners of America in Miami Nov. 7-10 at the invitation of TOA prexy John Stembler.

Stembler, in effect, is reciprocating a kindness, since Fine asked him to attend last year's Allied convention. The two national exhib orgs, which have not always felt so kindly disposed towards one another, have been making a great effort of late to coordinate activities in common causes.

CLAYTON PANTAGES AS MAGNA GEN'L SALES MGR.

Clayton Pantages, who resigned last month as a member of the 20th-Fox sales cabinet following the appointment of Seymour Poe as global sales veep, has been named general sales manager for Magna Pictures.

The sales post has been open at Magna since the resignation three weeks ago of veep Joe Sugar, who moved to 20th to head up that company's roadshow unit.

Frue for Atlanta Branch Of Embassy Organization

Embassy Pictures has opened a new branch office in Atlanta, with James Frue named to head the office as southeastern district manager. His office covers the Atlanta, Charlotte, and Jacksonville territories.

To take his new post, Frue resigned his post as southeastern division manager for Continental Distributing.

ONLY ONE TO A PERSON

Thalberg Award Earlier Won Three and Twice

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award hereafter will not be bestowed upon the same individual more than once, under a new ruling adopted last week by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences Board of Governors. In the past, Darryl F. Zanuck was a three-time winner and Hal Wallis copped prize twice.

Governors, it's reported, felt that it is more like the Nobel Prize Award, once a person receives the honor he has his Nobel prize, and correspondingly the same with the Thalberg Award.

Europe to U.S.

Armando Armani
Leigh Batson
Joseph Besch
Donna Cameron
Rod Colbin
Keir Dullea
Frank M. Folsom
Mrs. Harry E. Gould
Eddy Kassner
Michael de Lisio
Gian-Carlo Menotti
Michele Morgan
Barbara Murray
Gerard Oury
Theodore Pratt
Edwin A. Single
Nancy Spain
Jose Tamayo
Bill Targ
Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.
Jay Weston

'Know Why I Produced Overseas?'

Could Get the Financing There— But Now Herman Cohen Returns to Coast

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Herman Cohen, following three years of filming in England, said he will return to Hollywood for production here on three upcoming pictures. Films include "Black Zoo," which rolls Oct. 29, for Allied Artists as well as an additional three-pcture deal now in negotiation with AA head Steve Broidy.

On tap on Cohen slate for U.S. production are "The Haunted Jungle" and "Forgotten Heroes," latter a World War II story and both original screenplays by Cohen. Producer is also prepping "Circus Magnifique" in collaboration with Aben Kandel, though location has not yet been set on film. All three are being considered in new AA deal.

Cohen said he initially went abroad for filming because of financing reasons, noted he is able to return to Hollywood "because after making pictures that aech grossed over $2,000,000, I have been able to get financing here." Pix he listed as "Horror of the Black Museum," "Konga," "Circus of Horrors," made in England, and "I Was A Teenage Frankenstein" and "I Was a Teenage Werewolf." Latter two were made here in 1958 and 1959.

Cohen stressed he is still in business as a partner of England's Anglo-Amalgamated and will participate in films made by that company abroad. However, his personal production activities are planned for the U.S.

Producer asserted "it is not cheaper to make films abroad, but it is easier to get money." He charged "you will never get rid of so-called runaway production through union squables, but it can be averted if the bankers and financiers would put up enough money to let producers make their films here." He said his initial entry to England, in 1952 with "River Boat," was because of the Eady Plan and asked our government to look "to the importance of subsidy to help the industry."

Films for Free

Ottawa, Oct. 9.

Crawley Films Ltd. has issued its latest directory of free-loan 16m films.

There are more than 14,000 films available at no cost from nearly 400 sources in Canada.

Wolper's 'Marilyn' Film; 20th's Own Retrospective Includes 'Give' Footage

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Documentary producer David L. Wolper has joined the race of films headed for market dealing with late Marilyn Monroe. He's planning an 80-minute theatrical documentary, "Marilyn." Last week, 20th-Fox, where MM made most of her pix, revealed it was concocting a retrospective film in which it would use clips from their copyright features, including footage from "Something's Got to Give," her unfinished film at 20th.

Wolper said his feature will cost about $350,000. He will use footage from private collections, newsfilms, stills, clips from pix and footage shot by his company.

At 20th, a studio spokesman said Wolper would not be allowed any MM scenes made for that studio. Part of the coin derived from the MM film will go to establishing a dramatic scholarship at a leading drama school. Wolper said, adding it would probably be the Actors' studio in N.Y., where she "observed."

JUDGMENT FOR $25,473 TO GENERAL EXPORT

A judgment for $25,473 was entered in N. Y. Supreme Court last week against Astor Pictures for alleged breach of contract involving the distribution of the French film, "Les Amours Celebres." The judgment was in favor of General Export Film, a French company.

Under a May 28, 1962 contract, Astor received excusive rights to the distribution of the film in the States upon the signing of the contract, but allegedly breached the contract when they failed to put up $25,000 as first payment as per the agreement.

Universal Quarterly Div On Preferred Stock, $1.06

Universal Pictures has declared a quarterly dividend of $1.0625 a share on the 4¼% cumulative preferred stock.

Dividend is payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 15.

NOT NECESSARILY FINAL

Latest In Mouthful Titles Per Stan Kubrick

Stanley Kubrick, who directed "Lolita" for Metro, has signed a multiple-picture deal with Columbia in behalf of Harris-Kubrick Productions.

First film under the contract is to star Peter Sellers, is to be adapted from Peter George's novel, "Red Alert," and will have this as the screen titler "Dr. Strangelove: or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb."

N.Y. to L.A.

Robert Goulet
Burgess Meredith
Chester Morris
Norman Rosemont
Joe Schoenfeld
Joseph Stellini
Rouben Ter-Arutunian

L.A. to N.Y.

Ann-Margret
Philip Barry
Clair Huffaker
Ed Leftwich
Raymond Massey
Julie Newmar
George Schaefer
Martin Shapiro

Continental Corp. Sales Convention

Exees and regional managers of Continental Distributing Corp. will gather at the Americana Hotel in New York tomorrow (Thurs.) for the company's first national sales convention since the merger of its parent, Walter Reade Inc., with Sterling Television. Both Walter Reade Jr., chairman of the newly formed Walter Reade-Sterling Inc., and Saul Turell, prexy, will address the conclave.

Sales and merchandising plans on the company's fall and winter release sked will be principal topics of discussion. Sked includes "Loneliness of The Long Distance Runner," "Lovers of Teruel," "Your Shadow Is Mine," "The Great Chase," "This Sporting Life," "The Wrong Arm of The Law," "The Balcony," and "Mr. Hulot's Holiday." Latter is being reissued to theatres after having been re-edited and practically rescored by Jacques Tati.

U.S. to Europe

Maurice Chevalier
Nat Cohen
Basil Dearden
Bernard Delfont
Jack Diamond
David Foster
Bonita Granville
Abe Lastfogel
Morey Marcus
S. J. Perelman
Neil Schaffner
Jack Wrather

Look quick! It's TWA's new StarStream jet!

The nation's newest transcontinental jetliner! TWA's great new StarStream*, built expressly for DynaFan* jet power, has new capabilities of speed, new range, increased dependability. Now in non-stop service between New York and California. For reservations, call your travel agent or nearest TWA office.

Nationwide Worldwide depend on TWA

*StarStream and DynaFan are service marks owned exclusively by Trans World Airlines, Inc.

SHIP YOUR CAR
AT LOW RATES
NATIONWIDE & OVERSEAS
VIA STEAMER — RAIL — DRIVEAWAY
AGENTS IN PRINCIPAL CITIES OF U.S.A.
INTERSTATE AUTO SHIPPERS, INC.
249 WEST 34th ST., N. Y. CH 4-5240

UA: FORMAT MAKER & BREAKER

'Sneaks' as Friday Night Hypo

New York City theatres Friday (4) night looked as if they were adopting their own version of that well-known legit play to hypo sagging business—the twofer. In legit, of course, this is the sale of two seats for the price of one. As being practicsd by exhibs the other night, it meant two pix—the current attraction plus "a special Hollywood sneak preview," unnamed in the ads.

On Broadway Friday night, the firstrun Astor, Criterion and DeMille were all using the "sneak" come-on. In the neighborhoods, "sneaks" were being plugged at five RKO houses, two Century, two Skouras and 10 houses participating in United Artists Premiere Showcase plan (including some additional Century outlets).

In the case of the sneaks at the Premiere Showcase houses, UA execs say that they found that their previewing of "Bird Man of Alcatraz" in this fashion, prior to its showcase opening, played a major part in creating the excitement which greeted the picture on its opening (see separate Showcase story).

Reissues Swarm on L.A. Screens; Exhibs Eye New Films Desperately

By WHITNEY WILLIAMS

Los Angeles, Oct. 9.

Los Angeles firstruns are being avalanched with reissues, a policy likely to continue unabatedly due to unavailability of new product in sufficient quantity to keep theatres in operation. Total of six bills currently are playing plus one re-release lower-bracketed with a new opener.

"I don't know what we'd do without reissues," one booker explained, adding, "there will be more, plenty more." Pointing out that his chain test-runs various combos of reissues in out-of-town situations, he said, "if they do anything at all, we use them."

With Walt Disney bringing back his "Lady and the Tramp" for a city-wide release today—such Disney films, however, are slightly different from standard reissues due to impressive grosses usually run up—United Artists has skedded "One, Two, Three" and "Pocketful of Miracles" for a general run locally Oct. 17. UI's "Tammy and the Bachelor" will be lower-billed with studio's "If a Man Answers" for latter's Oct. 17 release in multiple spread, and "Breakfast at Tiffany's" is being widely reissued, sometimes with "That Touch of Mink," at other times with newies.

Another winner, "El Cid," one of the top money pix of the year, likewise will be brought back for another round of full multiple bookings Oct. 24.

Fox West Coast, biggest circuit in Southern California and one of the largest in the country, has hit upon the expedient of test-running reissues in cities other than L.A., same policy adopted by several

(Continued on page 12)

U.S. Supreme Ct. Gets 'The Lovers'; Ohio Dispute

Washington, Oct. 9.

The U.S. Supreme Court yesterday (Mon.) agreed to review the conviction of Ohio exhib Nico Jacobellis on charges that he knowingly exhibited an obscene film when he showed the made-in-France feature, "The Lovers" at the Heights Art Theatre, Cleveland Heights. In January of this year, the Ohio Supreme Court upheld a lower court's ruling that Jacobellis had violated the state's statute pertaining to obscenity.

Defense attorney Ephraim London questions the constitutionality of the Ohio statute on six grounds, the principal ones being whether the "mere private possession of obscene material" is punishable "without regard to the nature and purposes of possession;" whether a man can be convicted for such possession "though he may not know the material is obscene and have cogent reason for believing it is not;" and whether the Ohio court, in finding the film obscene, was using standards "in conflict with those prescribed" by the U.S. Supreme Court.

It's expected that the case will be heard in about two months.

STRAKA ON 20th BOARD

Cosmetic Manufacturer Brings Number Up to 14

Jerome A. Straka, president of Chesebrough-Pond's, has been elected to the 20th-Fox board of directors, bringing board membership up to 14.

Straka was elected prexy of Chesebrough Manufacturing Co. in 1955 and after the firm's merger with Pond's Extract Co. later in the year, he became president and chief exec officer of the combined firm.

Indies Gather In Nearly All Films Made by French

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

American indie film distributors have been busy acquiring U.S. rights to most of the top current and upcoming French films. Joseph E. Levine's Embassy Pictures will release "Crime Does Not Pay," four-episode classic crime pic, an entry at Cannes, starring Richard Todd, Pierre Brasseur, Danielle Darrieux, Michele Morgan and Jean Servais.

Richard Davis' UMPO has Roger Vadim's "Warrior's Rest," Brigitte Bardot starrer, and Serge Bourgignon's "Sundays at the Villa d'Avray." Latter got director Bourgignon honorable mention in "new director" category and co-star Philipe Noiret the Cinemo Nuova's "best actor" award at Venice Film Fest. Continental Distributing has Raymond Rouleau's "The Lovers of Teruel," Gallic entry at Cannes, and Andre Michel's "Ton Ombre Est La Mienne."

Astor Pictures has acquired Orson Welles' pic version of Kafka's "The Trial," which stars Tony Perkins (in first French-speaking role), Jeanne Moreau and Elsa Martinelli. Pic created quite a stir when producers pulled it out of Venice Fest at last moment. Astor also

(Continued on page 14)

No-Leader Lederer As Warners Turn Turns Up On MPAA Ad-Pub Panel

Richard Lederer, ad-pub director of Warners, the past week was asked to become chairman of the ad-pub directors committee of the Motion Picture Assn. of America. He declined, allegedly not wanting the responsibility and unable to give the time.

The job is supposed to automatically go to an MPAA company ad-pub exec on a rotating basis, and this was Lederer's turn. With the latter's rejection of it, the post is being offered to Charles Einfeld, 20th-Fox ad-pub chief. Chances are he'll also say no. Then comes Fred Goldberg, ad-pub head of United Artists.

It's no secret that Jack Warner is not entirely happy with MPAA.

SHOWCASE LESSON COMING CLEARER

By VINCENT CANBY

Some 14 weeks after its launching, United Artists' precedental "Premiere Showcase" plan—the day-dating of its Broadway firstruns with up to 16 other theatres throughout the whole New York metropolitan area—looks like it has permanently dislocated the area's traditional release patterns which had previously been thought inviolable.

As impressive as the figures on the Showcase grosses are, perhaps the most significant sign of the new times is what the other distribs, as well as the non-Showcase-participating circuits, have been doing in recent weeks. As previously noted, Universal, 20th-Fox and Columbia have all been moved to day-date Broadway and Brooklyn firstruns, at the same time cutting down clearances between Broadway and over-the-city line runs in Long Island, Westchester and Jersey.

Now comes word, however, that Columbia "is seriously considering" going to its own "showcase" release pattern within the city's boroughs. Acording to a Col exec, the company's plans are still in the "tentative stage," but he says it would be more or less on the UA order, with the establishment of flagship houses in the boroughs and adjacent countries to day-date with Broadway.

The exec declined to speculate on what the first Columbia showcase might be—if, indeed, the company should make the big switch—but another exec pointed out that since booking plans are already formulated on all Col releases up to "The War Lover," which is still unset, this might well be the pic.

Is Poe Favorable?

There have also been privately expressed hopes around UA that 20th-Fox might see the showcase light, especially since 20th's new global sales veep, Seymour Poe, was one of the biggest Preem Showcase boosters in his capacity as producer's rep on UA's first PS release last June, "Road to Hong Kong."

That the big Loew's and RKO circuits, which have declined to participate in the showcase plan, have not been able to ignore its effects has been evident in their own hypoed ad campaigns since UA's massive ad-promotion in the summer to launch the project. In an obvious effort to combat the fact that UA was actually making its top pix available firstrun in outlying areas, both circuits began to stress as never before the "first-run" angle on their saturation breaks on exploitation pix ("The Tartars" at Loew's) and were not above indulging in the "firstrun in your neighborhood" euphemism when playing pix which had had the conventional Broadway break-in.

Loew's & RKO Cold

UA, of course, would welcome the switch of a couple of the other major distribs to the showcase ranks. For one thing, UA execs point out, if, say, a minimum of three different distribs had firstrun product available on a regular basis in the boroughs, this would provide for a continuity of product for those exhibs which now are playing UA showcase pix on first subsequent run. Also—but this is unstated—the switch of a couple of other distribs to the new pattern must inevitably help persuade Loew's—and maybe even RKO—to make some of their houses available to the showcase type of playoff.

It's no secret that in a couple of spots, UA has had "to make do" with "second best" theatres, that is, second best in terms of location and size. UA, for example, feels that in the Bronx, where the Luxor is the PS flagship, grosses on "Judgment at Nuremberg" would have been substantially higher in the bigger Valencia (Loew's). Distrib would also like to have a downtown Brooklyn out-

(Continued on page 14)

'Throw In an Import When Short' Wrong Policy, Warns Cy Harvey; Rifkin: 'Tout Oldies as TV Does'

By GUY LIVINGSTON

Boston, Oct. 9.

"There are big gains in Europe, and because of the Common Market, you will see a lot of films," Cy Harvey of Janus, foreign film distributor, told the second "shirt-sleeves" session, from breakfast to luncheon, of Independent Exhibitors of New England, TOA unit, at Nick's restaurant last Tues. (2).

Harvey, the luncheon speaker, finished off the group's discussion of problems affecting exhibition ranging from winter drive-in operations, 30c coffee, to stuffed animal kiddie promotions on Saturday afternoons.

"If you think that you can show foreign films by throwing them in when you are short, you'll take a bath every time," the distributor-exhibitor said. "The main problem to consider is "Would you rather lose money with 'dogs' from Hollywood? Or would you rather win with a good foreign film in which you develop and build an audience? If you are courageous enough to play foreign films, you will build that audience."

Harvey cited some of the forthcoming film from Europe oo'd by him in a recent trip to the continent. He mentioned Bardot's "The Warrior's Rest" which is called "Love on a Pillow" in England as being "a real steamer" and tops in France. He mentioned Pefer Sellers' "Heavens Above" to be released sometime in March, and "Wrong Arm With the Law."

The biggest thing in Italy is now shooting, he said, "Fellini 8½," a three-hour film. The set is closed to all, he reported. He also mentioned "The Trial," being made in France by Orson Welles. Also, "Tough At The Top," sequel to "Room At The Top."

Julian Rifkin, head of Rifkin Theatres, and president of group, told the assembled exhibitors at the opening of the session: "Alert exhibition can still find a way of beating depression, lack of product. We are searching for product to play. When we are stuck we pick up old pictures and hide them. Why don't we take a leaf from television which advertises

(Continued on page 12)

'Longest' As First Hit

Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day" loof like the first solid hit of the new season. The 20th-Fox release, which, with great newspaper reviews, opened its regular hardticket run at the Warner Theatre in New York Friday (5), has been going SRO at every performance, with steady lines at the boxoffice daily.

At 11 a.m. Sunday (7), a theatre employee reported, there was a line down the block waiting to buy tickets, although N.Y. laws prohibit the opening of the boxoffice until noon on the Sabbath.

Most interesting, the theatre man said, is the fact that "we're even selling the last balcony seats and those front row orchestra seats." The latter he called the "Purple Heart seats," in reference to their proximity to the on-screen battle action.

Spaniards' Ire Rises at Threat Of Mex Showmen

Madrid, Oct. 2.

Spanish producers may be forced to open cinemas in Mexico for the distribution of Iberian product if Mexican film-makers succeed in pressuring their government film authorities to restrain the three semi-official Mexican distribution networks—Peliculas Nacionales, Peliculas Mexicanas and Cimex—from releasing Spanish product as a competitive element harmful to the Mexican film industry.

According to the Madrid entertainment weekly, "Noche y Dia," the success of a Spanish import, "Fray Escoba," which opened its second premier house after holding for 20 weeks at the Orfeon, spurred charges in Mexico that Spanish product is taking key playing time from local product. On the other hand, precedent for establishing a circuit abroad was established by Peli-Mex in Spain by converting the music hall Madrid into a plush 1,200-seat showcase for the release of Aztec product here.

Taxing Film Houses, But Not Other Fun Spots, Held Discriminatory

Local theatre owners in Long Island proved a point courtroom-wise last week; they claimed a tax upon admissions would be discriminatory and the State Supreme Court upheld them.

Owners of the three film house in Glen Cove insisted they were being discriminated against when the city undertook to impose a 5% levy on admissions.

Sitting in Mineola, L. I., Justice Frank A. Gulotta agreed with the exhibitors, stating that the levy would be discriminatory because it did not obtain with bowling alleys, membership fees in private clubs and cabarets. So then, no tax on film theatres.

Sardou U's Paris Pub

Roger Sardou, continental publicist, has been named Universal's publicity chief for France, stationed in Paris.

Sardou's previous major company experience was with United Artists and Columbia.

Proceed as Told; Top Court Spurns Anti-Toll Brief

Washintgon, Oct. 9.

U.S. Supreme Court on Monday (8) refused to hear the last-ditch appeal of Hartford (Conn.) film theatre owners against pay-tv.

In refusing writ of certiorari the high court upheld the March 4 decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington which gave Federal Communications Commission authority to license feevee experiment on WHCT-TV. Rejected argument against FCC and RKO General-Phonevision was brought by Connecticut Committee Against Pay TV. Participants included Stanley Warner, Loew's Inc., Connecticut Theatres, Manchester Drive-In Theatre Corp. and Outdoor Theatres Corp.

Gist of the exhib group's argument was: "The power to utilize frequencies for technical experiments does not justify use of a frequency on a trial basis in which licensee for three year period will attempt to persuade 50,000 home owners to rent its equipment and pay for its programs."

FCC answered that there was nothing prohibiting commission from experimenting with tollvision. Commission said it had "an affirmative duty . . . to experiment with and develop the most desirable deployment and utilization of nation's communications facilities."

We'll Bury You

Documentary on the rise of Communism. Flashy trade and consumer selling could make it "sleeper" b.o. click.

Hollywood, Oct. 4.

Columbia Pictures release of Jack Leewood-Jack W. Thomas production. Written by Thomas; narrator, William Woodson; editors, Alan Presberg, Philip R. Rosenberg; sound, Continental Sound Corp.; special effects, Rex Mercer & Co. Reviewed at the studio, Oct. 4, 1962. Running time, 77 MINS.

Columbia's "We'll Bury You" could well be this year's boxoffice "sleeper," just as "Mein Kampf," the Swedish historical, came virtually out of nowhere last year to became a commercial click and launch a rash of imitations.

Underlying its inflammatory, bombastic title, the apparent fuse for what promises to be an explosive exploitation campaign, "We'll Bury You" is actually a kind of pocket-size illustrated history of the rise of Communism in Russia and satellite countries, beginning with its German creator, Karl Marx, and concluding with a plea for the free world to rise to the Red challenge. In between is an often fascinating and sufficiently informative study of the topic, marred only by the narrative's occasional tendency to waver from an objective, factual tone and lapse into an overly emotional disposition, particularly as the historical story advances toward the less detached, more ominous present. Facts themselves are stark and shocking enough to get the message over without such narrative embellishment.

The film clips are often altogether astonishing. Rarely seen crude footage of such figures as Lenin and Trotsky in action is priceless. There are also some extremely dramatic shots, such as that of a Russian warship sinking during the Russo-Japanese War, with hundreds of seamen pouring over the side like terrified ants. Periodic shots of mutilated corpses the result of various political purges and mass execution seem, however, almost needlessly brutal. Only twice, and then briefly, does the narration give way to the original sound-on-film—once the voice of Churchill, the other a portion of the Nixon-Khrushchev "Kitchen Debate."

Overall, it is an adroit and enterprising job of compilation and execution, from producers Jack Leewood and Jack W. Thomas on down. Thomas penned the narrative, spoken by William Woodson. Dr. Robert W. Lowe of Georgetown University served as script consultant. Especially strong credits are those of editors Alan Presberg and Philip R. Rosenberg and researchers Donald Armstrong and John Detra. Tube.

Le Bonheur Est Pour Demain

(Happiness Is for Tomorrow)

Paris, Oct. 9.

Prodis release of Fred Tavano production. With Jacques Higelin, Irene Chabrier, Henri Crolla, Jean Martinelli, Gina Manes. Directed by Henri Fabiani. Screenplay, Edouard Sergent, Henri Graziani, Fabiani; camera, Jean Pnezer; editor, A. Levi-Alvares; music, Henri Crolla. At Studio 43, Paris. Running time, 85 MINS.

Alain ..... Jacques Higelin
Annie ..... Irene Chabrier
Jose ..... Henri Crolla
De Guen ..... Jean Martinelli
Woman ..... Gina Manes

Somewhat schematic and surface in the treatment of story and characters, this pic is still one of the first to treat the acual worker problem here. It has a tendency towards forced poetics, but imbedded in it is a nice feel for youth coming of age and a little-seen part of French life. Film is primarily for special situations abroad.

A young man runs off from home and is helped by a shipyard worker. He gets enamored of a pretty young secretary and takes a job in the shipyard. But his unformed desires for something better, his inability to compromise, have him ready to run out on the girl and his new friend.

But she tells him off, in all of youth's brutality. So he runs off and climbs a high crane, presumably to throw himself off. But the girl's father climbs up and talks him out of jumping. He points out that study, work and his daughter are worth more than a pointless, rash act.

The late Henri Crolla, who was a guitarist and songwriter, shows a projection and humanity, as the friend, that would have probably made him a fine actor. The others also are good. Director Henri Fabiani displays a feel for the simple scenic unrolling of ordinary life.

It just lacks a more inspired, deeper insight into the characters. This remains on a literary level while the work itself has a ring of authority. When Fabiani melds his documentary flair with an ability to make real characters part of this he could emerge a new director of importance. As is, it is an okay first effort. Production aspects and technical qualities are good. Mosk.

La Plangue

(The Hideout)

(FRENCH)

Paris, Oct. 9.

Paramount release of CAF-Hoche Films production. With Moudoudji, Louise Carletti, Francis Blanche, Robert Porte. Directed by Raoul Andre. Screenplay, Yves Jamiaque, Andre; camera, Marcel Weiss; editor, Gabriel Rongier. At Elysees, Paris. Running time, 90 MINS.

Georges ..... Moudoudji
Giselle ..... Louise Carletti
Edouard ..... Francis Blanche
Doctor ..... Yves Vincent
Patient ..... Robert Porte
Director ..... Jacques Dumesnil
Mado ..... Maria Vincent

A good idea for an offbeat suspense item is not quite brought off because it lacks penetrating direction and playing. If it misses the foreign art house depth, this pic could still be a playoff item or specialized entry on its fairly well sustained tale.

A partisan in France during the occupation is hidden from the Gestapo by a friend who runs an asylum. But the friend is arrested and the partisan kills an informer planted among the patients. But nobody believes his story and he is almost driven mad himself except for the help of a young doctor and a patient's daughter who has taken a liking to him.

They try to find someone who can back his tale but fail. He escapes and his picture in the newspaper leads to someone showing up to clear him.

The thin borderline between madness and sanity is invoked, as well as the irony of almost martyred heroism. But director Raoul Andre has not been able to punch this up, and the film has a way of lagging its tempo and dramatics. Thesping also does not quite give the characters the edge they need.

Hence this shapes for the most part a neat second feature just missing the solidity and treatment of its clever plotting to make it offshore art house fodder. The asylum inmates and atmosphere are the plus portion of this fine little film. It has an okay technical envelope. Mosk.

Cielo Rojo

(Red Sky)

(MEXICAN—COLOR—SCOPE)

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

Peliculas Nacionales release of CICSA production. Stars Rodolfo de Anda, Patricia Conde, Sonia Furio; features Rita Macedo, Dagoberto Rodriguez, Felix Gonzalez, Pablito Marichal, Luis Aceves Castaneda and Fanny Schiller. Directed by Gilberto Gazoon. Screenplay by Raul de Anda, from play, "Wings of the Fish," by Fernando Sanchez Mayans. Adaptation by Fernando Galiana. At Alameda Theatre, Mexico City. Running time, 90 MINS.

This film is based on the prize-winning play "Las Alas del Pez" (Wings of the Fish), by playwright Fernando Sanchez Mayans. Action laid in Acapulco. Plot concerns one of the young Quebrada Cliff high divers. Rodolfo de Anda, youngest son of the elder de Anda, plays this role.

Rodolfo as son of a foundered marriage, which has embittered his mother (excellently interpreted by Rita Macedo), leaves home to try his wings in the world. His mother's attempts at directing him into a good, affluent citizen only irritate the lad who feels he can personally find love, maturity and the tenderness he has never known. But his impetuous youth makes him hurt the people he touches. Including a young girl (Sonia Furio), who also seeks love and understanding.

Direction by Gazcon is strong and full of realism at times. In other scenes he falters, and there is a tendency to overdo melodrama in certain sequences. There is some overacting, possibly due to the youth of the principal players. Patricia Conde is comely, but she carries off the role of a deceived girl. Standout is young de Anda, a natural actor. Sonia Furio, Luis Aceves Castaneda and others turn in satisfactory performances.

The star without credit is Acapulco itself. There are times when film has appearance of a tourist propaganda documentary. Raul de Anda Jr. produced.

A better than average Mexican effort, despite its faults, that should do well in Spanish language areas because of the stature of dramatic work on which it is based. Emil.

La Viaccia

Italo pic was rated an "elegant period drama with a top-notch cast and stylish direction . . . for prestige impact at home and abroad" by VARIETY's Hawk, May 10, '61. Stateside release is now via Embassy Pictures, with preem date current at the Normandie, N.Y.

Story concerns a farmboy arrived in the city who becomes enamored of a prostie, intertwined with family rivalry over the farm. VARIETY man judged film a visual "delight . . . reeking with period atmosphere. So much so that at times the action bogs down to give way to pure setting." Review suggested some trimming would help.

Of the stars Claudia Cardinale is "excellent" as the prostie, "ably seconded" by Jean Paul Belmondo as the bucolic youth. Aforesaid "stylish" direction was by Mauro Bolognini.

Little Humpbacked Horse

(RUSSIAN—COLOR)

Artkino release of Central Documentary Films Studio production. Stars Maya Plisetskaya and the Bolshoi Ballet. Directed by Alexander Radunsky. Music, Schedrin; conductor of Bolshoi Theatre Orch, Zhuraitis. At Cameo, N.Y., starting Oct. 6, '62. Running time, 85 MINS.

Queen Maiden ..... Maya Plisetskaya
Ivan ..... Vladimir Vasilyev
Little Humpbacked Horse ..... Anya Scher Binina
The King ..... Alexander Radunsky
(English Narration)

This ballet pic is probably the finest of its kind to come out of Russia in some time. Production should reap plenty of peace at the Cameo where a run of several weeks is in prospect. Production stars Maya Plisetskaya, new prima ballerina replacing Talina Ulanova now touring U.S. Plisetskaya is quite photogenic and is helped by some excellent camera work (lensman is not credited) in closeups.

Billed as a Fairy Tale in Magicolor, this is a filmed version of a Russo-concocted yarn, done at the Bolshoi Theatre. Many of the sets loudly proclaim that it is photographed in a theatre.

Starting quite slowly even for a Russian pic, camera and narrator attempt to explain how Ivan (Vladimir Vasilyev) obtained his humpbacked horse, which is supposed to bring him luck, and, of course, it does. The usual implausibile fairy tale has Ivan, because he's a nice guy, given three horses, including the lucky one (Anya Scherbinina). Ivan's two brothers steal two of the horses and try to sell them to the king (Alexander Radunsky).

Through Anya's guidance, Ivan circumvents the sale and becomes No. 1 stable boy, a sort of right-hand man to the king. But he winds up with the task of trying to locate the Queen Maiden because the crowned monarch falls in love with her. All of this brings plenty of dancing by Miss Plisetskaya and Vasilyev. Then there's an underwater ballet and, of course, the hero triumphs via the lucky presence of Anya, the humpbacked horse.

As long as this film sticks to dancing, it is great entertainment, despite the laborious plot. When the producers try to ring in miniatures and special effects that's exactly what they look like—minnies and arty effects. Color is a bit above par for Russian pix, being listed as Magicolor. Wear.

Dick Zanuck

Continued from page 3

York Friday (5), is the naming of Elmo Williams, who was associate producer of DFZ's "The Longest Day," as the prexy's rep for overseas production. This appointment is seen as indicating Zanuck's intention to implement his previously announced policy of "producing properties where the stories demand."

DFZ's First Coast Trip

Young Zanuck, whose producer credits include "Compulsion," "Sanctuary" and the soon-to-be released "Chapman Report" (which DFZ Productions made for Warner release after the previous 20th administration nixed the project), has already been submitting scripts to directors, actors, and other talent in preparation for the reopening of the studio, expected after the first of the year. The prexy himself is expected to visit the Coast at the end of this month for his first studio look-see since taking over the top 20th job.

The official announcement of the new appointments also revealed that the elder Zanuck has approved nine television pilot scripts for immediate production. It's understood the prexy is keeping a close and personal hand on all television activities, via William Self, in charge of tv production at the studio and George B. Shupert, tv sales chief stationed in New York. Although the actual prexy of 20th-Fox Television, Levathes, is now operating out of the N. Y. h.q. concerning himself with lining up potential tv packages, it is apparent that Zanuck is running the tv show too.

New York Sound Track

Dialog from the shortlived Dore Schary stage play, "Banderol" (Hollywood-themed) had the title character (played by Ed Begley, in a close carbon of Louis B. Mayer) in a pseudo-telephone scene to VARIETY, as follows: "Hello Abel, I'm fine. Well, Abel, there'll be a statement this afternoon. Off the record—the truth is I couldn't stand it any more. I'm sick of the way this company is being run. I'm sick of dirty pictures. I guess it's a crime to love the oldfashioned decent things. Yes, you can quote that. Why not? It's what I feel. Yes (he listens) thank you. Please, wait for the official statement. Yes. Thank you. Goodbye."

After last week's issue, Tony Curtis wired: "How come my name wasn't mentioned in VARIETY?" There was also a memo from Earl Wilson saying he enjoyed VARIETY's "Tony Curtis edition."

That noise emanating from 444 West 56th St. Friday (5) morning was the longest sigh of relief ever heard in the film industry—after 20th-Fox staffers read the newspaper reviews on prexy Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day." With the exception of the Post, whose Archer Winston had some reservations, all the dailies were unanimous in their raves . . . Curtis Distributing Co., a subsid of Curtis Publishing, is launching its new magazine, "Great Movies Pictorial," with an issue devoted entirely to "Longest Day." The second issue will be devoted to UA's "Taras Bulba." It's probably just to be a coincidence but Milton S. Gould, former star board member at 20th, is also a star Curtis boarder . . . Incidently, the 20th tubthumpers, pushing for breaks on the news pages on "The Longest Day" preem, faced a nightmare of competition: the Schirra six-orbit flight, the Mississippi crisis, an upper West Side boiler blast, to say nothing of latest developments on Cuba, Berlin, Mississippi etc.

Nat Cohen, managing director of Anglo-Amalgamated Film Distributors, has returned to London following the preem of his "A Kind of Loving" here . . . Michele Morgan due in for the Oct. 16 opening of "Crime Does Not Pay" at the Sutton.

Joe Levine favor: the Restaurant Associates' posh eateries—he did the hosting bit with Ely Landau last week at the Tower Suite for "Long Day's Journey Into Night," and next Monday he and the Harold Robbins' are hosting a prepublication dinner party in connection with latter's new novel, "Where Love Has Gone," also a Hollywood story, as is "The Carpetbaggers," which Levine's Embassy Pictures is filming.

John Frankenheimer and Kirk Douglas' Joel Productions have jointly purchased "Seven Days in May," novel by two Washington correspondents, Fletcher Knebel and Charles W. Bailey II, for indie production next year. Rod Serling to script. Edward Lewis produce, Frankenheimer direct, Douglas to play one of five star roles . . . Polly Bergen and Hall Bartlett acquired Anne Helming's new novel, "A Woman's Place," for joint film venture . . . Roddy McDowall to play Apostle Matthew in George Stevens' "The Greatest Story Ever Told" . . . Joan Fontaine's Oakhurst Enterprises bought Norah Loft's novel, "The Devil's Own," for indie production, John Fulton to coproduce . . . Al Zimbalist and Philip N. Krasne added "The Skirts of Sergeant McHugh," tome by Guy Reed Ritchie, to their Metro production slate.

Fred Hift, 20th's publicist in Paris, turned over batch of stills to Paris-Match on "The Longest Day" and discovered one of his own color shots was chosen for the front cover . . . he swears a total surprise to him.

Ingrid Bergman has been signed by Seven Arts to star in the film version of Tennessee Williams' "Night of The Iguana," which Metro will release. Pic doesn't roll until next September . . . The Museum of Modern Art, which is spotlighting Swedish films in a retrospective showing running from now until Jan. 5, hosted a reception last night (Tues.) for the Swedish Ambassador, Gunnar Jarring, and the director of the Swedish Film Archives, Einar Lauritzen.

Anne Marino, formerly with Mike Merrick's p.r. firm, has joined Jim Mahoney's firm as an associate. She'll be working with Ben Halpern, who heads the eastern branch of the Mahoney company . . . Jean Goldwurm, prexy of Times Film, will serve as chairman of the awards committee of IFIFA's annual dinner dance and awards banquet here next January . . . Ed Morey Jr., son of the Allied Artists veep, was signed by producer Herman Cohen to serve as production manager on "The Black Zoo" . . . The United Nations Movie Club sponsored a benefit showing of Seneca International's "Yojimbo" Friday (5) night at the Dag Hammarskjold Library, with proceeds going to a special fund for earthquake victims in Iran. Another special preview of the pic was held last week for members of the Overseas Press Club.

Marion Billings has been named special press rep for Continental Distributing. For the past five years she's been with Blowitz, Thomas & Canton, working as assistant to veep Arthur Canton . . . Michael de Lisio, publicity coordinator for Millar-Turman's "The Lonely Stage," shot in Britain this summer, has returned to the local scene . . . French director Gerard Oury due in Oct. 15 for the American preem of his "Crime Does Not Pay," which Embassy Pictures is handling this side . . . Producer Frederick Brisson to the coast to resume preproduction work on Col's "Under The Yum-Yum Tree."

For services rendered above and beyond the call of duty, Playboy Mag gifted 20th-Fox mag contact Greg Morrison with something he thought he'd always wanted: a Playboy "bunny." Now he's trying to get rid of him (or her or maybe it). The animal, which isn't housebroken, is eating him out of house-and-carrots . . . U veeps Ed Muhl and Dave Lipton are cochairman for the Coast of the 1962 Pioneers Dinner Nov. 19 honoring U prexy Milton Rackmil as Pioneer of The Year.

Robert Hames, formerly branch manager for Paramount in New Orleans, has been named southeastern division sales manager for Walter Reade's Continental Distributing. He'll headquarter in Atlanta . . . Janet Leigh will campaign through six cities for UA's "Manchurian Candidate" . . . Sam Baker and his Associated Independent Theatres will host a special preview-cocktail party of their new Kips Bay Theatre Monday (15). House opens the next day.

Publicist Lee Solters points out this incidental intelligence, pertinent to the influence of names like Cinema I and Cinema II and Sigma Seven. There's a new eatery Broadway and 45th called simply Restaurant One.

Dubbing operator Peter Riethof was a quick local visitor last week. He's doing the English versions for such Embassy imports as "Madame," "Crime Does Not Pay," "Love at 20" and "Boccaccio '70," as well as supervising the separately shot English versions of the German "Hours After Midnight" and two Italo specs, "I Seramis" and "Nineva Vs. Babylon."

INFANTICIPATING LONG ISLAND

Van Heflin: Thesps Go Abroad Because Producers, With Quality Scripts, There and Money Benefits

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

In similar vein to that of Tony Curtis (last issue, p. 1), Van Heflin has come to the defense of actors "who have unjustly been picked out as the cause for so-called runaway production." Heflin, whose last film made in the U.S. was "They Came to Cordura" in 1959 for Columbia Pictures, said, "I would much prefer to make a picture in Hollywood but I still read a script for quality and the better scripts offered have been for pictures being made abroad."

Heflin currently has three offers, all for pix to be made outside of the U.S. Pix are "Toilers of the Sea," Victor Hugo novel, which Roy Rowland will direct starting next April in England; Samuel Bronston's "Fall of the Roman Empire," to go next year in Spain, and "Beirut," Lebanese-Italian-French coproduction, to be shot by International Films in all three locations. "Toilers" is to be released through Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He will do only one of the films, at this point is concentrating on "Toilers."

Heflin said foreign production came about principally as a result of the war "because of frozen funds." Earlier, he noted, "Hollywood became the film capital because we had the money to buy the best people in the field. We brought over any foreign filmmaker or technician that developed. Now, we are reversing the process because of our economic situation. We are sending our best people to Europe, training their personnel in Hollywood style and letting them make pictures as good and as easily as we do." Actor reminisced, "before we had to explain a foreign accent in a picture that used a foreign star, now we have to explain an American accent."

Heflin said foreign filmakers, in attracting American coproduction, affected the American actor because "they needed an American name to identify the picture with American audiences." He noted the result that many films which earlier would have played only the few art houses in the country "today play regular run theatres or theatres that have increased as art presentation houses."

Interest in the international attitude of films came because the war changed the interest of many people, according to Heflin. He noted many families became in-

(Continued on page 12)

HILLBILLY IN BG

Only 10 Minutes of Real Score For 'Hud Bannon'

Elmer Bernstein, in scoring the Paramount pic, "Hud Bannon," actually is composing only 10 or fewer minutes of original music. Thus it is one of the shortest such chores on record.

According to the composer, much of the melody backgrounding the Paul Newman-starrer is a cacophony of hillbilly howls emanating from jukeboxes and radio. Yarn is located in modern-day Texas. After viewing rough cut with producer-director Martin Ritt, Bernstein agreed with Ritt little original lilt was required, so much is the juke-radio oatune background used.

Zanuck Pledges Best Efforts; Negro Pickets Desist

A pledge by 20th-Fox prexy Darryl F. Zanuck to meet with reps of the Hollywood Race Relations Bureau and Congress of Racial Equality, as well as a promise to bring the subject of the use of Negroes in films before the members of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, has forestalled plans of the racial groups to picket Zanuck's "Longest Day."

Reps of the racial groups actually picketed the Warner Theatre in New York last Tuesday (2), two days before "Longest Day" preemed at the house, but abandoned the idea Wednesday when Zanuck issued his statement. Bodies had earlier charged that the film did not properly make use of Negroes or reflect their participation in the historic Allied invasion of Normandy in 1944.

Zanuck promised that when the 20th-Fox studio reopens, he would implement his "avowed policy and make every effort to improve the accurate representation in the casting of Negroes." He said that when he returns from the London premiere of "Longest Day" this week he would meet with the racial groups' spokesmen to further explore the subject, and would "present this matter to my fellow presidents of the MPAA."

The 20th prexy also cited a statement he had made on the subject back in 1942, noting that Negroes should be used in films "in the same manner in which they occupy positions in life, some are heroic, some are not; some are industrious, some are lazy; some hold highly responsible positions, some, of course, are in menial occupations. In other words, they are just like all other human beings . . . All this should be done, of course, without any direct or indirect suggestions of propaganda."

Without specifically mentioning such films as "Pinky," "No Way Out" or "Island In the Sun," Zanuck noted too that since making that statement in 1942 he had personally produced a number of pix "which bear out my point of view and my deep interest in racial equality."

EUAN LLOYD BACK TO U.K.

Euan Lloyd, v.p. in charge of worldwide publicity for Carl Foreman's Highroad Productions, back to his London desk after 10 days in New York.

He had been in Gotham discussing the campaign for Foreman's latest, "The Victors," Columbia release.

Word on 'Word': Hold Until Court Decides Appeal

N.Y. State Supreme Court Justice Kenneth S. MacAffer, sitting in Kingston, N.Y., Monday (8) continued a stay of exhibition against Irvin Shapiro's Films Around The World junkie pic, "The Connection." The injunction remains in force until a hearing is held on the Board of Regents' appeal of an earlier court ruling which directed the Board to issue a license to the pic despite the four-letter word 11 times on the soundtrack. That hearing is expected in Albany the week of Oct. 22.

The picture opened at the D. W. Griffith Theatre, new Times Square artie, without a license last Tuesday (2), and was closed after two performances when a temporary injunction against its showing was obtained by the Regents.

The Griffith, meanwhile, will reopen Sunday (14) with the U.S. premiere of Films Around The World French import, "Lola," directed by "new waver" Jacques Demy, and coproduced by Carlo Ponti and Georges de Beauregard.

HERMAN: LOVE -WAVE OF BABIES

Although Adolph Herman estimates that perhaps 20 new theatres have been opened in the last year (or are planned) within the 30 mile radius of Port Washington, L.I., where his own new Sands Point Theatre opens at the end of this month, he is not particularly concerned about the question of "over-seating." Exhib bases his optimism not only on the assumption that his $300,000 establishment is in a posh class by itself, but also on the expectation that by 1970, that section of Long Island will have become one of the most heavily populated areas in the country.

Herman sees a sign of future health, too, the moves being made by United Artists (and, to a lesser extent, by the other distribs) to do away with old booking and clearance patterns in the greater New York metropolitan areas. For this reason he is confident that his Sands Point will get a crack at the top new product close to day-and-date with Manhattan. His new 600-seater is equipped to handle 70m, and various other inbetween processes, and so situated to throw off the kind of rentals which distribs want from longrun, hard-ticket engagements.

In addition to the upcoming Sands Point, Herman operates the Jewell Theatre, Brooklyn; the Fine Arts, Hempstead, and Far Hills, Dayton, O., all of which are making profits on class or art product. The exhib, who got his start at the downtown Brooklyn Albee ("We used to spend more time training ushers than is spent on training managers today"), is particularly impressed by his own success with the Brooklyn Jewell. The house was strictly a grind, several-changes-a-week house until he took it over and switched to an art policy.

Seven Mile Radius

Did it take some "educating" to get the Brooklyn neighborhood people to buy art product? "What neighborhood?" Herman asks in reply. "We found out that 90% of our patronage comes from at least seven miles away." Instead of several changes a week, the Jewell now can get 10-and-12-week runs from a hit pic.

Product Shortage

The oft-cited product shortage, however, is being felt in this kind of an operation too, he admitted. With major circuits such as Loew's (see VARIETY, Oct. 3) and RKO going further and further afield for product, the regular art houses stand to lose out on the very type of product which they helped publicize. As examples, he pointed to the Loew's booking Embassy's "Boccaccio 70" and Col's "Best of Enemies," two artie pictures which he would very much like to have had for his Jewell.

According to Herman, his new Sands Point is the first 600-seater in the New York area to be equipped for 70m, and this, he thinks, is the trend of the future. The big negative processes are shown to best advantage in the smaller, "intimate-type" houses, designed to cater the comforts of the selective audience.

B'NAI B'RITH CAMPAIGN

Johnston, Benjamin, Rosen, Tisch For Film Side

Eric Johnston, prexy of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, is serving as honorary chairman of the motion picture industry's participation in the annual New York youth service campaign of B'nai B'rith. Climax of this year's drive will be an awards banquet in New York Nov. 20, honoring Jack A. Goldfarb, chairman of Fruit of The Loom Inc. who'll be present the B'nai B'rith's President's medal for humanitarian service.

Assisting Johnston in the industry's participation are Robert Benjamin, United Artists; Sam Rosen, Stanley-Warner, and Larry Tisch, Loew's Theatres.

Preminger: Don't Spoil the Actors But Respect Their Rights and Stop Crying After Signing the Contract

"Why buy and then cry?" This is the question posed by producer-director Otto Preminger and the allusion is to the hiring of talent and, thereafter, beefs by the hiring parties of having been forced to spend too much.

His philosophy is that "actors are not malicious people, but don't spoil them." Producer Preminger thus goes on record as blaming producers, not the stars, for the big payoffs received by the stars. Also, he reasons, there can be little consistency in giving actors approval rights regarding story and script and then expecting the players not to exercise these same rights.

Preminger offers no sympathy to his fellow producers — specifying those tend to pad figures and thus hurt themselves. An item on Walter Wanger's production budget on "Cleopatra" was publicized as being $1,000,000 for Elizabeth Taylor. Actually it was $825,000. (This was her base pay. Via production delays and overtime, her salary, reportedly, was almost doubled.)

The net result is that others will be seeking the $1-Mil, not so much as for the money, which is terribly tax-diminished, but for the status symbol.

BRONSTON'S PARIS P.A.

John Nelson-Sullivan, Ex-Universal, Gets Berth

John Nelson-Sullivan, former European publicity rep for Universal, has joined Samuel Bronston Productions. He'll be based in Paris but will coordinate pub-promotional activities in London and on the continent for the further distribution of "El Cid," as well as for the upcoming "55 Days in Peking" and "The Fall of The Roman Empire."

In his new post, he'll be responsible for campaigns in 15 countries, working with local distribs and with the Bronston publicity office in Madrid.

Preminger's New Rap at Costly U.S. Distribution

Otto Preminger must be added to the list, and prominently added, of independent producers with a major beef about the selling of pictures. He repeats his point, "selling is too expensive, the whole apparatus of distribution should be simplified."

Preminger, in New York this week, advocates what appears to be the most drastic overhaul of distrib-exhibitor relationship advanced by an industryite so far. He calls for 100% of the film selling to be carried out in New York, the balance in the hinterland. "With today's faster means of communication you don't need all the branches," he believes.

The buyers in other fields as per tradition journey from their home bases to Manhattan to buy their product, contends Preminger, and there's no reason why theatremen can't do the same.

Thus the storm of criticism about distributor practices continues unabated. But the differences of opinion have taken on a new complexion, for never before have the indies been in so commanding a position. The big distribs still have their own studio ties but the lots now rely almost solely on deals with the indie producers. The voice of the latter consequently has become more meaningful.

Holds Press Conference

Back from a swing of European capitals in conjunction with the openings of his "Advise and Consent," Preminger revealed in New York yesterday (Tues.) he has picked up rights in advance of publication to "Harm's Way," a first novel by James Bassett which deals with the high command of the U. S. Navy during the first year of World War II. The action is in the Pacific, the book is to be published Nov. 22 by World Publishing.

Participating in a press conference with Preminger was author Bassett, who was Adm. William F. Halsey's press aide during World War II, has also been campaign director for Richard Nixon in 1956 and 1960 and is now political analyst for the Los Angeles Times.

Preminger said he intends to start production in Hawaii on "Harm's Way" following completion of the Patrick Dennis story, "Genius," in 1964. Prior to these on the Preminger sked are Henry Morton Robinson's "The Cardinal," set to go in January, 1963, in Rome, Vienna, Boston and the New England area; "The Other Side of the Coin," a story of the Malayan uprisings by Pierre Boulle, to be filmed in Malaya next summer, and "Bunny Lake Is Missing," suspense story by Evelyn Piper, slated for completion in the fall of 1963.

British to Irish: 'How About Milder Film Censoring?'

London, Oct. 9.

British film industry has been stirred into action over what is described as the "harsh" censorship system currently (and always) prevailing in Ireland. British Film Producers Assn. has made approaches to various section of the Eireann film biz to sound out whether or not it too, would like a different approach applied to censorship.

Ideally, British producers would like to see the Emerald Isle adopt a system similar to the "U," "A" and "X" certificate method used in England instead of its insistence that children must be admitted to all performances.

British Film Producers Assn. is expecting the Irish to welcome the suggestion that they jointly approach the Minister of Justice for a change in the censorship rule. BFPA is also expecting the Motion Pictures Exhibs Assn. to back up their thrust.

According to Arthur Watkins, BFPA prexy, too many good films have been turned down by the Irish censor. "It is ridiculous," he says, "that the people of Ireland can see on tv what they cannot see in he cinema."

OPERA FILM EXPERIMENT

'Der Rosenkavalier' Draws Good Advance Sale for Carnegie, N.Y.

"Der Rosenkavalier," made at the Salzburg Festival with Herbert von Karajan conducting, is playing Carnegie Hall, N.Y. four days (Tues.-Wed.-Thurs.-Fri.) this week as a showcasing for its American playoff, aimed for selected and art situations. Recent success of various opera features around U.S. (some houses have run 'em in cycles) is behind the present marketing strategy of the Rank Organization.

As of the weekend the Carnegie date's advance sale at $3.50 was $18,292, deemed exceptional for an offbeat special booking in a non-film location. Auspices are not selling the far side seats in big (2,700-capacity) hall.

L.A. Picks up; 'Young Man' Stout 19G, 'Window' Good 16G; 'Toreadors' Rousing 6G, 2d; 'Grimm' $21,000, 9th

Los Angeles, Oct. 9.

Biz at firstruns is up slightly this round although a flock of reissues and moveovers are keeping overall figures sluggish. Major trade still is with the hardtickets, with "West Side Story" holding with a handsome $20,000 in 43d week. "Brothers Grimm" shapes wonderful $21,000 in ninth frame at Warner Hollywood. "Music Man" is rated solid in 11th session at Hollywood Par.

"Adventures of Young Man," on first general release, looks trim $19,000 in four theatres. "Rear Window," out on reissue, shapes good $16,000, playing three spots.

"Waltz of Toreadors" is rated solid in second week at Music Hall. "Boccaccio '70" shapes snappy in 11th session at Fine Arts.

"Longest Day," as of Oct. 8, had $47,234 advance sale, according to 20th-Fox. Pic preems next Thursday at Carthay Circle on hardticket. Total of 47 group sales have been made, running into first of year.

Estimates for This Week

Four Star (UATC) (868; $1.50-$2)—"I Like Money" (20th). Okay $5,000. Last week, "Pigeon That Took Rome" (6th wk), $1,800.

Warren's, Hollywood, Loyola, Village (Metropolitan-FWC) (1,757; 856; 1,298; 1,535, 90-$1.49)—"Adventures of Young Man" (20th) and "Cabinet of Caligari" (20th) (1st general release). Fine $19,000. Last week, Warren's with Iris, "Young Lions" (20th), "Island in Sun" (20th) (reissue), $7,900. Hollywood with Hillstreet, "Trojan Horse" (Colo), "The Mongols" with El Rey, "Hatari" (Par) (3d wk), "My Geisha" (Par), $10,300.

Orpheum, Pix (Metropolitan-Phm) (2,213; 756; $1-$1.49)—"Miracle Worker" (UA) (1st general release) and "Wackiest Ship in Army" (Col) (reissue). Dull $10,700. Last week, "Pressure Point" (UA), "Dangerous Charter" (Indie) (2d wk), $6,600.

Hillstreet, Pantages, Wiltern (Metropolitan-RKO-SW) (2,752; 1,512; 2,344; $1-$1.50)—"Rear Window" (Par) and "Proud and Profane" (Par) (reissues). Good $16,000. Last week, Pantages, "Two Weeks in Another Town" (FGF), "Murder, She Said" (MGM) (2d wk), $4,800. Wiltern with Los Angeles, Hawaii, "Convicts 4" (AA), "Payroll" (AA), $14,600.

State (UATC) (2,404; $1-$1.25)—"Butterfield 8" (MGM) and "World of Suzie Wong" (Par) (reissues). Thin $3,500. Last week, "Diary of Nudist" (Man), "Girl in Bikini" (Cont).

(Continued on page 16)

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $1,565,900
(Based on 20 cities and 246 theatres).

Last Year $2,026,500
(Based on 22 cities and 248 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N.Y.)

'Advise' Good 9G, L'ville; 'Lions' 4G

Louisville, Oct. 9.

"Advise and Consent" is showing the way this week at the United Artists, in an otherwise quiet week but it's just good. "No Man Is An Island" at the Kentucky shapes fairish. "Rear Window" on reissue at the Ohio looms good. "Brothers Grimm" in 6th stanza at the Rialto is adequate.

Ideal fall weather and World Series on radio and tele are demanding attention of some patrons who would normally find their way into the firstruns.

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 75-$1.25)—"No Man Is Island" (U). Expecting fairish $4,000. Last week, "Miracle Worker" (UA), $5,000.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,100; $1-$1.25) — "Young Lions" (20th) and "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (reissues). Okay $4,000 or near. Last week, "Marco Polo" (AI), $4,000.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1.25) — "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue). Good $4,500 or near. Last week, "Tarzan To India" (MGM) and "Ride High Country" (MGM) (2d wk), $3,500.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; $1.25-$2.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (6th wk). Perked at weekend for oke $5,500 or slightly better. Fifth was $5,200.

United Artists (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; $1-$1.25)—"Advise and Consent" (Col). Good $9,000 or near. Last week, "Tales of Terror" (AI) and "Flight That Disappeared" (AI), $7,000.

'GALAHAD' LIGHT 7G, BUFF.; 'GRIMM' OKE 5G

Buffalo, Oct. 9.

Biz at deluxers here this session is dragging bottom, with the strong spots an exception despite some new screen fare. All newcomers are disappointing. "Kid Galahad" shapes soft on opener at the Buffalo while "Flame in Streets" is drab in first at Century. "Brothers Grimm" still is good in eighth round at Teck.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25)—"Kid Galahad" (UA) and "Concrete Jungle" (Indie). Soft $7,000. Last week, "Thank a Fool" (MGM) and "There's No Place Like Homicide" (Indie), ditto.

Center (AB-PT) (2,500; 90-$1.25)—"Rose Tattoo" (Par) and "Joker's Wild" (Par) (reissues). Fair $6,000 in 5 days. Last week, "Hell to Eternity" (AA) and "I Passed for White" (AA) (reissues), $7,000.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 90-$1.25)—"Flame in Streets" (Atlantic). Drab $5,000. Last week, "Damn the Defiant" (Col) and "Pirates of Blood River" (Col), $4,000.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 90-$1.25)—"Come September" (U) (reissue). Mild $4,500. Last week, "No Man Is An Island" (U), $4,600.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 90-$1.25)—"The Mongols" (Indie) and "Trojan Horse" (Indie) (2d wk-5 days). Thin $5,500. Last week, $7,000.

Teck (Loew) (1,200; $1.75-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Good $5,000. Last week, $4,000.

Cinema (Martina) (450; 90-$1.25)—"I Like Money" (20th) (2d wk). Okay $2,000. Last week, Same.

'Holiday' Hep $6,000, Port.; 'Story' 4G, 30th

Portland, Oct. 9.

Firstrun trade here continues in the doldrums with weak product and too many overly-extended longruns taking the blame. "Rear Window" looks moderate for a reissue in first at Broadway while "Pressure Point" looms comparatively slower on initialer at Paramount. "300 Spartans" also is light at Orpheum. "West Side Story" continues to make the best showing although in 30th week at Music Box.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Rear Window" (Par) and "Detective Story" (Par) (reissues). Mild $4,000 or over. Last week, "Thank Fool" (MGM) and "Reluctant Debutante" (MGM) (reissue), $3,800.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49)—"Music Man" (WB) (12th wk). Nice $5,000 or under. Last week, $6,800.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (1,180; $1.49-$2) — "Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (2d wk). Nifty $6,000. Last week, $5,600.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (30th wk). Solid $4,000. Last week, $4,100.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49)—"300 Spartans" (20th) and "Demetrius and Gladiators" (20th) (reissue). Slow $4,500. Last week, "Panic in Year Zero" (AI) and "Eegah" (AI), $5,700.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,006; $1-$1.50)—"Pressure Point" (UA) and "Season of Passion" (Par). Modest $5,000. Last week, "Convicts 4" (AA) and "Frightened City" (AA), $2,300.

'Enemies' OK $7,000 in Mpls.; 'Affair' Good 6G, 'Galahad' Okay 3G, 3d

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.

Holdovers number seven this week but they shape better than six newcomers. Among the fresh entries, "Best of Enemies" looks okay at State. Despite Brigitte Bardot's cast presence, and the heavy selling campaign received by it, "Very Private Affair" looks fairly good at the Century. Reissued "Rear Window" is only moderate at Orpheum. Most other newies are modest or worse.

"Kid Galahad" shapes okay for third at Gopher. "Brothers Grimm" looks great in eighth at Cooper. "West Side Story" is wow in 33d round at the Mann.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (1,000; $1.25-$1.50-$1.75)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Fine $5,600 in 9 days. Last week, $5,000.

Avalon (Frank) (800; $1) — "Surfside 77" (Indie) and "Once Upon a Knight" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk). Satisfactory $1,500. Last week, $2,000.

Century (Par) (1,300; $1.25-$1.50) — "Very Private Affair" (MGM). Good $6,000. Last week, "El Cid" (AA) (3d run), $4,500, at $1 top.

Cooper (CF) (808; $1.65-$2.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Great $13,000. Last week, $13,500.

El Lago (Carisch) (600; $1) — "Eve or Apple" (Indie) and "Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (reissue). Satisfactory $1,500.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25) —"Kid Galahad" (UA) (3d wk). Okay $3,000. Last week, $5,500.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25) — "Ring-a-Ding Rhythm" (Col). Modest $4,000. Last week, "Tartars" (MGM), $5,500.

Mann (Mann) (1,000; $1.50-$2.75) —"West Side Story" (UA) (33d wk). Wow $6,000. Last week, $6,300.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1-$1.25)—"Rear Window" (Par) (reissue). Smooth $8,000. Last week, "Panic in Year Zero" (AIF), $5,000.

Park (Field) (1,000; $1.50) — "Hatari" (Par) (9th wk). Sparkling $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.25) — "Best of Enemies" (Col). Okay $7,000 or near. Last week, "Convicts 4" (AA), $6,000.

Suburban World (Mann) (800; $1.25)—"Jules and Jim" (Janus). Modest $2,500. Last week, "Matter of Who" (Indie) (3d wk), $2,000.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50) —"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (2d wk). Modest $3,000. Last week, $4,000.

'Boccaccio' Boff $35,000, D.C.; 'Waltz' Socko 10G, 'Island' 12G, 'Opera' 11G

Washington, Oct. 9.

Biz is beginning to perk again with some new fare catching fire. "Boccaccio '70" looks smash at two small houses, the Playhouse and Trans-Lux. "Waltz of Toreadors" is sock in first frame at the Apex.

"No Man is Island" looks strong in first round at Capitol. "Phantom of Opera" shapes okay in initial session at two houses. "West Side Story" is rated fancy in fourth stanza at the Warner.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador - Metropolitan (SW) (1,480; 1,000; $1-$1.49)—"Phantom of Opera" (U). Okay $9,000. Last week, "Guns of Darkness" (WB), sad $7,000.

Apex (KB) (940; $1.25-$1.40)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont). Sock $10,000. Last week, "Taste of Honey" (Cont) (2d wk), $3,500.

Capitol (Loew) (3,240; $1-$1.49)—"No Man is Island" (U). Nice $12,000 or near. Last week, "Tartars" (MGM), good $10,500.

Dupont (Mann) (400; $1 $1.65)—"Shoot Piano Player" (Astor) (3d wk). Mild $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Keith's (RKO) (1,839; $1-$1.49)—"Pressure Point" (UA) (2d wk). Light $6,500 after opening at $9,000.

MacArthur (KB) (900; $1.25-$1.40)—"Coming Out Party" (Union) (4th wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Ontario (KB) (1,240; $1-$1.49)—"Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) (3d wk). Soft $2,500 in four days. Last week, okay $3,500.

Palace (Loew) (2,360; $1-$1.49)—"I Thank Fool" (MGM) (3d wk). Slow $5,700. Last week, $7,300.

Playhouse (TL) (459; $1.49-$2)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy). Smash $17,000 or close. Last week, "Best of Enemies" (Col) (7th wk), $2,000.

Plaza (TL) (278; $1.49-$1.80)—"Spit On Grave" (Indie) (7th wk). Okay $3,700. Last week, $4,000.

Town (King) (800; $1-$1.49)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (3d wk). Fair $3,500. Last week, $4,500.

Trans-Lux (599; $1.49-$2)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy). Sock $18,000 or near. Last week, "Interns" (Col) (7th wk), $6,000.

Warner (SW) (1,250; $1.25-$2.30)—"West Side Story" (UA) (4th wk). Fine $10,000. Last week, same.

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $508,700
(Based on 30 theatres)

Last Year $517,300
(Based on 31 theatres)

'Town' Fairish 8G, K.C., 'Grimm' 9G

Kansas City, Oct. 9.

Mild boxoffice trend is following the pleasant fall weather, with new entries only moderate. "Two Weeks in Another Town" at Plaza is the best new entry, but only fair. "Phantom of the Opera" at Uptown and Granada looms light. "Carry On Teacher" at the Brookside shapes modest. Holdovers are topped by "Brothers Grimm" at Empire with a fast session.

"Stowaway in Sky" in the bandbox Kimo shapes strong. "Damn the Defiant" looms okay in second Paramount week. Weather is very mild after plenty of rain for about a week.

Estimates for This Week

Brookside (Fox Midwest-Nat. General) (800; $1-$1.25)—"Carry On Teacher" (Gov) and "Doctor in Love" (Gov). Moderate $3,500 but holds. Last week, "Miracle Worker" (UA) (6th wk), $1,800.

Capri (Durwood) (1,260; 75-$1.50)—"Best of Enemies" (Col) (3d wk). Fair $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Empire (Durwood) (1,294; 90-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Fancy $9,000. Last week, $9,200.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; $1.25-$1.50)—"Stowaway in Sky" (UA). Bright $3,000; stays. Last week, "Five Finger Exercise" (Col) (3d wk), $1,200.

Paramount (Blank-UP) (1,900; $1-$1.25)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (2d wk). Okay $5,000. Last week, $6,500.

Plaza (FMW-NGC) (1,630; $1-$1.25)—"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM). Fair $8,000, holds. Last week, "Interns" (Col) (5th wk), $4,500.

Roxy (Durwood) (850; 75-$1.50)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Oke $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Saxon (Durwood) (1,600; 75-$1.50) "Touch of Mink" (U) (10th wk). Fair $3,300; holds. Last week, $3,500.

Uptown, Granada (FMW-NGC) (2,043; 1,217; $1-$1.25)—"Phantom of Opera" (U) and "20,000 Eyes" (U). Mild $6,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Lisa" (20th), $5,000.

PROV. SLUGGISH WITH 'SWORD' SLOW $5,500

Providence, Oct. 9.

Waiting for heftier pix to help boost grosses hereabouts as gloomy fakes match that type of weather. State's "Sword of the Conqueror" is slow but getting top coin total. Majestic with "Trojan Horse" looms modest. Second of "No Man Is An Island" is rated fair. Elmwood is in seventh week of "El Cid," and okay.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 65-$1)—"No Man Is An Island" (U) and "East of Kilimanjaro" (Indie) (2d wk). Fair $4,500. First was $5,500.

Elmwood (Snider) (724; 90-$1.50)—"El Cid" (AA) (7th wk). Okay $3,500. Last week, $4,500.

Majestic (SW) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Trojan Horse" (Indie) "Mongols" (Indie). Modest $5,000. Last week, "Mata Hari" (MGM) and "Red Dust" (MGM) (reissues), $6,000.

State (Loew) (3,200; 75-$1)—"Sword of Conqueror" (UA) and "Mighty Ursus" (UA). Drab $5,500. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM) and "Devil Made Woman" (MGM), $6,500.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; 65-$1)—"Two Tickets to Paris" (Col) and "Safe At Home" (Col). Sad $2,500. Last week, "Damn Defiant" (Col), $4,000.

'Sword' Mild $10,000 In Hub; 'Toreadors' Smart 12G; 'Grimm' Torrid 13G

Boston, Oct. 9.

Three days of heavy rains, flooding and roads under water will slough the firstrun boxoffice this week with small action at most spots. Snarled transportation cut deeply into normal patronage as backlash from hurricane Daisy struck Sunday (7). One new pic, "Sword of Conqueror" is mild at Orpheum. "Longest Day" opens at Astor tomorrow (Wed.) on hardticket after a preview tonight (Tues.).

"Brothers Grimm" was about the only pic in Boston to hold up. However, "Pigeon That Took Rome" is rated good in second week at the Paramount. "Very Private Affair" looms neat in second week at Beacon Hill. "Waltz of Toreadors" was smart on opener at the Exeter.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,170; $1.80-$2.95)—"Longest Day" (20th). Opens tomorrow (Wed.) on hardticket. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (9th wk), $5,500.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM) (2d wk). Neat $8,500. Last week, $10,000.

Boston (Beacon Ent.) (1,345; $1.20-$2.95) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (10th wk). Hotsy $13,000. Last week, $14,000.

Capri (Sack) (850; 75-$1.80)—"Anna Karenina" (Indie) (reissue). Hep $8,000. Last week "Pressure Point" (UA) (2d wk), $3,500.

Exeter (Indie) (1,276; 90-$1.49)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (2d wk). First week ended Friday (5) smart $12,000.

Fenway (Indie) (1,300; $1.50)—"Viridiana" (Indie) (3d wk). Oke $3,500. Last week same.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.50-$3)—

(Continued on page 16)

'Angels' Lofty $14,000, Pitt; 'Toreadors' Lusty 5½G, 'Grimm' 15½G, 9th

Pittsburgh, Oct. 9.

The reissue of "Lady and Tramp" coupled with "Almost Angels" at Stanley is socko on first and helping general picture. Most of the strength is coming from "Brothers Grimm" in ninth session at the Warner.

"Waltz of Toreadors" in second at Squirrel Hill looks boff. "I Thank a Fool" rates okay at Penn on opener but "Marco Polo" is drab in first at Fulton. "No Man Is An Island" very much okay in second at Gateway.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Assoc.) (1,530; $1-$1.50)—"Marco Polo" (AI). Limp $4,500. Last week, "Interns" (Col) (6th wk), $5,900.

Gateway (Assoc.) (1,900; $1-$1.50)—"No Man Is Island" (U) (2d wk). Okay $6,500. Last week, $7,100.

Penn (UATC) (3,300; $1-$1.50)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM). OK $9,000. Last week, "Flame in Streets" (Atlantic), $6,000.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (834; $1.50)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (2d wk). Boffo $5,500. Last week, $7,000.

Stanley (SW) (3,700; $1-$1.50)—"Almost Angels" (BV) and "Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue). Loud $14,000. Last week, "Scarface Mob" (Desilu), $7,200.

Warner (SW) (1,516; $1.50-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Powerful $15,500 with extra show on school holiday. Last week, $15,000.

Chi Perking; 'Chapman' Wow $37,000, 'Angels'-'Lady' Sweet 17G; 'Boccaccio' Boffo 20G, 2d; 'Story' Big 13G, 33d

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Main Stem biz is registering another lacklustre round as longruns dwindle and recent holdovers are losing their punch. Brightest preem looks to be "Chapman Report," which is rated wow $37,000 at State-Lake. "Almost Angels" and reissued "Lady and Tramp" is debuting to a sweet $17,000 at the Woods.

"A Coming Out Party" shapes a sharp $5,000 at World. The Town's split-week of Ingemar Bergman reissues looks tidy. Monroe duo of "Portrait of A Sinner" and "Roadhouse Girl" should do nicely.

Second lap of "Boccaccio '70" continues socko at United Artists. "World of Comedy" is grabbing a frisky Esquire second round.

"I Thank A Fool" shapes slow in third Oriental frame. "Sky Above" is nailing a brisk fourth Surf session. "Waltz of Toreadors" looks nice in Cinema fourth. "Lolita" is excellent in its Loop 15th week.

"Brothers Grimm" is pulling a lively eighth round on hardticket at the McVickers. "West Side Story" continues sturdy in its 33d Todd canto.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (495; $1.25-$1.80)—"No Place Like Homicide" (Cont) and "Man In A Cocked Hat" (Cont) (reissues). Nice $2,500. Last week, "Taste of Honey" (Cont) and "La Belle Americaine" (Cont) (reissues), $2,200.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; $1.25-$1.80)—"Music Man" (WB) (12th wk). Good $12,000 in 5 days. Last week, $16,500.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50) — "Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (4th wk). Fine $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.80)—"World of Comedy" (Cont) (2d wk). Fast $8,000. Last week, $9,000.

Loop (Telem't) (606; $1.25-$2)—"Lolita" (MGM) (15th wk). Excellent $7,500. Last week, $7,700.

McVickers (Cinerama) (1,100; $1.75-$3.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Big $15,000. Last week, $15,400.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90) — "Portrait of a Sinner" (Indie) and "Roadhouse Girl" (Indie). Brisk $4,500. Last week, "Girl In Bikini" (Teitel) (reissue) and "Scarlet Week" (Teitel), $4,600.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.80) "I Thank A Fool" (MGM) (3d wk). Fair $12,500. Last week, $13,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; 90-$1.80)—"No Man Is An Island" (U) and "Liston-Patterson Fight" (AA) (2d wk). Tame $6,500 in 3 days. Last week, $14,500.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Wow $37,000 or close. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) (3d wk), $11,500.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.50-$1.80)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (4th wk). Good $4,800. Last week, $6,500.

Todd (Todd) (1,089; $2.20-$3.50) —"West Side Story" (UA) (33d wk). Brisk $13,000. Last week, $14,000.

Town (Teitel) (640; $1.25-$1.80) —"Wild Strawberries" (Indie) and "Torment" (Indie) (reissues), 3 days, and "Virgin Spring" (Indie) and "Devils Eye" (Indie) (reissues), 4 days. Busy $4,600. Last week, "Naked Night" (Indie) and "Secrets of Women" (Indie) (reissues), $4,500.

United Artists (B&K) (1,700; 90-$1.80)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (2d wk). Nifty $20,000 or near. Last week, $27,000.

Woods (Essaness) (1,200; 90-$1.80)—"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Bright $17,000 or over. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) (4th wk), $11,000.

World (Teitel) (608; 90-$1.25)—"Coming Out Party" (Cont). Slick $5,000. Last week, "Leda" (Indie) (2d wk), $3,500.

Weather Clips Bregenz

Bregenz, Oct. 9.

This year's Festival in this Austrian Alps resort was handicapped because of bad weather—as all performances are open-air, played on a float on the lake. Three performances had to be cancelled. Some 76,993 visitors nevertheless saw the Robert Stolz Musical "Dream Island" on the lake.

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

'Island' Okay 8G, Cleve.; 'Point' 6G

Cleveland, Oct. 9.

Firstrun biz here current is as skiddy as an icerink, with few standout winners. "No Man is an Island" is rated okay at the Allen while "Marco Polo" looms average at the Hipp. "Pressure Point" shapes weak on opener at State.

This leaves the bulk of strength with the extended-runs. "Brothers Grimm," best of these, is nice in ninth week at Palace.

Estimates for This Week

Allen (Stanley-Warner) (2,866; $1-$1.50)—"No Man Is an Island" (U). Okay $8,000 or near. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U), $7,000.

Colony Art (Stanley-Warner) (1,354; $1.50) — "Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (7th wk). Good $3,500. Last week, $4,000.

Continental Art (Art Theatre Guild) (900; $1.50) — "Never on Sunday" (Indie) and "Two Women" (Indie) (reissues) (2d wk). Routine $2,000. Last week, $3,000.

Heights Art (Art Theatre Guild) (925; $1-$1.50)—"Macario" (Indie). Poor $1,400. Last week, "Best of Enemies" (Col) (2d wk), $2,700.

Hippodrome (Eastern Hipp) (2,700; $1-$1.50)—"Marco Polo" (AI). Average $7,500. Last week, "Damn the Defiant" (Col), ditto.

Ohio (Loew) (2,700; $1.25-$1.50) —"Trojan Horse" (Indie) and "Mongols" (Indie). Mild $6,000. Last week, "Guns of Darkness" (WB), $5,600.

Palace (F&A Theatres) (2,739; $1.25-$2.75) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Nice $8,600. Last week, $8,800.

State (Loew) (3,700; $1-$1.50) — "Pressure Point" (UA). Weak $6,000. Last week, "Sword of Conqueror" (UA), $5,000.

Stillman (Loew) (2,700; $1-$1.50) —"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues). Okay $7,000. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (m.o.), $4,000.

Westwood Art (Art Theatre Guild) (955; $1-$1.50)—"Best of Enemies" (Col) (m.o.). So-so $1,700. Last week, "Tunes of Glory" (UA) (reissue), $1,500.

'ANGELS' FAT $15,000, FRISCO; 'GRIMM' 21G

San Francisco, Oct. 9.

Firstrun trade here currently is spotty with the World Series blamed along with some reissues which are not doing so well. "Almost Angels," paired with the oldie "Lady and Tramp," looks very big at Fox. "Bird Man of Alcatraz" looks lively in third at Esquire while "Rear Window" looks big in second at St. Francis. "Brothers Grimm still is wow in ninth at Orpheum.

Estimates for This Week

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,859; $1.25-$1.50)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) and "Rider on a Dead Horse" (AA) (3d wk). Slow $6,000. Last week, $7,500.

Fox (FWC) (4,651; $1.25-$1.50)—"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Great $15,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th), $8,500.

Orpheum (Cinedome) (1,439; $2.75-$2.95) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Wow $21,000 or over. Last week, $23,900.

Paramount (Par) (2,646; $1.50-$1.75)—"Wild for Kicks" (Indie) and "Mania" (Indie) (6 days). Fair $10,000. Last week, "Paradisio" (Indie), $9,500.

St. Francis (Par) (1,400; $1.50-$1.75)—"Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) (2d wk). Big $7,000. Last week, $9,000.

United Artists (No. Coast) (1,151; $2.25-$2.75)—"West Side Story" (UA) (43d wk). Okay $7,500. Last week, $9,300.

Warfield (Loew) (2,656; $1.25-$1.50)—"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues). Fair $7,000. Last week, "Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk), $6,500.

Vogue (S. F. Theatres) (346; $1.50)—"Devil's Wanton" (Indie) and "Night Is My Future" (Indie). Lusty $2,800. Last week, "Ashes and Diamonds" (Janus) (3d wk), $1,000.

Metro (United California) (1,000; $1.50-$1.80)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (11th wk). Nice $4,000. Last week, $3,500.

Stagedoor (A-R) (444; $1.50-$1.80)—"Anna Karenina" (MGM) (reissue). Good $5,000. Last week, "Lolita" (MGM) (14th wk), $3,500.

Esquire (No. Coast) (846; 90-$1.50)—"Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA) and "My Geisha" (Par) (reissue) (3d wk). Lively $5,600. Last week, $6,000.

Coronet (United California) (1,250; $2-$2.50)—"Music Man" (WB) (13th wk). Steady $6,500. Last week, $7,000.

'Spiral' OK $10,000 In Cincy; 'Toreadors' Hot 8½G, 'Interns' 6½G, 4th

Cincinnati, Oct. 9.

"Spiral Road" shapes okay as an Albee entry and city's best in a modest Cincy film session currently. Week's total shapes better than last week. "Waltz of Toreadors" at the Grand rates hotsy. "Interns" looks okay in fourth frame at Keith's. "Portrait In Black" and "Midnight Lace" reissues bid for a pleasing change at the Palace. Longrun "Brothers Grimm" holds fairish in ninth stanza at the Capitol. "Miracle Worker" holdover at the Valley rates fair.

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (3,100; $1-$1.50—"Spiral Road" (U). Okay $10,000. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (11th wk), $7,000 at $1.75 top.

Capitol (SW-Cinerama) (1,540; $1.25-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Fair $9,000 with lift from first of extra shows for juve groups. Same for eight week.

Esquire Art (Cin-T-Co) (500; $1.25)—"Best of Enemies" (Col). Strong $1,500. Last week, "A Matter of Who" (Indie) (2d wk), $1,300.

Grand (RKO) (1,400; $1-$1.25)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) and "Jungle Fighters" (Cont). Fine $8,500. Last week, "Mata Hari" (Indie) and "Red Dust" (Indie) (reissues), $5,500.

Guild (Vance) (300; $1.25)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (7th wk). Closing frame bids for oke $1,500. Last week, $1,600.

Hyde Park Art (Cin-T-Co) (500; $1.25)—"Laughter Then And Now" (Indie). Fair $1,000. Last week, "I Like Money" (20th) (subrun), $900.

Keith's (Cin-T-Co) (1,500; 90-$1.50)—"Interns" (Col) (4th wk). Good $6,500. Last week, $7,500.

Palace (RKO) (2,600; $1-$1.25)—"Portrait In Black" (U) and "Midnight Lace" (U) (reissues). Pleasing $7,000. Last week "Pressure Point" (UA), $7,200.

Twin Drive-In (Cin-T-Co) (800 cars each side; 90c)—West: "Boys Night Out" (MGM) and "Lolita" (MGM) (subruns). Okay $6,000. Last week, "Spit On Grave" (Indie) and "Payroll" (Indie), $6,500 at $1. East: "Hatari" (Par) and "My Geisha" (Par) (subruns). Nice $5,000. Last week, "Marco Polo" (Indie) and "Airborne" (Indie), $3,500 at $1 scale.

Valley (Cin-T-Co) (1,275; $1.25-$1.50)—"Miracle Worker" (UA) (2d wk). Fair $4,500 after $5,000 opener.

Reelect H. G. Meyer Jr.

Charlotte, N.C., Oct. 9.

H. George Meyer Jr. of Charleston, S.C., was reelected president of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina at its convention here.

Chosen chairman of the board of directors was R. E. Agle of Boone, N.C.

Additional Picture Grosses On Page 16

B'way Biz Marks Time Albeit 'Day' Capac. $44,000; 'Convicts' Good 30G, 'Affair' 25G, 2d; 'Grimm' Great 27G

With the World Series cutting into matinee business five days and rain added to the exhibitors' woes two days, Broadway firstrun trade is still offish in the current round despite four new bills. Big news, of course, is the terrific pace being set by "Longest Day" in opening session at the Warner. This war opus looks to hit a capacity $44,000 on preem week, with the advance soaring as a result of the rave reviews.

"Convicts 4" hit a good $30,000 on initial round at the Paramount and starts its second week today (Wed.). "Smashing of Reich" paired with "Kamikaze" did a nice $15,000 opening round at the Forum. "Secrets of Nazi Criminals" with "Battle of Stalingrad" came in with a trim $15,000 on first week at the Embassy.

"Gigot" with stageshow is pushing to a big $150,000 or close in second session at the Music Hall, and stays on. "Very Private Affair" looks to register a good $25,000 in second stanza, daydating the State and Beekman.

"Damn the Defiant" looks like trim $16,000 in third Criterion session. "Thank a Fool" did a good $9,000 or close in fourth week at the Victoria, where "Chapman Report" is scheduled to move in on October 17.

"Barabbas" preems on hardticket at the DeMille tonight (Wed.) with a benefit. "Pressure Point" also opens today at the Astor while "No Man Is An Island" is being launched today at the Palace.

"Brothers Grimm" on hardticket is picking up to solid $27,000 for ninth round at the Cinerama, topping the preceding week. "West Side Story" also is improving and should show a big $29,000 for current (51st) session at the Rivoli.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,094; $1.25-$2) —"Pressure Point" (UA). Opens today (Wed.), also playing Trans-Lux 85th St. In ahead, "Miracle Worker" (UA) (subrun) (3d wk), okay $11,800 after $11,000 for second.

Cinerama (Loew) (4,820; $1.50-$3.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (10th wk). Ninth round finished Sunday (7) pushed to big $27,000 after $26,500 for eighth. Set to stay indef.

Criterion (Moss) (1,520; $1.25-$2.50)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (4th-final wk). Third session ended yesterday (Tues.) still limped along with passable $16,000 in prospect. Second was $18,500, below hopes despite added feature pic. "Requiem for Heavyweight" (Col) is due to open Oct. 16.

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; $1.50-$3.50)—"Barabbas" (Col). Opens on hardticket tonight (Wed.) with benefit. Regular run opens on Thursday (11). In ahead, "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (7th wk-5 days), fair $8,000 after $10,500 for sixth week.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; $1.50-$2.50) — "Secrets of Nazi Criminals" (T-L) and "Battle of Stalingrad" (T-L) (2d wk). Initial round ended yesterday (Tues.) was sturdy $15,000 or close.

Palace (RKO) (1,642; $1.25-$2)—"No Man Is an Island" (U). Opens today (Wed.). In ahead, "Marco Polo" (AI) (3d wk), was slow $8,000 or less. Second was $10,000.

Forum (Moss) (813; $1.25-$1.80) —"Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikaze" (Indie) (2d wk). Initial stanza finished Monday (8) was good $15,000.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Convicts 4" (AA) (2d wk). First session completed yesterday (Tues.) was good $30,000 or close.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 95-$2.75) — "Gigot" (20th) and stageshow (2d wk). This week ending today (Wed.) is pushing to big $150,000 or near, aided by a soaring Monday's biz after $141,000 for opener. Now set to stay four weeks.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.50-$3.50) —"West Side Story" (UA) (51st wk). This round finishing today (Wed.) looks to perk to great $29,000 after $28,000 for 50th week. Stays on indef.

State (Loew) (1,900; $1.50-$2.50) —"Very Private Affair" (MGM) (2d wk). This week winding tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for good $17,000 or near after $22,300 for opener. Stays on.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,003; $1.25-$2)—"I Thank A Fool" (MGM) (5th-final wk). Fourth round (finished yesterday (Tues.) was good $9,000 after $11,500 for third. "Chapman Report" (WB) due in on Oct. 17.

Warner (SW) (1,813; $1.50-$3.50) —"Longest Day" (20th). Initial week ending tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like capacity $44,000 on 10 performances for teeoff on hardticket run. Stays on. Opened with benefit preem on Thursday (4) night completely sold out.

First-Run Arties

New Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$2) — "Loneliness of Long Distance Runner" (BL). Opened Monday (8), this pic launching the rebuilt house.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; $1.80-$2) —"A Kind of Loving" (Gov) (2d wk). First round concluded Monday (8) was big $15,000.

Beekman (Rugoff Th.) (590; $1.50-$2) — "Very Private Affair" (MGM) (2d wk). Initial holdover session finishing tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for hep $8,000 after $10,000 for opener. Daydating with State.

Carnegie Hall Cinema (F&A) (300; $1.50-$2)—"Last Year Marienbad" (Astor) (31st wk). The 31st week ending today (Wed.) looks like okay $3,400. "Yojimbo" (Indie) opens Oct. 15.

Cinema One (Rugoff Th.) (700; $1.50-$2)—"Boccaccio" (Embassy) (16th wk). The 15th session ended yesterday (Tues.) was smash $12,000 after $12,500 for 14th week.

Cinema Two (Rugoff Th.) (300; $1.50-$2)—"Devi" (Harrison). Opened Sunday (7). In ahead, "Cleo From 5 To 7" (Indie) (5th wk-5 days), fair $2,500 after $4,500 for fourth.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (Rugoff Th.) (250; $1.25-$2)—"Mr. Hulot's Holiday" (Cont) (reissues) (2d wk). First round ended Sunday (7) was fine $4,000.

Normandie (T-L) (592; $1.25-$2) —"La Viaccia" (Embassy) (3d-final wk). This week ending today (Wed.) is heading for okay $3,000 same as in second. "Passion of Slow Fire" (T-L) opens tomorrow (Thurs.).

Little Carnegie (L. Carnegie) (520; $1.25-$2 — "Goddess" (Col) (reissue). Opened last Friday. In ahead, "Tales of Paris" (Times) (6th wk-6 days), okay $4,000 after $7,500 in fifth.

Guild (Guild) (450; $1-$1.75)—"The Island" (Zenith) (5th wk). Fourth round finished Sunday (7) was sturdy $10,000 after $13,500 for third.

Murray Hill (Rugoff Th.) (565; $1.50-$2)—"Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikaze" (Indie). Opened Monday. In ahead, "Operation Snatch" (Cont) (2d wk), was okay $5,000 after $8,000 for opener.

Paris (Pathe Cinema) (568; $1.50-$2)—"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy) (4th wk). Third session completed Sunday (7) was wham $24,500 after $24,700 in second. Biz was so big over the past weekend that Saturday's take hit an alltime high for single day at this house, including holidays.

Sutton (Rugoff Th.) (561; $1.50-$2)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (9th wk). Eighth stanza completed Sunday (7) was big $6,500 after $7,000 for seventh.

Trans-Lux 52d St. (T-L) (540; $1.25-$2)—"Secrets of Nazi Criminals" (T-L) (2d wk). First session finished yesterday (Tues.) was good $9,500.

Tower East (Loew) (588; $2-$3.50)—"Long Day's Journey Into Night" (Levine). Opened last night (Tues.) on special preem. Nights on reserved-seat policy all one price of $3.50. Matinees unreserved at $2, except Saturday-Sunday matinees, reserved at $3.

Trans-Lux 85th St. (T-L) (550; $1.25-$2)—"Pressure Point" (UA). Opens today (Wed.), daydating with Astor. In ahead, "Miracle Worker" (UA) (3d wk), okay $5,000 after the same for second.

World (Perfecto) (390; 90-$1.50) —"Immoral Mr. Teas" (Mishkin) (3d wk). Initial holdover round ended Thursday (4) was great $16,500 after $18,000, near house high, for first week.

PREVIEW

AT THE NEW YORK AND LOS

THE QUOTES BELOW GIVE YOU

THIS UPROAR

"Terrific, adult, clean, funny." ■ laughter and tears." ■ "Give us funny script, good acting." ■ "Just to be unusually good." ■ "Humor scenes gave beautiful contrast." ■ "Good mixture of serious drama great." ■ "Excellent acting, lots of "Contrast of pathos and humor well worked out." ■ "Hutton excellent, love that Franciosa." ■ "Don't ruin by cutting scenes."

That AGONIZINGLY Hilarious Pause between the Honeymoon and the marriage!

Metro Goldwyn Mayer presents

Period of Adjustment

Starring TONY FRANCIOSA | JANE FONDA

RAVES!!!

ANGELES SNEAK PREVIEWS,
THE AUDIENCE REACTION TO

IOUS MOVIE...

"True to life and treated with more goodies like this." ■ "Very enough comedy, pathos, sentiment very real and touching, dramatic "Wonderful and funny movie." ■ and comedy." ■ "Jane Fonda is comedy, tenderness and reality." ■

95 6% WOULD RECOMMEND THIS PICTURE TO THEIR FRIENDS!

CONTACT YOUR M·G·M BRANCH NOW!

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS' GREAT FIRST COMEDY!

JIM HUTTON with LOIS NETTLETON
JOHN McGIVER

Screen Play by ISOBEL LENNART
Directed by GEORGE ROY HILL

Based on the Play "A Period of Adjustment" by TENNESSEE WILLIAMS
Produced by LAWRENCE WEINGARTEN

M-G-M

FCC Clears Teleglobe For Denver; Usual Theatre Group Opposition

Washington, Oct. 9.

A three year trial of tollvision over KTVR, channel 2, Denver, won the Federal Communications Commission's go-ahead by a 4-1 split of commissioners.

The Denver Committee Opposed to Pay TV, represented legally by Washington's Marcus Cohn, is pondering a court appeal. If so, it may be on the refusal of FCC to grant a hearing on the application, which is a different legal position than the court test of the Hartford tollvision test. The opposition committees in both Colorado and Connecticut are groups local of motion picture exhibitors.

Commissioner Robert T. Bartley dissented in the Denver case. Commissioners T. A. M. Craven and E. William Henry didn't participate. Chairman Newton Minow and three others, Robert E. Lee, Rosel H. Hyde and Frederick W. Ford, authorized the test.

The Denver trial, required to start within six months, will use the "teleglobe" system. It transmits the visual portion of the program normally, without scrambling, allowing reception on regular tv sets. The aural portion can't be received without divvying up a fee. For non-subscribers, good music is played, unrelated, of course, to what is on the tv screen.

For subscribers, the aural portion is sent over telephone lines to special speakers in the home separate from the tv set. A gadget in the speaker punches a tap to record how much the subscriber owes.

Under FCC rules, subscribers can't be required to buy special receiving equipment. Thus, the franchise holder will provide the speakers, etc.

The subscriber will, however, have to pay $10 for the wire interconnection (which must be refunded if the test ends in less than 12 months) and a monthly charge not to exceed $3.25 thereafter. Average charge per program will range from $1 to $2, but can go as low as 25 cents or up to $3.50, according to the presentation approved by FCC.

Plans are to serve 2,000 subscribers at the start in an area comprising about one-fourth of Denver under an agreement between the franchise holder and Mountain States Telephone Telegraph Co.

Current release feature films are expected to make up the major portion of initial programming.

At the outset, subscription programming will be in the 9:30-11:30 p.m. slot, with other KTVR programming (old feature films and re-runs) at other hours free.

Elroy McCaw, with Seattle and New York addresses, has owned KTVR, until now a Denver tv indie, but is authorized to sell control of the stock to Macfadden-Bartell Corp., licensee of five radio properties, for $350,000.

Franchise holder is the Teleglobe-Denver Corp., which is tied in with Teleglobe Pay-TV System Inc.

The Hartford feevee test (in WHCT, channel 18) uses "Phonevision" under Zenith Radio Corp. sponsorship, with RKO Phonevision Co. the operator. There, scrambled programs are transmitted, corrected by a decoder on the subscribers' sets.

Halt Referendum Which Might Open Blue Laws

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 9.

City Council here has voted to repeal the Blue Law ordinance which was passed in July. It called for a charter amendment referendum in the November general election. This means the limited Blue Law is killed for the present, and will not be on the ballot.

Theatre owners and others in the entertainment business put pressure on the Council seeking a stop on the referendum. Places of amusement would have been included if proper enforcement was exercised. The Council majority when passing the ordinance, said it only affected grocery stores and the general retail trade. Careful reading of the ordinance showed it could close almost anything if put to test.

National Boxoffice Survey

Trade Sluggish; 'Grimm' Still Champ, 'Story' 2d, 'Boccaccio' 3d, 'Angels' 4th

Continued shortage of new, strong pix is putting a crimp in firstrun biz this round. There are some big grossers in circulation but not enough of them to go around as witness the necessity of bringing in reissue combos. These oldies, generally, are proving weaklings at the wickets.

"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) again is taking No. 1 spot, being way out ahead of its nearest competitor. "West Side Story" (UA) continues in second position, same as last round.

"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) is climbing to third place as against fifth a week ago. "Almost Angels" (BV), a new entrant, is capturing fourth money.

"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) is pushing up to fifth spot. It was 12th last stanza. "Music Man" (WB) is slipping to sixth. "Very Private Affair" (MGM) is landing seventh place the first week out to any extent.

"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) is finishing eighth. "Interns" (Col), which has been near the top for several weeks, is winding up ninth. "Thank A Fool" (MGM) will capture 10th place.

"Man Is An Island" (U), sixth last week, is finishing 11th while "Pressure Point" (UA) rounds out the top 12 films. "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue), "Damn Defiant" (Col) and "Sky Above" (Embassy) are the runner-up pix in that order. All three were higher last session.

Several new vehicles show promise. "Barrabas" (Col), which opens at N.Y. DeMille this week, was big in Toronto. "Longest Day" (20th) on preem week in N.Y. is heading for a capacity $44,000.

"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy), torrid in Boston, continues wow on longrun in N.Y. "Chapman Report" (WB, also new, looms sock in Chi. "Convicts 4" (AA), good in N.Y., is rated listless in L.A.

"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM), fair in K.C., looks good in St. Louis. "Tarzan Goes To India," from the same distrib, shapes good in Detroit.

"300 Spartans" (20th), light in St. Louis, is slow in Portland, Ore. "Miracle Worker" (UA), fair in Cincy, looms dull in L.A. and okay in N.Y.

"Coming Out Party" (Union), okay in Washington, shapes slick in Chi. "World of Comedy" (Cont), okay in Denver, is rated fast in Chi.

"Gigot" (20th), on second week at N.Y. Music Hall, is topping initial session with a big gross. "Spiral Road" (U), okay in Cincy, looks fair in Denver.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

Robert Rooney's UA Post: European Units Liaison

Robert Rooney, former newspaperman and currently unit publicity director on Woodfall Productions' "Tom Jones," shooting in Britain, has been appointed production publicity liaison for all United Artists pix being made in Britain and Europe. He'll headquarter in Paris and be directly responsible to Charles Juroe, supervising director of production and distribution ad-pub in Europe and Britain.

Rooney expects to wind up his "Tom Jones" assignment shortly and will report to Paris and his new post Nov. 1.

Swarming Reissues

Continued from page 5

chains. Circuit last week test-ran three Alfred Hitchcock films in San Diego, including "Rebecca," "Spellbound" and "Notorious," and this week will repeat in Phoenix with "Ruby Gentry" and "Duel in the Sun." Two Paramount reissue combos will be tried out in San Diego later in month, "Fancy Pants" and "Last Train to Gun Hill," and "Roman Holiday" and "Sabrina."

One theatre spokesman, asked if his house would hold a reissue for another week, replied, "we have to hold—there's nothing else to play."

"There are no decent new pictures," another theatreman tartly observed. But, he reported, "the reissue market is awfully soft." Singling out individual reissues in current or recently in release, he reported, "The two Jerry Lewis comedies, 'Delicate Delinquent' and 'Sad Sack,' didn't do par business; 'Island In the Sun' and 'Young Lions,' and 'Love Is a Many Splendored Thing' with 'Three Coins In the Fountain' dropped dead. So did 'Anna Karenina.' 'Les Girls' and 'Gigi' did an all-time three-day weekend low." He added, "The movies on the Late Show tv program are better than the reissues playing around."

Stressing that there would be many reissues playing not yet booked between Thanksgiving and Christmas, still another booker declared, "There's product during the summer time and holiday, but in-between time there's a famine. We're going to see lots more reissues."

Heflin on Migrants

Continued from page 7

volved with other countries because they had members who were sent abroad during the war, many of whom took their families or started new families there.

Heflin, in evaluating a remedy for the continued interest in foreign filmaking, says some means of governmental subsidy should be arranged. "They were smarter than us in Europe where the governments saw the importance of the motion picture industry and are supporting it." Heflin noted "any suggestion of a tax break for Hollywood would immediately be put down by our government, although other industries, like oil, are allowed as much as a quarter depreciation a year." He says "I see nothing wrong with actors who work only abroad for tax reasons because people in other industries do it with the approval of our government; why should Hollywood be picked out?" Heflin, however, said he has always maintained his home in Hollywood and never saves money on taxes by working abroad.

Actor asks the U.S. to evaluate the importance of Hollywood's name as a spokesman for the country. He feels "film actors enjoy a far greater place in public opinion than do ambassadors and this could be used more for informational services to the country." He suggests they could work in connection with the U.S. Information Service, which could mate them with diplomats who know the area of foreign diplomacy but who frequently aren't as familiar with public and press as is the actor. Two could work well together at foreign film festivals or other events involving national representation. "We are just giving up in this area," he asserted.

As far as his personal work abroad is concerned, Heflin says he is more popular in Europe than here because "Europeans evaluate the number and quality of films made and develop their interest in a star over a period of years. If you are associated with good films, you are a draw," he said. He noted four pix he has made away from the U.S. "Tempest," "Under 10 Flags," "Five Branded Women" and "The Wastrel" were big hits there but only moderately successful in U.S. "Wastrel" was his last and not yet released domestically. He also has completed "To Be a Man" in Manila, which so far has no U.S. release.

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (9)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1962 High	1962 Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
21⅞	12⅜	ABC Vending	63	13¾	13½	13½
47½	22¾	Am Br-P'r Th	119	30½	28⅞	29¾	+ ⅝
20⅝	10	Ampex	400	15¾	14⅞	15¾	+ ¾
43⅞	31½	CBS	124	36⅜	35¼	36⅜	+ ½
33⅞	11	Chris Craft	79	12	11¾	11¾	— ⅛
31	14	Col Pix	57	20½	19⅞	19⅞	— ⅛
51⅜	34½	Decca	16	39¾	39½	39⅝	+ ⅛
40⅝	24¾	Disney	43	26⅜	25½	26⅛	+ ⅝
115⅞	85	Eastman Kdk.	182	97½	94¼	96⅝	+ ⅝
6¼	4¼	EMI	121	4⅝	4½	4½	— ⅛
14⅝	8⅜	Glen Alden	136	9½	9⅛	9⅛	— ⅛
47½	19½	Loew's Thea.	141	23½	21⅝	21⅝	—1
78⅞	33	MCA Inc.	39	43	41¼	41⅝	+ ⅞
15⅞	10⅜	Metromedia	7	13⅜	13⅛	13⅜
58⅛	27⅛	MGM	118	31	29⅞	3	+1
9¼	5⅞	Nat. G. Corp.	71	6½	6¼	6⅜	+ ⅛
25½	19	Outlet	140	20¾	20½	20½	— ¼
58½	36½	Paramount	52	39	36⅞	38¾	+1¼
221	81½	Polaroid	2366	126½	113	126½	+11⅝
63⅞	38⅝	RCA	344	50	45¾	49⅞	+3⅞
12⅝	6⅞	Republic	90	7¼	6⅞	7
17	13	Rep., pfd.	8	14¼	14	14⅛	— ⅛
40¼	19½	Stanley War.	37	20½	20	20⅛	— ¼
33¼	27¼	Storer	17	30	29½	30	+ ⅝
39⅜	18	20th-Fox	139	22⅞	20¾	22⅝	+1⅞
35⅜	24⅝	United Art'ts	24	27	26¾	27	+ ¼
20¾	11¼	Warner Bros.	56	12¾	12	12⅛	+ ⅛
75⅝	44	Zenith	470	52⅝	50½	52⅜	+1½

American Stock Exchange

6⅝	2½	Allied Artists	8	3⅛	3	3	— ⅛
21⅜	10¼	Cap. Cit. Bdc.	26	16	15	16	+1
20⅜	9⅛	Cinerama Inc.	584	14⅜	13⅜	13¾
12	6½	Desilu Prods.	4	7¾	7⅜	7⅜	— ¼
9⅜	4½	Filmways	35	4⅞	4½	4¾	— ⅛
14⅜	6	MPO Vid.	14	6⅜	6⅛	6¼
2¾	1	Nat'l Telefilm	33	1⅛	1	1	— ⅛
5⅛	2⅜	Reeves Bdcst.	33	2⅝	2⅜	2⅜	— ¼
7½	2¾	Reeves Snd.	69	3¾	3½	3½	— ⅛
12¾	10¼	Rollins Bdcst.	3	11¾	11½	11½	+ ⅛
22¾	13	Screen Gems	8	16⅛	15⅝	15¾	+ ¼
26⅝	8½	Technicolor	93	10⅛	9⅝	9¾	— ⅛
16⅞	6⅛	Telepro'pt'r	23	6¾	6⅜	6⅜	— ½
3	1⅛	Tele Indus	15	1¾	1½	1¾	+ ⅛
18¾	10⅛	Trans-Lux	6	12⅛	12	12

* Week Ended Mon. (8).
† Actual Volume.

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
America Corp.	1⅞	2¼	— ⅛
Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico	7¼	8⅜	+ ¼
Four Star Television	12⅜	13½	+ ⅞
Gen Aniline & FA	270	299	+10
General Drive-in	8¼	9½	..
Magna Pictures	1¼	1⅝	— ⅛
Medallion Pictures	5	5¾	+ ½
Premier Albums	6¾	7⅝	— ¾
Rapid Film Technique	1⅜	1⅞
Seven Arts Productions	7⅝	8⅜	— ¼
Transcontinent Television	9¼	10¼	+ ⅛
U. A. Theatres	6¼	7⅜	— ¼
Universal Pictures	57½	63½	..
Walter Reade-Sterling Inc.	1⅞	2½	+ ⅛
Wometco Enterprises	25¾	28	+1
Wrather Corp.	3⅝	4⅜	+ ¼

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

Dont Just 'Throw In' an Import

Continued from page 5

these same pictures which we have played five and six years ago?"

He advocated campaigning on reissues. "We should do campaigns on reissues," he said.

"Paramount is doing it with 'Rear Window.' Disney does it every year. Each time, it has had a certain degree of success. Maybe we are missing the boat. Tv is doing what we should have been doing—plugging these old pictures."

Irwine Newmann, district manager of Interstate Theatres, told the group of Saturday afternoon promotions ranging from pumpkins to "crazy penny" auctions, all guaranteed to step up the boxoffice.

"Saturday afternoon can be the biggest day of the week," he said, outlining three "very successful promotions."

("1.) Giving away pumpkins. Stockpile 100 pumpkins or more in the lobby for the matinee. You don't have to wait for Thanksgiving. You can give them out right away, so you can do three before Thanksgiving. They cost about 20 to 30 cents each, and you can make a Halloween party matinee and run them all the way into Thanksgiving.

("2.) Grabbag promotion. Have a grab bag filled with popcorn and penny candy, advertise it, put the grabbags in paper barrels, several in a row and put passes in the bags.

("3.) Crazy Penny auction. Promote or buy prizes, stuffed toys, out of season merchandise. Sell pennies to the kids from the candy counter, six for five cents.

"All the pennies come back to the candy stand, anyway." In this promotion, he advised using a goldfish bowl on stage, and said in this type of an auction, "the kids will overbid, so you have to cut them off." Other promotions can involve gimmicks for the kids on stage, contests in sawing a plank, or driving a nail in a board, or whoever sticks his hand in the goldfish bowl and grabs the most pennies, he declared.

Jack O'Brien of New England Theatres, and a director of the National Assn. of Concessionaires, showed what he termed the "hottest item to come along for a long time," a plastic orange, in which an orange drink is inserted. He said NET has used 70,000 of the plastic oranges since July. "They lend themselves to a great deal of merchandising," he said, "but they must be pushed." Cost of the plastic oranges, which were obtained from Florida States Theatres, is 5.2c, he pointed out and refills of the drink are sold to customers for 15c, "profit of 72%."

TOA Directory Due

Theatre Owners of America's eighth annual Foreign Film Directory will be ready for distribution at the association's upcoming annual convention in Miami, Nov. 6-10.

The directory contains info on over 1,200 pix being handled this side by approximately 100 different distribs.

This is simply to express my thanks and appreciation to those who supported me in the production of "THE LONGEST DAY" at a time when I needed it most.

My D-Day came in mid-October 1961. I faced a vital decision – to quit and call it a day, or to gamble against enormous odds:

a. The notoriously bad Normandy weather in winter.

b. The uncertainty of obtaining further military cooperation.

c. The mounting production cost.

d. The refusal of several top film directors to participate in the operation. (This is how I got into the act).

e. The refusal of certain stars to accept cameo roles.

My first citation goes to Elmo Williams (my associate producer and right arm) who urged me on when almost all others predicted disaster.

My second citation to Robert Mitchum who was the first important star to accept a cameo role. This led to the "rush to get into the act."

My third citation to John Wayne who accepted a cameo role even after he knew the same role had been turned down by another star who considered it "insignificant."

My fourth citation to Richard Burton who flew back and forth between Rome and Paris to work over the weekends, without a complaint.

My fifth citation to all my First and Second Unit Directors, especially Andrew Marton, a stubborn, tireless work-horse who never flinched when I demanded the "impossible."

My sixth citation to my six production secretaries (American, British and French), who put up with me for ten hectic, sleepless months on thirty-seven locations; who patiently accepted my impatience, my rudeness and even my abuse.

And to all of the others, my gratitude and thanks.

Darryl F. Zanuck

DARRYL F. ZANUCK

Sex (Melina's) Saves Susskind Panel On Films From Its Own Excesses

Films were the theme Sunday (7) of another television panel discussion arranged by David Susskind, himself an arstwhile film producer. On "Open End" over WNEW-TV (N.Y.), Susskind quoted—and misquoted—the opening paragraph of the page one banner story last issue of VARIETY wherein Tony Curtis implied that blundering producers of unsuccessful films were "bum-rapping" the stars.

(Another arresting moment in the discussion came when the Greek actress, Melina Mercouri, whose knowledge of English is less than perfect, was asked to state what she regarded as "fulfillment." Pausing, she reflected that one wished to fall in love, then sleep with the one with which one had fallen in love. Various signals warned her to stop.)

Susskind ridiculed Tony Curtis' suggestion that stars are too often "bum-rapped" for mistakes made by management. Referring to Curtis as "that great industry mind," the panelmaster ignored the reference to bad management by producers and indicated that the star only thought that there was too much talk about "salaries, set temperament, personal behavior, etc."

This was typical of the sweeping (if lively) generalizations and only partially articulated ideas which dominated most of the telecast, devoted, Susskind promised at the outset, to exploring reasons for the sickness of the American movie business. Panel member Mike Frankovitch, veep of Columbia Pictures (which released Susskind's "probably unprofitable" "Raisin in The Sun" and has his upcoming "Requiem for A Heavyweight") performed yeoman service in straightening out his sometime biz associate. It was Frankovitch, a more careful reader, who pointed out that Curtis only was "blaming those people who blame actors" for all industry ills. The exec also, with refreshing frankness, suggested that management was sometimes directly responsible for production foulups.

It was not always easy for Frankovitch who had to sit there listening to Susskind belittle the talents and successes of a number of Columbia properties (the "Gigot" pix, as well as "Strangers When We Meet"). Other panel members, Jules Dassin, Melina Mercouri, Robert Preston and Anthony Perkins had an easier go, everyone getting in plugs for their forthcoming releases.

Dassin forthrightly stated his views against censorship ("Only the self-imposed censorship of the artistic creator is valid") while Perkins and Preston spoke as "working actors who have no desire to produce their own vehicles. At one point in the show, Susskind laid the blame for Hollywood's ills directly on the shoulders of the "actor-producers," the implication being that few actors (if any) are qualified to pick properties, directors, etc. This was questioned by Dassin, who pointed out that the legit theatre had been built by the successful "actor-managers" of old.

Unquestioned star of the two-hour session, however, was Miss Mercouri, and the show at last came alive in the final 30 minutes when Susskind dropped all pretense of exploring the "sickness" of the movies and concentrated on the Greek actress' views on men, love and life. She's all girl.

Addy.

TWO MADE IN ITALY HANDLED VIA TOPAZ

Los Angeles, Oct. 9.

Topaz Film Corp. has acquired U.S. distribution rights to two films made in Italy, "War of the Planets," starring Claude Rains, and "Atom Age Vampire."

Both will be released by Dec. 1, according to prexy Paul Schreibman, "to fill the current void of new pictures on the American market."

CARTERS' NERVE FALTERS

After Big Bally They Yank 'Liaisons,' Unseen by Atlanta

Atlanta, Oct. 9.

John and Ruth Carter, owners and operators of Capri Cinema and Fine Art Cinema in Buckhead, silk stocking suburb of Atlanta, decided Thursday (4) that legal discretion was the better part of valor and yanked Astor Pictures' "Dangerous Love Affairs" (Les Liaisons Dangereuses), scheduled to open following day at Fine Art.

Thursday display ad in both morning Constitution and evening Journal contained line "So controversial, even the French banned it." Also: "Some say it's overwhelmingly moral . . . others charge it's pornographic, lewd!"

In accordance with City of Atlanta's motion picture film rating ordinance, declared unconstitutional but ruled operable for 30 days by judge to give city chance to appeal, ad says: "Not recommended for the immature." (Customary usage is U.Y. (Unsuitable for Youth) and or (Objectionable).

DAVID BROWN, ZANUCK APPOINTEE, EXITS 20TH

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

David Brown, an executive with 20th-Fox for the past 10 years, is in negotiation to terminate the active, exclusive phase of his contract with the studio, so that he can be free to make a deal elsewhere, the exec confirmed here.

Brown said he instituted negotiations for a release because no production is planned at 20th before expiration of his contract next March. He will remain under pact to 20th in a non-exclusive, advisory capacity for the next four years.

Brown was brought to 20th by Darryl F. Zanuck, then production chief at the studio, in January 1952, as an exec in the story department. He was exec chief of the studio's story department, as well as general production exec to Zanuck and the late Buddy Adler. In September of 1960, after Adler's death, he asked to be relieved of his exec duties so he could become a producer.

He had developed four motion picture properties, including "The Battle of Leyte Gulf" and "The Chinese Room." He was the original producer of the late Marilyn Monroe's last film, "Something's Got to Give," but withdrew from it after she was announced for the film.

Before coming to Hollywood, Brown was managing ed of Cosmopolitan mag, editor-in-chief of Liberty mag, and in various showbiz and publishing positions.

Mexican Sensitivity

Continued from page 3

ments to fill for Dino DeLaurentiis, is trying to move up first one to first of the year to make him available for "Sanchez" in April. Should this be arranged, pic would start then. If not, DeSica must do both DeLaurentiis films, pushing his availability to October or November of next year. Miss Loren is commited to Samuel Bronston for "Fall of the Roman Empire," which she will try to move to January start on 16-week schedule to be free for possible April start.

Additionally, producer said he has now had to stop negotiations with George Chakiris and Rita Moreno which had been underway, due to lack of starting date.

Mann, in Rome awaiting decision from DeLaurentiis, is completing full screenplay which Mexican government now requires. Ruckus started when country's Film Bureau rep, Carmen Bacz, refused approval of treatment presented because of "distorted picture that would be harmful to its national publicity drive." Kastner refuted, saying "The picture will not be distorted; it is an honest depiction of a poor family which will treat the Mexican people with dignity." He said it could be made in other areas, but would not be as meaningful.

Ingmar's L.A. 'Fest'

Los Angeles, Oct. 9.

Ingmar Bergman Film Festival will start twoweek tenure at arty Vagabond Theatre Oct. 12, with 14 of Swedish director's top films packaged in twos for two days each.

Program includes "Torment" and "Three Strange Loves," kicking off fete; "Illicit Interlude," "Secrets of Women;" "The Naked Night," "A Lesson in Love;" "Dreams," "Smiles of a Summer Night;" "The Seventh Seal," "Wild Straeberries;" "Brink of Life," "The Magician;" "The Virgin Spring," "The Devil's Eye."

UA Showcase

Continued from page 5

let, so far denied them, in addition to the outlying Kingsway.

Be that as it may, the grosses on four of the first five UA "Showcase" releases are impressive, to wit: (1) "Hong Kong," running at 13 showcase theatres for three weeks, racked up a total gross of $335,619; (2) "Bird Man of Alcatraz," 11 theatres, three weeks, $490,249; (3) "Judgment at Nuremberg," 14 theatres, four weeks, $645,184; (4) "The Miracle Worker," first two weeks, 12 theatres, $257,880.

"Hong Kong," in addition, went on to bring in $178,000 in one week of its first subsequent run in 67 houses, and "Bird Man" to bring in $268,000 in its first subsequent release week in 66 houses.

The 12-week Premiere Showcase runs of these four pix accounted for a total gross of $1,728,932. Unmentioned by UA execs are the grosses on the two-week showcase run of the Elvis Presley starrer, "Follow That Dream," which opened Aug. 1. However, Presley pix have been consistently off in N. Y., though drawing well in other parts of the country.

Grosses, of course, mean little in themselves—it's the net rental to the distrib and the profits left for exhibs which spell the success or the failure of a booking. According to UA, experience so far shows the showcase plan to be successful on both counts. Though a bundle was spent on trade and daily copy to launch the plan, it is now functioning so that, for example, the company can spend less on ad-promoting the opening of "Bird Man" than it did on launching another Burt Lancaster starrer, "Elmer Gantry," but get added mileage out of the "Bird Man" campaign since returns were coming in from 11 houses, instead of just one (the Capitol) as with "Gantry."

The UA execs also contend that experience in the first 14 weeks has also proven their original contention that making the pix available throughout the city simultaneously has had not appreciable effect on the Broadway day-date grosses — the idea being that Broadway pic-goers are not necessarily coming in from the outlying areas. Thus, they say, "Bird Man" did something in the neighborhood of $37,000 in its first week at the Astor on Broadway—a top gross in pre-Premiere Showcase days—even though available at 10 other theatres.

It isn't a question of "syphoning off" grosses from Broadway by going day-date around the city; rather the plan has had the effect of attracting patrons who were not going to the Broadway outlet anyway.

Cervi Sues Ponti Over 'Boccaccio' Dispute

Rome, Oct. 9.

"Boccaccio 70" (Embassy), which has already been the subject of controversy during this year's Cannes Film Festival, is now involved in a $160,000 damage suit filed in Rome court against producer Carlo Ponti.

Complaint has been entered by producer Antonio Cervi, son of actor Gino Cervi. Cervi's citation, presented by his lawyer, claims that Ponti assumed the entire responsibility of the pic by removing (especially in foreign screenings) the Cervi name which no longer appears in film's credits or in publicity.

Cervi also complains that pic was shown at Cannes without the episode directed by Mario Monicelli, and that this action was taken without his (Cervi's) prior consent as coproducer of the film.

Elaborate System Devised by Spain For 'Classification and Censorship'

Madrid, Oct. 9.

Initial move to reorganize the government commission for classification and censorship was adopted last week at a meeting of Spain's Council of Ministers with approval of proposals submitted by the new Minister of Information, Fraga Iribarne.

In a preamble to his specific proposals, the minister explained that reorganization was overdue to insure procedural efficiency to meet the demands of the Spanish film industry.

The new classification-censorship commission will be presided over by the Director General for Cinema with the Secretary General for Cinema acting as vice-president. The commission secretary will be named by the minister of information on the recommendation of the director general and members of the commission. The ministerial decree then subdivides membership for classification and for censorship.

The censor group will now be composed of eight members named by the minister of information; representatives of the Ministry of Interior and the Ministry of Education, and an ecclesiastic to be selected from a list of film-wise candidates submitted to the information minister.

Forming the classification group will be representatives from the Ministries of Industry and Commerce; from the Entertainment Sindicato, representatives from production, distribution and exhibition branches of the industry and a member representing film directors. In addition, the National Film Institute, the official government newsreel agency, the Film Training Institute and the National Film Library will each have seats and votes. Finally, the minister will designate five members from among film critics, screen writers and outstanding film commentators.

While the announced intention of the decree is to expand commission strength to a point where it gives the Director General for Cinema discretionary power to create sub-groups to censor and classify throughout the year—including the almost totally inactive vacation months—the move is primarily interpreted as a means of padding the commission with new members prepared to judge and ballot in keeping with the minister's aim to soft pedal excessive censor policies of the past and meet out film subsidies with the firm aim to advance quality.

Pending State Council approval last week of the ministers' reorganization plan, it was learned that the Director General for Cinema had already appointed a new censor group secretary and six new members after accepting resignations from retiring censor veterans. The new secretary, Jose Luis de Celis, unlike his predecessor, has long years of experience as a screen writer and director of documentary films. All appointments were temporary but are expected to be confirmed shortly now that the government-approved decree has appeared in the official state bulletin.

PAUL ANKA CONDUCTING

Part of Special Stuff as 'Day' Opens In Philly

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.

"The Longest Day" (20th) will be given a full-dress premiere at the Goldman Theatre tomorrow (10) with members of the Fourth and 29th Divisions, who took part in the D-Day battle, serving as color guards.

Paul Anka, one of the 40-odd names in the film, will conduct the Artisans Band in front of the theatre in his own march composition "The Longest Day." Opening performance is a benefit premiere sponsored by the Philadelphia County Council, of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Maj. Gen. Norman D. Cota and Arthur B. "Dutch" Schultz, two Philadelphia area residents, whose stories figure prominently in the pic, will be guests at the premiere. Governor David Lawrence promises to attend.

Writing in Films in Review, organ of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, editor Henry Hart hailed Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day" as "not only an engrossing motion picture about a major historical event, but one of the great motion pictures of all time."

ACME BLUEPRINTING LAKE GEORGE HARDTOP

Lake George, N.Y., Oct. 9.

The booming summer resort village of Lake George will have a new, plush theatre, with a capacity of 500 to 600 and with ample parking facilities, if plans of Samuel E. Rosenblatt, Albany, president of Acme Theatres Inc., materialize.

Costing $300,000 and centrally located, it will be ready for operation during the summer of 1963. Promoter envisages seasonal operation of 16 to 20 weeks for the new hardtop.

Kallet Theatres, of Oneida, lessees of the Lake Theatre for the past two seasons, closed it Labor Day. Previously late Boby Yates conducted the theatre for years. His widow and the Yates Estate are now co-owners.

Rosenthal already owns the nearby Fort George Drive-in and the new Glen Drive-in, eight miles distant and controls the Cobleskill Drive-in, at Richmondville, the Park Theatre in Cobleskill, and the Catskill in Catskill.

The last-named, built by Rosenblatt around 1950, is now leased by Ben Resnick, Palestine-born operator of the Onteora Theatre in Fleischmanns (Catskill Mt. town).

Friends of France

Continued from page 5

has "Les Amours Celebres," a sketch film by Michel Boisrond.

Trans-Lux has Claude Chabrol's "Ophelia," a variation on the Hamlet theme, and George Lautner's suspenser "Le Septieme Jure." A new distrib firm, Merlyn Films, has Jacques Rivette's "Paris Nous Appartient" for early Nov. release.

Paramount will release "Malefices," Juliette Greco starrer, as "Where The Truth Lies." Metro has Brigitte Bardot-Marcello Mastroianna starrer, "Un Vie Privee," ready for release as "A Very Private Affair."

Currently, Gallic pix are holding their own at the N.Y. boxoffices with "Last Year at Marienbad" nearing sixth month at Carnegie Hall Theatre, Oscar-winner "The Sky Above—The Mud Below" setting records on the Loew's circuit, Agnes Varda's "Cleo From 5 to 7" set at Walter Reade's Cinema II and "A Very Private Affair" opening last Friday simultaneously at Loew's State and Beekman Theatres. "Tales of Paris" is in second month at Little Carnegie, Francois Truffaut's "Jules et Jim" and "Shoot The Piano Player" and Jean-Luc Godard's "Breathless" showing in subsequent runs. Even the old Gallic classics, "L'Atalante" and "Zero de Conduit" are getting commercial re-showing. Lafayette, they are here!

Go For 'Diamond Head'

Honolulu, Oct. 9.

Print of "Diamond Head" (Col) was shown to a small invitational group of Hawaii travel industry people Tuesday (2), with John C. Flinn Jr, studio's director of publicity and advertising, present. Photography (by Sam Leavitt) drew acclaim from the tourism group, who generally agreed Kauai island has never looked lovelier.

Print, as screened at the nabe Varsity theatre, ran 108 minutes.

Charlton Heston-starrer is based on Peter Gilman's best-seller book, which stirred a certain amount of controversy here because the key figure is, by Hawaii's standards, a bigot and "racial purist."

Film will have its world premiere here in January, probably in Consolidated Amusement Co.'s Waikiki theatre, with Mainland release following in February, presumably on a saturation bookings basis.

Hawaii Visitors Bureau, which unofficially sees "Diamond Head" as the biggest booster for Isle tourism since "Blue Hawaii" (Par) will assist in the premiere.

OCTOBER 1st —Fine Arts Theatre

A KIND OF LOVING

Screenplay by KEITH WATERHOUSE & WILLIS HALL
Produced by JOSEPH JANNI
Directed by JOHN SCHLESINGER

OCTOBER 3rd —Shubert Theatre

STOP THE WORLD— I WANT TO GET OFF

Book, Music and Lyrics
by
LESLIE BRICUSSE and ANTHONY NEWLEY

REPRESENTATION:
GREGSON AND WIGAN, LTD.,
Page House,
91, Shaftesbury Avenue,
London, W.1.

'Angels' Nice $12,000, Det.; 'Defiant' 11G, 'Grave' 14G; 'Grimm' Wow 16½G

Detroit, Oct. 9.

Rash of newcomers is sparking traffic at the wickets this week to give Detroit firstruns a look of prosperity "I Spit on Your Grave" looms good at Fox. "Almost Angels" shapes nice at the Michigan. "Damn the Defiant" looks okay at the Palms.

"Tarzan Goes to India" is trim at the Adams. "Brothers Grimm" continues as the town's leader with another wow gross in 10th week at Music Hall. "West Side Story" shapes okay in 34th round at Madison.

Estimates for This Week

Fox (Fox Theatre of Detroit Corp. 5,041; $1.25-$1.49) — "Spit on Grave" (Indie) and "Ninth Bullet" (Indie). Good $14,000 or near. Last week, "Mothra" (Col) and "Queen of Pirates" (Col), $7,500.

Michigan (United Detroit) (4,026; $1.25-$1.49) — "Almost Angels" (BV) and "Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue). Nice $12,000 or over. Last week, "No Man Is an Island" (U) 2d wk), $18,000.

Palms (UD) (2,995; $1.25-$1.49)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) and "Pirates of Blood River" (Col). Okay $11,000 or close. Last week, "Panic in Year Zero" (AI) and "Burn Witch Burn" (AI), $8,000.

Madison (UD) (1,408; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (34th wk). Oke $6,000. Last week, $6,700.

Grand Circus (U) (1,400; $1.25-$1.49)—"Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikaze" (Indie). Slow $6,600. Last week, "World of Comedy" (Cont) and "Tillie's Punctured Romance" (Indie) (reissue), $7,000.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; $1.25-$1.50) — "Tarzan Goes to India" (MGM) and "Tartars" (MGM). Good $13,000. Last week, "Two Weeks Another Town" (MGM) (2d wk), $5,500.

United Artists (UA) (1,667; $1.25-$1.50)—"I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk). Slow $5,000. Last week, $5,200.

Music Hall (Beacon Enterprises) (1,213; $1.25-$2.80) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (10th wk). Sensational $16,500. Last week, $16,800.

Trans-Lux Krim (Trans-Lux) (930; $1.86-$2) — "Boccaccio 70" (Embassy) (9th wk). Good $3,000. Last wek, $4,000.

BOSTON

(Continued from page 8)

"West Side Story" (UA) (49th wk). Seven last days soaring to $14,000. Last week, $4,000.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.50) —"No Man Is Island" (U) and "Hands of a Stranger" (AA) (2d wk). Oke $10,000. Last week, $13,000.

Music Hall (Sack) (4,300; 90-$1.80—"Interns" (Col) (4th wk). Okay $18,000.

Orrheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.49) —"Sword of Conqueror" (UA) and "Explosive Generation" (UA). Mild $10,000. Last week, "I Thank Fool" (MGM) and "Watch Your Stern" (Indie) (2d wk), $8,000.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 70-$1.65—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (2d wk). Good $12,000. Last week, $15,000.

Park Square (Indie) (300; $1.80) —"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy) (3d wk). Still hot with $5,000 in this tiny house. Last week, $6,300.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100; $1.50-$1.80) — "Damn the Defiant" (Col) (3d wk). Modest $8,000. Last week, $13,400.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25) —"Tonite For Sure" (Indie) and "For Lovers and Others" (Indie) (3d wk). Oke $4,000. Last week, same.

New York Theatres

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
Rockefeller Center • CI 6-4600
JACKIE GLEASON
as *GIGOT
*Presented CEE-GO
A Seven Arts Production • Filmed in Paris in COLOR
A 20th Century Fox Release
ON STAGE "SOUNDS" and "KOL NIDREI"

'Lancelot & Guinevere' Budget Upped by 150G

London, Oct. 9.

Universal has added $150,000 to the budget of "Lancelot & Guinevere" which Cornel Wilde is producing and directing, with Bernard Luber as producer, in England and Yugoslavia. The entire sum is to go toward the final battle scene in addition to $160,000 already in the budget.

The increase was voted by H. H. Martin, v.p. in charge of sales, after he received a report from George Golitzen, one of UI's top production executives, who was flown to London to view a rough cut.

The overall cost of the film, originally budgeted at $2,250,000, has gone up greatly, due partly to the worst weather in 50 years in Yugoslavia, and partly to feeling by Universal and Wilde that the subject matter demanded a big treatment. With this latest increase, the two-and-a-half-hour spectacle will come in at slightly over $3,000,000.

'Point' Nice $11,000 In Denver; 'Spiral' 8½G, 2d; 'Grimm' Solid 13G, 9th

Denver, Oct. 9.

Trade at arty houses and a couple of other spots is outstanding here this frame. "The Connection" is rated big at the tiny Capri while "Sky Above" looks lofty in third round at Esquire. "Brothers Grimm" still is solid in ninth session at the Cooper.

"World of Comedy" is rated okay on opener at the 750-seat Crest. "Pressure Point," also a newie, looms nice in first at Paramount. "Damn the Defiant" shapes slow in second at Orpheum. "Spiral Road" looks fairish in second at the Centre.

Estimates for This Week

Aladdin (Fox) (900; $1.25)—"3 Coins In Fountain" (20th) and "Love Is Splendored Thing" (20th) (reissues). Good $4,500. Last week, "Boccaccio 70" (Embassy) (6th wk) with "Breakfast at Tiffany's" (Par) (reissue), $3,000.

Carpi Art (Art Theatre Guild) (238; $1.25)—"Connection" (FAW). Big $2,000. Last week, "Viridiana" (Indie) (m.o.), $900.

Centre (Fox) (1,270; $1.25-$1.45) —"Spiral Road" (U) (2d wk). Fair $8,500. Last week, $11,000.

Cooper (Cooper) (814; $1.65-$2.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Stout $13,000. Last week, $12,500.

Crest (Wolfberg) (750; $1.25)—"World of Comedy" (Cont). Okay $3,000. Last week, "Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA) (m.o.) (2d wk), $3,200.

Denham (Indie) (800; $1.25-$2.50) —"West Side Story" (UA) (23d wk). So-so $3,000 in 6 days. Last week, $5,000.

Denver (Fox) (2,432; $1.25) — "Tartars" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM). Fair $9,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) and "Proud and Profane" (Par) (reissues), $10,000.

Esquire (Fox) (600; $1.25)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) and "No Place Like Homicide" (Indie) (m.o.) (3d wk). Tall $2,900. Last week, $2,800.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,690; $1.25)— "Damn the Defiant" (Col) and "Shootout at Big Sag" (Indie) (2d wk). Slow $5,000. Last week, $5,000.

Paramount (Wolfberg) (2,100; 90-$1.25)—"Pressure Point" (UA) and "Happy Theives" (UA). Nice $11,000 or near. Last week, "Marco Polo" (AI) and "Force of Impulse" (Indie), $11,500.

Towne (Indie) (600; $1.25-$1.45) —"It Happened in Athens" (Indie) and "Loves of Salambo" (Indie). Sad $1,700. Last week, "Flame in the Streets" (Indie) (2d wk), $1,500.

Doug Netter's Col Chore

L. Douglas Netter Jr. is resigning as exec veep of Astor Pictures to head up special sales unit working on Sam Spiegel's upcoming Col hardticketer, "Lawrence of Arabia." He'll be working with Col sales veep Rube Jackter.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 8)

(Man) (reissues) (1st wk), $5,000.

Iris (FWC) (825; $1.25-$1.49)—"Carry On, Teacher" (Gov) and "Doctor in Love" (Ind) (reissues) (m.o.). Okay $3,800.

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $2-$2.40) —"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (2d wk). Swell $6,000. Last week, $7,500.

Los Angeles, Hawaii (Metropolitan-G&S) (2,047; 1,106; $1-$1.25)—"Convicts 4" (AA) and "Payroll" (AA) (2d wk). Listless $6,400.

Warner Beverly (SW) (1,316; $1.49-$1.75)—"Anna Karenina" (MGM) (reissue) (2d wk). Slow $4,000. Last week, $4,700.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.50-$2)—"Gigi" (MGM) and "Les Girls" (MGM) (reissues) (2d wk). Mild $4,000. Last week, $4,500.

Baldwin, El Rey (State-FWC) (1,800; 856; 90-$1.50)—"Hatari" (Par) and "My eisha" (Par) (m.o.). Fine $8,000. Last week, Baldwin, "Touch of Mink" (U), "Breakfast at Tiffany's" (Par) (reissues), $3,500.

Crest (State) (750; $2)—"Matter of Who" (Herts) (5th wk). Poor $2,500. Last week, $3,000.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $1.25-$1.50)—"Three Coins in Fountain" (20th) and "Love Is Splendored Thing" (20th) (reissues) (4th wk). Slow $2,500. Last week, $5,000.

Vogue (FWC) (810; $1.25-$1.49) —"Sky Above" (Embassy) (7th wk). Good $4,000. Last week, $3,200.

Warner Hollywood (SW) (1,291; $1.25-$2.80)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Boffo $21,000. Last week, same.

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $1.75-$2.65)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Solid $19,500 or near. Last week, $20,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631; $1.49-$2) —"Boccaccio 70" (Embassy) (11th wk). Snappy $5,000. Last week, $6,000.

Beverly (State) (1,150; $1.49-$2) —"Lolita" (MGM) (16th wk). Nice $4,500. Last week, $5,500.

Lido (FWC) (876; $2)—"Taste of Honey" (Cont) (18th wk). Slow $2,500. Last week, $3,500.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.25-$3.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (43d wk). Boffo $20,000. Last week, $18,000.

'Point' Dull 11G, Philly; 'Grimm' 13G

Philadelphia, Oct. 9

Not much activity here this stanza, with longruns dwindling as exhibs wait for a new product boost. "A Very Private Affair" is just okay on opener at Stanton while "Pressure Point" shapes weak on initialer at Fox. "Brothers Grimm" shapes big in 11th session at the Boyd. Elsewhere, biz is mainly offish.

Estimates for This Week

Areadia (S&S) (622; $1.20-$1.80) —"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (8th wk). Quiet $3,300. Last week, $4,000.

Boyd (SW) (1,536; $2-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (11th wk). Holding at big $13,000. Last week, ditto.

Fox (Milgram) (2,200; 95-$1.80)—"Pressure Point" (UA). Weak $11,000 or near. Last week, "Panic in Year Zero" (AL), $9,000.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,000; $1.20-$1.80)—"Sayonara" (WB) (reissues). Dull $4,500. Last week, "Trojan Horse" (Indie), $5,000.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,200; $2.50-$2.75)—"West Side Story" (UA) (48th wk). Nice $5,500 in last six days. Last week, $6,000.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,200; $1.20-$1.80)—"Interns" (Col) (7th wk). Neat $6,000. Last week, $7,000.

Stanley (SW) (2,100; 95-$2)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Nice $10,000. Last week, $11,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 95-$1.80)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM). Okay $10,000 or close. Last week, "Sky Above" (Embassy) (2d wk), $9,500.

Studio (Goldberg) (383; 95-$180) —"Lucky Pierre" (Indie) and "Have Figure Will Travel" (Indie) (2d wk). Hep $4,500. Last week, $7,000.

Trans-Lux (T-L) (500; 95-$2)—"Lolita" (MGM) (16th wk). Hot $5,000 in final week. Last week, $4,000.

Viking (Sley) (1,000; 95-$1.80)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) (3d wk). Slim $5,000. Last week, $5,500.

World (R&B-Pathe) (499; 95-$1.80—"Best of Enemies" (Col) Trim $3,900. Last week, "Matter of Who" (Herts) (2d wk), $2,600.

'Barabbas' Mighty 47G, Tops Toronto; 'Toreadors' Tall 13G, 'Galahad' 32G

Sheds Film Lease When Elected Town's Mayor

Fairmont, Minn., Oct. 9.

Having been elected mayor of this town, John Brandenhoff decided it wouldn't be proper for him to continue as lessee of the Nicholas, the only film theatre here.

Accordingly, Brandenhoff disposed of the theatre to the Stillwater Amusement Co. circuit. The latter signed a 10-year lease for the showhouse with its owner, Charles Nicholas.

Cimex Sells Package Of 9 Pix to Unnamed American Distributor

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

Luis Anciola, head of Cimex, official distributorship in charge of the U.S. and European market, said the firm has sold nine pictures to an unspecified American firm.

Films include "Diana the Huntress," "Santa Claus," "The Smile of the Virgin," "The Swords of the Queen," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Little Red Riding Hood Against the Monsters," "Puss In Boots," "Little Red Riding Hood and Her Three Friends" and "Lost Paradise."

Films are to be dubbed in English at the buyer's expense for exclusive exploitation in U.S. Cimex reserves the rights for England and other English speaking markets. Exploitation of Spanish language versions in U.S. foreign language houses is also reserved by Cimex.

Meanwhile, the National Association of Actors claims it has put the damper on an alleged plan by Columbia to ship American actors to Mexico to do English sound tracks for a group of films the firm will release in the U.S.

For unexplained reasons Anciola refused to reveal the name of American firm buying the films. Local Columbia office refused to comment on matter.

'Spartans' Lean $7,000, St. Loo; 'Town' Hot 10G

St. Louis, Oct. 9.

Not many newcomers here this session, and few of them are getting far. "Operation Snatch" is rated good at the bandbox Shady Oak but "300 Spartans" looms light on opener at the St. Louis. "Damon and Pythias" shapes slow on first at State. "Two Weeks in Another Town" looks good in second at Esquire. "Pigeon That Took Rome" still is fast in second at the Fox.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 90-$1.25)—"Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Good $8,000 or close. Last week, $9,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Shoot Piano Player" (Indie). Okay $2,000. Last week, "Never Let Go" (Indie), $2,500.

Esquire (Schuchart-Levin) (1,800; 90-$1.25)—"Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (2d wk). Good $10,000 or near. Last week, $12,000.

Fox (Arthur) (5,000; 90-$1.25)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) (2d wk). Fast $14,000. Last week, $17,000.

Loew's Mid-City (Loew) (1,160; 60-90)—"Interns" (Col) (m.o.) (3d wk). Okay $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90) — "Damon and Pythias" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM). Lean $8,000. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM) (2d wk), $8,500.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 90-$1.25) — "I Like Money" (20th). Nice $3,000. Last week, "Judgment at Nuremberg" (UA) (14th wk), $3,500.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,800; 75-90) —"300 Spartans" (20th) and "It Happened in Athens" (20th). Slight $7,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) and "Detective Story" (Par) (reissues) (2d wk), $7,500.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (760; 90-$1.25)—"Operation Snatch" (Cont). Good $3,500. Last week, "Carry On Teacher" (Indie) (2d wk), $2,500.

Toronto, Oct. 9.

North American preem of "Barabbas" is off to a socko weekend start playing the Carlton. "Pigeon That Took Rome," is solid at Imperial. "Waltz of Toreadors" shapes fancy at the University. "Kid Galahad" is rated fine playing seven houses. This new product was launched for Thanksgiving here which is some four weeks ahead of America's.

Of the holdovers, "My Geisha," in second stanza, is lively. "The Interns," in third frame, is doing swell.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton (Rank) (2,318; $1.25-$2.25) — "Barabbas" (Col). Boffo with turnaways at $47,000. Last week, "Touch of Mink" (U) (9th wk), at $1-$1.50, $10,000.

Century, Downtown, Glendale, Midtown, Odeon, Scarboro, State (Taylor) (1,342; 1,059; 995; 1,082; 752; 682; 696; 50-$1)—"Kid Galahad" (UA) and "Clown and Kid" (UA). Fine $32,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Broken Land" (20th), $31,000.

Danforth, Humber, Hyland (Rank) (1,328; 1,203; 1,357; $1-$1.50)—"Interns" (Col) (3d wk). Wow $18,000. Last week, $22,000.

Eglinton (FP) (918; $1.50-$2.75) —"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). Good $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.50) — "My Geisha" (Par) (2d wk). Strong $9,000. Last week, $11,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,216; $1-$1.75)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Big $15,000. Last week, "Notorious Landlady" (Col) (5th wk), at combo Capitol and Imperial, $9,000 in 5 days.

International (Taylor) (557; $1-$1.25)—"Stowaway in Sky" (UA) (2d wk). Sad $2,500. Last week, $3,000.

Loew's (Loew) (1,641; $1-$1.50) —"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues) (2d wk). Hefty $9,500. Last week, $10,000.

Tivoli (FP) (935; $1.50-$2.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (21st wk). Healthy $7,500. Last week, ditto.

Towne (Taylor) (693; 90-$1.25)—"Sky Above" (IFD) (4th wk). Splendid $6,500. Last week, same.

University (FP) (1,393; $1-$1.50) —"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont). Fancy $13,000. Last week, "Guns of Darkness" (WB), $9,000.

Uptown (Loew) (2,250; $1-$1.50) —"Magnificent Obsession" (U) (reissue). Fair $8,500. Last week, "Hero's Island" (UA), $5,000.

Set 5th World Review Of Film Fests For Mex.

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

Invitation to the fifth World Review of Film Festivals have been sent out by the Film Bureau via the Dept. of Foreign Relations. Allegedly some pictures are already on the way.

Hollywood's contribution is "West Side Story" and "Birdman of Alcatraz." Both United Artists releases.

Brazil's entry is "The Payer of Promises," winner of the Gold Palm at Cannes, directed by ex-actor Anselmo Duarte.

Italian films include: "Numbered Days" of Elio Petre; "The Island" of Arturo de Damiano Domicini and "Familiar Chronicle" of Valerio Zurlini.

The Greek entry is "Electra." Russia plans to send "The Infancy of Ivan" by Audrey Tardovski. Mexico's entry definitely is "Tlayucan," the Antonio Matouk production which won a prize for best screen adaptation at Karlovy Vary; and Luis Bunuel's "The Exterminating Angel."

A selection of the French entry is to be made from among nine prize winners. England will probably send "A Taste of Honey."

Only 10 countries will participate in the event this year, including Argentina, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Italy, Russia, England, the U.S. and Mexico.

According to the Bureau, if difficulties prevent the sending of especially invited films, respective governments are authorized to make changes. Only regulation being that entries must have obtained an international prize. A slot is also open for prize winner of the San Francisco Festival.

Little Messages to Film Producers

COUNTING BLUENOSES

In 1907 the bluenoses raised so much fuss over Richard Strauss' opera, "Salome," that the Metropolitan Opera faced a national scandal.

In 1908 New York's Mayor G. B. McClelland was forced by reformers to close all film theatres on Sundays.

In 1910 the San Francisco board of censors summarily banned 32 films as unfit for public exhibition.

In 1922 reform agitation against films (and the private lives of certain actors) forced the industry to set up the "Hays Office" to cope with the problem.

In 1927 a clamor arose to purge the legitimate stage of Broadway.

In 1935 the Women's National Radio Committee blew up such a hullabaloo that CBS blossomed out with "new program policies"

And today — well, today, the war of values goes on. Almost any issue of VARIETY is replete with news stories about bluenoses and reformers, and often enough with the same kind of absurd aftermaths which marked earlier events.

After the 1907 "Salome" whoopdedo at the Met Opera, vaudeville burst forth with a rash of "Salome" dancers. After the Sabbatarian crackdown of 1908, theatre operators reopened on Sundays with educational films. Unfortunately showmen have ever since played down educational films like the week before Christmas—a result the reformers had not intended.

The foregoing little recital of forgotten incidents, culled from VARIETY, serves, as a reminder that we have been reporting the news of show business for a very long time now. In the process of digging, collating, clarifying and relating facts, pertaining to the whole area of entertainment, VARIETY has become accepted as the primary source of basic information on amusements.

Coincidentally, there has been, from the outset, a recognition of the advertising value implicit in paid display space placed alongside the lively, realistic, bunk-free accounts which are the stock-in-trade of

VARIETY

The Trade Weekly for Telling Selling

Irwin Shaw—Writer To Producer

Paris-Based Writer Is Producing His First Pic, Director Robt. Parrish Partnered in Col Deal

By GENE MOSKOWITZ

Paris, Oct. 9.

Noted Yank writer, Irwin Shaw, a longtime Paris resident, has turned pic producer for the first time. He is enjoying the new chore and intends to do it more often, but only once every two years since he can not write while producing. His new effort is a self-scripted pic version of two of his short stories called "In the French Style" which stars Jean Seberg and Stanley Baker and is being directed by Robert Parrish.

Shaw, who has won awards for his short stories, penned plenty of best sellers, and has a few solid plays to his credit, has rarely been happy in his pic writing jobs. He has removed his name, or tried to, from several pix he scripted and is now giving himself the acid test, namely disproving to himself that he may have been wrong in fighting alterations in his scripts. He does not deny having made changes during the shooting of "Style," but he maintains that at least he is altering his own work and it still keeps the same style and balance that only one man, the one who conceived it, can give. Up to now he has usually run into rewrites against his will or without knowing about them. The problem, to him, seems to be that most directors are primarily frustrated writers.

With Parrish, partnered in Casanna Productions, the work setup has Shaw writing, and producing, Parrish directing. Of course they talk over plot points and Shaw has written additional scenes for good actors or to smooth out a characterization. He recommends that more writers turn producer, but as for direction he, for one, finds he does not have the aptitude for it and has no hankering to try his hand.

Package Deal

Shaw is also content with the package deal he has made with Columbia. He and Parrish have deferred their takes, except for some expenses, have complete freedom in making the pic and also get the final cut. Columbia puts up the coin, well below $1,000,000, says he, and gets a finished pic with a percentage deal for himself and Parrish.

With Hollywood working this way, Shaw states that they will be getting more original pix without the factory finished quality that usually comes when the studio has the last cut. It is a good gamble to him and if it does not pan out it is his fault, but at least his name on the credits will mean he had had his writing say in the matter.

Shaw, who intends living on here, has an article called "Paris in the Winter" in the December Holiday and will also produce a video spec documentary on the subject via his new company.

He says that this pic has been a satisfactory experience so far and he hopes to do others in the same manner. But he has a play coming to Broadway later this season, "Children From Their Games," which Roger Stevens is producing and which takes first priority. Any future scripting will have to include the producers job as well, but he will naturally have no control over properties bought by other companies.

"Style" began shooting Aug. 27 and has an eight week shooting sked around Paris, Southern France and in the Paris Billancourt Studios. Director Parrish is delighted with working conditions and would like to do other pix here.

Toho's 6 Mos. Net

Tokyo, Oct. 9.

Toho's total revenue for the period Feb. 1 through July 31, 1962 was $16,829,000 of which $1,792,000 were profits. Dividends totaled 25% including 15% regular, 5% special, and another 5% in commemoration of the company's 30th anni.

A meeting of the directors elected Tatsuro Matsuoka to succeed Hireo Sato as board chairman. Iwao Mori and Takeo Mabuchi were elected vice presidents and Kuzuo Kikutt and Masumi Fujimoto managing directors.

Paris Premiere of 'West' Draws Spanish Exhibs

Madrid, Oct. 9.

Showcase exhibitors from five key Spanish cities joined Metro and United Artists toppers and four ranking executives of Cinerama in a junket to the Paris world premire last week of "How the West Was Won" (MG).

Playing host were Jose Arquer, president of CINESA (Cinerama concessionaire in Spain), Alfredo Matas, general manager, Valentin Toscas and Maximiliano Garcia, board members of CINESA.

Distribs included Cesar Alba, Metro rep, Joseph Goltz, UA rep and Casimiro Bori, head of CB Films of UA franchise company.

Exhibs were represented by Rafael Mateos for Sevilla, Emilio Pechuan for Valencia and Francisco Parra for Zaragoza. Arquer and Matas doubled as exhibs for the two cinerama sites operating in Madrid and Barcelona.

Rounding out the junketers were Ribeiro Belga and Americo Covoes, from Lisbon.

'West Was Won' Given Wild West Sendoff in Paris; Cinerama Lauded

Paris, Oct. 9.

Big gala nights are being handed Paris firstnighters these days by Yank producers. After the preem and party for "The Longest Day" (20th) on Sept. 25, a private preem Tuesday (2) night of the Metro-Cinerama coproduction, "How the West Was Won," at the L'Empire-Abel Gance, was followed by a giant party in true old west style.

Exhibs from all over Europe plus Cinerama and Metro Continental reps, and a task force from the U. S. headed by Cinerama prexy Nicholas Reisini and "West" producer Bernard Smith, and a batch of Continental Press people, crammed the theatre for a preem of the better than two-hour epic without subtitles.

Though estimated that only 10% to 15% of the audience had a good English flair, the film won applause throughout for its visual beauty and derring-do as well as its stars. Then a party was put on in the Cinerama Restaurant in the confines of a big room which is to retain its wild west decor as a sort of oater Disneyland for kids and adults.

Saloons, old banks and landscapes dotted the room with a series of stages that housed many bands, acts and well rehearsed knockabout fights plus a stripease. The latter was for one night only. Festivities went on till dawn.

A short consensus showed that visitors felt the storytelling potentialities of the Cinerama process had reached a peak, and also that those dividing lines on the three panel screens were just about invisible.

Also present was a VIP group from United Artists which will utilize Cinerama on two forthcoming pix. The actual "West" world preem is at the Casino Theatre, London on Nov. 1. The film press and trade people at the "West" preem also were joined by Culture Minister Andre Malraux, a bevy of stars and French names from all walks of show biz and diplomatic channels.

Embassy's Morey Marcus To N.Y. for H.O. Confabs

London, Oct. 9.

Morey Marcus, Embassy's foreign sales manager, who has been setting up his h.q. in London, returned to New York last Thursday (4) for urgent confabs with prexy Joseph E. Levine and executive v.p. Lenny Lightstone.

Levine and Lightstone, who had been visiting Europe, had intended to come to London to see Marcus after their Paris and Rome stopovers, but a last-minute change of plans necessitated their immediate return to their New York h.q. Marcus was, therefore, recalled to New York for discussions, but is expected to return to London in the near future.

Exit Alberto Reig

Madrid, Oct. 2.

Continuing the clean sweep of key entertainment and information posts in the Ministry of Information, Alberto Reig was relieved as director of the official Spanish newsreel agency, No-Do, and replaced by Manuel Garcia Vinolas.

Reig had over 20 years of service with No-Do when the shift took place. Sworn in by the Undersecretary of Information, new director Garcia Vinolas founded the first National Dept. of Motion Pictures and Theatre under the Franco regime in Burgos some 25 years ago. He was later assigned as cultural attache in Brazil and Portugal and has also directed documentary films. One of these, "Wedding in Castile," won honors at a Venice film festival.

Berlin's 12th Cultural Festival Winds With No 'Crisis' B.O. Drop

Berlin, Oct. 9.

West Berlin's 12th Cultural Festival ended today with no lack of talent or patrons due to the continuing political crisis. Hotel beds have been in very short supply and the number of outside newsmen covering the event has been around 200 from the fest's inception on Sept. 23. This is approximately the same number that covered the proceedings last year.

The highlight of the first festival week was Hans Werner Henze's opera, "Elegy for Two Young Lovers opened at the Deutsche Opera. It's always unusual when a modern opera clicks right away, but that's what this one did, and it was a personal triumph for the 35 year-old Henze, Germany's most successful contemporary composer. In addition to composing, he also staged, and provided the settings and costumes for the production.

London's Royal Ballet scored heavily in its six day guest stint and the ensemble, headed by Svetlana Beriosova and Donald Macleary, were especially well-received.

In line with the festivals tradition, drama was again heavily accented. Willi Schmidt's treatment of two Kafka pieces, "A Report for the Academy," and "In the Convict Settlement," were outstanding. Schmidt's versions were experimental and he hired composer Erwin Hartung, conductor Richard Kraus, choreographer Tatjana Gsovsky, plus two of Berlin's best-known actors, Ernst Deutsch and Klaus Kammer to portray the leads. Reactions varied, but it was the most talked about entry in the legit portion of the festival.

Of the guest groups, the Municipal Theatre of Frankfurt clicked with Heinrich Von Kleist's classical "Penthesilea." Henrich Koch staged and star, Lola Muethel, won acclaim for her portrayal.

Two French performers scored heavily. Juliette Greco got good reaction to her Gaelic warblings and Zizi Jeanmaire's show at the Deutschlandhalle was well-received.

Resignations Plague Mex Assn. of Indie Exhibs

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

Blas Lopez Fandos and the group heading up the production division of the National Assn. of Independent Exhibitors have resigned en masse.

The Association had earlier announced an ambitious program of 30 films, authorized by the Dept. of State. According to inside sources project was the casualty of a lot of good will, too many divergent views on production plans, and very little money.

Initial plan had been to raise $400,000 via levies on exhibitors. Only a small part of this money was raised and just one picture made.

Juan Lance, head of the Association, insists that a reorganization is planned within the Association framework. After that a statement will be made whether or not independents will continue with plans to produce pictures.

With production plans lagging since the closing months of 1961, it will take both money and forceful direction to reactivate the industry.

International Sound Track

London

Terry-Thomas back from Hollywood to take up his role in Walter Shenson's comedy satire on the Russo-American space race, "The Mouse on the Moon." After he finishes this chore, he will return to America to complete his work on "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." Incidentally, Margaret Rutherford, who has a role in "Mouse," is leaving the cast of "The School for Scandal," now running at the Haymarket, next Saturday (13) . . . American actor, Thomas Aldredge, now playing in "The Premise," at the Comedy Theatre, says that he and other members of the cast hope to shoot a feature, "The Troublemaker," in New York and London for two months, starting this month. It will be produced and directed by "Premise" star, Theodore J. Flicker . . . Tutte Lemkow cast for a feature role in Carl Foreman's "The Victors," now filming at Shepperton studios. He will play a Sikh soldier in a sequence with Vincent Edwards and Rosanna Schiaffino . . . Stirling Moss's manager, Ken Gregory, signed as technical advisor on racing sequences on the Mirisch-Barbican production "Summer Flight," now rolling at Shepperton, with Susan Hayward. It's for UA release . . . A Pathe News unit is filming the Independence celebrations in Uganda in Technicolor . . . Cliff Richard who left for the U.S. last week on a pa. tour, has written "Big News," which he sings in his latest Elstree musical, "Summer Holiday."

Paris

Jean-Luc Godard, says that he never has script trouble for he is never interested in depicting situations but only the interior aspects of his characters. His latest, "Live Her Life," which copped a prize at the recent Venice Fest, opened to solid reviews, and probably good biz. It is about a series of incidents in the life of a girl who slips into prostitution but only lends herself to others and gives herself only to herself . . . The Paramount firstrun release setup here of three theatres getting two more added, Montroug and Bosquet, both Gaumont houses, for the coming releases of "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance." "The Counterfeit Traitor" and "Hatari" . . . Actor Charles Vanel celebrating his 50th year in pix and his 20th film on his presently shooting "An Honorable Young Man" being directed by Jean-Pierre Melville . . . William Wyler's daughter, Catherine, working as a production assistant on "In the French Style" (Col) a Yank pic starring Jean Seberg, being directed by Robert Parrish and produced by Irwin Shaw here . . . Film mag chronicler Gilbert Guez publishing his first novel "The Multiplication Table" . . . After one year newsreels are now again part of film programs in Algeria . . . A Yugoslav pic "The Signal," a war thriller, getting a firstrun release only in a dubbed English version with French titles. Leo Lax dubbed and is releasing . . . Anouk Aimee slated for a legit return, after many pic chores, opposite Curt Jurgens in a French theatrical version of the Yank legiter "The Far Country." It is due in December.

Ingrid Bergman to do a pic with Swedish namesake director Ingmar to be based on a play by the late Swedish playwright Hijalmar Bergman called "Ingeborg." This Bergman bonanza will be after she does Hendrik Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" in French at the Theatre De Paris in December and her two slated, but postponed, 20th-Fox pix, "Promise of Dawn" and "The Visit". . . . Pic director Denys De La Patelliere, now does one with an unknown Belgian actress Monique Bertho based on her true adventures in Paris. Called "Pourquoi Paris," it has real taped talks she had in her attempts to find her way at various jobs in Paris. It is all being shot on the spot with many non-actors . . . "Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy" (Col) finishing a four month run at one firstrun and then in to two houses for a prolonged run.

Rome

Gina Lollobrigida signed for an episode opposite Jean Paul Belmondo in Renato Castellani's upcoming "Mare Matto" (Mad Sea), being produced this fall by Cineriz . . . she follows up with "Il Disgelo" (The Thaw), with Richard Burton being paged as her partner under Franco Rossi's direction . . . Columbia's "Gidget Goes to Rome" to be shot here in a few weeks time . . . according to producer Enrico Bomba, quoted locally, Jayne Mansfield to shoot India-located hunting pic for him, followed by "Italian Lover," slated for local lensing.

George Paul Solomos' "Echo in the Village" will be screened at Frisco Festival this fall . . . 25-minute short was shot near Rome by an all-American outfit. Solomos' "Natika," with John Barrymore Jr. may also make fest . . . "Il Mare," Italo pic directed by Patroni Griffi, reps Italy at Canary Island "young director" festival, which starts Nov. 15 . . . Monica Vitti shooting her first pic in a while sans her usual mentor, Michelangelo Antonioni: "The Hare and the Tortoise," directed by Alessandro Blasetti . . . 256-man "The Leopard" unit now shooting at Ariccia, near Rome.

Steven Garrett of Rome English Language Dubbing group (ELDA) wound recording stint on Anglo version of "Mondo Cane" (Cineriz) . . . in new Italo censorship move, all information relative to controversial features will be sent to courts presiding over areas in which pic had its first run in Italy.

Tokyo

Italian film "Mondo Cane," distributed here by Towa scored smash $233,000, in first two weeks of dates at Sacala-za here and three theatres in Osaka . . . After escorting prez MGM Joe Vogel on Far East swing, Metro v.p. Seymour Mayer winged back to New York. He'll return in November with veeps Robert O'Brien and Maurice Silverstein . . . "The Judo Tree" (AA) slated to roll here last month with Sessue Hayakawa and Pat Suzuki, has been postponed. Producer-director Dennis Kane returned to N.Y. . . . "Lolita" (MGM) only okay at Hibiya despite personals by Sue Lyon . . . Theatre Tokyo being remodeled for Nov. 12 opening of "How West Was Won" . . . Towa prez Nagamasa Kawakita returned from Europe where he attended Venice Fest and screened potential imports . . . Buena Vista prez Ned Clarke and wife visited.

Harold Lloyd due in mid-November to bally "World of Comedy" (Col) . . . To cash in on Vince Edward's fame here from "Ben Casey" telecasts, Columbia dusted off "Murder by Contract" which the then unknown Edwards made four years ago, for first release in this market . . . "West Side Story" (UA) continues fantastic at Piccadilly, It grossed more in 36th week than in opening stanza . . . After operating for many months without a publicity section, 20th-Fox local office restored drumbeating department . . . "The Innocents" (20th-Fox) in strong early showing at Miyuki-za, with some patrons bewildered by film's inconclusive ending. One girl asked manager if there would be a sequel . . . "Can-Can" (Fox) had another roadshow, this time at Togeki, in order to promote film for subsequent releases. Biz was so-so. Picture was originally shown here at Piccadilly in 70m a coupla years ago.

Charlton Heston will make publicity tour of Nippon for about 10 days from Dec. 14 to bally "Diamond Head" (Col) . . . Peer Oppenheimer back for 10 days. He's doing interviews for his "Here's Hollywood" NBC-TV show with Yul Brynner, Richard Widmark and George Chakiris from the "Flight from Ashiya" locations in Kyoto and also additional spadework on his projected "Kelly-san" tv series, which may have its pilot lensed here next spring . . . "Hell Is for Heroes" (Para) did strong biz at New Toho . . . Towa will import 70m "Antarctic" from Russia for release next summer . . . Disney's "101 Dalmations" did terrific over $555,000 in first 38 days in Nippon keys. Together with roadshows of "Moon Pilot" and general release of "Parent Trap," Disney had very strong summer.

Inside Stuff—International

Japan's top stage actor, Kanbi Fujiyama, earned $40,000 last year, but his film counterpart, Okawa made double that, reports Financial Post (Toronto) in a special section on Japanese industry. A popular author, Seicho Matsumoto, however, was reported by tax authorities to have made $180,000—with a 62% tax bite. His nearest rival, Keita Genji, made $125,000. Tokyo nightclub hostesses earned up to $10,000 each in 1961, the report adds, and many are actually on company payrolls.

The German-French amity, after the recent Adenauer-De Gaulle confabs, has also been intensified on cultural basis. In particular, this applies to the import of French stage plays into (West) Germany. Hans Woelffer, the director of West Berlin's Komoedie, points up that he started this French-German rapport already earlier referring to the fact that five of the last six items performed at his theatre were of French origin: Robert Thomas "Eight Femmes," Francoise Sagan's "Castle in Sweden," Alexandre Breffort's "Irma La Douce," Marcel Achard's "L'Idiote" and a guest performance of the Freres Jacques.

European Film Industries Committee Talks Taxes, Aid at Paris Meet

Paris, Oct. 9.

The meeting here this week of the Committee of European Film Industries, made up of members from distribution, production and technical organizations of the Common Market countries, discussed two pressing objectives deemed necessary before the film industry can function easily under the ECM.

Main problem was to devise a plan that could lead to the abolition of all national taxes on film grosses, and the replacing of federal film aid (mainly France and Italy via percentage rebates on local and foreign grosses) by an overall common market aid fund whose coffers would be filled from a small admission tax at all ECM theatres.

It is understood that ECM exhibs may go along with the CEFI if they can get a tax reduction which would swell their takes. And tax reduction also looms as the main problem. Right now, France has a 25% tax on grosses, Italy 20%, Belgium and Luxembourg 18.5% and West Germany 8%. Britain, which may come into the ECM, has no tax on grosses anymore.

Germany has the best of it, but if Britain joins there may be further troubles since their industry has said it wants to be a part of the setup only if Britain maintains a film quita, the Eady Plan, and production aid. So with Britain's membership imminent, and Germany with practically no taxes, the CEFI will push hard to get the other ECM countries in line.

Another problem is that Italy and France deem aid essential and want a fast agreement for overall ECM aid. All these problems will be reviewed in Brussels to see how they fit in with the basic industrial outlook of the Treaty of Rome.

So this meeting is grappling with these problems and promises concrete results soon. Additionally, the questions of greater coproduction and better quota exchanges between ECM members are also being discussed.

The Grosses

Figures show that West German pix gross $75,000,000 yearly at home, $5,000,000 in France, $4,000,000 in Italy and $9,000,000 in the Benelux countries.

France takes $18,000,000 in Germany, $70,000,00 at home, $5,000,000 in Italy and $10,000,000 in the Benelux area.

Italy gets $12,000,000 in Germany, $5,000,000 in France, $83,000,000 at home and $1,500,000 in Benelux. The latter shows about $1,400,000 on home grounds.

The U.S. gross in these countries: $70,000,000 from Germany, $39,000,000 from France $85,000,000 from Italy and $20,000,000 from Benelux. Naturally American film makers are watching to see if ECM quotas will effect them or if new taxes may make them support overall production. Many Yanks think a healthy Common Market means more room for all films. The growing U.S. investments in ECM productions also bodes well for distribution.

Toho's Theatre Deals

Tokyo, Oct. 9.

Toho will begin construction of a new film house in Honolulu opposite the Shirokiya Dept. Store early next year. The company is also negotiating for an art theatre in the Times Square district of N.Y. for opening next year and for another in San Francisco. With the LaBrea Theatre in Los Angeles, acquisitions would give Toho four houses on U.S. soil.

Donald Flamm's Coprod.

London, Oct. 9.

Donald Flamm has departed London after completing preliminary negotiations for a coproduction with Ben Arbeid which is regarded as a pilot venture and the forerunner of further projects in the years ahead.

The initial property is "The Gilt Merchant" by Ronald Harwood, which is to be published by Jonathan Cape in London in the New Year and which will be issued in the U.S. later in 1963.

Harwood, who is to write the screenplay, left for Copenhagen over the weekend with Casper Wrede, who is assigned to direct the film, and they will stay there until they have a finished shooting script. No casting has yet been set, but a distribution deal will be finalized at a later date with a major company.

Italian Cinema Biz Perking Up

Rome, Oct. 9.

The Italian boxoffice picture is perking after a slow summer-fall transition period.

"Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (Par) is currently the far-front leader in the national first-run race. "Bird Man of Alcatraz" (UA-Dear) is coming up fast to give Dear Films runnerup status while Titanus is in the top brackets mainly cue to the lively showing racked up here by Titanus-Metro's fall entry "Cronaca Familiare" (Family Chronicle). Last named is showing very strongly on its initial Rome exposure.

"Mamma Roma" (Cineriz), and "Una Storia Milanese" (Italian-Paramount), are doing surprising biz in the Italo keys.

The perennial "Gone With the Wind" (MGM) is hitting top averages both on Rome and Milan reissue showings, topping many new pix. "West Side Story" (UA-Dear), is proving an exception to the Italo jinx against Yank-styled musicals, with a fancy figure for its initial Milan screenings.

Huge Vatican Conclave To Be Made Into Color, Documentary Pix Prod.

Rome, Oct. 9.

The Italian communications media is planning fullscale coverage of the Vatican Ecumenical Council, which gets under way here this week.

Local reports are that a feature documentary in color and widescreen will be produced on the massive Vatican gathering, with historical inserts to further illustrate the background of the Church gathering.

Antonio Petrucci is the reported director of the venture, with Diego Fabbri compiling the screenplay. Twenty cameramen would be employed on the projected film, which would be produced using the facilities of the Luce Institute, the same that put together the feature pic on the 1960 Olympic Games.

Also in the Vatican orbit, RAI-TV, the Italo telenet, plans to cast live pickups of the Pope's visits to Loreto and Assisi.

Producer Hits Hard at Mexican Films, 'Can't Compete,' 'No Talent'

By EMIL ZUBRYN

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

In a hard-hitting, realistic statement to the press, Jesus Grovas, veteran producer said that since hit pictures such as "Maria Candelaria," "Hidden River" and "The Pearl," the Mexican industry has been deluding itself if it thinks it can conquer the European market.

Grovas categorically stated that the Mexican industry cannot compete with Hollywood, because it cannot afford multi-million dollar budgets. Nor can it compete with European producers because of a lack of talent and culture. There are no outstanding writers, actors or directors. And producers, who went on the merry-go-round of turning out quickies for the home and Spanish language markets have been caught in their own trap. They were not far-sighted enough to change with the times and adapt new trends. Today quickies are not even well received in nabe houses because of the influx of foreign product.

Forget Europe

Grovas advised the industry to forget about Europe as a base market. Limited sales can be made, and have been made, Grovas admitted, including his own "Sins of Youth" which he sold in Italy. But he denied that he had any thoughts that his film had possibilities in the Italian or other European markets.

Grovas counseled a "feet on the ground" policy in making films for "natural markets," the Spanish language areas. But he stressed that quality levels must be boosted if Mexico is to recoup in these traditional markets.

The Mexican producer said that international rights should bring at least $200,000 to $300,000 dollars. The isolated sales in certain countries for $2-3,000 is not worth the bother, Grovas concluded.

Naturally, a realistic statement such as this opened Grovas to attack by fellow producers, industry executives and federal officials. The hard truth is a bitter pill to swallow and majority of industry here refused to accept it.

The Other Side

Luis Anciola, manager of the official Cimex distributorship, as spokesman for a group taking the opposite view said that while not all material produced in Mexico is saleable abroad a defeatist attitude should not be fostered. While admitting limited financial resources of most producers, Anciola pointed out that this year Cimex has sold 14 films to France; 10 to Germany; five to Italy and in private dickerings outside the official distributorship, 11 films have been sold to Russia, Czechoslovakia, Red China, Thailand and Rumania.

Anciola admitted that sums obtained have not been staggering, but at least the doors have been opened in markets which heretofore have shown no interest in Mexican films. As an example, Anciola cited "Tragic Cabaret," a quickie starring Kitty de Hoyos, which was sold in 17 areas and produced only $33,000.

Actors, directors and writers look askance at Grovas for his alleged slight of their talents, but Grovas stands pat on his ill-received statement, an expression of his personal views. "If the industry does not take stock of itself and make a radical about face and adopt to current conditions, it will face an even more severer crisis" said Grovas.

Stuntmen Vs. Nepotism

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

Mexican stuntmen and stand-ins are again attempting to pressure the National Assn. of Actors to assign them the category of "specialized actors." A group of approximately 15 stuntmen have been holding talks with Rodolfo Landa, ANDA head, presenting their point of view. They don't want to form a separate section, since they are members in good standing of the union. But what stuntmen want is similar deal to the one effecting choreographers who obtain displacement pay in event other persons are contracted in their place.

Currently stuntmen are given small bit parts in exchange for undertaking difficult scenes for stars. Actually stuntmen get no pay for taking risks.

Main beef is that stars take relatives or friends for scenes that are not too risky. What they seek is elimination of these relatives who cut in on their earnings.

Next BFPA Prez To Be Appointed From Membership

London, Oct. 9.

As predicted in VARIETY, the British Film Producers Association has decided to appoint a voluntary president from among its own members, to replace Arthur Watkins, who will be retiring at the end of the year. This decision was taken at the Association's monthly executive meeting last Wednesday (3) and the appointment is expected to be made when the council holds its next monthly sesh on Nov. 7.

Though there is a month to go before the appointment is made, it is being confidently predicted in local trade circles that Robert Clark, a director of Associated British Picture Corp. will be invited to take the chair.

He was president of the Association for some time prior to the appointment of the first paid prez, Sir Henry L. French, who had previously been the BFPA's Director-General.

It's common knowledge in the industry that BFPA members are reluctant to make a new paid appointment in the hope that before long a merger will be effected with the Federation of British Film Makers. That get together is a dead duck at the moment, but there is widespread feeling that sooner or later a modus vivendi for an amalgamation, acceptable to both organizations, will be found. The merger, which has been a major talking point for some months past, was negated only a few weeks back by FBFM members after a nine to eight vote in favor of continued talks. That narrow majority was interpreted as not being a mandate for continued discussions.

Italo TV Crix Vote 'Road Back' Top Prize

Rome, Oct. 9.

The $1,600 Premio Marconi, annual Italian video critics award, went to Alessandro Blasetti for his "Lunga Strada del Ritorno" (The Long Road Back), after a tight race with such contenders as Federico Zardi's "Giacobini," Enzo Biagi's "Rofocalco TV," and Dario Fo's "Chi L'ha Visto."

Other "Marconi" awards went to Gianni Bisiach for his lensing of a documentary on the Mafia at Corleone, Sicily; for Biagi's "Ratocalco TV" (recently purchased for the U. S. by ABC), to Alberto Lupo for his commentary to the Blasetti series, and to Emma Nasti for her video reporting in Rome's evening daily, Paese Sera.

Axe the Tax

Sydney, Oct. 2.

The Victoria government will eliminate admission tax covering all cinemas and live theatres as of the first of the year.

All Victorian showmen, with Melbourne the keyer, will benefit from the long-overdue wipeout. Showmen have pleaded with the government for several years to remove the heavy tax burden, pointing out finally two weeks ago that unless the government gave a quick greenlight, many cinemas would be compelled to close.

C'rama Deal For British Theatres

London, Oct. 9.

As a result of confidential negotiations by Nicolas Reisini, both Rank and Associated British Cinemas are to make a limited number of key provincial theatres available for showing Cinerama.

As a first step, deals are being closed in eight situations including, in all probability, two theatres in Birmingham and two in Manchester. Additionally, other houses are to be equipped in Glasgow, Bristol, etc.

These theatre deals will enable Cinerama to show their two current feature attractions in Britain. "How the West Was Won," which had its world preem last week, is due at the Casino Theatre on Nov. 1 and will now be booked into some provincial cities. "The Wonderful World of Brothers Grimm," now current on Broadway, will be shown at the other theatres.

For the time being, Cinerama has only its Casino showcase in London, but negotiations are actively afoot for the acquisition of another theatre to facilitate earlier presentation of "Grimm." Otherwise, it is felt that "Grimm" may be held up for two or three years until "West" has played off.

It is understood that Rank and ABC top execs were invited by Reisini to last week's Paris gala, and the deals were concluded immediately thereafter.

Mex Film Production Crisis Forces Many To Seek Other Jobs

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

As the Mexican motion picture crisis shows no sign of improvement, instead gives evidence of further deterioration, performers are turning to other means of livelihood, at least temporarily.

Singer Lola Beltran has set up a chain of beauty parlors. Ema Arvizu is designing and selling baby clothing, and dresses for expectant mothers. Elmo Michel is an advertising salesman; Octavio Arias sells cooperative apartments and office space.

Mexican performers who formerly had a certain status in the republic, and regular engagements in motion pictures, theatre, night clubs, personal appearance tours and tv now must do a hard sell to latch on to the few existing opportunities.

Stars who have gained a certain amount of recognition outside Mexico's borders are not as badly affected. Thus Silvia Pinal, Pedro Armendariz, Ignacio Lopez Tarso, Katy Jurado, Arturo de Cordova and several dozen others don't feel the pinch as acutely as lesser known personalities. But even for them the pickings are not as rich as in former years.

Technicians and stage hands are also turning to other employment, anything from taxi drivers to government employees. Some are going into business for themselves if they managed to save a bankroll.

There are cautious outcries against the muddled official and industry policy that apparently is leading the industry to the brink of death.

Jorge Duran Chavez, head of the technicians and stage hands section, has been able to place some unemployed union members in Dept. of State government posts.

Floods Drown Fest

Madrid, Oct. 9.

Cloudbursts and floods that took almost 1,000 lives and caused millions of dollars in damage in Barcelona province, brought that city's annual Fiesta to a halt two days after the Sept. 22-Oct. 7 fete got under way.

The overnight calamity brought about postponement of the Int'l Film Congress and limited the Opera House ballet concerts by Antonio and his Spanish dance company to a single, mournful benefit performance.

The entertainment industry in Barcelona, as well as many parts of Spain, shut down tight on Monday (Oct. 1) when the Spanish government decreed a day of mourning for the flood victims.

Time Inc. Joins Mestre, CBS As Proartel Pards

Buenos Aires, Oct. 9.

Time Inc. has acquired an interest in Producciones Argentinas De Television, S. A. (Proartel), it was disclosed today (Tues.) by Goar Mestre, president of Proartel. In acquiring an interest in this company, Time will join with present Argentine stockholders, CBS and Mestre & Asociados in the ownership of the successful television program production organization, which has its studios in Buenos Aires.

Proartel's programs are now seen on Channel 13 in Buenos Aires and Channel 12 in Cordoba, Argentina. They are also being released to all Spanish-speaking countries.

Negotiations were concluded in Buenos Aires at the time of the second anniversary of the founding of Proartel. Present for the anniversary were, in addition to Mestre, Frank Stanton, CBS president; Merle S. Jones, president of CBS Television Stations; Weston C. Pullen Jr., vice-president of Time; and Sig Mickelson, president of Time-Life Broadcast International, Inc.

Mestre & Asociados and CBS are founder-stockholders of Proartel.

Arthur Godfrey's Plugs For Chesterfields Figure In Pitt Cancer-Cig Suit

Pittsburgh, Oct. 9.

Arthur Godfrey was brought into testimony in an important $1,250,000 damage case here as one of the factors that convinced the plaintiff, Otto Pritchard, 64, a Pitt carpenter, that he could smoke Chesterfield cigarettes without suffering harmful effects.

On the witness stand last Thursday (4), Pritchard testified he remembered Godfrey's commercial of several years ago. "Godfrey said that Chesterfields do not harm your nose, throat and accessory organs." Asked by his attorney what he understood the statement to mean, he replied, "My lungs."

While Godfrey is not part of the action, his commercials and others seen on tv will be a important part of the trial. One of the questions asked prospective jurors is if they had ever seen tv programs relating to the connection between lung cancer and smoking.

This is a retrial of Pritchard's earlier case against Liggett and Myers which ended on May 4, 1960 after a month of testimony when Federal Judge John L. Miller granted a directed motion in favor of the tobacco firm and refused to let the case go to the jury.

However, James McArdle, Pritchard's attorney, appealed and the Third Circuit Court of Appeals ordered a new trial.

While Godfrey rated the headlines here and other show personalities will be mentioned as the trial progresses, it is the scientific talent that is the real stars of the show. Medical experts from the United States and England have been brought in to testify for both the plaintiff and defendant. Attorneys for both sides said they expect to call six medical authorities to develop their cases. McArdle has the expert from England.

A rough estimate in legal circles has the trial costing both sides around $250,000 before the case goes to the jury next month and it will be the living testimony of tv, newspaper and mag ads that is expected to be a vital part of the trial. No matter which side wins, the case will almost certainly go to the Circuit Court of Appeals again.

Jean Dalrymple Maps Emily Post TV Skein

Pinafore Productions is a new company formed by legit producer Jean Dalrymple, who has secured tv rights to the Emily Post books, columns and tiles on etiquette.

Company is blueprinting production of a video show titled, "Emily Post Says," which will have a q. and a format on etiquette and good taste.

TV: THE BEST OF GAUCHO

By GEORGE ROSEN

Buenos Aires, Oct. 9.

In the less-than-three-year period since Goar Mestre fled Cuba (he literally was forced to run to the airport with his two children to avoid being slapped in prison by Castro) the ex-"Mr. Television" of Havana has emerged as the undisputed tv giant of Argentine. He did it in exactly the way it's done in any country of the world — by demonstrating anew his unerring instinct as a showman.

Last week marked the second anniversary of the Mestre-sparked Channel 13 (far and away the No. 1 station among the four channels competing for the Buenos Aires audience, with nine of the Top 10 shows; 21 out of the Top 30), plus the second anniversary for Mestre's Producciones Argentinas de Television, S.A. (Proartel), in which Mestre is partnered with CBS and a group of Argentinians, each controlling about one third of the operation.

(Coincident with the second anni observance, negotiations were completed last week whereby Time-Life Broadcasting is also pouring fresh capital into Proartel, as a minority stockholder, with Time-Life's chief broadcast factotums, Wes Pullen and Sig Mickelson on deck for the ceremonies, along with CBS corporate prexy Frank Stanton and Merle Jones, president of CBS International.)

Last week's ceremonies to mark Channel 13's preeminent leadership in Buenos Aires tv was strictly low-key; although it had not originally been planned that way. But this is not a time for major hoopla or untoward rejoicing in Argentine, with the economy at perhaps its lowest ebb (Government employees haven't been paid in the last two months) and in view of the current political unrest (described here as "42 generals shooting craps in the street with loaded dice, winner take all, including the Presidential Palace.") It's a city full of tensions and anxieties for tomorrow, its people bathed in gloom. And that's why, aside from a Mestre-hosted luncheon in honor of Frank Stanton, attended by Buenos Aires' most prominent "hidden persuaders," including publishers, bankers, industrialists, head of agencies, etc., and a cocktail party for all 475 employees at Channel 13, with the awarding of two-year emblems, it was anything but ostentatious.

But the 1,000,000 set owners in this city of 6,000,000 are fully aware of the contributions of Mestre to tv in Argentine—as attested to by the ratings and the billings. (That one-set-for-every-six-persons is one of the amazing Ripleys in the economy here, considering the fact that a tv set cannot be purchased under $300, even as a car costing $1,700 in the U.S. costs $3,500 here, none of which squares with low wage standards and the tough-to-get-a-buck situation prevailing)

But this a city where tv has become more than a way of life — it's a day-in-day-out imperative in helping the people to forget their troubles. Plus the fact that a tv set has become a status symbol. There's hardly a home, no matter how poor the district, that doesn't boast an antenna. But a closer examination discloses that in many instances there's no set to go with the antenna.

Plunged In Darkness

The key to why Buenos Aires is virtually plunged in darkness at night, even in the busiest downtown sectors, is to be found in the people's dedication to tv. A couple months back when fire destroyed a main power plant, the Government threatened to shut down all of tv to economize on electric power—a shutdown or at best a drastic curtailment in service that could have lasted perhaps two years. But tv mobilized its forces and pleaded that power be preserved in other areas than tv. The populace responded pronto with a "save power" campaign, including the darkening of streets and establishments, that rescued tv and permitted for a continued 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. broadcast schedule.

When Mestre began operations here his chief rival (Channel 9) in which NBC, incidentally, has a minority ownership stake) virtually had the play all to itself. There are two other stations, Channel 11 (in which ABC has an investment) and the Government-owned Channel 7.

When Mestre came into the picture Channel 9 had been in operation for several months. It had 100% monopoly on the Top 10 shows—and all vidfilm imports from the U.S. Within a year, Mestre had changed the whole picture. The people wanted to laugh—and Mestre gave them Latino-inspired comedy, music, and more comedy and music. Today it dominates the whole Channel 13 success story. Only one filmed import gets into the Top 10—"Route 66." In the Top 30, only a handful of others get a crack at top viewership — "Hong Kong," "Tightrope," "Naked City," "Laramie," "Untouchables" and "Bonanza." Otherwise everything's locally-produced music and comedy—and it's all live. Channel 13 programs eight hours live every day, its two big studios a whirlwind of activity. It's top comic, No. 1 in the rating sweepstakes with his Friday night half-hour, is Viendo Biondi, with a 50.5 rating last time out as the Argentine counterpart of what Milton Berle was to U.S. tv a decade or better ago.

Ford's "The Falcon Family" situation comedy, the Sunday night Kaiser sponsored musical hour hosted by Antonio Prieto (a combination of Ed Sullivan and Perry Como rolled into one, but which adheres more to a revue-type format; last Sunday's show was a musicalization of an advertising agency and its various media departments); the comicalities of Felipe, or Vervagues, or Dr. Candido, or Taito Bores over on Channel 11—these are the shows they dig the most and they're SRO all the way, with the list of sponsors reading like NBC or CBS in the States—Colgate, the aforementioned Ford and Kaiser, Sterling, P & G, etc.

Daytime Like Nighttime

Daytime is no different than nighttime—the hour "Midday Show," which approximates the Ed Sullivan show, gets them at lunchtime, for most of the people go home for the midday meal and everybody watches. Features films don't go on until 11:30 p.m., until signoff time, which is usually about 1:15 a.m. There's hardly any time allocated for news or public affairs—after all these are the people who are tragically involved in making the news, what they require is entertainment.

The sponsor situation here is quite unique. Scattered throughout the day are 36 station breaks for the slotting of spots, each of three minutes duration. They comprise, 60-second, 40-second 20-second and 10-second commercials (a minute commercial costs $120; 40-second $90; 20-second $60, 10-seconds $30.) A half-hour of prime time (8:30 to 10:30 p.m.) costs $500—but this is only for time, exclusive of programming, with about $300 going to Mestre's Proartel for studio use and facilities and $200 to Channel 13.

Proartel's relation to Channel 13 is in itself revealing. Both are separate and distinct corporations. The Channel 13 owners (under the corporate title Rio de la Plato TV) is wholly-owned Argentine (coincidentally Mestre's wife, an Argentenian, is one of the major shareholders.) On the other hand, Mestre's Producciones Argentinas de Television in which CBS and now Time-Life have a stake) is the operation which feeds the programming to the channel.

But Mestre's ambitions go far beyond Channel 13—actually it's the programming center of an Argentine network, for as new licenses are issued and more stations take to the air, he's acquiring a taped library of live programming to feed the country for years to come. Nor is his present or future endeavors restricted to Argentine. In collaboration with CBS, he's also entrenched in Lima, Peru, (Channel 12) with his Pantel programming operation (as a counterpart of Proartel) and with Colombia and Venezuela about to open up, Mestre's far-flung Pan-American tv ambitions encompass these as well—with both CBS and Time-Life endorsing "count me in" promissory note. They're not letting go.

When Mestre fled Cuba he left behind some 22 companies (in partnership with brother Abel) valued at $25,000,000. All of it was confiscated. Along with other Cuban big wheels, Mestre was one of the supporters of Castro in the days when he was still in the hills, for the Commie taint at that period was obscured; the primary motive was to rid themselves of the Batista iron hand.

In the intervening period Mestre has managed to bring in many of the key men, like him-ex all political exiles, who helped him establish the two leading networks in Cuba, comprising seven stations each, along with the major independent station in Havana. Mestre personally has sunk $8,000,000 into their development. Today a dozen of his ex-Cuban associates are playing key roles in Proartel, another dozen in Lima and others are in Miami, where Mestre controls a major film dubbing company.

Obliged to start from scratch two years ago, Mestre today has already entrenched himself as "Mr. Television" of Latin America. And CBS and Time-Life, with global video aspirations, have put themselves on record with Mestre: "You name it we'll buy it."

SKELTON SUES NBC OVER PAAR REPEAT

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

CBS' Red Skelton is suing NBC for $500,000, in Hollywood Superior Court on grounds that Jack Paar, the host of NBC-TV's "Tonight," rebroadcast without permission a tape in which Skelton appeared.

Suit was filed this week, after a long pre-court hassle over whether NBC had any right to air the Skelton seg, made on Nov. 13, 1961 and repeated the following March 12.

The sum asked by Skelton, who is only suing NBC, is $25,000 for actual damages and ditto for exemplary damages. A question over NBC's authority for a rerun is the crux of the suit.

Request Channel 14-15 For 2-Way Mobile Radio

Washington, Oct. 9.

Electronics Industries Assn. has asked Federal Communications Commission to assign channels 14 and 15 to two-way land mobile radio service. EIA said police and fire departments and health services are being hampered by present restrictions. In asking FCC rulemaking, EIA said mobile systems would be forbidden in areas with existing 14 and 15 tv stations.

The two channels are being used sparsely and the proposed change would "involve a minimum of shifting," EIA said. EIA's petition added that use of higher frequencies for land mobile "is not practicable within the forseeable state of the art." Assn. pointed to an increase in land mobile transmitters from 86,000 in 1948 to 700,000 in 1962.

SUSSKIND TO ROLL N.E.T. CUBAN REPORTS

Extending his liaison with educational television, David Susskind is preparing two half-hour filmed documentaries on the Cuban situation. Deal involves Susskind's company, Talent Associates-Paramount, National Educational Television & Radio Center and the U.S. Information Agency.

One half-hour will concern itself with the escape of Cubans from Castro's dictatorship. The other will focus on the refugees' settlement problems in the U.S.

FCC's New Logging Rule

Washington, Oct. 9.

The Federal Communications Commission amended its rules to allow automatic logging under prescribed conditions.

Other proposed changes in logging requirements were deferred

BBC Lays Heavily On 'Light' Shows In Weekend Hypo

London, June 9.

Following the sucess last season of the Saturday night alternaters, "The Black And White Minstrel Show," which according to BBC pulled in an average of 16,500,000 viewers, and the "Billy Cotton" show (average: 14,000,000), BBC-TV is putting more emphasis this fall on the fortnightly show at the weekend.

The song-and-dance Minstrel outing is continuing its twice-monthly role in a new Sunday berth but in future will be alternating with a new comedy skein "Raise Your Glasses." Cotton's entry is again booked for Saturday nights but this time sharing the honors with comedian Ken Dodd.

Although many producers believe a show benefits production-wise from not having to make a weekly deadline, BBC's caution in developing a format along these lines is easily understood. The commercial boys burned their fingers last semester when they alternated both action shows and serious programs.

However in the case of the dramatic skeins, "Armchair Theatre" and "Drama '62," which went out every other Sunday in the same timeslot, the indies have welded a firm audience-holding bond. But it's said around the networks that this is probably due to the fact that the audiene put both the anthological series under one heading—"the Sunday night play."

Whether BBC-TV can turn the trick in the light entertainment field and successfully pair-off its song-and-dance shows and comedies without losing viewer-loyalty is one of the big questions that will be answered in the next couple of ratings charts.

At 2G Per Day, Lee J. Cobb Now Drops Objections To Staying With 'Virginians'

Looks as if Lee J. Cobb, who made it clear that appearing in eight "Virginian" episodes would be quite enough, has changed his mind. It is reported now that the actor, who pulls down $2,000-a-day for the NBC-TV show, is available to do perhaps as many as 10 more.

NBC-TV is definitely commited to 16 of the 90-minute programs, and, from all reports, is very likely to go to a commitment with producer Revue of 20 stanzas and probably even 26. If it goes to 26, Cobb is expected to shoot as many as 18 of them. Sources in N. Y. say that besides his very strong artistic objections to "Virginian," the actor was concerned whether the tv stanza might not get in the way of his appearance in Frank Sinatra's featurization of "Come Blow Your Horn." Last report is that the feature and the tv work won't conflict.

In the first 16 weeks of shooting, Revue reports that 12 "The Virginian" episodes have been completed. That gives Revue a production ratio of completing three 90-minute "Virginian" episodes every four weeks, a production pace of keen interest to the trade for "The Virginian" represents the first 90-minute western series in American tv.

NBC-TV's Wednesday night entry frequently has two or three segments shooting concurrently, with separate producer-director units functioning on indoor-outdoor sets on Revue sound stages and outdoor locations. Charles Marquis Warren is series exec producer. Functioning with him in this unique multi-producer setup are such vets as Warren Duff, Winston Miller, Maxwell Shane, Roland Kibbee, Doug Heyes, Mort Fine and David Friedkin.

Davis' New AFTRA Slot

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Allan Davis, who has been tv rep for AFTRA here for the past two years, has been upped to the post of exec administrator of the union's recording department.

Davis replaces Georgia Hannie, who exited to join the Composers & Lyricists Guild as an exec.

TV'S '60 DAYS OF DECISION'

80-100 New Pilots in Works

Eighty to 100 pilots for the '63-'64 season is forecast at this time. This compares to about 150 estimated to have been produced for the '62-'63 season.

Reduction in the number of pilots has been occuring each successive year for the past number of years. Some of the factors causing this reduction are these: growth of network participation in pilot production, increase in the hour series form, the decline of "freeball" pilots, projects which don't have either network financing or network partnership, the high cost of pilot production and the tough competition no longer permit the semi-pros to operate, nor does it attract the speculative money of years ago.

High Ct. Gives More Muscle to FCC In Kayo of Sole License Applicant

Washington, Oct. 9.

The Supreme Court yesterday (Mon.) in effect wrote a new doctrine of "community needs" for radio station applicants.

The high tribunal refused to hear the appeal of Patrick Henry, owner of Suburban Broadcasters against the March 29 ruling of U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington affecting a new FM in Elizabeth, N. J.

The Appeals Court upheld Federal Communications Commission's thumbs-down decision on Suburban on grounds that its "program proposals were not designated to serve the needs of Elizabeth," even though Suburban was the only station applying for a FM license. Metropolitan Broadcasting objected on grounds of technical interference with WNEW-FM in New York.

WNEW later broadened its objection on basis that Suburban's programs for Elizabeth were the same as station offered in Berwyn, Ill., and by two of its partners in Alameda, Calif.

Suburban's argument before the Appeals Court was that FCC's licensing powers only cover an applicant's legal, financial and technical qualifications. And if there is one applicant and he meets these qualifications, the license is his.

This argument was rejected by the FCC and the Court of Appeals over Henry's objections that freedom of speech was being impinged by Commission censorship.

The censorship issue was only vaguely referred to by Appeals Court and with Supreme Court refusing to hear the case, that broad issue will be left to future contestants.

Appeals Court in ruling on Suburban case, used a 1943 Supreme Court decision upholding FCC's programming prerogatives when NBC challenged Commission's chain broadcasting rules.

With the Supreme Court fait accompli, commission now has given light in its stepped up activity on the programming front.

Combined with new impetus on making applicants live up to promises, FCC now has a second trump to play, realizing it is backed by the law of the land.

NBC, Color TV Peak RCA Net

RCA reports an all-time sales and earnings record for the first nine months of '62. Profits after taxes for the first nine months rose 44% to $34,300,000 from $23,800,000 for the first three quarters of '61, says the corporation. After tax earnings in the third quarter '62 were up 66% over same period '61.

Earnings per common share were $1.88 for the first nine months of '62. For the entire year of '61, earnings per share were $1.29, only 7c. more than the first nine of '62. Third quarter '62 net profits were $10,300,000 or 55c. a share.

Company officials attribute the boom to sales of color tv sets and other home appliances and the "record pace" being set by NBC. Home instrument sales have risen 36% so far this year, says RCA, and color video has shown a 110% gain.

NBC's Orbital Rating

NBC News led CBS and ABC News in the size of the tv audience it had watching the 8-10 a.m. coverage of the Walter Schirra flight last Wednesday (3).

Arbitron, in those hours where all three networks offered continuous coverage of the orbiting (they cut away at about 10 a.m. for other programming), reported a 14 rating and a 54 share for NBC-TV, an 8.1 and a 31 for CBS-TV and a 2.8 and an 11 share for ABC-TV.

Ask Congress, Courts to Polish Image Via TV

Washington, Oct. 9.

National Assn. of Broadcasters prexy LeRoy Collins has renewed his pitch for an open door policy for radio and tv newsmen in Congress and the Federal courts.

Broadcasting "cannot carry on its back the handicap of censorship of the news," Collins told the Indiana Assn. of Broadcasters.

In a speech released here, Collins emphasized that radio and television have "unique ability to illuminate and intrepret major events of the day." He pointed to Ole Miss and Cape Canaveral as examples.

Collins said it was the duty of Government to allow freedom communications and government "must resist any temptation to substitute its taste and judgment of programming for that of the licensee."

In a veiled hint at Congress to catch up with the times and regain its lost political luster, Collins averred that Presidents have used fireside chats and other broadcasting foremsics. Because of this Collins added "the people have developed a far better understanding of the executive than of any other branch of Government!"

Collins made another thinly disguised hint that the Supreme Court and other Federal courts are having image worries, which could be helped by televised proceedings.

Collins added in a remark which raised the question as to whether he was speaking as a southern governor or as NAB prexy, "our courts generally are grossly misunderstood and often are actually feared by our citizens."

Collins backed Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who recently suggested special televised Senate sessions to question Cabinet members.

ABC'S DAYTIME BIZ GETS DETROIT RIDE

ABC-TV's daytime schedule picked up its first business from Detroit last week when the Lincoln-Mercury division bought some assorted minutes in the web's daytime plan. The buy was limited to the period of the introduction of the new car models.

General Foods Corp. has come into "Discovery '62" on a three-day-a-week schedule for its Post Division.

CRITICAL NEED FOR SCRIPTERS

By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Next 60 days form the most critical period for network programming execs, with new shows in trouble needing to be fixed, and with pilots for the '63-'64 season up for decision. In short, two seasons hang in the balance—the one that just had its debut and the '63-'64 season.

The stakes are high and the pressures are hard. That's the reason for the hurried N. Y. to Coast calls, the Coast to Coast flights, the frantic search for ways to salvage an entry.

In many series, in the large bulk of the filmed entries, little can be done in immediate repairs. The mistakes already are in the can. If, however, the series is considered salvagable, alterations now are being made in the episodes in production even though these episodes may not hit the screen until weeks and months later. The hope is that the alterations may turn a maybe entry into a promising one for another season's ride. The salvage job on filmed series admittedly is risky, but if nothing is done now, the paralysis of the series could only spell death. The risk is preferable.

In the midst of the "fix-it-or-wedie" operation, pilot decisions, deals which will shape the programming of '63-'64, must be made. The forecast is that 90% of the new pilots will be made between Oct. 15 and Jan. 15. All programming people, within and outside the confines of the network, now are going at full blast. These are the "60 Days of Decision" on pilot projects, if they are to be completed by the January selling season when the pilot fever is the highest.

Mike Dann, CBS-TV programming v.p., N. Y., reports a critical need for writers in this period. What's happened in the scripting field since the advent of the hour form is that the need for better writers has grown, a need hardly ever matched by the pro, available talent. If there's a show to be fixed, if there's a new project underway, the scripter is the first one called. In this period, good writers agents are said to be being "pestered to death" by production people.

It takes six weeks to two months to film a pilot of the hour variety. The stakes are so high that in some instances four or five scripts are commissioned, with the best one selected. The top 40 writers on the Coast and N. Y. are said to be currently to be so busy that they won't agree to a new assignment until after the first of the year. With the top 40 busy, other writers are being tapped.

These "60 Days of Decision," though, doesn't only pertain to programming exees and writers. It pertains to producers, as well. Good producers too, are in short supply, and whereas a writer from another field can be trained for tv, a man seasoned in tv is considered vital for a producer.

The fate of the seasons aren't told by the ratings alone. What happens in the next 60 days, in front of and behind the cameras, determines in a large measure what the ratings report tomorrow and in 1964.

ROD ERICKSON EXITS AS PREZ OF FILMWAYS

Rod Erickson is out as prexy of Filmways with Lee Moselle, board member and partner of the film production firm's general counsel, Katz, Moselle & Schier, now taking over the post, effective immediately.

Moselle reportedly will assmue more of the company's administrative duties to free chairman Marty Ransohoff for concentration on the Coast feature film and tv series production. Along with other major tv blurb producers, the New York end of Filmways experienced a dip in business this year.

New Season Shaping Into Hot Race For Ratings; 'Kildare' Tops 'Mason'; 'Beverly Hillbillies,' 'Jetsons' Click

ABC's Man in D.C.

Washington, Oct. 9.

ABC-TV, which had been put through a rough Congressional mill here for its one-time heavy stress on action-adventure shows, is getting a newly polished image in the Capital via the efforts of Clark Gifford. Gifford was the White House counsel during the administration of former President Harry S. Truman and has done legal work for Joseph P. Kennedy, father of President John F. Kennedy.

Gifford was taken on by AB-PT, parent company of ABC-TV, at the recommendation of Jim Hagerty, the web's news chief and press secretary under President Dwight D. Eisenhower's regime. To all intents and purposes, ABC's Washington office is now in Gifford's hat.

TA-Par Perking With Pilots For '63-'64 Season

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Talent Associates-Paramount, which has revitalized Par's telefilm-operatioin under the guidance of exec veepee Martin Leeds, is pitching five half-hour vidfilm series, two 60-minute projects and a 90-minute series to the networks for the 1963-64 season.

Leeds disclosed that TA's prexy David Susskind and he have blueprinted for season-after-next "Mystery Loves Company," an hour anthology series in which eight stars will rotate, forming a repertoire group, with all the stars in each seg although only one will have the top role each week; hour-long, "Once Upon a Crime," created by Don Martin, the story of a mystery writer and his publisher, the adventures he gets into looking for mysteriosos.

Also on the agenda: "Alonzos' in Town," half-hour situation comedy created and written by Howard Emmet Rogers and Chris Bose; "His and Hers," situation comedy localed at an Army post, created by John Auer and Jerry Adelman; "Crime of the Cenutry," 60-minute series which Alexander Scourby will narrate. This can be done live or film.

"Marty and Me" is a situation comedy developed by Ray Singer

(Continued on page 45)

Rule Rep. Powell Blast On TV Immune From Libel If Based on House Talk

New York Congressman Adam Clayton Powell Jr. this week won a move in the $1,000,000 libel suit brought against him in N. Y. Supreme Court by a woman he called a graft collector for police in a tv interview March 6, 1960.

Court ruled that Mrs. Esther James' attorneys could not question Powell about a speech he made in Congress, on which Powell says his video remarks were based. His defense was Congressional immunity. Justice John L. Flynn said a formal trial would be needed to determine whether the tv remarks went beyond the limits of qualified privilege.

In explaining his ruling, Flynn said, "A legislator has a qualified privilege of informing his constituents of remarks made by him in Congress so long as the communication to the constituents is made in good faith and without malice."

More significance is being attached to the Nielsen multi-market report for Sept. 23-30 than to previous returns because, by then, a number of key shows had already been "shopped" and were going into their second week of competition.

The 30-market rating by Nielsen revealed a close race for supermacy by NBC's "Dr. Kildare" and CBS' "Perry Mason," with the NBC incumbent getting a faint edge. It revealed also that in preeming a new season in a new time, Mitch Miller at 8:30 Fridays, couldn't make it against the stet "Route 66" on CBS. And, too, NBC's Jack Paar in primetime was less than the perfect match for the tailend of "77 Sunset Strip" on ABC. The Wednesday night battle between "Wagon Train" and "The Virginian" went to the former, now an ABC airer.

Starting with the key "Train" story in this sampling, that show, like "The Virginian" was in its second week on Sept. 26. From 7:30 to 8:30, "CBS Reports" ran a weakish third; ABC's "Train" got 18.8 to roughly 10 for the first "Virginian" hour. Last half-hour of the 90-minute "Virginian" showed strength, however. It ran to 17.8, a point better than the preem of CBS' returning "Dobie Gillis" at 8:30. The preem of CBS 9 o'clock "Beverly Hillbillies" doubled—at over 28 average audience—anything either network rival could muster that night.

Even preeming in its new time slot, Thursdays at 8, CBS' "Mason" could not beat "Dr. Kildare," although it was feverishly close. The night of Sept. 27 saw CBS begin at 7:30 with a small edge, via "Mr. Ed," over the others. But the 17.4 for "Ed" became a 21.4 when "Mason" started at 8. At 8:30, when "Kildare" began its night on NBC, it suddenly got a 20.6—over 7 average rating points better than the second half of its own "Wide Country" at 8 p.m.

(By getting the 20.6, "Kildare" beat the closeout half-hour of "Mason" by six-tenths of a point. And at 9, "Kildare" cut up "Nurses" on CBS by a 25.1 to a 16.9. At 9:30, NBC's "Hazel" edged the second-half of "Nurses." From 10 to 11 on Thursday nights, NBC's "Andy Williams Show" edged the second week of the new CBS hourlong "Alfred Hitchcock Presents." The singer got just over 20, three points better than Hitchcock.

The Friday picture ran this way: Second week of CBS' "Rawhide" at 7:30 ran only a fairish second to NBC's rival in the hour—"International Showtime." Forinstance, in its second half-hour the NBC variety stanza peaked out a 20.9 against "Rawhide's" 18.6. Yet when "Route 66" started at 8:30 it hit about 19.2 while NBC's Mitch Miller, in premiere per-

(Continued on page 40)

CBS-TV Cooking Beaucoup New Biz

New sales at CBS-TV range from Kiwi Shoe Polish which bought participation in "CBS Reports" to Houblein, Inc., which bought the web's morning minute plan for eight weeks.

Falstaff Brewing, in the midst of this period of World Series fever, signed for half-sponsorship of "Baseball Game of the Week," starting next April.

The Cotton Council bought alternate quarter hours in web's daytime "House Party" and "Secret Storm," starting March 11. Kiwi's minute buy in "CBS Reports" extends from Jan. 16 through May 29.

More Chicago-Style Hearings Due For Another City in FCC Roulette

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Commissioner Robert E. Lee, here last week to address the triannual constitution covention of National Assn. of Broadcasting Employes & Technicians, disclosed that the Federal Communications Commission would hold public hearings on local television service in another market after the first of the year. Lee declined to name the market but did say that Chicago wouldn't get a repeat. (He had conducted the FCC's "experimental" hearings in Chi last spring).

Implicit in the disclosure is the fact that the Chicago hearings must have been of some value to the FCC (something the trade has been debating ever since) and, presumably, worth the time and expense. At the NABET convention, Lee expressed pleasure that the Chicago stations had responded to much of the criticism leveled at them in the public forum last spring. He said the Commission hadn't heard from the stations about it but that he had been following the stories in the trade press documenting the post-hearing developments in local Windy City programming.

In particular he noted the switching of certain public affairs and religious shows to better time periods, the preemption of prime-time network shows for local specials, and the increases here in documentary production. These, he felt, all resulted directly from the hearings.

The commissioner spoke mostly on the matter of developing the UHF band so that commercial television could offer more service. It was a topic dear to the NABET hearts because more channels would obviously mean more jobs. Lee opined that the present system of UHF's and VHF's in the same market does not suffice because it's clear now that the U's will never be able to compete with the V's. "The present system does not encourage the growth of independent stations and is stifling educational tv," he said. "Local affairs are being crowded out of the schedule, and local advertisers can't find sufficient access to prime time, which doesn't benefit a growing economy."

He submitted that the need for more facilities grows greater with the population explosion, with the expanding tv set count and with the probability of the shorter work week, which afford more leisure time. He said he would like to see the range of tv stations shortened, with more communities having their own outlets.

Indicating that the all-channel legislation would help to make the shift come about more smoothly, he stated that he would like to see a shift to all-UHF after a period of five to eight years. "If you agree with my assumption that the status quo (intermixture) is intolerable, I'm sure you'll agree with my conclusions," he said.

Aussie Market Overlap Blocks TV Show Sales By American Distribs

Some country stations in Australia, those claimed to overlap the bigger markets, are proving out to be kingsized headaches to American distributors. The overlap situation has come to a head in Sydney, and hearings have been held and will continue to be held on the problem.

Country stations in New Castle and Wollongong, claimed to overlap the Sydney market, have complained that they cannot buy American product, or other product, Sydney stations, it's said, block the sale to the New Castle and Wollongong markets, contending to the distributor that if a deal is made with the country stations, the distributor not only will be shut out of the larger market of Sydney, but in other key Australian markets as well. The Australian communications laws attempts to keep open all channels of programming to all stations. It is these laws which currently are being "tested" in the Sydney situation, on which hearings have been held, with CBS Films of Australia being the first called.

Fete WGN's Carl Meyers On 50 Yrs. in Electronics

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Carl Meyers, veepee of operations for WGN Inc. and its chief engineer for more than three decades, was feted at a luncheon last Thursday (4) for his 50 years in the electronics biz—in wireless, radio and tv.

Meyers had built WLIB, the Elgin, Ill. station that the Tribune Co. purchased in the Twenties, and is credited by WGN exec veepee Ward L. Quaal as one of the forces that has distinguished the call letters for the past 30-odd years. It was recalled at the testimonial luncheon that Meyers engineered WGN's historic remote broadcast of the Scopes (Evolution) Trial from Dayton, Tenn. in 1925. Stars of that event were Clarence Darrow and William Jennings Bryan.

Radio Code Gets Tough, Expels 9

Washington, Oct. 9.

Radio Code Board has recommended expulsion of four stations for carrying hemerrhoidal remedy advertising. Nine other stations resigned to avoid Code action.

In what it calls its new "get tough" policy, Code Board approved recommendation of Code Authority director Robert Swezey to bounce the stations from Code cover.

Originally, 34 radio stations were up against Code action on hemorrhoid advertising. But 21 of these stations cancelled the ads which are prohibited by Code.

Final action on expulsion will come on Jan. 16 when the National Assn. of Broadcasters Radio Board of Directors meets in Phoenix, Ariz.

7 ARTS DIVERSIFIES INTO AMATEUR BOXING

Seven Arts is diversifying syndie production. First the distribbery decided to package the Boston symph hours on tape and now it's putting together "The World's Amateur Boxing Championships."

Filming AAU fisticuffs, the Seven Arts people are going to lay out a batch of half-hours. Les Keiter will be host of this series, built about an invitational tourney in the 10 sanctioned weight divisions. Sandy Howard is producing for the distrib.

Bruce Gordon to Head Desilu Sales of Aussie

Hollywood Oct. 6.

Bruce Gordon has been named director of the newly organized company of Desilu Sales of Australia.

Opening of the Australian office provides Desilu Sales with representation in virtually every major foreign area in addition to its six domestic sales offices. Other foreign branches have been opened previously in London, Tokyo, Munich Toronto Vancouver, Montreal, Mexico City, Buenos Aires, Sao Paulo and San Juan.

Gordon formerly was with TCN, Sydney, and was managing director of the Tivoli Theatre, also in Sydney. He will represent Desilu in New Zealand, Malay Peninsula and other Asian points as well as in Australia.

Blaze Destroys WAZA, Ga.

Bainbridge, Ga., Oct. 9.

Radio station WAZA was destroyed when struck by a lightning bolt last week which set fire to the structure housing the mill. No one was in building at time since station signs off at 6:15 p.m. and Ray Reed program director, left premises about 10 minutes before lightning struck.

WAZA was able to resume broadcasting toward end of week from temporary studios set up at station's transmitter site in another part of town.

Chi Radio Execs Baffled By Sharp Rating Boost Of McLendon's New WYNR

Chicago Oct. 9.

The local radio trade is puzzling over the results of a special Hooperating survey ordered by Gordon McLendon's new WYNR by which the station allegedly leapfrogged a dozen established stations to at least fourth place in the market less than three weeks after it switched call letters and format.

What the other station operators here find hard to believe is that WYNR, according to its study, should take audience away from all stations save the two whose format it most closely resembles, namely WLS and WIND. "Do they expect us to believe that the more reserved and mature audiences who listen to WBBM, WGN, WMAQ, WAIT and WFMT have suddenly dropped us to listen to that noise, just because it's a new station and operated by McLendon?" one competitor wanted to know. His point is that it would seem more likely for devotees of a pop station like WIND or a rock 'n' roller like WLS to go one step beyond and switch their affections to the more frenetic WYNR.

But the special Chicago Hooper study gives the McLendon station third place in the afternoons, behind WIND and WLS, and fourth place in the morning behind the same two and WGN. This would seem to mean that WIND and WLS got by unscathed in McLendon's 17-day opening burst while the more subdued stations lost audience.

McLendon had also ordered a pilot survey of the Negro market here from Hooper, with WYNR coming up first in the ayem with a 26.7 share versus WIND's second-place 11.3, and ditto in the p.m. with a 28.4 share vs. WCFL's second-place 15.1.

KMEX-TV, L.A., to Unreel Foreign Language Films

KMEX-TV, Los Angeles, the new UHF all Spanish-language tv station, plans for its second phase of programming to include the telecasting of foreign-language features, with or without subtitles.

In its first phase of programming, station will televise six hours a day of Spanish-language programming. As part of its second phase of programming, station also is seeking European tv programs of sufficient stature to appeal to that section of the public which regularly patronizes the art film houses.

Station made known its programming plans in a letter to cinematic distributors.

Wisc. Candidates Meet in Debate on WTMJ, AM-TV

Milwaukee, Oct. 9.

Milwaukee Journal stations WTMJ and WTMJ-TV are staging an hourlong debate between the Wisconsin gubernatorial candidates on Oct. 22 that will focus on a single subject, the state fiscal and tax policies, which has become the dominant issue of the campaign. It's being offered to other radio and tv stations throughout the state.

Wisconsin Public Affairs Forum arranged the meeting of the candidates. John W. Reynolds (Dem.) and Philip G. Kuehn (Rep.), and the debate will take place in a WTMJ-TV studio sans audience. Charles L. Goldberg, past prexy of Wisconsin Bar Assn., will moderate.

3 Buy 'Lone Ranger'

Telesynd reports three new sales on "The Lone Ranger," half-hour teleseries featuring the masked rider.

New markets are KELP, El Paso, and WKST, Youngstown, both in for 166 stanzas, and WLOS, Asheville, N. C., which pacted for 60 episodes.

'TRUE ADVENTURE' SALES

Teledynamics Corp., distributing "True Adventure," has clicked off four more markets, putting the series in 33 markets.

New markets include WPIX, N.Y.; WLW-TV, Cincinnati, WGN-TV, Chicago; and WAVE-TV, Louisville. WPIX, WGN and WLW-T licensed 78 episodes of the skein.

Community Antenna TV Marches Thru Georgia for Showdown With Local Ops

Atlanta, Oct. 9.

This burg, scene of some of the bloodiest fighting in the War Between the States, could well become the battleground for a no-holds-barred encounter between broadcasters and proponents of Community Antenna Television, which numbers among their ranks a goodly number of owners and operators of AM-FM and tv mills.

Showdown will come Tuesday (16) when Georgia Assn of Broadcasters sponsored Southeast Radio TV Seminar on CATV convenes at Dinkler-Plaza here.

Advance registrations have been received from broadcasters in New York, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Louisiana, Florida Pennsylvania, Alabama, Kentucky and, of course, Georgia.

Since this meeting will follow right on heels of National Assn of Broadcasters Fall Regional Conference, also at Dinkler-Plaza, delegates attending this parley surely will stay over for the Donnybrook Fair encounter expected when CATV champions meet headon with organized registers of system.

Lighting the fuse for these pyrotechnics is the fact that last week the first CATV system began operation in the Fitzgerald, Ga., area and that between 20 and 30 additional franchise applications have been filed in Georgia.

Raymond Carow, WALB-TV, Albany, Ga., moderator for the CATV Seminar, summed it up:

"Just this week the first CATV system began operation in Georgia . . . Community television has made a wild invasion of this state. We're not saying this is good or bad, but a lot of the telecasters, and many radio operators are afraid of CATV and don't know what it means. The way CATV has come marching into our area makes Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman look like a piker.

"All we want to do is provide information on both sides of the CATV question so broadcasters can make up their minds whether or not they are for it or against it.

"Our seminar presents exponents of both points of view and we will have the valuable Counsel of Federal Communications Commission Broadcast chief Kenneth A. Cox, and a leading attorney (Russell Eagan). No one is left out and an invitation is open to every

(Continued on page 43)

Fred Niles Moves Into Program Syndication

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Fred Niles Communications Center, which has been specializing in blurb production and industrials, is branching into program syndication for both radio and tv. Niles' program department plans to concentrate on shows for women and children, although the first new property is to be a radio sports series with well known sports figures.

Program operation is to be headed by Larry Spangler, former sales rep for a trade publication, who will be looking for properties that can be adapted for low-budget sponsorship to meet specific local marketing needs. Sales force will operate out of Niles' New York, Hollywood and Chicago offices.

Niles has been syndicating "Ed Allen Time," a health and exercise show, for a number of years and until this year had produced "It's Light Time," public service kid-series which the National Lutheran Council is distributing.

Screen Gems, ABC In 'Archie' Pact

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Screen Gems has signed a co-production deal with ABC-TV for the pilot of its half-hour situation comedy, "Archie," based on the cartoon strip. SG already has two cartoons-to-tv series, "Hazel," on NBC-TV, and "Dennis the Menace," on CBS-TV.

John Simpson has been signed for the title role, and Cheryl Holdridge and Roland Winters have also been set for the series. Harry Ackerman is exec producer, and Winston O'Keefe the producer. Pilot will roll Nov. 19.

FCC 3 TO 2, GRANTS HIGH POINT CHANNEL

Wahington, Oct. 9.

The Federal Communications Commission divided three to two in granting High Point, N.C., channel 8, to Southern Broadcasters Inc., provided the company and its stockholders divest all interest and connection with WTOB-TV, Winston-Salem, and WNAO-TV, Raleigh. There were three losing applicants, Jefferson Standard Broadcasting Co. and TriCities Broadcasting Co., both of Greensboro, and High Point Television Co., High Point.

Newton Minow, chairman, and Frederick W. Ford dissented. T. A. M. Craven and E. William Henry didn't participate. The majority was composed of Rosel Hyde, Robert E. Lee and Robert T. Bartley. Bartley wrote a concurring statement.

New Jersey Broadacsters Elect Fred Wood Prexy

Atlantic City, Oct. 9.

Fred Wood, station manager of WMBV in Millville, was elected president of the New Jersey Broadcasters Assn. last week (4). He replaces Glenn Jackson, of station WTTM in Trenton, who was named to the executive board.

Ron Hickman, of station WNNJ in Newton, Sussex county, was elected vice president. Also named to the executive board were Paul Alger of WSNJ in Bridgeton; Howard Green of WOND in Pleasantville; and Frank Matrangola of WCMC in Wildwood.

WMAQ UPS KEEGAN

Chicago, Oct. 9.

Howard Keegan, a producer-director at WMAQ since 1935, has been upgraded to program manager of the NBC radio o&o. He succeeds Bob Brown, who had held the post slightly over a year.

Keegan's directorial credits include a number of NBC network radio shows, among them "Guiding Light," "Cavalcade of America," "Road of Life" and "First Nighter." He spent three years in New York, in the Forties, as director of "Lights Out."

KTLA Gets Six Winners In 'Golden Mike' Awards Of So. Cal. Radio-TV Assn.

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

KTLA led the list of winners with six, when the 13th annual "golden mike" awards of the Radio & Television News Association of Southern California were handed out at a banquet at the Biltmore Hotel last week.

Special awards were given the Armed Forces Radio & TV Service, "for a consistently superior news job for the benefit of both U.S. troops and civilians throughout the world," to KDHI, Twentynine Palms radio station for community service in providing "excellent" news coverage of the demise of the L.A. Mirror and L.A. Herald-Express.

Other KTLA winners: Ed Clark, best tv news film; Bill Stout, "They Walked in Darkness," best tv documentary; KTLA, best special news report for its coverage of the Bel Air fire; station management award for most outstanding support of tv news operation; Clete Roberts Commentary, best tv commentary.

KNX won the best overall radio news operation; Hugh McCoy, KNX, for best regular radio newscast; KMPC, best special news report (Bel Air fire); KNX, best radio documentary, to Roger Sprague and Bob Ferris for coverage of racial tension in L.A.; Tony Kent, KPOL, best radio commentary (steel crisis); Carroll Alcott, KNX, "Today in L.A.," best radio newswriting; "Sportside With Tom Kelly," KNX, best regular sports news program; KMPC, station manage-

(Continued on page 45)

N.Y.'S 'FOR REEL' RATING WAR

Seen Any Good Pictures Lately?

WCBS-TV, N. Y., has 1,200 feature bookings on its station yearly. CBS-TV o&o station has a library of 2,300 features. Since February, 1951, more than 2,700 features have been presented by WCBS-TV as "First New York Telecast." WOR-TV, N. Y., which pioneered multi-showing of features, with its "Million Dollar Movie," has acquired the two packages of Metro pix and the Sterling-Reade bundle. N. Y., of course, has the ABC-TV and NBC-TV web telecasting of pix on the respective web o&o's.

On the local level, here are some of the pix upcoming for N. Y. telecasting: WCBS-TV, "From Here to Eternity," "Sayonara," "Auntie Mame, "Mr. Roberts," "Battle Cry," "No Time for Sergeants, "Eddie Duchin Story," and "Man in the Gray Flannel Suit"; WOR-TV, "Friendly Persuasion," "Pay or Die," "The Entertainer," "All the Brothers Were Valient," "Make Mine Mink," and "The Mark"; WABC-TV, "Sweet Smell of Success," "Anna Lucasta," and "A Kiss Before Dying."

WCBS-TV, with the largest pix library among N .Y. stations, claims to have the most top grossers, those that grossed $4,000,000 or more according to VARIETY's annual countdown. Station, using last January's VARIETY's compilation, states it has either telecast or will telecast 60 in the VARIETY '62 list of 246. That compares with 39 top grossing entries, either telecast or to be telecast, from all other sources, stations or networks, according to WCBS-TV researchers.

TV Blurb Producers, In Biz Bind, Wary of JWT No-Bidding Proposal

New York commercial film producers have a doubtful eye cut for the J. Walter Thompson ad agency's new blueprint for doling out blurb production assignments.

Members of the New York Assn. of Film Producers, in fact, asked by their pressagent to get up a statement on the JWT plan, failed to come forth with one. The majority favor a "wait-and-see" tack. Some view the plan as a possible way for the agency, which is the biggest blurb producer, to cut the buck. Others think it may serve its stated purpose of stabilizing an industry that has been in somewhat of a price-cutting, kick-back panic recently.

JWT's plan would eliminate competitive bids by having the agency blurb producers select the production company they think best suited for a particular job. Producer's proposal would go to JWT's new top blurb man, Arnold Leeds, who would then huddle with agency and outside producer. Outside producer would submit his budget. JWT would have figured its own costs, with a final tab then being negotiated.

JWT has met with the major blurb makers and received from most a breakdown of their production costs so that the agency has a base for future estimates. In the case of animation, producers meeting with the agency suggested submission of a reel of representative work with explanations on the cost of each.

If the singling out of producers works as hoped, it could eliminate the fierce competitive bidding that has the agency wondering why a job costs $2,000 in May and $5,000 in September (when the rush is on—or used to be).

Sorry state of the film producers

(Continued on page 45)

TPEA Disclaims Move To Compel Countries To Adopt Import Quotas

Action by Television Program Export Assn.'s directorate on a number of fronts, ranging from television festivals, general agreement on Tariff & Trades (GATT), and TPEA membership, was reported by TPEA prexy John G. McCarthy.

Application of Peter Robeck, distributor to join TPEA was unanimously approved. Robeck is in the initial stage of marketing "Death Valley Days" abroad.

The directorate reportedly approved cooperation of TPEA in helping clarify any misapprehension that tv is attempting in any way to persuade GATT to compel countries to adopt quotas for imported programs. The Working Party on Television, earlier designated by GATT, may meet again in Geneva on Oct. 23. TPEA prexy stated that as the European Broadcasting Union session opens in N.Y. at about the same time he may find it necessary to be represented at

(Continued on page 43)

Les Keiter to WFIL As Sports Director

Sportscaster Les Keiter was named sports director for WFIL-plus-tv in Philadelphia. He shifts from WINS, N.Y. radio indie.

Keiter, who at WFIL-TV will do two daily afternoon sports wrapups plus game coverage, is a vet of the sportcasting ranks, having worked major sports on ABC, CBS and Mutual.

Four-Star Profit Hits Peak 734G

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Four Star Television's consolidated net profit after taxes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1962 totaled a record $734,077, equal to $1.20 per share on the 611,250 common shares outstanding as of June 30, '62.

In the previous fiscal year, net profits after taxes totaled $647,422 equal to $1.06 per share on the same number of common shares then outstanding.

Gross revenues for the '61-'62 fiscal year were $19,962,980 compared with $24,193,715 in gross revenues registered in the previous fiscal year.

WGAN RADIO, MAINE, EXITS CBS, GOES INDIE

Portland, Me., Oct. 9.

Radio station WGAN will drop the CBS network and go indie effective Nov. 28. Thus ends 24 years of association between the 5,000-watt Portland station and the network. It also leaves the CBS net without an outlet in Maine.

Station's decision to go indie followed a change in music format. Six months ago it acquired the "rainbow sound," dumping rock n' roll and twist disks for pops, standards and light classics. During the summer months it went 24-hours. Owned by the Guy Gannett Broadcasting Services, an affiliate of the Guy Ganett Newspapers of Maine, the station will concentrate on music and news.

Meanwhile CBS officials have been in Maine attempting to replace its lost outlet. Several stations in the Portland area have been visited but no decision has been made.

Ira Beck Exits UAA

Mexico City, Oct. 9.

Ira D. Beck has resigned from United Artists Associates as Latin American sales manager to go into business for himself.

Beck was originally Venezuelan film sales manager for the parent UA, stationed in Caracas, until shifted into the tv arm.

PIT OFF-WEB VS. FEATURES

In the nation's top market, New York, a film war is shaping up this season for the local ratings, with some stations betting heavily on features and others on vidfilms, especially the off-network hour entries.

What's happening in New York is duplicated in many key markets around the country, as the fresh supply of new pix is dwindling and a relative avalanche of off-network hours are making the selling rounds.

WCBS-TV, N.Y., kingpin pix buyer in the Metropolitan area, continues to bet heavily on cinematics, avoiding the buying of off-network hour vidfilms at this time. CBS-TV o&o bought the last three packages offered to the market, the Screen Gems bundle of 73 post-54's, and Seven Arts Volume 4 and 5, consisting of 93 Warner Bros. and 20th-Fox features.

Also very active in the cinematic front is WOR-TV, which bills convenient viewing time, plus some kingsized features, as its drawing power.

WNBC-TV is betting on "Desilu Playhouse" late Sunday night, instead of pix. NBC o&o for its Saturday night pix showcase has run out of first-run pix and is in the market for more pix. WABC-TV, N.Y., has a "Night Show" and a "Goodnight Show" as cinematic showcases. ABC-TV o&o has bought United Artists Associated package of 32 pix, 13 of which already have played the ABC-TV network, in addition to 60-odd pix from Allied Artists Television. WABC-TV, which didn't have much rating success last season with its hourlong reruns "Hong Kong" and "Five Fingers" against weekend features of other stations, has shied away from the off-network hour series this season. WABC-TV, like WNBC-TV, is in the market for cinematic product.

WPIX, WNEW-TV and to some extent WOR-TV have the fresh off-network hours. WPIX, among other new product, has "Checkmate," "Thriller" and "Adventures in Paradise." In addition, Daily News indie which bills itself as the station with the "network look" has "The Steve Allen Show," "The Best of Groucho" and "The Honeymooners."

WNEW-TV, the station which mixes rerun pix, prestige outings such as "Festival of Performing Arts," and vidfilms, has invested heavily in off-network hours. Being telecast now are "Cain's Hundred," "Outlaws," "Bronco," and "Bourbon Street Beat." WNEW-TV has on its shelf such series as "Target," "The Corrupters," "Roaring 20's," "Robert Taylor, the Detectives," "87th Precinct," and "Stagecoach West."

WOR-TV, with its accent on features, has bought "Maverick" and "Surfside Six."

No matter how the ratings go, this situation seems to be shaping up. Television, as an industry, is building up the available pool of hour series, increasing the size of its vault in this category, as networks continue to unspool more hour skeins. This product, ultimately, finds its way into syndication.

Features on the other hand face a dwindling supply situation, as more of the post-'48's are made available to the market. Only kingsized post-'48 holdouts among Hollywood studios continue to be Paramount Pictures and Universal. When the post-'48's of those studios go, the supply of Hollywood product will be much smaller.

In the meantime, the fight for the local ratings is on, with stations taking their choice, cinematics or vidfilms, or a pix-vidfilm combination.

George Reading Joins WNEW

Schenectady, Oct. 9.

George Reading, WRGB-TV newscaster for 30 months, has left to join the news staff of WNEW, N. Y.

WABC-TV Launching 'The Big News,' One-Hour Strip With Local Accent

WABC-TV, flagship of the ABC television web, is launching an ambitious one-hour across-the-board news show Oct. 22, titled "The Big News." The first venture of its kind by a New York o&o station, the project has entailed the establishment by WABC-TV of a full news staff under the direction of David Schefrin.

The one-hour Monday-through-Friday news stanza, according to WABC-TV general manager Joe Stamler, was mapped in response to a clear audience demand for more informational programming during the 6 to 7 p.m. slot. In the works for some months, the kickoff was delayed until Schefrin was able to assemble a full news staff and eradicate all the operational bugs. The greenlight was given by Stamler and Jim Hagerty, ABC news chief who will be intensely interested in the progress of the local operation. Commercially, it's shaping up solidly with $16,000 in weekly business already in the till.

Stamler and Schefrin stated that the one-hour stanza will heavily stress new developments in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, the WABC-TV coverage area. Rather than hit the highspots, such as fires, collisions or routine political handouts, Schefrin plans to dig into the local scene in fullscale journalistic essays on community affairs.

Included in the one-hour layout will be ABC-TV's regular 15-minute wrapup with Ron Cochran. Usually telecast at 6 p.m., it is being shifted to 6:30 p.m. in the New York area. Preceding it will be hard news about the metropolitan area, weather reports and women's angles, sports news by Howard Cosell and features. From 6:45 to 7 p.m., there'll be a special report on subjects like school integration, traffic, etc.

Besides Cosell and Cochran, on-the-air personalities will include Bill Beutel, Jim Burnes and Rosemary Haley. Madeleine Karr is producer with Jack Walters as assistant producer and writer. Bill Barron and Steve Siporin will be director and associate director respectively while Albert Chambers will be an editorial associate. Arthur Alpert is a writer on the show and Charles Kavenaugh is the graphic artist.

Twin Cities' Educ. TV Gets 28G Ford Grant

St. Paul, Oct. 9.

Educational television in the Twin Cities has been granted a $28,500 Ford Foundation grant.

It's aired on non-commercial educational station KTCA-TV here. A number of courses now are being offered via video by the U. of Minnesota.

Jerry Lester In 10-Station Bow

Comedian Jerry Lester's syndicated weekend variety hour is slated to premiere on 10 stations Oct. 27, and Arrowhead Productions prexy Ted Gruenwald says he expects another 10 will be pacted for the cross-country Saturday night opening.

Already signed are stations in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Denver, Detroit, Norfolk, Baltimore, Richmond, Minneapolis and Altoona.

First stanza will be vidtaped Oct. 14 at the 41st Street Theatre. Lester arrived in New York Sunday (7) after a string of nitery engagements and host chores for President Kennedy's recent Minneapolis rally.

Arnee Nocks will direct and Nancy Carter has been named talent coordinator (both are ex-Mike Wallace production staffers). Negotiations are underway with Woody Herman and Nancy Walker for the initialer. Richard Wess will conduct the show's regular orch, the Society Six.

WOR-TV will be carrying the show in New York and word is that the outing has been 90% sold.

TEACHVEE IN CONN. LAUNCHES OPERATION

Hartford, Oct. 9.

First teachvee station in the state, WEDH, began operations last week under the sponsorship of the Connecticut Educational Television Corp. group of public spirited citizens. Station is operating from the campus of Trinity College and sharing transmitter facilities with WTIC-TV in nearby Avon.

Two other ETV stations are scheduled for the state, one in Brodgeport and one in Norwich. Use of WTIC facilities allowed WEDH to get on the air earlier than would have been possible because it reduced by some $124,000 the sum that would have had to be raised for transmitter site tower and other facilities. Studios are at Trinity.

General Manager of WEDH, operating on Channel 24, is Ben A. Hudelson, a former teacher, and later a radio and tv director for Westinghouse. Program manager is Douglas G. Leonard, an alumnus of WBZ-TV, Boston, and former actor. Chief engineer is Samuel C. Edsall, formerly with WHNB-TV, New Britain, Conn.

GE Picks Up Air Tab For Louisville Symph

Louisville, Oct. 9.

General Electric will pick up the tab for the second successive year, offering a complete season of the Louisville orch concerts, to be aired on WAVE Radio. Orchestra's 26th season series will be aired Wednesdays at 8:30, originating at Columbia aud. Robert Whitney will again conduct, and Richard Wangerin, orchestra manager, will do the commentary.

In addition to program notes, Wangerin will interview guest personalities and musical celebs.

Public Officials Can't Find Common Ground In Rating 'Al Capone'

Public officials, when they turn critics and, in a sense, become reviewers find themselves holding opposing views at times—just like the pro critics.

Case in point revolves around Allied Artists' "Al Capone," a pic now making the tv rounds. Pic, along with "Untouchables," had been the subject of a suit in Chicago, by attorney Harold Gordon, representing the heirs of Capone. Gordon, in a separate action, in a letter to FCC chairman Minow, cited a remark made in the last court sortie against the picture in which the judge ruled against the Capone kin claim, but commented that he found the film to be "crude, worthless trash, utterly lacking in any of the accepted values of our society."

Same pic, different official commenting—Senator John L. McClellan, chairman of the anti-racketeering committee in labor and management when Robert F. Kennedy was chief counsel. "I was forcefully impressed with its penetrating and powerful portrayal of an era of gangsterism and crime in our nation's history that should never be permitted to recur. This picture should be shown throughout the land. Every citizen of this country should have the opportunity to see it. In my judgment it will have a potent influence for the maintenance of law and order and for the preservation of a decent society in our country," said Senator McClellan in a letter to Allied Artists after seeing the pic in 1959.

All-Music, All-Talk Radio Formulas Rapped at Minn. B'dcasters Meet

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.

At the Minnesota Broadcasters Assn. annual convention here, members were told they have the choice of being "a wireless juke box or a full-sized radio station."

If they wish to be the latter, it was emphasized there must be "full-size, complete radio programming."

The whole thing was brought up by Val Linder, program director of WCCO Radio, highly successful CBS affiliate here. The convention's principal speaker, he presented what he considered a challenge to this state's radio stations.

At WCCO Radio Linder directs a staff of 36 air personalities who participate in every conceivable type of radio programming. His talk featured—a potshot at those radio stations which confine themselves to music.

"To me the all-music station is a radio jukebox, not a broadcast operation," Linder told the broadcasters. "And I make no differentiation as to the kind of music that the station grinds out. That goes for Brahms or boogie-woogie.

"The all-music stations are radio stations only in the sense that they have transmitters and the radio waves instead of wires to connect their turntables to loud speakers.

"I feel very strongly that the single-program operator has removed himself from the general stream of modern radio and overwhelming public acceptance that the industry has achieved in spite of him."

Linder put all talk, too, whether it's all news or all-interview and discussion, in the same category as all-music. A Minnespolis radio station recently abandoned an all-news policy.

"I believe in full-size, complete radio programming because it is this sort that best serves the public needs as I see those," declared Linder.

At the same time, however, Linder said he's not about to invite Congress, Newton Minow or any other government employee to dictate what should or shouldn't be broadcast.

Full-time service, as WCCO offers it, includes programs devoted to music, complete news, farming, opportunities for the public to participate in news and other discussions, women's activities, the weather, health, sports broadcastings, recreation and conservation, public forums and the station's participation in the community's life, the convention heard.

American Forces Radio Network Abandons Plan For Expansion Into Italy

Frankfurt, Oct. 9.

It looks as if there's no hope for the expansion proposed for AFN (American Forces Network) to broadcast in Italy.

Negotiations that have been going on for the last six years to bring the soldier radio network into Italy have come to a halt, probably as a result of President Kennedy's latest "flow of gold" orders.

Original plans had called for the Italian government to build, install, own and operate stations as part of the American Forces net, which has its world headquarters at Hoechst, a Frankfurt suburb.

But it was going to cost the Americans about $134,000 for building transmitters and installing the lines, and there would have been added expenses of about $85,600 yearly to operate and run the stations, it has been learned here.

Right now, AFN is beaming out a mixture of news broadcasts, record shows, and repeats of American radio programs to servicemen and their families in France and Germany. And closed-circuit radio is available on the American military installations at Verona, Vicenza and Leghorn.

But the current word is out that all negotiations to bring some American-run stations into Italy is out of the picture completely at the moment.

4 Star Inks Davidson For Fave Prexy Series

Stories dealing with favorite U.S. Presidents has been launched as a tv series project by Four Star with the first step signing of a contract with William Davidson, author of "Six Great Presidents."

Four Star veepee Thomas McDermott says Davidson's job as a mag writer will prevent his working full time on the Coast, but he will do research and provide story lines for the series.

McDermott winged to New York Sunday to pitch the series to network and agency execs.

ABC Int'l Plugs Global TV Biz

ABC International Television will be promoting the potential of global tv at the Americana Hotel, N.Y., Oct. 31 with the screening of "Worldvision—Your Passport To The Future." Broadcasting and advertising execs have been invited to the Visualscope presentation along with government officials and reps from foreign tv interests.

Donald W. Coyle, ABC International Television prexy, said: "The launching of Telstar has ushered in a new era of communications—the era of global television. By the end of 1962 there will be more television sets outside the U.S. and Canada than there are in those countries. Right now there are nearly 50,000,000 tv sets in the free world. Forty-seven nations have some form of commercial television."

ABC International Television, a subsid of AB-PT, is associated with 21 stations in 14 countries around the world.

BERT GRANET JOINS CBS AS EXEC PROD.

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Bert Granet has been signed by CBS-TV to an exclusive pact as exec producer, CBS-TV coast program chief Robert Lewine confirmed last week. Granet, he said, will first produce some pilots for CBS-TV, then will submit pilot properties for the network's okay for production by his own company.

Granet was formerly exec producer at Desilu studios, and while there was producer of "Desilu Playhouse," the Lucille Ball-Dezi Arnaz specials, and of the "Walter Winchell File" pilot. Prior to that, he had produced "The Loretta Young Show." Granet was repped by Ziegler, Hellman & Ross in the negotiations with CBS-TV.

Chi's WMPP, In Dutch, Gets One-Year License

Washington, Oct. 9.

A one-year license was granted by the Federal Communications Commission to Seaway Broadcasting Co. Inc., for WMPP-AM, Chicago Heights, Ill.

The company got in dutch with FCC because of an unreported 40% stock transfer after obtaining a construction permit. Seaway blamed the goof on a misunderstanding.

NEW ANGLE: 'NURSES' MORE MALE APPEAL

Greater male appeal will be accented in future segments of "The Nurses," CBS-TV's Thursday night entry bucking the last half of NBC-TV's "Dr. Kildare."

Edward Binns, for one, has been signed as a doctor, in an episode, titled 'The Private Affair." Six of the 12 initial episodes have been finished. Some of the initial six also have strong male leads.

Ethical Culture Society Criticizes Webs for Lag In Upgrading of Negroes

Another blast was taken at the tv industry for minimizing the use of Negro performers. This time it came in the form of a report "on the frequency of appearance of Negroes," written by The Committee on Integration of the N.Y. Society for Ethical Culture.

"The Television industry," said the report, "is not keeping abreast of the changing American social scene." It was pointed out that tv's "factual programs reflecting the national scene" have Negroes appearing on more than half of them, but this "is in sharp contrast to the fictional presentation of the Negro as a menial or person engaged in personal services."

"If one viewed television for five consecutive hours," declared the report, "he would see two Negroes, one appearing less than three minutes and the other for more than three minutes; in more than half of his appearances, the Negro would appear in a traditional and stereotyped occupation; when the Negro does appear in a white-collar occupation, it is the result of his appearances on news panels, interviews, and as a member of an audience."

Report also concluded that "The highest incidence of Negro appearance occurs in musical programs Negro entertainers are seen much more frequently than Negro actors."

"Two important areas of programming completely exclude the Negro—children's programs and western were never reported to include a Negro. Daytime serials were also found to be deficient with Negroes appearing very infrequently . . . yet informational and educational programs have a relatively high incidence of Negro appearance."

Report was made by 60 volunteers viewing programs on tv between April 1 and April 13, 1962. They only monitored the ABC, CBS and NBC flagship stations in N.Y.

FCC WAIVES RULE ON CULTURAL PLUGS

Washington, Oct. 9.

The Federal Communications Commission has waived sponsor identification requirements of Sec. 317 to allow the longstanding deal between Southern California Broadcasters Assn., and certain nonprofit Los Angeles cultural groups to continue without change.

FCC found the deal to come under Sec. 317 requirements for an on the air sponsorship announcement. But FCC determined the "public interest" to be so deeply involved that it waived the requirement for such announcements.

Under the SCBA pact, the Assn. receives contributions from the L. A. County Fair, L. A. Civic Light Opera Assn., Greek Theatre Assn. and Hollywood Bowl Assn. Assn. stations then give free airtime, announcements and other cooperation to the groups. Stations have never made sponsorship announcements and they have logged the plugs as "sustaining."

And Still Another TV Probe

Harlem Congressman Adam Clayton Powell Jr. will chair an investigation into the hiring policies of radio and television by the Education & Labor Committee at the New York Federal Court House, beginning Oct. 22.

Powell has said, the reason for the hearings is to "look into the minimum wage coverage of the workers in the broadcast industry."

Some observers, however, think that the inside causes for the hearings are the gripes of actors' groups and organizations about alleged discrimination in the networks' hiring policies. The Congressman reportedly said at a recent Demo clubhouse meeting that the investigation had partly been triggered by the Amsterdam News' six-month crusade on the subject (paper, in fact, has been called in to help set up the hearings).

Highway Robbery & Brickbats

Concord, N. H., Oct. 9

Both New Hampshire and Maine have protested against charges made by David Brinkley, NBC-TV commentator, on his Oct. 7 program, that these two states were among 22 states which had experienced wrongdoings in connection with interstate highway construction.

In New Hampshire, Gov. Weasley Powell declared there was "not one iota of truth in Brinkley's unequivocal charge that the FBI, or any other agency of the government, has ever found the New Hampshire state government, or its officials, guilty of any dishonesty in the highway program, or in its relationship with contractors." In a telegram to NBC, he also demanded "equal time" to answer the charges.

In Vermont, Gov. F. Ray Keyser, Jr., telephoned NBC to ask where Brinkley secured his information; State Sen. James L. Oakes, of Brattleboro, chief of a legislative commission investigating the Vermont Highway Department, wired Congressional investigators in Washington, and State Highway Commissioner Russell A. Holden called the FBI to find out what it was all about.

NBC-TV Slides Home in Thriller

Last-Minute Sales Pulls $750,000 Gamble On NL Playoff Into Black

Robert E. Kintner took a $750,000 gamble that led to one of the weirdest payoffs in network television history. The NBC-TV topper a few days earlier bought rights to a National League playoff series that might never occur, beating out ABC negotiators who briefly thought they had cornered the same will-o-the-wisp.

Late Sunday, Sept. 28, it became clear that the "impossible" had happened — the San Francisco Giants won and the L.A. Dodgers lost, thereby creating a league tie and the need for a playoff. Suddenly NBC-TV was confronted with the realtiy of a three-game series that, in time and rights, would cost at the very least, $750,000.

Prexy Kintner got his sales boys to work that Sunday night from their homes. Price per game, NBC-TV told agencies, was a flat $420,000 or exactly $210,000 for half that. Many calls were made but there were no takers—just one "hold," by a sponsor that was at best an "outside chance."

That "outside chance" folded. Yet by Tuesday (30) morning, when most of the dust cleared away, it was fairly obvious Kitner's salesmen had put the network an estimated $1,200,000 to the good.

This last-minute stuff might have looked like poor planning, but NBC-TV was actually trying to peddle the package days before that fateful Sunday. In fact, from the day Kintner beat out ABC to the rights. But along Madison Avenue nobody, it would seem, was interested in buying a sporting event that probably never would come about. Moreover, nobody wanted to worry about a series, not only remote, but complicated; what happens if it runs three games instead of two or vice versa? This required a lot of slideruling—and undoubtedly for nought.

Therefore, on Monday at 10 a.m., NBC-TV didnt' have a sponsor to

(Continued on page 40)

Code Authority Okays 156 Xmas Toy Comm'ls

National Assn. of Broadcasters' Code Authority has approved 156 toy commercials produced by 22 companies for the coming holiday seasons. Commercials still in production will be listed later by Code if approved.

Code Authority advised that absence of commercial from its list does not necessarily mean that it has been screened and disapproved.

BBC-TV Paging Yank Scripters

British Broadcasting Corp. is going script shopping overseas for the web's dramatic series, "Suspense," which returns this season for 39 weeks.

Exec producer John Warrington, of the BBC drama department, has asked the BBC's office in New York to request 50-minute scripts from top American writers. Show uses both original writings and adaptations of novels and short stories.

CROSBY PROD. PITCHING THREE PILOTS AT ABC

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Bing Crosby Productions is currently selecting a number of pilots from its 1963-64 hopper, to roll in November, with ABC-TV bankrolling. ABC-TV has a firm commitment to finance two-and-one-half hours of BCP pilots, prexy Basil Grillo revealed.

BCP potential pilots are "Mac Thompson," hour-long show about psychiatrists; "Coogan," half-hour comedy against a war background; "Destiny Bay," hour-long dramatic series created by Gil Ralston, although this may be pitched without a pilot, plus various other ventures now in negotiation.

BCP has in production one series, its "Ben Casey," hit of last season.

NAB Backs FCC Easing Of Radio Operator's Rule

Washington, Oct. 9.

National Assn. of Broadcasters has backed Federal Communications Commission legislation relaxing radio station operator requirements. But at the same time NAB took issue with another part of FCC rulemaking which calls for transmitter inspection at least once a day, six days a week.

Commission rulemaking on operators announced Aug. 2 provides an option for either a part-time first class operator or a full-time operator as present rules demand. Rulemaking applies to non directional AM's up to 10kw and FM's up to 25kw.

While praising the operator rulemaking, NAB said the inspection proviso "appears to negate somewhat" relief offered by operator rules.

NAB said the inspections were not only unnecessary but would add financial hardships to some stations.

Brit. ABC Shells Out 840G for 'Human Jungle' In 1st Big Coin Effort

London, Oct. 9.

Britain's ABC-TV, major indie which operates weekends in the Midlands and North, has laid $840,000 on the line for a 13-episode vidfilm skein called, "The Human Jungle." Series is being produced currently at Beaconsfield studios by Independent Artists.

Shows are based on the casebook of a London psychiatrist and will run for 60 minutes. Herbert Lom is the star with Sally Smith set as the femme lead. In what will be considered a surprise move by some sections of the trade, directive has gone out from ABC-TV to producers Julian Wintle and Leslie Parkyn that "no concession" is to be made to the mid-Atlantic accent. British actors only will be used.

Series is ABC-TV's first solo effort in big-budget vidfilmery although it coproduced "Sir Francis Drake" with Associated TeleVision and was responsible for lower budget tv films like "The Cheaters." "The Human Jungle," which has not been presold in any market, is expected to take about six months to complete.

How do you create two big new seasons in one?

1) A big new television season

Start with the country's finest talents in the performing arts, journalism, public affairs, and sports. Plan entertainment and information to span the wide range of America's tastes and interests. The NBC pattern.

Present big shows. Big hits of the theatre—like 'Teahouse of the August Moon.' Big national events—like the Election Night coverage. Big spectacles in sports—like the World Series.

Call on broadcasting's leading journalists for more than 30 reports a week. Offer a rich choice of nighttime viewing—most of it in living color. Build a daytime schedule that serves the interests of women and young people...

NBC NIGHTTIME SERIES—FALL '62

Sunday
McKeever and the Colonel, 6:30-7
Ensign O'Toole, 7-7:30
Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, 7:30-8:30 (Color)
Car 54 Where Are You? 8:30-9
Bonanza, 9-10 (Color)
DuPont Show of the Week, 10-11 (Color and b & w)

Monday
It's a Man's World, 7:30-8:30
Saints and Sinners, 8:30-9:30
The Price Is Right, 9:30-10 (Color)
David Brinkley's Journal, 10-10:30 (Color)

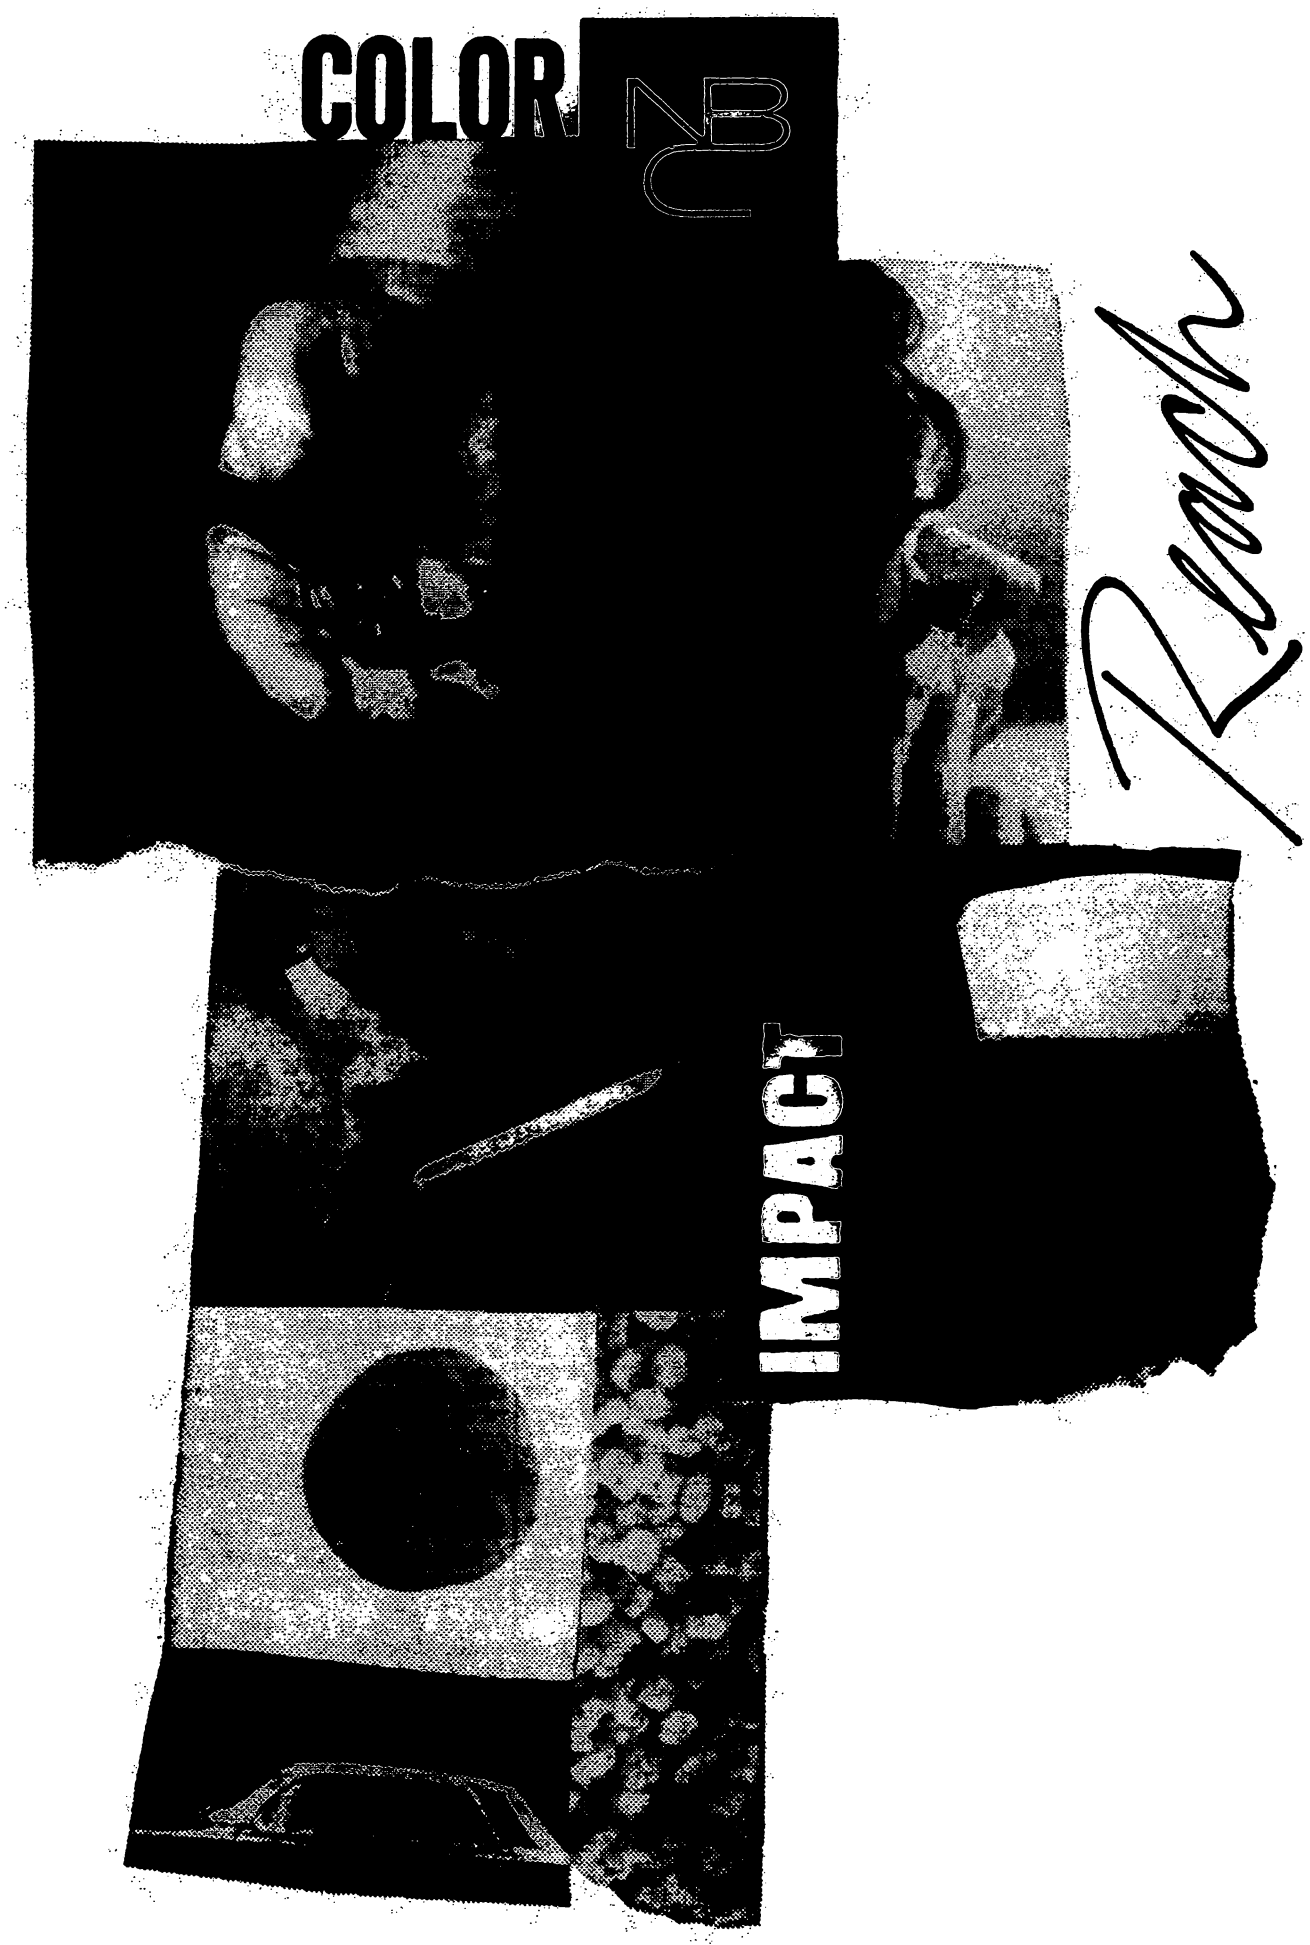
Tuesday
Laramie, 7:30-8:30 (Color)
Empire, 8:30-9:30 (Color)
The Dick Powell Show, 9:30-10:30
Chet Huntley Reporting, 10:30-11

Wednesday
The Virginian, 7:30-9 (Color)
Perry Como's Kraft Music Hall, 9-10 (Color)
The Eleventh Hour, 10-11

Thursday
Wide Country, 7:30-8:30
Dr. Kildare, 8:30-9:30
Hazel, 9:30-10 (Color)
The Andy Williams Show, 10-11 (Color)

Friday
International Showtime, 7:30-8:30
Sing Along With Mitch, 8:30-9:30 (Color)
Don't Call Me Charlie! 9:30-10
The Jack Paar Show, 10-11 (Color)

Saturday
Sam Benedict, 7:30-8:30
The New Joey Bishop Show, 8:30-9 (Color)
Saturday Night at the Movies, 9-11 (Color and b & w)



Monday through Friday
The Tonight Show starring Johnny Carson, 11:15-1:00 (Color)

2) A big new selling season

Television's challenge in the 1962-'63 season is to help build demand for an unprecedented output of goods and services. Its approach—tested through more than a decade—is to assemble, entertain, and inform audiences of millions from coast to coast.

With a strong regular schedule, with big Specials, with the finest news service in television—NBC creates a receptive mood for its sponsors' messages across the nation. This year, the total investment made by advertisers appearing on NBC is the largest for any season in the history of the NBC Television Network. It's a sure sign they plan a big new selling season.

Bates' O'Seas Payoff From Hardsell Geared to $100-Mil. in Five Years —On Other Madison Ave. Fronts

By BILL GREELEY

Ted Bates agency last week opened its third European branch, and board chairman Rosser Reeves is predicting that the shop's expansion into the Common Market will yield a total of $100,000,000 in billings within five years.

He also predicts that the overseas billings will return Bates a greater net than the New York office, which is now the fifth largest U. S. agency with an estimated gross of $150,000,000.

While the predictions seem fantastic, Reeves bases them on the agency's successes so far in the foreign market. In two-and-a-half years, he says, overseas billings have gone from zero to $32,000,000. Major branch is Hobson, Bates & Partners Ltd., London, which has climbed from $5,500,000 gross in '59 to $24,000,000 this year. There also are the Spitzer, Mills & Bates Ltd. offices in Toronto and Montreal, which were formed hotly after the London branch, and last year, AFP, Bates & Cie, Paris. To date the foreign offices have 550 employes and 85 accounts.

Third overseas branch, Ted Bates Werbegesellschaft GmbH, Frankfurt am Main, was not a merger as the others. It's starting as a complete service shop with a staff of 35 headed b Robert Eaton as general manager and Fritz K. Wolff, director of creative operations.

Beside his strong faith in the profit and billings potential of the branches, Reeves also has a firm belief in the Bate. famed hard-sell "unique selling proposition" as outlined in his book "Reality in Advertising" as a universal technique. Agency has found, he says, that campaigns that have been successful in the U. S. work with strikingly similar affect in Europe and England. And the London agency, in fact, has launched a couple of campaigns that went well in England and have been adopted for U. S. advertising.

Bates will definitely be making further steps in Europe, but where and when will be decided according to opportunity, says Reeves.

Cancer Spookers

Any doubt left about the tobacco industry's sensativity re cigs and cancer left after that CBS special on teen smokers should be cleared up by Tom Mackin, New Jersey newspaper video critic who has authored an article on tv taboos for the November Pageant mag.

His lead: "The well-known dramatic actress Judith Anderson was engaged last season to appear on the Arthur Murray television program. She was awarded a $500 prize for dancing, a talent hitherto hidden from her public.

"At the close of the video-taping of the show, she stepped toward the cameras and declared softly, 'I'd like to donate this $500 to the Beverly Hills chapter of the American Cancer Society.'

"The remark never got on the air. Reason? The sponsor was the maker of Newport cigarets."

Newport agency is Lennen & Newell, agency famed for deleting "gas chamber" from the Nazi war criminal drama on "Playhouse 90" because a sponsor was the ga[illegible] ction.

Adsville: Paul Jones whiskey to [illegible] agency. Move at [illegible] Kenyon & Eckhardt do Brazil for the [illegible] Universal Public Relations has [illegible] Hobbed an industrial film [illegible] with Leland M. Pyle.

Shell Buys Bernstein

[illegible] of the Leonard Bernstein N.Y. Philharmonic Young People's Concerts series's has been [illegible] for Nov. 21, Wednesday, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Shell Oil will sponsor, preempting "CBS Reports" that date.

Nov. 21 show, titled "The Sound of a Hall," will be a study of the [illegible] and its relationship to the music and to the particular sound of the new Philharmonic Hall at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

London Agencies

London, Oct. 9.

Link has taken place between Britain's Lonsdale-Hands Organization and Lennen & Newell of the U.S. New company, jointly owned by the agencies, is to be called Crossley, Lennen and Newell Ltd. . . . Both the Institute of Practioners in Advertising and the Advertisers have welcomed the report of the Royal Commission on the Press . . . Southern-TV offering local retaliers seven-second commercials to link their names to major campaigns . . . London Press Exchange, one of the U.K. leading ad agencies, finally published survey into "who watches the commercials," initial details of which added up to one big headache for the ad industry when they emerged last year . . . With a view to retaining the large ad-coin yielded by the "advertising magazine" programs—dropped by 11 of the commercial stations—the indies are huddling with leading agencies to work out a new format for clients who are "consistent" admag buyers.

Ink Joan Sutherland For TV Operatic Recital; U.S. Sale Via Michelson

Joan Sutherland has signed a deal with Television Corp. Ltd., Sydney, Australia, to star in a one-hour operatic special. The show, to be produced in England, is being handled in the U.S. for sale by Charles Michelson, N.Y., representative for TCN, Australia.

The Australian soprano will appear with the London Symphony Orch, under the baton of Pierre Monteux. It will be produced in the TWW Television Studios, Bristol, England. The program, called the most expensive ever produced for Australian tv, will be presented on the National Nine Network and associated stations throughout Australia about mid-November. Sale of world tv rights is under the control of TCN in association with Miss Sutherland and her husband Richard Bonynge. Also Australian, Bonynge, a pianist and conductor in his own right, may conduct some of the segments of the program.

British rights to the program have been secured by Associated Rediffusion.

NABET ELECTS SMITH FOR 4TH PREXY TERM

Chicago, Oct. 9.

George W. Smith was reelected to an unprecedented third term as international prexy of National Assn. of Broadcast Employes & Technicians at its constitutional convention here last week. He was opposed by four other candidates.

Arthur Hjorth was reelected International Secretary-Treasurer by acclamation, and Eugene Klumpp of Buffalo local 25 was elected International Veepee, filling a position vacated earlier this year. Klumpp has served two previous terms in that office.

WWCO, Wat'bury, Guilty Of Not Paying Overtime

Hartford, Oct. 9.

Guilty plea was made in Federal Court here by a Waterbury radio station WWCO, to charges of failure to pay time-and-a-half wages for overtime work by 16 employees of the station.

Sentence is to be passed on Oct. 29. Offense is a misdemeanor that carries a maximum fine of $10,000. Government charged that prexy Herbert Bloomberg and station failed to pay overtime for the period from Sept. 5, 1959 to July 27, 1961. Additional counts of the charge involved a claim that the station kept false records on hours worked by 10 employees and failed to keep other records.

Judge Rules Out Live TV For Most of Estes Trial; Violates Witness Rule

Tyler, Tex., Oct. 9.

District Judge Otis T. Dunagan ruled out live telecasts and live broadcasting for much of the scheduled Oct. 22 Billie Sol Estes case on the grounds that it violates laws regarding witnesses. He said cameras would continue to be allowed in the courtroom provided the State Bar of Texas does not hold against them.

The jurist said, "Television and radio should be given equal treatment with other news media insofar as the law governing trial procedure permits. I believe it would be rankest kind of discrimination between the news media to refuse these two sources of reporting the news equal access to news coming from the trial of lawsuits insofar as it can be done in keeping with proper court procedure."

Judge Dunagan said, however, that he was notifying both television and radio that live "casting would not be permitted during the questioning of jurors in testing their qualifications or of the witnesses" testimony.

To give such permission, the judge said, would violate the Texas witness rule which prohibits one witness from hearing the testimony of another.

Judge Dunagan said he was making the ruling because of the witness rule and not because of any criticism of his permitting live coverage of preliminary legal moves at the Sept. 24-25 session.

He said the television and broadcast coverage would be on a pool basis and designated Marshall Pengra, manager of KLTV-TV, here, in charge of the pool.

ANOTHER G-T QUIZZER GOES ON NBC DAYTIME

NBC-TV will add another Goodson-Todman quizzer to the daytime lineup Dec. 31 when "The Match Game" preems from 4 to 4:30 p. m. New strip will bring G-T's weekly half hours to a total of 35.

A two-team game with contestants matching each other's answers to a given question, will originate in New York with host and production crew to be announced.

NBC-TV is cancelling "Here's Hollywood," its daily 4:30 p.m. entry. Since "Match Game" will take the 4 p.m. cross-the-board slot, Danny Thomas' telefilm reruns, now at 4, will move back to 4:30 at the time of the change.

British, Swiss Networks Cop Top Verona Prizes

Verona, Oct. 9.

British and Swiss radio-tv nets won top prizes in the annual Prix Italia contests sponsored by RAI-TV, the Italo telenet.

"The Damned," a musical drama written for radio, won the $3,320 first prize for the Swiss radio-tv network. It was written by Marcel Van Thinen (music) and Rene de Obaldia (text).

"The Ballad of Pekham Rye," presented by Britain's BBC, won the same money for the literary-dramatic division.

Television kudos were divided among French, British, and West German network presentations.

Best original musical presentation for tv was France's (RTF) ballet, "The Girls of Fire," directed by Youri and with music by Maurice Jarre. It won a $2,288 Prix Italia award.

In the tv drama section, Karl Wittlinger's "Vagabondage of the Soul" entered by the W. German networks was the jury's selection, while the BBC's "The World of Television," by Richard Cawston, was its choice in the tv documentary division.

A Swedish entry in the dramatic division, Birgit Linton-Malmfors' "Festive Banquet for the Returned" won the $1,600 "Prix Verona" awarded by the same jury.

Only Yank win at the Italo event, considered one of top yearly gatherings on the Continent, was Studs Terkel's "Born to Live," which won the $1,000 Unesco "East-West" prize.

Documentary is second one presented at the "Prix Italia" in recent years by the Yank writer-director.

TV-Radio Production Centres

IN NEW YORK CITY . . .

Raymond (Perry Mason) Burr into Mt. Sinai Hospital, Los Angeles, for checkup and rest . . . CBS-TV prexy Jim Aubrey and web's program brass Hubbell Robinson and Alan Courtney, back from Coast . . . Bob Livingstone, CBS-TV's Pacific Coast sales manager, back to L.A. . . . CBS-TV's Andy Griffith back to Coast after a brief trek eastward . . . Ann Flood, expecting a baby shortly, replaced by Frances Helm in CBS-TV soaper, "Edge of Night" . . . Daniel Schorr, CBS News' Bonn correspondent, back to Germany after a stopover in N.Y. to work on script for Nov. 4 "Twentieth Century" episode . . . Danny Thomas will direct his Nov. 19 CBS-TV comedy episode . . . Jim Lavenstein, administrative manager, CBS-TV's network program department, has left on a Radio Free Europe inspection tour. He returns Oct. 23 . . . Irene Ryan is taking time off from CBS-TV's "The Beverly Hillbillies," to appear in a children's safety film "A Tour of the White House with Mrs. John F. Kennedy," a new book written by Perry Wolff and based on the CBS News telecast, published Friday (5) by Doubleday & Co. The book, which retails at $7.95, has been chosen for distribution by the Better Homes & Gardens Book Club. It contains 256 pages, 150 of them illustrated . . . Sportscaster Chris Schenkel is now being represented by Vincent Andrews since the demise of MCA . . . WCBS radio's waker-upper Jack Sterling is back behind the mike following a two week golfing vacation . . . Dick Novik, son of WLIB general manager Harry Novik, is taking his masters degree at Columbia U. He spends part time learning the radio biz at his dad's station . . . Films of the first Telstar broadcast as seen on CBS-TV have been presented to the Library of Congress . . . Alan Landsburg, production exec at Wolper Productions, has been promoted to producer on "Biography" . . . Dave Williams, eastern manager, CBS-TV affil relations, has left for Atlanta to attend the regional National Assn. of Broadcasters meetings and the fifth annual affils' breakfast there which will be held Monday (15) . . . Isaac Kleinerman, producer of CBS-TV's Twentieth Century," left for Europe last week (4) for three weeks filming in Spain and Ethiopia for the upcoming season's documentary series. James Ffichney will direct a two-parter on Spain and Harry Rasky has been tapped to direct the report on Ethiopia . . . Vancouver International Film Festival awarded two certificates of merit to "The Story of an Artist" and "The Story of a Prisoner," two episodes in the United Artists Television "The Story of . . ." series, produced by David Wolper . . . CBS-TV's election night anchorman Walter Cronkite hosts tonight's (Wed.) hour special, "Campaign '62: Progress Report" . . . Allen Ludden, host of daytime and nighttime "Password" on CBS-TV, has recorded a series of 36 five-minute pubservice radio features for the U.S. Marine Corp. The series, directed at teenagers, is based on Ludden's four successful books dealing with teenage problems.

WPIX kidvid emcee Chuck McCann will be doing seven and a half hours a week beginning Oct. 14 with his Monday-Friday strip, expansion of the "Lets Have Fun" Sunday spread to four hours and a new "Laurel, Hardy & Chuck" Sunday outing . . . Don Carney upped to director at WPIX . . . Harlem station WLIB's "The Editors Speak" show has guested New York State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz (candidate for reelection) and will guest gubernatorial aspirant Robert Morgenthau . . . Mutual has a new affiliate in Taft station WBRC, Birmingham, Ala.

Julie Harris to front as Liza Doolittle in the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" version of "Pygmalion," slated for NBC-TV the night of Feb. 6 . . . Alexander King, Marguerite Piazza and Peggy Cass all scheduled for Jack Paar guest shots on Friday (12) . . . Jim Lucas is Paar's new warmup man and besides that he's filling in on NBC-TV's daytime "Concentration" for Hugh Downs. Downs is out working up Caribbean footage for his daily "Today" stint . . . Syeus Mottel is deputy director of radio-tv in the N.Y. guberatorial campaign of Dem candidate Robert Morgenthau . . . Charles Michelson, tv program exporter-importer, off to England for a fortnight . . . NBC research director Dr. Thomas Coffin doing a luncheon stand in Chicago—before local chapter of the American Marketing Assn., and his topic revolves around "media research."

IN CHICAGO

WBBM Radio, in an effort to refresh its live sound, has added Louise Drake to its vocal staff and is looking for a new vocal group. King's Jesters have pulled out after two decades on the station, as has chirper Gini Patton . . . Bill Ray, onetime WNBQ news director and now a member of the FCC staff, has been in town but not noticeably. Understood he's checking out Gordon McLendon's "reassessment of the market needs" in dropping foreign language programs from WYNR . . . Agency topper Edwards H. Weiss addressed Chi Broadcast Advertising Club yesterday (Tues.) . . . John Harrington started a new early ayem strip of on-the-street interviews on WBBM Radio . . . Patti Wilkus, former g.m. of Academy Film Productions, has joined the broadcast production staff of R. Jack Scott agency . . . Charles McCuen has a documentary on the Windy City key clubs which WNBQ will air next Monday (15) . . . Stuart Brent, book reviewer on WBKB, tossing a party at his Boul Mich bookshop on Tuesday for his own opus, "The Seven Stairs". WBBM Radio again is broadcasting the opening night festivities of the Lyric Opera and the entire performance of "Prince Igor" as a four hour public service this Friday (12). Jay Andres and Larry Attebery will do the opera commentary, and Lee Phillip and Mal Bellairs the color and intermission interviews . . . Shelly Cooper upgraded to executive producer of WGN-TV and Brad Hofmann named continuity director . . . WGN-TV has set a schedule of 11 hockeycasts of the Chicago Blackhawks this winter.

IN LONDON

Eddie Albert in to star in a drama with BBC-TV . . . Michael Barry, seconded to Telefis Eireann as program chieftain, has returned to BBC-TV. No official hint yet as to what post he will now hold . . . Fourth series of Granada Lectures—given annually—opens this month and is themed: "Communication in the Modern World" . . . BBC-Radio introduced a new 75 minute jazz series in the Light Program and thus patched up a row with leading jazz exponent hereabouts, Johnny Dankworth . . . Hughie Green, host of the "Double Your Money" quiz game is set for the lead role in a series of comedy-cum-mystery outings, tabbed "Green for Danger," over Associated-Rediffusion . . . BBC-TV prepping an hour-long pop music skein for Saturday night prime time . . . Radio Industries Council has announced there will be no radio show next year although one can be expected in '64 . . . Producer-director Kenneth Hume completed a half-hour pilot comedy skein "The Secret Keepers" with Alma Cogan and Frankie Howerd.

IN WASHINGTON

WWDC radio has the news coup of the week with a special hookup during the Ole Miss riots to college's station WCBH. An anonymous professor was on the line to Washington from 10 p.m. Sunday to 10 a.m. Monday in the thick of the campus chaos . . . Every tv and full time radio station in D.C. area broadcast the hour long United Givers Fund kick off . . . Mal Oettinger is new NBC Washington info coordinator. He replaces Bud Rukeyser, named web's national director of program publicity . . . D.C. stations getting hep to local politics. WRC-TV is having

(Continued on page 42)

CRITICAL TEMPEST IN TV POT

Britain's Top 20 TV Shows

(Week Ending Sept. 30)

	Homes Viewing (000's)
Coronation Street (Mon.)—GRANADA	7992
Coronation Street (Wed.)—GRANADA	7757
Armchair Theatre—ABC	6817
Sunday Palladium—ATV	6817
Play of the Week—GRANADA	6229
No Hiding Place—AR	6229
Emergency Ward 10 (Fri.)—ATV	6229
Sportsview (Wed.)—BBC	5877
Take Your Pick—AR	5633
Last Witness (Film)—BBC	5524
Bruce Forsyth Show—ATV	5524
Winning Widows—ATV	5417
Maigret—BBC	5406
Emergency Ward 10 (Tues.)—ATV	5406
Take a Letter—GRANADA	5323
Double Your Money—AR	5289
Harpers West One (Mon.)—ATV	5106
Z Cars—BBC	5054
This Week—AR	4819
Man of the World—ATV	4584

Senate Subcommittee Opening Probe Into Radio-TV Campaign Policies

Washington, Oct. 9.

It may come as a surprise to some not up to date on how their money is being wasted in Washington that a Senate Commerce Subcommittee set up in 1960 to watch the behavior of radio-television stations in that campaign has been operating with a full budget for the two years since, with not an election to watch.

But work, as it must to all men, has once again come the subcommittee's way.

And Sen. Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.), chairman of this unique group, said in a Senate speech that the subcommittee intends to send questionnaires (at government expense) to all radio-tv licensees to get their records in the 1962 Congressional campaign.

"The performance of licensees," Yarborough said, "in seeing that the public is informed, and, in those cases where there are only two candidates for a given office, just what steps were taken by the licensees to help to inform the public, is a matter of great concern to a Senate dedicated to freedom and fairness, of which this subcommittee is the representative.

"The subcommittee," he continued, "as a 'watchdog committee' would also like to know which licensees make available time on a commercial basis and which licensees refuse to sell time for political purposes. The subcommittee has been advised that there are licensees who refused to sell any time for political speeches or discussion programs, in what appears to be a flat violation of their obligation to operate in the public interest. Some licensees will only sell political spots or commercials of less than one-minute duration. Some radio licensees contend that their 'news and music' format precludes the sale of political time."

Yarborough expressed the opinion that 1959 legislation allowing broadcasters the license of "editorial discretion" does not permit them to "discriminate in favor of one candidate and against another."

Anti-TV Play Due As Pilot

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Spinning off a tv pilot from a new Broadway play, believed to be the first time attempted, is the plan of Sheperd Traube, who will produce "Memo" on Broadway with Macdonald Carey starred.

Play by Allan Scott will be a satirical indictment of tv, the main character being a composite of David Susskind, Pat Weaver and other publicized figures in tv's upper echelon. Fable tells of a high-minded tv executive who goes to the desert to "find himself." The television would be considerably "toned down" so as not to offend network nabobs.

PAAR'S RIPLEY

N. Y. Journal-American Sells TV Listings and Paar Buys 'Em

The N. Y. Journal-American last week started selling its tv listings and tapped the moneybags of a guy most folks would consider a most unlikely preem customer—Jack Paar.

Gimmick for a fee is an all-caps boldface squib which dominates the hour-by-hour charts (without being identified as paid advertising). Besides Paar, the Friday J-A boldfaced WOR-TV's "Big Preview," a weekly feature pix outing preeming with "Friendly Persuasion." WOR's paid bit rated a cross reference to and listing in the paper's TV Key feature, which previews top attractions of the night.

But Paar, who had been a severe critic of Hearst and J-A columnist Dorothy Kilgallen when hosting NBC's "Tonight," didn't make the Key for the second outing of his prime time Friday hour. In fact, the gremlins were at work on his paid bit (bought by the Paar org, not NBC). He came out "JACK PARR!" Maybe the bang was gratis.

Bob Macrae Vice Hal Maag as RCA S.W. Sales Veepee

After 35 years with RCA, H. R. (Hal) Maag is retiring at the end of this year, and Robert M. Macrae succeeds his current spot as staff vicepresident, southwestern distributor and commercial relations for Radio Corp. of America.

For the present, Maag will handle "special assignments" for RCA, which said he "has chosen early retirement." One of the reasons motivating the vet corporate exec is a desire to live elsewhere than the southwest. Prior to his Dallas assignment he had headed RCA operations in Hollywood until John K. West, ex-NBC (L.A.), succeeded him.

Macrae previously was distribution veepee for RCA Victor in Canada. He is a son-in-law of Frank M. Folsom, former RCA prexy, now chairman of the executive committee.

Call Letters Confuse FCC

Washington, Oct. 9.

A WJIM-TV in Lansing, Mich., and a WILM-TV in Grand Rapids is too confusing, FCC ruled last week.

Commission stayed the assignment of the WILM call letters to Channel 13, Grand Rapids, ordering reconsideration of the letters since WJIM already operates on Channel 6 in Lansing.

BLAST MEDIUM AT ACAD MEET

By ART WOODSTONE

Everybody else seems to pick on television but it's news when the television industry publicly picks on itself for mediocrity and worse. And that's exactly what has happened—twice in eight days.

Late last month, in Hollywood, a special membership meeting of Writers Guild of America, West, joined in a rap against "tv's soapiness formula." In a sense, that's nothing, because, some point out, that writers are always picking on tv—but these writers are from "industry-oriented" coast, where open criticism is noteworthy.

More important, these dissident voices were joined last Thursday (4) in N. Y. by composers, musicians, directors, producers, set designers, performers, public affairs specialists and by other writers. Like so many ack-ack shells, each group exploded in succession with a strong, loud criticism of the current tv industry.

Scene was a forum, one of those "whither goest tv" affairs which occasionally generate a mildly bad word or two about video. This was staged by the Academy of TV Arts & Sciences, and each craft was represented at a table of its own. The pot simmered, for nearly two hours and, observers say, might not have boiled over if it were not for the remarks of the "management table."

Spokesman for tv management, after conferring with others at his table, said the only conclusion they could reach was failure to define "quality" programming or the "average" tv audience. It didn't take but a second for the works to go up. Since then, some industryites have tried to explain away the scene by suggesting, with the zeal of boy scouts, that "it's healthy to blow off steam."

Some of the men who criticized the industry said later that, far from merely blowing off steam, they intended to work openly and repeatedly to change at least one phase of tv—"an apologist TV Academy." This was on the theory that a strong trade org can pinprick management.

David Davidson, speaking for the tv writers gathered at this roundtable, at the new Americana Hotel, rose and expressed "extreme disatisfaction with what we regard as the worst season ever perpetrated in television—one met with mixed reviews, a phrase which George Kaufman once defined as 'good and rotten'."

Then, piecemeal, television was torn apart. Nobody denied each craft had an axe to grind, but the pieces, they later maintained, made an awsome whole to a jigsaw puzzle.

Directors Join In

The directors were quoted as saying they were drifting and saw no prospect for improvement. The set designers, mute until now, said that they had "lost their integrity—that nobody care on the management level what the sets looked like," provided they were not expensively wrought.

Paul Taubman, speaking for composers, said of tv. scores that the same musical tape was often used for a scene wherein "a man bleeds to death at the feet of his wife as for fading in on the main postoffice in Washington." Speaking for actors, comedian Alan King charged tv was an "insult" to an audience's intelligence.

It's natural, some feel, for public affairs—"tv's elite"—to blast other facets of the medium. But Al Pearlmutter, empowered to speak for this socalled elite, at the Academy meeting, criticized public affairs itself and, apparently, the managements which ordered such programming made. For one thing, the speaker was reported as saying, they want more hard news and less in the way of public affairs "features," or in other words, everything in tv these days has got to have impact.

Not the least of the criticism was leveled directly at the Academy it-

(Continued on page 42)

TV Webs Pushing Pilot Projects To Shape Up 1963-64 Schedule In Earliest Teeoff of Buying Season

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

In the firm belief that buying for 1963-64 tv season will be earlier than ever, three networks are launching pilot projects ahead of their usual timetable. CBS-TV, for example, has decreed all pilots in which it has an interest must go into production by mid-month.

It's a far cry from pattern of the past, when pilots were turned out at a leisurely pace, some not rolling off the assembly lines until March and even later.

Illustrative of the new modus operandi is the top-level gathering here of CBS-TV brass, headed by prexy James T. Aubrey Jr., to decide which network-involved pilots should get the green light.

And ABC-TV quietly is already in coproduction with Revue Studios on four pilots, which are being shot as the first four segs of "The Best Years" series, slated for 1963-64 season. ABC-TV also has made a commitment for coproduction with MGM-TV pilot of "The Travels of Jamie McPheeter.

Execs of all the networks began their planning for 1963-64 last summer, with the N.Y. toppers commuting frequently to the Coast for looksees at new blueprints from Hollywood production companies, and, as in the case of CBS-TV, from its own creative staff also.

Aubrey said the network is considering pilots projects from various Hollywood production companies, and some created by its staff here. 'We have a long list of properties we are considering for pilot production," said Aubrey.

He said he wants all pilots in which CBS-TV has an interest to be completed, and in N.Y. by the first part of January. Asked why the early buying season for 1963-64, he replied there was no particular reason except that "the buying season seems to be getting earlier every year." CBS-TV program chief Hubbell Robinson arrived here to participate in pilot project meetings.

A Small Discount

The only thing the tv industry has to look to, said writer David Davidson at a TV Academy "self-condemnation meeting" last week, is Hubbell Robinson, CBS-TV program chief and the man who once supported 90-minute tv dramas.

"We are all waiting," said the writer, "for Hubbell to come up with a 'Playhouse 89,' just a little under 'Playhouse 90.'"

Brit. Comm'l TV Retains Big Lead In Top 20 Roster

London, Oct. 9.

Stuart Hood's big play for Sunday's video honors has, so far, not been wholly effective. For the BBC program controller hasn't been able to make any significant dent in the Associated TeleVision Sunday status despite his canny reshuffling of "Perry Mason" from Saturdays to Sundays.

To be fair, at this stage BBC has not brought its clickeroo "Black And White Minstrel Show" into the fray—and this could make a significant difference to the whole rating pattern for Sunday evening. And ATV's much-lauded "The Saint" was just kept out of the top 20 racks by a BBC oneshot entry, a circus. In short, Sunday is still wide open.

In essence, the same goes for the rest of the week with the possible exception of Wednesday nights. Here, BBC-TV has established a firm lead of the opposition with three shows zipping into the TAM (Television Audience Measurement) toprater listings, "Z Cars," a Yank film and "Sportsview" (feature: the Liston-Patterson squabble).

Whether the success of the previous two programs is geared to the boxing film (which was shown last of the three) is anybody's guess, though BBC would say "Z Cars" has built up a substantial following and thus could make it without a Liston-Patterson dual in the offing as it were.

BBC-TV has been highly successful with "Maigret" which, in for its third run, has shifted to 9:25 p.m. on Mondays. Show not only whipped Granada-TV's 90-minute venture "The Verdict Is Yours" on the opposite channel but earned 13th notch in the TAM scorecard beating such notable highraters as "Emergency-Ward 10," "Take A Letter," and "Double Your Money."

At this early stage in the fall skeds, the general view of the British tv scene spells out champ status once again for the independent web. Latter has more than 75% of the top 20 entries.

BUICK, CELOTEX BUY ABC'S HUFF & BRAGAN

Buick Motors and Celotex Corp. have picked up the tab for ABC Radio's new sports shows featuring N.Y. Giant football star Sam Huff and former major league baseball manager Bobby Bragan. Huff and Bragan will be on the air Saturdays and Sundays, supplementing the network's sports coverage by Tom Harman and Howard Cosell.

Buick is sponsoring six of the eight shows Huff and Bragan will do each weekend. Celotex will bankroll two of the Saturday shows.

Garry Moore Co. Rolls 2 Pilots

Two pilot films, one starring the comedy team of Allen & Rossi, and the second, titled "Curly," will go into production by Nov. 1 under the banner of Garry Moore's Red Wing Productions Inc. Red Wing now produces Moore's tv and radio shows. This will be the first production of the nine-year-old company in which Moore has not performed.

Marlo Lewis, who for several years was exec producer of comedy and variety at CBS-TV, will assume the same position with the two pilots in association with Moore.

Pilot starring Marty Allen & Steve Rossi has a comedy concept developed by comedy writers Vincent Bogert, Arnie Rosen and Coleman Jacoby who are on the writing staff of "The Garry Moore Show." Ted Key, who created the cartoon character of "Hazel," now a tv series, has created a rascal-grandpa type called "Curly" which has been developed into situation comedy stories for the projected series. Budd Grossman will be the writer for the project.

Moore's Telecast Productions produces the panel show, "I've Got A Secret" in partnership with CBS-TV.

Kane Joins UTM

Arnold Kane has joined United Talent Management where he will handle writers and directors signed with the agency.

Kane has been directing on various nets for a number of years.

"...he (Johnny Carson) went to work at radio-TV station WOW in Omaha. There he distinguished himself by taking the side of pigeons in a raging civic issue. The birds were defacing City Hall, and local boosters had started a campaign. 'Get rid of the pigeons' was the slogan. To give the pigeons equal time, Carson conducted mock interviews with them, translating their soft cries into pleas for mercy. Soon a natural-gas company in Omaha, touched to its corporate core, formally invited the pigeons to sit on its ledges any time they chose."

--Excerpted from a TV GUIDE profile by

Roger Kahn. It is typical of what you will see in TV GUIDE this week, next week, any week. All of it about television, edited for readers who want to know more about television than how to turn it on or off. This week more people will buy TV GUIDE to read about television than will buy any other magazine to read about anything else. Best-selling weekly magazine in America.

PERRY COMO'S KRAFT MUSIC HALL
With Perry Como, Don Adams, Kaye Ballard, Sandy Stewart, Pierre Olaf, Frank Gallop the Mitchell Ayres Orch., Ray Charles Singers, Peter Gennaro Dancers
Producer: Nick Vanoff
Director: Dwight Henion
Writers: Goodman Ace, Selma Diamond, Jay Burton, Frank Peppiatt, John Aylesworth
60 Mins.; Wed., 9 p.m.
KRAFT FOODS
NBC-TV (tape & film)
(J. Walter Thompson)

Lest there be any doubt about it, Perry Como digs golf. That was more than evident from his NBC-TV season opener last Wednesday (3), when the crooner began his eighth year of hour-long shows for the web.

His guests for this stint were golf pros Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus. To say that they and their sport dominated the show would be an understatement. A good bit of it was shot at the Sands Point (L.I.) Golf Course. These segments (they kept cropping up throughout the show) were interesting to a point, humerous to a point and even entertaining to a point. But if the viewer didn't share the host's interest in golf—forget it. The guestints by the pros worked out better than the usual idea of having a guestar hit practise balls into the audience from the stage but it was almost impossible to follow the shots on the tv screen as photographed so, except for some putting, the action was half wasted.

Meanwhile, back at the studio, production values were up to their usual slickly designed and expertly used standards. A somewhat long opening with Como screaming at the top of his lungs (there's a switch) in a barren studio could have used some pruning. The singer's "family," consisting of Don Adams, Kaye Ballard, Jack Duffy and Sandy Stewart welcomed a new member in Pierre Olaf with a skit about having mixed emotions regarding the newcomer. It was okay but weak.

Carol Haney, who's subbing as choreographer while Peter Gennaro works on "Mr. President," designed a well-executed dance number, the Ray Charles Singers and Mitch Ayres Orch combined for a pleasant rendition of "Sweetest Sounds," and Como warbled "I Left My Heart In San Francisco," "Fly Me To the Moon" and, as part of his usual stool & sweater finale, "What's New."

The crooner's velvet, super-relaxed singing style remains as smooth as ever. Nick Vanoff produces and Dwight Hemion staged the opener with scope and pace for the most part. Ayres and Charles handle musical chores well and Miss Haney's choreography sparkled. Gary Smith continues to design interesting and spacious settings for the productions. Writing could be sharper but is generally quick and effective, under the guidance of Goodman Ace and his team.

The show continues to maintain the values that have made it a steady winner through the years, although the opener could have used a little less time on the links, especially considering that the golf season is all but over. All things considered, however, it looks like another big year for Perry, Kraft and NBC color. Kali.

TOAST THE WINNING TWINS
With Ray Scott, others
Producer-director: Lloyd Boikcom
Writer: Charles Ruhr
30 Mins.: Sun. (30), 9 p.m.
HAMM BREWG. CO.
WTCN-TV, Minneapolis

In an area that has been big league baseball mad, it was another of this Time-Life station's many bright ideas to ring down the curtain on the diamond sport's season locally with this show after having televised the games.

Tuners-in had brought back via video tape a number of the most thrilling camera-caught live action from various of the past-season games. They also met the players, the managers, coaches and owner Cal Griffith.

Players and other guests were seated on both sides of the long parallel tables with emcee Ray Scott and his assistants. Herb Carneal and Halsey Hall, doing their bits from the centre.

It was a well put-together show that reflected credit on producer-director Lloyd Boikcom and writer Charles Ruhr. Rees.

GOING MY WAY
With Gene Kelly, Leo G. Carroll, Dick York, Nydia Estman, Robert Emhardt, Will Kuluva, Russell Collins, others
Producer: Joe Connelly
Director: Joe Pevney
Writer: Emmet Lavery (based on story by Juanita Vaughn)
60 Mins., Wed., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

"Going My Way" is a vidseries sequel to the 1944 Paramount feature about an old and a young Roman Catholic priest and the part they play in the affairs of a low income, melting pot community of Manhattan. While it is anything but a momentous entry in the new season, it could do all right on the strength of its co-stars, Gene Kelly and Leo G. Carroll, and on its appeal as a family show.

Wired for sentimentality and moral lessons, it ought to get the endorsement of parent-teachers groups and others seeking wholesomeness in prime time television; but whether there's a great enough variety of storylines in the format to sustain it in the crossfire of "The Virginians," "Dobie Gillis," "Beverly Hillbillies" and Perry Como should be determined early in the season. First impression is that it could fare far better as a 30 minute show.

Opening episode picks up just about where the motion picture left off, with the old priest, played by Carroll, yearning to revisit his old hometown of Ballymora, Ireland. He gets the opportunity, via the eccentric generosity of a Polish parishioner, but the younger priest (Kelly) learns that the lovely little burg has been industrialized, and realizing that the old fellow is bound to be disenchanted he tries to keep him from going. By one of those wonderful theatrical coincidences, another parishioner produces a letter from a nephew in Ireland who'd like to come to the U.S., and the old priest decides that dreams for the future are more important than derams of the past. That wisdom is underscored by a little old-fashioned patriotism.

A subplot in the preeemer had to do with vandalism on the part of kids in the neighborhood who belonged to the local community center, run by Dick York, and presumably—as in the film—the delinquent youngsters will play a prominent part in the series.

The role of the young priest, originated by Bing Crosby, seems cut perfectly to Gene Kelly's cloth; and while Leo G. Carroll seems a bit younger than Barry Fitzgerald was in the original, he too is well cast. Kelly gets an opportunity to do some singing and dancing, and Carroll has a momentary heart seizure, both of which seemed necessary to help along a thin plot. Les.

GUNSMOKE
With James Arness, Milburn Stone, Amanda Blake, Dennis Weaver, Sherry Jackson
John Dehner, Robert Doyle
Producer: Norman Macdonnell
Director: Sobey Martin
Writer: Kathleen Hite
60 Mins.: Sat. 10 p.m.
PARTICIPATION
CBS-TV (film)

"Gunsmoke" is now in its second season of hour-long shows and its eighth as a CBS-TV sagebrush series. It's expanded format has made room for a wider range of story lines and character development and, as demonstrated in last Saturday's (6) seg, can make for some entertaining and unusual yarns.

This stanza centered on hobbling deputy, Chester (Dennis Weaver). He got mixed up with a family of drifters, the daughter of which had her mind set on settlin' down and picked Chester to set up housekeeping with. Well, Chester liked the girl all right but didn't take to her tactics, especially when she invited him to meet the folks (a father and brother) and then, when he got there, told her Pa that she had spend the night with him. It was a lie. But the family didn't know it and when Chester tried to explain a demonic brother almost split his skull with a set of brass knuckles.

Eventually, Marshal Dillon came to the rescue and the family moved on. Weaver turned in a solid job, mixing the comedy and dramatics nicely, and continuing the image of Chester as a man wise beyond his seemingly scatterbrained exterior. Sherry Jackson, a cute and appealing young actress, did well as the girl with the urge to settle, displaying both light and serious moods effectively. John Dehner was credible as her drifter father to whom the grass was always greener over the next mountain and Robert Doyle was properly sadistic as the girl's shiftless brother.

James Arness as the Marshal did his usual competent job and Milburn Stone and Amanda Blake also registered well in their regular roles. Kathleen Hite's script tended toward over-pictorial dialog but her story line held up well. Sobey Martin directed with good pace and style. Production values were fine.

From the looks of things, "Gunsmoke" seems headed down another successful season's trail. It maintains all the values that have made it a fave oater through the years and holds up well in its expanded size. Re-runs of its original half-hour episodes which have more scope and development and which offer just about everything the sagebrush buff hankers. Kali.

ALCOA PREMIERE
(Flashing Spikes)
With Fred Astaire, host; James Stewart, Jack Warden, Patrick Wayne, Edgar Buchanan, Tige Andrews, Mary Riley, Carleton Young, others
Associate Producer: Frank Baur (for Revue)
Director: John Ford
Writer: Jameson Brewer (from Frank O'Rourke novel)
60 Mins., Thurs., 10 p.m.
ALCOA
ABC-TV (film)
(Fuller, Smith & Ross)

Best thing about the initial hour of this Fred Astaire-hosted series was the name value of James Stewart, who once more in his long career essayed a baseball player. This time the baseball player had been ejected from the organized professional sport for taking a bribe.

"Alcoa Premiere" (on alternate weeks, when there are different sponsor considerations, it is called "Fred Astaire Presenting") is a slight, but slick effort, but so long as it can muster name power like that of Stewart's then it stands a chance of surviving the Thursday-at-10 tv wars. The first story, shown Oct. 4, was not compelling in its own right.

A young baseball giant was called up before the commissioner on charges of taking a world series bribe from the disfavored Stewart. It turned out that he was merely receiving an invitation to the nice old man's fishing camp in Florida. And because Stewart for no apparent reason doted so long and so faithfully over the young man, it seemed that he was doing penance for his own crime against baseball. Hardly; it turned out that he was a nice guy through and through; and for a climax, he suddenly admitted (and everyone believed him just as suddenly) that he was framed.

The finale was a garbled paean to that great American pastime because the falsely accused bribe taker loved baseball so much he took the bad rap like a man.

Stewart was gentle and appealing as the old ballplayer. Jack Warden, Edgar Buchanan, Tige Andrews and Mary Riley were okay as an assorted bunch of goodies. Carleton Young was unconvincing as the mean newspaperman who accuses the kid ballplayer and his old friend. The youngster was enacted by Patrick Wayne, son of John. Wayne was a personable kid, who acted precisely like a baseball player hired by a film producer to act like a baseball player.

Revue not only got Stewart and the son of John Wayne to bolster ranks but it also utilized the large talent of director John Ford to meg the opening hour film. Ford is considered a great director for a number of reasons, one of them is not necessarily slickness. This was a slick show, right down to the insertion of Korean war footage that had absolutely nothing to do with the story. Art.

THE DISSENTERS
With Gene Shepherd
Producer-Director: Deborah Miller
30 mins., Sun. 12 p.m.
WCAU-TV, Philadelphia

Gene Shepherd, who had a devoted clique some years ago when he was a local deejay, and who developed a larger following on WOR, N. Y., hosts a new series which features area's minority viewpoints, to include everything from "food fads to socialism," "from osteopathy to pacifism."

Guest for opener was Malcolm X., a Black Muslim said to be the first lieutenant of Elijah Muhammad, the "prophet" and leader of the group advocating black supremacy. A paper cutout pattern of a lone black figure in the center surrounded by all white figures introed the session. Shepherd, leaving his stream of consciousness gab elsewhere, hammered away and pinpointed every question. But his adversary was hard to nail down on such issues as hate and supremacy. The Muslim rep had plenty of platform savvy and experience from personal appearances on radio and before audiences.

Stanza was peppered with quite a few snappers. Malcolm X took off when questioned about singer Dakota Staton's disclaiming sect. According to their chosen spokesman Miss Staton was not a true Muslim, since one of their cult would never appear "half clothed" in a nightclub singing to drunks or people who are drinking. He stated also that chirp's record sales had slumped since expressing her views on the group.

Guest professed respect for Governor Orville Faubus "because he is no hyprocrite." He had none for the liberals, who, he declared, "really feel the same as the Governor. They both know that integration won't work and can't be fixed." The Black Muslims favor total separation of the races and have asked the President for a separate state. Shepherd declared this sounded like "the statement of a colored Faubus." Asked if he believed blacks to be superior, Malcolm X went into a dissertation on genes and stated his race would outproduce the whites. When the interviewer tried to hold him to the "superiority" poser, he continued his talk about genes and the "Prophet."

Malcolm X smiled several times, but not when he was asked about his published statement concerning the Atlanta art group killed in a European plane crash. He glowered and called it "the wrath of God. They were upper class Georgians, and according to the leader, deserved their fate." If the rest of Shepherd's series with the local malcontents generates as many sparks as this one did there will be no dissenters to the program. Gagh.

THE GALLANT MEN
With Robert McQueeney, William Reynolds, Robert Ridgely, Richard X. Slattery, Eddie Fontaine, Rcland LaStarza, Robert Gothie, Roger Davis, William Windom, Sharon Hugeny, William Quinn, Robert Fortier
Producer: Richard Bluel
Director: Robert Altman
Writer: Halsted Welles
60 Mins., Friday, 7:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

Unlike ABC-TV's other war drama, "Combat"—an item with quality production and some thoughtfulness — "The Gallant Men" has the clear stamp of the Warner Bros. assembly-line technique.

Scripting, direction, music and an oldfashioned overall gloss gave the preem of this war correspondent's tale a wrap-leggin atmosphere in a combat-boot era. Battle scenes were loaded with running and falling men and billowing black smoke from hand grenades (which give off hardly any smoke at all, if truth be known). Rain and wind machines also got a big play. Cliched contrivances of plot in Halsted Welles' script were out of the celluloid west. Howard Jackson's scoring was of the blatant variety that has accomped the cattle into the river for more than three decades. There was a tune with lyrics, "My Heart Belongs to You" (Sy Miller), which should drive these dogfaces of the Fifth Infantry to "Roll Me Over" for the rest of the trip to Rome—if the series can hold out till they get there.

Lead Robert McQueeney as combat correspondent Conley Wright—in striking imitation of the late Ernie Pyle without any credit or inference—shapes as a fair focal for the GI yarns that will be spun around feature players. He, however, is not likely to hook a following on his own. In fact, the one character in the opener with a sustained-aud potential was knocked off. That was guest star William Windom, who as Jake, a major who goofed in Africa to come back in the guise of a private (how's that for fresh thinking in the coincidence department?), stamped a little emotion into the deep mud of Italy. He was the man of action behind feature player William Reynolds (Capt. Benedict) who laid in the strategy for the grab of a vital German hill outpost, getting killed himself in the attack—but not without a few, final death-litter words and a last cigaret, natch.

Robert Ridgely, Richard Slattery, Eddie Fontaine, Roland LaStarza, Robert Gothie and Roger Davis make up the rest of the regular contingent in the standard tradition of dirty but lovable GIs. Sharon Hugeny appeared briefly as a piece of soiled but exciting Italo cheesecake to brighten the sombre battle terrain (her underdeveloped tryst with an Italian-American GI was carefully spelled out as strictly a kissing affair).

If the war stuff takes hold according to ABC's betting (going by the extra popularity of battle stuff in feature pix showings), this one might hang on. Bill.

Tele Follow-Up Comment

Du Pont Show of the Week

Directors Company, the new Fielder Cook-Franklin Schaffner partnership, brought in its second of seven live-on-tape dramas for NBC-TV's Du Pont hour Sunday (7) with a display of versatility.

Production firm's opener was a serious allegorical play. "Big Deal in Laredo" was a gunless, horseless western yarn with an O. Henry twist that worked, a dash of comedy and a lot of suspense.

Story concerned a high-stakes poker game—a good dramatic device anytime in competent hands—with an alleged compulsive gambler plunging the family fortune against the four richest men in Texas. In a couple of surprise twisters (it might have ended after the first) the farmer and his wife dragged the biggest pot in western history. It all turned out to be a gigantic skin game, a crafty bluff right down to the farmer's heart attack.

Sidney ("The Hustler") Carroll's script, which had a dash of Stephen Crane adventure along with the O. Henry wind, showed fine craftmanship in the build and slick turns of plot. Excellent cast was headed by Walter Matthau, Teresa Wright and John Megna as the mock farm family. John McGiver, as the skinflint, rightous banker who turned out to be the source of the big deal, played it to the hilt in an open Fields (W. C.) style. Also in good form, as longhorn foils and otherwise, were Zachary Scott, Roland Winters, William Hansen, Arthur Hughes, James Kenny, Dana Elcar, Allen Collins and Keith Carsey.

Production values were good throughout headed by Fielder Cook's steady direction. Bill.

The Lloyd Bridges Show

The format of "The Lloyd Bridges Show," in which the actor plays a reporter whose imagination transports him and the audience through time into whatever situation an assignment might conjure up, took an accidentally topical turn last Tuesday (2). That evening's CBS-TV episode had Bridges covering a Civil War feature story assignment on a museum of relics from that era and a pair of boots on display sent him and the viewer back through history to the scene of a Yankee-Rebel skirmish.

Topicality of the seg came from the theme of Mort R. Lewis' script, which pointed up the ridiculous futility and stupidity of civil conflict and the tortures of the men who have to fight such a battle or any war for that matter. The show depicted the men of either side fighting bitterly at one point and then calling a temporary "truce" during which time they traded articles, spoke sometimes even friendly together, tended each other's wounded and the like. When a Yanks greed for a pair of

(Continued on page 42)

More TV Reviews On Page 35

HAWAIIAN EYE
With Troy Donahue, Robert Conrad, Connie Stevens, Grant Williams, Poncie Ponce, James Best, Elizabeth MacRae, others
Producer: Charles Hoffman
Director: Robert Douglas
Writer: Robert J. Shaw
60 Mins., Tues., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

"Hawaiian Eye" seems something of an anachronism in a season when 60 minute adventure shows have grown up dramatically, at least to the extent of making a stab at character revelation. The three-year-old (going on four) private eye series is still operating at a pretty low mental level with a nucleus of healthy looking men, a supply of attractive girls in mumus and other Hawaiian garb, and fairly conventional chase-the-crook situations that take place in the island milieu.

Whether it can last another season depends on whether the mass tv audience has become more sophisticated about melodramas in latter years. The escapism of Hawiian tourist culture would seem to be wearing thin, and the island festivities have a way of getting repetitious, but it's probable that the hausfrau will continue to enjoy the idealized male physique as it's displayed in a pair of swim trunks.

Troy Donahue, salvaged from the late "Surfside Six," has replaced Anthony Eisley in the series, and much of the first episode concentrated on establishing his permanent role. Trouble with his installation in the Hawaiian Eye scheme is that now all the principal males are beginning to look somewhat alike. Only Caucasian regular who's readily distinguishable at a glance is Connie Stevens.

First episode for the new season was a lacklustre potboiler about a kid with a yen for cars (James Best) who commits armed robbery, wounding a woman who's a Honolulu favorite, and hides out at his girl friend's diggings. Donohue's initiation is to track the kid down by wooing the girl friend (Elizabeth MacRae), which he does with predictable success. The yarn was weak in audience involvement.

The effervescent Miss Stevens, who remains one of the series' bright spots, issued a couple of vocal numbers which proved necessary to pad out a story that could have been better told in half the time. Les.

MEET THE AUTHOR
With Katherine Anne Porter, Walter Kiernan, Glenway Wescott, Frances Stelloff, Tom Sullivan Producer: Sullivan
Director: Paul Bosner
30 Mins.; Sun., 8:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
WOR-TV, N.Y. (tape)

What promises to be an interesting addition to the Sunday egghead program roster, a panel-interview show called "Meet the Author," preemed last Sunday (7) on WOR-TV, New York flagship of the RKO General group. The program is designed to center around a different author each week with a panel of other literary types on hand to discuss the guest's efforts with the visitor.

Opening program had as its guest Katherine Anne Porter, author of the current best-seller "Ship of Fools." Walter Kiernan hosted the panel (as he will each week) which included author Glenway Wescott, bookseller Frances Stelloff and the show's producer, Tom Sullivan, who'll also be a steady panelist.

What evolved was a fascinating portrait of Miss Porter and some interesting insights into her book and her involvement with it. Kiernan kept the show moving well, under Paul Bosner's direction, and the panelists contributed some thoughtful commentary, but the show belonged to Miss Porter who proved a delightful and fascinating guest.

"Meet the Author" is a lively and informative show which should have no trouble finding its audience and keeping it. It's week-to-week effectiveness of course depends on the authors and panelists involved, but Sullivan's concept is a good one which should prove continually entertaining because of the informality and lack of pretention with which the interviews and discussions are presented. Kali.

OUR MAN HIGGINS
With Stanley Holoway, Frank Maxwell, Audrey Totter, Rickey Kelman, K. C. Butts, Breena Howard
Producer: Paul Harrison
Director-Writer: Richard Murphy
Music: Frank DeVol
30 Mins., Wed., 9:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV, Hollywood (film)

"Our Man Higgins" is a variation on several themes—the vintage "Ruggles of Red Gap" and the current "Hazel" to name two. Out of these familiar elements, the show's producer-creator Paul Harrison has fashioned a family-styled comedy series that took off slowly in its introductory half-hour but has a potential of improving once the pattern is resolved and the characters become more firmly established.

Best of the ingredients is Stanley Holloway in the title role. As an English butler in the service of an American family, he comes right out of "Ruggles" and as a fixer-upper of family turmoil, he's a male version of "Hazel." However, Higgins (no Mr., please!) has an identity of his own and given time Holloway could make him a friendly figure to tv viewers.

A better job, though, should be done to make the American suburbanites more appealing. Nothing much can be expected of the two boys, and Rickey Kelman and K. C. Butts play them as boys will play boys, but there's plenty of room for improvement in developing the parents' image. On the opening show Frank Maxwell and Audrey Totter seemed a bit too flip and not completely in tune. Their language, too, struck a false note, having more of a Broadway than a suburban flavor. It's a flaw that scripter Richard Murphy should fix up pronto if he wants the viewers in the hinterlands to take to this new tv couple.

Of necessity, perhaps, the opening show had to spell out the characters and the situation in broad terms which tended to hold back the pace. But now that Higgins has moved into the Yankee household, things should perk up. Gros.

LADIES OF THE PRESS
With Kathleen Teltch, Inez Robb, Gay Pauley
Producer: Clifford Evans
Director: Bob Eberle
30 Mins.; Sun., 8 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
WOR-TV, N. Y.

Sort of the femme counterpart to "Meet the Press," a new press interview show preemed last Sunday (7) on WOR-TV, N. Y., called "Ladies of the Press." The ladies for the opener were Kathleen Teltch of the N. Y. Times, Inez Robb of the N. Y. World Telegram & Sun and various other papers and Gay Pauley of United Press International.

Guest interviewee for the seg was John Davis Lodge, former governor of Connecticut and more recently U. S. Ambassador to Spain. He's also the brother of Henry Cabot Lodge, who was Nixon's running mate for Vice President and who's son is currently opposing Ted Kennedy in the Massachusetts senatorial race. This family tree provoked perhaps the most colorful question of the day from Miss Robb who asked Lodge about his attitude on political dynasties. To this he answered that there was a difference between elected and appointed positions and that neither he nor his brother had ever held public office so its really not the same as the inferred comparison to the Kennedy Clan. He also noted that his brother didn't plan to campaign for young Lodge because he "wants to keep the family out of it."

Other questions involved international policy for the most part, Lodge having recently returned from an around-the-world tour. He criticized the Kennedy administration foreign policy as regards Cuba, Latin America and other places and favored more direct action in dealing with the Cuban situation. He also expressed opposition to trade with Red China and its admission to the U.N.

Questioning by the ladies of the press was precise and well-thought out. There was enough variety in the questions to keep the show from bogging down on any one subject, making it a lively, entertaining and informative show. Presumably the reporters will change each week. If upcoming ones are as good as Misses Teltch, Robb and Pauley, the show will continue to be a fine addition to the growing public affairs rosters. Kali.

U.S. STEEL HOUR
(The White Lie)
With David Wayne, Neva Patterson, Sallie Brophy, Leta Bonynge, Paul Mace, Adam Kennedy, Billie McNally, Mardette Perkins, Heywood Hale Broun, others
Exec producer: Bill Nichols
Director: Paul Bogart
Writer: John D. Hess
60 Mins.; Wed., 10 p.m.
U.S. STEEL
CBS-TV, from N.Y.
(BBDO)

"U.S. Steel Hour" returned for another season on CBS-TV, preeming Wednesday (3) night with a pedestrian teleplay by John D. Hess titled "The White Lie."

It wasn't the fault of the players—David Wayne and Neva Patterson in the leads—that the 10 to 11 p.m. period passed in a ho-hum manner. David Wayne, portraying a little businessman, good-natured and solid, lent all the credibility he could to his role. So did Neva Patterson, portraying his wife, who told a "white lie" about her husband's war exploits, in a weak, defensive moment.

What was at fault were the cliched images and situations fed by scripter Hess. The only suspense and drama to come out of the entire teleplay were in the final few moments when David Wayne pinned the "white lie" on himself at a dinner in his honor. He and his wife committed the error of fantasy to bring color to their lives.

Triggering the lie was Wayne's general manager in business, a ruthless, overly-ambitious, youngman-in-the-hurry type, played sickeningly well by Adam Kennedy. He and his wife egged on Wayne's wife to render the fantasy, with Wayne, first objecting, then playing along with the gag. Story line had some merit, but the characters were mere types and seldom took on the cloak of either harsh reality or bright fantasy.

Paul Bogarts direction was slow. Heywood Hale Broun as the newspaperman was okay, as were the other supporting players. The commercials for U.S. Steel—one showing the merits of competition and others on the use of steel in canning and clothes dryers in the home—were far more imaginative than the play. Horo.

CHET HUNTLEY REPORTING
With Ken Bernstein, Martin Agronsky, Ray Scherer, Bill Ryan, Richard Valeriani, others Producer: Gerald Green
Directors: Robert Priaulx, Joseph Zigman, Norton Bloom
Writers: Huntley, David Teitelbaum, David Englander
30 Mins., Tues., 10:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
NBC-TV

Chet Huntley dropped the program he had originally planned to use as his season's opener last Tuesday (2), because of the crisis in Mississippi. So instead, at least this once (and probably whenever else it seems fitting), "Chet Huntley Reporting," instead of being a feature news stanza, was a hard news wrapup with an editorial twist.

Using several on-the-spot NBC reporters, with Huntley serving as anchor man, the half-hour competently covered the University happenings in Oxford, and in Jackson, the capital where Gov. Ross Barnett normally is. Ken Bernstein from Jackson, Ray Scherer from Washington, Bill Ryan from Memphis, Richard Valeriani from Oxford all took part in the program, each serving up a small piece of the whole rather nicely.

But the two things that were most interesting were Martin Agronsky's interview with N.Y. Times columnist Arthur Krock, whose posture of moderation is an annoyance to liberals, and the "Huntley touch," a form of videonic tendentiousness, which—isn't always this justifiable or well turned—was a clever bit about how Negroes can now play major league baseball with impunity yet still can't get the same assurances in traditionally white man schools of the South. It was timely two ways, since the Giants and Dodgers both carry long lists of star Negro players.

This was a so-called "special" by NBC News, but it was in Huntley's usual berth, thus making it hybrid Huntley. Naturally, then, it was Huntley's opinion that was heard, and his opinions are usually strong and personal. Art.

COMBAT
With Vic Morrow, Rick Jason, Shecky Greene, Pierre Jalbert, Steven Rogers, Albert Paulsen, Jack Hogan, others
Exec Producer: Selig J. Seligman
Producer: Robert Blees
Director: Robert Altman
Writer: Richard Matheson
60 Mins., Tues., 6:30 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
ABC-TV (film)

Whether World War II can garner the necessary Nielsen points to stay in business on ABC-TV this season depends, to a great extent, on whether sufficient years have passed to take the nightmare out of it for the adult generations. That will take a while to determine, but if it proves that grownup televiewers can countenance the war now in the perspective of an historic adventure "Combat" could make the grade. Among the notable assets, on the premiere show, were a firstclass production and a potent costar in Vic Morrow. (Rick Jason and Shecky Greene had brief roles in the opener).

Doubtless another strong point for the Selig Seligman entry is that it will satisfy that strange proclivity in people for vicarious violence. In a WW II series brutality and bloodshed are justified, for who is to deny that it was an excessively violent business? "Combat" declined the opportunity to spill blood in the preem—in fact, the story was about the non-killing of an enemy soldier—but the preview of the second episode indicated there would be mayhem aplenty.

Initialer took a bit too long to establish the characters, and therefore the action of a patrol moving in on a booby-trapped house was not as tense and concerning as it might have been. Once in the house, the characters began to get sorted out and, after a number of false starts as to what the central conflict would be, it finally settled down to whether the life of a German captive soldier should be spared.

Nobody, least of all the viewer, wanted to see him get it because he seemed a good guy, but it became a military expedient to do him in. Turned out, in the end, that the fellow who was commanded to shoot him didn't because he couldn't kill in cold blood; and Morrow, the sergeant who gave the order, showed that he was actually relieved. It was a human story in the atmosphere of a reasonably suspenseful combat situation, and there were good performances by all concerned. Les.

DIRECTIONS '63
With Bill Shadel, others
Producer: Wiley Hance
Director: Lloyd Tweedy
Writer: Terry Howard
30 Mins., Sun., 2 p.m.
ABC-TV (live, film)

"Directions '63" began its season on ABC-TV Sunday (7) with the first half-hour in a four-part series on Communism and what Christianity intends doing about it. For the sake of comparison, imagine for a second ABC doing an historical analysis of CBS and NBC. Even if ABC did an outstanding job of self-restraint, the network would nonetheless be suspicious.

Similarly, ABC News produces this weekly program with the express "cooperation" of the National Council of Churches, and as interesting as the first part was, in spots, it was lamentable slanted—not so much against Communism but for Christianity. Purpose of the ABC-TV stanza, so a visiting theologian stated, was to delineate ways of countering "the system to dehumanize." In the main, old still pictures were used to help narrator Bill Shadel complete his cursory rundown of Marxism and the onslaught of Bolshevism. There were, however, a few minutes of excellent—at least unfamiliar—newsreel footage, presumably of the 1917 Revolution. There were some up-to-date shots of peonage in South America, a large hunk of geography on which Communism and capitalism are presently doing battle.

The full program was not very exciting and, if for that alone, it is reasonably safe to assume that being opposite the World Series' third game and a professional football game it had a very limited audience. But those who did persevere probably came away a bit confused or annoyed at religion's handling of political history. Art.

THE ELEVENTH HOUR
With Wendell Corey, Vera Miles, Murray Hamilton, Carl Benton Reid, Roger Perry, Nelson Olmsted, Anne Seymour, Jack Ging
Producer: Herbert Hirschman
Director: Fielder Cook
Writer: Harry Julian Fink
60 Mins.; Wed., 10 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
NBC-TV (film)

"The Eleventh Hour," a new MGM-TV series steeped in psychiatry, shapes up as one of the new season's more promising dramatic entries. While such other established tv medicoes as "Ben Casey" and "Dr. Kildare," are also psychologically oriented and loaded with kookie characters, this series is exclusively dedicated to exploring the mysteries of the human mind.

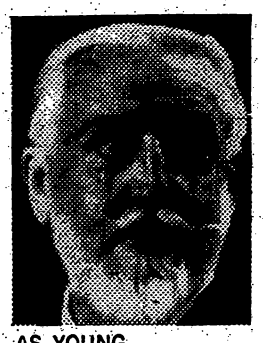
Wendell Corey is hanging up his shingle in "Eleventh Hour" as Dr. Theodore Bassett, a forensic psychiatrist with a firm hand and total dedication to his patients and profession. Corey promises to extract as much dramatic interest out of obsessional neuroses as the other tv medicoes do out of subdural hemotomas.

The kickoff stanza last Wednesday night (3) was characterized by some excellent introductory characterizations within a somewhat weak story context. An early shot in a mental hospital of a patient going beserk and then recovering his lucidity under the gaze of Dr. Bassett was executed brilliantly. Other clinical details, such as the use of the Rohrshalk tests and hypnotic techniques, were also handled with a near-documentary credibility.

The preem story, titled "Ann Cotigan: A Duel on a Field of White," revolved around the question of whether a confessed murderess was faking her insanity. Dr. Bassett, appointed by the court to determine her mental condition, ran her through the psychological testing mill where she performed as if demented. All of Dr. Bassett's aides were convinced that she is. But the doctor himself determined, through a post-hypnotic suggestion, that his suspicion of malingering was correct. It was an arresting stanza throughout even if the audience was not given enough clues to keep abreast of Dr. Bassett's logic.

Corey, a strong central personality, was given standout support on the preem by Vera Miles, whose portrayal of the murderess was shaded by mercurial changes of temperament. Murray Hamilton, as an interne; Carl Benton Reid, as the judge; and Anne Seymour, as the psychologist, contributed convincing performances. The psychiatric jargon was blended naturally into the action and director Fielder Cook maintained a tense mood throughout. Herm.

CANDID CAMERA
With Durward Kirby, Allen Funt
Producer-Director: Julio DiBenedetto
30 Mins.; Sun., 10 p.m.
LEVER BROS: BRISTOL-MYERS
CBS-TV, from N.Y. (film, tape)
(J. Walter Thompson; Young & Rubicam)



"Candid Camera" still registers as an entertaining exploration into the foibles and vagaries of the human animal in various predicaments created by this show's masterminds. On its kickoff last Sunday (8), after being delayed one week due by Pres. Kennedy's Oct. 1 address on the Mississippi crisis, this stanza came up with a couple of wacky situations, good for laughs.

Interesting switch on this show was created by William Saroyan, who appeared as guest and as author of three brief character skeches based on the premise that an anonymous friend had paid an installment on a furniture purchase. These sketches, titled by Saroyan as "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Furniture Store," paralleled the real reactions of a trio of New Yorkers put into an identical situation. Another solid laugh-winner was a setup in which people in a telephone booth were being deafened by pneumatic hammers just at the vital point of the conversation.

An opening sequence, showing a collection of bawling babies whose wailing was set to an operatic aria, ran far too long. Durward Kirby, as host, and Allen Funt, originator of the series who serves as backup man in explaining the visual stunts, handled their assignments capably. Herm.

YOU'RE IN THE NAVY NOW
Gary Cooper, Jack Webb, Eddie Albert

AS YOUNG AS YOU FEEL
Marilyn Monroe, Monty Woolley, David Wayne

PRINCE AND THE SHOWGIRL
Marilyn Monroe, Laurence Olivier, Sybil Thorndike

INDISCREET
Cary Grant, Ingrid Bergman, Cecil Parker

Comedy from 20th-Century Fox in:
BELLES ON THEIR TOES – starring Jeanne Crain, Debra Paget, and Myrna Loy
LET'S MAKE IT LEGAL – starring Claudette Colbert, MacDonald Carey, and Marilyn Monroe
DOWN AMONG THE SHELTERING PALMS – starring William Lundigan, Jack Paar, and Mitzi Gaynor – and many more top comedies all contained in Volume 4's 40 great "Films of the 50's".

Comedy from Warner Bros. in:
TOP SECRET AFFAIR – starring Susan Hayward, Kirk Douglas, and Jim Backus
ONIONHEAD – starring Andy Griffith, Walter Matthau and Joey Bishop
THE GIRL HE LEFT BEHIND – starring Natalie Wood, Tab Hunter, and James Garner – and many more top comedies all contained in Volume 5's 53 great "Films of the 50's".

AND...SUSPENSE...BROADWAY...SCIENCE FICTION...ACTION...DRAMA...
Seven Arts Volumes 4 & 5 have everything – everything to please your audiences – top stars – top stories – top directors – they're all in Seven Arts' "Films of the 50's", "Money Makers of the 60's" Volumes 4 & 5 now available from Seven Arts.

SEVEN ARTS ASSOCIATED CORP.

A SUBSIDIARY OF SEVEN ARTS PRODUCTIONS, LTD.
NEW YORK: 270 Park Avenue YUkon 6-1717
CHICAGO: 8922-D N. La Crosse (P.O. Box 613), Skokie, Ill. ORchard 4-5105
DALLAS: 5641 Charleston Drive ADams 9-2855
L.A.: 3562 Royal Woods Dr., Sherman Oaks, Cal. STate 8-8276
TORONTO, ONTARIO: 11 Adelaide St. West EMpire 4-7193

For list of TV stations programming Seven Arts' "Films of the 50's" see Third Cover SRDS (Spot TV Rates and Data)
Individual feature prices upon request.

What's in volumes 4 and 5 of Seven Arts' "Films of the 50's"?

comedy

Foreign TV Reviews

Z CARS
With Jeremy Kemp, James Ellis, John Glyn-Jones, Stratford Johns, Leonard Williams, Frank Windsor, Terence Edmonds, Diane Aubrey, Peter Duguid, Harold Goodwin, Lynne Furlong, Michael Williams, Gwendolin Watts, Michael Logan, Jack Cunningham
Producer: David E. Rose
Writer: Allan Prior
50 Mins., Wed., 8 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

This notable cop series returned to the schedules with its harsh true-to-lifeness unimpaired. Its chief virtues are exact observation of its Northern locale, with idiomatic dialog and a gallery of well-etched types, and the humanization of the cops, who, it's suggested, have their frailties of temper and character just as the rogues they hunt. The honest framework gives a documentary veracity to the efficient stories.

The one seen, "Full Remission," was up to standard. A young crook knew from his girl-friend that her father was being released from jail —and had $10,000 hidden from the job that had sent him away. The loot was in the possession of the convict's wife, who was proposing to disappear with it along with her new lover. The young thug relieved them of the money at gun-point, and the cops arrived to investigate.

The chase was tense, and given an edge by the police chief's personal interest in the result. He had sent the thief to jail, but it rankled that he hadn't found the money. As usual, the tale was nicely embellished with location shots, and the relationship of the Z-car cops, Steele (Jeremy Kemp) and Lynch (James Ellis), to each other and the impatient Chief Inspector (Stratford Johns) added to the sharp flavor.

All the regulars, in fact, stayed the same, and made an excellent team. The life at station headquarters, for example, revolved around the laconic Sergeant Twentyman (Leonard Williams) and was a credible venue.

Also as usual was the well-judged support from thesps whose suitable mugs weren't too well-known from other tv appearances. Producer David E. Rose specializes in this sort of novelty, and director Roger Jenkins achieved a good balance between tension and authenticity. Otta.

THE AVENGERS
With Patrick Macnee, Honor Blackman, Douglas Muir, Bernard Goldman, John Ruddock, Michael Robbins, John Horsley, Tim Brinton, Kenneth Keeling, Michael Collins, Sarah Maxwell
Producer: Leonard White
Director: Richmond Harding
Writer: Martin Woodhouse
60 Mins., Sat., 10:30 p.m.
ABC-TV, from Manchester

A major personnel change was the main difference in this returned thriller skein. "The Avengers" were originally a couple of daredevil hombres, who shared the perils in alternate segments. Now John Steed (Patrick Macnee), who remains, is joined by a femme agent, Catherine Gale (Honor Blackman), and the coupling had quite an edge in this opener.

Steed, an undercover criminal-catcher, has a fund of insolence and reckless good looks. As Macnee plays him, he's a positive and eye-catching figure, although he seemed inclined to overdo the nonchalant impudence in this one. The hinted romantic undertones with Cathy, who worked with him, gave extra bite.

Story concerned the hunt for a master-minding crook, Mr. Teddy Bear (Bernard Goldman), who would murder anyone for a price. He'd cleverly killed a double-agent during a tv interview, and this neat opening led to Cathy tracking him down and hiring him to murder Steed. In a deserted mansion, the crook spoke to her through a closed-circuit tv, the mike being hidden in a toy bear. The murder attempt was made by smearing Steed's telephone with poison—but it didn't come off, natch. Climax came with the crook trapped with Cathy in a locked room, his only escape suicide.

The action was energetic and satisfying, and the script was nicely supplied with apt lines. Loose ends, which existed, didn't obtrude in a production that relied on speed rather than logic. Richmond Harding's direction didn't loiter, and Honor Blackman scored as the cuccumber-cool Cathy, provocatively clad. Minor thesps were fine, with Bernard Goldman standing out as the ominous death-dealer. Otta.

BRUCE'S SHOW
With Bruce Forsyth, Harry Secombe, Dai Rees, Vivienne Gomori, Pat Spencer, Alyn Ainsworth Orch
Producer: Francis Essex
Writers: S. C. Green, R. M. Hills, Richard Waring
35 Mins., Sat., 8:25 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

The assets of Bruce Forsyth, the most impactful entertainer to arrive since the commercial web began, are an ability to get quickly on terms with his audience, a strong streak of humanity in his gagging, and versatility. His impromptu personality thus made him a fine host to the "Sunday Night at the Palladium" vaude skein, and this new series tries to explore it in a less lush, more informal, setting. With crisper material, it should come off, for Forsyth has the talent.

It was launched with a fine gimmick opening, Forsyth's singing headpiece being joined by cartoon drawings. But this initial flair in Francis Essex's inventive production fell away. Forsyth chatted gregiously about the oddities of the human face, introduced a young French pianist, Vivienne Gomori, in an agile Debussy study and then discoursed about golf in a pre-filmed interview with Dai Rees, Welsh champion. This clip closed with a would-be zany golf match, Forsyth driving the ball into a supermarket and a cab, and it lacked zip.

A reminiscence of Fred Astaire, whom Forsyth averred had been his first show-biz inspiration, led to some imitative terping, and the show bowed out with a comical interview, in which Harry Secombe clowned his way through a discussion of his photographic skill. This last was conceived as a serious item, but luckily Secombe's irrepressible gagging didn't permit it.

As indicated, all the ingredients were there, but they didn't quite jell. Producer Essex achieved a happy-family atmosphere with shots of the audience, who were disposed in a cosy semi-circle on performing level. It remains to be seen if the resources and memories of Forsyth will provide sufficient nourishment for the remaining five segments. Otta.

ADAM FAITH
With Betty Marsden, the Kestrels, the Roulettes, Ian Patterson, Sheila O'Neill Dancers, Harry Rabinowitz Orch
Producer: Graeme Muir
Writers: Allan Scott, Chris Bryant
30 Mins., Wed., 7:30 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

There comes a time for most big-time teenage disk idols to try and extend their orbit. This series of six half-hours is an attempt to build up Adam Faith's undoubted amiability into a show-topper. Faith, who, in any case, is no mean thesp in movies, tried a Como in this one—and was notably deficient in the assurance and professional suavity that the hosting job requires.

This second segment was an improvement on the opener, but was still a so-so affair. Faith revived oldies as well as trotting out his typical beat waxings, and launched in to "Most Unusual Day," which showed up his vocal limitations when he couldn't use his baby-vowelled gimmick. He recovered with "Don't That Beat All" and the doleful title-song of his latest movie, "Mix Me a Person," but relapsed again with "Walkin' My Baby Back Home." He tended to deliver all numbers too similarly, by jumping up and down on alternate feet and finger-snapping, and mild terping and backchat with guests didn't help.

Chief of these guests was revue comedienne Betty Marsden, who amused in an otherwise brief blackout sketch about a gal answering calls in three public phone-booths, being generally helpful while her own house was on fire. Miss Marsden's sharp delivery and experienced comedy made it welcome.

The Roulettes, a banging-and-twanging instrumental group, gave a cheerful "Bamba," and "Paper Doll" was emitted by the Kestrels. A lad with a stalwart set of pipes, Ian Patterson, pleased in a ballad, and uneven dance routines were provided by a group lead by the winsome Sheila O'Neill. One gimmick was to revive the memory of a bygone star, in this case Jack Buchanan. Faith gave out his remembered "Who?" after a clip from an old Buchanan movie. It was more of a travesty than a tribute, especially to admirers of the original.

The show was an itsy-bitsy affair, and Graeme Muir's safe production was visually unenterprising. But the chief fault was that Adam Faith was out of his true sphere. Otta.

BULLDOG BREED
With Donald Churchill, Amanda Barrie, Peter Butterworth, Betty Whitehead, Clare Kelly, Alison Morris, Colin Gordon, Reginald Barratt, Valerie Skardon, Jeremy Lloyd
Producer: Derek Granger
Director: Howard Baker
Writers: Harry Driver, Jack Rosenthal
30 Mins., Wed., 9:15 p.m.
Granada TV, from Manchester

It looks as if just about everything that could go wrong with a situation-comedy has happened to this one. It's intended to illustrate the British habit of muddling through, and that's just how it appears.

Central character is Tom Bowler (Donald Churchill), and each episode involves him in a farcical caper that marks his progress in the commercial world. The segment caught had him applying for a new job, and incorporated such laborious shenanigans as Bowler dressing in a track-suit for the interview, because he thought the boss was a physical-fitness nut, and then purloining another man's suit while he was getting heat-ray treatment.

It fell as heavy as lead, with painful attempts at wit and a dreary lack of momentum in script development. Donald Churchill hadn't the resources to do much with the material, and supporting thesps struggled. Howard Baker directed Derek Granger's production with little confidence. Otta.

MAN OF THE WORLD
(Death of a Conference)
With Craig Stevens, Tracy Reed, Warren Mitchell, John Phillips, Patrick Troughton, Zena Marshall, Carl Jaffe, John Carson, Mark Dignam, Gerald Flood, Alan Rowe, David Grahame
Producer: Harry Fine
Director: David Greene
Writers: Tudor Gates, Robert E. Thompson
60 Mins., Sat., 7:25 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

With a photographer-journalist hero on special assignments to the world's trouble-spots, "Man of the World" has a basic formula that allows it to forage for colorful locations. Promised range is from Indo-China to Havana, with exotic points in between, and the opener was intriguingly set in Algiers during the recent independence upheavals.

Mike Strait (Craig Stevens), together with sloe-eyed assistant Maggie (Tracy Reed), was sent there to cover a peace conference, having accepted an assignment from a Paris glossy newsmag. Just before he landed, the honorable Algerian leader was killed, and suspicion was shared equally between a French Salan-type General, Thiboeuf (Patrick Troughton), an ultra who'd gone underground, and Said (John Carson), an ambitious and vengeful politico on the "rebel" side. Strait traced Thiboeuf, who claimed to have fired the shot that killed, but his story didn't add up. Scrutiny of the hole in the window showed that two shots had been loosed off, and Said was copped for the crime just as he was about to wreck the peace talks. The dead man had actually died of heart failure, but Said had rigged the body to look like murder so that he could snatch power.

Craig Stevens was burly and purposeful as the adventurous Strait, and Tracy Reed was coolly appealing as his sidekick, meriting more to say in later segments. Other thesp support was okay, despite uncertainty of accent, with experienced and reliable local

(Continued on page 44)

Video Coverage of Schirra Space Shot Blankets All the Highlights Without Second-by-Second Network Attention

As Walter Schirra became the fifth American to orbit the earth, it became clear that television benefited from all the previous practice. Possibly like Schirra's capsule itself, television's coverage was technically perfect.

But more important than technique was that ABC-TV, CBS-TV and NBC-TV were less self-conscious of themselves, enough at any rate to relax that typical frenzy of competition which had always before marked such occasions. Previously, even when there was no picture to show, each of the three networks showed something anyway. They planned to do the same thing for Schirra, the fifth man up for America—not because they believed his flight required second-by-second attention but because they were admittedly afraid that one would look bad if he covered part of the "show" and the others covered the whole shebang.

A week before the Wednesday (3) blastoff, the fear apparently dissapated itself, and thereafter what the network's thought logical became the order of the day. CBS News indicated quite forcibly that it would cover the takeoff and then intermingle its regular programming with frequent reports of Schirra's un-earthly progress.

This was what the three networks had always wanted. ABC News, with less money than its rivals and also with a commercial schedule to consider, went along, and so did more affluent NBC. Latter was facing another problem, too, which a relaxation of the continuous coverage "rule," would alleviate. The network was faced with the first game of the World Series. Actually, on Wednesday, it turned out to be the last game of a National League Playoff, but NBC owned tv rights in either case.

The Schirra progress reports by the networks, were clear, precise and conscientiously quick. They did not all cut in at the same time for everything, but, allowing for the shortcomings of frequent dial-twisting, it appeared they managed nicely to post notices of pertinence to Schirra's progress and well-being.

Since NBC News had one ball more to juggle than either CBS or ABC News, that being the playoff baseball game, it might be worthwhile observing that this network did its multifarious job with timing and taste. Not that NBC-TV didn't face squeeky moments: There it was—an inning in this important game with the Dodgers when the Giants had more than one man on base, and just about then word came through Schirra was descending. The network quickly gave up its trick of running an "electric sign" across the bottom of the screen and instead took up with a voice report from the U. S. S. Kearsarge, the carrier near (quite near) the watery grid in which Schirra landed.

Another network apparently using the voice of the NBC pool reporter who was on the Kearsarge—concentrated on the Schirra story for those crucial several minutes. But what is important is that anyway a viewer (who had access to three tv channels) turned, he got the story.

Perhaps as evidence that the public's overwhelming interest in astronauts has become merely interest, the number of people watching the pictures fed to Grand Central Terminal by CBS News appeared to be far spottier than ever the crowd was for the first four orbital flights.

Utilizing, for the first time, Telstar in capturing an orbital flight by man, CBS-TV did a live pickup from London. It was interesting, if not exciting, and it did combine the latest of technical developments in space. There was another first: NBC News somehow managed to be first in grabbing Schirra's voice in a direct radio feed from Sigma 7, his capsule. (Until then, NASA reportedly had a rule that none of the broadcasters should be allowed to use anything but delayed radio tapes of the astronauts, even if the delay was just a matter of minutes.)

The tv networks ran special wrapups on Schirra, by then safely returned to a carrier flightdeck, sporadically throughout the rest of the week. Of those seen, the hindsight coverage was not brilliant but neither was it superfluous, for, after all, not every working man got to see—or even hear—the news of Schirra during the daylight hours when it was made. Art.

ON STAGE
("The Town That Didn't Care")
With Donald Harron, Budd Knapp, Alice Hill, others
Producer-Director: Paul Almond
Writer: Jacqueline Rosenfeld
60 Mins., Thurs., 10 p.m.
PARTICIPATING
WOR-TV (tape)

RKO General's New York independent has imported 26 live-on-tape hour dramas from the Canadian Broadcasting Co.'s long-running studio drama bankrolled by General Motors and the opener last week gave indications of that special video dramatic classiness that died with "Playhouse 90."

Initialer, "The Town That Didn't Care," was most notable in its production qualities. There was great vitality in the performing, particularly Donald Harron (from Broadway legit, "Tenth Man") as teacher and Budd Knapp as principle. Paul Almond's direction was fluid with a plotting of each scene for its dramatic most. And Rudi Dorn's interiors all had a solid quality and creative touches.

Only fault could have been with Jacqueline Rosenfeld's script, which was a shade meller-to-ripe now and again. It was still a superior job that made a hard point with taste and restraint. That point was that the dedication of a community's ruling group to things as they are can lead to disaster. A school girl from the other side of the tracks was discovered frozen to death in a snowbank (she's two-months pregnant) and hero school teacher labels it, "murder by indifference," a subtle script touch being that the guilty party was never named.

Package of 26 stanzas bought by RKO also will be played on the group's KHJ, Los Angeles, and WNAC, Boston. Bill.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY
(Pollsters & Politics)
With Walter Cronkite, others
Exec. Producer: Burton Benjamin
Coproducers: Isaac Kleinerman, J. C. Sheers
Director: Henwar Rodakiewicz
Writer: Sheers
30 Mins.; Sun., 6 p.m.
PRUDENTIAL
CBS-TV (film)

"Twentieth Century," calling a temporary halt Sunday, (7) to it re-run schedule, delivered an interesting, if somewhat superficial, exploration of pollsters and politics. This one-shot, written and coproduced by J. C. Sheers is part of CBS-TV's continuing coverage of the elections, under the overall programming umbrella of "Campaign '62."

Prudential sponsored pubaffairs series, in actuality, begins its new season on the web two weeks hence.

"Pollsters and Politics," title of the special half-hour outing, had the good grace of being interesting throughout. There was a simple presentation of the subject, some of its history, and some of its uses today. The focus was on politics, from polling in the Landon-Roosevelt race to that of a recent gubernatorial race in the state of Georgia.

All the leading pollsters from George Gallop to Louis Harris to Elmo Roper were shown in action. Most fascinating footage was that of on-the-street pollsters interviewing Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen. John and Jane Q. Public really could be costarred in another treatment of the subject, they came off so well in this "Twentieth Century" outing.

What was missing were the negative arguments against polling and pollsters. They were mentioned, but never really examined in depth. When opposing forces meet and challenge one another, a drama is joined. That sense of drama was missing in this outing. Horo.

УЧИСЬ КАК УЧИЛСЯ

Lesson for Americans

You're looking at sixth graders at work in a Moscow classroom.

They were photographed by five ABC-TV men who went to the Soviet Union to film a report on Soviet education for the much-praised Bell & Howell Close-Up! series.

They were the first American television crew to film this key aspect of Soviet society. And they returned with a superb television story—Meet Comrade Student.

The program, presented on ABC Television, September 28, was called by the New York Herald Tribune "an unprecedented service in acquainting us with the challenge evident in the Soviet drive for mass education."

A challenge it is. And a lesson. And clearly a triumph for American television in the crucial area of public affairs.

Meet Comrade Student advances most notably Bell & Howell's responsibility as a corporate citizen in a democracy. A responsibility well served by such previous Close-Up! programs as Cast the First Stone and Walk in My Shoes.

Meet Comrade Student is also very much in keeping with ABC's bold, honest approach to reporting the great issues of the day.

Such programs as Editor's Choice, Adlai Stevenson Reports, Issues & Answers soundly document this approach.

Here then is a forthrightness, a new creative ferment characteristic of ABC's total communications effort. In entertainment, in enlightenment. In hard news, in soft music. In comedy, in commentary.

People like it. And advertisers—being people—likewise.

ABC Television Network

abc

VARIETY-ARB SYNDICATION CHART

VARIETY's weekly tabulation based on ratings furnished by American Research Bureau, highlights the top 10 network shows on a local level and offers a rating study of the top 10 syndicated shows in the same particular markets. This week six different markets are covered.

Both the network and syndication study features the total area homes reached and the metro area ratings on each show. The total area homes reached reflects the audiences on the basis of the total market area examined. The metro area ratings are based on the metropolitan markets within the total area examined. Top 10 shows, both network and syndicated, are listed on the basis of their showing in the total area homes barometer.

Various branches of the industry, ranging from media buyers to local stations to syndicators will find the charts valuable.

Over the course of a year, ARB will tabulate a minimum of 247 markets. The results of that tabulation will be found weekly in VARIETY Coupled with the rating performance of the top 10 network shows, on the local level, the VARIETY-ARB charts are designed to reflect the rating tastes of virtually every market in the U.S.

SAGINAW-BAY CITY-FLINT

STATIONS: WNEM, WJRT, WKNX. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

Rk.	PROGRAM	Sta.	Total Area Homes Reached	Metro Area Rtg.
1.	Hazel	WHEM	101,000	34
3.	My 3 Sons	WJRT	97,300	30
3.	Ben Casey; Baseball	WJRT	97,200	32
4.	Lawrence Welk	WJRT	83,900	23
5.	Wagon Train	WNEM	82,800	27
6.	Real McCoys	WJRT	82,000	30
7.	Leave It To Beaver	WJRT	81,400	24
8.	Donna Reed	WJRT	80,500	26
9.	Hawaiian Eye	WJRT	80,300	27
10.	New Breed; Baseball	WJRT	78,800	29

Rk.	PROGRAM, Day & Time	Sta.	Dist.	Tot. Area Homes Reached	Met. Area Rtg.
1.	Ripcord; BB (Tues. 7:30)	WJRT	Ziv-UA	53,200	18
2.	Death Valley Days (Tues. 7:00)	WNEM	U.S. Borax	44,100	13
3.	Whiplash (Thurs. 7:30)	WJRT	ITC	41,600	12
4.	Bugs Bunny (Mon. 6:30)	WJRT	UAA	41,400	14
5.	Sea Hunt (Mon. 7:30)	WNEM	Ziv-UA	38,900	11
6.	Wyatt Earp (Mon.-Fri. 6:15)	WNEM	ABC Films	35,800	11
7.	Bold Journey (Sat. 6:30)	WNEM	Banner	34,300	10
8.	King of Diamonds (Wed. 7:00)	WNEM	Ziv-UA	34,200	11
9.	Honeymooners; Accident (Sat. 7:00)	WNEM	CBS Films	31,300	9
10.	Manhunt (Mon. 7:00)	WNEM	Screen Gems	31,100	10

Compet.	Sta.	Total Homes
Laramie	WNEM	41,100
Hathaways; BB	WJRT	53,400
Outlaws	WNEM	31,600
Wyatt Earp	WNEM	35,300
Huntley-Brinkley	WNEM	50,100
Cheyenne; 12 Hr.	WJRT	44,400
News; Weather; Sports	WJRT	20,100
Bugs Bunny	WJRT	39,900
Matty's Funnies	WJRT	38,100
Groucho; Pagent	WJRT	27,500
Guestward Ho	WJRT	29,000
Theatre; Michigan	WJRT	21,300
Theatre; Medicine; News	WJRT	35,400
Gunn; BB; Pagent	WJRT	26,200
Polka Party	WJRT	40,400
Margie	WJRT	43,600

SAN FRANCISCO

STATIONS: KTVU, KRON, KPIX, KGO. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Defenders	KPIX	352,100	33	1.	Divorce Court (Sat. 6:00)	KRON	Storer TV	262,000	23	Champ Bowling	KTVU	85,500
2.	Wagon Train	KRON	337,000	26	2.	One Step Beyond (Thurs. 7:00)	KPIX	ABC Films	198,800	17	You Asked For It	KTVU	134,800
3.	Perry Mason	KPIX	335,700	30	3.	San Francisco Beat (Sat. 7:00)	KPIX	CBS Films	183,400	15	Fight of Week	KGO	225,000
4.	Hazel	KRON	325,600	26	4.	Sea Hunt (Tues. 7:00)	KRON	Ziv-UA	172,800	15	M Squad	KPIX	170,300
5.	Bonanza	KRON	311,800	27	5.	M Squad (Tues. 7:00)	KPIX	MCA	170,300	14	Sea Hunt	KRON	172,800
6.	Dr. Kildare	KRON	311,200	26	6.	Yogi Bear (Mon. 6:30)	KTVU	Screen Gems	163,800	12	Assignment 4	KRON	123,600
7.	Ben Casey	KGO	310,300	27	7.	Death Valley Days (Tues. 6:30)	KRON	U.S. Borax	157,600	12	News Report; CBS News	KPIX	128,000
8.	Donna Reed	KGO	282,900	23	8.	Shannon (Wed. 7:00)	KTVU	Screen Gems	154,800	12	Biography	KRON	118,800
9.	Alfred Hitchcock	KRON	270,100	25	9.	Huckleberry Hound (Wed. 6:30)	KTVU	Screen Gems	136,400	10	News Report; CBS News	KPIX	118,400
10.	Twilight Zone	KPIX	265,800	21	10.	Best of Groucho (Thurs. 8:00)	KTVU	NBC Films	136,200	12	Donna Reed	KGO	282,900

SAN ANTONIO

STATIONS: WOAI, KENS, KONO. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Andy Griffith	KENS	85,100	29	1.	King of Diamonds (Wed. 7:30)	WOAI	Ziv-UA	32,600	14	Checkmate	KENS	48,700
2.	Danny Thomas	KENS	80,000	27	2.	Yogi Bear (Wed. 5:30)	KENS	Screen Gems	30,600	13	Best of Hollywood	KONO	13,600
3.	Bonanza	WOAI	77,100	28							Huntley-Brinkley	WOAI	24,700
4.	Red Skelton	KENS	74,700	28	3.	Huckleberry Hound (Thurs. 5:30)	KENS	Screen Gems	26,500	12	Viewpoint; Hunt-Brink	WOAI	19,700
5.	Gunsmoke	KENS	74,300	27	4.	Death Valley Days (Fri. 7:30)	KENS	U.S. Borax	26,300	10	Detectives	WOAI	42,600
6.	Sing A'long	WOAI	71,400	23	5.	Ripcord (Fri. 8:00)	KENS	Ziv-UA	26,100	8	77 Sunset Strip	KONO	57,800
7.	Untouchables	KONO	69,000	34	6.	Popeye (Mon.-Fri. 5:00)	KENS	UAA; King	24,200	10	Best of Hollywood	KONO	22,500
8.	What's My Line	KENS	66,800	27	7.	Bugs Bunny (Sat. 11:30)	KONO	UAA	22,300	12	Cartoons; Game of Week	KENS	16,000
9.	Candid Camera	KENS	66,000	24	8.	Quick Draw McGraw (Tues. 5:30)	KENS	Screen Gems	21,500	8	Viewpoint; Hunt-Brink	WOAI	24,400
10.	Wagon Train	WOAI	65,200	23	9.	Phil Silvers (Thurs. 6:00)	KONO	CBS Films	17,700	10	News; Wea.; Spts.; News	WOAI	44,900
					10.	Deputy Dawg (Sat. 8:30)	KONO	CBS Films	17,100	9	Captain Kangaroo	KENS	20,800

SAN DIEGO

STATIONS: KFMB, KOGO, XETV. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Perry Mason	KFMB	102,700	33	1.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 7:00)	KFMB	Ziv-UA	60,800	20	Whiplash	XETV	26,200
2.	Wagon Train	KOGO	96,400	31	2.	Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	KFMB	U.S. Borax	55,700	18	Rescue 8	XETV	25,700
3.	Mr. Ed	KFMB	94,200	31	3.	Manhunt (Tues. 7:00)	KFMB	Screen Gems	54,800	18	Bugs Bunny	XETV	47,900
4.	Disney's World	KOGO	92,500	30	4.	Third Man (Sat. 7:00)	KFMB	NTA	51,400	17	Fight of Week	XETV	38,600
5.	Dr. Kildare	KOGO	91,300	30	5.	Tightrope (Sat. 6:30)	KFMB	Screen Gems	46,200	15	Up To The Minute	KOGO	26,600
6.	Password	KFMB	87,300	28	6.	Tombstone Territory (Mon. 8:00)	XETV	Ziv-UA	44,500	15	Pete & Gladys	KFMB	80,500
7.	Bonanza	KOGO	83,500	27	7.	Ripcord (Fri. 7:30)	KFMB	Ziv-UA	42,800	14	Movietime	KOGO	64,800
8.	Pete & Gladys	KFMB	80,500	26	8.	Assignment Underwater (Th. 6:30)	XETV	NTA	29,600	10	This Day 1962	KFMB	49,700
9.	Hazel	KOGO	80,200	26	9.	Blue Angels; Pioneers (Mon. 7:00)	KFMB	NBC; Roebeck	27,400	9	International Showtime	KOGO	56,500
10.	Defenders	KFMB	80,100	26	9.	Shannon; Accent (Thurs. 7:30)	KFMB	Screen Gems	27,400	9	Outlaws	KOGO	43,800

SPOKANE

STATIONS: KREM, KXLY, KHQ. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Wagon Train	KHQ	81,300	35	1.	Bold Journey; Manhunt (Tues. 7:00)	KHQ	Roebeck; Screen Gems	48,900	25	M Squad	KREM	19,500
2.	Hazel	KHQ	81,100	32	2.	Death Valley Days (Wed. 7:00)	KHQ	U.S. Borax	46,100	17	Tomorrow; Everglades	KREM	20,400
3.	Andy Griffith	KXLY	66,400	24	3.	You Asked For It (Sun. 7:00)	KREM	Crosby Brown	40,600	15	Lassie	KXLY	35,700
4.	Danny Thomas	KXLY	63,900	23	4.	Best of Groucho (Thurs. 7:00)	KHQ	NBC Films	39,900	24	Sea Hunt	KREM	34,500
4.	Perry Mason	KXLY	63,900	27	5.	Not For Hire (Tues. 8:30)	KHQ	NBC Films	37,400	21	Dobie Gillis	KXLY	50,900
5.	Bonanza	KHQ	63,800	28	6.	Navy Log (Sun. 6:30)	KXLY	Ziv-UA	36,200	12	Calvin & Colonel	KREM	17,000
6.	Red Skelton	KXLY	60,200	18	7.	Men Into Space (Sat. 6:30)	KXLY	Ziv-UA	35,200	11	Pinbusters	KREM	31,000
7.	Joey Bishop	KHQ	59,700	21	8.	Sea Hunt (Thurs. 7:00)	KREM	Ziv-UA	34,500	10	Best of Groucho	KHQ	39,900
8.	Lawrence Welk	KREM	58,700	30	9.	Ripcord (Mon. 7:00)	KXLY	Ziv-UA	33,900	7	Movies	KHQ	30,400
9.	Dr. Kildare	KHQ	58,100	22	10.	Shannon (Fri. 7:00)	KHQ	Screen Gems	33,500	12	Whiplash	KXLY	24,800

SHREVEPORT

STATIONS: KTBS, KTAL, KSLA. SURVEY PERIOD: MAY 18 - JUNE 14, 1962.

1.	Ben Casey	KTBS	91,700	47	1.	Everglades (Fri. 8:30)	KSLA	Ziv-UA	60,600	31	77 Sunset Strip	KTBS	38,700
2.	Gunsmoke	KSLA	76,500	37	2.	Amos & Andy (Mon.-Fri. 5:30)	KSLA	CBS Films	39,900	16	Cartoon Corners	KTBS	18,400
3.	Bonanza	KTAL	74,600	25							Huckleberry Hound	KTBS	16,400
4.	Hazel	KTAL	73,400	26							Quick Draw McGraw	KTBS	13,500
5.	Red Skelton	KSLA	67,200	30							Yogi Bear	KTBS	13,400
6.	Dr. Kildare	KTAL	63,500	19	3.	Phil Silvers (Tues. 8:30)	KSLA	CBS Films	38,900	18	Yours For Song	KTBS	44,700
7.	Rawhide	KSLA	63,100	34	4.	Ripcord (Sun. 9:30)	KTBS	Ziv-UA	38,300	23	What's My Line	KSLA	36,700
8.	Wagon Train	KTAL	62,400	23	5.	Little Rascals (Sat. 7:00)	KTAL	Interstate	24,100	9	Theatre	KSLA	3,700
9.	Gun-Travel	KSLA	61,200	27	6.	Popeye (Sat. 7:30)	KTAL	UAA; King	23,800	12	Cartoon Corners	KTBS	10,100
10.	Route 66	KSLA	60,500	33	7.	Ramar of Jungle (Sat. 8:00)	KTBS	ITC	23,200	10	Ramar of Jungle	KTBS	21,400
					8.	Third Man (Thurs. 8:30)	KTBS	NTA	21,000	10	Popeye; Davey & Goliath	KTAL	23,600
					9.	King of Diamonds (Wed. 8:30)	KSLA	Ziv-UA	20,600	12	Hazel	KTAL	73,400
					10.	Beachcomber (Wed. 9:00)	KTAL	ITC	20,400	7	Hawaiian Eye	KTBS	53,100
											Naked City	KTBS	52,700

Build ratings 5 ways better with the big 5 from AA TV

These are the films that consistently win the top ratings* in all of these top markets: New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis, Mobile, Indianapolis, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Buffalo, and many others.

Ask your Allied Artists TV sales representative for the fabulous facts and figures about: (1) Bomba, The Jungle Boy (2) Cavalcade of the 60's Group I (3) The Bowery Boys (4) Science Fiction Features (5) Cavalcade of the 60's Group II.

*Source ARB

Allied Artists Television Corp., 165 West 46th St., N.Y. 36, N.Y., PLaza 7-8530

Aug. Billings Slide On Brit. Comm'l Web

London, Oct. 9.

At $18,362,400, August billings on the commercial web fell by more than 2,000,000 compared with the previous month, according to Media Records, Ltd., an indepenaent research firm. Granada-TV, major midweek contractor for the north, retained its No. 1 status as revenue earner, pulling in a total of 4,006,-800. Associated-Rediffusion, London midweeker, followed with $3,-766,000, while Associated TeleVision, a seven day operation (but split over two areas) coined $3,133,-200. ABC-TV, a weekend only outlet, earned $1,470,000 for the month.

Regional companies grabbed the adcoin thus: Scottish-TV $882,000; TV Wales & West $708,400; Southern-TV $320,000; Tyne-Tees-TV $579,600; Anglia-TV $462,000; Ulster-TV $212,800; Westward-TV $198,800; Border-TV $103,600 and Grampian-TV $123,200.

In all, advertisers spent $18,362,-400 on commercial web during August of which the government took an 11% bite amounting to $1,820,000.

NBC-TV Slides

Continued from page 24

its name. It was less than seven hours to game time, and the potential big sponsor dropped its hold. Anticipating this, 10 salesmen in N.Y. and about five in Chicago had been on the phone since 8 a.m., N.Y. time.

Armed with a new selling plan (16 minutes available per game at $26,000 apiece for a total, if sold, of $416,000 per playoff game), the NBC boys called every agency with every client they could think of.

By noon, the strangest orders began coming in: "Sure, we'll buy a minute, if you can locate our commercial; we think it may be in N.Y., though . . . Isn't the game from Frisco?"

"Look, there was a commercial we gave you last week. I don't know whether we took it back . . . You find it and you got $26,000."

Scrambling, scraping and finagling, the web sold all but four of the 16 first-day availabilities. It looked okay, but hardly great. So sales veeps Jack Otter and Max Buck put their heads together with two other N.Y. sales figures at NBC —the operational "genius" of the jigsaw puzzle, Joe Iaricci, and sports salesman Dick McHugh. Lacking at least four minutes worth of advertising for the Tuesday game, they decided to make a freebee offer to any of the sponsors who had ordered minutes in all three games. Approaching these "cross-the-boarders," NBC sales men said they'd give them the third game absolutely free, should there be one, if they'd drop their present third-game orders in favor of doubling up in the for-sure second game.

"You know," a sales exec said later, "only two sponsors took us up on it." Those two, naturally, got a free minute apiece when the Dodgers evened off the series in Game 2.

By Tuesday, when it sank in that people were really watching in large numbers, everybody wanted to buy. It seems they didn't care what the terms were; they wanted in. NBC thus got to sell a 17th minute (in case Game 2 went into the last of the ninth inning, which it did). For Wednesday's third game, in which the Giants clinched the pennant, the web actually had orders for the 18th and 19th minutes—"in case it goes into a 10th innng."

For undoubtedly the first time in network tv history, a program had two cigarets (L&M and Marlboro), three hairdressings and Schick Electric Razor and Barbasol Shave Cream doing a brother act." Something else in the way of a tv product "protection" novelty—there was a cough remedy sharing time with the cigaret companies.

There wasn't one NBC-TV salesman who, that frantic Monday and that more frantic Tuesday, had time to think of anything else. In the emergency, they were pulled off all other sales duties.

"Everybody was on the phone. This place," said one NBC official, "looked like a stock brokerage on a day the ticker is eight minutes behind."

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots compete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and total area homes is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

NEW YORK • STATIONS: WCBS, WNBC, WNEW, WABC, WOR, WPIX
• SURVEY DATES: JUNE 15 - JULY 12, 1962.

WCBS

Total Area Homes: 360,300
Metro Rating: 7
Share of Audience: 23

MONDAYS 11:15-12:45
Program: LATE SHOW

June 18 "RANDOM HARVEST"
Ronald Colman, Greer Garson
1942, MGM-TV, Repeat

June 25 "YOUNG DR. KILDARE"
Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore
1938, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

July 2 "AND NOW TOMORROW"
Alan Ladd, Loretta Young
1944, Paramount, MCA, Repeat

July 9 "SHOCK"
Vincent Price, Lynn Bart
1946, 20th Fox, NTA, 1st Run

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Tonight 11:15-12:45	WNBC 612,800

WOR

Total Area Homes: 502,700
Metro Rating: 10
Share of Audience: 18

TUESDAYS 9:00-11:00
Program: BIG PREVIEW

June 19 "MOGAMBO"
Clark Gable, Ava Gardner, Grace Kelly
1953, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

June 26 "DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER"
Glenn Ford, Gia Scalla,
Keenan Wynn, Eva Gabor
1957, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

July 3 "IT'S A BIG COUNTRY"
Gary Cooper, Janet Leigh
Van Johnson, Frederic March
1952, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

July 10 "CRISIS"
Cary Grant, Jose Ferrer
Signe Hasso, Gilbert Roland
1950, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Red Skelton; Comedy Spot 9:00-9:30	WCBS 687,900
Dick Powell 9:30-10:00	WNBC 697,100
Garry Moore; Talent Scouts 10:00-11:00	WCBS 985,500

WCBS

Total Area Homes: 398,400
Metro Rating: 9
Share of Audience: 29

WEDNESDAYS 11:15-12:45
Program: LATE SHOW

June 20 "THE FIRST HUNDRED YEARS"
Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce
1938, MGM, MGM-TV, 1st Run

June 27 "HOLD BACK THE DAWN"
Charles Boyer, Olivia de Haviland
1941, Paramount, MCA, Repeat

July 4 "YANKEE DOODLE DANDY"
James Cagney, Joan Leslie
1942, Warner Bros., UAA, Repeat

July 11 "CHRISTMAS IN JULY"
Dick Powell, Ellen Drew
1940, Paramount, MCA, Repeat

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Tonight 11:15-12:45	WNBC 686,900

WCBS

Total Area Homes: 418,600
Metro Rating: 8
Share of Audience: 29

THURSDAYS 5:30-7:00
Program: EARLY SHOW

June 21 "MEET THE PEOPLE"
Lucille Ball, Dick Powell
1944, MGM, MGM-TV, Repeat

June 28, "MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"
Bob Hope, Joan Caulfield
1946, Paramount, MCA, Repeat

July 5 "INVITATION TO HAPPINESS"
Fred MacMurray, Irene Dunne
1939, Paramount, MCA, Repeat

July 12 "CAUGHT IN THE DRAFT"
Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour
1941, Paramount, MCA, Repeat

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Popeye 5:30-6:00	WPIX 246,700
Sandy's Hour 6:00-6:30	WNEW 349,800
News; Weather; Huntley-Brinkley 6:30-7:00	WNBC 408,000

WCBS

Total Area Homes: 539,400
Metro Rating: 11
Share of Audience: 31

FRIDAYS 11:15-12:45
Program: LATE SHOW

June 15 "NAKED IN THE SUN"
James Craig, Barton MacLane
1957, Allied Artists, M&A Alexander, 1st Run

June 22 "THE BLACK NIGHT"
Alan Ladd, Pat Medina
Columbia, Screen Gems, Repeat

June 29 "HOLLYWOOD CANTEEN"
All Star Cast
1944, Warner Bros., UAA, 1st Run

July 6 "THE MARK OF ZORRO"
Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell
1940, 20th Fox, NTA, Repeat

TOP COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Tonight; Game 11:15-12:15	WNBC 547,800
Tonight 12:15-12:45	WNBC 538,600

(Continued on page 45)

FCC Asks More Info On Deintermixture Case

Washington, Oct. 9.

The Federal Communications Commission has spoken up on the longstanding and complex Evansville, Ind., deintermixture case involving the proposed shift of WTVW-TV (Evansville Television Inc.) from channel 7 to 31. But all FCC said was that WTVW-TV and the American Broadcasting Co. must submit certain affadavits.

The case which has been kicking around FCC since March 1, 1957, still is without any final Commission decision.

If Evansville is transformed into an all-UHF market, VHF channel 7 would be switched to Louisville, Ky., which now has only two VHF assignments, plus one UHF channel. ABC has an obvious interest in three Vs in the Louisville market.

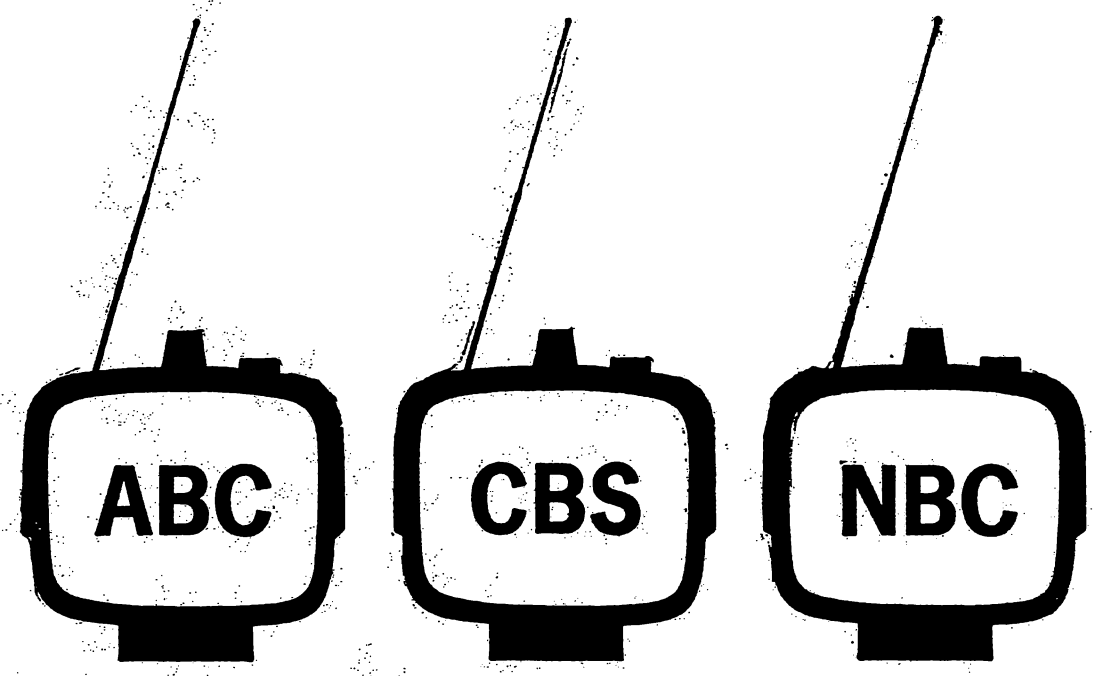
Represented by Washington attorney Harold Mott, WTVW-TV has battled vigorously to retain its VHF channel on which it continues to operate through the legal skirmishing.

Hot Rating Race

Continued from page 21

formance, could only get a 15.3 in the same half-hour competition. By the 9 o'clock time, "Route" climbed a few tenths of a point closer to 20 while Miller dipped to 14.9. ABC was second throughout this particular hour, "Flintstone's" getting 18.1 at 8:30, and "I'm Dickens, He's Fenster" preeming on ABC to a 16 at 9 p.m. At 9:30 on Fridays, the second week of "Don't Call Me Charlie" (via NBC) ran to a 15.5 vs. the first half-hour of ABC's "Strip" which got 16.2 CBS' "Fair Exchange" got a 14. By 10 p.m. "Exchange" fell to 13.2 while the NBC Jack Paar hour started with 14.5. "Strip," at 10, won with a 17.5, just the same. At 10:30 Paar had it all to himself vs. "Eyewitness" on CBS and local programming among ABC affils.

Jackie Gleason preemed Saturday (29) on CBS, and just plain walked away with the field. He ran into the low and middle 20s in the course of the 7:30-8:30 block, and NBC's "Sam Benedict," which evidently was never "shopped" since coming on the air, got under 10 all the way. Roy Rogers, on ABC—and in direct competish with the other two—ran second, doing surprisingly well by pulling down an average audience in the 15s. The rest of Saturday night, CBS (with "Defenders," "Have Gun," and "Gunsmoke") retains its lead over NBC movies, which come a close second, particularly in the latter hour of the feature exposure. From 9 p.m. on, ABC is third.



Going to Sunday (30), Nielsen discloses a major upset. The second week of ABC's "Jetson" cartoon at 7:30 gets an 18.9 against 16.9 for the first half-hour of NBC's Disney show. "Dennis the Menace" on CBS gets about 15.9. But by 8, the NBC Disney pulls out in front with a 23.7 to a 22.9 for the first half-hour of Ed Sullivan on CBS.

Sunday shapes as a partial seesaw, since Sullivan at 8:30 beats NBC's "Car 54" by over two rating points. Both shows, however, hit the respectable 20s, the sufferer this particular week being ABC's Sunday movie, running in the low teens. By 9, with "Bonanza," NBC overcomes CBS' "McCoys" preem—roughly 29.5 to "McCoys" 20.7. By 9:30 "Bonanza" built to 31 average audience, while "True Theatre," preeming on CBS, could only muster 19.8 for the half-hour.

These are considered the most important samples so far, but it's hardly expected that a satisfactiry "reading" will be available to the rating experts for at least a month, since so many shows are just now entering their preem phase, and the "shopping" is therefore not over.

Honolulu—Russell A. Greer Jr. has been appointed general manager of indie KTRG-TV. He succeeds Cecil Sevey, who resigned after only a few months with the station, owned by Hawaiian Paradise Park Corp.

Don't look now... but our neck is out again

Monday	19.7	20.3	14.6
Tuesday	17.0	19.3	16.5
Wednesday	20.6	14.1	18.5
Thursday	16.7	20.5	17.2
Friday	18.5	15.6	17.6
Saturday	15.0	21.3	20.7
Sunday	14.9	19.9	21.0
Average	17.3	18.7	18.1

Hindsight is always 20-20 vision. But you have to go out on a limb sometimes to get the choicest fruit.

Here is the N. W. Ayer forecast of the relative strength of network evening programming for the season just beginning.

Prepared at the outset of the buying season, this forecast is used as a guide in helping us to make our own program purchases. It includes a rating estimate for each nighttime network program as we think it will be when the December Neilson ratings for competitive markets are in. The complete figures, by programs, are given editorial treatment in Television magazine for October.

Last October, Ayer made a forecast for the season just ended. When the box score was in, we were 84% correct in picking the time-period winner.

N. W. AYER & SON, INC.

From The Production Centres

Continued from page 28

panel shows with candidates for four seats in U. S. House. WWDC radio is airing debates for Maryland Federal office candidates Mark Evans, on WTTG-TV, will interview two candidates for Congressman at Large in Maryland . . . FCC Bar Assn will toss its Annual Outing at Washington Country Club Oct. 15 . . . WGMS radio broadcasting Dag Hammarskjold memorial concert from State Dept.

IN DETROIT .

NBC-TV has scheduled a full hour in color to highlight the National Auto Show from Cobo Hall with Chet Huntley, Hugh Downs and Jack Lescoulie doing the talking from 6 to 7 p.m. Oct. 21 with Reynolds Metals sponsoring . . . Eight CBS-TV personalities in two different groups were here on the "Weekend Star Junket," with resulting interviews being shown on "The Connie Page Show" on WJBK-TV. Included in the groups were Dick Crenna, Victor Maddern, Burt Reynolds, Beverely Washburn, Bob Carroll Jr., William Talman and Irene Ryan . . . WJR's chief announcer, Charley Park, will host a new 15-minute Friday at 7:30 p.m. show "Teachers' Report Card" which will emphasize answers to letters from listeners regarding educational matters . . . WWJ-TV reports that its hour-long public affairs program "Profile: Detroit Police Department" was rated by ARB as outranking all other network programs at that time . . . WXYZ-TV has scheduled a tv debate between the wives of the gubernatorial candidates, entitled "Why My Husband Should Be Governor." Mrs. John B. Swainson, wife of the incumbent, and Mrs. George Romney, wife of the challenger, will have had it in a half hour prime time tv debate . . . West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's lectures at Harvard University will be carried on WDTM . . . New WWJ-TV entry is "Stump the Stars," with Pat Harrington Jr. as host, in the 10:30 p.m. Monday slot.

IN PHILADELPHIA .

Susan Kellem, Columbia Record man's daughter, joined the staff at WRCV . . . Al Schwartzman, WPEN's helicopter traffic spotter, exiting station . . . Former magistrate Joe Rainey back at his "Listening Post" on WDAS . . . Gene Litt, account exec with CBS Spot Sales, in New York, appointed general sales manager of WCAU. He replaces Jack Kline who resigned to join KDEF, in Albuquerque, as general manager . . . T. E. Paisley Jr., manager of WRCV, placed on the membership roster of the Governor's Traffic Safety Council to represent the Pennsylvania Association of Broadcasters.

IN MILWAUKEE . .

Top brass George Comte, WTMJ-TV, Roger LeGrand, WITI-TV, and William C. Goodnow, WISN-TV sparked confab on television at recent meeting of Garden Homes Parent Teachers Assn . . . Some 50 adult education execs due for attendance Oct. 11-12 at conference on educational TV, at WMVS-TV, the Milwuakee Vocational & Adult station . . . WMVS-TV, National Educational Television (NET), WHA-TV (Madison) hosting, with U. of Wisconsin-Milwaukee; UW Extension Division; Marquette U.; Milwaukee Public Library; Milwaukee Council for Adult Learning & Milwaukee County Radio-TV Council cooperating . . . Lecturer Dr. Albert Burke, started new series on WTMJ-TV. Dr. Burke also now has 3 30 p.m. cross-the-board 5-minute shots on WISN Radio . . . Victor Borge's new program, now on WFMR (FM radio) 9 p.m.-10 p.m., Wednesdays in stereo & monaural, with Borge sparking things while commenting on "good music" played. The WFMR Borge show is linked on 40 FM station web . . . Paul Taff, former station manager of WMVS-TV (Milwaukee), currently executive producer of children's programming for National Educational Television & Radio Center, appointed assistant director of programming at net. Taff keeps duties in kiddies programming, of which "What's New," a half-hour daily series, created & produced by Taff, has rated well . . . Dick Ruedebusch & His Underprivileged Five, current Tunnel Inn standbys, after New York's Metropole & other dates, taped program for broadcast Oct. 17 on WMVS-TV . . . Claude Dorsay, Clock Bar longtime 88er set live jazz piano demo and discussion Oct. 24 on WMVS-TV.

IN MINNEAPOLIS . .

WCCO, CBS affiliate, has integrated its Roger Erickson into net's "House Party," separating Art Linkletter show into segments. Web's dropping of Bing Crosby-Rosemary Clooney show and the "Johnny Dollar" and "Suspense" series has also enabled station to expand air time for its own personalities . . . WTCN-TV news photographer Virgil Piercy received "Distinguished Service Citation" from Minnesota Gov. Elmer L. Andersen last week. Piercy proposed "lights on for safety" campaign, getting motorists to keep their headlights burning during peak holiday travel periods. State borrowed idea and trimmed its accident toll . . . WMIN received dozens of calls from dialers protesting station's modification of its two-month-old all-news format. Franklin Broadcasting Co. station continues to stress news coverage but has added show tunes and semi-classical music . . . Robert Drew Associates has assigned film crew to document congressional race between Rep. Walter Judd and Donald Fraser, one of the nation's hottest political fights . . . KRSI carrying suburban high school football games with former University of Minnesota grid stars Paul Giel and Bobby Cox doing the play-by-play. Minnesota Viking official Billy Bye, another former Gopher great, is doing two football shows weekly on KEVE . . . WTCN-TV and radio news director Sheldon Peterson re-elected v.p. of national Radio-Television News Directors Assn. . . KMSP-TV, 20th-Fox station, has purchased new Jerry Lester show. Lester completed fortnight stay at Freddie's, Minneapolis supper club, last week . . . WTCN-TV carried special show, "Toast the Winning Twins," honoring Minnesota Twins baseball team on completion of fine season. Program hosts were Twins sportscaster Ray Scott, Herb Carneal and Halsey Hall and WTCN sports director Frank Buetel.

IN PITTSBURGH

Jack Williams, new program manager for KDKA, will introduce "Sunday Showcase" to the station from 4 to 8 p.m. where he will have d.j.'s Bob Tracey, Clark Race and Art Pallan each handling an hour devoted to the latest single and album they have introduced during the week . . . John Stewart, host of "Program PM," will also be on the show with the best of the week's programs. WWSW had a football doubleheader on the air Saturday (6) . . . Red Donley broadcast the Pitt-California game on in the afternoon and Joe Tucker followed with the Steeler-Eagles game in the evening. Frank Snyder, g.m. of WTAE, named to the board of the Pittsburgh Symphony. Sterling Yates and Bob Prince will be the announcers on the Hornet hockey games over KDKA-TV. First Federal Savings sponsored KDKA's broadcast of the Walter Schirra space shot with the station's Mike Levine doing on-the-spot reporting from Cape Canaveral.

IN ST. LOUIS . . .

Tom Dailey, veteran radio-tv personality, has joined radio station KADY as vice-president in charge of sales. Dailey's old "Recallit and Win" show was a local winner some years back . . . Gerry Mandel moved from KPLR-TV's publicity staff to KMOX-TV where he will head up audience promotion department . . . Contralto Grace Bumbry will visit Curt Ray's early ayem "Good Morning" show on KMOX-TV Monday (15). He introduced Miss Bumbry on the old "Talent Scouts" show years back and got her career going on a professional, paying basis . . . Alice Friedman, WILL radio promotion assistant, will have a featured role in the George Williams Players production, "Between Two Thieves," to be presented at the Old Courthouse on Saturday (13) and Sunday (14) . . . Celebs in town last week included Bob Conrad and Troy Donahue plugging tv's "Hawaiian Eye" series. Jimmie Dodd on a promo junket for the syndicated reprise of the "Mickey Mouse Club" on KTVI-TV. However, the best promotion stunt of the week was a tour of downtown streets by a genuine old wagon for "Wagon Train" . . . WIL radio deejay Ed Wilson and Dale Robertson shared the spotlight as co-emcees of the Mayor's Cup Polo Match for Muscular Dystrophy.

IN DALLAS .

KMAP-FM debuted with classical music format from 7 a.m. to midnight and Gary Mears as program director . . . Hugh Lampman started his ninth year as host of American Airlines' "Music 'Til Dawn" nightly platter show on KRLD . . . Lou Benton, announcer, left KRLD to fill singing dates and build his theatrical booking agency . . . Bud Collyer, CBS-TV "To Tell the Truth" emcee, due Oct. 25 to autograph his new book, "Thou Shalt Not Fear" at a local bookstore. On Oct. 26 he'll emcee the "Miss Teenage America Pageant" here, to be aired over CBS-TV. Allen Ludden, emcee of "Password," and Zina Bethune, of "The Nurses," also slated to attend . . . Bill Fanning and John Hardman, clown team of "Mr. C and Mr. B," back on KRLD-TV for sponsor Cullum & Boren . . . Magician Mark Wilson, of "The Magic Land of Allakazam," here to film commercials at Pams Studio for the Beanbag Buccaneer Game . . . Jack Renfro, ex-WFAA newsman, now heading Dallas bureau for KTVT, Fort Worth.

IN CINCINNATI

James H. Burgess advanced from veep and general manager of WLW-A, Atlanta, to a vice president of Crosley Broadcasting Corp. and appointed general manager of WLW-T, Cincy . . . Paul Miller voices WCKY editorials thrice daily Monday through Friday. Contributors are Jeanette Heinze, president and general manager, and staffers Miller, Don Herman, David Nicholson and Lloyd Baldwin. The L. B. Wilson station restores Fulton Lewis Jr.'s Mutual comments in this area beginning Oct. 15 . . . WCPO-TV picked up the final hour of the Cincinnati Pro-Amateur Gold Tournament with Al Schottlekotte and Jack Moran as mikers . . . After finishing their National League airings of Cincy Reds games on WKRC, Waite Hoyt increased his schedule on WLW-T and Gene Kelly resumed fulltime duties as WKRC sportscaster, kicking off with U. of Cincinnati football.

Granada Variety Show Sparked by Yank Names

London, Oct. 9.

Granada-TV's long-awaited musical skein, "West End" is scheduled to bow tomorrow, (Wed.), a debut which will be keenly watched by the trade. For in a society not over-abundant with available variety talent, a development such as is being attempted by Granada is bound to get a thorough o.o.

Show is predominantly American in concept, with artists like Johnny Carson, Della Reese, Barrie Chase and George Kirby performing under Yank producer Nick Vanoff.

Scheduled at six weekly intervals, producer Vanoff has put two segments in the can and is to compile other shows as an when suitable artists become available.

Granada's show is the second such Yank-dominated skein to emanate from commercial tv sources, the first being Associated TeleVision's "Jo Stafford Show," which guestarred many leading U.S. performers.

Critical Tempest

Continued from page 29

self. David Susskind, who is often heard in the role of industry critic, arose and, for the producers, angrily indicted the organization. He called ATAS "ineffectual and sterile, a listless social club," an "apologist" for management. A member of the board of governors, a member of the board of trustees, Susskind—who had threatened to do so before—this time actually quit the Academy. (He said later he was sending in a formal letter.)

"Were Susskind alone, it might have seemed merely repetitive," an observer later said, "but there were others on his side. David Davidson for one."

Writer Davidson, also a high-ranking Academy exec, said later that he would not quit because he would rather work for changes from within.

Davidson, at the forum, was prompted to say, "The Academy has degraded and demeaned itself by giving awards in every one of the fixed (Emmy) categories—when often, we all knew, there was nothing worth receiving the award." He charged that the Academy "should have the courage to pass," and thus give the awards "more dignity."

This led to stirrings in management at some tv operations in N. Y. Not that any network or station expressed or showed nervousness, but by Friday (5), the day after the forum, some of them were casting a cautious eye in the direction of such concertized criticism from the industry itself.

Inside Stuff—Radio-TV

Broadcasters' Promotion Assn. has lined up NAB prexy Gov. LeRoy Collins and William Lewis, board chairman of Kenyon & Eckhardt ad agency, as two of the principle speakers for the org's Dallas conclave Oct. 28-31. Collins will give the keynote address at the Monday (29) luncheon. Lewis will speak on the broadcasters "image" today and what can be done to improve it. Other speakers slated include Stephen Riddleberger, prexy of ABC Radio; Norman Cash, TvB prexy; Roy Danish, director of the Television Information Office; and Edmund C. Bunker, RAB prexy.

VARIETY review of the new NBC-TV daytime Merv Griffin stanza in the Oct. 3 issue erroneously listed the preem femme guest as Patrice Munsel. Roberta Peters was the guest on the show. But the gremlin that accounted for the snafu had a vicarious benevolent result—it keyed Griffin to offer Miss Munsel a future booking.

Donald H. McGannon, prexy of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., has been added to the list of speakers at the second annual meeting of Institute of Broadcasting Financial Management being held Oct. 17-19 in Milwaukee. Walter Bury, a partner in Ernst and Ernst, will report on how new Internal Revenue Service depreciation guidelines will affect the broadcast industry. IBFM prexy Henry W. Dornseif (WCCO-AM-TV, Minneapolis-St. Paul) expects a turnout of 150 industry financial execs at the meeting.

Mergenthaler Linotype Co. and CBS Laboratories have signed a longterm agreement providing for the development by CBS Laboratories of ultra-high-speed composing and print-out devices. These devices, capable of operation directly from computers and computer magnetic tapes, as well as other specialist equipment for use in the graphic arts field, will be based upon CBS Laboratories' developments and Mergenthaler's specifications.

In this arrangement the existing engineering, manufacturing and marketing facilities of Mergenthaler Linotype will be combined with the specialized research and development services of CBS Laboratories, a division of CBS.

Roger Englander is on a bicycle between New York's two centers—the new Lincoln Center and the old City Center. At Lincoln Center, Englander is producing and directing his sixth season of "New York Philharmonic Young Peoples Concerts With Leonard Bernstein," which will start taping on Oct. 13 for later showings as specials on the CBS-TV fall and winter nighttime schedule. The opener will feature music by Berlioz, Walton, Pinkham, and Tschaikowsky—and will be titled "The Sound of the Hall," the subject being the acoustics of the new auditorium. At City Center, he's staging a new production of Bizet's "Carmen" which opens in repertory Oct. 14. Julius Rudel will conduct and Claramae Turner will play the title role for the N.Y.C. Opera Co.

The TV Academy has organized an International Relations Committee, essentially so that the Emmy org can stay on top of burgeoning foreign tv developments. National prexy Robert Lewine named his exec veep Ted Cott to chair the new committee. Serving on the committee with Cott are CBS' Hubbell Robinson Jr., NBC's Mort Werner, ABC's Joseph Stamler and ABC's Lewis Shollenberger. Others listed are producer Louis Edelmann, American Medical Assn. radio-tv chief Richard Reinauer, and performer Jean Bartel.

If announced intentions become reality the Lone Star Publishing Co. will be producer of a film based on a book it has put out. It's "Valorie Scorby and the Big Port," by Roy Bradford. Port is Houston and the girl of the title becomes head of an industrial empire. Texas money, it's hinted, is behind it.

The Federal Communications Commission has changed its "local notice" rules (involving the filing or designation for hearing of broadcast applications) to require television stations to give the notice orally by an announcer with the camera focused on him. Previously, a printed notice could be flashed on the screen. Also, applicants under new rules have seven (instead of five) days in which to file with FCC statements setting forth information about the local notice. Other changes involve technical legal details.

TV Followup

Continued from page 32

Rebel 'boots ended the truce and the lives of several men of both sides, Bridges, who portrayed a Southern army leader, yelled out in anger and disgust, "if we have to kill then we better know what we believe in."

It was an unintentional epilog to the previous days' events in Mississippi where death too had come over unclarified beliefs and in ridiculous civil strife.

The show, which is only a few episodes old, has many possibilities open to it with this format. It is not tied down at all and therefore a nicely-executed show like last Tuesday's can be done without stretching things too far, once the premise is excepted. Although it is a somewhat stretched peg for a weekly series, careful scripting and production values can still make it a worthwhile outing.

John Cassavetes directed the Yankee-Rebel episode with meticulous detail, paying careful attention with his camera to the horrors of the Civil War and the twisted reflections of the conflict in its participant's faces. Bridges was strong and emotional as the Rebel leader who deplored the futility and tragedy of such a conflict. He was assisted ably by a cast which included Otis Phelps, Lawrence Tierney and Royal Dano.

The stupidity and tragedy of such a conflict in the 1860s or 1960s is equal and the show just happened to come at the right time to demonstrate it best. Kali.

Raps TV Critics as 'Anglophiles'

WTMJ's George Comte Warns Against Belief That Government Can Do It Better

Milwaukee, Oct. 9.

Speaking at Watertown, Wisc., Branch meeting of the American Association of University Women, Sept. (26) George Comte, veepee & general manager, radio & television, of The Journal Company (WTMJ-TV-AM-FM) blasted critics of television.

Comte, representing the Wisconsin Broadcasters' Assn., said: "Much of the criticism of television has come from professional critics . . . educational TV people, who might well spend their time in improving their own programs . . . magazines and newspapers who have felt the pinch of advertising monies flowing into television . . . and, regretfully, people who have found it expedient for personal publicity."

"America has the best radio and television in the world, in spite of what might be termed 'the belief in Anglophilia'," Comte continued.

Comte said further:

"Many of our ancestors left England to establish something better, but there are still some Americans who, insofar as radio and television are concerned, apparently believe they should have stayed home.

"Under these circumstances, it is not surprising that BBC has hired a new program manager to pull it out of its complacent lethargy and put it into reasonable competition with independent tv. This should give cause for sober thought to those who recently have been preaching that government can do it (television) better."

Comte indicated to the AAUW, that despite the "personal opposition of powerful critics, the general public doesn't share their sentiments . . . and continues to watch tv and listen to radio—at an ever-increasing rate, thankful of the wealth of knowledge and entertainment they receive."

Comte indicated government control would not improve the tv industry, stressing that British tv began to make an impact when commercial tv entered the picture.

Comte, pointing out that tv (in one week) used as much material as the motion pictures used in first 20 years existence, indicated that not absolutely all of this material could be top notch. Comte asked: "After all, how many Hemingways are there? How many Shakespeares are there?"

Comte said the American public will decide what tv will be—what new forms and new ideas will be used in the industry.

CBS' 'LOOK UP & LIVE' ON CLASSICS KICK

CBS-TV's "Look Up and Live" is on a cultural kick, presenting a five-part series dramatizing excerpts from the works of Euripides, Shakespeare, Ibsen and Camus. Series, to be telecast in the religioso show's regular time slot of 10:30 to 11 a.m. Sundays, kicks off Sunday (14).

Bruce Minnix, who directed the recent "Money Talks" specials on the web, is directing the "Look Up and Live" series.

Chi FMer Joins QXR Web But Without Times News

Chicago, Oct. 9.

WXFM here has signed an affiliation agreement with QXR, giving the New York Times broadcast operation its first outlet in the Windy City. Station becomes part of QXR's "non-interconnected network," getting the FM programs on tape rather than microwave.

Service starts with the "Victor Borge Show," which is set for 26 weeks, and WXFM will also carry John Wilson's jazz show and Abram Chasin's stanza for a starter, Robert Victor, WXFM general manager, says he'll carry as much QXR programming as available and is anxious, particularly, to get New York Times news although such an arrangement has not yet been worked out. FM-er is licensed for suburban Elmwood Park but has good coverage of the city.

ABC's 'Flair' Talks Up a Storm

Radio Web's Show Enters Third Year in Black With 85% Clearance

The long, uphill climb of network radio to its onetime key place in the broadcasting scene is currrently being powered by the distribution of news shows and talk features to local stations. At ABC Radio, the daily "Flair" show has become the strong bread-and-butter attraction for the web's growing affiliate lineup.

Now going into its third year, "Flair" hinges on a novel 55-minute format which can be broken down by affils into 11 five-minute segments. Each of these five-minutes are framed as self-contained stanzas with a 90-second talk by a name performer at the core. These talks are designed to be as punchy as possible with a range extending to baby care to stock market advice.

The special showmanship angle on "Flair" has been the use of virtually every theatrical and sports name to do the 90-second gab. Among the newly signed talent for the upcoming season are Gloria Swanson, Lauren Bacall, Gertrude Berg, Mimi Benzell, Jack E. Leonard, Paul Lynde, Eddie Mayehoff, Don Adams, Paul Winchell, Jerry Colonna, Mike Wallace, Oscar Brand and Sam Huff. Dick Van Dyke continues as the host who introduces each of the personalities. Regulars are recipe authority David Wade and John Fos-

(Continued on page 44)

Community Antenna

Continued from page 22

CATV man and every broadcaster in the country."

Carow added that Georgia and many other sections of the Southeast have been spawning grounds for CATV in recent months. Dozens of franchises have been granted, systems planned and put into operation and many broadcasters caught flatfooted with little or no information to evaluate whether CATV is a menace or a friend.

FCC's Cox will head up a panel discussion on "CATV: Friend Or Foe" at the Seminar and other speakers will include William Dalton, president of the National Community Television Assn; Russell Eagan, Washington, attorney; Charles Batson, WIS-TV, Columbia, S.C., and Fred Weber, vice president, Rust Craft Broadcasting Co.

TPEA

Continued from page 23

Geneva by his European manager, Ralph Bettinson.

McCarthy, who has made four trips to Geneva during the past year as tv consultant to the American delegation, stated that tv throughout the world—not just America—is seeking comparable recognition that GATT gave the motion picture industry over a decade ago.

On the issue of tv festivals, the TPEA directors decided to recognize only those fairs approved by the European Broadcasting Union.

bland

The unassuming and the innocuous are, from time to time, too much a part of broadcasting. More often than not, it is a case of the bland leading the bland. The rare stations which program with the spirited flavor of our times: controversy, exchange of opinion and sheer on-the-toes excitement, reap the rewards of a responsive audience. Perhaps that's why our stations are continually moving forward . . . marking progress, not just time. People watch. People listen. People know.

POST • NEWSWEEK STATIONS
A DIVISION OF THE WASHINGTON POST COMPANY

WTOP-TV, WASHINGTON, D.C.
WJXT, JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA
WTOP RADIO, WASHINGTON, D.C.

Foreign TV Reviews

Continued from page 35

actors like John Phillips, Patrick Troughton, and Warren Mitchell adding weight. The latter introduced comedy relief as a knowing and enterprising Algerian hanger-on.

The [illegible] script was effectively [illegible] by David Greene, and [illegible]'s expensive production sound its cost and gave the plot a glossy and well-flavored backing. Otta.

THE SCHOOLS
Producer-director: Richard Cawston
75 [illegible], 9:25 p.m.
BBC-TV, from London

One of the most able of Britain's documentary makers, Richard Cawston, as the second in a series of programs on the professions (he's already made "The Lawyers"), has taken a long, hard look at British schools. Aim was to give the teachers' eye view of the educational system. Result was a wide ranging thorough piece of pub affairs film-making which not only brought over an effective picture of the complex schools system which exists here, but of great disagreement among teachers themselves.

The sometimes antiquated, sometimes modern methods used; "unfair" overcrowding of state schools compared with the comfortably small classes in public schools (i.e. private schools); use of the much-maligned selection examination for 11-year olds; mixed boys and girls schools—these and many other issues were tossed into the open.

The original and professional production involved not a line of script, a voice over nor an actor. Unnamed teachers spoke up for themselves. They presented their views with punch and conviction. That they were often diametrically opposed in views or had some startling things to say about their colleagues served only to aid the program.

Skillful (unheard) questioning by Cawston, which must have been born of much research, and subsequent firstrate editing by Roy Fry, kept the controversy hot, the facts rolling in and the interest at a high peak. Rich dialects of the masters from schools all over the country were skillfully blended and used to add color, as were some glorious snippets of children at their lessons.

Although the program drew no conclusions it represents another feather in the Cawston cap. Watt.

ALTA PRESSIONE
(High Pressure)
With Walter Chiari, Renata Mauro, Mina, Neil Sedaka, Geronimo, Little Tony, Georges Reich ballet, others; Franco Pisano Orch.
Director: Enzo Trapani
Writers: Francesco Luzi, Massimo Ventriglia
90 Mins., Sun., 9:05 p.m.
RAI-TV, from Rome (tape)

This lightweight variety stanza, primarily designed for teen audiences, suits its purposes admirably. Lack of pretense and nonchalant treatment are its main assets, and it looks to be in for a local run.

Show caught was keyed to reconciliation theme between adults and adults and teenagers, with items appealing to both "sides" being alternately displayed. Thus Neil Sedaka gave with a twist item (sung in very functional Italian, by the way), but followed up with a Chopin waltz played straight on the piano. Yank singer registered solidly in this triple exposure. Other star of show, together with Walter Chiari, who conducted some very risible shenanigans concerning Roman traffic problems and such, was Italo pop singer Mina, probably the top exponent of her genre today in this country. Her savvy stint was an evening highlight. Her brother, whose singing name is Geronimo (sic) also appeared to advantage in a slower sonvalog.

Back in the twist sector, Little Tony, aided by his guitar-strumming brother, came through with some swinging routines, interspersed with top-notch charleston ballet numbers by the able George Reich terp group, for a solid wind-up to an agreeable show. Hawk.

THANK YOUR LUCKY STARS
With Brian Matthew, Petula Clark, Chubby Checker, Chris Barber's Jazzband, Mike Sarne & Billie Davis, Mark Wynter, the Tornados, Alan Freeman
Director: Philip Jones
40 Mins., Sat., 5:50 p.m.
ABC-TV, from Manchester

Having had a checkered and uneasy run during its earlier outings, this disk-hit show returned to the schedules with a tighter format and super aim. Said aim is to present record toppers to the squealers, and the line-up of the opener pleased that public, despite the unexplained absence of a couple of wax-makers, for whom Chubby Checker and Mark Wynter substituted.

The show was suitably brash, with suitably garish, neon-lit sets from Douglas James. Brian Matthew, its brisk host, ushered in the items as if he were introducing them to a guy in the next town—but that meshed with the spirit of the thing. Chris Barber, his trombone, and his trad group bustled through "Ory's Creole Trombone," which looked set for a click with all those who had never heard of the Kid himself—and who in this age bracket had? Thence followed the delightful "Will I What?" from Mike Sarne, with interpolations from Billie Davis; this winner has quality as well as popularity.

The Tornados, an instrumental group that has an electric-organ as novelty, delivered their climbing "Telstar," and the affable Mark Wynter proffered "Venus in Blue Jeans" without convincing that it had the punch for chart-topping.

Two twist numbers from Chubby Checker—indistinguishable to the layman—shared in the lively mood, and thence followed a teenage panel, commanded by deejay Alan Freeman (an overteenager), to give its verdict on three new waxings. Bobby Darin's "If a Man Answers" got top marks; with Johnny Tillotson and the Crickets trailing. Climax of the show was a warbling stint from Petula Clark, local thrush who's gone top-of-the-aviary in Europe. Her bouncy "Jumble Sale" and "Ya-Ya Twist" were slick and polished—though she sang the latter in French, which wouldn't mean much in this context unless it was followed by "fried."

On the whole, with pacey direction by Philip Jones, this initialer promised to be a regular date for addicts. They might, however, make the audience shricks seem less contrived. Otta.

BREAKTHROUGH
With Robert Holness
Producer: Derek Twist
Writer: Jeremy Kingston
30 Mins.; Tues., 10:45 p.m.
Granada TV, from Manchester

Granada has always been attached to the intimate habits of livestock, and this series promises to be an exceptionally good sample of the breed. Cameras were taken below water to survey the mating habits of the bullhead and the newt, and then gave a closeup keyhole view of amorous wolf spiders.

The film was accompanied by a crisp and unsentimental commentary by Jeremy Kingston, who carried out the skein's intention to give these tiny fauna their due dignity and not to simper over them as if they were truncated humans. The shots, patiently assembled from much footage by Derek Twist, were fascinating in themselves, and also broke new ground for this type of program. The cave-man tactics of the bullhead, who dragged females in to his lair amidst ecstatic grunts, the delicate courtship of the newts, and the scientific approach of the spider; they all made intriguing variations on the theme.

The narrative was spoken by Robert Holness, who didn't entirely avoid the aren't-they-funny? approach. Later segments will deal with offspring-rearing and animal communication. Otta.

DINNER PARTY
With Lord Boothby, C.P. Snow, John Freeman
Producer: Francis Coleman
30 Mins.; Mon., 10:40 p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

For some unexplained reason, one of the guests for this brandy-and-cigar causerie failed to turn up. Instead of the expected foursome, the talking was left to three. It was a lucky accident, for it allowed a much more consecutive conversation than in the first "Dinner Party" series. Otherwise, the format stays the same, with a waiter topping glasses for the guests and the camera eavesdropping on their wisdom. Lord Boothby repeated the role of host, subduing on this occasion his way-out tendency to throw questions at the guests as if it were some provincial forum.

Talk buzzed around such topics as Britain's entry into the Comman Market, the shifting of power from the politicos to the backroom pundits of Washington, London, and Moscow, and the importance of Britain's unilateral disarmament movement. The ball flipped nimbly between Socialist John Freeman, a practised tv performer, and novelist C.P. Snow, helped by the occasional lob from Boothby.

The views were civilized, emphasizing, for example, the sincerity of feeling amongst those who would ban Britain's bomb, the immense danger for democracy in the present hidden system of expert bureaucrats making life-and-death decisions which politicians persuade the public to endorse, and the similarity of this threat in all countries. Snow considered that Washington was somewhat freer in this respect.

The program never ridded itself of its artificial conception, but was otherwise tauter than before in Francis Coleman's production. As indicated, it shed much of the free-for-all butting-in which once irritated. Otta.

ON THE BRADEN BEAT
With Bernard Braden
Producer: Jock Watson
20 Mins., Sat., 1130 :p.m.
Associated TeleVision, from London

This is probably the most satisfying tv nightcap that either of the local webs has brewed. Bernard Braden, actor, comedian, and writer, merely sat at the desk and commented on social topics. These included the fashion to get automobile number-plates that indicate the owner—like TT 1 for Terry-Thomas; the recent argument about the word "nigger" as part of a play title, and its offensive implications for colored Britons like Cleo Laine and Shirley Bassey, who supplied quotes; an anthology of cracks by Dick Gregory; a touching tale about a London stage door-keeper, whom Braden knew, and who was beaten up by four thugs during the week; and, finally, a comment about the local price of tomatoes, which varied, on the same day, according to the store and the district.

Braden delivered the spiel with an astringent, deadpan wit, and was completely at ease, gracefully mocking the desk and its press-button attachments of monitor screens and the like. Nearest equivalent would be an opinion column in a newssheet, but few local dailies could match this one. Jock Watson produced without fuss. Otta.

'Flair'

Continued from page 43

tini, who reads historical love letters.

Whereas two years ago, "Flair" only cleared about 65% of the web, currently it's getting an 85% clearance. It's doing as well in this department as the news shows and the longrunning "Breakfast Club." Representing an investment of some $600,000 annually, "Flair" is now in the black as it starts its third year.

Click of the "Flair" show has cued ABC Radio to move into syndication of talk shows. It has already launched two five-minute sessions with Dr. Joyce Brothers and Dr. Albert Burke. Some 70 affils have already bought these shows which kicked off this month. More shows are being planned for this type of syndication under which affils pay an average of $3 per show, but which in the aggregate can add up to a sizable weekly source of revenue.

Major Features On West Germany's TV Bothers Pix Industry

Frankfurt, Oct. 9.

The West German film industry, which has long been taking pokes at the competitive and tax-free West German television industry, is good and mad right now.

Latest word out is that in October, the West German television will be offering the 6,600,000 tv set owners free performances of some films which have been cited as "outstanding" or "especially outstanding" by the West German Film Classification Board.

While formerly many of the films playing over the tv screens were oldies, or not such special films, the film industry still felt that there was plenty of competition from tv. But now, with such unusually excellent films being spooled out in the living room, the film industry is hopping mad, and is tightening up its demands before the West German government in Bonn for some aid, in the form of tax relief or special benefits for film-makers.

The films stirring up all the latest crisis include the French pic "Reward of Fear"; the Italian "The Wonder of Milan" and the British "Rembrandt," starring Charles Laughton, all scheduled to be played on the West German First Television Channel during October.

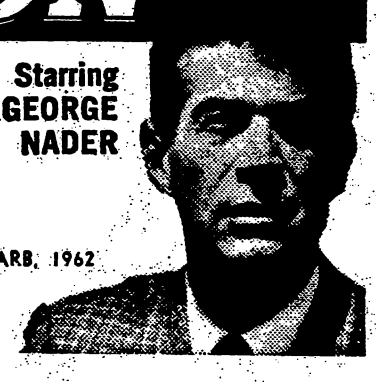
And showing over the Second Channel of the West German tv net in October are the U.S. pic "Command of Conscience," the Polish film "Ashes and Diamonds" and the French film "Orphee."

2-Parter for 'Defenders'

The first two-parter for "The Defenders," CBS-TV's Saturday night entry, will be telecast later this month, under the overall title of "The Madman."

The two-parter grew out of a script by Robert Thom. Scripter Thom meant the outing for an hour, but the project grew as it went into production. Story line deals with a killer and the question what is held to be legal insanity. It stars Sylvia Sidney and Don Gordon.

Opener of the two-parter will be Oct. 20 with the final chapter telecast the next Saturday night.



Mgt William Morris Agency

AT PUBLIC AUCTION
THE REAL ESTATE
No. 1 SUTTON PLACE
One of the most beautiful town houses in Manhattan. Built for Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt about 1925. Four stories and basement. Georgian brick; entrance on tree-lined 57th Street. Sold by order of the executor of the estate of the late Pierre Bader.
BROKERS PROTECTED
Inspection by appointment.
Send for Illustrated Brochure
SP — PARKE-BERNET
AUCTION ON THE PREMISES
OCTOBER 31 at 11 a.m.
Auction Conducted by
PARKE-BERNET, Inc.
980 Madison Ave., New York 21

Leading New York City radio station
WANTS
weekend news announcers with strong news background and professional announcing experience — writing necessary. Send resume and tape to: Box V 1344, Variety, 154 W. 46th St., New York 36, New York.

VARIETY?
We have a new brochure booklet of unusual country places in Hunterdon County (commuting area). Quite a VARIETY to send to you.
SIG KUHNE, Realtor, Clinton, N. J.
Route 69
Ph.: Clinton 735-5115

SHANNON
#1 in TIME PERIOD!
5-Station SEATTLE KING-TV 49% Aud. Share
3-Station ATLANTA WSB-TV 44% Aud. Share
Source: ARB, 1962
Starring GEORGE NADER

For full details, contact
SCREEN GEMS, INC.

4th in the NATION!
in retail sales per household*
That's Minneapolis-St. Paul, with retail sales of $4,649 per household. In this key market, KSTP-TV is the first television station serving 810,800 homes.
KSTP television 5
100,000 WATTS NBC
MINNEAPOLIS • ST. PAUL

VARIETY ARB FEATURE FILM CHART

VARIETY-ARB's weekly chart offers a day-by-day analysis of the top feature evening slots in a particular market. On Saturdays and Sundays, daytime feature slots complete with nighttime pix periods for designation as the top feature slot of the day. The analysis is confined to the top rated feature slots in the ARB measured period, broken down by days in the week. The ARB measured period usually covers three or four weeks. Other data such as the time slot and average share of audience is furnished. Top competition and competitive ratings also are highlighted.

(Continued from page 40)

WCBS

Total Area Homes: 857,200
Metro Rating: 17
Share of Audience: 52

SATURDAYS 11:15-12:45
Program: LATE SHOW—AWARD THEATRE

June 16 "ANOTHER PART OF THE FOREST"
Fredric March, Edmund O'Brien
1948, Universal, Screen Gems, 1st Run

June 23 "THE WILD ONE"
Marlon Brando, Mary Murphy
1954, Columbia, Screen Gems, 1st Run

June 30 "DISTANT DRUMS"
Gary Cooper, Mari Aldon
1957, Warner Bros., Jayark, 1st Run

July 7 "JOHNNY ROCCO"
Richard Eyer, Stephen McNally
1958, Allied Artists M&A Alexander, 1st Run

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Movie 4 11:15-12:45	WNBC 481,700

WABC

Total Area Homes: 826,400
Metro Rating: 15
Share of Audience: 28

SUNDAYS 8:30-10:30
Program: HOLLYWOOD SPECIAL

June 17 "NOT AS A STRANGER"
Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra
Broderick Crawford, Olivia deHaviland
1955, UA, UAA, 1st Run

June 24 "MARTY"
Ernest Borgnine, Betsy Blair
1955, UAA, UA, 1st Run

July 1 "TEN SECONDS TO HELL"
Jeff Chandler, Jack Palance
1959, UA, UAA, 1st Run

July 8 "JOHNNY CONCHO"
Frank Sinatra, Keenan Wynn
Phyliss Kirk, Wallace Ford
1956, UA, UAA, 1st Run

COMPETITION PROGRAM	STATION & TOTAL HOMES
Ed Sullivan 8:30-9:00	WCBS 1,067,700
Bonanza; TV Awards 9:00-10:00	WNBC 982,700
Candid Camera 10:00-10:30	WCBS 950,700

British Labor Party Cautiously Okays Pilkington Report Slap at Comm'l TV

London, Oct. 9.

Britain's Labor party has cautiously accepted the recommendations of the Pilkington Committee on broadcasting at its annual conference, held last week at Brighton. But certain qualifications were made on behalf of the party's National Executive by Fred Mulley, MP.

Replying to a 30-minute debate on the report, he said: "We are not against 'Coronation Street' (most popular show locally) or any of that kind of program; we are not against particular advertisements used on the present tv services. What we want is the presentation of a real choice which can only come with the reorganization of tv."

Mulley opined that the amount of advertising ought to be cut and there should be stricter control over the amount and timing of plugs. He made the point, however, that even if the constitution was satisfactorily revamped, the Labor Party was not sure it would want a second commercial web.

Politico explained, also, that the national executive saw no reason to raise the present license fee of $11.20 to $16.80 (as had been suggested by Pilkington) before the "exploration of the possibility of using some of the enormous profits made in commercial tv towards the nonprofit making parts of the service."

Moving an amendment (subsequently remitted to the National Executive) asking the conference to "note" the report rather than accepting it, George Elvin of Assn. of Cinematograph, Television & Allied Technicians, urged that the Party should press for recognition by BBC of trade unions. While his union agreed with many of the strictives the committee had made, it could not agree that BBC was "whiter than white."

According to Elvin, the trouble with commercial tv was that every penny spent on program content was resented by some of the contractors because it cut their profit. He suggested that at least 60% of the indies revenue should be spent on programming (compared with the 40% spent thereon, today).

Ted Anstey of the Musicians Union said the report was "admirable" and that it closely followed the views expressed by MU. Pilkington, however, had made a "grave omission" in not recommending control over the amount of foreign material used in tv.

Blurb Producers

Continued from page 23

today—which has seen the folding of such major studios as Bill Sturm Productions, H-F-H and Transfilm-Caravel — has been considerably due to rising costs (higher talent fees etc.) that have prompted clients to severely cut back in production of new blurbs.

Rather than produced fresh commercials, advertisers are greatly extending the life-span for the ones already on the air. Into these hard times have come producers who will bootleg (non-union) a job for a fraction of the cost a legitimate shop can afford (not so long ago an agency contracted with a bootlegger who managed to cut a half-dozen one-minute tire commercials in a single day at around $4,000 for the whole works).

It's a situation that reportedly has two more major blurb producers currently in financial trouble. JWT, perhaps, would like to keep them around long enough to get back the negatives on a job.

THE TWINS
ARE THE GREATEST ACT IN SHOW BIZ!

THE DWORMAN TWINS, the twin apartment buildings that offer pure luxury and convenience either side of Fifth, hold particular appeal for folks in show business due to their wonderful, central locations. Embracing every modern refinement, including central air conditioning, they offer 2 to 4½ rooms, unfurnished or decorator-designed at $166 to $650.

65 W. 55th
CI 7-4803
155 E. 55th
PL 5-8951

Other Dworman Associates Buildings

The Picasso, 210 East 58th St., MU 8-5349
The Queen Anne, 155 East 76th St., YU 8-5320
The Centurion, 200 East 58th St., LT 1-7050
Town House East, 501 East 79th St., YU 8-5320

If you live in a Dworman Associates building across the United States you can transfer your lease with ease.

DWORMAN ASSOCIATES
65 West 55th Street
New York 19
LT-1-7050
da

Brit. Regional Stations Show Documentaries As Prestige Builder-Uppers

London, Oct. 9.

In the race for prestige and the yen for a measure of independence, the more active programmers among the regional stations on the commercial web have now set their sights on the biggest prestige-earner of all, the documentary.

TV Wales and West, a case in point, plans to mount a no-coin-spared program on Lloyd George, the great liberal leader and former Prime Minister to celebrate the centenary of his birth. Documentary will be offered to the network.

TWW's decision to enter the "big league" documentary field—along with Anglia-TV and Southern-TV—without any assurance that its program will be picked up by any of the majors, follows the regional's success in light entertainment.

Importantly, it will be remembered, that TWW also pioneered a new "backdoor" method of program sales with NBC's "87th Precinct." Picking up the yidrights for the whole of the U.K., the local outlet then successfully secured multi-station and network deals for the show.

TA-Par

Continued from page 21

and Dick Chevillat, and they have also come up with another one, "Guardian Angel," a fantasy situation comedy. In addition, TA-Par has a 90-minute musicomedy project, "How to Break Into the Movies."

With Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear, TA-Par has reactivated "Band of Gold," half-hour anthology series piloted last season by Yorkin and Lear.

TA-Par is also working on a number of live audience-participation shows. "While discussions are being held with the networks on some of our properties, we are not necessarily pushing them for 1963-64," said Leeds, who entered the TA-Par situation only a few weeks ago.

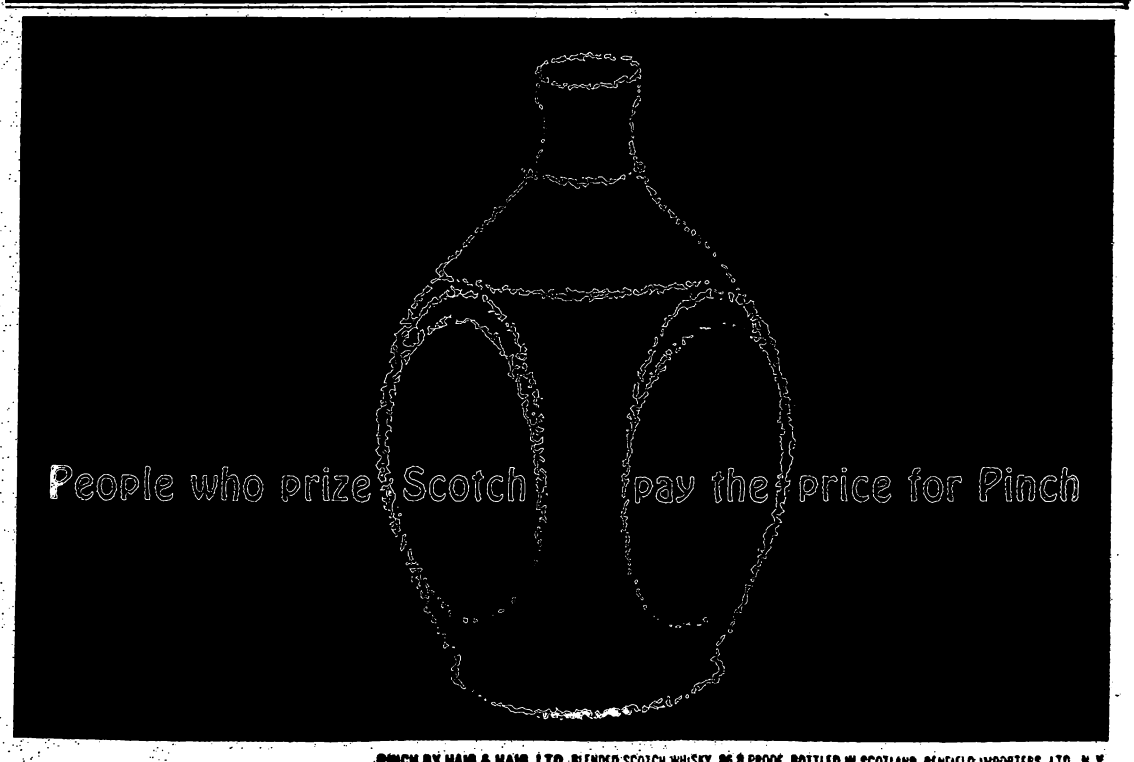
He said the studio is looking for additional projects and ideas, also that it has other series projects which are now being developed. "It is apparent that Paramount is beginning to push strongly into the TV picture from both the standpoint of production service and creative elements," Leeds, former Desilu exec veepee, said.

KTLA

Continued from page 22

ment award for most outstanding support of radio news operation.

KFMB-TV's "This Day, 1962" won for best regular tv newscast; Gill Stratton's KNXT sports show, for best regular sports news program; Bill O'Halloram, for part of "The Big News," KNXT, best news writing-regular skedded show; KNXT, best overall tv news operation.



Awards were given by RTNA prexy George Lewin, Sam Zelman and Fred Coonradt.

★
MICHAEL KEARNEY
Featured as "RUFUS" in
David Susskind's Production
Talent Associates-Paramount Film
"ALL THE WAY HOME"
Now Shooting in Knoxville, Tenn.

TV Commercials
Post Cereal
Crisco
Ivory Snow (2)
Chemstrand

Exclusive Management
BETTY A. GEFFEN — TR 4-6374 — New York City

PINCH BY HAIG & HAIG, LTD. BLENDED SCOTCH WHISKY, 86.8 PROOF. BOTTLED IN SCOTLAND. RENFIELD IMPORTERS, LTD., N. Y.

Belafonte's 'Moods,' Lee's 'Spice,' Brenda's 'That's All' Top New LPs

"THE MANY MOODS OF HARRY BELAFONTE" (RCA Victor). Harry Belafonte has another strong commercial winner in this production. Dishing up an assortment of calypsos, folk and work songs, African and Hebrew numbers, and an off-Broadway showtune, Belafonte displays the full scope of his talent within this single LP. Backed by a tasteful combo, Belafonte is standout on such tunes as "Who's Gonna Be Your Man," "Betty an' Dupree," "Lyla, Lyla," "Try To Remember" and "Dark as a Dungeon." The African song, "Bamotsweri," features Belafonte in a charming duet with Miriam Makeba.

PEGGY LEE: "SUGAR 'N' SPICE" (Capitol). Peggy Lee is sock in this set. Always a consistent performer on wax, she takes off in this group of vocals with backing from an orch batoned by Benny Carter. At the top of her vocal form, she works over a tasteful songalog of oldies, hits of more recent vintage and one old blues, "See See Rider," in an arresting interpretation. Included in the set are tunes like "Ain't That Love," "Embrasse Moi," "Teach Me Tonight," "I Believe In You," "When The Sun Comes Out," "The Sweetest Sounds" and "Big Bad Bill."

BRENDA LEE: "BRENDA THAT'S ALL" (Decca). Brenda Lee seems to be continually refueling her vocal machine. For with each successive single or LP release the thrush appears to have more piping power than before. In addition to the force she projects, Miss Lee also knows how to get down to the bottom of a lyric meaning and delivers with unerring emotional values. Her style is excellently showcased in this package and with the help of an orch and chorus under Owen Bradley's direction, she makes much of a song-scramble that includes "I'm Sitting On Top Of The World," "White Silver Sands," "Organ Grinder's Swing" and "Gonna Find Me A Bluebird." It's a mixture of pop and country that has fine spinning appeal.

"BENNY GOODMAN IN MOSCOW" (RCA Victor). Benny Goodman's trip to Moscow earlier this year was an historic event, marking the Soviets' first easing of their barriers against American jazz combos. Musically, Goodman stayed strictly within a swing pattern harking back to the great days of the 1930s. Although many musicians in the band wanted to introduce the Russians to a hipper style of jazz, the swing sound undoubtedly still has the widest mass appeal. In this neatly packaged double-LP set, the Goodman band and various-sized combos reprise some of their trademarked oldies, including "Let's Dance," "Avalon," "Body and Soul," "On The Alamo," "One O'Clock Jump" and a couple of swing standards with special meaning for the Russians, "Mission To Moscow" and "Meadowland." Although the band toured Russia with a vocalist, Joya Sherril, none of her numbers is included in this set.

"CAROUSEL" (Command). This is the fourth vocal album of Rodgers & Hammerstein's immortal "Carousel" score and one of the finest interpretations of the show extant. Alfred Drake and Roberta Peters star in this version with a featured cast which includes Claramae Turner, Lee Verona, Norman Treigle and Jon Crain. Jay Blackton, prolific Broadway musical director, handled that duty here. Enoch Light, Command exec director, produced the date and has turned out a superior product from start to finish. The sound, recorded via the 35m film process, is excellent, marked by fine definition and clarity. Performances are excellent throughout. Packaging is likewise smartly handled in a double sleeve setup with a four-page insert containing pictures and thumbnails of the performers. With "Carousel" product already available and in homes, this latest outing may have some difficulty. But, by any standard of excellence, it rates sure public acceptance both by virtue of performance and production.

RAY CONNIFF ORCH: "RHAPSODY IN RHYTHM" (Columbia). Although he has come out with one clicko LP after another, Ray Conniff continues to experiment with new sound and melodic ideas. He goes against the show biz adage "never rewrite a hit" but he makes it work each time. This time out he uses the sounds of male and femme quartettes (sans words) to highlight his rhythmic effects and to supply the rhapsodic quality of which the LP title boasts. The repertoire is tasty, the treatment is fresh and the payoff potential is great.

DICK GREGORY: "TALKS TURKEY" (Vee Jay). This is a well-timed release, indeed, on two counts. One factor is the recent events in Mississippi which make comedian Dick Gregory's racial patter of high topical value. The other is the comic's current gig with the Eddie Fisher Broadway show. Included on this disk are several w.k. items in the comedian's repertoire and many other bits which aren't so saturated. It's almost entirely in the topical Negro idiom, with Gregory ranging from rapping the general integration picture to poking fun at the "new Negro." His comments are often sharp and effective. The LP registers as an overall solid entry in the comedy disk sweepstakes.

"BARABBAS" (Colpix). Mario Nascimbene has composed a score of rich themes for Columbia Pictures' release of Dino De Laurentiis' production, "Barabbas." Unlike many scores for Biblical-type epics which are largely redundant statements of a main theme, Nascimbene's music has considerable variety. It ranges from booming production themes to haunting, almost supernatural-in-mood religious segments. There are also regal-sounding Roman passages and other variations, all adding up to a fine score and equally dramatic disk. Another feature of the album is its packaging, which has a double center fold of shots from the film with captions tracing the plot progress. It's a well-designed set that could do well.

DICK DIA ORCH: "THE SOUND OF MAGNIFICENT MANDOLINS" (Audio Fidelity). The accent is on the Italian melodic line here with highlighted mandolin effects. The mandolin and the Neapolitan line go hand in hand and the Dick Dia orch supplies a romantic swing that makes 'em all easy to listen to. He segues from Italy with "Never On Sunday" and "Brasilia" but they, too, fit into his programming pattern.

DET MOOR & ORCHESTRA: "GREAT JAZZ FROM GREAT TV" (Gallant). As tv series are produced today, the same background music gets used over and over in various shows without much revision. One of the most prolific writers of background scores is Bob Mersey. Some of his themes that have been used on several

LAWRENCE WELK

Presents His Newest Dot Album
"BABY ELEPHANT WALK"
and
"Theme from the Bros. Grimm!"

vidseries have been put into this LP under the baton of Det Moor. None of the pieces is a title theme so there is little recognition value to the set, although the music included has been used with such shows as "Ben Casey," "Route 66," "Manhunt," "Play of the Week" and others. With jazz arrangements by Mersey, the tunes are solid and swinging numbers. Some smack of the successful Henry Mancini "Peter Gunn" formula and all are fine-sounding pieces as interpreted by Moor and his orch. It's a session that deserves attention.

SHELLY MANNE: "234" (Impulse). Among the drummers to come on the scene in the last couple of decades, few have been as prolific as Shelly Manne. On this LP the versatile stick and brush man demonstrates why he has earned top rating among modern thumpers. He turns in a crack performance here, exhibiting speed, dexterity and finesse, not to mention a wide range of different ideas for his instrument. Other men on this session include Coleman Hawkins, Eddie Costa, George Duvivier and Hank Jones — all of whom score in their various segments. It's a swinging session for all and especially Manne.

CYNTHIA GOODING: "A TREASURY OF SPANISH AND MEXICAN FOLK SONGS" (Elektra). This is a fine two-disk collection of Latin folk material, effectively rendered by Cynthia Gooding. There's an added feature in that a booklet of text and translations of all the material is included. Tunes range through various moods and themes including love songs, dances, bullfight numbers, songs of war and occupations, lullabies, drinking songs, children's tunes and religioso material. Miss Gooding displays a solid ability in ranging through the variety of material in knowing and dynamic fashion. The set is well-produced and is a must for international folk buffs.

Longplay Shorts

The Bossa Nova kick is swinging to tv. Stan Getz & Charlie Byrd, who got the thing going with their "Jazz Samba" LP on Verve, will perform their single click, "Desafinado," and excerpts from the album on Perry Como's NBC-TV show Oct. 17.

Al Kelly set to record an album of poetry for Mercury in double-talk . . . Jac Holzman, Elektra Records prez, sold the master of "A Night With Nicole," love poetry read by Nicole Bergere, to the Mercury label . . . RCA Victor has nine albums in its October release schedule featuring two by Artur Rubinstein, a Van Cliburn, a Boston Pops and a special Soria package by Milhaud . . . Marty Ingels, costarred with John Astin in tv's "I'm Dickens . . . He's Fenster," has signed a nonexclusive contract with RCA Victor. Comedy writer Bruce Howard will collaborate with Ingels on the material which will be recorded at UCLA this month.

Columbia Records has 28 LPs on tap for October release featuring 10 pops, two Latin American, two on the lowprice Harmony line, eight special Christmas albums and six Masterworks highlighted by the debut of Vladimir Horowitz under the Col banner . . . Epic Records, Col's subsid, will release seven LPs this month comprising six jazz albums and one Christmas package . . . Teresa Brewer cut two LPs for the Philips label in Nashville last week . . . Epic will hit the reissue route with "Swing Street," a John Hammond-Frank Driggs anthology of jazzsters who played the spots along New York's 52d St. . . . Meg Welles in N.Y. to complete her third Columbia LP of pop tunes set in medieval backgrounds . . . Smash Records has taken over distribution of "Lazy Man" by The Triumphs. The single will continue to carry the Dante label.

Howie Richmond's Folksing label has a new LP by singer-musician-writer Mike Settle currently in preparation . . . The Highwaymen, UA Records folksters whose latest album, "Encore," has just been released, have a heavy collegiate touring sked this month covering five states in the east, west and south . . . Elektra Records has a new release by the Travelers 3 and a debut LP by Flamenco guitarist Juan Serrano out this month . . . Harry Simeon will cut some choral LPs for Mercury, including a platter of show material.

Top Singles Of The Week

(The 'Best Bets' of This Week's 100-Plus Releases)

ELVIS PRESLEY ..... RETURN TO SENDER
(RCA Victor) ..... Where Do You Come From

Elvis Presley's "Return To Sender" (Presley†) is a ballad with a snappy beat that will snare plenty of spinning action because it's right in his groove. "Where Do You Come From" (Presley†) is a slow, moody ballad that's made quite effective by the sincere styling. Both tunes are from the upcoming Presley starrer via Paramount, "Girls, Girls, Girls."

* * *

DINAH WASHINGTON ..... COLD, COLD HEART
(Mercury) ..... I Don't Hurt Anymore

Dinah Washington's "Cold, Cold Heart" (Acuff-Rose†) is the Hank Williams' standard touched up with a solid blues feel that will give it a spinning run again. "I Don't Hurt Anymore" (Hill & Range†) wails the blues with powerful impact that will pull plays to its side.

* * *

WALTER BRENNAN ..... MAMA SANG A SONG
(Liberty) ..... Who Will Take Gramma . .

Walter Brennan's "Mama Sang A Song" (Tree-Champion†) switches his affection from a mule ("Old Rivers") to a mother with the same corny simplicity that's winning audience interest all over. "Who Will Take Gramma" (Glo-Mac-Metric†) puts the problem of what to do with a "senior citizen" in a sugary setting that will attract the sentimentalists.

* * *

THE COOKIES ..... CHAINS
(Dimensions) ..... Stranger In My Arms

The Cookies' "Chains" (Aldon†) wraps up a topnotch vocal group sound in a ballad that is built on a solid rocking foundation It's a natural for a big teen pickup. "Stranger In My Arms" (Aldon†) is another ballad pegged for teen tastes and heightened by an impressive vocal lead.

* * *

BILLY SILLS ..... ONLY TRUE LOVE
(Motion) ..... It's A Brand New Term

Billy Sills' "Only True Love (Can Survive These Times)" (Aldon†) is a rhythmic ballad with some topical references and its optimistic spirit will win it payoff action. "It's A Brand New Term" (Aldon†) fits into the school age pattern with a nice beat and a meaningful lyric handling.

* * *

BOB BRAUN ..... IS IT RIGHT OR WRONG
(Decca) ..... Our Anniversary Of Love

Bob Braun's "Is It Right Or Wrong" (Karolyn) is culled from his current LP and this slow ballad will make its mark in the singles market as a potent followup to his "Til Death Do Us Part" click. "Our Anniversary Of Love" (Karolyn*) is a saccharine recitation that somehow manages to find its own audience.*

* * *

FRANK CHERVAL ..... TAG ALONG
(MGM) ..... How Come

Frank Cherval's "Tag Along" (Sea-Lark†) is a light-hearted ballad that's neatly developed with a winning vocal lead and a cute choral support. "How Come" (Trinity†) has a rocking drive and a potent vocal to pull top playing time.

* * *

FRANKIE VAUGHAN ..... HERCULES
(Philips) ..... I'm Gonna Clip Your Wings

Frankie Vaughan's "Hercules" (Tobi-Ann†) gets a lot of spinning muscle via rousing vocalization of a nifty ballad idea that the young set will take to in a big way. "I'm Gonna Clip Your Wings" (MRC†) flys at a bright pace with a vocal pow that will bring juke play.

* * *

MAVIS RIVERS ..... SLIGHTLY OUT OF TUNE
(Reprise) ..... Footsteps Of A Fool

Mavis Rivers' "Slightly Out Of Tune" (Hollis†) is right in tune with current Bossa Nova fad and the English lyric handled with a vivid vocal gives it an added programming punch. "Footsteps Of A Fool" (Atlantic†) jazzes up a blues beat in a way that the hip programmers will dig for good spinning results.

* * *

WEE WILLIE DENSON ..... FRIED MARBLES
(Mav) ..... In My Own Little Way

Wee Willie Denson's "Fried Marbles" (Marneshek†) rolls out a new teenage fad with a brisk rhythmic slice that'll keep the kids happy around the jukes. "In My Own Little Way" (Marneshek†) plays around with a fair rhythm pattern but lacks the force for sustained spins.

* *

MORGAN-CONDELLO COMBO ..... NIGHT RIVER
(Liberty) ..... Ali Baba

The Morgan-Condello Combo's "Night River" (LeBill-Malipit†) runs at a sweet melodic pace led by a mellow trumpet that gives it a good chance to become the instrumental stepout of the season. "Ali Baba" (LeBill-Malpit†) has a near-Eastern motif that gives it an attractive sound to win some programming time.

* * *

JORDAN CHRISTOPHER ..... GOODBYE MY LOVE
(Jubilee) ..... Broken Hearted Boy

Jordan Christopher's "Goodbye My Love" (Primary†) showcases a winning new vocalist on an emotional ballad that carries spinning impact. "Broken Hearted Boy" (Allied) gives him a crack at a lilting ballad and he handles it quite well.*

* * *

JOE HENDERSON ..... THE SEARCHING IS OVER
(Todd) ..... Three Steps

Joe Henderson's "The Searching Is Over" (Cape Ann-Cramart†) gets a gospel sound into a blues ballad beat that makes an exciting blending for the deejays and juke fans. "Three Steps" (Cigmat†) lifts a routine ballad into spinning position by its slick vocalizing.

* *

GEORGIA BROWN ..... AS LONG AS HE NEEDS ME
(London) ..... Speak Low

Georgia Brown's "As Long As He Needs Me" (Hollis†) is another vocal rendition of the big ballad from Lionel Bart's "Oliver" score and it can be counted on to be among the front-runners since she's the femme lead in the tuner and gives it its proper vocal balance. "Speak Low" (Chappell) is a stylish rendition of the Kurt Weill-Ogden Nash standard.* Gros.

*ASCAP. †BMI.

AFM Wins Long Fight to Bar Canned TV Music; 'Mr. Ed' the Lone Holdout

By DAVE KAUFMAN

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

American Federation of Musicians has climaxed a long fight against the use of canned music in telefilms by signing all but one producer of network series. Thus 62 series have now agreed to use live music in vidpix. The AFM's success was disclosed here by Phil Fischer, recently promoted to assistant to AFM prexy Herman D. Kenin.

Only holdout among producers of network series is the "Mr. Ed" show, of which Al Simon is exec producer. Kenin, who with Fischer has been waging the all-out "sign-'em-up" campaign, has written Sherwood S. Egbert, prexy of Studebaker Corp., which sponsors "Mr. Ed," protesting the continued use of canned music by that series, and asking his position in the matter.

Musicians have fought long and bitterly against canned music, regarding it in much the same light that theatrical film unions regard runaway production. Music recorded abroad "at sub-standard labor costs is in direct competition with American musicians," Kenin wrote Egbert, summing up the AFM stand.

Fischer estimated that the signing of virtually every telefilm company here will mean an increase of 100% in employment and financial gain for tunesters. He said in the east Kenin has negotiated pacts with "The Defenders" and "Car 54, Where Are You?," both N.Y.-filmed series, and is dickering a similar deal with "The Nurses," also from N.Y.

Inked 27 Producers

Fischer has notified Kenin that 27 telefilm producers here have been signed. Of these, 23 producers are signatories to the MPAA pact. Signed recently were producers of "Leave It to Beaver," "The Alfred Hitchcock Hour," "I'm Dickens — He's Fenster," "Don't Call Me Charlie," "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Stoney Burke," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "The Flintstones," "The Jetsons," "The Real McCoys," "The Loretta Young Show" and "Lassie," the latter particularly significant since it had used canned music its previous nine years on tv.

Fischer gave much of the credit for the AFM's success to the Alliance of Television Film Producers, saying once every member of the Alliance inked AFM pacts

(Continued on page 50)

More Legit Projects, New Artist Signings Planned for Command

Command Records, the ABC-Paramount Records subsid under the exec direction of Enoch Light, is planning more work in the legit area, following its recently-released album of "Carousel."

Several new signings will be involved, according to Light, who said that final contracts haven't been drawn up as yet. Hence he doesn't want to identify the talent. It is known, however, that one new pactee will be Dick Van Dyke, who appeared on Broadway in "Bye Bye Birdie" and currently represented in tv with the "Dick Van Dyke Show."

Roberta Peters and Alfred Drake, who star in the "Carousel" package will also figure in the legit push, Light pointed out, in addition to two other vocalists who are being dickered.

Light noted that he plans another reprise of a legit hit like the "Carousel" set. This may again team Miss Peters and Drake.

Light also revealed that he's negotiating for original cast albums with two producers who will have shows on Broadway this season. In addition, Command expects to enter the spoken word disk field and has other projects such as a live nitery platter.

With these projects in the works, Light said he doesn't anticipate increasing the label's output by much this year. So far in 1962 the company has only released 22 packages. Light intends to keep his release schedule in this general area.

Col's CBS Label Invades Spain Via Madrid Distrib

Columbia Records' CBS label is moving into Spain via a tie with Hispavox of Madrid. Hispavox will distribute on the CBS label repertoire produced by Columbia Records-USA as well as repertoire for Columbia Argentina, Columbia do Brasil, and Discos Columbia de Mexico, wholly owned Col subsids.

Many of Columbia's top Latin American artists already best sellers in Spain, including Los Cincos Latinos, Los Teen Tops and Trio los Panchos. Col, which has been distributing Hispavox repertoire in the U. S. for the past four years, will continue to release such Hispavox artists as Sarita Montiel, Renata Tarrago, Sabicas and Alicia de Larrocha.

Wallichs Cap's Board Chairman; Livingston Prez

In a major reshuffle of Capitol Records' top echelon, Glenn E. Wallichs has moved up from president to chairman of the board and Alan W. Livingston has taken over as prexy. The board chairmanship had been vacant since the death of Buddy De Sylva in 1950.

The appointments, made at a board meeting on the Coast Monday (8), also set Daniel C. Bonbright as vice-chairman of the board, and George Jones and Lloyd Dunn as corporate vicepresidents. Bonbright is Cap's veepee in charge of electronics & mail order; Jones is veepee for engineering, and Dunn is veepee for marketing.

In addition, Robert A. Schaefer, veep of consumer products, was named treasurer of Capitol Records, Inc., and Walter Theiss was set as general comptroller of all the Cap firms. Theiss replaces James W. Bayless, who is retiring but who will remain as exec consultant to Wallichs. Robert E. Carp was set as board's secretary.

Stanley M. Gortikov and William B. Tallant Jr. were reelected to posts of veepee-general manager and veepee-national sales manager, respectively.

Wallichs had been Capitol's prez since 1947 taking over from Johnny Mercer. The firm was launched in 1942. Livingston, who joined Capitol in 1946, became veepee in charge of artists & repertoire in '50. In '55 he left the diskery to become veepee at NBC but returned to Cap in October, '60, as veepee in charge of creative services. In addition to heading Capitol Records Inc. and Capitol Records Distributing Corp., he'll also prexy the diskery's music publishing arms, Ardmore and Beechwood.

1st Permanent La Scala Conductor in 183 Years

Milan, Oct. 9.

Pit orchestra of La Scala, in Milan, Italy, has always been an important factor in the fame of the opera house but orchestra's own history is a confusing one—characterized by fame and absence of a chief to guide it. Since its foundation in 1778 (with 70 musicians) this question has been discussed at frequent intervals. Now, in 1962, an artistic director for the orchestra itself has been named on permanent basis. He is Nino Sanzogno, now 51, former permanent conductor of La Fenice in Venice and the Radio Orchestra in Milan.

Strangely, Italy is not rich in mature, first class opera conductors and orchestra educators. Under existing circumstance the choice of Sanzogno is deemed a wise one by Scala's artistic director Francesco Siciliani, who was called in three years ago.

Sanzogno will be the first orchestra conductor of La Scala since its start 183 years ago, to have a permanent yearly contract instead of a "per concert" one.

U.S. Yes, Moscow No

Dublin, Oct. 9.

The Rebel Showband, which had accepted an invitation to play in Moscow on Oct. 2, has now called off the trip in favor of a visit to the U.S.

Trip to Moscow, sponsored by the Soviet Department of Culture, was to have featured Irish music at the October Revolution Anniversary celebrations. While visas were awaited from the Russian Embassy in London, New Yorker Harry McGurk offered the band a contract for appearances in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Applications for the Russian visas were dropped and band has applied for U.S. visas instead.

Cameo-Parkway Into Folk Field

Cameo-Parkway Records is making a move into the folk field with the signing of several folknik artists and plans for some releases in the near future.

The Three Young Men From Montana, who have a pop-folk album on Columbia currently making the rounds, are now Cameo-Parkway artists. An LP by the group is currently in the works. The Swagmen, another folk unit, has also been added to the C-P roster as has Sonny Fox who's still finishing up her collegiate career at the U. of Pennsylvania. The diskery already has a Swagmen set on the market.

Plans call for a gradual entry into the field, according to C-P prexy Bernie Lowe. The company won't rush a lot of material out nor is a big artist roster to be set all at once. Lowe feels that the folk field is one which requires slow entry and that's how he plans to play it.

Tito Schipa's Canny Use Of Talents at 73 Turns Town Hall Into Fiesta

By LEONARD L. LEVINSON

At the age of 73, a singer for 51 of those years, Tito Schipa demonstrates that he has the wisdom of the ages—"never attempt to do more than you can do well," this was exemplified at a "farewell" recital given at Town Hall, Wednesday (October 3), the first in New York in 15 years. The tenor could do no wrong for his overstuffed (60 seats on stage) audience. The evening was a triumph of the old-time ardor, each song triggering an ovation, the whole audience his claque.

And with good reason, for the Old Pro neither forgot nor lost his style, grasp and surety as a musician, nor the deft use of what was left of his voice. If it is an echo of what it once was, it is a magnificent ruin, to be admired for what remains to be heard. And the warmth of the reception seemed to give meat to the voice, especially in the arias from "L'Elisir D'Amore," "Don Pasquale," and "Marta." At times Sig. Schipa had to gesture to curb the interjections of appreciation during or following a selection. After opening with the Schubert "Ave Maria" and "Serenade," he gave Scarlatti's "La Violette" and Handel's "Where'er You Walk," then the arias. After intermission he sang a number of songs in Spanish and Italian. The enthusiasts would have kept him singing encores half the night and with several he displayed a style which would call for an "Edwardian Sinatra" billing. Everything Schipa sang was tailored to his ability; selections were short, delivery was restrained, yet fire was there when called for, and diction was immaculate.

Today the tenor is a stocky bullfrog of a man with a sweet song. His eager audience appeared neither elderly nor particularly Italian. He can fill Town Hall again within a month or he can tour the country to solid returns if this concert is any indication.

Ella Big 10G in Berkeley

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 9.

Ella Fitzgerald grossed a big $10,100 at the Community Theatre here last Saturday (6).

Dana Attractions presented the gig which drew 2,900 patrons, with tickets scaled to a $4 top.

Victor, Cap Claims Delay Orig Caster As 'Little Me' Starts Pre-B'way Tour

Col Putting O'Neill Into Groove With Robards LP

Jason Robards Jr., who's done works of Eugene O'Neill on stage and screen, is now putting the dramatist on disk. He's doing an album of dramatic reading for Columbia Records which will include selections from O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape," "Iceman Cometh" and "Long Day's Journey Into Night." There will also be items on Clarence Darrow and Sacco & Vanzetti.

Col cut the album last week and is planning to rush it into market to coincide with the release of film version of O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night" in which Robards is costar. Amanda Francis was artists & repertoire director on the LP.

Two Bandleaders Win Injunction Vs. AFM in Tax Suit

Joe Carroll and Charles Peterson, two New York orchestra leaders who have been prime movers in the current court battle over the American Federation of Musicians' 10% traveling tax, have put another legal thorn in the union's side. The two leaders have obtained a temporary injunction in N.Y. Federal court restraining the AFM from attempting to prevent its members from playing for or with them, despite the fact that they are both expelled from Local 802.

This serves to undermine one of the union's strongest weapons — the fact that expulsion usually means that the union advises all members not to work with or for the bounced member, thereby causing him enough hardship to make him shape up and make amends. The injunction also bars the AFM from attempting to influence customers against hiring Peterson and Carroll.

The restraining order stems from the tax cases and other fights the two leaders have had with the union and specifically Local 802. Judge Richard H. Levet, who last week found for several other orchestra leaders against the 10% surcharge, held that the reason both Peterson and Carroll were expelled from the union was because of their refusal to pay both the 10% and Local 802's 1½% jurisdictional tax which the leaders claimed were illegal.

Peterson and Carroll tried previously to get relief against the Union and were turned down. Judge Levet also found that there is present and prospective irreparable damage to the plaintiffs. He based his findings on his opinion that the taxes which Peterson and Carroll refused to collect are illegal and therefore the grounds for expulsion aren't valid.

The judge held that the plaintiffs are entitled to an injunction pending trial restraining the union from threatening musicians, customers or prospective customers of the plaintiffs because of their failure to comply with regulations etc. whose legal validity they are challenging and from interfering with Carroll and Peterson's rights to work as musicians or orch leaders or to work with employee musicians.

An appeal by the union is expected.

Crosbys (Bob & June) In Hawaiian Sidelines

Honolulu, Oct. 9

Bandleader Bob Crosby, now making his permanent home here, is a partner in a new Waikiki auto rental agency. It's said to be his first venture outside of show business.

Wife, June, has been doing a five-day-a-week food feature for the Honolulu Star-Bulletin under the title: "I Didn't Want to Cook, But . . . ." Chatty style article highlights gourmet and exotic recipes.

The record company scramble for the original cast album rights to "Little Me" is still going on even though the musical began its pre-Broadway tryout tour in Philadelphia on Monday (8). It's unusual, if not unprecedented, that a major musical entry should go this far into production without a firm diskery tie.

Holding back the original cast album deal are claims from two diskeries that they have commitments from producers Cy Feuer & Ernest H. Martin for the rights to the show. Involved in the hassle, which attorneys are now trying to straighten out, are RCA Victor and Capitol Records.

Victor bases its claim on a commitment it contends it received from the producing team for three of their musical productions. (Feuer & Martin's "How to Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" was original casted by Victor last season.) It's understood that Victor got the agreement from Feuer & Martin after shelling out some money to pull the boys out of a financial hole.

Capitol, too, claims a commitment on the basis of a financial deal. Electric & Musical Industries (EMI), Cap's parent company, was monetarily involved in the team's purchase of the Princess Theatre in London a short time ago and also has some coin invested in the backing of "Little Me." Cap figures that these financial ties should throw the original cast rights into its hopper.

Meantime, Columbia Records, although not involved in the legal hassle, is anxiously awaiting the outcome hoping that it, too, will get a crack at the rights if it becomes an open race. Col came through with a presentation of what it plans to do in the areas of promotion, advertising and recording in case the tuner should fall into its lap.

Also involved in the legal hassle are the show's composers, Cy Coleman & Carolyn Leigh. According to the Dramatists Guild pact the writers have a 50 50 share with the producers in setting the original case album deal. So they, too,

(Continued on page 48)

Liberty Prexy Bennett Claims McDaniels Is In Wrong Groove With Suit

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Liberty Records prexy Al Bennett last week refuted charges made by singer Gene McDaniels, who filed suit in N. Y. Supreme Court against the diskery charging breach of contract, various financial manipulations and failure to pay proper royalties.

Bennett told VARIETY that McDaniels, in essence, "owes Liberty money." Exec said he has advanced the singer $20,000 in cash for records that have been cut. McDaniels' contract, a "standard Liberty pact," calls for him to pay his own recording expense, in this case averaging about $8,000 per album or $2,500 per single.

Bennett said McDaniels has released four albums and five recent singles which, at these rates, would amount to total of $44,500. Total sales of the disks have hit approximately 1,250,000 which, at five per cent for the artist, amounts to "roughly $50,000," Bennett added.

He charged that the singer, additionally, was $17,000 in the red with Liberty in 1959, first year of his four-year deal, for two albums in the can but not released. Exec said, "Liberty has spent at least $25,000 in promotion of McDaniels' records."

Bennett asserted that McDaniels' charges are "ill-advised because he hasn't even used his contractual right to audit our books which we have frequently invited him to do." Liberty prexy feels "the suit is essentially being brought against us as a means for McDaniels to break his contract." Bennett, however, stated that Liberty "has no intention of releasing him and will continue the contract throughout the remaining two years."

Bennett expressed confidence the suit would be "settled soon."

VARIETY

ALBUM BESTSELLERS

(A National Survey of Key Outlets)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart
1	1	59	WEST SIDE STORY (Columbia) Soundtrack (OL 5670)
2	3	21	PETER, PAUL & MARY (WB) Peter, Paul & Mary (W 1449)
3	2	7	MUSIC MAN (Warner Bros.) Soundtrack (W 1459)
4	4	24	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Modern Sounds in Country & Western (ABC 410)
5	5	11	TONY BENNETT (Columbia) I Left My Heart in San Francisco (CL 1869)
6	6	17	DAVID ROSE (MGM) Stripper (E 4062)
7	7	5	NAT KING COLE (Capitol) Ramblin' Rose (T 1793)
8	8	12	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Hatari (LPM 2559)
9	10	9	RAY CHARLES (ABC-Par) Ray Charles Greatest Hits (ABC 415)
10	11	7	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Something Special (T 1747)
11	9	25	ANDY WILLIAMS (Columbia) Moon River (CL 1809)
12	12	15	ELVIS PRESLEY (Victor) Pot Luck (LPM 2523)
13	22	3	MARTIN DENNY (Liberty) A Taste of Honey (LRP 3237)
14	18	10	BOBBY VINTON (Epic) Roses Are Red (LN 24020)
15	16	90	CAMELOT (Columbia) Original Cast (KOL 5620)
16	13	17	ROME ADVENTURE (Warner Bros.) Soundtrack (W 1458)
17	15	20	KINGSTON TRIO (Capitol) Best of Kingston Trio (T 1705)
18	19	13	JOHNNY TILLOTSON (Cadence) It Keeps Right On A-Hurtin' (CLP 3058)
19	14	4	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Baby Elephant Walk (DLP 3457)
20	30	5	JUDY GARLAND (Capitol) The Garland Touch (W 1710)
21	27	15	MUSIC MAN (Capitol) Original Cast (W 990)
22	36	8	RAY CHARLES (Atlantic) The Ray Charles Story (Atlantic 2-900)
23	20	23	ACKER BILK (Atco) Stranger on the Shore (129)
24	21	3	BILLY VAUGHN (Dot) Swingin' Safari (DLP 3458)
25	34	9	HERBIE MANN (Atlantic) Herbie Mann At The Village Gate (1380)
26	25	42	JOAN BAEZ (Vanguard) Joan Baez, Vol II (VRS 9094)
27	40	2	STAN GETZ—CHARLIE BYRD (Verve) Jazz Samba (V 8432)
28	—	46	WEST SIDE STORY (Columbia) Original Cast (OL 5230)
29	24	3	FRANK SINATRA (Reprise) Sinatra & Swinging Brass (R 1005)
30	31	20	JIMMY SMITH (Verve) Bashin' (V 8474)
31	17	48	HENRY MANCINI (Victor) Breakfast at Tiffany's (LPM 2362)
32	32	7	PETER NERO (Victor) For the Nero Minded (LPM 2536)
33	35	15	JOAN BAEZ (Vanguard) Joan Baez, Vol I (VRS 9078)
34	38	2	LIMELITERS (Victor) Folk Matinee (LPM 2547)
35	33	3	OLDIES BUT GOODIES (Original Sound) Various Artists, Vol. IV (OSR 5005)
36	45	24	BILLY VAUGHAN (Dot) Chapel by the Sea (DLP 3424)
37	—	20	GEORGE MAHARIS (Epic) George Maharis Sings (LN 24001)
38	41	25	NO STRINGS (Capitol) Original Cast (O 1695)
39	48	8	FRANK SINATRA (Capitol) Sinatra Sings of Love and Things (W 1729)
40	29	2	RAY CONNIFF (Columbia) Rhapsody in Rhythm (CL 1878)
41	28	3	ROY ORBISON (Monument) Roy Orbison's Greatest Hits (M 4109)
42	23	9	GEORGE MAHARIS (Epic) Portrait in Music (LN 24021)
43	47	7	ROBERT GOULET (Columbia) The Two of Us (CL 1826)
44	49	21	LAWRENCE WELK (Dot) Young World (DLP 3428)
45	42	3	ROGER WILLIAMS (Kapp) Mr. Piano (KL 1290)
46	—	10	RAY ANTHONY (Capitol) Worried Mind (T 1752)
47	37	14	LETTERMEN (Capitol) Once Upon a Time (T 1711)
48	46	20	MANTOVANI (London) American Waltzes (LL 3260)
49	39	8	DION (Laurie) Lovers Who Wander (LL 2012)
50	44	2	MOMS MABLEY (Chess) Moms Mabley Breaks It Up (LP 1472)

GUY LOMBARDO
Opening December
AMERICANA HOTEL
New York
ED SULLIVAN SHOW
CBS-TV (December)
NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY
CBS-TV
Bookings: LARRY OWEN
50 Broadway, New York—WH 4-0938

'Lessons in Love' & Ditto Gambling-Wax Works

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Gene Norman has made a deal with Helen Curley Brown, author of "Sex and the Single Girl," currently No. 3 nonfiction bestseller, to record a text taken from her book under tag "Lessons in Love."

Recording date on the album is set for Oct. 15, with release to follow in two weeks. Disk will be labeled "Adults Only" and will feature one side with tips on lovemaking for men, the other side for women. Miss Brown will read her own material, using such subtitles as "How to Have An Affair," either with married or unmarried woman; "How to Treat Your Wife During the Affair," "How to Love a Secretary." She also discusses how short men can have romance and gives pointers to wives.

Banking on the success of the "instruction record," Norman is now negotiating with a top Las Vegas gambling figure to record a "How to Gamble" record.

'Little Me'

Continued from page 47

want a say as to where the original cast album rights are to go.

Meantime, the show is scheduled to open on Broadway Nov. 17 and the company that eventually wins the rights to the album will have to move fast to get it into the market soon after the opening. Procedure in the past has been to put the show into the grooves the Sunday after the opening and get the album into the stores within the following week.

According to diskery execs it takes about four weeks to get everything else connected with the package in order and if the "Little Me" rights aren't resolved soon, there may be a delay in the release of the cast package.

The stall isn't helping the publisher, E. H. Morris, either. Although single disk assignments have been coming in from various companies, the diskery with the original cast album rights usually comes up with the most and since no one as yet can determine how this is going to end up, the principals involved have been holding back.

The tuner, adapted from Patrick Dennis' novel of the same name by Neil Simon, stars Sid Caesar.

ASCAP's $24-Mil.

Continued from page 1

available for distribution $19,119,004.

Disbursements for salaries and expenses of homeoffice and branches amounted to $4,757,764. Breakdown showed salaries amounted to $2,333,667 and expenses $2,424,097. Membership in the Society totalled 7,868, with 5,805 active writers and 2,063 active publishers.

Prexy Stanley Adams, who presided over the meeting, disclosed that since February, 220 new writers were admitted to membership and 165 new publishers.

VARIETY

SINGLE RECORD T.I.P.S.

(Tune Index of Performance & Sales)

This Wk.	Last Wk.	No. Wks. On Chart		Label
1	1	7	SHERRY Four Seasons	Vee Jay
2	3	4	MONSTER MASH Bobby Pickett	Garpax
3	2	10	RAMBLIN' ROSE Nat King Cole	Capitol
4	4	6	GREEN ONIONS Booker T. & MG's	Stax
5	5	8	PATCHES Dicky Lee	Smash
6	6	8	LET'S DANCE Christ Montez	Monogram
7	12	4	I REMEMBER YOU Frank Fields	Vee Jay
8	7	5	DO YOU LOVE ME Contours	Gordy
9	11	9	ALLEY CAT Bent Fabric	Atco
10	8	12	SHEILA Tommy Roe	ABC-Par
11	9	6	RAIN, RAIN GO AWAY Bobby Vinton	Epic
12	24	3	POPEYE Chubby Checker	Parkway
13	10	9	TEEN-AGE IDOL Rick Nelson	Imperial
14	14	8	VENUS IN BLUE JEANS Jimmy Clanton	Ace
15	23	3	HE'S A REBEL The Crystals	Phillies
16	19	4	TORTURE Kris Jasen	Hickory
17	30	3	ONLY LOVE CAN BREAK A HEART Gene Pitney	Musicor
18	18	10	YOU BELONG TO ME Dupress	Coed
19	13	7	SURFIN' SAFARI Beach Boys	Capitol
20	25	8	YOU BEAT ME TO THE PUNCH Mary Wells	Motown
21	40	2	ALL ALONE AM I Brenda Lee	Decca
22	27	3	LIMBO ROCK Chubby Checker	Parkway
23	20	6	LIE TO ME Brook Benton	Mercury
24	28	3	WHAT KIND OF LOVE IS THIS Joey Dee	Roulette
25	21	5	IF I HAD A HAMMER Peter, Paul & Mary	Warner Bros.
26	43	2	GINA Johnny Mathis	Columbia
27	47	13	SHAME ON ME Bobby Bare	Victor
28	17	8	SILVER THREADS AND GOLDEN NEEDLES Springfields	Philips
29	46	2	LEAH Roy Orbison	Monument
30	15	11	SHE'S NOT YOU Elvis Presley	Victor
31	45	2	DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT Andy Williams	Columbia
32	—	3	CLOSE TO CATHY Mike Clifford	UA
33	16	14	LOCO-MOTION Little Eva	Dimension
34	—	2	KING OF THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD Elvis Presley	Victor
35	33	3	I LEFT MY HEART IN SAN FRANCISCO Tony Bennett	Columbia
36	—	1	LITTLE BLACK BOOK Jimmy Dean	Columbia
37	41	4	PUNISH HER Bobby Vee	Liberty
38	34	6	BEACHWOOD 4-5789 Marvelettes	Tamla
39	26	9	SEND ME THE PILLOW YOU DREAM ON Johnny Tillotson	Cadence
40	35	2	DON'T GO NEAR THE INDIANS Rex Allen	Mercury
41	—	1	JAMES Sue Thompson	Hickory
42	32	5	IT MIGHT AS WELL RAIN UNTIL SEPTEMBER Carol King	Dimension
43	48	2	WHAT KIND OF FOOL AM I Sammy Davis Jr.	Reprise
44	—	1	SAVE YOUR LOVIN' FOR ME Brenda Lee	Decca
45	42	3	HIDE AND GO SEEK Bunker Hill	Mala
46	39	7	COME ON LITTLE ANGEL Belmonts	Sabrina
47	37	4	IF I DIDN'T HAVE A DIME Gene Pitney	Musicor
48	29	11	RINKY DINK Dave Cortez	Chess
49	31	11	DEVIL WOMAN Marty Robbins	Columbia
50	—	1	SWEET SIXTEEN BARS Earl Grant	Decca

Faulty Audio Equipment Curbing Pic Studios' 'Track Sales: Irv Townsend

Motion picture companies could get a lot more mileage from their soundtrack properties in the record album field if they did something about their audio equipment. That's the opinion of Irving Townsend, exec producer on the Coast for Columbia Records who was in New York last week for a quickie round of confabs and recording sessions.

According to Townsend (as well as several others who have seen the pic studio setups), the studio recording equipment is obsolete and hardly anyone there has taken advantage of the audio development of the past few years. The majority of the pic companies' music output, he says, is nowhere near the audio quality produced in a record company studio.

There could possibly be a time when diskery studios will be used by the pic companies for their soundtrack work, adds Townsend, but right now it looks pretty dim. Main obstacle is that so many unions are involved in that the track is recorded on film. If it ever becomes feasible to use disk company facilities for soundtrack work, Townsend foresees an upgrade in audio values that will benefit the studio, the record company and the consumer, as well. It will also be cheaper to bring out. The average soundtrack now costs a diskery about $10,000.

Despite the audio problems, Townsend continues to shop for soundtrack possibilities. His criteria in selecting a score from a dramatic pic for an album workover are threefold. 1) How will it sound as a record? 2) Is there a pop single possibility in the score and 3) How strong is the picture?

Upcoming from Townsend's office is the soundtrack from "Jumbo," the Metro release which stars Doris Day. Col's soundtrack of "West Side Story," by the way, is nearing the $1,000,000 sales take.

In addition to his soundtrack activity, Townsend controls the album schedule on the Coast of what averages out between 25% and 40% of Columbia's total output. The Coast musicians compare favorably with the N. Y. tootlers, he says, and they're in better shape physically and economically.

There's plenty of work for them in tv, pic and records which they can handle during regular working hours instead of the postmidnight sessions that are indigenous to N.Y. schedules. "I ran a date recently that called for 45 musicians," Townsend recalled, "and there were 45 cars in the Columbia parking lot."

George Marek's 'Opera As Theatre' Hip Tome For Longhair Buffs

As veepee-general manager of RCA Victor, George R. Marek oversees an operation that ranges from Presley to Puccini. As an author, he prefers to stay with the Puccini crowd for his preferences apparently lean more towards grand opera than "Grand Old Opry" as evidenced by his previous books, "The World Treasury Of Opera," "A Front Seat At The Opera" and "Puccini."

In his latest tome, "Opera As Theatre" (Harper & Row; $5.95), Marek makes a winning case for the La Scala-Met axis. This time out his approach is pegged on the drama and theatricality imbedded in opera and his brief is persuasive as it is enjoyable.

Synopses of opera plots are readily available in other books, program notes, record jacket annotations, etc., but Marek offers more than a bare rundown. He dresses it up with inside info and savvy of the works that link the opera and the theatre with a finality that dispels further argument.

He's taken 10 operas ("Figaro," "Don Giovanni," "Fidelio," "Carmen," "La Traviata," "Otello," "Tosca," "Turandot," "Die Meistersinger" and "Der Rosenkavalier) and given them an identity of their own in precise but never pedantic terms. Marek's point is that with an understanding of the words will come an understanding of the music and a richer appreciation of the whole. He's probably right. Gros.

British Disk Best Sellers

London, Oct. 9.

She's Not You ..... Presley (RCA)
It'll Be Me ..... Richard (Columbia)
Telstar ..... Tornados (Decca)
I Remember You ..... Ifield (Columbia)
Roses Are Red ..... Carroll (Philips)
Sheila ..... Roe (HMV)
Things ..... Darin (London)
Sealed With A Kiss ..... Hyland (HMV)
Breaking Up Is Hard To Do (RCA) Sedaka
Don't That Beat All ..... Faith (Columbia)

See Pop Composer Aided By Reform Of Oscar Rules

Hollywood, Oct. 9.

Songwriter-members of the Academy have—after years-long chafing—gotten an old bone of contention out of their craw. Acad board has approved change in rules governing the two annual music Oscars, rules consistently under attack by music branch of org.

Hereafter only the composer will be eligible for "best score," for any kind of pic. Other nod will be to best adaptor and/or music director of any kind of film. In past there was an Oscar for best scoring of a musical and one for best tune-up of a drama or comedy.

Elmer Bernstein, Acad governor from the music branch, sees change—which he long has advocated—giving better break to poptune cleffers who in past generally were excluded, per the old rules.

L.A. SYMPH TOOTERS OKAY NEW CONTRACT

Los Angeles, Oct. 9.

Los Angeles Philharmonic musicians, members of Local 47, AFM, have ratified a new two-year contract with the So. California Symphony Assn. which now insures an Oct. 22 start for the orchestra's 1962-63 season. New pact, covering 90 musicians, provides a $7.50 weekly wage increase in each of two years, with the current hike bringing the minimum to $147.50.

Union also won reengagement of four players whom the association had refused to hire for another season. The impasse between the union and the group was broken by mediations last week. In addition, the agreement provides for a formal pension plan; greater use of arbitration in settling disputes and a no-strike clause.

Atlantic to Handle Nat'l Distrib for Allwood Label

Atlantic Records will handle national distribution of a newly-established label, Allwood Records, under a recent deal. The new diskery is owned by Boots Woodall who formerly operated the Fairlane imprint and, prior to that, produced disks for NRC.

Atlantic has scheduled two singles for release on Allwood this week. They're Billy Joe Royal's "Wait For Me Baby" and "If It Wasn't For a Woman" and Joe South's "Just Remember You're Mine" and "Silly Me." Plans call for a steady release schedule for Allwood, and there will be disks in the near future by singers Paul Peek and George Scott.

Atlantic is presently handling national distribution of product on several other labels, including Stax and LuPine. The company, in addition, has handled singles that appeared on the Montel and LeMonde imprints.

Half Moon's Concerts

Theodore Bikel and his manager, Jac Holzman, have formed their own indie production company to be known as Half Moon Productions.

The firm will present concerts in Southern California, the first of which will be The Weavers.

Kenin Hails Cleve. Tooter Integration

Merger of white and Negro locals in Cleveland last week, after 52 years of separate autonomy, provoked comment from American Federation of Musicians prexy Herman D. Kenin who lauded the move as an important contribution to the AFM's aim of a completely-integrated international union.

"The fraternal unity of our two long-established Cleveland locals sets an example that I trust will be followed in many other communities where separate white and Negro locals still exist," Kenin stated. "The achievement of our fundamental policy of complete integration is a tedious process, mainly because many of our Negro locals are wary of surrendering the autonomy granted at their request a half century ago. Nonetheless, the AFM is dedicated to complete integration through orderly procedures that will protect the rights of all concerned."

Negro Local 550, numbering some 200 members, merged with the 2,800-member Local 4 on Oct. 1, under an agreement pooling the assets of both locals under the management of the larger body.

There are similar situations in several areas involving both a white and Negro local operating within the same jurisdiction. Wherever possible the AFM has been trying to get the locals integrated but the problem has proved a long and hard fight.

'Bobby Short at Carnegie Hall' Falls Way Short Of Short at Blue Angel, N.Y.

It's a big jump from the lounge of New York's Blue Angel to the stage of Carnegie Hall but Bobby Short, a determined young singer-pianist, made the try Friday (5) in a concert presented by the Shelley Berman-Harry C. Bell firm, Nirene Productions. "Bobby Short At Carnegie Hall," however, is quite short of Bobby Short at the Blue Angel Lounge or boites of similar dimension.

Short is an expert delineator of the showtune genre and his stuff comes off best when it's wrapped in the warm glow of saloon surroundings. In the vast Carnegie auidtorium, and to a half-full house, the material is bare and over-exposed.

In addition to his large repertoire of stage and screen songs, Short's appeal lies mainly in the rapport he builds between his work and his audience. It's an easy bridge to gap in the confines of a small room but it becomes almost impossible when he uses the concert stage as his launching pad.

In trying to fill the larger auditorium with his showmanly sounds, he had to pound a bit harder which dissipates a lot of his grace. The acoustical setup, too, was of no help to him in that it filled the hall with a souped-up sound that was not at all in keeping with the style of the material or the performer.

Despite all these hazards, the concert did offer an excellent opportunity to hear songs from the catalogs of Rodgers & Hart, Weill & Gershwin, Duke & Latouche, Cole Porter, Kern & Fields, Youmans-Kahn-Eliscu, et al, that accented the potent lyric values.

Another standout feature of Short's work, and especially pleasing to showtune buffs, is the way he opens the songs with the verse. Too many times excellently fashioned verses go down the drain because vocalists move right into the chorus. With Short, however, you get your song's worth.

Bill Pemberton's bass and Richard Sheridan's drums supported him all the way as did the partisans in the audience. But things would have been much cozier at the Blue Angel where he had such a happy run. Gros.

Exclusive Talent Employment Pacts Face Legal Test in Roulette Appeal

And Wendy Makes 3

A new generation of the Burton clan is moving into the music business. Latest entry is Wendy Burton, 12-year old daughter of Trinity Music topper Ed Burton, who has been signed to a disk pact by Columbia Records.

Burton made a demo record of "17,000 Bicycles" with his daughter as vocalist, and played it for Al Kasha, artists & repertoire exec at Columbia. Kasha not only took the song but the singer along with it. Miss Burton's other tie with the music biz is through her uncle, Bob Burton, a veepee at Broadcast Music, Inc.

Hi Fi Mfrs. Prez Sees 15% Sales Boost in 1963

High fidelity and stereo equipment sales in the U.S. are booming and growing, in the opinion of Raymond V. Pepe, prexy of the Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers, the organization which sponsored last week's New York High Fidelity Music Show.

"The impact of high fidelity in the American home is at an all-time high," he states. "The component industry has now achieved annual sales of $50,000,000 at the manufacturing level and indications are that this will accelerate by 15% next year," Pepe claims.

"In another high fidelity area," he avers, "FM-Stereo broadcasting has gained wide acceptance in its first year. There are 150 stations now stereocasting," he notes, "and by the year's end the number of such stations should double." Pepe adds that "there are now 71,000,000 in listening range of these FM outlets" and feels that "the growing FM-Stereo interest will appreciably increase high fidelity equipment sales."

The Hi Fi show, which ran from last Wednesday (3) through Saturday (6), encompassed some five floors of the Trade Show Building and was the largest in history. More than 100 U.S. and foreign producers displayed and demonstrated millions of dollars worth of equipment.

In addition to the wide range of hi fi and stereo components on display, Telstar got a big play via a scale model and various FM radio outlets conducted their broadcasts from exhibition sites in the building.

Admission was $1.25 for adults and 50c for kids. The show drew an estimated record 35,000 persons.

PARKER LABEL'S 75G SUIT VS. JOE CARLTON

Charlie Parker Records has filed suit in N.Y. Supreme Court against Joseph Carlton, Carlton Record Distributing Corp. and Carlton Record International Corp. charging violation of two agreements by Carlton Records, a former distributor of the Parker line. The label is now handled by MGM.

Parker claims that it was compelled to end its distrib agreement with Carlton in October, 1961, due to neglect and insufficient handling of its product. At that time, it's alleged, Parker Records agreed to release Carlton from all claims of neglect and failure provided Carlton forwarded all monies received from Parker products subsequent to the termination of the pact.

Since the end of the agreement, Parker claims that Carlton has failed to forward monies received. Hence, Parker is suing for return and an accounting of all monies received on its behalf by Carlton, plus $50,000 for damages allegedly sustained by reason of Carlton's claimed neglect and failure under the original distrib agreement. It also asks $25,000 in punitive damages.

The question of how much recognition shall be given to exclusive employment agreements will be tested in the N. Y. Court of Appeals in a case involving Roulette Records and Princess Production Corp. Arguments will probably be heard next fall.

Roulette is asking the state's highest tribunal to review a February, 1962, decision of the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court which reversed (3-2) a lower court ruling of December, 1960, that found for the diskery in its suit against Princess and the latter's prexy, film producer Burt Balaban.

The appeal looms as a significant one in the recording industry, where there are hundreds of labels, and in the entertainment industry at large, whether one branch is not necessarily intimately familiar with the practice or personnel of another and yet their interests sometimes clash as in this instance of the film producer's soundtrack and the performer's record company.

Charged Wrongful Licensing

In the trial court, Roulette claimed that Princess which produced the 20th-Fox release, "Murder Inc." featuring record artist Sarah Vaughan, licensed a record album from the soundtrack (which was released by the Canadian-American label) containing Miss Vaughan's film rendition of two George Weiss compositions with full knowledge that she was under an exclusive recording agreement with Roulette.

The trial court did not find "full knowledge" but awarded Roulette $8,600 damages and an injunction against the album on the theory that the defendants could or should have known of the singer's agreement with Roulette.

The Appellate Division reversed the trial court on the law and on the facts and ordered a new trial.

(Continued on page 50)

BG Mixes Classics With Jazz in Unique Benefit At N.Y. Philharmonic Hall

Vet jazz man Benny Goodman appropriately premiered the broken beat Wednesday (3) at the new New York Philharmonic Hall in a benefit for the Wiltwyck School for Boys. He did it in a split bill that saw the clarinet maestro on a classical kick for the first half of the show.

Bowing in with Beethoven's "Trio in B-flat major for Clarinet, Cello and Piano, Opus II," Goodman was backed by Leon Pommers, piano, and cellist Klaus Adam, whose commanding resonance was easily the outstanding feature of the number. Goodman, with Pommers again, seemed more at home with the modern and romantic "Premiere Rapsodie for Clarinet and Piano" of Debussy. At least his somewhat swinging wind to the number brought the greatest response from the near-capacity house.

Capping the classical seg was Schubert's "Der Hirt auf dem Felsen, Opus 129," with soprano Sara Endich in superb form.

Post intermission jazz session, a mild and nostalgic affair, featured Goodman with Bobby Hackett, trumpet; Lionel Hampton, vibes; and rhythm and electric-guitar backing. The boys trotted out the old book—"Avalon," "Man I Love," "C-Jam Blues," "Can't Get Started," "Funny Valentine" etc. —with audience response indicating they found the pop stuff more stimulating than the opening classics.

As for the acoustical controversy raging about the new hall, this concert came through loud and clear to VARIETY's rep, who was stationed 10 rows from the rear, extreme right. Myopia (this rail-bird's) left Goodman and the others small blurs, but didn't prevent unsightly shock of the cluster of some 130 tin coffin lids suspended from the five-story ceiling. They may bounce sound to sooth the ear, but they sure bruise the eye.

Actor Sidney Poitier, who emceed, opened with introductions and a brief talk in behalf of the school. Bill.

Showtunes' Premiere Blues

Continued from page 1

but it is very rare." He believes that a melody must be given a chance to grow and it can't grow on the first hearing. To point up his argument, he recalled Leopold Stokowski's remark, "I never express an opinion on a new work until I hear it four times."

Kostelanetz doesn't hold this view for critics alone. He believes that no one including songwriters, publishers, etc., can judge a song the first time around. He remembered that Jerome Kern predicted that the song "In The Heart Of The Dark" would be best remembered from his "Very Warm For May" score, completely overlooking "All The Things You Are." And, he admits that he couldn't understand how Kern could allow a song like "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" into the "Roberta" score after hearing it for the first time.

Overlook Some Classics

He believes that there is a simplicity to a great many Broadway show songs which become classics that are often overlooked on first hearing. There are many examples of songs panned by the critics that went on to become a permanent part of musical Americana. And these include tunes by Richard Rodgers, George Gershwin, Cole Porter, and a host of others who have contributed importantly to the standard repertoire.

Kostelanetz admits that the critic may feel his domain is being encroached upon or that he is being unduly influenced if the composer, publisher or producer sends him the music in advance but he believes that a way should be found to get the critic acquainted with the work before he sits in judgment of it.

Kostelanetz has spoken to a number of the theatre's top-ranking composers about this problem and they agree that something should be done. "It's a ticklish situation for everybody," he says, "and everyone is walking around on tiptoe not to offend the critics.

"A musical is a major effort of money and talent," he adds, "and a critic should not be sensitive to an approach. In the classical field, new works sometimes are sent to Harold Schonberg of the Times and Paul Henry Lang of the Herald Tribune before the premiere performance. It is regarded as a courtesy to the critic."

Raps Pub's Restrictions

He also feels that producers and publishers should not put restrictions on songs and get them exposed as early as possible so that people can get acquainted with the music. Original cast albums, too, should be released before the Broadway opening and possibly be sent to the critics so that they can familiarize themselves with the score.

(Something along these lines has already been attempted for two of David Merrick's productions, "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off" and "Oliver." Merrick attributes the good boxoffice action on "Stop The World," despite mixed notices to the disk jockey play on Anthony Newley's song, "What Kind Of Fool Am I" and the attendant plug for the musical. On "Oliver," RCA Victor released the original cast album last week, three months prior to the show's Broadway opening, and it's assumed that copies will find their way to a critic's phonograph before opening night.)

Kosty's 'Instrumental' Theory

Kostelanetz also believes that there is great merit in recording an instrumental version of a musical before its Main Stem preem. That's why Columbia Records is issuing his instrumental LP of Irving Berlin's "Mr. President" this week. (There will also be a single coupling of "The Washington Twist" and "The Secret Service.") Kostelanetz admits that on the first hearing of the Berlin score, from a demo record, only a few tunes clicked. "But on replay," he said, "I became sure that 'Mr. President' was one of Berlin's finest creations."

"What is on stage can be grasped almost immediately," he said, "but music doesn't work that way. There is a sound barrier that can't be overcome without the process of getting acquainted."

Sam Fox Adding Affils in Greece, Lebanon & Israel

Sam Fox Publishing will expand its global operations by adding affiliates in Greece, Lebanon and Israel. Fred Fox, firm's veepee, leaves on seven-week tour of Europe tomorrow (Thurs.) to establish the new affils as well as confer with Fox representatives in Amsterdam, London, Paris and Milan.

Sam Fox, president and founder of the firm, preceded his son, Fred, to Europe by several weeks and has just concluded negotiations whereby the firm's recent acquisitions will now be made available throughout Europe. Included, among others, in these deals are the catalogs of Palisades Background Music Library and Dorabet Music Publishing Co., as well as the Clebanoff, Robinson & Giovanni publishing firm.

Parker Goes R&B

Parker Records is making a move into the rhythm & blues field with two new signings. The label, which is primarily a jazz specialist, has inked Sonny Til and The Orioles.

Fantasy's Bossa Nova

Bola Sete, the Brazilian "bossa nova" guitarist from San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel, has been signed to an exclusive contract by Max Weiss of Fantasy Records who heard him at the recent Monterey Jazz Festival. Deal not only covers recording, but also sets up publishing firms for Sete's compositions and Brazilian folk music arrangements. Present plans are for him to record in New York later this month.

AFM Wins

Continued from page 47

it made it easier to bring other companies into the fold.

As for all those who have inked, Fischer commented, "the producers should be commended for their recognition of the fact that the performances of our members, and the technical facilities of American recording studios, are superior to musical services rendered in foreign countries; also for their recognition of the importance of good musical performance in a telefilm, and its substantial contribution to the success of any individual program." Fischer recently was elected veepee of the Hollywood AFL Film Council, which is vigorously fighting runaway production in pix.

He attributed the AFM's success, aside from the Alliance pact, to the protest campaign initiated by Kenin three years ago, in which sponsors of teleshows were told when their programs used canned music. Series which have been using the canned music and now switch to live include "The Dick Powell Show," "The Rifleman," "Leave It to Beaver," "The Real McCoys" and the Hitchcock series. Loretta Young's series recently had a scoring session with an orch of 40, largest group ever to score.

The Minimum Requirements

Producers, who are signatories under the network agreements are obligated to score one out of each three episodes in a series live, so that not every seg of each series is actually live. However, these are minimum requirements. Fischer pointed to "Bonanza" as an example of a network signatory series which uses live music on every seg. He also revealed the AFM plans to renegotiate the network pact when it expires in 1964, seeking to eliminate the proviso allowing scoring of some segs with canned music.

Spotlight for the tunesters remains on "Mr. Ed," and the AFM is determined to sign the holdout. Fischer said Simon told him his company couldn't afford live music this season, that it would next year. Simon also told him they already had canned music for this season, that to add live music now would mean additional cost of $2,000.

Fischer refuted this, saying the AFM pact gives producers the right to use canned music they had previously acquired, for seven months, along with the live. The past has no minimum on the number of men who must be hired, and hiked costs of live would be much less than Simon's estimates. A scale musician earns $57.75 for a three-hour session, and the pact calls for four sessions for each 13 segs, he said.

AFM plans a pub relations drive to publicize the fact "Mr. Ed" will not sign and is using canned music.

Mischer disclosed, too, that he is now beginning negotiations with vidfilm producers of other series, such as syndicated vidpix, cartoons, travelogs and documentaries. Taking into consideration the fact that such series have lower budgets than network shows, the AFM seeks to develop a more modest financial formula for them. After confabs with such producers on such a format, Fischer will relay the results to Kenin, and the Federation will seek a solution fitting the lower budgets.

Simon confirmed he has not signed with AFM, explaining "it's strictly a matter of economics. Since we have built up a library of (canned) music and it is very effective for our show, (a live music contract) couldn't improve our situation. The economics prohibited our signing. We feel the music we have now is perfectly all right, that it would not be wise to throw out our library of music. We use live music on our other series, 'The Beverly Hillbillies.' Each situation is different."

Inside Stuff—Music

The American Record Merchants & Distributors Assn. (ARMADA) this week polled its distributor members to ascertain what problems are affecting them in specific market areas. The information, which is being gathered via a questionnaire, is expected to reveal which areas and which distributors are experiencing drastic changes as a result of the evolution of new marketing patterns. The results of the survey, which is one of a series planned by ARMADA, will indicate ways and means whereby the org can service its members. A committee, to be appointed soon, will in part be guided by information gleaned through the questionnaire, and will seek to mediate local problems. General results of the survey will be published, although specific names and firms and individuals will be strictly confidential.

A new teenage fad, "frying marbles," has been put into the grooves by Wee Willie Densen for May Records in a tune titled "Fried Marbles." The teenagers picked up the fad from Long Island housewife Ruth Mann whose hobby of frying marbles as part of an arts and crafts project at summer camp was given a feature story treatment in the N.Y. Times. After the story broke, Mrs. Mann received requests from over 500 department stores across the country to supply them with her costume jewelry, made from her frying her aggies. The teens, in turn, picked it up as their latest craze.

The Big 3 (Robbins, Feist & Miller) is launching a major exploitation drive on music from the upcoming Metro film, "Mutiny On The Bounty." The score was composed by Bronislau Kaper with a featured title song written by Kaper and Paul Francis Webster. The recording action is pegged on "Theme From Mutiny On The Bounty" and "Love Song From Mutiny on The Bounty." The original soundtrack and other LPs highlighting music from the pic are being released by MGM Records. The Big 3 is also going after the music dealers with printings of "Bounty" music publications for piano, organ, accordion and band.

The Festival Times, the daily newspaper published by Capitol Records at last year's Country & Music Festival in Nashville, will roll again at this year's convention. Fred Martin, director of publications for Capitol, will write and edit the paper, with Cap's chief photographer, Ken Veeder, handling the picture coverage. The same team also put out another convention paper for Capitol, the NARM News, at the annual meeting of the National Assn. of Record Merchandisers last April in Miami Beach.

Larry Finley, president of Tops Records, a division of Precision Radiation Instruments, is sending out indemnifacation notice to cover 25,000 record dealers with which the diskery does business to insure them against litigation brought about by failure of a record firm to pay its music royalties. Finley's action was spurred by recent legal actions which held dealers as responsible as manufacturers in suits for nonpayment of royalties.

U.S.A. baritone Thomas Stewart (Evelyn Lear's husband) at present in San Francisco for the opera season will make his Vienna Opera debut this season. Among other appearances he will sing the King in Orff's "Die Kluge," in which his wife has the lead.

Exclusive Contract

Continued from page 49

The appellate court held that the plaintiff was required to establish actual knowledge on the part of the defendants, whereas on the record in the case there was insufficient evidence to sustain such a finding. Moreover, Judge McNally, speaking for the majority, found that the trial court's basis for computing the damages was too speculative.

Dissenting Opinion

The dissenting opinion by Judge Steuer, speaking for himself and Judge Stevens, read the record as indicating that it is the practice to inquire of the performer whether the latter has existing contractual commitments and that the defendants failed to inquire due to a desire not to be told, and that this was the equivalent of knowledge.

Roulette waved its rights to a new trial. In its brief to the N. Y. high court at Albany, which was filed last month, it de-emphasized the claim of intentional interference with its contract with knowledge thereof on the part of the defendants.

Now Roulette argues, first, that the knowledge required is no different than in the usual tort (negligence) case, i.e., the defendants are chargeable with the knowledge which a man of ordinary prudence would acquire from a reasonable investigation which his prudence would have him conduct. Secondly, the appellant record company argues that the case essentially is not grounded in intentional interference with a contract but rather was unfair competition.

The case will be argued by Irving Lemov, for the plaintiff-appellant, Roulette, and by Stanley Rothenberg (of Margulies & Heit) for the defendants-respondents, Princess and Balaban.

Rusty Signs Again

Rusty Warren, top-selling blue comedy disk femme, has inked a new eight-year pact with Jubilee Records. Her "Knockers Up" album has been a big seller for some years for the label and she has a new LP set for release soon tagged "Rusty In Orbit."

The HIT! OF THE WEEK

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN

TV's Dr. Kildare

Sings

LOVE ME TENDER

K-13097

M-G-M Records

From the PARAMOUNT RELEASE OF THE SAME TITLE

WONDERFUL TO BE YOUNG

CLIFF RICHARD

DOT RECORDS

FAMOUS MUSIC CORPORATION

JOANIE SOMMER'S NEW HIT

WHEN THE BOYS GET TOGETHER

WARNER BROS. RECORD NO. 5308

EMILIO PERICOLI SINGS "ROMANTICO AMORE"

WARNER BROS. RECORD NO. 5303

MUSIC PUBLISHERS HOLDING CORPORATION

DUKE ELLINGTON

and his FAMOUS ORCHESTRA

Oct. 4—Officer's Open Mess, Ogden, Utah; Oct. 5—The Terrace, Salt Lake City; Oct. 6—Idaho State College, Pocatello; Oct. 7—Officers Open Mess, Dugway, Utah; Oct. 9—Elks Club, Ontario, Ore.; Oct. 11—Officers Club, Fairfield, Calif.; Oct. 12 thru 21—New Fack's, San Francisco; Oct. 22—NCO Club, Fort Ord, Monterey, Calif.; Oct. 23—Officers Club, Sacramento; Oct. 24—Stockton Jr. H. S., Stockton, Calif.

Continued next week

Booked Exclusively By

ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORPORATION

JOE GLASER, President

50 WEST 57 STREET, NEW YORK 19 JUdson 2-7700

CHICAGO • MIAMI • HOLLYWOOD • LAS VEGAS • DALLAS • LONDON

MMMMM

Now Hear This!

THE DUKES of DIXIELAND

New Smash Album

DIXIELAND HOOTNANNY

on Columbia

All selections published by Mills Music, Inc.

MILLS MUSIC, INC., N. Y. C.

Energetic and aggressive young man with large number of established contacts with teenage magazines and fan clubs, also talent contacts, desires position with booking office. Has some experience and strong sales ability.

Write: LOUIS LIEBERMAN

42-36 Union Street, Flushing 55, N.Y.

Call: IN 1-6119

AGENCIES, MGRS. DO 'WAR' ACT

B'way Show Costs Hit New High With Latin Quarter's $175,0000 Nut

The new show at the Latin Quarter, N.Y., which opens next Monday (15), will probably come in at $175,000 according to LQ managing director Eddie Risman and may be the most expensive in the history of the E. M. Loew operated spot.

With 14 showgirls, the same number of dancers and eight boys, the cast will be somewhat larger than the preceding productions. An estimated $10,000 weekly operating nut, aside from the principals, will be one of the highest in the history of the room.

The 10G figure, of course, will be exclusive of amortization, which in the show's scheduled 26-week run, will come to around $6,500 weekly. Largest cost in the production will be the costumes. These, Risman said, will run to around $100,000. In general, they're being executed by Mme. Bertha as well as the LQ's own staff. Choreography is being handled by Donn Arden.

Risman said the cost of putting on a show is steadily higher for he feels that the cafe must top each previous effort. The new show, he added, must not suffer by comparison with the preceding layout. Under these circumstances the costs go higher and higher.

He pointed out that many of the girls had to be imported from the Coast and plane fares had to be paid for them. He also said that rehearsal pay hits a sizable sum since only 35 hours time is allotted. The excess must be paid at hourly rates for each performer affected.

Mechanical effects cost more each time. New curtains and new lighting schemes require a lot of

(Continued on page 52)

CASINO RETURN GIVES TORONTO 3 BURLEYS

Toronto, Oct. 9.

With immediate return of the Casino to the stripper field, Toronto will have three burlesque houses. Two will be under management of Ray Lux and Elliot Abells, known as Real Operating Corp., Ltd.

Lux and Abells have set a deal with the Premier Operating Co. Ltd., owners of the Casino building, whereby they will have option leases on the house until the city expropriates it for a Civic Square development in five years.

The 1,121-seat Casino and 743-seat Lux will be managed by Lux and Abells. Other burlesque house, the Victory (1,214) is owned by Victory Operating Co. Ltd.

Revived Casino policy will start off with seven exotics, plus male comics. Price policy is yet to be set. Casino was an art film house prior to being renamed the Civic Square Theatre. Under that tag the house produced two out of five announced avante-garde plays. It folded after presenting "Rhinoceros" and "Do You Know the Milky Way?"

FISHER'S OK 45G AT N.Y. WINTER GARDEN

Eddie Fisher's first week at the Winter Garden, N.Y., scored an okay $45,000, representing about 70% of capacity. The bill is completed by Juliet Prowse & Co., and Dick Gregory, plus a group of 10 singers in a prologue.

The first week came out with a profit, despite the heavy overhead which includes 36 musicians, and a large backstage complement. One of the plusses in the gross is the heavy advance which came to approximately $100,000. However, the critical slamming of the show generally put a stop to that cushy pad. First night's (2) top was $10, and a $7.50 top prevails on weekends. Layout is in for four weeks.

Fisher is in for 70% of the gross and he pays the talent. Producers are Monte Proser and Fisher's personal manager Milton Blackstone in conjunction with Fisher's own firm, Ramrod Productions.

15 Nominees to Vie For ARA Bd. of Governors

Roster of nominees for the board of governors of the Artists Representatives Assn. has been completed. Those up for election include Willard Alexander, Hattie Althoff, Dave Baumgarten, Bert Block, Eddie Elkort, Jim Grady, Ken Grayson, Leo Grund, Howard Haussman, Miles Ingalls, Ben Kuchuk, Charlie Rapp, Leonard Romm, Max Roth and Joe Williams.

Nominated for associate members are Jackie Green, of Associated Booking Corp. and Gil Nelson of General Artists Corp.

The board of governors, when elected, name the officers of the organization. Election is set for Nov. 12.

Sunday Dancing, Banned 332 Yrs., Gets OK in Hub

Boston, Oct. 9.

It looks like Sunday dancing, forbidden for 332 years, is to be permitted in Boston at long last. And it appears the rhubarb over changes in the former Sunday "blue-law" has cooled.

Not a single voice was raised in opposition at a City Council public hearing Friday (5) on adopting an ordinance licensing Sunday dancing in hotels and nightclubs and Sunday operation of pool and billiard parlors for the first time.

City censor and licensing chief Richard J. Sinnott urged approval of Sunday dancing as 40 Beantown beanery ops and entrepreneurs gently smiled assent. "Amazing," said Councilor John J. Tierney, "that in old conservative Boston, not one opponent has been found to this measure."

Spokesmen for hotels and niteries, and union reps pointed to increases in jobs and biz for Boston with permission for Sunday dancing. They pledged united support for the Sunday dancing provision and a $200 annual city license or $10 weekly fee.

The hearing was held before Peter F. Hines' committee on ordi-

(Continued on page 52)

SCOT PIPERS BAG BIG $120,247 IN 3 DATES

Kilts and bagpipes are still box-office in America, per first reports for the Royal Scots Greys and the Argyl & Sutherland Highlanders, now touring. Brigade is being managed by Columbia Festivals, a subsidiary of Columbia Artists Management Inc.

Two performances in Madison Square Garden, N.Y., plus dates in Washington and Philadelphia, brought in a gross (net after taxes) of $120,247. Add to the profit the sale of 12,280 souvenir programs.

Visitors from Scotland, the first not under Sol Hurok management, grossed $90,000 in three parades in Hollywood, then sold out on a Sunday at the Berkeley campus of the U. of California.

Alan King to Top Xmas Pkg. at Hub Music Hall

The Music Hall, Boston, has booked a name holiday show with Alan King starting opening Dec. 25 for eight days. He exits after the New Year's Day performance. He will bring in his own package which will include the Step Bros. Others are still to be booked.

One of the innovations of this run is the fact that King will appear only on the evening shows, twice nightly. But there will be a stageshow during the matinees without the headliner. The film will be "Jumbo" (MGM).

BATTLE TO END DIRECT BOOKING

The talent agencies are set to clamp down on the wider activities of personal managers. The established percenters are ready to call in the law, rouse the unions and to take whatever steps are necessary to separate the functions of managers and agents. The majors say they will not abide the same firm or individual doing both functions for the same performer.

The problem reached a high-point in its discussion stage during the recent George Scheck incident. Scheck, a personal manager of Connie Francis, separated from General Artists Corp. and is now piloting the act without the services of any agency.

However, the problem has been especially irksome to the major offices for sometime, especially since the foldo of MCA which "liberated" a lot of talent. Some personal managers are piloting their charges sans agencies, which is not to the liking of the offices not only because of the loss of commissions, but because of the prestige that many acts bring to the offices.

Aside from that, bookings by personal managers creates a dangerous precedent, and is a violation of the laws in many states including New York. In New York City an agency has to be licensed and must take out franchises with the various unions, which also can exercise a degree of control over them. Unions cannot control the acts of a peronsal manager.

The problem was spotted earlier by the Conferences of Personal Managers East, which at a meeting following the dissolution of MCA, passed a resolution asking its members to align their acts with an agency at the earliest possible moment.

There are, at present, several firms which combine both functions. Fields-Begelman, for example, which originally started as a personal management outfit, is now agenting. There are others that are now being studied and it's likely that the agencies will first demand that the various performer unions look into the situation and get these firms to drop one function.

There's also the likelihood that the offices may ask the New York City Dept. of Licenses to look into the situation and take whatever action is necessary.

It's common knowledge in the trade that one office has threatened to cause the arrest of one personal manager for combining both activities. They are waiting for a situation which they believe will be weighted in their favor before taking action in this instance.

The personal managers, on the other hand, have maintained that

(Continued on page 52)

Reneal Federal Cabaret Tax, N.J. Tavern Owners Urge at A.C. Convention

Atlantic City, Oct. 9.

Repeal of the Federal cabaret tax in its entirety was demanded in a resolution passed here last week by the New Jersey Licensed Beverage Assn., comprising tavern owners from all sections of the state. Recent reduction of the bite from 20 to 10%, the resolution noted, has effected no appreciable loss to federal and state revenues.

As an alternate, the group urged passage of House Bill 10292 which provides that the tax be collected only during entertainment periods. More than 1,100 delegates are attending the Beverage Assn. convention at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Among other resolutions passed was one that called for Gov. Richard J. Hughes to sign a bill which would increase fines and penalties against minors convicted of drinking and therefore relieving tavern owners from the "otherwise discriminatory and prejudicial effects of the minors' drinking."

Okay 60G Award to 3 Acts for Crash Injuries

Washington, Oct. 9.

Congress completed action on legislation to pay $20,000 damages each to singer Jane Froman, accordionist Gypsy Markoff and dancer Jean Rosen because of injuries sustained in the Feb. 22, 1943, plane crash near Lisbon on a World War II USO tour.

The U. S. Court of Claims long ago recommended that Congress vote $20,000 for each of the three.

Fields-Begelman Shift From Mgt. To Talent Agcy

The Freddie Fields-David Begelman management office is switching to the agency business, which will enable it to expand in many directions. Situation at the office had become confused because of its dual functions, and other agencies were starting to beef. Its clients now include Judy Garland, Phil Silvers and Polly Bergen (Mrs. Fields), among others. New corporate name is Creative Management Associates.

Its shift to agency business enabled it to pact Robert Goulet, an ex-MCAer who inked a representation deal with it. Norman Rosemont remains Goulet's personal manager. Thus its new status as an agency is aiding it in signing talent connected with other personal managers.

Goulet, who left "Camelot" last Saturday (6), has booked a nitery tour which starts at the Shoreham, Washington, Oct. 23. He continues with the Persian Room of the Plaza, N. Y., Nov. 7; Blinstrub's, Boston, Dec. 7; Caribe Hilton, San Juan, Dec. 26; Flamingo, Las Vegas, Feb. 14, the Deauville, Miami Beach, March 22.

LOGGERAMA, THAI UNIT, TO WIND SEATTLE FAIR

Seattle, Oct. 9.

For the last gasp of the Seattle World's Fair there will be a Loggerama, world's championship logging show, Oct. 13-20, with Pacific Northwest loggers competing against loggers from other parts of the world in the Stadium.

In addition to the loggers, the Fair will put on a fire fighting show in the Stadium. Other shows set for the windup of the Fair include the I Solisti di Zagreb, 14-member chamber music ensemble from Yugoslavia, in the Playhouse; the Foo Hsing Children's Theatre from the Republic of China in the Opera House, Oct. 8-13, and the first appearance of the Royal Thai dancers in this country in the Opera House, Oct. 18-23.

AGVA Shuts Tampa Office, Shifts Its Biz to Sarasota

The American Guild of Variety Artists has closed its branch in Tampa, Fla., and transferred all business to Sarasota. Jerry Hirsch has been placed in charge.

The closing of the Tampa local will weaken the claims of Al Fast and Smiley Hart, who previously worked in these offices as branch managers. Both were dismissed by the union's executive board after they refused to reveal what they had told the Senate's McClellan Committee probers.

Hart told the Committee he paid the now suspended national administrative secretary, Jackie Bright, the sum of $2,000 to be transferred from Washington to Sarasota. He voluntarily took a lie detector test when his story was disputed by Bright.

Bourbon St. Bouncing Again as 15 N.O. Stripperies Reopen with 'Ethics' Code

By TED LIUZZA

New Orleans, Oct. 9.

Some 15 Bourbon St. strip joints which closed two weeks ago in an apparent protest against raids by police and the district attorney's staff, reopened Friday night (5) with a new "code of ethics" aimed at self-policing.

The opening was timed to coincide with the arrival in the city of 5,000 Shriners from six states for what was described as a visit for "three days of fun and frolic."

The club operators adopted a 10-point code which bars prostitution, B-drinking, "rolling or stealing," obvious intoxication and rowdy behavior in the night spots.

As the code was adopted, Malcolm G. Mundy Jr., attorney for the Bourbon St. Night Clubs Assn. appealed to the public to give the club owners an opportunity to show their good faith in carrying out the self-regulation.

"It is our intention to make Bourbon street an even safer and better tourist attraction than it has been in the past and we earnestly solicit the help of Government agencies or any individual toward this end," said Mundy.

Within the next few weeks, Mundy added, the clubs will begin a package deal entertainment plan offering tourists or local citizens a single price for an evening's entertainment and to attend three shows at member clubs.

Uniformed doormen were on duty when the clubs reopened and relighted the famed French Quarter street. Drink prices were posted at all club entrances for the first time.

Mundy also said that the code requires that a "conduct inspection committee," made up of members of the association, shall check member clubs regularly and report infractions of the code. Owners can be expelled from the association for violations, or they may be fined.

The visiting Shriners and their ladies kept cash registers jingling at the night spots as well as noted restaurants in the historic area. The street took on a Madri Gras atmosphere as the Shriners, in colorful ceremonial costumes and red fezzes, took over.

The club and restaurant owners, shopkeepers and others had the red carpet out for the visitors and it was estimated that they left close to $1,000,000 in the city. It was the first time the major hotels were filled since the Sugar Bowl classic and Mardi Gras.

District Attorney Jim Garrison last month began cracking down on the strip joints and said he intended to force them out of business by spring if they failed to comply with the law. Police and vice squad officers arrested dozens of persons in recent raids and Garrison vowed to end lawbreaking at the tourist haunts.

WINNIPEG'S RED RIVER EXHIB EARNS $34,861

Winnipeg, Oct. 9.

Red River Exhibition showed a net profit of $34,861 for 1962 compared with a 1961 loss of $23,908. Gross revenue was $309,578, an increase of $20,657. Total attendance increased by 33,881 to 224,589, the largest in the exhibition's history.

Working capital was shown in the exhib's financial statement as $47,541, compared with last year's $12,680. Capital expenditures were $13,250.

The loss in 1961 was attributed to the high talent cost of the grandstand show, heavy expenses and the poor attendance during the 10-day schedule caused by the inclement weather. This year the grandstand show was scrapped, expenses decreased by $38,112 and good weather helped increase attendance by nearly 20%.

Retiring president H. T. Martin told the annual meeting that the objectives of improved exhibition quality and a solvent financial position had been reached. M. C. Craft was elected president. R. E. Stewart continues as managing director.

Dinner Theatre Paying Off for Garden Court of Frisco's Sheraton-Palace

By JOE ALLISON

San Francisco, Oct. 9.

Problem: an 1,100-seat restaurant famed for its topdrawer trade, doing a 50 to 100-a-night dinner business.

Solution: dinner theatre.

The place is the swank Garden Court of San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel. The Court is a local tradition, a memory high point in the minds of the Bay Area's most social families. It does a heavy breakfast business and is jammed at lunch, both with society and top-level executives from the city's nearby financial district.

But in recent years it had become notorious as one of the hotel industry's biggest white elephants after 3 p.m.

The producing team of Russell Lewis and Howard Young introduced theatre-in-the-round to the Court last Jan. 29, and it has been doing an evening business of upwards of $30,000 a week ever since.

This gross is made up of dinner tabs, which range from $7.75 to $15, plus $1 more on weekends, and drink bills. The hotel and the producers split the take on a straight percentage basis after the nut.

Says producer-spokesman Lewis, "We have made the nut every single week, except on some turnover weeks when fast write off of production costs has cut us down."

Is it showing a profit?

"It's been great," says Lewis.

But on the other side of the partnership, S-P manager Morgan Smith puts it this way: "There are a lot of dollars, but where are they?" Then in the next breath he adds: "Dinner-theatre has been a big advantage. It has given us a big advantage . . . It has given us considerable exposure."

'Sirloin Steak Profits'

Behind this two-direction comment lies the economic fact of labor-relations life in San Francisco, one of the nation's toughest labor towns. Nobody wants to tell possible labor wolves about sirloin steak profits.

Neither the hotel nor Lewis & Young will talk money. But the cash is there in what figures the partners will release. Lewis says the average breaking point is about $35,000 a week, high because of the considerable extra expense caused by operating in a room which must be completely made over twice a day — from restaurant to dinner theatre and back.

The weekly grosses; upwards of $30,000 as mentioned above, have run to a couple of $48,000 weeks during "Guys and Dolls" with Lloyd Bridges which opened the venture early in the year. Another notable show was "Take Me Along" with Dan Dailey which did $45,000 capacity for a four-week run.

In the Garden Court last week was a special summer show, designed by Lewis & Young to meet the problem of a vacationing trade. They put in a low-budget "Boy Friend," with no stars. Top name has been tv's Molly Bee. This, according to Lewis, did "good but not big business" in its eight-week stand. It was followed today (Tues.) for five weeks by John Raitt and Jane Johnston in "Pajama Game."

The Garden Court, as set up for dinner theatre, has a 660 to 700 capacity, although in a special insurance convention performance later this month it will take 850. The huge room, with giant chandeliers and many marble columns, is at its elegant normal for breakfast and luncheon business.

Starting at 3 p.m., it is broken up and the 22 by 20 stage laid on

(Continued on page 56)

GAC Gears 'Motortown Special' Into 1-Nighters

General Artists Corp. is booking a show and dance unit, "Motortown Special," for a series of one-nighters following a week's stand at the Howard Theatre, Washington, Oct. 26. Berry Gordy Jr. is promoting the venture.

Unit will comprise The Miracles, Mary Johnson, Mary Wells, Marvelettes, Henry Lumpkin, Eddie Holland, Marvin Gaye, Sammy Ward, Gino Parks, Contours, Supremes, plus an emcee and band still to be designated. Unit is slated to wind up Dec. 2.

Sunday Dancing

Continued from page 51

nances, in an attempt to adapt the city's licensing regulations to the terms of the new Common Day of Rest Law, a state statute which allows Sunday dancing. Localities can set license fees on such activities, and ops must apply for licenses.

Sinnott told the committee that North and South shore nightspots were already allowed Sunday dancing by their local communities, and Boston had better get hip or lose biz.

Stanley Blinstrub, op of the South Boston 1,700-seater bearing his monicker, opined: "Sunday has always been a lost night for us. There just isn't any business without dancing." Chiming agreement were Izzy Ort, op of a string of intimers and bars; Louis R. Govoni, Hotel Catering and Restaurant Union; and James Duchscherer, general manager of the Statler-Hilton.

"I came here from another city" (Washington), said Duchscherer. "I was surprised at this dancing prohibition. It doesn't help with conventions."

Other factors in the situation, which were not discussed, include the possibility of legit musicals playing on Sunday. Pool rooms were also involved, but Edward H. Margolis, prexy of the Massachusetts Billiard Parlors Asso., doesn't like the word "pool." "We are trying to take away the stigma that has been associated with our game for years," he said. "These are not pool rooms but billiard parlors," he continued, asking that Sunday licenses be given these establishments.

The committee took the matters under advisement.

Product Shortage May Bring Back Vaudeville: Walters

The product shortage has become so serious for exhibitors that they'll even consider bringing back vaudeville, according to Lou Walters, producer of shows at the soon-to-be opened Americana Hotel, San Juan. He disclosed that he's been negotiating with one chain to present stageshows in a New York theatre, but cooperation of all unions will be needed. The theatre, he said, would need assurances that it won't have to buy a 16-piece orchestra nor hire around the same number of stagehands.

Walters emphasized that Hollywood's dwindling production, coupled with many extended runs and high rentals, are making theatre operators more receptive to the return of stageshows. However, he added, it's a matter that needs an assist from a lot of parties.

He pointed out that Actors Equity, for example, by making concessions to off-Broadway productions, has increased the scope of actor employment. He urged other unions to create a "minor league" so that talent can develop more rapidly.

The Americana, a Loew's Hotel enterprise, is slated to open around Dec. 13. Walters' first show will include Dominique, Ralph Young and Bogdadis, among others. He's presently plying between New York and Miami Beach to cast production elements in the layout. Walters is also producer at the Carillon Hotel, Miami Beach.

Walters is also opening a Miami Beach office for production of units, industrial and convention shows. Bert Frohman, a veteran singer, will be in charge.

David Hocker's Agency

David Hocker, former veepee of MCA Artists Ltd., who handled legit musical and tv talent, has opened his own talent agency. He will work in all fields.

Hocker, originally a concert agent, expanded in other directions when he went with MCA about 12

NELSON EDDY

Now at the Roostertail Restaurant in Detroit, with Gale Sherwood and Theodore Paxson. Bill Byers, of the Houston Post, said, "His opening night in the Shamrock-Hilton parlor was an awesome occasion, indeed. And the man, giving each tune his own special wallop, deserved every cheer by the large crowd."

A. P. A. handles

Map $10,000,000 Can. Disneyland

Toronto, Oct. 9.

Start on an outdoor amusement park within 90 days, and to be ready by March, is promised by Nat Winecoff who will undertake a $10,000,000 venture on a 175-acre site three miles from Niagara Falls, Ont.

Most of the capital comes from Canadian industry. Winecoff claims that he was an associate in the planning of Disneyland, although Walt Disney is not connected with the Canadian project.

Principals are Niagara Lands Development Ltd., with associates named as J. A. MacTaggart, director of Tussaud's Wax Museum, Niagara Falls, Ont., Murray Ruta, owner of the Indian Village at Chippewa, and Maxwell Moffatt, Toronto designer, who will mastermind the layout.

New LQ Show

Continued from page 51

work. Hand props, he said, will run to $3,000 and costume jewelry will be about $4,000. Arrangements and music copying will run to a sizable amount. With all the alterations, the room will close only one night (Mon.) with a runthrough set for next Tuesday (16) and the formal unveiling set for next Monday (15).

Productionwise, the LQ show runs ahead of most shows in the U.S., with the known exception of the Stardust, Las Vegas. However, the latter spot doesn't use headliners, which Risman books after the show has run for a while. The Stardust runs minimally for a full year, and thus has a longer time to amortize. There are other aspects of The Stardust which run higher than the LQ including transportation of the entire show from the Lido, Paris. The larger cast also makes the weekly nut higher than the LQ show for the production elements.

In New York, the production at the "Minsky Follies" opening at the International tonight (Wed.) may be comparable to that of the Latin Quarter. The entire cost hasn't been computed as yet.

Seattle's 9,000,000

Continued from page 1

too, with daily attendance running around 25,000 and weekends big, chiefly local people. Weather has aided, being more sunny than showery.

Ticket sale has long been past the profit-marking 9,000,000 figure, with still around 1,000,000 advance tickets yet unused. Many are being given to children's homes, etc. There are also many cutrate sales underway by stores, organizations and individuals who over estimated need for tickets.

Ted Lewis Making Everybody Happy In New Act Showcase—Roseland, N. Y.

Talent agencies have long been looking for new avenues of act employment—spots where performers can be appetizingly presented which might induce a further spread of show biz. For some time the ballrooms have been eyed as a serious outlet. The purveyors of rock 'n' roll talent have long known this secret. Youngsters who couldn't be presented in niteries, where liquor is sold, were groomed in the danceries. This has become the new breakin time of this decade.

The types of turns now going into the terpalasts are expanding. There are some ballrooms where youngsters are in the minority for the oldsters, too, are dance conscious. A spot such as Roseland, N. Y., has long been using dance turns to show the customers peak professionalism. And it has now gone in for a full scale revue in the name bracket with the four-weeker of Ted Lewis and a troupe of entertainers. Apparently Lewis means boxoffice at the Lou Brecker enterprise. He's drawing a lot of customers, many with thatches of gray, and more who hid these marks of time.

The emergence of ballroom time is important for other reasons. The Roseland weekday admission nick of $1.75 puts some entertainment within reach of the mass market. It's not a $7 minimum, nor is there a cover up to $4. Not since the demise of vaudeville has there been bigleague entertainment—live—for the broad base of people. The huge Roseland capacity makes all this possible.

Of course, there are drawbacks in this room. The very structure militates against a show that is less than forceful or extremely punchy. The physical setup is unusual and apt to give performers a hard time. The dancers are encouraged to congregate in front of the bandstand, sitting on the floor.

There is always a vast space between the last row of sitters and those behind the rail at either tables, seats or just standees. It makes it rather hard for a performer to reach them. Moreover, there are tables to the side and to the rear of the stage that have tremendous visibility problems.

After a courteous interlude, the "out-of-range" customers ultimately must become disinterested and constitute two fairly noisy sections of the room which hinder the success of the presentation. Shorter shows seem to be a partial answer to this problem. Lewis' show lasted for just over an hour.

The high-hatter's chief attribute, of course, is nostalgia, which the assemblage initially appeared more than willing to buy, had the hall been more suitable. Lewis weaves his hands and music masterfully. He effectively presents a batch of entertainers to bring about a cohesive unit.

There is Manor & Mignon, a ballroom team who have played some of the top cafes and hotels around. They entertain vastly for those within their sight range. Also George Val George, a magico who works primarily with birds and produces some excellent illusions that are well appreciated. Josie O'Donnell is a singer who punches out a tune so that even those not within view are appreciative. She does bits with Lewis that also add up well.

In these days of gigantic guarantees and percentages, it's not often that a turn can be presented for fairly low admissions. The Roseland-Lewis experiment is a reversion to the good old days when show biz was for the masses, but has since become an item for the better heeled set. And a good thing too. Jose.

Agcy.-Mgt War

Continued from page 51

in some instances, they have the power of attorney to commit their charges to any employment situation. They feel that they are acting on behalf of their client by seeking out engagements and taking all necessary steps to arrange employment. It's also pointed out that the law does not require that an agency represent an artist. An act may negotiate for himself.

The managers also stress the point that they are studying the agencies and want more time so that they will make the right choice. They point out that the agency situation generally is in a state of flux. With the demise of MCA, many new offices have been formed, others have gained added strength and others may develop weaknesses. They need to study the new patterns of efficiency of each office before they dare commit their client to what may be an irrevocable course. This, they declare, takes time. Meanwhile, their acts must work, and it's their job to see that their skills (and financial status) is at least maintained via employment.

Abe Lastfogel: 50 Yrs. an Agent, Still Scouting

Abe Lastfogel, who marks his 50th anniversary with the William Morris agency where he started as an officeboy and is now its president, is off on a three-week European trip to o.o. the percentary's offices in London, Paris, Rome and Madrid. It's more business (policy meetings etc.) than pleasure.

In Rome he will meet with WM toppers John Mather and Ferruccio Ferrara; in Paris, Giovanella Zannoni, who manages the WM office there; and in England he will powwow with Christopher Mann Ltd. and the Harry Foster Agency execs, longtime associates of the Morris office.

Lastfogel departs from Hollywood Friday (12) via the polar route after the Thursday night preem of "Longest Day."

Joe Schoenfeld also returned to the Coast last night (Tues.) for pows with the WM topper before latter flys out.

Too Early a Pioneer?

Editor, VARIETY:

If the recent VARIETY story on the renascence of interest in burlesque is any indication, it would seem that theatrical pioneers, like their frontier counterparts, at times share a common fate, i.e., that their anonymous bones lie along the trails they helped to blaze.

As writer-lyricist-stager of "The Best Of Burlesque," which opened Sept. 27, 1957, at the Carnegie Hall Playhouse with Sherry Britton and Tom Poston to uniformly warm notices, I was under the impression that we had helped to rescue "the cradle of comedy" from a premature grave, and we feel that VARIETY should be reminded of the fact.

The amended record should note as well that the original cast album featuring the same topliners, is still available from MGM records; and that Ann Corio was the headliner in the West Coast version that opened July 8, 1960, at the Ritz Theatre, Los Angeles.

Will you give a nod then in the direction of that hardy band of pioneers, who braved an autumnal chill, and public apathy, to help re-light the word "burlesque" on a New York theatre marquee, after a 15-year blackout.

Jack Vaughan.

Vegas Hotel's Expansion

Las Vegas, Oct. 9.

Work starts on a 200-room luxury suite wing of the Flamingo Hotel here next Monday (15). This is the second expansion within a year. Another 200-room wing was opened a year ago.

The new sector will contain suites with private patios containing private swimming pools. Operator Morris Lansburgh, currently in New York, is expected to return here in time for the ground breaking.

New Lake Tahoe Hotels to Aid Resort's Bid for Convention Biz

The show biz topography of Lake Tahoe is on the verge of undergoing important changes, according to Bill Harrah, who operates the largest gaming casino in the world at that resort as well as a king-sized spa in Reno. Several hotels are blueprinted for the Lake Tahoe area and one is nearly completed.

The new hotels, the first to go up in the region, will enable Lake Tahoe to compete with Las Vegas for convention business, which in recent years has become the backbone of the hotel and nitery field. Harrah, in New York last week, sailed on the United States for Europe, Saturday (6).

Lake Tahoe, Harrah said, is also betting on attractions other than the casinos to entice trade. He pointed to a ski development, which he said was instrumental in bringing a lot of business to that part of the state. The snows come earlier to Lake Tahoe and thus help get the first enthusiasts to that area.

In addition, area publicity is also stressing the attractions of the lake itself. The takeover of the Cal-Neva Lodge by Frank Sinatra was another factor in bringing more business to Tahoe.

The new hotels, Harrah pointed out, are expected to be completed in about three years. He stated that it was a risky business in building the new structures since most of the trade is done within the two summer months. With the extremely high building costs in Lake Tahoe because all materials must be brought in from other areas, amortization of such investments is a gamble.

Del Webb, the builder and one of the owners of the N.Y. Yankees, is planning one edifice. He is also the majority stockholder in the Riviera, Las Vegas. The shell of the first hotel to be built in the region is already up, but work has been halted temporarily. Operators of the Wagon Wheel are behind this undertaking.

Harrah is also working on an inn. He is taking his time because he's trying to find a high-rise design that will blend in with the region.

Harrah declared that talent costs in his operations have been stabilized by the simple expedient of setting a top salary and sticking to it. The top acts, once they have reached that plane, get that wage and there is no haggling. The only major difficulty is determining the date. But there's a problem with acts below the top level who aspire to get the top coin.

Even though salary difficulties are not pressing in the Tahoe situation, Harrah is experimenting with legit musical bookings and has set "Flower Drum Song" in December for four weeks.

Harrah, an antique car enthusiast, will take in some of the sports car shows in Europe during his stay there. He'll also look at entertainment to buttress the variety of talent for his spas.

SALZBURG ATTENDANCE

Down 7,000 From '61 — 802 Journalists on Hand

Salzburg, Oct. 9.

Admissions this year for all performances of Salzburg fest ran to 125,000—some 7,000 less than last year. The performances which were SRO were the symphony concerts and the operas, notably, the newly staged. Karajan directed and conducted "Trovatore."

Drama seemed less in demand as well as chamber music and recitals —except the very popular Mozart-matinees. Press office registered 802 correspondents from 35 countries — 88 were the overseas-correspondents. 31 programs were broadcast by 45 stations and taken over by the Broadcasting Foundation which controls 75 stations.

Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus In N.Y. Coliseum Nov. 29

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Combined Circus will play a holiday stand in New York at the N.Y. Coliseum, Nov. 29 through Jan. 1. Show is being billed as the Christmas Circus and Holiday Festival. In addition, a midway will be installed in the Coliseum during the run.

It's the second try at theatrical events for The Coliseum. A water show presented last summer by John McKnight folded after a brief run.

Food Tops Nude At Seattle Fair

Seattle, Oct. 9.

Nude shows haven't done so well at the Seattle World's Fair, but food sales have been perhaps the biggest biz throughout the fairgrounds in the run so far—and with just 12 days to go.

Nick Jorgensen, Century 21 foods director, says (as of Oct. 1) food sales at the Fair have exceeded $15,000,000 not including the Eye of the Needle restaurant in the Space Needle.

The Eye, of course, is one of the top success stories of the Fair. It has operated virtually at capacity sixteen hours a day since it added breakfast service May 14. Before that it was capacity from 11 a.m. until 2 a.m. closing.

Jack Borg, manager of the restaurant, says the Eye will have served more than 500,000 patrons when the Fair closes Oct. 21. Then the restaurant will be closed for four days to refurbish and give employees a rest, reopening Oct. 26.

Jorgensen said the Fair will collect about $1,000,000 as its share of food operators' receipts; that all 44 booths in the Food Circus would show a profit and all are ready to sign up again for any kind of continuing operation at the fair site.

Food Circus sales from opening day, April 21, through Sept. 1 totaled $5,307,770.77, Jorgensen said.

Brit. Vaude Doing OK But Real Coin's From Bar, Programs, Snacks, Parking

London, Oct. 9.

Vaude in this part of the globe is doing okay but anyone who thinks boxoffice receipts alone yield a profit is in for disillusionment. So says Leslie Macdonnell, head of the Moss Empires chain of variety theatres. The real profit these days comes from subsidiary activities such as bar takings, program sales, eatery receipts, car park returns, etc.

Shows at, say, the London Palladium, major theatre in the Moss Empires group, cost anything between $180,000 to $200,000 to mount and operating costs per week are in excess of $80,000, points out Macdonnell. At that rate of expenditure, a showman must explore every facet of profit making to keep the books in the black.

What's more, Macdonnell emphasizes that irrespective of taking fiscal risks ("which we do every week"), the live theatre has got to experiment constantly—or go under. It is not without significance that Macdonnell has decided to revamp his policy at his flagship Palladium next year although he's had a successful 12 months there playing pantomime, summer show, limited variety and back to panto.

Stress Vaude in '63

Next year, the emphasis is to be on the vaude bill although the pantos are to be retained. "Over the past year," Macdonnell notes, "the Palladium has had the sort of bill that attracted the Londoner only about four times. I hope to get the same Londoner about seven times next year."

Moss Empires is also pouring large amounts of capital back into its circuit. For instance, chain's outlet in Birmingham is undergoing a $300,000 modernization; more than $150,000 of new equipment is earmarked for the Palladium.

Macdonnell feels that in the face of competition from tv, bingo, floodlit sport, etc., the theatre must provide a deluxe "outing" for the family and a place where they can lounge and socialize (buying, of course, from Moss-owned bars, restaurants, candy counters, etc.).

"We have plans to pull down certain of our lesser halls," he says. "An ideal circuit would involve only about a dozen theatres —but all up to the standard of the Palladium."

There may be a hint how Moss' prospective deluxers will fare in the fact that despite a quadruple increase in price, patrons are buying as many new glossy theatre programs as they did the original lack-lustre sheets. And, in addition, are picking up a comparable quantity of the expensively turned out souvenir brochures at 35c apiece.

At the two London deluxers, the Palladium, and the Victoria Palace, Macdonnell also takes heart. "We are doing more business there today than ever before," he says. That included the Crazy Gang's phenomenal run at the Vic Palace, too.

DUTCH EYE U.S. TOURISTS

Believe New Hilton A Factor — Use English Titles

Amsterdam, Oct. 9.

Local tourist traffic is expected to be advanced by the recently-completed Hilton Hotel — and that means Yank rubbernecks included.

Although the entertainments are not a prime draw for travelers to this Dutch key, there's considerable catering by show business to visiting Americans. Example: when the French pic "La Belle Americaine" played here recently, it was with English as well as Dutch subtitles — to make sure the Yanks absorbed all the gags.

Another instance of accommodation is an in-English comedy revue, produced for the fourth consecutive season here by two Americans, Jill and Jack Lardis. And yet another: Rika Jansen's one-woman show at the Rembrandt-Theatre supplies an international songology, including several tunes in English.

"SCORES"
VARIETY
"Monica has the measure of his audience. He has a homey quality, embellished with expert delivery and he scores with telling effect."
Jose.

"SUPERB"
NICK LAPOLE
New York Journal-American
"His sense of timing is superb, he captures his audience in the first few moments and never loses them. Mr. Monica has finally reached his role of comedy stardom."

"SLICK"
HY GARDNER
New York Herald Tribune
"Corbett Monica has developed into one of the slickest stand-up comedians. The laughs he gets from the Latin Quarter audiences, predominately out-of-towners, is a rating service yard stick as to how popular he'd be with TV viewers.

"DROLL"
LOUIS SOBOL
New York Journal-American
"A droll comedian whose star is in the ascendant."

"EXCELLENT"
WILLIAM PEPPER
New York World Telegram & Sun
"His material is good, timing excellent and the audience enjoys him immensely."

CORBETT MONICA
Currently Headlining
LATIN QUARTER, NEW YORK
October 11th GUEST STAR THE TONIGHT SHOW NBC-TV
October 13th GUEST STAR JOEY BISHOP SHOW NBC-TV
WILLIAM MORRIS AGENCY
Personal Manager: JOHN PRANSKY, 127 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y. JUdson 2-3267

Eddie Fisher at the Winter Garden

Too For-Real Mississippi Gags by Negro Comic and Dubious Cafe Material by Dancer—Plus and Minus Audit on One Big Try

By ABEL GREEN

There once was a smalltime vaudeville comedian, Fred Allen (Benny) (Burns) (Thomas) (you fill in), who dreamed of making good on the bigtime and perhaps one day play the Palace. He/they did — and went beyond that thanks to the fates and the then undreamed of form of electronic show business.

Eddie Fisher, from South Philadelphia, with detours to Hollywood, Vegas and Rome, always dreamed of trodding the same boards as Al Jolson and even announced he would install a runway, a la the great Jolie. Thus, via his own Ramrod Productions (in association with Monte Proser and Milton Blackstone, longtime chums and mentors), he essayed storming the Winter Garden, the citadel that was Jolson's.

To most of Fisher's present-generation public Jolson is a symbol, or they know him from the Columbia Pictures' tv reruns of the two biopix made by Jolie—"I had one life to live and I lived it twice for Harry Cohn," cracked Jolson. But to the initiate, that was a pretty tough target. Fisher may have erred (1) in openly expressing himself as aspiring to the comparison and, possibly, (2) most of his public couldn't care less. Fact is that Fisher is (a) a competent singer and (b) a singularly newsworthy, mayhaps somewhat notorious, personality, for other than pro reasons.

Result was that Fisher's debut at the Winter Garden last Tuesday (2) was somewhat in the Vegas-Miami Beach-Hollywood aura and decidedly more nitery than vaudery. In fact, all the trimmings were more out of the cafe league than the stage, with result that the rostrum aspects suffered.

Show kicked off self-consciously because Dick Gregory's rapier barbs made both races self-conscious, after the Mississippi bitterness. Gregory is effective when he is disarmingly witty when observing "where but in America can I eat in the worst restaurants, have the worst housing, have to sit in the back of the bus and get $5,000 a week talking about it." But when he teed off documentarily, in neo-NAACP style, with gags about "men don't wear oxfords" and kindred—and not unwarranted—Mississippi sallies it created an aura of preachment rather than entertainment. Bob Hope does it and Will Rogers did it but, separate and apart that they're ofays and have a built-in advantage in chiding the churlish misbehavior of a segment of our fellow-citizens, also their timing invariably had the advantage of following frothier preludes.

But here, Gregory kicked off the show, following Gordon Jenkins' "The Broadway Zoo" (cycloramic panorama of Times Sq. environs), and it took a long spell to shake off the pall of the grim realities before the mood changed into the less baited banter the theatregoer favors. This opening night showwise bunch obviously were there for Fisher.

Juliet Prowse, another well-publicized danseuse, is a long-legged looker who unfortunately put too much accent on Vegas-type gamey gimmicks. She's an arresting femme, whether on plastic toe or in bare tootsies, both of which she essayed, but somehow that "Legs" number, with a portion of the ribbon-curtain serving as a sort of G-string, was more National Wintergarden (when Minsky's held forth downtown) than the Shuberts' Winter Garden on Broadway. There were other shortcomings in several departments, from the Sammy Cahn-Jimmy Van Heusen special numbers, which pounded home the double-entendre, not particularly necessary considering Miss Prowse's basic endowments and talents. Even on the latter (terpsichorean) phase, choreographer Tony Charmoli, a past proven pro, done her wrong. The satires on a "hot" Joan of Arc, a cackllingly coughing Camille, and "Cleo, the Nympho of the Nile" missed. Her male sextet gave her yeoman support though the Pembroke Davenport-batoned pit orchestra made with the AFM staccatos as if they were playing Central Park Mall, not a hardtop theatre. Giving a weak voice that much musical montage is also a great trailer for the customers' Anacin business.

Came Eddie Fisher. This time Eddy Samuels took over the baton and the 25 men (including a femme harpist) moved from the pit to the rostrum and here again the singer's musical backing was tres forte.

Fisher's songalog, of course, automatically conjures up a musical autobiog. Nature of modern-day Tin Pan Alley effusions, coupled with the headlines, makes the script obvious. Fisher wisely refrained, save for one fleeting crack, from any reference, but you don't sing "Back In My Own Backyard" and any of the standards, or make ad libs about "an old Greek philosopher, Spyros Skouras" without generating the obvious. As if Miss Prowse's "Cleo, the Nympho of the Nile" or the headlines made it all a secret.

Yet it must be said that Fisher did not carry his Tin Pan Alley torch on his microphone, but he did carry a lot of other plusses and minuses. The plusses are the appealing, boyish personality and deft song selling; the minus was the completed dedication to "electronic cars." It was a marked contrast that when Fisher essayed a mike-less number he was welcomedly salvced although probably not as appreciated by the gallery and back-of-the-house trade.

As for the Jolson medley, that was as palatable as his salute to Cantor, in absentia, with his "Makin' Whoopee" number, or essaying those Hebrew, Greek, German and Yiddish vocal detours. These are always a question for mixed audiences — for what is wrong with singing Brecht-Weill in English (Bobby Darin and others made "Mack the Knife" very palatable that way) and "Never On Sunday" is such an international fave that he could dispense with the Melina Mercouri brogue — especially when both are in obviously very broken-German and Greek. The other thing with the Jolson medley, of course, was Fisher's telegraphing the analogy which, in turn, recalls that when Jolson filled the Garden they hadn't invented the microphone—and he did it. And the outfronters weren't blasted out of their eardrums by the Telefunken amplification.

Fisher declared himself "the most available singer in America" and already the nitery trade from L.A. to L.V. to N.J. (where he did sensational biz at that caravansery outside of Camden) have flocked to him.

Fisher, however, in a hardtop theatre, sans booze, and to a $6.90-$7.50 (weekend) scale — preem night was $10—may be something else again. It's a four-week "limited" engagement. The initial semester's ticket demand has been flattering.

Eddie Fisher Package

"Eddie Fisher at the Winter Garden" with Juliet Prowse and Dick Gregory; directed by John Fearnley; settings, Oliver Smith; orchestrations, Jerry Fielding; special material, Gordon Jenkins; lighting, Peggy Clark, conducted by Pembroke Davenport; presented by Monte Proser & Milton Blackstone (a Ramrod Production) (Bernie Rich, associate producer); "The Broadway Zoo" by Gordon Jenkins, production designed by Glenn Holse; Juliet Prowse's songs by Sammy Cahn & Jimmy Van Heusen, staged by Tony Charmoli, costumes by Ray Aghayan; Miss Prowse's "Boys" (Nicholas Coucevich, Brad Craig, Norman Edwards, Lance Avant, John Frayer, Byrnell Deitch); Fisher's special conductor, Eddy Samuels; opened Oct. 2, '62 (four week engagement), Winter Garden, N. Y., $10 preem; $6.90-$7.50 top.

ABC, Paris

Paris, Sept. 30.

Edith Piaf, Theo Sarapo, Andre Aubert, Mike & Paul Dipery, Dany Kane, Elsa & Waldo, Therons (6), Binder-Binder, Renee S. Passeur, Daniel Janin Orch (17); $4.50 top.

That flagship vauder, the Olympia, headed by Bruno Coquatrix, started its season in high gear by bringing back the ailing but game dramatic chantoosy Edith Piaf and surrounding her with a first-rate show. The house looks in for four SRO weeks, judging by the triumphant reactions to Miss Piaf.

Miss Piaf was last heard two years ago and since then had many hospitalizations. Now she totters out her songs of love. Her firm stance and economy of gestures, plus her still belting voice, give edge and depth to her act to keep her one of the best tragic songstresses extant. There is no morbid ogling in the crowd. If sometimes she doesn't have the crescendo and perfect pitch in one song, it comes back in another for relieved audience applause.

Miss Piaf, still in good form, gets back to her former perfection as her hour of songs progresses. And she gives out a practically new songalog which is a tribute to this courageous, dynamic and brilliant singer.

She has slipped a bit in one instance only. Usually a fine judge of new singing material, she has a new protege, and her fiance to boot, Theo Sarapo. He was not ready for second billing on this program.

Sarapo, a tall, thin mop-haired young man of about 26, tries to sing dramatic ditties in Miss Piaf's style. But he forces the beat and does not have the voice to make anything of his songs. Removing his shirt for one number is bad taste.

Sarapo is better in a little love duo with Miss Piaf. Allowed to develop on his own, and finding a softer style for his smaller voice, he could be an okay filler. But he lacks projection, depth or promise for any star chances that Miss Piaf's former finds have usually shown.

Rest of the show is topgrade. Therons are a fast trick bike number with three men and three women doing fine group riding. Their acrobat aspects, interspersed with comic shenanigans, make them an expert opener. Mike & Paul Dipery do fast and deft juggling, both separately and together, to shown class and elegance.

Andre Aubert is a shrewd mimic who does well in his knowing take-offs on noted singers. Elsa & Waldo are a furiously mugging comic dance-acro team who add up to a fine vaude entry.

Binder-Binder have a hefty girl being shot from a teeterboard into one-hand stands on her male partner's head after he has jumped on the other end of the board. Her weight is belied by her airy deftness, and they skirt the grotesque

(Continued on page 56)

International Stars
JOEY DEE
and his
STARLITERS
Headlining in Columbia Pictures
"TWO TICKETS TO PARIS"
Hit Recording
"WHAT KIND OF LOVE IS THIS"
(Roulette)
EXCLUSIVE BOOKING
JOLLY JOYCE AGENCY
58 W. 48th St.,
New York
PL 7-1786, PL 7-1530
Affiliated Offices
PHILA., LAS VEGAS and FRANKFURT, GERMANY

BILLY GLASON'S FUN-MASTER
PROFESSIONAL
COMEDY MATERIAL
For every branch of theatricals
"WE SERVICE THE STARS!"
35 Gag files $15, plus $1 postage
FOREIGN: 35 for $30
• 3 Parody Books, per Bk. ....$10 •
• 5 Blackout Books 1-2-3 Each ....$25 •
No. 4 for $35—No. 5 for $30
• Minstrel (white face) Budget $25 •
• "How to Master the Ceremonies" •
$3 PER COPY . . . NO C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON
200 W. 54th St., N.Y.C. 19, CO 5-1316
(We TEACH M.C'ing and COMEDY)
(Let a real Professional train you)

DONNA LYNN
Jimmy Durante's SINGING PROTEGE
12—GOING ON STARDOM!
Agent ERNESTINE McCLENDON
TN 7-2287, New York

"THE COMEDIAN"
The Only Real Monthly
PROFESSIONAL GAG SERVICE
THE LATEST — THE GREATEST —
THE MOST-UP-TO-DATEST
Now in its 144th issue, containing stories, one-liners, poemettes, song titles, hecklers, audience stuff, monologs, parodies, double gags, bits ideas, intros, impressions and impersonations, political, interruptions, Thoughts of the Day, Humorous Views of the News, Vignettes, etc. (20 Pages).
$25 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $3
Foreign
$35 YR.—SINGLE ISSUES $4
No C.O.D.'s
BILLY GLASON, 200 W. 54th St.
New York City 19, CO 5-1316

NICK LUCAS
And
The Troubadors
Now Appearing
TAHOE
State Line, Nev.

DANTE
Mr. HYPNOTISM
Mgt. OSBORN & ASSOCIATES
5701 N. Sheridan Rd., Chicago

SEATTLE'S WORLD FAIR
CLUB 21
SEATTLE WASHINGTON
MEMO TO JACK ROSS
HI JACK.....
HAPPY OPENING THERE AT THE THUNDERBIRD HOTEL IN LAS VEGAS....
YOU'VE GOT A GREAT ACT AND A GREAT GROUP AND YOU'LL KILL THE PEOPLE.
BE SURE AND TELL THOSE GUYS ABOUT THE TIME YOU PLAYED SEATTLE.....AT CLUB 21 IN THE SEATTLE WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS.. YOU DID MORE PEOPLE EACH NIGHT AT CLUB 21 THAN ALL THE OTHER ROOMS IN TOWN.
THE KINDEST
MEL ANDERSON
P.S. HOPE YOU CAN COME BACK SOON....LIKE NOW.

JACK ROSS
Opening Oct. 12th
THUNDERBIRD HOTEL
Las Vegas, Nev.
•
Recent Record Release
"CINDERELLA" b/w
"MARGUERITA"
Dot Records
•
Mgmt.: ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP.

LIMELITERS BY STREET LIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, Monday, August 27, 1962

There was something different about the crowd that showed up last night to hear the Limeliters at the hungry i. It was stubborn. Even after an announcement that no seats remained for the 1 a.m.—and last—performance, the people stood expectantly in the street. Finally, when the regular show ended inside the North Beach club, they were rewarded. The hottest entertainers in town —Lou Gottlieb, Alex Hassilev and Glenn Yarborough—came outside and took the chill off the night with a sidewalk concert.

hungry i

599 JACKSON STREET • SAN FRANCISCO 11 • EXBROOK 7-0929

September 17, 1962

Gloria Hellman
Personal Management
200 West 57th Street - Suite 404
New York 19, New York

Dear Miss Hellman:

The LIMELITERS have just broken all house records at the hungry i for a four week engagement.

In actual grosses and total paid admissions, the LIMELITERS have topped any act that has appeared at my club during its nine year history.

On several occasions, the LIMELITERS graciously performed a special "street show" outside the hungry i for people lined up around the block who could not be crowded into our packed showroom.

This has been the most memorable, as well as profitable, month ever enjoyed by the hungry i.

Sincerely,

Enrico Banducci

EB/lb

Highlights—FALL TOUR

September:
HOLLYWOOD BOWL
PORTLAND
VANCOUVER
SPOKANE

October:
SEATTLE
OMAHA
CHICAGO
DUKE UNIVERSITY
CINCINNATI
COLUMBUS
TORONTO
INDIANA UNIVERSITY
DAYTON
ROCHESTER

November:
BOSTON
OTTAWA
PROVIDENCE
YALE UNIVERSITY
CARNEGIE HALL
WASHINGTON, D.C.
MIAMI
PURDUE UNIVERSITY
OKLAHOMA STATE U
HOUSTON
DALLAS

December:
WICHITA
MARQUETTE UNIVERSITY

EXCLUSIVELY RCA VICTOR RECORDS

DIRECTION ita INTERNATIONAL TALENT ASSOCIATES, INC.
New York 22
45 East 55 Street
PLaza 1-3344
Beverly Hills
9538 Brighton Way
CRestview 5-4562

PERSONAL MANAGEMENT GLORIA HELLMAN
200 West 57 St.
New York, N.Y.
PLaza 7-4636

Dinner Theatre Pays Off in S.F.

Continued from page 52

a three-foot elevated platform in the centre. The orchestra, at stage right, takes out about the same space. The cavernous space, plus the many hard surfaces, posed an initial sound problem, but a sound engineer and some modern electronics have solved most of it.

Almost all the business comes on reservation. This is done on a $4 deposit against the check. The customer gets a receipt for his $4 which then goes as cash against his tab, an average $11 plus tax per person.

Theatre party business has been increasing recently and Lewis and Young have added a theatre party manager to their staff. Lewis insists this has been in answer to demand, rather than a L&Y move to boost the gross. Lewis also added that he felt this to be in contrast to a Westchester (N. Y.) motel and Meadowbrook in New Jersey, theatre parties are on a different basis.

The apparent success of dinner theatre in San Francisco, compared for example to the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles where three shows drew successive blanks, is attributed to two basic differences in the Frisco operation.

For one thing, Lewis says, L&Y have avoided the nightclub approach, striving to attract a theatre crowd instead. The producers have insisted on a theatre approach to the entertainment, rather than the truncated or tab versions which have been shown in most other similar houses. The shows at the Garden Court each have been full length.

Curtain time is targeted at 8:40, with an end to all service at 8:30 when the customers may order a last coffee, a drink or a bottle with setups. Shows run to 11:15 or later, with 11:30 as an absolute deadline for the final curtain. They sometimes don't take it.)

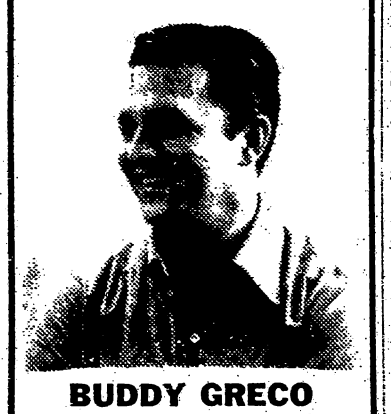
A second factor in Garden Court success, although the producers don't emphasize it, has been an understanding tailoring of the shows to Frisco's sometimes difficult audiences. Experienced-hardened producers have been saying for years that a show won't go in Frisco unless it is a proven hit or has a top name. Lewis & Young have tried to provide just those two elements.

Shows' Long Runs

For example, the aforementioned "Guys and Dolls" which would have played longer than its six weeks had not Bridges had previous commitments. "Take Me Along" would have stayed longer had not a poor advance given the wrong signal and let L&Y fail to option Dailey. The durable Lilo in "Can Can" went 10 weeks. "Bells Are Ringing" with Celeste Holm went four weeks. And "Boy Friend," as noted, did good if not great business for eight weeks even without a top name.

The incoming "Pajama Game" will run just five weeks when Raitt must leave for a "Telephone Hour" show. But Lewis expects it to prove itself and has tentative plans to return it after the holiday season with Stewart Rose in Raitt's role.

The holiday hiatus is the producers' concession to the Garden Court's position as a social mecca. Too many long-standing events are scheduled for the Court and dinner theatre must give way. This is not always the case. It is expected that the topdrawer Mardi Gras Ball will give up its traditional Tuesday and take Monday, when the dinner theatre is closed.



The six performances a week are soon to be increased to seven, Lewis says, as soon as he gets Equity approval for two performances on Saturdays, a dinner and a supper show. L&Y, incidentally, are Equity throughout their operation, including their Music Circus tent theatre in Sacramento where they have put on 10 weeks of shows each summer for the last 12 years. The pair also have eight Broadway productions behind them.

The producers' contract with the hotel is on a "stop clause" basis, Lewis said. It will run indefinitely until the gross slips to a predetermined level, whereupon either side may give two weeks' cancellation notice. The stop level was not revealed, but appears to be at the $30,000-$35,000 mark.

Side aspects of the contract provide 50-50 sharing of advertising and promotion expense, plus two free suites to the producers for stars' use.

BUDDY HACKETT
Personal Management
FRANK FASKE
EVergreen 4-6000
New York City

BUDDY GRECO unprecedented return to the COPACABANA
December 6, 1962
Par. Mgt.: Dee Anthony Enterprises
1619 Broadway, New York 19, N.Y.
PL 7-2380

DANCE INSTRUCTOR WANTED
After-hours job for professional ballroom dance teacher. Private group, 5 or 6 couples, one night per week, $4 each. Call Mrs. R. B. Hobson, Montclair, N.J., PIlgrim 4-4295.

SHEP FIELDS
and his
Rippling Rhythm Orch.
Now Available
FOR LIMITED ENGAGEMENTS
for DATES and Further Information CONTACT
SHEP FIELDS
SHAMROCK HILTON HOTEL
Houston, Texas
MOhawk 4-9307
JERRY LEVY
DIRECTIONAL ENTERPRISES
200 W. 57 St., New York
Circle 6-8431

Vaude, Cafe Dates

New York

Bobby Rydell down for the Copacabana June 13 for the prom business . . . Erna Engels marking her fifth year at the William Morris Agency reception desk . . . Morey Amsterdam tapped for the Boulevard, Rego Park, L.I., Dec. 24 . . . Allen & Rossi to the Ankara, Pittsburgh, Nov. 16 . . . Eagle & Man have a string of dates taking them to the Sherman House, Chicago, Nov. 15, Holiday House, Pittsburgh, Dec. 11 and the Brown Hotel, Louisville, Dec. 26.

Ronnie Martin, brother of Corbett Monica, heading the show at the Palms Shore, Brooklyn, and slated to follow with Palumbo's Philadelphia, tomorrow (Thurs.) . . . Buddy Greco returns to the Copacabana, Dec. 6 . . . Peter Lind Hayes & Mary Healy return to the Sands Hotel, Las Vegas, April 24 . . . Larry Spellman tapped to work in the Morris Agency record division . . . Stripper Dior Angel at Charley's Hartford, Conn., for the next three weeks.

Hollywood

Kay Stevens returns to Slate Bros. Nov. 8 Phil Foster follows current stand (opened Sunday) at Holiday House, Pittsburgh, with date at Surf, Cincinnati . . . Dave Madden headlines at Embers, Indianapolis, starting Oct. 15 . . . The Lancers open fortnight at Gaslight Room Oct. 21, start three-weeker at Bimbo's, Frisco, Dec. 27 . . . Abbe Lane and Xavier Cugat open tomorrow (Thurs.) at Cork Club, Houston, thence to Monticello, Framingham, Mass. . . . Brook Benton into 40 Thieves, Bermuda, Oct. 29-Nov. 11 . . . Enzo Stuarti set for Ankara, Pitt., Dec. 21-Jan. 4.

Cleveland

Hildegarde opens Oct. 15 at Nick Pinardo's Chateau Supper Club for a six-day run. Pinardo also has booked Vaughn Monroe Oct. 29 on one-weeker; Nelson Eddy, Nov. 6 week; Phyllis Diller, Jan. 6 week . . . Kitty Kaye set by downtown Copa for Oct. 15 on two-week deal . . . Hal Lynn's orch and Ronnie Barrett as singalong piona humorist restoring live entertainment policy at Hickory Grill . . . Arthur Braggs' "Idlewild Frolic" unit preemed new Vagabond Club, which plans to spotlight jazz and Twist bands as well as musical tab revues.

Fran Warren to be backed by Georgie Auld's crew at Mushy Wexler's Theatrical Grill the week of Oct. 22 . . . Bob Findley, trumpeter in Jan Paderewski's combo at the family-owned Paderewski's Room, joined the Ray McKinley-Glenn Miller orch . . . Bandmaster Joe Baldi returned to Hilton-Statler for cocktail and dance sessions in its Terrace Room . . . Old Vogue Room, once one of Cleveland's plushiest night spots, will disappear when Hotel Hollenden housing it is torn down soon . . . Junior Waters, singing nephew of Ethel Waters, stays another week at the Heights Virginian Club . . . While playing at Lakewood's Chateau Club, Carmen Cavallero was set to fly to Tokyo Oct. 31 for 14 concerts in Japan with his combo.

Dallas

Dave Gardner set for Nov. 17 at State Fair Music Hall, with the Mal Fitch Trio backing . . . Tree Club, with comic Morty Storm current, inked the "Greenwich Village USA" revue for Oct. 15 . . . The Town Pipers into Club Village Oct. 19 for two weeks . . . Executive Inn's Mayfair Rooms renews show policy Oct. 15 with singer Ruth Gillis and the Earl Kay Trio for a fortnight.

Gigi Galon opens Nov. 15 at Pat Morgan's Club . . . Charlie Applewhite quit as manager of Gaylife Club and will resume his singing career after a European vacation . . . Carol Winters, thrush, and the Nick Nicholas Trio into the new Omar Khayyam coffee club . . . Ray Plagens Trio starting entertainment policy this week at the London Club in the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel . . . Clyde McCoy orch a gratis offering at State Fair of Texas for 16 days, Oct. 6-21.

House Reviews

Continued from page 54

ABC, Paris

by deadpan clowning relieved by their grace and acro knowhow. Act is very well received.

Dany Kane does a good jazz harmonica interlude backed by the Daniel Janin Orch who also contribute okay medley interludes. Renee S. Passeur does the femcee chores in an earthy manner that fits the mood of this fine show.

Miss Piaf has saved the Olympia at various times, as vaudeville had its ups and downs here. Her opening season return bodes well for public interest. After this show, vaude looks very much alive.

Mosk.

Apollo, N.Y.

Jocko & His Rocketship Show with Dave "Baby" Cortez, Marvelettes (4), Marvin Gaye, Vandellas (3), Radiants (5), Fiestas (5), Jackie & the Starlites (4), Erwin C. Watson, Joe Marshal Orch (10); "Counter Plot" (UA).

Recent events in the deep south that have caused the surfacing of terriffic hates—capped by the Ole Miss-mash—have triggered tensions in Harlem, and an ofay at the uptown vaudery is a little uneasy. This r&r spread, in fact, opens with a pitch for funds to help the NAACP in the legal battles now being waged re integration, with the Rev. Sandy Ray of Brooklyn on stage. (The coin collection circumvents the ofay as though he were transparent).

Otherwise, this shoutin' show is undoubtedly a good way for the aud to burn off hostilities. Folks' mostly youthful, are on hand to o. o. their wax fantasies in the flesh.

In the beltline runoff of groups, two talents are outstanding. Lead singer with the Vandellas, an eye-filling feme trio, is a virtual single (supporting duo is drowned out) and a first-rate performer in the r&r idiom. She (Martha), tall and slender, is highly professional in the contemporary stylizing and backs it with a strong blues flair. Group returns to back male single Marvin Gaye, a good looking lad with tasteful delivery, and emerges with some fine harmonies that could be used to good effect in future numbers.

Jackie, with the Starlite Trio, is a strutting small package of vocal dynamite with dramatic projection off the Gospel circuit. Both his material (extremely sensual) and his projection would be considered vulgar by some, but it's a savvy and overpowering turn.

The rest is SOP with Baby Cortez maybe less frenetic on the organ than a couple of years ago; the Marvelettes' (four chicks) lead displaying a sock beat to a rangeless vocal style; and the Radiants, Fiestas and Joe Marshal Orch all in boomsville.

Comic Erwin C. Watson (caught recently at the same stand) is West Indian in accent and blue in content to excellent returns from this aud.

Bill.

Olympia, Paris

Paris, Oct. 1.

Gloria Lasso, Jean Raymond, Two Earls, Pierre Perret, Alcetty, Cris Carol, Jean Harold, Roller Stars (4), Emmanuelle Reim; $1.75 top.

Gloria Lasso, who started as a nitery singer in Spanish, accompanied by a guitar, switched to big voiced exotic and romantic French ballads to become a top record star here. She's now trying to mix these styles with more dramatic, incisive ballads. But it doesn't quite come off.

Jean Raymond is a sharp raconteur and devastating in his take-offs on singers. Here is a stand-up comic mime of note. Two Earls give a clean hald-to-hand acrobatic display, play a bongo interlude, then go into a dynamically staged mock fight that stamps them a classy filler number.

Pierre Perret, with guitar, has a pleasing, witty delivery of amusing self-cleffed songs about the vagaries of life. His blue aspects are brought off winningly. Only drawback is his stylistic resemblance to Georges Brassens, sans the bite and poetic of that singer. Perret is a fine staple on any program.

Alcetty spins massive plates on long rods. He gets one going on a series of joined sticks over audience heads that ends his expert act on big applause. Cris Carol has a jumpy rhythmic flaair and lacks a personal outlook, songalog or buildup and appears better equipped for orch backing than solo stinting.

Jean Harold projects slides which have famed heads on unlikely bodies. Clever patter blends this into a sock offbeat act. Roller Stars are a quartet of bop dancers more suited for dancehalls than vaude houses. Emmanuelle Reim does a spirited femcee job for this okay show which probably has good two week biz in store for it.

Mosk.

HERBIE SELLS
Currently:
EL SAN JUAN HOTEL
San Juan, Puerto Rico
JAMES GRADY ENT.
250 W. 57th St.
New York

ACTS WANTED
Break your jump going east or west. We use acts every Wednesday thru Sat. all year around. Salary $150.00 to $200.00. Book direct or thru your agent. Send photo's and dates you are coming thru to ALFRED DUKE, Silver Spur, Rawlings, Wyoming

EMMETT KELLY
Mgt.:
LEONARD GREEN
300 E. 51st St.
New York City
PL 2-1764

POMPOFF THEDY FAMILY
"Spain's Royal Family of Comedy"

Opening Nov. 27
DESERT INN,
LAS VEGAS, NEVADA
Featured Lounge Attraction
Proudly Guided by
HARRY BREYN
Management
20 East Huron Street
Chicago 11, Illinois
337-8040

New Acts

LYNN STARLING
Songs
15 Mins.
Viennese Lantern, N.Y.

Lynn Starling, who has sung with the N.Y. City Center Opera Co., is a mezzo with a lot of pleasing qualities. She seems a pliable performer able to adjust to the smoke-filled circuit. Her notes come out rich and warm in a tune assortment that is neither too arty nor too obviously concessions to pop appeal.

Miss Starling's catalog ranges from "In Other Words" to through "Stride la Vampa" from "Il Trovatore' 'to a spiritual (with her own guitar accompaniment) and Viennese and Italian tunes. They are delivered with an air of technical expertise. As yet, there's lots of work ahead for Miss Starling. She indicates her manner is still strange to the nitery orbit and while her notes are warm, her demeanor needs the heat to match. All these are items easily developed with more experience in the cafes. Jose.

BOLA SETE
Guitarist
30 Mins.
Sheraton Palace, San Francisco

The first authentic rep of the Brazilian "bossa nova" style to hit the West Coast, this guitarist is a solid supper club entertainer who is highly flexible, has a broad range of material, and understands how to entertain.

He works with both the Spanish and the electrically amplified guitar and his repertoire consists of American pop songs, Brazilian bossa nova and folk numbers, classical guitar selections, flamenco and Portuguese fados.

In two sets heard in one night he utilized all of these categories for a fascinating show. As a jazz and pops guitarist he has excellent technique plus a warm, emotional feeling. His bossa nova (sambas plus jazz) numbers are intriguing and he is impressive with the classical numbers ranging from Bach to Villa Lobos. His flamenco and fado specialties would benefit by announcements and it might be smart for the house to use a table tent that explains what he is doing as his English is n.s.g.

Sete has been a solid success at the Tudor room, so much so that he's been snagged for the N.Y. Park Sheraton. Rafe.

THE DIAMONDS (4)
Songs, Comedy
45 Mins.
Club Caravan, Austin, Tex.

The Diamonds, established in the rock disk category with such Mercury hits as "Littl' Darlin'," are trying to cut a new groove as a club act which relies heavily on comedy and antics in addition to vocalizing.

They throw in "Littl' Darlin'" for good returns, making a lively bash of it, with jungle calls and what have you. Another extra thrown in on such numbers as "Saints," is a chowder club display of bass horn, tuba, tamborine and trombone.

Group, which entered the rock field seven years ago with current personnel, is ably fronted by bass singer John Felten. He gets out the intros and straight-man lines with marked felicity, and is a poised foil for the clowning of a stocky Evan Fisher. Felten gags about his own proboscis, which undeniably gives him unique profile rivalling the Schnoz. On serious side, Felten's stellar cellar tones add to group's vocal richness.

Comedie sallies of four include impressions, with Jim Malone turning in a better than average JFK. Large percentage of yoks depend on irreverent breakthroughs of the mascot-like Fisher, who might incline too much to limp-wrist effects for many tastes. Same criticism might apply to group efforts, on occasion such as a paraphrase of a singing cigaret commercial about a new kind of "man," which inverts lyrics into message usually reserved for more specialized audiences.

It might be argued there are returns in such meanderings, but chances are group will get best overall mileage from making a little finer distinction between the "sophisticated" and the over-easy blue-to-magenta stuff.

DONNA MILLER
Songs
34 Mins.
Club 70, Ottawa

Donna Miller emerges from tv, Canada's major training ground for chanters with a nice stint that would be good for any lounge. Canary is a looker, wears okay gowning and grooms well, but her biggest impact comes from her ability to stage her stanza with charm. Her pipes are clicko and her selection of tunes is balanced, with a tendency to standards both new ("Misty") and old—a string of Jolsons, plus touches of Tucker. Arrangements fit the tunes and Miss Miller's pipes.

She would work well in niteries, intimate rooms, tv, AM, disks. Gorm.

GRECO & WILLARD
Comedy
25 Mins.
Gate of Horn, Chicago

The vanishing of the nabe nitery has made for very few discovery spots for new variety talent. Although Chicago is generally considered a lively night club city, there are only two boites not entirely dependent on marquee names and willing to take a chance on new faces—the Playboy Club (with its captive audience) and the Gate of Horn. In the latter case it may be a matter of economic necessity, but nonetheless this classy little folk spa has done more than its share of providing an audience for little-known acts, both folk and general. This showcase aspect is of vital importance to a turn such as Greco & Willard, a wildly funny comedy duo who have been plugging their way through the folk cafes and are now ready for larger cafe exposure.

Like the principals of another comedy act which scored at the Gate of Horn, "Stewed Prunes," this pair is off to an advantage because they look funny. Vic Greco, the shorter of the two, looks like a darkvisage used car salesman with a troubled conscience. Husky Fred Willard could be a young matinee idol, a part he plays in one skit in which he is an actor receiving an Oscar and over-ingratiatingly reeling off an endless list of acknowledgements to his stunt man, his makeup man, his agent, the man whose voice dubbed for his, etc.

Most of their sketches are of the shaggy dog sort—their comedic conclusions always stray away from their earlier buildup. Done in blackout style, their material is hip but is communicated through the universal language of sight gags and timing. Among their many risible skits are a takeoff on a beauty school with Willard lecturing cheerfully on pimples and hairy legs ("It's a problem we all have to face you know"), a running panto gag on a safecracker continually interrupted in his work, and a radio interview on a comic who is violently serious about his comedy.

Pair had the auditors howling on the night caught, and would seem to be appropriate for most sophisticated clubs and to have a great potential for tv. Mor.

DEBBIE KELLEY
Songs
35 Mins.
Emerald Room, N.Y.

Debbie Kelley, a bright, blonde chirp, is currently making her debut at the Emerald Room of the Hotel Astor. She'll be doing two shows nightly, at 9:30 and midnight.

Miss Kelley has lotsa enthusiasm which she puts to good use on a variety of uptempo numbers. She has a fine set of pipes and sells her material with full-throated effectiveness. Switching moods, the pert songstress also dishes up an occasional ballad in fine style. Her overall delivery and smart presentation make her a natural for this type of room and the audience registered its approval consistantly.

On the uptempo side, Miss Kelley delivers a songalog which includes "Anything Goes," "Just One of Those Things" and some specialty treatments of "Gonna Be a Bad Girl" and "Old Fashioned Girl." These get a full-voiced treatment that scores with controlled mugging and other effects for constant sales values. Ballad turns on "But Not For Me," "Made Me Love You" and "After You've Gone" are equally effective.

She mixes in some terping for her finale, displaying a nice pair of stems too. Miss Kelley is a sprightly performer whose right appearance and solid salesmanship should take her far on this circuit. Kall.

Achard's Latest Play Hit by Paris Crix

Paris, Oct. 9.

French playwright, Marcel Achard, who has been unable to do any wrong the last few years, has now been stung by the critics for his latest opus, "Turlututu" (Silly). With three longrun hits under his belt, this one may not live up to the others, but its star name, Robert Lamoureux, and the Achard renown, could give it an okay if not hit run, at the Antoine.

Achard's "Patate," that lasted three days on Broadway, is in its sixth year here, and his "L'Idiote" (A Shot in the Dark), which did okay on Broadway, just hit the road after two years in Paris, while his musical, with Gerard Calvi, "The Cocked Hat Polka," is still doing well in its second season at the Chatelet. So what happened to the latest Achard epic?

Influential Le Figaro critic felt it did not come off because Achard's habitual flair for making comments in his comedies, that skirt the scabrous, seems to have deserted him. His story of a young couple who come to blackmail a banker's wife over some letters they have, and another who has coincidentally come at the same time to milk the husband, is just too contrived and flat to make the the comedy take.

Top selling France-Soir found this tale too long and false, and the sentimentality forced. So Achard seems to be in for his first flop in several years. This uneven comedy does not appear able to travel or translate well either.

Joe E. & Jackie

Continued from page 1

preceding Friday. Gardner substituted an old Jimmy Durante gabfest with his "family" (Eddie Jackson, Jack Roth, Sonny King and Jules Buffano; the latter, his longtime pianist and nephew died, since making the tape.)

Lewis' stint in the Gardner show also was to have featured Jayne Mansfield and Paul Anka. Shown in its place were two old Gardner segments spliced together—Durante & Co. and the other a pre-Liston interview with Floyd Patterson. Lewis, per annual custom of never working on Yom Kippur, didn't play the Copacabana that night. George DeWitt subbed for him.

Elsewhere on Yom Kippur tv, two acts who had been slated for debut appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show, had to cancel because they had forgotten that Sunday was the Holy Night. Comedians Norman & Dean and Israeli singer Hannah Ahroni will play out these commitments at a later date. Subbing for them were Yolanda White, Mattison Trio and Dick Albers. Latter turn had been slated for a later Sullivan gig but were flown in from their engagement at the Stardust Hotel, Las Vegas, to fill the gap.

Scots Toast 'Rob Roy'

Edinburgh, Oct. 2.

One of Scotland's legit oldies, "Rob Roy," is being revived here for a Royal gala performance before King Olav of Norway, Britain's Queen Liz and Prince Philip.

Myer Oppenheim, owner of the Lyceum where the drama will be restaged, said that the script has been revised by Scot playwright Robert Kemp, with additional music by Cedric Thorpe Davie. Kemp has also penned the lyrics for new songs by Davie. Cast is headed by tv actor Archie Duncan, and includes John Cairney, Callum Mill, and Lennox Milne. Dennis Ramsden is exec director, with Gerard Slevin staging.

According to Oppenheim, who is personally backing the show, "Rob Roy" was a b.o. click in Scotland for more than 100 years. The show was first staged at Covent Garden, London, and given its first Edinburgh performance in the Theatre Royal in 1819.

CURRENT BILLS

WEEK OF OCTOBER 10

NEW YORK CITY

MUSIC HALL — Richard Hayman, Nicolyn Emanuel, Eugene Slavin, Thatcher Clarke, Lila Gage, Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, Raymond Paige Symphony Orc.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE (Tivoli)—Penny Nicholls, Bob Andrews, D'Angolys, Two Pirates, Balcombes, Eddie Mendoza, Eric Whitley, Jeff Hudson, Harry Currie, Keith Leggeth, Maureen Wilson, Wendy Faulkener, Jackie Griffiths.
SYDNEY (Tivoli)—June Bronhill, Peter Graves, Rosina Raisbeck, Eric Reiman, Lola Brooks, Lorna Forbes, Barry Balmer, Halinka de Tarczynska, Gloria Mcdonall, Beryl Cheers, Tony Jenkins, Julie Day.

BRITAIN

BLACKPOOL (Tower Circus)—Charlie Cairoli & Co., Bronleys, Hugh Forgie & Co., Circus Williams' Lions, 2 Carmenas, Circus Knie's Horses, Zebras & Ponies, Diors Sisters, Four Soranis, 2 Dominicis, Willem Lenz & Chimpanzees, Tibor Alexander's Canine Revue, Desmond & Marks, Circus Knie's Elephants, Dagenham Girl Pipers, Our Sammy, Little Jimmy & Circusettes.
WINTER GARDENS PAVILION—Arthur Haynes, Nicholas Parsons, Morris & Savage, Des Lane, Trio Reyros, Leslie Noyes, Johnny Hart, John Tiller Girls, Danny Williams.
OPERA HOUSE—Ken Dodd, Kaye Sisters, Eddie Calvert & C-Men, Raindrops, John, Three Houcs, Barbara Law, Derek Taverner Singers, Malcolm Goddard Dancers, Jimmy Currie's Silver Cascade.
LIVERPOOL (Empire) — Frank Ifield, Dallas Boys, Anita Harris, Harry Bailey, J. & P. Barbour, Franklin & Doves, Tommy Wallis & Beryl, Alan Field.
LONDON (Palladium)—Bruce Forsyth, Morecambe & Wise, Johnson & Carr, Eve Boswell, Angela & Fred Roby, Amin Bros., Ugo Garrido, Janet Mahoney, Angela Bracewell, Johnny Shack, Jimmy Lee.
MANCHETER (Palace) — Bill Maynard, Derek Dene, Donna Douglas, Dick Francis, Show Maidens, Henri Vadden & Partner, Seafarers.
NEWCASTLE (Empire)—Russ Conway, M. & B. Winters, Bryan Johnson, Peter Crawford Trio, Terry Kaye, Sandra Peters, Esme Browne Dancers.
VICTORIA (Palace) — George Mitchell Minstrels, Tony Mercer, Dai Francis, John Boulter, Leslie Crowther, Margo Henderson, George Chisholm & Jazzers, Schaller Bros. & TV Toppers, Jackpots, Mitchell Maids.

Cabaret Bills

NEW YORK CITY

AFRICAN ROOM—Kurli Benito, McMurray & Jeff, Johnny Barracuda.
BASIN ST. EAST—Louis Prima Orc., Sam Butera & Witnesses.
BLACKJACK — T. C. Jones, Johnny Fooster Orc., Mae Barnes.
BLUE ANGEL—Nipsey Russel, Alberts, Jo Mapes.
BON SOIR — Jack Douglas & Reiko, Felicia Sanders.
CAMELOT — Con Astone Orc., The Cookies.
CHARDAS — Lily France, Jacqueline Rew, Elemer Horvath Orc.
CHATEAU MADRID—Roberto Iglesias & Co., Pupi Campo Orc., Carbia Orc.
COPACABANA — Joe E. Lewis, Tina Robin, Joseph Mele Orc., Frank Marti Orc.
CRYSTAL ROOM — Milt Trenier.
EMBERS—Dorothy Donegan Trio, Arvel Shaw Orc.
HAWAIIAN ROOM — Angela Martin, Denis Regor, Keolu Beamer, Qai & Hulabelles.
HOTEL ASTOR—Dick Harding, Debbie Kelley, Eddie Lane Orc.
HOTEL NEW YORKER — Verna Lee, Milt Saunders Orc.
HOTEL PIERRE — Joseph Sudy Orc., Robert Simpson, Leigh Green, Phil Wayne Trio, Kathy Preston.
HOTEL PLAZA—Katyna Ranieri, Emil Coleman Orc., Continentals.
HOTEL ST. REGIS — Peter Duchin, Nancy Manning.
HOTEL ROOSEVELT—Jan Garber Orc.
HOTEL SAVOY HILTON—Ted Straeter Orc., Ray Hartley.
HOTEL WALDORF-ASTORIA — Shelley Berman, Greter Keller, Emile Pette Orc., Milt Shaw Orc.
INTERNATIONAL —"Minsky's Follies," Benson & Mann, Max & Cherie, Marion Miller, Tina Marshall, Maybin Hewes, Mike Durso Orc.
LATIN QUARTER — Corbett Monica, Goofers, Julie Gibson, Wallenda Ballet, Jeannine Pivoteau, Tonelys, Jo Lombardi Orc., Irving Fields Orc.
LITTLE CLUB — Chauncey Grey, Tito Fuente Orc.
LIVING ROOM — Tommy Leonetti, Kathy Keegan, Hal McKay Bob Ferro Orc.
NO. 1 FIFTH AVENUE—Hankinson & De Malo, Cedrone & Mitchell, Mary Ellen.
ROUNDTABLE — Steve Alaimo, Davy Jones, Orchids.
SAHERA—Four Avalons, Esther Tobbi, Leo Fuld, Badoc & Sharobi, Louis Banneft Orc.
SQUARE EAST—"Second City," Alan Arkin, Howard Alk, Andrew Duncan Eugene Troobnick.
STROLLERS — Talbots.
TRUDE HELLER'S — Ray Milan & Quarternotes.
UPSTAIRS & DOWNSTAIRS — Danny Carroll, June Connell, Sudie Bond, Myra DeGroot, Cy Young, Hal Buckley, Arthur Siegel, Larry Holofcener, Bill McCutcheon, Patty Regan, June Squibb.
VIENNESE LANTERN—Fernanda Montel, Ernest Schoen Orc.
VILLAGE BARN—Ralph Pope, Perl & Ray, Tex Fletcher, Becker Bros., Lou Harold Orc., Joe Shay Orc.
VILLAGE GATE — Lonnie Donegan Orc., Charlie Byrd, Ada Moore.
VILLAGE VANGUARD — Makin & Clancy Bros.

CHICAGO

BLUE ANGEL—"Calypso Latina," Jamaica Slim, Lord Banjo, Jimmy Lara, Marion Mills, Angela Renee, Gloria Drew, Selma Smith, Tino Perez Orc.
CONRAD HILTON—"Girls, Girls, Girls," Del Ray, Bobby Clark, Manuel Del Toro, Gabriele Welders, Dennis & Darlene, Boulevar-Dears (6), Boulevar-Dons (3), Jimmy Palmer Orc.
DEL PRADO HOTEL—"Hits of Broadway," Bonnie West, Susan Cable, Ann Hilton, Blanche Schulz, Charles Abbate, Kenny Adams, Dale Van, Bobby Wolf, Scott Pearson.
DRAKE HOTEL—Carmel Quinn, Jimmy Blade Orc.
EDGEWATER BEACH — "Strawhat Revue," Lucho Navarro, Henri Noel, Cheri Ann Schear, Bob Carey, Audre Deckman, Beverly Lacek, Jimmy Dybas, Eileen Sarafis, Frank Giordano, Davine Miroballi, Noel Russell, Don Davis Orc.
GATE OF HORN—Will Holt, Travelers Three, Greco & Willard.
LE BISTRO — Chavis Bros., Connie Milano Trio.
LONDON HOUSE — Gene Krupa Quartet, Charlie Ventura, Larry Novak Trio, Jose Bethancourt Trio.
MISTER KELLY'S—Irwin Corey, Sandu Scott, John Frigo Trio, Marty Rubenstein Trio.
PALMER HOUSE — Kim Sisters, Ben Arden Orc.
PLAYBOY—Kenny Milton, George Kirby, Dauphin Trio, Roy Petty, Tony Craig, Ami Rouselle, Wayne Roland.
PEPE'S—Gus Van & Roaring 20's Revue.
SECOND CITY — The Establishment, John Bird, Eleanor Bron, John Fortune, Jeremy Geidt, Carole Simpson.
SAHARA INN — Tony Martin, Allen Drake, Frank York Orc. Lounge: Joy & The Boys, Ronnie Brown Trio, Frank Fiore Combo.
SHERATON-BLACKSTONE — Robert Clary, Franz Benteler Orc.
SHERMAN HOUSE — Henny Youngman, David Romaine Orc.
SUTHERLAND LOUNGE — Redd Foxx, Gene Ammons Band.

LOS ANGELES

BEN BLUE'S—Laffs & Gals, Norman Hawes Orc.
CIRO'S—Donn Arden Revue.
COCOANUT GROVE — Sammy Davis Jr., Freddy Martin Orc.
CRESCENDO—Frances Faye.
DINO'S — Gigo Galon, Jack Elton, Steve LaFever.
INTERLUDE—Troy Walker & Hustlers.
SLATE BROS.—Vic Dana, Betty Regan, Herb Dell Trio.
STATLER HOTEL—"Chip Off the Old Block" (2d Edition) Revue, Skinnay Ennis Orc.
YE LITTLE CLUB—Karen Dolin, Joe Felix Group Four.

LAS VEGAS

CALIFORNIA CLUB—Johnny Paul.
DESERT INN—Jimmy Durante, Peter Lawford, Eddie Jackson, Sonny King, Donn Arden Dancers, Carlton Hayes Rev. Lounge: Dave Apollon, Les Femmes, Michael Kent, Johnny Puleo, Joe Venuti, Pompoff Thedy Family.
DUNES—Geo. Burns, Carol Channing, Four Preps, Bill Reddie Orc. Lounge: "Vive Les Girls."
EL CORTEZ—Kay Martin and Bodyguards.
FLAMINGO—Dick Shawn, Brenda Lee, Nat Brandwynne Orc. Lounge Brook Benton, Harry James, Bob Sims.
FREMONT—Newton Bros., Joe Pasko, Swingin' Lads, Ricky & Gents.
GOLDEN NUGGET—Judy Lynn, Diplomats, Tony Lovello, The Features.
HACIENDA — Four Tunes, Johnny Olenn, Keynotes, Cathy Ryan, Lynne Davis, Grover Shore Trio.
MINT—Pat Moreno's "Artists & Models of '62." Bill Bird, Gil Lamb.
NEVADA—Jay Orlando, King Henry 4.
NEW FRONTIER — "Life Begins at Minsky's," Tommy Moe Raft, Carrie Finnell, Stunning Smith, Baby Bubbles, Maureen Diaz, Frank Sorrelio, Murray Briscoe, Jack Mann, Dick Rice Orc. Lounge: Bob Crosby Ink Spots.
RIVIERA — Dinah Shore, Davis & Reese. Lounge: Kay Stevens, Big Tiny Little, Pat Yankee.
SAHARA—Judy Garland, Ray Bolger. Lounge: Louis Prima, Gia Maione, Sam Butera, Freddie Bel, Arthur Ejen.
SANDS—Steve Lawrence, Eydie Gorme, Dunhills, Harry Nofal, Copa Girls, Antonio Morelli Orc. Lounge: Dave Burton, Danny Costello, Morry King, Ernie Tewart.
SHOWBOAT — Skeets Minton, Muggsy Spanier, Ken Linley, Rusty Isabel.
SILVER SLIPPER — Hank Henry, Sparky Kaye, Bobby Clark, Cindy Ember, Danny Jacobs, Red Marshall, Dolores Frazzini, Marge Elizarde, Slipperettes, Geo. Redman Orc. Lounge: Chas Teagarden Orc., Jack Prince, Johnny Lamont.
STARDUST — "Lido de Paris," Eddie O'Neal Orc. Lounge: Roberta Sherwood, Bernard Bros., De Castro Sisters, Micki Lynn.
THUNDERBIRD—"Flower Drum Song," Jack Soo, Arlene Fontana, Garwood Van Orc. Lounge: Dinah Washington, Dukes of Dixieland, Arthur Lyman, Ray Sinatra Orc. Lounge: Shecky Greene.
TROPICANA—"Folies Bergere of '62," Billy Maxted Jazz Band, Al De Paulis 4.

RENO-TAHOE

CRYSTAL Bay (Tahoe) — Novelites, Ronnie Games Trio.
HAROLDS — Rusty Draper, Andre Tahon Co., Johnny Mann Singers, Delta Queens, Don Conn Orch.
HARRAH'S (Reno)—Deedy & Bill, Nick Lucas, Judy Lynn, Tony Lavelle, Top-Notchers, Red Coty.
HARRAH'S (Tahoe) — Polly Bergen, George Gobel, Derben Singers & Dancers, Leighton Noble Orc. Lounge: Louis Prima with Sam Butera & Witnesses, Tunesmen, Twin Tunes, Tunetimers, Joe King's Zaniacs, Sawyer Sisters, Lancers.
HOLIDAY — Royal Hawaiian Revue, Lloyd Lindroth Quartet, Mariachi Los Comperos, Dianne Lefti and Right Hand Men.
MAPES—Gaylords, King's IV, Nalani Kele Polynesian Revue, Joe Karnes.
NEVADA LODGE (Tahoe) — Bob Hall-Cindy Layne Quartet, Gwen Harmon and Players, Larry Riera and Royals.
NEW CHINA CLUB—Eagle Eye Shields, Tony St. Thomas.
NORTH SHORE (Tahoe) — Bobby Page and Musical Pages.
RIVERSIDE — Hank Penny, Frankie Fanelli, Jackie Jocko, Buddy LaPata.
SPARKS NUGGET—Billy Daniels, Paul Gilbert, Step Brothers, Little Bertha, Moro-Landis Singers and Dancers, Foster Edwards Orc. Lounge: Billy Maxted, Maaka Nua Revue, Richie Bros.
WAGON WHEEL (Tahoe)—Theatre Bar: Novelites, Maaka Nua's Hawaiian Revue, Newton Bros., Sawyer Sisters, Marily Esquires, Ron Rose. Pavilion: Juan Esquivel Orc., Magic Violins of Mexico, Tomma Jean.

SAN FRANCISCO

BIMBO'S 365—Lessy & Moore, Gali Gali.
BLACKHAWK — Vince Guaraldi Trio, Ramsey Lewis Trio.
CONDOR—Joe Loco 3.
EARTHQUAKE McGOON'S—Turk Murphy's Orc., Mary Pearl.
FAIRMONT — Phyllis Diller, Ernie Heckscher Orc.
GAY 90s—Jerry Sharkey, Bee Ray and Ray K. Goman.
HUNGRY I—Peter, Paul & Mary, Dave Astor.
JAZZ WORKSHOP — Stan Getz Four.
NEW FACK'S—Duke Ellington Orc.
PURPLE ONION—Cindy Whitsell, Adam Keefe.
PIERRE'S—Frank Moore Four.
SUGAR HILL—Carmen McRae.

Americana Hotel, N. Y.

Harry Belafonte & Co. (9), Lester Lanin Orch (12) and Gao Orch (4); $5 and $7.50 cover.

Charity preem Monday night (7) of the new Americana Hotel's Royal Box was an event as will be the occasion following the public debut from last night (Tues.) onward.

In keeping with the lush and plush aura of the just-opened Loew's (Tisch) $50,000,000, 50-story skyscraper hostelry on 7th Ave. and 52d St., the nitery is an ultra boite, more in the idiom of a Parisian-style nite club than the conventional hotel "room" with entertainment.

Also in keeping with the last word in the rehabilitation of the midtown Manhattan scene, Claude C. Philippe has snared a succession of boffo performers. Kickoff is Harry Belafonte, with his own team of instrumentalists and a vocal trio backstopping him, and augmenting the Lester Lanin dansapators. He is virtually sold out for his three-week stint here. If so, this amortizes the fancy $12,500 pricetag he is supposedly snagging and, in turn, the Americana is charging a straight $5 couvert ($7.50 on Friday and Saturday). A third show may be possibly added on Saturday if the traffic demands it.

Belafonte is in his trademarked tight trousers and open-at-the-neck red shirt as he unspools old and new folk ballads. Belafonte's overall appeal is the authenticity of his song wares, their underlying melodic charm, a sensitive feel for the lyrics, an authoritative mien on the rostrum—whether in a saloon or concert—and, of course, a high-voltage personal magnetism. Thus, he ranges from Jamaican to Israeli, from southern to Latin, from doggerel to betimes philosophic paeans in praise (or pain) of practically anything that song themes are given to—the land, love, human frallities, flirtation, senoras, the sexes (usually of the genre that "woman is smarter than man," circa Trinidad calypso.)

Wisely he eschews the natural digs he could be prone to, which he has given evidence in the past. Other than an ad lib reference to "Mississippi" in that "Hellelujah" number he sells his song wares with contagious affection and appeal. He could even forego that lone topical reference. An artist of his stature makes greater impact by underplaying: his public (any public) knows the facts of life and prejudice from the headlines. In a trade appraisal of a nitery star, in light of the fact that Belafonte has been one of the most vocal and outspoken opinionators along these lines, this could be both good showmanship and personal statesmanship to sidestep another further approach to current events.

In keeping with the current dansapation vogue, Americana executive veeper Claude C. Philippe snagged society dansapation fave Lester Lanin for the terp tunestoring, and be sure gets them up on the floor. In addition this is a room to see and be seen in. Gao's quartet is the relief combo, also very okay.

Architect Morris Lapidus did a capital job in the decor with its recessed mannequins on one side and the silk-scrimmed effect on the opposite wall, with the Paris panoramic views softly shrouded. The Royal Box is a name frankly copied by Philippe from old friend (the late) Joe Zelli's long-famed boite in Paris' Montmartre. It is a romantically candlelit room which could step up lighting a bit to show off the gals' glam togs, as occasion warrants. Preview charity night (N.Y. City Center) found Belafonte's p.a. system a little harsh but soon corrected.

Frank Milanesi, kin of legendary "Alex of the Ritz" (Paris) maitre d'hotel, heads the staff. He has long been a Palm Beach figure but dates back to the old Central Park Casino, Waldorf Astoria and Ritz (N.Y.) days. More familiar to the Gotham gadabouts will be the many key men Philippe snared away from the Waldorf and kindred spots. To a man the opinion is, "He's tough" (meaning Philippe) "but he knows his stuff and when he bawls you out it is done with charm." That's a pretty good commercial for any exec.

Tony Martin, Keely Smith and Guy Lombardo come in next. For beyond the first of the year, Philippe has been talking with Donald O'Connor, Andy Williams, Dinah Shore, Marlene Dietrich and others.

No question that the Americana's Royal Box will further stimulate the competitive nitery and hotel scene and, on its own, looks like an automatic hit. The room itself along with the plush aura of the new deluxer is a built-in attraction. Abel.

Sherman House, Chi

Chicago, Oct. 5.

Henny Youngman, Bettu Jean & Happy Green, David Romaine Orch; $2 cover.

The Fountain Room, launched in the College Inn downstairs nitery-lounge-eatery complex of the Sherman House five months ago, is beginning to make substantial headway as one of the few prime Loop showspots. The room seemed to catch its stride with its last booking, Margaret Whiting, and now is packing them in with Henny Youngman. Comic had previously played the Camellia House of the Drake Hotel, but was lured away by the Sherman in competitive bidding.

Youngman, the master of the muscled bon mot, was at his scattershot best, spraying the aud with an array of one and two liners, wife and mother-in-law gags, Vegas and Hollywood anecdotes, space jokes, and tales of childhood and adultery. His timing, delivery and tuxedo are impeccable, and in his half-hour turn he touches all the comedic bases from Joe Miller to Henry Miller.

For the musical portion of his act, Youngman is in fine voice in croaking some mildly ribald lyrics to "On The Street Where You Live" and "Gigi". He also finishes a close second in a fiddling duel with maestro David Romaine. The ringsiders loved it all and called him back for more.

Show openers Betty Jean & Happy Green are not the most appropriate act for this supper club. Their rhythm & blues approach to their songs doesn't jell with the sedate setting. Mor.

Pigalle, London

London, Oct. 3.

Al Burnett presentation of "Tropical Paradise," with Carmita, the Maori Hi-Five (6), Peter Dixon, Christiane, Vicky Grey, Alan Vicars, John Vicars, Brian Todd, Bobby Chandler, Line (12), Jack Nathan and Tony Scott Orchs; $4.50 minimum.

There's an exotic flavor to the talent lineup for the Pigalle's new revue, "Tropical Paradise," in which the top spots are filled by Carmita, a Fijian chanteuse, and the Maori Hi-Five, a versatile sextet (yes, count 'em-six), who presumably come from New Zealand. The production is built around the cast toppers, though it follow formula which has become familiar to Pigalle regulars.

Carmita, who is reported to be a princess, frankly doesn't make a regal showing as a singer, though she looks most fetching in a figure hugging beaded gown. For the most part she's inclined to belt out her numbers, and that frequently makes it hard to follow the lyric.

But she shows some talent when it comes to her final song, "Oh My Beloved Daddy." She delivers it with tender sincerity, and without any of the stridency that affected some of her early entries such as "What Is Love" and "I Like It."

The Maori Hi-Five have a wide range of material and energetically fill two spots in the show. They sing, dance, provide their own musical accompaniment, and even chuck in some impressions for good measure. The sextet—five men and a gal—are hard workers and determined to please; they almost strain too much to achieve the effect, but know how to restrain themselve.

Balance of the production has its usual lavish look, with an attractive line of girls (some semi-nude) to decorate the production numbers, and with a resident team ably headed by Peter Dixon and Vicky Grey to add the song and dance. There's also Christiane doing her familiar sea nymph bit in a pool.

As a twice-nightly attraction, there is no reason why this should not hold up for a lengthy run, though on opening night Tuesday (2) the show was considerably overlong, running more than 75 minutes, and drastically in need of pruning. The two firstclass resident bands provide the music. Myro.

Riviera, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, Oct. 5.

Dinah Shore, Davis & Reese, Alan Conroy, Earl Barton Dancers (12); Jack Cathcart Orch (21); presented by Ben Goffstein; choreography, Earl Barton; stage direction, Milt Bronson; special material, Ticker Freeman and Earl Brown; lighting, Hugo Granata; $4 minimum.

Dinah Shore is back again, sans dancing boys, and was most gracious to her first night audience, despite the fact it was heavily populated with Dixie-accented hecklers wearing American Legion caps. Miss Shore, in handling the situation in stride like a real pro, sets a good example for other Vegas performers who possibly will be receiving similiar treatment during the coming week when the national convention takes over the town.)

The star's vocal artistry seems better than ever, its distinctive quality being firmed to a honey-like consistency. While singing "Have I Stayed Too Long At The Fair?" she accentuated her charm when she gracefully disposed of a different type of interference by laughing along with her audience when a moth fluttered around the mike. ("An animal is loose in here!")

Ticker Freeman at the 88 guides Miss Shore as she offers such numbers as "Wrap Your Troubles In Dreams," "Any Place I Hang My Hat," "Hello Young Lovers," "What Kind of Fool Am I?" and a medley of blues and spiritual songs. Distaffers especially dig her "What Have You Done All Day?" bit which is dedicated to housewives. The Jack Cathcart orch (21) does a splendid job of backing, and Hugo Granata's lighting is outstanding.

Pepper Davis and Tony Reese, longtime faves with Vegas connoisseurs of comedy, are the yock stars of the bill, delivering with their usual solidarity. Handsome singer Reese and lovable buffoon Davis cap the turn with an amusingly wild drum duet.

Holdover Earl Barton production, a musicale about a space trip, features the footwork of Alan Conroy and the dozen line girls.

Opening Oct. 25: Diana Dors, Damita Jo, The Vagabonds, and Morty Storm, all on same bill. Duke.

Flame Room, Mpls.

Minneapolis, Oct. 5.

Kitty Kallen, Jack French, Stewart Scott Orch (7); $2-$2.50 cover.

When Kitty Kallen last played this Hotel Radisson supper club 20 months ago, the room was packed. Current preem attracted only a slim turnout, a sign of the bad times which have befallen Minneapolis nitery trade. With advance reservations for weekend and next week shows rated heavy, perhaps there's an indication of a biz upturn although even such a local fave as Hildegarde drew just so-so crowds the preceding 10 days.

Opening show was disappointing in that it was virtually a carbon of Miss Kallen's routine her last time out here. Old faves and w.k. ballads predominate in her repertoire and most of these were numbers she offered before. Apparently she has some new material but decided not to test it on the sparse audience.

On credit side, while Miss Kallen's routine remains largely the same, much of it is her own specialty material. Latter is in good fun and taste and is presented with such vivacity that it wears well and goes over big.

Niftily gowned thrush is loaded with personality, and establishes winning rapport with viewers by luring them into the proceedings. She also does several encores, warbling customers' requests.

Slick preem performance went off without a snag. Part of credit for the smooth entry belongs to pianist-conductor Jack French who accompanied Miss Kallen here last year. Stewart Scott band gives the vocalist solid backing and also plays for dancing.

Miss Kallen is in through Oct. 13. Enzo Stuarti follows. Rees.

The Most, N. Y.

Chuck Wayne Trio, Pearl Gordon; $3 minimum.

Willie Shore, absent for sometime from Manhattan nitery operations, is re-doing the scene with a warm and charming eastside spot in which his skill as a jazz entrepreneur is likely to make itself increasingly evident. Shore is best remembered for the Arpeggio and the Composer which were strong breeding grounds on the jazz firmament. In his new environment, he is attempting to draw the hipniks as well as others.

The major appeal here is with the Chuck Wayne Trio with Wayne fronting from the amplified guitar. He originally was to have worked with an electric banjo, but apparently the instrument wasn't available. Wayne is an expressive musician. He is not taking trips far out of this world, but gives the tunes an extremely pleasant and believable ride.

The development of his themes are easy and logical and there are reversions to the motif at reasonable intervals so the customer knows what's going on at all times. He makes a pleasant impresh with the drums and bass assistants.

Wayne has also hopped on the bossa nova bandwagon, and comes through with some bouncy samba-like rhythms that are infectious. He has been around the nitery circuits, principally as accompanist for Tony Bennett. It looks like he'll make good on his own.

Other entertainer on the bill is the holdover Pearl Gordon, a likeable deepthroated Negro lass. From her piano perch she pours out a pleasant tune assortment that rates attention. Jose.

Drake Hotel, Chi

Chicago, Oct. 3.

Carmel Quinn, Jimmy Blade Orch; $3 cover weekends, $2.50 weeknights.

The snorky Camellia House, a familiar setting for Gallic chanteuses, provides an equally pleasant environment for the Gaelic chirping of Carmel Quinn. Miss Quinn, who opened it five days late because of a cold, seemed little worse for the bug and carried off her opening night show with vivacity.

The perky Irish redhead is a nifty purveyor of Hibernian tunes and also handles a whimsical German sailor song and a bouncy Scottish medley with charm, in addition to a pleasant set of American pop tunes.

However, it's her Irish numbers that the aud clamors for and she gives them full measure with "Mick McGilligan's Ball," "Galway Bay" and "MacNamara's Band." To the crowd's delight, she also did "Mother Machree" in honor of the 90-year-old mother of a prominent Irish politician in the house. Her patter is delightfully ingenuous, and her closing singalong medley received full participation fro mthe patrons.

Jimmy Blade's topnotch house orch backs Miss Quinn in a sound manner with the help of thrush's pianist-musical director Joe Merman.

Myron Cohen opens Oct. 18. Mor.

Sniffen Court Inn, N. Y.

Choo Choo Collins, Al Foster Trio; $2 minimum.

Sniffen Court Inn is a picturesque bar in the Murray Hill end of Third Avenue that seems to be jumping, partially because of its entertainment policy. It's been in this sector for sometime, deriving its name from the adjacent mews, one of the quainter old world enclaves in New York.

The current headliner is Choo Choo Collins, a returnee here. A lively blond singer, she works zealously at a set of well-arranged tunes of both of the pop and special material variety. She is a stacked looker with an attractive songbag. She works knowingly and shows a lot of attributes that should make her a staple on the nitery rounds.

Miss Collins' forte seems to be intimeries at this point, although apparently volume is not the reason. On night caught, she confined herself to too narrow a vocal range which seemed to inhibit the infusion of color into her repertoire. With greater flexibility and perhaps a higher placement of her voice, her strides will be even more marked.

Accompanying her is the Al Foster Trio, with Foster doing a good turn at the piano and singing. He sometimes takes off to work around the room, wandering minstrel style, sans mike. He purveys a good brand of entertainment during his turn. Jose.

Palmer House, Chi

Oct. 1, 1962.

Kim Sisters (3), Ben Arden Orch; $3.50 cover weekends, $3 weeknights.

The next four weeks at the Empire Room could well be a month of Saturdays if business on the first few nights of the Kim Sisters' stay is any indication. The three charmingly volatile Korean girls are nightly putting on a show that is as strong on sheer entertainment values as anything seen in this posh room for some time, and aud appreciation is sufficiently enthusiastic to elicit a handful of standing ovationers at the end of the show.

Empire Room (and Hilton Hotel) talent adviser Merriel Abbott obtained the trio in a bidding duel with another client of hers—the Polynesian Village of the Edgewater Beach. The girls played there a year ago, and management was willing to pay up to $6,000 per week for a return engagement. However, the Palmer House went up to $8,000 and it appears that their money has been well spent.

Essence of the Kim Sisters' turn is a non-stop vitality that combines split-second timing with a great deal of natural spontaneity. The threesome is not only eminently lookable, but is also first-rate vocally. In addition, the trio has a definite playing flair with a wide variety of instruments.

Their banjo work on "Bye Bye Blues," sax stylings on "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" and fiddling on "Violin Hoedown" is powerful and exciting. Mia's drum solo in their "Saints" final number makes for a brilliant and mittgetting closer.

The girls' hourlong turn is superbly staged and is as visually stimulating as it is aurally. Empire Room maestro Ben Arden has put together a charming oriental medley overture for the show, and their regular arrangements are topflight. Credit for a major assist in maintaining the momentum in the girls' turn goes to their regular drummer Lenny Esposito and pianist Bob Arsiba.

Peter Lind Hayes & Mary Healy open Oct. 30 for three weeks. Mor.

Hotel Astor, N. Y.

Debbie Kelley, Young-Gannon Duo, Jo-Anne Baldwin, Dick Harding Orch. (4); $1.75 cover Mon.-Thurs., $2.25 Fri. & Sat.

The Hotel Astor's Emerald Room opened last Thursday (4) under the worst of circumstances. The room was prepared for a turnout of about 75 patrons and got 200 instead. The five waiters on hand couldn't handle the situation adequately or nearly so.

The result from a catering standpoint was a fiasco, with unhappy patrons aplenty. The room has been opening for several years now and should be better equipped by this time to handle an opening rush. There was some talk of trouble with the waiters' union but this wasn't clarified.

The Emerald Room has a new policy this year. It opens at 6 p.m. for cocktails, dinner and dancing, with no entertainment tax or cover charge until 8:30. Beginning at that time, there's continuous music for dancing, late dining and boozing. Showtime is at 9:30 and 12 midnight and from 8:30 on there's a $1.75 cover Mondays through Thursdays, $2.25 on Fridays and Saturdays.

The Young-Gannon Duo is one of the continuous entertainment units. A talented team, they offer a variety of pleasant sounds on piano, bass and trombone and do some vocalizing as well. Their work provides pleasant background listening and also turns out some effective terp tempos.

Jo-Anne Baldwin alternates with the Dick Harding Orch. between shows. She an attractive redhead who scores with right-sounding cocktail pianistics and a nice occasional vocal number. Harding's four-piece orch offers solid dance rhythms in fine style and backs headliner Debbie Kelley (New Acts) effectively, if sometimes too loudly.

From the entertainment standpoint, the Emerald Room is a pleasant oasis from the hubub of Times Square. Service will doubtless be improved, thus making it an easy meeting and lounging spot. Kali.

Desert Inn, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, Oct. 2.

Jimmy Durante, Peter Lawford, Eddie Jackson, Sonny King, George Finley, Jack Roth, Bill Carey, Donn Arden Dancers (12), Carlton Hayes Orch (12); presented by Wilbur Clark; choreography, Donn Arden; musical arrangements and special lyrics by Jim Harbert; Durante's act written by Jackie Barnett, staged by Aida Broadbent; $4 minimum.

Jimmy Durante has taken some of the best bits from his past successes here, assembled them into some wonderful musical mayhem, added the topical Peter Lawford, and he comes up with another winner.

Next to the star himself, Sonny King gets the bulk of the turn's time, most of it in duets with the boss. Highlight: a rousing "Love Ya Love Ya Love Ya I Do." Eddie Jackson is right at home with his "Bill Bailey" strut, and keeps the nostalgia at a generous level.

Durante again does his famed "A Piano Is A Delicate Thing" while literally tearing the instrument apart, scores with a solo "My One Room Home," which is both tender and amusing.

Lawford joins the star in a beatnik Twister routine, and when told by Durante that "as a movie producer ya gotta learn French because most of the pitchers are made in France," he does a clever routine with six chorines as his language instructors.

The rotund Jennie Jackson joins the group in a wild Twisting session at the franctic finale. Jackie Barnett is credited with penning the pandemonium.

Bill Carey is a handsome baritone with an exceptionally impressive voice who is the nucleus, as the football hero, of a new Donn Arden nifty dance splash called "College Days," decorated by a dozen comely "coeds." The Carlton Hayes orch (12) does a smooth job of backing the bash.

Next headliner: Eddie Fisher, Oct. 30. Duke.

Viennese Lantern, N.Y.

Fernanda Montel, Lynn Starling, Ernest Schoen Orch; $1.50 cover.

Impresario Max Loew used to have what was virtually a partnership arrangement with the Maisonette of the St. Regis Hotel. The chores were simply divided, he used to showcase the talent, some of which found their way to the posh hospice. Now that the St. Regis has gone to the bandstand completely, Loew's Viennese Lantern has a complete call on the alumni of that uptown intimerie.

Statuesque Fernanda Montel, at the St. Regis for a long time, seemingly has found a new home at the Lantern. There are some advantages to her showcasing here inasmuch as the greater intimacy in this spot displays a lot of facets difficult to expose in the former environment.

The Gallic import, in a form-clinging gown, has come in with one of her top acts. Her work is mainly en Francaise, many of the bits sufficiently familiar to the audience so that she can bring out the sexy nuances of these numbers without the normal distractions of concentrating on words. Her manner is smooth and easy and her repertoire is amply diversified to retain interest. Her closing medley, a group of French familiars, gives this blond a strong getaway.

Miss Montel's backing by the orchestra headed by Ernest Schoen abets her moods. Other turn on this roster is Lynn Starling, who is given a dossier under New Acts. Jose.

Latin Casino, N. J.

Cherry Hill, N.J., Oct. 2.

Keely Smith, Marty Allen & Steve Rossi, Jack Curtis, Moro-Landis Dancers (12); Martyn King's Orch. (18); $3-$6 minimum.

If there were ever any doubts about Keely Smith's solo status, the singer dispels them in her current stand at the Latin Casino. When she appeared with her ex-husband Louis Prima at this Jersey cafe in May, 1961, the team set the then-high record gross for an act. The deadpan derision with which she greeted the offerings of Prima, Sam Butera & the Witnesses did much to heighten the amusement.

Seeing Miss Smith left to her own devices, and hearing her in speech as well as song, is like discovering a new personality. She has a wholly genuine style of expression and makes only casual references to her single status: "Let's face it, a good trumpet player is not easy to find." She has a secure and winning stage presence, and just a trace of the old habits as an exploratory finger scratches her nose or midriff.

Miss Smith also has the showwise training of the true band chick. Something went wrong with the Vega (wireless) mikes handled by the Smith Bros., her male quartet, and they started bringing in South Jersey police calls. She tells the audience, "Nothing upsets me any more after what I've been through," and then works without amplification. Almost a score of numbers are in the star's songalog. Most effective are "Don't Take Your Love from Me," and the haunting "God Bless the Child," sung unaccompanied. She doubles with the boys in the parody, "Nothing Like a Man," and reaches solo heights with here paraphrase of "What Kind of Fool Am I?"

Marty Allen & Steve Rossi, in the warmup spot, have been perennial visitors and favorites at the club for the last eight years. Their "Hello Dere!" routine helps them keep the format the same while continually updating their material. Chief asset of the duo is their infectious good humor and their ability to catch the audience up in it.

The Moro-Landis Dancers disport in the opening ensemble and return for a Twist routine in which they sport sweatshirts and Keely Smith hairdos for a solid finale.

Johnny Mathis opens Oct. 11. Gagh.

Crescendo, L.A.

Los Angeles, Oct. 2.

Frances Faye, Larry Storch, Eddie Grady Orch; $2.50 cover plus two-drink minimum.

Frenetic, frantic, fantastic Frances Faye returns to head Gene Norman's new bill and, judging from the packed and enthusiastic audience at Wednesday's (26) opener, it should be a happy reunion both for the performer and management. Miss Faye remains one of the most popular nitery attractions to play the strip boite. She is preceded by comic Larry Storch and both work with the Eddie Grady orchestra.

Aside from her usual bombastic delivery and first-rate musicianship on regulars, this time around Miss Faye doesn't seem to work as hard. It's a long set, filled with the familiar favorites—"Man I Love" (opening night personalized for ringsiders Debbie Reynolds and Harry Karl) "Just in Time," "Night and Day" and the closing "Willy or Name Song."

Storch doesn't come off as well. His delivery is polished and professional, his act set and secure, but his material is just too old. Comic does best on variety of well-developed dialects and a lengthy takeoff on cowboys. "Over the Rainbow" and "Night in Day," done in "cowboy style," are clever. He uses his voice to advantage in good impressions of President Kennedy, Frank Morgan and Joe E. Lewis.

Jonah Jones Quartet and Oscar Brown Jr. follow on Oct. 15. Dale.

Summit, L. A.

Los Angeles, Oct. 3.

Cal Tjader Quintet, Chuck Hix band; $1 admission plus two-drink minimum.

Bob Gefaell and George Redman blend jazz, Afro-Cuban and Twist in current show, an apparently popular combination if the good business on a usually slow (Tuesday) nitery night can be a barometer. Cal Tjader Quintet provides first two styles, as well as a touch of Latin Twist, while Chuck Hix group (four) hits hard with the Twist. Latter is on alone on Monday nights, biggest evening for the club according to the owners.

Tjader, featuring his own vibes as well as bass, piano, drums and bongo, has nice, easy sound in top jazz form. "Someday" hit nicely in show caught, while vocal and instrumental "Summertime" is typical of group's individuality. Jack Finch is well featured on bongo of "Carnival" theme from "Black Orpheus."

His group is actually a jazz combo with a Twist beat and plays essentially for dancing. "Misty," in straight jazz arrangement, is good. Others are loud, wild rhythms and well done musically. Dale.

Talk of Town, London

London, Oct. 2.

Shirley Bassey, with Raymond Long; Robert Nesbitt's "Fantastico"; choreography, Billy Petch; decor, Tod Kingman; costumes, R. St. John Roper; orchestrations, Burt Rhodes. With Trotter Bros. (2), Michael Desmond, Katia, Eileen Gourlay; line (29); Sydney Simone and Frank Deniz Orchs; $7.50 minimum.

Shirley Bassey is now a star of international dimensions. The ropes were out for her opening last Monday (1) at the Talk of the Town, and there is little doubt that there will be SRO biz during her eight-weeks' stint. She is a great fave at any time, but London will be jammed in the coming weeks with a number of major exhibitions, not the least of which is the annual Motor Show.

Earlier in the year, Eartha Kitt played a three-months' engagement at the same spot, and while there is no justification in making comparisons, it is fair to observe that Miss Bassey stacks up reasonably in her own right as an entertainer. In a few years she has grown considerably in stature, her pipes are in excellent shape, and she has learned the elementary, but vital, lessons of showmanship.

Miss Bassey appears in a stunning gown, and goes straight into her routine without any of the more conventional gab. In fact, she does not attempt to talk to the audience until she has delivered several numbers in socko style, and even then confesses that she's not so hot on ad libbing, which adds an endearing quality to what she has to say.

Her vocalizing is consistently standout, though she is at her best in the powerful, dramatic ballads which dominate her 45-minute songalog. These are her forte, and clearly she recognizes this, but that's not to say she doesn't know her way around with a lighter type of number.

She opens powerfully with "Everything's Coming Up Roses," and in the same bracket makes a sincere impresh with such items as "Love for Sale," "Goodbye Lover," "What Kind of Fool Am I" and "What Now My Love." As contrasts, her routine includes such tunes as "Burning My Candle," "Kiss Me, Honey Honey" and "The Birth of the Blues."

Miss Bassey provides the late-nightshow, but a standard with Talk of the Town regulars is Robert Nesbitt's earlier and lavish production. In the current program there is a reprise of his "Fantastico," and expensively mounted spectacle. It's replete with South American routines, a resume of dance steps from the 1912 era up to the present, and a deft puppetry act by the Trotter Bros. A colorful, lively layout, it has particular appeal for out of towners.

For her stint, Miss Bassey brought in her own musical director, Raymond Long, to baton the resident Sydney Simone combo, and that is a safe insurance of precision backing. Simone himself is on the dais for the "Fantastico" presentation, and here, too, the backgrounding is faultless. For the extended dance sessions Simone's crew shares the stage with the Frank Deniz combo, which takes good care of the rhythm music. Myro.

Birdland, N.Y.

Mongo Santamaria Septet, Olatunji & His Drums of Passion; $3 minimum.

The Afro-Latin beat is very much on display at Birdland, N.Y., where the Mongo Santamaria Septet and Olatunji & His Drums of Passion are alternating sets.

The Santamaria Septet is paced by the leader's driving work on bongos and conga drums. He turns out mucho excitement with his fast hands and pulsating rhythmic patterns which concentrate on mambo and bossa nova patterns. His group of two saxes, a trumpet, piano and timpani also wails out some fine harmony and solo work behind him to create a fine and dynamic Afro-Latin sound. Santamaria's nice tonal work and the driving riffs of his group combine for a solid set.

Olatunji has been dishing up his African rhythms in the New York area for some time and has fallen into the rut of doing almost the same numbers over and over again. He's especially keen on reprising album selections. His set could use a little freshening, though there is still interest in some of the pieces he constantly repeats.

The group, however, remains an exciting unit. Including the leader, there are four drummers (one on traps), a bass and sax-flute-oboe man. Latter is Jose Taylor who provides fine melodic accompaniment to the group's thunderous sound. Olatunji throws in some native chanting and handles a variety of drums, including his now-famous "talking drum."

Group's sound is throbbing and charged, and their presentation (including native dress) is entertaining. A less blase attitude on the part of the leader would help the unit considerably. Kali.

Shamrock, Houston

Houston, Oct. 4.

Dorothy Shay, The Valenos (2), Paul Neighbors Orch (11); no cover or minimum.

Dorothy Shay has played at the Shamrock Hilton's International Club more times than she can remember (eight or nine) and there's a good crowd on hand to greet her again. This time around she has dropped the kinfolk from her act, thereby losing some of the oldtime vaude flavor—which doesn't hurt her nitery act.

Her personality is as winning as ever, and she's still the Park Avenue hillbilly, despite good variety of tunes. In a tight sequined gown she's an eye-popper, and her intro, "Swinging Around The Mountain," is clever.

She has the usual mountain melodies, then shows surprising belting ability, to those with short memories, in "Summertime." She's a woman on the prowl in "Stout Hearted Men," and gets the Twist into act with "Hog Happy Hop." She has to return for unintended encore to do her w.k. "Efficiency."

The Valenos, a man and wfe dance team from Canada, also have unusual intro, with Bill bringing wife on stage in duffle bag. That and wife Beatrice's limberness are big plusses to otherwise routine dance act.

Show plays two frames, with Paul Neighbors Orch bowing out after this run until New Year's Eve. The PN orch is fixture here. Lilo and Jack Durant, with K. Bert Sloan-Dick Krueger Orch, will be on bandstand next. Skip.

The Losers, L.A.

Los Angeles, Oct. 4.

Tony Martinez combo, featuring Tito Riviera; Phyllis Williams; two-drink minimum.

This week's acts are playing the Losers for first time, but nevertheless are familiar faces to the L. A. nitery scene. The heavily-percussive effect of the Tony Martinez group (Tony's vibes, Tito Riviera's bongos, Maury Russell's drums, Marvin Shore's bass and Jerry Harmon's piano) create dance-urging effect that would be better heard in less confined space.

Selections offered by the Martinez combo are heavily flavored with Latin tempi, and make up in potency what they may lack in polish. "Pepino," a slower-paced novelty written by Martinez as a salute to the character he plays daytimes in the "Real McCoys" teleseries, is strictly a plug. His "Mandarin Mambo" gives him better chance to demonstrate his vibes talentry.

The group really flies in a lengthy "Birth of the Blues" that has practically nothing to do with the blues but allows the versatility of the instrumentalists and Martinez' vocal talent to work through most of the known Latin rhythms, winding with a takeoff on Belafonte, complete with "Matilda" and unbuttoned shirt. Riviera has impressive solo with "Lover."

Phyllis Williams, a titian-tressed canary working with combo and spot for first time, had a slight headcold for which she kept apologizing but which didn't interefere with her vocal workout. She combines an aptitude for upbeat tunes ("Lullaby of Birdland" and "Just In Time") with an even better bluesy beat. Her best offering, with proper appreciation for the lyrics, is a room-quieting "Spring Is Here." To wind the show, she duets effectively with Martinez on a fast-paced medley.

Spot, which features "loser of the week" is currently saluting Floyd Patterson. Robe.

Sands, Las Vegas

Las Vegas, Oct. 3.

Steve Lawrence, Eydie Gorme, Dunhills (3), Harry Nofal, Antonio Morelli Orch (23), Copa Girls (12); produced by Jack Entratter; choreography, Rennie Stuart; stage direction, Harold Dobrow; $4 minimum.

Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme have joined Jack Entratter's stable of stars, getting off on the right note in a happy song session. The husband-wife team complement each other in duets, and click solidly as singles.

Together they offer such as "Lot Of Livin' To Do." "Start of Something Big," "Make Someone Happy," "True Love," "Anything Goes," plus a medley of standards. Miss Gorme shows why she's one of the best chirps in the biz as she socks across "Granada," "Rockabye," and "Swanee."

Lawrence, also a major leaguer in the vocal department, shows pleasant pipery on such numbers as "Old Cotton Fields," "Second Time Around," "Time After Time," and "Kansas City." Joe Guercio does an admirable job of guilding the Antonio Morelli orch (23) for the party. Lawrence may get squawks from fans because of his top-heavy supply of swish humor, but he does get a lot of yocks.

The dancing Dunhills (3) balance the bill, again breezing through what is probably the best male fancy footwork available to bookers of top level entertainment. The hoofers glide with ease from skillful acrobatic feats to delightful song and dance routines.

Holdover Renne Stuart production number, featuring song tosser Harry Nofal and the dozen Copa lovelies is the curtain raiser.

Vic Damone and Jan Murray open Oct. 31. Duke.

Cave, Vancouver

Vancouver, Oct. 5.

Margarita Sierra, with Tony Costa, Ray Hastings, Chris Gage Orch (7); $2 admission.

Margarita Sierra, Spanish-born singing star of tv's "Surfside 6" (she's "Cha Cha O'Brien" in the series), makes a lively and entertaining Vancouver debut as well as providing a nice change of pace for the Ken Stauffer and Bob Mitten Hornby St. haunt. She comes in fresh from an Australian tour.

The diminutive warbler demonstrates in a dynamic 45-minute stint that big things do indeed come in small packages. Opening with "Breezing Along With The Breeze," Miss Sierra keeps on winging with "Manana," "I Like The Likes Of You" and a Spanish love ballad, "I Love You."

She intersperses crowd pleasing banter and patter before giving out with a swingy "Trolley Song," a tender "Non Dimenticar" and a fiery "Love Is Where You Find It." To round out this segment, Miss Sierra punches out a sexy special material number, "No Hat, No Cha Cha Cha," that prompts auditors to beg for more in this vein, and she obliges.

Miss Sierra has a strong, flexible voice that can be tender as well as bold while, the Spanish-accented style and showmanship she proejcts is a big asset in selling her spirited vocal talents. She works easily, is highly personable, and comes nicely groomed for this outing.

Arranger-conductor Tony Costa provides fine piano backing, and the Chris Gage orch does a top-notch job under his lead plus playing danceable intermission music.

Bright young standup comic Ray Hastings does a fine warmup job and gets good impact with a routine that is always basically humorous. Like Miss Sierra, he has had considerable recent Australian and English exposure. His familiarity with the Anglo scene sets him up well for the Canadian stand. His material is topical, timely and scores well.

He works clean and makes good use of his expertese with dialect to sharpen the satire and characterizations of his sketches. Hastings gets off to a nice start with a one-liner, "I just read our prices," and builds from here with humorous material fresh to these environs. He gets and merits, hearty audience approval for his 25-minute skein.

Bill is in for two weeks, with Mamie Van Doren booked for an Oct. 22 opening, and Ford & Hines in the offing. Shaw.

Shows on Broadway

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off

David Merrick, in association with Bernard Delfont, presentation of musical comedy in two acts (18 numbers), with book, music and lyrics by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley. Staged by Newley; setting and lighting, Sean Kenny; musical supervision, Ian Fraser; musical director, Milton Rosenstock; orchestrations, Ian Fraser, with David Lindup, Burt Rhodes, Gordon Langford; John Broome's choreography restaged by Virginia Mason. Stars Anthony Newley; features Anna Quayle, Jennifer Baker, Susan Baker. Opened Oct. 3, '62, at the Shubert Theatre, N.Y.; $8.50 top.

Cast: Anthony Newley, Anna Quayle, Jennifer Baker, Susan Baker, Rawley Bates, Bonnie Brody, Dina Corto, Jo-Anne Leeds, Karen Lynn Reed, Sylvia Tysick, Stephanie Winters, Mark Hunter, Paul Rufo.

Musical numbers: "The A B C Song," "I Want to Be Rich," "Typically English," "A Special Announcement," "Lumbered," "Welcome to Sludgepool," "Gonna Build a Mountain," "Glorious Russians," "Meilinki Meilchick," "Family Fugue," "Typische Deutsche," "Nag Nag," "All American," "Once in a Lifetime," "Mumbo Jumbo," "Welcome to Sunvale," "Someone Nice Like You," "What Kind of Fool Am I?"

Life is futile and people are stupid and nothing's worth the bother, but let's be witty in our disillusionment. That's about the idea of "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," a very British show presented by David Merrick and London producer Bernard Delfont last Wednesday night (3) at the Shubert Theatre.

A musical comedy with something of the flavor of a revue, "Stop the World" arrives with the impetus of success in the West End (it's in its 16th month there, with replacements for the four principals brought to Broadway) and a smash tryout engagement in Philadelphia. It should be a moderate money-maker here.

Being a shrewd operator, Merrick splurged with a saturation radio spot campaign in the New York area for a couple of weeks prior to the Broadway preem, plugging the show as a London hit, ballyhooing the rave reviews from Philly and urging the public to hurry and buy tickets before the supply was gone. "Stop the World" also benefitted by disk jockey use of a couple of the musical numbers, notably "What Kind of Fool Am I?"

Probably the provocative title helped, as did the fact that the radio blurbs were worded so as to give the impression of news bulletins by the station or the individual deejay. In any case, there was extraordinary advance interest in the show, with window sale running about $19,000 a day, and a number of late theatre party bookings, including a few shifted from the recent tryout folds of "La Belle" and "Bandelol."

Although even the trade tended to be persuaded that "Stop the World" was virtually a shoo-in, a few skeptics suggested that perhaps all the expensive publicity pressure might mean simply that Merrick distrusted the Philly critical enthusiasm, figured that the show might get so-so New York reviews, or even be clobbered, and was gambling on discounting a negative reaction with a large advance sale.

He apparently succeeded, and while the notices in the morning papers were generally unfavorable, the producer can perhaps exploit the glowing comments of the critics for the evening sheets. That shouldn't be too difficult, for the party bookings and advance sale give "Stop the World" a running start, and it's an attractive venture economically, being a relatively inexpensive production (almost all of the original U.S. cost was recouped in Philly), and involves a small operating nut.

As entertainment, "Stop the World" is disappointing. It's not an acutely bad musical—just not particularly good. It's novel in style, but slight in content and a good deal less than brilliant in performance. It may be a conversation piece among the cosmopolites who relish the unconventional and want to be in one the very latest, but to the general public and the broker-trade business men and sober suburbanites, it's likely to be insubstantial and esoteric.

The show is a virtual one-man British beatnik version of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," in a somewhat disconcerting undergraduate style. It's about a pixie edition of the Common Man-kind of fellow, named Littlechap. He plays the feminine field, and when one of his conquests becomes pregnant, has to marry her, only to learn that she's the boss's daughter.

The upsqueak hero's progress is the latter relentlessly onward and upward, to position and wealth and prestige as a business man, then politician and ultimately elder statesman. Meanwhile, he has a succession of mistresses of assorted nationalities. Always, of course, Littlechap is a pompous fraud.

The story gives co-author, director and star Anthony Newly opportunities for satirical comment about the follies and pretensions of marriage, business, politics, international affairs and other familiar targets. The mockery rarely has a cutting edge, however, and "Stop the World" never has lethal impact. It runs down in the second half and ends in lingering tedium.

Part of the decreasing quality of the entertainment is due to the lack of major-star talent and personality. Newley is an able and agreeable performer, but hasn't the powerhouse effect to hold the stage almost continuously, frequently alone, for over two hours. An added difficulty is that his English accent, particularly because of the rapidity of his speech, is occasionally incomprehensible. As a final limitation, he's anything but a pantomimic rival to Marcel Marceau, a comparison he invites.

Anna Quayle, top featured as the seductee, wife and successively Russian, German and American mistresses, is a large comedienne with a shock of mahogany-colored hair and a gift for dialects (her tiny-brain American nitery chorine has barely a trace of English accent). Even so, the tricky lyrics of a couple of her patter songs are somewhat unintelligible.

Also imported from London, though they haven't anything very important or even special to do, are the blonde twins, Jennifer and Susan Baker, playing two (or perhaps more) of the Littlechap daughters. The rest of the company of 13 includes two moppet boys and seven pert, extremely young girls as a sort of sprightly and fetching Greek chorus.

The songs in "Stop the World" are mostly of the topical revue type, including several passable patter numbers and one interesting-sounding ballad, the already plugged "What Kind of Fool Am I?" It's an unfortunate commentary on the performance that one of the comedy songs, "Typically English," with Russian, German and American variations, is better appreciated when the lyrics have been read.

The show has considerable choreographed movement, but no real dancing. There is a single setting representing the inside of a circus tent (life is just a circus, get the point?), well designed by Sean Kenny. But the costumes are merely clown getups and leotards, with no changes. In the case of Miss Quayle, in particular, that's a drawback, as she's stuck in a dull gray outfit that does nothing for her or the audience.

Although it's a fairly good financial prospect for Broadway, "Stop the World" is questionable for the road; dubious for the screen and negligible for stock. Hobe.

Come on Strong

Hillard Elkins & Al Goldin presentation of comedy in three acts, by Garson Kanin. Staged by the author; settings, Oliver Smith; Miss Baker's wardrobe, Oleg Cassini; other costumes, Michael Travis; lighting, John Harvey; production supervision, David M. Pardoll. Stars Carroll Baker, Van Johnson. Opened Oct. 4, '62, at the Morosco Theatre, N.Y.; $8.90 top weeknights, $7.50 Friday and Saturday nights.

Virginia Karzer	Carroll Baker
Herbert H Lundquist	Van Johnson
Arthur Murchison	Rufus Smith
Calvin C. Lundquist	Chad Block
Lucy McPherson	Patti Karr
Drina Lang	Nancy Van Rijn
Maggie Chase	Donna Sanders
Jim Sibley	Bill Weston
Rex Ewing	Warren Lyons
Mara Ricci	Marcia Levant
Seymour Riker	Peter Levin
Marty Rudd	Richard Roat
Sam Dill	Shanton Granger
Mr Magnakrin	Leo Bloom
Mike Amidon	Steve Roland
Sue Stewart	True Ellison
Ted Ranger	John Law
Henry	Leo Bloom
Antonio	Bill Weston
Benny	Peter Levin
Blake Tremaine	Otto Hulett
Columnist	Shanton Granger
Miss Ort	Donna Sanders
Indian Delegate	Leo Bloom
His Aide	Chad Block
Press Representative	Patti Karr
Photographer	Nancy Van Rija
Mr Fellowes	Richard Roat
Mr Rand	Warren Lyons
Miss Richter	Marcia Levant

It's like being back in the 1940's to see "Come On Strong," which opened last Thursday night (4) at the Morosco Theatre. This new tough-tender romantic comedy by Garson Kanin is an expert, hollow play about empty people. You don't care about the actress and the photographer and don't even believe them.

Carroll Baker and Van Johnson are costarred, in that order, in this tasteless story about a youth and girl who love and lose each other and take three acts to get back together again. Probably it's not exclusively about sex—it only seems so. Anyway, it's a shallow yarn about self-seekers in the picture business, written and directed by someone who knows the subject.

The author of "Born Yesterday" has a knack with wise-cracky, sexy, romantic dialog, and he has staged the play with the adroitness of an old pro. But there's a lot of incident for a small story and a glut of talk by an assortment of inconsequential characters. The endless succession of briefly puffed cigarets, partly swallowed drinks, offstage marriages and casual liaisons, not to mention the series of gaudy settings, the carefully scanty costumes and the collection of success-obsessed characters makes a tedious space between opening and closing curtains.

Miss Baker is good looking and personable as the girl who would like to combine the physical convenience of marriage and the ego-satisfaction of a career, but settles for the latter until she gets her old sweetheart back into the hay at the finale. But you don't always believe her and aren't vitally concerned about what happens to her.

Johnson is agreeable as the obtuse photographer who takes three acts to decide that the girl means more to him than, say, a puff on a cigaret. Perhaps he doesn't really like the character, however, or doesn't accept its reality, for he doesn't seem to mean what he's saying or even be the person he portrays.

There are passable supporting performances by Rufus Smith as the girl's wealthy, elderly admirer, Steve Roland as a disarmingly venal Hollywood producer, True Ellison as a bit actress on the make, and Otto Hulett as a warhorse studio pressagent who does not suffer willful stars gladly.

Oliver Smith has designed the elaborate settings, Oleg Cassini has dreamed up Miss Baker's becomingly revealing gowns and Michael Travis has provided appropriate costumes for the other players.

The Hillard Elkins and Al Goldin production is a questionable candidate for Broadway, but probably has the basis for a film, no doubt with Liz Taylor and Frank Sinatra as stars. There's not much in the play for stock, if only because of its numerous sets and large cast. Hobe.

JOSEPH WOOD KRUTCH'S CHARMING AUTOBIOG

"More Lives Than One" by Joseph Wood Krutch (Sloane; $5) is the charmingly-written autobiography of the former drama critic of The Nation, who is also a naturalist, lecturer, explorer and philosopher. Born in Tennessee in 1893, Krutch attended Columbia U, married the girl he fell in love with at first sight, and, through friendship with Mark Van Doren and others, entered the field of essay writing and criticism. Book contains letters exchanged between the author and Eugene O'Neill, primarily concerned with "Strange Interlude."

Krutch also wrote for Mencken and Nathan's Smart Set, and his pages are packed with reflections on leading dramatists of the '20s and '30s, many of his opinions gaining lustre with the passage of time. Because of the writer's particular grace with English, and for the verisimilitude of his reasoning, this is a joyous and satisfying work. Rodo.

OFF-BROADWAY SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Anything Goes, Orpheum (5-13-62).
B. Fensternaker, Sher. Sq. (9-17-62).
Blacks, St. Marks (5-4-61).
Brecht on Brecht, de Lys (1-3-62).
Digging Apples, Wash. Sq. (9-27-62).
Fantasticks, Sullivan St. (5-3-60).
Hanley plays, Cherry Lane (10-1-62).
Hostage, One Sheridan Sq. (12-12-61).
Man Is Man, Living Theatre (9-18-62).
Man's a Man, Masque (9-19-62).
O Say, Provincetown (10-8-62).
Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Phoenix (2-26-62).
Portrait-Monks, Martinique (5-28-62).
Premise, Premise (11-22-60).
Sweet Miani, Players (9-25-62).
Wilder Plays, Circle in Sq (1-11-62).

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Angels of Anadarko, York (10-10-62).
Whisper God's Ear, Cricket (10-11-62).
Love of Two Hours, Actors (10-26-62).
Anvil, Maidman (10-30-62).
P.S. 193, Fourth Street (10-30-62).
Intimate Relations, Merm'd (11-1-62).
Living Room, Gramercy Arts (11-7-62).
We're Civilized, Hus (11-8-62).
Cherry Orchard, Theatre 4 (11-14-62).

Shows Out of Town

Little Me

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.

Cy Feuer & Ernest Martin presentation of a musical comedy in two acts, book by Neil Simon, based on a novel by Patrick Dennis, lyrics by Carolyn Leigh, music by Cy Coleman. Staged by Feuer and Bob Fosse; scenery and lighting, Robert Randolph; costumes, Robert Fletcher; orchestrations, Ralph Burns; dance music arrangements, Fred Werner; vocal arrangements, Clay Warnick; musical direction, Charles Sanford; musical numbers and dances staged by Fosse. Stars Sid Caesar; features Virginia Martin, Mort Marshall, Joey Faye, Mitzi McCall, Claiborne Cary, Swen Swenson, Nancy Cushman, Peter Turgeon, Mickey Deems, Adnia Rice and Nancy Andrews. Opened Oct. 8, '62, at the Erlanger Theatre, Philadelphia; $6-$7.50 top.

Butler	John Anania
Patrick Dennis	Peter Turgeon
Miss Poitrine, Today	Nancy Andrews
Momma	Adnia Rice
Belle	Virginia Martin
George Musgrove (as a boy)	John F. Sharpe Jr.
Brucey	James Senn
Ramona	Else Olufsen
Noble Eggleston	Sid Caesar
Mrs. Eggleston	Nancy Cushman
Miss Kepplewhite	Gretchen Cryer
Pinchley Junior	Mickey Deems
Nurse	Margery Brown
Mr. Pinchley	Sid Caesar
Kleeg	Burt Bier
Policeman	David Gold
Photographer	Michael Stuart
Newsboy	Michael Smuin
Bernie Buschbaum	Joey Faye
Bennie Buschbaum	Mort Marshall
Defense Lawyer	Mickey Deems
Master of Ceremonies	Harris Hawkins
Val du Val	Sid Caesar
George Musgrove	Swen Swenson
Polly Potter	Mitzi McCall
Penny Potter	Claiborne Cary
Fred Poitrine	Sid Caesar
Preacher	Ken Ayers
General	Michael Quinn
Courier	Eddie Gasper
Red Cross Nurse	Sandra Stahl
Schnitzler	Sid Caesar
Secretary	Marcia Gilford
Production Assistant	Mickey Deems
Victor	Marc Jordan
Prince Cherney	Sid Caesar
Yulnick	Mickey Deems
Baby	Virginia Martin
Noble Jr.	Sid Caesar

Sid Caesar's star power, coupled with the astute overall production savvy of Cy Feuer and Ernest Martin makes "Little Me" appear to be the new season's likeliest musical entry. Broadway seems sure to spread the welcome mat for the comedian, making his return to legit after an absence of 14 years. His lightning facial changes, and rapid use of accents in seven different parts gives the star a chance to unlimber all the heavy guns in his arsenal of comic resources.

With the help of a witty book, a suitable score and much fast and fanciful dancing, Caesar kept an audience happily locked in the pews for three hours at the premiere. Neil Simon, a fast man with quips, did the adaptation from the Patrick Dennis novel ribbing film star autobiographies. The author glossed over much of the book's gamier material to make the heroine lovelorn and sympathetic as she moves from mattress to mattress in quest of wealth, culture and social position, in that order.

The script is a witty, but not biting job, as it pokes fun at ostentatious wealth and social distinctions. The action begins in the heroine's inordinately costly Southhampton palazzo. There are two belles, played by Nancy Andrews as the elder and Virginia Martin as the curvaceous one on the way up.

The flashback method is handled shrewdly, the buxom beldame recites her story to author Dennis, played by Peter Turgeon, and his ever-present tape-recorder. Each interview takes place in some comically-moneyed situation. The yarn moves from a lowly hovel in Venezuela, O., with the heroine as a teenager left much alone by her hardworking mother, a night nurse whose patients are mainly traveling salesmen.

Her idol is the five-letter high-school hero from the other side of the tracks (Caesar) and she turns him on. But snobbery interferes and the girl determines make it on her own. This lasting, repeatedly frustrated, romance runs through two acts and covers an wide assortment of places, including a front-line hospital in France in World War I, and the bridge of the S.S. Gigantic the night it hits the iceberg.

Caesar plays most of the interim men in the heroine's fatal love life. These include a cantankerous octogenarian banker who is shot in a hotel room, a French vaudevillian lost at sea, a farm boy GI killed by an infected typewriting finger, a von Stroheim-type film director who dies when the prop knife turns out to be real, and a bankrupt and aged princeling poisoned by the well-intentioned lady.

The star makes every portrayal count, and his surprise and grimacings through the various death scenes changes the macabre to merriment. As the heroine's adored hometown hero he has a field day, the perennial paragon with scholarships to both Harvard and Yale (he is studying simultaneously to become a doctor and a lawyer); and an adult career that ranges from governor of both Dakotas to a Bowery bum.

Nancy Andrews is the warmer of the belles and has the surer diction, but Virginia Martin, as the heroine, has the dimples, the dese and dose and the direct style of delivering a lyric.

The creativity of Bob Fosse is evidenced in the wealth and variety of the dancing. The boys and girls kick off in the second scene with an eccentric number called "The Rich Kids' Rag" that drew applause from the audience before they had really gotten into it. Swen Swenson does a stylish stand-out solo in which he steps out, a seduction scene.

The songs seem to be spotted more for continuity values than their hit potential. "Little Me" lets down a trifle in the second act, but so many rewarding things have gone before that nobody minds the faltering close. Gagh.

Nowhere to Go But Up

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.

Kermit Bloomgarden & Herbert Greene presentation of musical comedy in two acts. Books and lyrics by James Lipton; music, Sol Berkowith. Staged by Sidney Lumet; settings, Peter Larkin; costumes, Robert Fletcher; choreography, Ronald Field; lighting, Tharon Musser; arrangements and orchestrations, Robert Ginzler; vocal arrangements and musical direction, Herbert Greene. Stars Tom Bosley, Martin Balsam, Bruce Gordon; features Dorothy Loudon, Phil Leeds, Mary Ann Mobley, Bert Convy, Frank Campanella, Val Avery, H. F. Green, Art Wallace, Jodi Kim Long. Opened Oct. 6, '62, at the Shubert Theatre, Philadelphia; $6-$7.50 top.

Commissioner	H. F. Green
Flaherty	Val Avery
Politician	Art Wallace
Secretary	Sondra Roveta
Izzy Einstein	Tom Bosley
Moe Smith	Martin Balsam
Tough	James Weiss
Bodyguards	Bill Starr, Marty Allen
Lupo	Frank Campanella
Anthony Baiello	Bruce Gordon
Wilma Risque	Dorothy Loudon
Lady With Laundry	Sally Ann Carlson
Tommy Dee	Bert Convy
Jean Morgan	Mary Ann Mobley
Hop Wong	Phil Leeds
Hop Family	Sally Lee, Jodi Kim Long, Bill Starr, Eleonore Treiber
Commissioner	Michael Maurer
Customer	Phil Leeds
Hymie	Phil Leeds
Angelo	Robert Avian
La Vie Girls	Nicole Barth, Sally Ann Carlson, Diane Coupe, Dorothy D'Honau, Lillian D'Honau, Maureen Hopkins, Jami Landi, Sally Lee, Barbara Marcon, Sandra Roveta, Dean Taliaferro, Eleonore Treiber
Composer	Joel Craig
Gang	Marty Allen, Robert Avian, Tod Jackson, Larry Merritt, Frank Pietri, Bill Starr, Gerald Teijelo, James Weiss
Giuseppe Campanella	Gerald Teijelo
Schultz	H. F. Green
Gordon	Val Avery
Dance Director	Blair Hammond
Girl With Bracelet	Dean Taliaferro
English Girl	Diane Coupe
Harriet	Jami Landi
Girls Who Fight	Nicole Barth, Barbara Marcon
Guard	Don Rehg
Newsman	Rico Froehlich
Reporters and Photographers	Val Avery, Blair Hammond, Joel Craig, Dorothy D'Honou, Dean Taliaferro

There is probably a funny idea in the saga of Izzy and Moe, the Prohibition agents who made some 5,000 pinches for Volstead Act violations in New York and northern New Jersey back in the 1920s. The real life Federal sleuths, Isadore Einstein and Moe W. Smith, were apparently ingenious in their disguises and methods, but there is nothing inventive in the libretto which recounts their adventures in the new musical, "Nowhere to Go But Up."

The new tuner goes the "era of wonderful nonsense" one further by going completely looney. There are a number of sight gags, the better ones including a machine gun that pops out of the gang-leader's desk when the door to his study opens, an amusingly burlesqued hoodlum's funeral staged along Ziegfeldian lines as the first-act finale, and a distillery set up in Grant's Tomb for a Mack Sennett finale that belongs in the theatre of the absurd. The timing is off and for the most part the visual stuff doesn't quite make it.

As the two tireless law enforcers, Tom Bosley and Martin Balsam labor mightily in a bewildering variety of disguises. It may be due to the faulty pacing of the work, but the zany excesses they're involved in seem out of orbit for their gifts. No help, either, are James Lipton's limp laugh lines and the weak lyrics of his patter numbers.

The first real lift to the proceedings comes late in the first act with a chorus ensemble in a speakeasy, sparked by a newcomer to legit, Dorothy Loudon, a night

(Continued on page 67)

Travel Agents Figure on Boosting Theatre B.O. as Part of Tourism

More than 40,000 theatre tickets to Broadway legits will be sold this year by travel agents as part of New York tour packages.

The tickets are part of inclusive tours sold across travel agency and airline counters throughout the U. S. and Canada and include hotel, transportation and in some cases a visit to night clubs and restaurants in the theatre district.

This is in addition to purchases of Broadway seats for individual agency clients, either at the b.o. or through brokers. According to a survey by Travel Agent magazine, the number of seats booked by agents for 1962, either individually or through tours, could exceed 50,000.

Among the travel firms specializing in theatre packages are Sutherland Travel Service, Ask Mr. Foster, Happiness Tours, Martin Snyder Theatre Holiday and Vacationland. American Airlines, TWA, United, Eastern, Northeast, Northwest and Allegheny are helping the operators promote theatre packages. Some indication of the growing sale of packages is afforded by American Airlines which marketed nearly 3,000 tours through agents last year involving about 7,500 show tickets.

Retail agents throughout the U. S. and Canada receive commission on the package tour but not on tickets bought from brokers or directly from the boxoffice. Most agents provide such tickets as a service to New York or overseas-bound clients.

That travel agents have been developed into an important source of bookings is confirmed by Morris Jacobs, general manager for the Richard Rodgers organization. He emphasized that the producer must service travel agency requests promptly and endeavor to provide decent seats even when the show is running at capacity.

Some theatres that have set up travel agency boxoffice facilities have been less successful. This is attributed to the producer's failure to give travel agency orders more than routine handling or long delays in processing agency ticket requests.

Expected foreign tourist influx falls in the same orbit.

Long Way to 'Forum'

The Dec. 8 evening performance of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" at the Alvin Theatre, N. Y., will be attended by a couple who are spending a minimum of $725.80 to see the musical. The long-distance playgoers are Christopher and Mrs. Dykes, residents of London.

The Dykes are members of the Macy's Theatre Club and purchased the seats to the show at the regular top of $9.40 each. However, they intend planing to New York just to see the show, arriving Dec. 8 and departing the following day. The cost of the roundtrip flight, including airport buses, comes to $707.

'Position' to Fold In Philly Tryout

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.

"Matter of Position," which had been scheduled to open Oct. 25 at the Booth Theatre, N. Y., will fold next Saturday night (13) at the Walnut Theatre here. The Elaine May play, which debuted at the house Sept. 29, will bring to three the number of tryouts that have collapsed thus far this season in Philly.

Fred Coe and Arthur Cantor, producers of the comedy in which Mike Nichols stars, expect to repay the show's backers $40,000 of their $125,000 investment. In an unusually frank statement, the producers declare they're closing the show because Miss May has refused to make certain cuts and revisions which they deem necessary.

The other two Philly tryout casualties were the musical "La Belle" and the drama, "Banderol." Two other presentations that were earmarked for Broadway have also folded out-of-town this season. They were "There Must Be a Pony," which toured the stock circuit but failed to go on to scheduled bookings in Philly and New York, and "Get on Board—The Jazz Train," which closed in Toronto a week after it started what was to have been a lengthy pre-Broadway tour.

With the closing of "Position" the count on tryout casualties at this early point in the season will be five, an unusually high figure considering there are still more than seven months to go before the conclusion of the 1962-63 term.

Continental Concerts Goes Legit With Tours For 4 Off-B'way Shows

Continental Concerts Corp., primarily a booking agency for long-hair music presentations, is handling two legit shows this season and is planning tours for another two during the 1963-64 semester. The four presentations have achieved prominence off-Broadway.

Tours planned for next season by the New York-based firm involve contemplated road productions of "The Blacks" and "A Chekhov Sketchbook," the latter with Joseph Buloff starred. The latter headed the cast of "Sketchbook" last season at the Gramercy Arts Theatre, N. Y., where the bill of three one-acters was presented for a run of 94 performances by Stanley and Helen Waren. There's some uncertainty as to who'll produce the road presentation.

"The Blacks," produced off-Broadway by Sidney Bernstein, George Edgar and Andre Gregory, marked 17 months of playing time at the St. Marks Playhouse, N. Y., last Thursday (4). The same producers intend sending out the road production. Another current off-Broadway entry, "The Hostage," is being duplicated on the road as the first of the legit entries to be sent out by Continental. The touring presentation, co-produced by Perry Bruskin and Joseph H. Schaeffer, opened at Her Majesty's, Montreal, and played last week at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto.

Bruskin, who also directed the road vehicle, was also stager of the off-Broadway presentation, now in its 10th month at the One Sheridan Square Theatre, N. Y., under the production auspices of Norma Frances, Robert Marcuilies and Bell Productions. The Brendan Behan play was previously

(Continued on page 67)

ROAD STAND DREAM IN SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 9.

A seven-man commission is to be named here to study and recommend plans for a civic centre. This is intended to restore Springfield as a stop on the various showbiz circuits, a status it has lost because of insufficient facilities for housing legit attractions, opera and other entertainments.

Projected centre would be used as a combination convention-theatrical showcase. Town's only facility at present is the Municipal Auditorium, but this was designed as a concert hall and has been found unsuited for other presentations.

Commission's only appointee so far is Daniel J. Maloney, local theatrical impresario, who will serve as chairman of the panel.

Schedule 'Yankee Doodle' Tuner for London Preem

London, Oct. 9.

Stephen Mitchell and Herman Black are to present "Yankee Doodle Comes to Town" in the West End next spring. The show is described as an American musical travelog and will star Billie Worth and Bill Shirley. It will highlight the songs and dances that made the grade in the States at the turn of the century.

It is due to open Nov. 20 at Hippodrome, Bristol. Fred Kelly, who will stage the choreography, is now auditioning talent.

'Carnival' One-Nighter To Open Albany Season

Albany, Oct. 9.

The Palace Theatre will play "Carnival" for a one-nighter Oct. 24 as its first legit presentation of the season. The 2,810-seat Fabian house offered "My Fair Lady" for a week last March.

The American Ballet Theatre appeared at the theatre last Wednesday (3) under the auspices of The Albany League of Arts and the Times-Union and The Knickerbocker News, in cooperation with the State Council on the Arts. It was a rental deal, tickets being sold at the newspaper offices, rather than at the theatre.

Roger L. Stevens Acquires 'Depths'; Umpteenth Item

Roger L. Stevens, who thrives on projects, has added "Upper Depths," by Saul Bellow, to his bulging list of projected Broadway productions. Besides his commercial Main Stem activities, the producer-realtor is also involved in such enterprises as the National Cultural Center planned for Washington and the Actors Studio Theatre, which is scheduled to begin operations in New York next year.

Stevens is chairman of the board of trustees of the Cultural Center, for which around $30,000,000 is being sought in a fund-raising campaign. He's also general administrator of the Studio theatre which is seeking a $2,000,000 bankroll for its first three years of operation. In addition, he's represented currently on Broadway and the road by three productions of "Mary, Mary" besides being co-producer of the Broadway-bound presentations of "Calculated Risk" and "Step on a Crack." In addition he's the presenter of the off-Broadway hit, "Oh, Dad, Poor Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad."

Slated for future presentation by Stevens either independently or in partnership with other managements are plays by Samuel Taylor, Gore Vidal, Irwin Shaw and Arthur Kopit. Also, Jean Kerr's "Poor Richard," Tennessee Williams' "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore," Henry Denker's dramatization of Louis Nizer's "My Life in Court," Stuart Vaughan's adaptation of the German play, "The Blum Affair," Christopher Fry's adaptation of Jean Giradoux's "Judith" and George Tabori's adaptation of Max Frisch's "Andorra."

Other items on the Stevens roster include the Peter Shaffer one-actors, "The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye," Shaffer's "A Place of Sirens," Marc Connelly's "The Portable Yenberry," Peter Ferbleman's "A Place Without Twilight," Clifford Sage and Hal Lewis' "Joshua Beane and God," Robert Thom's dramatization of Barnaby Conrad's novel, "Dangerfield," and Friedrich Duerrenmatt's "The Psysicists."

Film and Legit Outfit Gets Off-B'way Mayfair

The off-Broadway Mayfair Theatre, N. Y., rated an off-Broadway house, has been leased for a year by Play-Pix Productions Inc. The firm, established to operate in the legit and film fields, also has under option for Broadway presentation a musical version of "Cheaper by the Dozen." The Mayfair, for which the organization has no immediate producing plans, is a 299-seater situated on West 46th St. in the Times Square area.

"Dozen," previously controlled by Broadway producer - theatre owner Lester Osterman, has a book by Christopher Sergel, music by Mark Bucci and lyrics by David Rogers. It's based on the Frank Gilbreth Jr.-Ernestine Gilbreth Carey book, which was made into a film in 1950 by 20th-Fox. Play-Pix, which intends using the Mayfair for its own productions or those of other managements, is headed by Robert A. Goldston, who's president. He and Leonard Davis, who's board chairman, were executives of National Telefilm Association.

Dolores Pugliese has been appointed executive secretary of the Catholic Actors Guild.

English Press Organization Raps West End Producers for Yanking Ads Over Observer 'Theatre Guide'

London, Oct. 9.

The Society of West End Theatre Managers has been censured by the Press Council for withdrawing classified advertising from the Observer. In a consideration of the dispute that was first reported at the beginning of the year, the English newspaper publisher-editor organization said the legit producer group's action was "regarded and deprecated as an attempt to influence editorial policy."

The row stemmed from the publication in the Observer, a Sunday sheet, of the "Quick Theatre Guide," which was introduced in 1959. The theatre managers contended that publication of criticism, week after week, based on infrequent inspection by the critic, constituted unfair journalism.

It was argued that repetition of adverse "potted criticism" of shows over lengthy periods is unwarranted, and that some of these reviews have been founded on visits made to theatres a considerable time earlier than the date of publication. Towards the end of last year, one of the Society's members withdrew its advertising, and some five weeks later almost all the other members followed suit, though no reason was given.

The theatre managers, in their submission to the Press Council, did not deny the right of the Observer to publish the "Quick Theatre Guide," but claimed that repetition of criticism, whether good or bad, based on infrequent visits by the critic was unjust. The managerial group suggested that the newspaper should be invited either to withdraw the feature, or limit comment to factual statement.

David Astor, the Observer's editor, told the Council that the writer of the guide sees each production every three months, and checks on questionable ones more often. A stand had been made, he added, because it was considered that the attitude of the Society was a wrongful attempt to influence the newspaper's editorial policy.

In its consideration of the matter, the Press Council asserted, the Observer, as admitted by the

(Continued on page 67)

Take to the Hills

Except for "Stop the World —I Want to Get Off," which set boxoffice records during its recent tryout there, Philadelphia has had a deplorable legit diet so far this fall. Nearly all the tryouts have been slugged by the local critics and most have done ruinous business.

Things got so bad last week that producer members of the League of N.Y. Theatres appealed to the organization's president, Robert Whitehead, to declare Philly a disaster area.

'Horn' Has Netted $190,577 to Date

"Come Blow Your Horn," which began a post-Broadway tour last Monday night (8) at the Moore Theatre, Seattle, had earned $190,577 profit as of Sept. 1. A slight operating loss is figured to have been incurred by the comedy in the five weeks between then and its Main Stem closing last Saturday night (6). However, the coin dropped during that period is believed to be offset by income due from the sale of the film rights to Paramount.

Consequently, the show's financial condition is figured to have undergone little change since the start of September. Of the profit earned by the William Hammerstein-Michael Ellis presentation, $120,000 has thus far been distributed equally between the management and the backers. That gives the latter a 50% return on their $120,000 investment. A road company of "Horn," assembled for key city bookings this past summer, represented a loss of around $30,000.

Paramount, currently shooting "Horn" with Frank Sinatra headlining, purchased the rights to the Neil Simon comedy for $75,000 down, plus 10% of the gross on profitable weeks up to a ceiling of $250,000. The maximum hasn't been reached yet, but the staggered payments also apply while the show's on tour.

Hal March and Warren Berlinger returned to the show recently in the key roles played by them when "Horn" opened on Broadway. The comedy had an 85-week New York run.

CASTLE MEMORIAL TO ELEANORA DUSE

Asolo, Italy, Oct. 2.

This Po Valley tourist mecca with a rich cultural heritage has set up a permanent memorial to Eleanora Duse, the actress who spent much of her last years here.

The town has created an Institute of Stage Studies, which will comprise once-a-year Seminars (late August-early September), performances of plays, and the collecting and collating of Duse memorabilia. Sessions will be open to actors, playwrights, producers, scenarists, designers, critics and, indeed, any and all connected with the legit theatre.

Institute is housed here, in the castle of Queen Cornaro. Play performances will be staged al fresco on grounds adjacent the castle, taking advantage of the heady Asolo landscape that has beguiled artists for centuries.

Jeffrey Ballet Going To Orient for State Dept.

Robert Jeffery, who choreographs for the N.Y. City Opera and has his own ballet group, will tour abroad for State Dept. under Gertrude Macy supervision for the American National Theatre & Academy. He goes out in December and bookings are now being firmed.

The area to be toured is the Middle East and Far East, including Jordon, Iraq, Lebanon, Egypt, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India and Iran.

Cancel Vancouver Fest For Next Year, But May Resume Operation in '64

Vancouver, Oct. 9.

The Vancouver International Festival has been cancelled for 1963, but will resume in 1964. That was revealed last week by president T. N. Beaupre.

The hiatus was forced on the Festival Society by a cumulative deficit of over $77,000. Festival officials blame the situation on poor ticket sales this year and inadequate response to the fund campaign held annually to augment boxoffice revenues.

Ticket sales dropped to 62% of potential, compared to 70% in 1961, resulting in a $34,000 loss. The fund campaign fell $35,000 short of the $175,000 target. In addition, $14,336 in entertainment tax, which the Society had expected would be remitted by the provincial government, has been withheld.

Total revenue amounted to $387,997, including $247,762 in ticket sales and $140,235 in donations, against an expenditure of $439,549. To the loss of $51,552 on this year's operation, the Festival carried a deficit of $11,507 from 1961, a cumulative total of $63,059. With the $14,336 tax added, the deficit now stands at $77,395.

Beaupre indicated that the prime objective of the Festival Society would be to retire the current deficit. A special committee has been set up for this purpose and will approach the city, provincial and federal governments, as well as private donors. The Festival's permanent staff of eight has now been cut to two, general manager Gordon Hilker and his secretary, and offices have been moved from the present large quarters to a small space in the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse.

The Society is to retain the

(Continued on page 66)

Shows Abroad

Doctors of Philosophy

London, Oct. 3.

Michael Godron presentation of a comedy in three acts, by Muriel Spark. Staged by Donald McWhinnie; decor, Hutchinson Scott. Features Gwen Cherrell, Fanella Fielding, Laurence Hardy, Ursula Howells, Hazel Hughes. Opened Oct. 2, '62, at the Arts Theatre Club, London; $2.05 top.

Charlie Delfont ..... Laurence Hardy
Catherine ..... Gwen Cherrell
Leonora ..... Ursula Howells
Mrs. S ..... Hazel Hughes
Daphne ..... Kathleen Breck
Charlie Brown ..... Tom Bowman
Charlie Weston ..... Tim Preece
Annie Wood ..... Fanella Fielding
Mrs. Weston ..... Anne Woodward

In her first attempt at playwriting, novelist Muriel Spark reveals a talent for funny dialog, but little sense of play construction. Although there are many laugh provoking lines, "Doctors of Philosophy" is a play almost without beginning, middle or end. The writer's future work will be worth watching provided she can exercise the requisite technical development.

"Doctors" marks the beginning of the new regime at the Arts, which has been extensively refurbished by the new management. Michael Godron is presenting the plays, and his first choice, though a disappointment, is given a production gloss superior to the normal club standard, excepting of course the brief regime under the Shakespeare Theatre Co. control.

The husband and wife in the comedy are doctors of philosophy. Their daughter is a university student and her cousin is also a Ph.D. There's naturally an academic air to the dialog, though some of the most profound comments seem to come from the servant.

But there's no plot. At first, it seems as if the story is to be centered around the cousin who in one of the opening scenes had asked the husband to give her a child. Then the daughter becomes pregnant, but declines marriage because the prospective father is a nuclear physicist and she's a campaigner for nuclear disarmament.

Though it has its diverting moments, the play just rambles on for its three acts, introducing a number of irrelevant characters, such as a lorry driver who is given analysis by the cousin, who is the one who really needs it, and another cousin, delightfully played by the highly mannered Fenella Fielding. And there's a bit of super-naturalistic hocus pocus suggested by moving the scenery, but that's out of line with the mood of the play.

Under Donald McWhinnie's professional guidance, there are several pleasant performances, notably by Gwen Cherrell and Ursula Howells as the respective wife and cousin, though Hazel Hughes walks off with many of the honors as the maid. Laurence Hardy doesn't have much chance in the dull role of the husband, but there is neat support from Tom Bowman as the lorry driver, Tim Preece as the physicist and Anne Woodward as the latter's mother.

Hutchinson Scott has designed a pleasantly serviceable living room set. Myro.

The Plough and the Stars

London, Sept. 26.

Mermaid Theatre Trust presentation of a drama in four acts by Sean O'Casey. Staged by Joss Ackland; decor, David Myerscough Jones. Features Arthur O'Sullivan, George Coulouris, Marie Kean, Donal Donelly, Molly Urquhart. Opened Sept. 25, '62, at the Mermaid Theatre, London; $2.50 top.

Fluther Good ..... Arthur O'Sullivan
Peter Flynn ..... George Coulouris
Mrs. Gogan ..... Marie Kean
Young Covey ..... Donal Donelly
Nora Clitheroe ..... Katherine Blake
Bessie Burgess ..... Molly Urquhart
Jack Clitheroe ..... Ronald Hines
Capt. Brennan ..... Rio Fanning
Melsie ..... Kate Binchy
Barman ..... James Mellon
Rosie Redmond ..... Pauline Delany
Figure in the Window ..... Dermot MacDowell
Langon ..... John McCarthy
Corporal ..... Stephen Moore
Stoddart ..... Anthony Colby

The vast apron stage of the Mermaid Theatre is hardly the ideal setting for "The Plough and the Stars," but that cannot disguise the fact that this is one of Sean O'Casey's greatest plays. With this production, the Mermaid Theatre Trust brings to a close its season honoring the playwright (the other productions were "Purple Dust" and "Red Roses for Me") and has done the playgoers a service.

The staging of "Plough and the Stars" obviously presented headaches to director Joss Ackland, and he has not been able to lick many of the problems. The intimate scenes are largely lost on the huge stage, and the sparse decor designed by David Myerscough Jones does not help.

What remains, therefore, is the play itself, and that should be enough to satisfy most. O'Casey's rich, generous flow, though occasionally hard to follow, provides a rare theatrical treat, and gives added power to the tense, moving subject.

The play is presented in four acts (with a single intermission), with the dramatic climax of the 1916 Easter rebellion filling the second half. There is, however, always an element of comedy and all the characters have that gift of the gab of the stage Irish.

At the time of its first production some 40 years back, the play caused a near riot in Dublin, and though this presentation is surely less inspired, it is easy to understand the impact it must have made. It was a bold and courageous treatment of the Easter rebellion, defying the sentimental and more conventional attitude of making heroes out of all the Irishmen who took up arms against the British. Yet it was fair and sympathetic to "the cause."

The strength of the play rests as much on its characterizations as on its writing, and O'Casey's flawless observation results in a collection of interesting and colorful personalities. Although the acting is not all it should or could be, that's a minor deficiency, as the overall canvas induces theatrical excitement.

Arthur O'Sullivan's interpretation of Fluther Good is lively enough, though George Coulouris makes a surprisingly dull and colorless job of the eccentric Peter Flynn. Easily the best individual performance is by Donal Donelly as the Young Covey, the ardent Socialist, whose cliche-ridden dialog is straight out of any Marxist textbook.

There is also quality in Molly Urquhart's study of the belligerent Bessie Burgess, who becomes friend to her tenement neighbors, but reverts to character when she is dying. Marie Kean gives a touching and contrasting portrayal as her antagonist, Mrs. Gogan and fellow-looter.

Ronald Hines makes Jack Clitheroe a steadfast and stolid character, but his wife, who does not want him to go off to war, is played without much inspiration by Katherine Blake. One outstanding cameo is offered by Pauline Delany as the prostitute Rosie Redmond. Her second act scene is a highlight.

The lowercase quality of the acting is probably due mainly to the basic handicap under which the director was suffering from the outset. But it still does not alter the fact that in this particular case the play's the thing, and it is outstanding. Myro.

A Touch of the Poet

Dublin, Sept. 25.

Tennent Productions, Ltd., and the Dublin Theatre Festival, Ltd., present production of four-act drama by Eugene O'Neill. Staged by Toby Robertson; setting, Hutchinson Scott. Stars Ian Bannen, Billie Whitelaw, Peggy Marshall. Opened, Sept. 24, '62, at the Olympia Theatre, Dublin; $2.92 top.

Mickey Maloy ..... Brian Phelan
Jamie Cregan ..... Ewan Hooper
Sara Melody ..... Billie Whitelaw
Nora Melody ..... Peggy Marshall
Cornelius Melody ..... Ian Bannen
Dan Roche ..... Freddie Jones
Paddy O'Dowd ..... Delcan Mulholland
Patch Riley ..... Morgan Sheppard
Deborah ..... Hazel Terry
Nicholas Gadsby ..... John Gill

Eugene O'Neill's commentary on the Irish of the Boston area in the 1820's provides an opportunity for superb acting, with Ian Bannen, ranging from braggart and bully, a true descendant of the gombeen Irishman who sired Cornelius Melody to the snivelling craven with the whiskey dying in him.

His display of pride, preening himself in his major's uniform as he recalls his days as an officer in the Duke of Wellington's army, his arrogance in his attitude to the Yankee lawyer, conceit in his attempts to charm, sheer bloody-mindedness in his treatment of his daughter, momentary softness with the peasant he married, and abjectness in defeat provide a remarkable evening of theatre-going.

The gently-loving wife is effectively present throughout the piece, as Peggy Marshall projects the characterization of the woman who devotes herself to bolstering the ego of the worthless man she loves. This is perhaps the least satisfactory of the three major roles, but it is complementary to the braggart lead, and is played in the right key. Billie Whitelaw, as the daughter in love with an unseen Yankee, combines the qualities of both father and mother. Her performance clarifies her makeup of qualities from both parents.

O'Neill made this an actor's play and even the roles of the drunks are admirably played in the caricature style of the writing. Toby Robertson's staging is spirited.

This is a natural for a Theatre Festival presentation, and something for which the actors might thank O'Neill. It moves to Venice before transferring to London. Mac.

Murder in the Cathedral

Dublin, Sept. 26.

Nora Lever presentation of two-act drama by T. S. Eliot. Staged by Nora Lever; setting, Noel MacMahon. Stars Ray McAnally. Opened, Sept. 25, '62, at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin; $1.75 top.

Thomas ..... Ray McAnally
Tempters ..... Kevin Flood, Frank Purcell, Fred Johnson, Aiden Grennell
Priests ..... Jim Norton, Peter Mayock, Alec Doran
Messenger ..... Gerry Kiernan
Knights ..... Kevin Flood, Frank Purcell, Fred Johnson, Aiden Grennell

The presentation of T. S. Eliot's pageant of the 12th century Archbishop of Canterbury, Thomas Becket, originally presented in Canterbury Cathedral, has been a long-time project with Nora Lever and in staging it in St. Patrick's Cathedral, built a few years after Becket's murder, she has provided Dublin Theatre Festivalgoers with an exciting piece of theatre. Abbey Theatre actor Ray McAnally is an excellent choice for the role of Becket. He has both the style and technique to carry the role, and a voice to match, although slightly marred at times by the sound system during his Chrismas sermon from the Cathedral pulpit.

He is in command throughout, even to the point of his murder, so much so that the Tempters make little impression on the audience with their speeches. The players in these roles double as Knights, reaching their effectiveness with their charges against the Archbishop and subsequent warlike entrance through the main doors of the Cathedral building to murder Becket on the platform stage set in the chancel.

Verse-speaking is not strong in present-day Irish theatre, but the chorus is adequate for the demands made on it. Noel MacMahon's decor is not elaborate, but the costumes are admirable. The lighting is particularly effective, reaching the "curtain" point with all stage lighting cut and the funeral procession of the Archbishop moving down the aisle of the cathedral and through the main door accompanied by the choir bearing lighted candles.

Because performance is in the Cathedral, applause is banned and company takes no calls, which adds to the drama of the presentation. Nora Lever's sense of pageantry and determination have been vindicated. Mac.

Bits of London

London, Oct. 9.

Jimmy Nervo's refusal to return with Crazy Gang has resulted in Leslie Macdoonell having to abandon his idea of reviving the Gang Show for two weeks at Brighton at the end of the month. Nervo says, "I'm enjoying my rest."

Richard Lynex, ex-secretary of Imperial Chemical Industries, has been named secretary and chief exec officer of the upcoming National Theatre.

Tony Tanner, who took over from Anthony Newley in "Stop The World," has written a revue, "New Brooms," which will have a November tryout at Bromley, Kent.

Theatre Workshop reopens activities Oct. 30 at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, East London, with Alan Klein's musical, "What a Crazy World." Two other commissioned musicals, "It's Got To Come Down" and "Sap," will follow.

The Theatre Royal, Lowestoft, comes up for public auction Oct. 17. It opened in August, 1790.

Brenda Bruce will take over Nov. 1 in the role originally designed for Joan Plowright in "Happy Days" at the Royal Court. Miss Plowright has had to withdraw because she is expecting her second child. She's the wife of Laurence Olivier.

Susannah York, a film discovery, makes her London stage debut in November at the Arts Theatre in "A Cheap Bunch of Nice Flowers," first play by Edna O'Brien.

B'way and Road Theatre Managers

House manager assignments for the 1962-63 season for theatres in New York and out-of-town are as follows:

NEW YORK

Alvin, Al Jones; Ambassador, Arthur Singer; ANTA, Norman Malbuam; Atkinson, not yet assigned; Barrymore, Horace Wright; Beck, Louis Lotito; Belasco, Archie Thompson; Biltmore, Nathan Parnes; Booth, Frank O'Connor; Broadhurst, John Yorke; Broadway, Fannie Comstock; Casino East, Clifford Hayman; City Center, Angelo Casalini; Cort, Michael Small; 54th St., Leo McDonald; 46th St., Leonard Soloway; Golden, Roy Jones; Hayes, Thomas Clarke; Hellinger, not yet assigned; Imperial, Gerson Werner; Longacre, Frank Berle; Lunt-Fontanne, Abe Baranoff; Lyceum, James Reilly; Majestic, Laurence Shubert Laurence Jr.; Miller's, George Banyai; Morosco, Arthur Lighton; Music Box, Charles Stewart; O'Neill, Richard Horner; Playhouse, Edward Dowling; Ross, Saul Abraham; Royale, Leonard Sang; St. James, eon Spachner; Shubert, John Shubert; Winter Garden, Norman Light; Ziegfeld, not yet assigned.

BALTIMORE

Ford's, Leonard B. McLaughlin.

BOSTON

Colonial, Saul Kaplan; Shubert, M. D. Howe; Wilbur, Max Michaels.

CHICAGO

Blackstone, Andrew K. Little; Shubert, Herbert Ries.

CINCINNATI

Shubert, Noah Schechter.

CLEVELAND

Hanna, Milton Krantz.

DETROIT

Cass, Harry McKee; Fisher, James Nederlander; Shubert, Fred Nederlander.

LOS ANGELES

Biltmore, Charles E. Oliver; Hartford, Gerald O'Connell; Philharmonic, Ray Nelson.

MILWAUKEE

Pabst, not yet assigned.

NEW HAVEN

Shubert, Ben Witkin.

PHILADELPHIA

Erlanger, Joseph Carlin; Forrest, Laurence Shubert Laurence and Lex Carlin Jr.; Locust, Charles Suggs; Shubert, Harry Mulhern; Walnut, Thomas Strain.

PITTSBURGH

Nixon, William Blair.

SAN FRANCISCO

Curran, William Zwissig; Geary, Thomas Earnfred.

ST. LOUIS

American, Edward Steinhauer.

TORONTO

O'Keefe, Bruce Corder; Royal Alexandra, Ernest Rawley.

WASHINGTON

National, Scott Kirkpatrick.

WILMINGTON

Playhouse, not yet assigned.

N.Y. City Opera

Louise

Julius Rudel presentation of four-act opera and libretto of Gustave Charpentier. Conducted by Jean Morel; staged by Christopher West; scenery and costumes, Gordon Micunis. Opened Oct. 4, '62, at the N.Y. City Center; $4.35 top.

First presented in 1900, with the title role an old Mary Garden specialty, the work a frequent repeat item at the Opera Comique in Paris but not recently heard in Manhattan, "Louise" has been happily revived by maestro Julius Rudel in New York's own latter-day equivalent of the Opera-Comique.

The passage of time has diminished some of the condescension which developed in the 1930s. "Louise" had by then been heard too often, had out-lived its own innovating plot "naturalism," and had become dated in the sense that its heroine's great problem, French parental authority over whom a girl may wed, had become as quaint as suffragette parades.

Musical vigor and charms inhere still in "Louise." However old hat a clash between papa and poet may seem at this late and emancipated period, it must not be overlooked that there is great merit in the composer's own realistic libretto, namely that genuine emotion is generated, sufficiently rare in opera.

The singing, musicianship and production were first rate. Let there be stress on the admission top of $4.35. Stager Christopher West has made some strikingly novel changes in the usual style of presentation, aided by the costuming and scenery of Gordon Micunis. The latter's perspective backdrop of Paris seen from Montmatre rather surprisingly failed to elicit applause, perhaps because this was a benefit audience. Far less effective theatricalism in design is often accoladed.

Arlene Saunders, blonde and warm in characterization, lovely in voice most of the time, and triumphant in her great aria, "Depuis le jour," certainly enhances her artistic prestige and career in the title role. The tenor-poet of John Alexander is also fine, while the baritone role of the stern French working class papa is richly rendered by Norman Treigle.

Mama is not too much of a part, but well managed by that reliable member of the N.Y. City Opera and Savoyard repertoires, Claramae Turner. It is a successful evening for Frank Poretta in two roles, the Parisian dandy in the slums and the King of Fools in the big party scene. He took a near-hasty tumble off an improvised throne during latter interval, but never missed a note.

It is not practical to attempt to sort out all the singers, including a workroom full of seemstresses, since there are 37 named roles. Enough to say there is much fine if frequentary singing during the evening, and that Rudel's "Louise" is one of the most successful resurrections at either opera house during recent seasons. Land.

Kianovsky to Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Oct. 9.

Raphael Kianovsky has been signed as musical director of the Original Skylight Theatre here.

He succeeds Emily Fritzsche, who retired.

Scheduled B'way Preems

Virginia Woolf, Rose (10-13-62).
Seidman and Son, Belasco (10-15-62).
Step on a Crack, Barrymore (10-17-62).
Mr. President, St. James (10-20-62).
Fun Couple, Lyceum (10-22-62).
Night Life, Atkinson (10-23-62).
Perfect Setup, Cort (10-24-62).
Tchin-Tchin, Plymouth (10-25-62).
Beyond Fringe, Golden (10-27-62).
Calculated Risk, Ambass. (10-31-62).
Nowhere to Go, Winter Gard. (11-10-62).
D'Oyly Carte, Center (11-13-62).
Little Me, Lunt-Fontanne (11-17-62).
Lord Pengo, Royale (11-19-62).
Never Too Late, Playhouse (11-27-62).
Harold, Longacre (11-29-62).
Counting House, Biltmore (12-13-62).
Oliver, Imperial (12-27-62).
Hot Spot, Shubert (3-2-63).
School Scandal, Majestic (1-24-63).
Tovarich, Broadway (3-7-63).

Australian Shows

(Week Ended Oct. 6)

(Figures denote opening dates)

BRISBANE

Lusillo Dancers, Majesty's (9-25-62).

MELBOURNE

Aspern Papers, Union (9-24-62).
Death Salesman, Emerald (9-12-62).
Gondoliers, Her Majesty's (9-24-62).
Minstrels, Tivoli (10-5-62).
Orpheus, Princess (9-27-62).
Yum-Yum Tree, Comedy (8-8-62).
Wrong Side, St. Martins (9-28-62).

PERTH

My Fair Lady, His Majesty's (9-8-62).

SYDNEY

Beyond the Fringe, Phillip (9-8-62).
Billy Liar, Ensemble (7-10-62).
Once Upon a Mattress, Palace (8-3-62).
Romanoff & Juliet, Indep't (9-12-62).
Sentimental Bloke, Royal (6-20-62).
Sound of Music, Tivoli (9-28-62).

Road: 'Prez' 69G, D.C.; 'Son' 37G, Hub; 'Oliver' $62,389, 'Setup' $15,621, S.F.; 'Life' $24,110, Philly; 'Crack' 22G, Det.

The road ran the gamut from puny to powerful last week. Of the tryouts, the top-grosser was "Beyond the Fringe," which registered another solid take in the second week of a Toronto fortnighter. Also continuing big on the Broadway-bound list were "Mr. President" in Washington and "Oliver" in San Francisco.

The only other tryout scoring impressively was "Seidman and Son," which picked up considerably in the second stanza of a two-week Boston stand. "Matter of Position," which had been slated to open Oct. 25 at the Booth Theatre, N.Y., folds next Saturday night (13) in Philadelphia.

Estimates for Last Week

Parenthetic designations for out-of-town shows are the same as for Broadway, except that hyphenated T with show classification indicates tryout and RS indicates road show. Also, prices on touring shows include 10% Federal tax and local tax, if any, but as on Broadway grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes. Engagements are for single week unless otherwise noted.

Where subscription is mentioned, the gross is the net after the deduction of commissions. Grosses for split weeks are projected when shows play guaranteed dates.

BOSTON

Seidman and Son, Colonial (C-T) (2d wk) ($4.95-$5.95; 1,685; $50,585) (Sam Levene). Previous week, $25,115 with Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription.

Last week, $37,065 with TG-ATS subscription.

Tchin-Tchin, Wilbur (D-T) (1st wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,241; $37,126) (Anthony Quinn, Margaret Leighton).

Last week, $4,551 for opening performance Saturday night (6) which drew two endorsements (Hughes, Herald; Kelly, Globe), two yes-no reviews (Maloney, Traveler; Norton, Record American) and one thumb-down (Guidry, Monitor).

CHICAGO

Mary, Mary, Blackstone (C-RS) (5th wk) ($4.95-$5.50; 1,447; $41,000) (Julia Meade, Scott McKay, Tom Helmore). Previous week, $32,943 with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $35,268 with TG-ATS subscription.

Sound of Music, Shubert (MD-RS) (47th wk) ($5.95-$6.50; 2,100; $72,000) (Barbara Meister, John Myhers). Previous week, $39,334.

Last week, $41,239.

DENVER

My Fair Lady, Auditorium (MC-RS) (2d wk) ($5.50-$6.50; 2,200). (Ronald Drake, Caroline Dixon). Previous week, $51,723 for seven performances.

Last week, $69,508.

DETROIT

Step on a Crack, Fisher (D-T) (2d wk) ($4.95; 1,606; $35,000) (Gary Merrill, Donald Madden). Previous week, $17,286.

Last week, $21,967.

LOS ANGELES

Kismet, Philharmonic (MD-RS) (2d wk) ($5.90-$6.75; 2,670; $83,400) (Alfred Drake). Previous week, $77,800 with Civic Light Opera subscription.

Last week, about $78,000 with CLO subscription.

PHILADELPHIA

Fun Couple, Forrest (C-T) (1st wk) ($4.80-$5.40; 1,760; $50,726) (Jane Fonda, Bradford Dillman). Previous week, $15,159, Ford's, Baltimore.

Opened here last Wednesday night (3) to three pans (Gaghan, News; Murdock, Inquirer; Schier, Bulletin).

Last week, $13,812 for five performances.

Matter of Position, Walnut (C-T) (2d wk) ($4.80-$5.40; 1,349; $40,800) (Mike Nichols). Previous week, $4,145 with TG-ATS subscription for Saturday night 29) opening.

Last week, $18,544 with TG-ATS subscription. Folds next Saturday (13).

Night Life, Locust (D-T) (2d wk) ($4.50-$5; 1,418; $41,541). Previous week, $5,068 for Saturday night (29) opening.

Last week, $24,110.

Nowhere to Go But Up, Shubert (MC-T) (1st wk) ($6.60-$7.50; 1,907; $72,674).

Last week, $9,371 for opening performance Saturday night (6).

SAN FRANCISCO

Oliver, Curran (MD-T) (2d wk) ($6.25-$6.50; 1,758; $65,000) (Clive Revill, Georgia Brown). Previous week, $52,364 for seven performances with CLO subscription.

Last week, $62,389 with CLO subscription.

Perfect Setup, Geary (C-T) (2d wk) ($5.40-$5.95; 1,483; $41,000) (Gene Barry, Angie Dickinson, Jan Sterling). Previous week, about $12,000 for seven performances.

Last week, $15,621.

TORONTO

Beyond the Fringe, O'Keefe (R-T) (2d wk) ($5-$5.50; 3,211; $92,787). Previous week, $69,918.

Last week, $76,201.

Hostage, Royal Alexandra (CD-RS) ($4-$4.50; 1,525; $36,728). Previous week, about $9,000, Her Majesty's, Montreal.

Opened here Oct. 1 to two endorsements (Evans, Telegram; Whittaker, Globe and Mail) and one pan (Cohen, Star).

Last week, $7,719.

WASHINGTON

Mr. President, National (MC-T) (2d wk) ($5.50-$7.90; 1,673; $68,464). (Robert Ryan, Nanette Fabray). Previous week, $59,035 for seven performaces with TG-ATS subscription.

Last week, $69,164 with TG-ATS subscription.

SPLIT WEEKS

Carnival (MC-RS). Previous week, $39,789 on TG-ATS subscription with Carla Alberghetti and Ed Ames costarred, Pabst, Milwaukee.

Last week, $40,327 for seven performances: Music Hall, Kansas City, Monday-Wednesday (1-3), four, $19,327, on TG-ATS subscription with same costars as previous week; State Fair Music Hall, Dallas, Friday-Saturday (5-6), three, $21,000 with Anna Maria Alberghetti back as headliner.

'Masters of Modern Drama' For Theatre Enthusiasts

By BERNARD SOBEL

"Masters of Modern Drama" (Random House; $12.50), edited by Haskell M. Block and Robert C. Shedd, effects a literary miracle. It gives theatre enthusiasts the chance, by way of the printed page, to see plays which they have longed to see, to enjoy old favorites again, and to study them in relation to the general history of the stage.

As a preliminary to this comprehensive experience, the editor provide an introduction that is noteworthy for its swift survey of major theatrical trends from the Greeks until today; for its cogent definitions of these trends; and for its accompanying sidelights on dramatists and techniques.

With clarity, the editors discuss modern poetic drama, expressionism, the drama of artifice and masquerade and the principle forces in European and American drama since World War II.

In departing from the traditional, the current drama has created confusion and lost the "sense of communal participation that characterized the relation of the dramatist and audience in ancient Greece of the Middle Ages or Elizabethan England."

However, by compounding naturalism, symbolism, expressionism, surrealism, existentialism and "theatre of the absurd," the truly creative artist of today illuminates what is always "enduringly contemporary" . . . human experience.

The evanescent nature of the drama is indicated by the fact that no women playwrights are included in the collection. But the omission of Pulitzer Prizewinner Sidney Kingsley is regrettable. A note on the reciprocal influence of the modern movie, avant garde and "wave" on the current drama would have added scope to this welcome book.

What's in a Name?

Not everyone can take Shakespeare or dramatic readings, either individually or in combination.

A Shubert Alley wag has suggested that the Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans bill of Shakespeare selections, "A Program for Two Players," should be subtitled "Bye Bye Bardie."

Yiddish Theatre Season Gets Away in New York; 4 New Shows to Preem

The Yiddish legit season in New York gets underway next Saturday night (13) with the opening at the Roosevelt Yiddish Theatre of "A Honeymoon in Israel." Three other productions are scheduled for unveiling during the ensuing six weeks. They're "A Cowboy in Israel," opening Oct. 27 at the Anderson Yiddish Theatre; "The World Is a Stage," debuting Nov. 3 at the Educational Alliance Playhouse, and "The Eleventh Inheritor," preeming Nov. 19 at the Folksbiene Playhouse.

"Honeymoon," billed as an Israeli-Jewish musical, will star Max Perlman in his American debut. The tuner, which Sol Dickstein is producing, has book, lyrics and music by Meyer Ben Yehuda. Leo Fuchs, back in New York from the Coast, will star in "Cowboy," tagged a Yiddish-American musical. Jacob Jacobs, who's producing the tuner, is also the show's lyricist. The book is by Louis Freiman and the music by Sholom Secunda.

"World," a comedy by Chone Gottesfeld, will star Rose Shoshano and Isidor Lipinsky, who are also the producers. "Inheritor," a drama by Moshe Dluznowsky, is a Folksbiene presentation.

'STEPHEN D.' TOPS AT DUBLIN FEST

Dublin, Oct. 9.

Hugh Leonard's adaptation of James Joyce's autobiographical novels to provide "Stephen D." was the top feature of Dublin's Theatre Fest this year and is probably the best bet for export. The Fergus Linehan musical, "Fursey," has a lively line, but its mostly revue-like in its impact.

Among the imports Fiesta Gitana took big money, but the rather under-publicised American Dance Company did little biz despite the obvious talent of the group. Too many attractions spread talent a bit thin and heavy schedule was apt to confuse visitors because there was too much offered both as regular and "fringe" presentations. Some did little biz but one fringe show folded after three nights.

Eugene O'Neill did not draw as anticipated. Of the two productions the appearance of Ian Bannen, Billie Whitelaw and Peggy Marshall in "A Touch of the Poet" was the standout, but its boxoffice take could have been much higher. Why it was decided to present the full version of "A Long Day's Journey Into Night" at the Abbey is anybody's guess. Apparently it wasn't what the public wanted.

Seamus Byrne's "Little City" deserved and drew heavy fire from the crix. Festival authorities were criticized for approval of this play which replaced "Stephen D." at the Gate where the Joyce piece did SRO biz through the first week of the Fest.

The Hilton Edwards production of "Othello" with Michael MacLiammoir and William Marshall was a modest effort, and perhaps too lightweight to tour Europe as a festival event.

Lucille Lortel Pav.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 9.

Lucille Lortel pavilion, honoring the off-Broadway producer and founder-director of Westport's White Barn experimental theatre, will be dedicated Sunday (14) at University of Bridgeport.

Outdoor undergraduate layout, feature a 45-foot wide umbrella, is gift of Miss Lortel's husband, Louis Schweitzer.

"The Liveliest Art," by Reed Hutchins Spickers, will be presented by the American Playwrights Forum at the Sheridan Square Playhouse, N.Y., on two successive Monday evenings, Oct. 22 and Oct. 29.

Biz Drops For Most B'way Shows, But 'Succeed' SRO, 'Stop' $44,702 (6); 'Strong' $19,195 (6), 'Affair' $16,716

Business was off for most Broadway shows last week. Among the entries registering drops was "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," which fell below capacity for the first time in about two months. That left "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" as the sole sellout last week.

Last week's two openings, "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off" and "Come on Strong" didn't have too good press reaction. "World" was rapped by the morning reviewers, but won the approval of the afternoon critics. "Strong," which got a unanimous drubbing, had been due to fold last Saturday night (6), but was reprieved.

Estimates for Last Week

Keys: C (Comedy), D (Drama), CD (Comedy-Drama), R (Revue), MC (Musical-Comedy), MD (Musical-Drama), O (Opera), OP (Operetta), Rep. (Repertory), DR (Dramatic Reading).

Other parenthetic designations refer, respectively, to weeks played, number of performances through last Saturday, top prices (where two prices are given, the higher is for Friday-Saturday nights and the lower for weeknights), number of seats, capacity gross and stars. Price includes 10% Federal and 5% repealed City tax (diverted to an industry-wide pension and welfare fund), but grosses are net; i.e., exclusive of taxes.

Grosses have been reduced by commissions where theatre parties are mentioned.

Asterisk denotes show had cut-rate tickets in circulation.

Affair, Miller (D) (3d wk; 20 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 840; $33,500). Previous week, $13,923.

Last week, $16,716.

Camelot, Majestic (MC) (96th wk; 769 p) ($9.40; 1,626; $84,000) (William Squire, Janet Pavek, Robert Goulet). Previous week, $54,118. Understudy Robert Peterson succeeded Goulet last Monday (8) and Kathryn Grayson takes over Oct. 23 for Miss Pavek.

Last week, $49,961.

Carnival, Imperial (MC) (78th wk; 620 p) ($8.60; 1,428; $68,299). Previous week, $32,321.

Last week, $34,596.

Come on Strong, Morosco (D) (1st wk; 4 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 999; $41,960) (Carroll Baker, Van Johnson).

Opened last Thursday night (4) to a unanimous thumb-down (Chapman, News; Coleman, Mirror; Kerr, Herald Tribune; McClain, Journal-American; Nadel, World-Telegram; Taubman, Times; Watts, Post).

Last week, $19,195 for four performances and two previews.

Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, Alvin (MC) (22d wk; 175 p) ($8.60-$9.40; 1,334; $65,096) (Zero Mostel). Previous week, $65,777.

Last week, $63,681.

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, 46th St. (MC) (52d wk; 409 p) ($9.60; 1,342; $66,615). Previous week, $67,529.

Last week, $67,468.

I Can Get It For You Wholesale, Broadway (MC) (29th wk; 228 p) ($8.60; 1,900; $73,000) (Lillian Roth). Previous week, $32,626 at the Shubert Theatre.

Last week, $32,445.

Man for All Seasons, ANTA (D) (46th wk; 365 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,214; $49,600) (Emlyn Williams, Thomas Gomez, George Rose). Previous week, $33,112.

Last week, $32,574.

Mary, Mary, Hayes (C) (83d wk; 660 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,139; $43,380) (Barbara Bel Geddes, Barry Nelson, Edward Mulhare). Previous week, $38,465.

Last week, $34,997.

Milk and Honey, Beck (MC) (52d wk; 415 p) ($8.60-$9.60; 1,280; $62,805) (Robert Weede, Mimi Benzell, Hermione Gingold). Previous week, $28,501.

Last week, $31,254.

No Strings, Broadhurst (MC) (30th wk; 236 p) ($9.20; 1,214; $64,000). Previous week, $60,790 at the 54th St. Theatre.

Last week, $54,981.

Sound of Music, Lunt-Fontanne (MD) (145th wk; 1,156 p) ($9.60; 1,407; $75,000) (Nancy Dussault). Previous week, $46,028. Moves Nov. 5 to the Hellinger Theatre.

Last week, $44,695.

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off, Shubert (MC) (1st wk; 5 p) ($8.60; 1,461; $60,000) (Anthony Newley).

Opened last Wednesday night (3) to three endorsements (McClain, Journal-American; Nadel, World-Telegram; Watts, Post) and four negative notices (Chapman, News; Coleman, Mirror; Kerr, Herald Tribune; Taubman, Times).

Last week, $44,702 for five performances and one preview.

Take Her, She's Mine, Biltmore (C) (42d wk; 332 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 936; $40,180) (Art Carney). Previous week, $26,456.

Last week, $26,048.

Thousand Clowns, O'Neill (C) (27th wk; 212 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,076; $44,730) (Jason Robards Jr.). Previous week, $23,652.

Last week, $28,206.

Closed Last Week

Come Blow Your Horn, Atkinson (C) (85th wk; 677 p) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,090; $42,522). Previous week, $8,812.

Last week, $13,330. Exited last Saturday (6) to tour; has netted around $190,000 thus far on its $120,000 investment.

Opening This Week

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Rose (D) ($6.90-$7.50; 1,162; $46,045) (Uta Hagen, Arthur Hill, George Grizzard).

Theatre 1963 (Richard Barr and Clinton Wilder) presentation of play by Edward Albee. Capitalized at $75,000 with provision for 20% overcall, opens Saturday night (13). Another cast with Kate Reid, Shepperd Strudwick and William Berger in the key roles will perform at matinees beginning Oct. 27.

Other Theatres

Ambassador, Barrymore, Belasco, Booth, Cort, 54th St., Golden, Hellinger, Longacre, Lyceum, Music Box, Playhouse, Plymouth, Royale, St. James, Winter Garden.

See M'pls. 'Mary' Smash As Local Season Omen; Record 6,000 Subscribers

Minneapolis, Oct. 9.

The smash engagement of the bus-and-truck company of "Mary, Mary," which opened the local Theatre Guild-American Theatre Society subscription season, figured a promising omen for Twin Cities legit. The Jean Kerr comedy grossed $58,181 for its Orpheum six nights and two matinees, by far the best beginning for any local legit season.

The "Mary, Mary" click was particularly significant as a sequel to the increase of the TG-ATS subscriptions to more than 6,000, despite the four-month local newspaper strike during the subscription drive. "Friends of the Theatre" members succeeded in signing up 2,000 subscribers when there was no newspaper publicity for the season.

The "Mary, Mary" gross was a single-week all-time high for a touring non-musical here. The 15,648 attendance was the biggest locally in a single week for any kind of touring legit show.

This season is the first time that the adjoining Minneapolis and St. Paul are having the same seven TG-ATS shows. In the "Mary, Mary" case there wasn't the usual procedure of moving the production from here to St. Paul for its second week. The other Twin City will get the comedy later in the season, but the company now in Chicago, not the bus-and-truck troupe that played here.

'Phitts' in Stockholm

"Leon Phitts Is Dead," by American playwright Mark Zalk, was premiered Sept. 21 at the Little Theatre in Stockholm.

Zalk is currently associated with Show magazine.

'Billy The Kid' Makes Contact As 2,600 Children Get Taste of Ballet

Albany, Oct. 9.

Some 2,600 school children came directly from classes, books under their arms, to the Palace Theatre last Wednesday (3) afternoon to witness a performance of the American Ballet Theatre. Then, in the evening, 2,800 adults (capacity) attended a different program. Co-sponsoring Knickerbocker News editorialized next day that the totals were "5,400 Arguments For Culture."

The children, from the public, private and parochial schools of Albany County, came to the Fabian House in institution busses. Many of them had never seen a live ballet performance before. Accompanying them were teachers, including Catholic nuns in habit. Admission was 75c—(night top was $3.75.

It was a warm afternoon and the performance ran until 5 with some of the youngsters—ranging from six or seven to 15-16—thirsty and restless. Trips to the rear of the house and to the rest rooms were rather frequent (popcorn stand was closed). However, the core of the juvenile audience reacted with seemingly greater enthusiasm than the mature evening audience. Dr. Paul Bruce Pettit, president of the Albany League of Arts, called the kids "a wonderful audience."

"Billy The Kid," on Eugene Loring's choreography, with John Kriza, Bruce Marks, Ruth Ann Koesun, Burton Taylor and David Richardson proved a natural for the youngsters. All has heard of the famous 19th Century juvenile delinquent. There were shouts and laughter from the school crowd.

MICHIGAN UNIV. OPENS WHITMAN'S 'COMRADES'

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 9.

"School For Scandal" opened new resident company of Univ. of Michigan Professional Theatre Program last week. The resident Gov. company will have a 20-week season.

The Assn. of Producing Artists will be here as the resident company. It includes Rosemary Harris, Cavada Humphrey, Ellis Rabb, Anne Meacham, Will Geer, Enid Markey, Clayton Corzatte, David Hooks, Richard Woods, Keene Curtis, Page Johnnson and Tucker Ashworth. Staging will be by Rabb.

A Walt Whitman work, "We Comrades, Three" as adapted by Richard Baldridge has its premiere here tomorrow night (Wed.) and plays through next Sunday (14) as a first sampling of U. of Michigan's "playwrights-in-residence."

After Whitman comes "The Tavern," the George M. Cohen farce, then "Ghosts" by Ibsen with Eva Le Gallienne. "Penny For A Song" by John Whiting is the final the Michigan hinterland after the season here.

In January, the company will return to commence rehearsals for a Winter Festival of Shakespearean plays which will open in mid-February to be followed by tour of the State of Michigan.

Between the two appearances, Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans will present their "Program of Two Players." Nov. 8 at Hill Auditorium. Several touring productions, including "Brecht on Brecht" and The Caretaker" are also planned. Henry Hewes will open a lecture series tonight (Tues.), to be followed by Lee Strasberg, Dec. 9, and Harold Clurman, Jan. 13.

Hayes-Evans as Feature Of Syracuse U. Season

Syracuse, Oct. 9.

Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans will be the feature event of the Syracuse Univ., "Celebrity Series" in their 1962-63 "Program for Two" players. They are slated for March 5, 1962, and will play the new Manley Field House because of the anticipated turnout.

Also scheduled for the season are the Sangeeta Madras, South Indie musicians, Oct. 17; "The Importance of Being Earnest," with the Cleveland Players, Nov. 16; "Ghosts" with the Celeveland Players, Nov. 17; Carlos Montoya, flamenco guitarist, Feb. 9, and Josh White, American folk singer, April 27.

Saranac Barn Continues

The dissolution of the Saranac Lake Summer Theatre Corporation, reported in VARIETY recently, did not represent the fold of the operation but rather the completion of legal steps in a switch to a limited partnership setup.

The non-Equity spot, which completed a 10-week season last Sept. 1, is operated by Joan Frank, Martha Byer and Kenneth Phohaska.

GARGI'S SCHOLARLY 'THEATRE INDIA' BOOK

By JO RANSON

Balwant Gargi, the Indian dramatist and critic, has produced a crackerjack account of India's rich and abundant theatrical history in "Theatre in India" (Theatre Arts Books; $6.95). Few, if any books on the panoply of India drama, stemming from the early Sanskrit plays to the more recent Indian offerings with slight Western overtones, can top this illuminating document.

Gargi, who comes from the Punjab and bears the title of Dramatist of the Year, 1959-1960, from the State of Punjab, north of Delhi, traipsed up and down the subcontinent in search of background material before writing this book.

In the first section he has perceptively recorded the origins of the Hindu theatre, dwelt affectionately on the major influences of Ramayana and Mahabharata, undeniably the two shining epics of Hindu writings, x-rayed the contributions of the foremost Sanskrit playwrights who gave so much to Hindu culture, and probed the reasons why the persuasive pantomimic classical and folk dances, the puppet theatre, the folk theatre and pageant plays are so ingrained in the way of Indian life. The author also sheds light on the ancient and celebrated dances of the Bharataya Natyam which pinpoint feminine grace; the Kathakali, spelling energy and terror; the Kathak from the North, and the always popular manipuri from Assam.

In his analysis of the modern theatre of India, Gargi shrewdly sums up Bengali show biz, Tagore's plays, the regional theatres, Marathi and Gujarati theatres, the Peoples Theatre, the Little Ballet Troupe, the struggling but worthwhile amateur theatre and other recent trends. He also notes, with regret, the low state of the condition of theatre structure in major Indian cities.

Weales' 'Drama' Book

"American Drama Since World War II" by Gerald Weales (Harcourt, Brace & World; $5.75) is first important assessment of play done since 1945. Author is assistant professor of English at U. of Pa., and writes with an informed, sprightly style. Since he claims he is a "devil's advocate," and because book is so close to present currents in drama (ending with 1961 season), work is destined for heated discussion among the wounded and the honored.

Weales sees the later plays of Tennessee Williams as the work of a "strident exotic . . . offering us pictures of hell." He is scarcely original in the notion that Arthur Miller has never equalled "Salesman," but at least the critic bases his theory on the view that this play grows with the passage of time, while only the faults in other Miller plays increase with age.

In a raffish chapter called "The Video Boys," Weales dissects Chayefsky, Foote, Mosel, Nash, Aurthur, David Shaw and producer Coe. He finds the theatre little richer for their pilgrimage from the tube. Book also treats adaptations, musical stage, off-Broadway, and of poets and novelists as dramatists. A sound and penetrating work. Rodo.

Ronie Haren has joined the cast of the Broadway-bound "Step on a Crack" as successor to Joey Heatherton, who withdrew from the production to return to the Perry Como tv show.

The Thrill is Gone

Walter Kerr, N.Y. Herald Tribune drama critic, says that one of the kicks of the job is the fan letters it brings—especially those addressed to him by mistake.

Last week he received a note from the New York head of an English publishing firm, congratulating him on his review of "The Affair" in the N.Y. Times.

B'way Is Bidding For 'Simple Man'

London, Oct. 9.

"Rattle of a Simple Man," Charles Dyer's three-character comedy which opened at the Garrick Theatre last month, is turning out to be a international theatrical project. Apart from several dickers for a Broadway showing, firm commitments have already been made for it to be staged in six European cities and deals are pending in five other countries.

The production, presented by Michael Codron, came in at a cost of $11,000, and opened Sept. 19 at the Garrick after six weeks out of town. It is expected to break even within about a month, and is now approaching a capacity weekly gross of $11,000, although last week's receipts were hurt by the one-day rail strike.

Eric Grass, agenting the property for Dyer and Codron, has had overtures from seven Broadway managements, including David Merrick, Alexander H. Cohen, Roger L. Stevens, Alfred de Liagre and the Theatre Guild. Additionally, he has closed deals for productions in Berlin, Vienna, Paris, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Oslo, and contracts are pending for Australia, Israel, Turkey, Poland and Italy.

The first of the European productions will open Nov. 15 in Berlin, with O. E. Hasse in the Edward Woodward role. The femme part, played by Sheila Hancock in London, has yet to be cast.

There is some talk of delaying a possible New York production until the two London principals are available, even though this may hold up the show for as much as a colple of years. It is felt the two are ideally suited. The third character is subsidiary, calling for only one brief appearance in the second act.

Chi Suburban Filmer To Go Legit for New Revue

Chicago, Oct. 9.

The Deerpath Theatre, a 980-seat film house in suburban Lake Forest, is converting to legit for a six-week run of Andre Villon's "Around the World in 80 Minutes," a revue with storyline using performers from a number of different countries. Villon, a Frenchman, is writer and producer, and will head a cast of 22.

The show opens here Oct. 16 and heads next for the Seattle World's Fair in December. Villon is understood to be seeking an off-Broadway engagement for 1963.

'Gay Knight'

Continued from page 2

newspaper organizations, and in political action, despite his handicaps (he gets about on one leg), mark him as an extraordinary human being.

Scully has known most of the important people of his time, many of them intimately, so he deals with a stellar cast of characters. As a dedicated apostle of good in a wicked world, Scully was created a Knight of St. Gregory (an order honoring one of the four great doctors of the Roman Catholic Church). At the time of his investment, a Jesuit observed: "You must be the first impecunious knight in the history of papal honors, and a good thing for a change."

Not all of Scully's book is sweetness and light. Like St. George, he has challenged dragons. The tales of his battles are as exciting as they are true. Best of all, Scully's book abounds with good will and hope, and carries the author's promise of another tome to come, next year, entitled "In Armour Bright."

Inside Stuff—Legit

The program note about producer David Merrick in the Playbill for "Stop The World," at the Shubert Theatre, N. Y. is a refreshingly sardonic appraisal: "The theatre's most amiable producer, David Merrick is revered by both competitors and associates. Throughout his illustrious career, he has shunned the glare of publicity and neatly sidestepped the briar patch of controversy. As an example of his affection for drama critics, he is the founder of the Annual David Merrick Award, given each year to the public's selection of the outstanding daily reviewer (the 1962-63 recipient was Walter Kerr of the Herald Tribune) . . ." The conventional credits follow. Merrick's publicist, Lee Solters (Solters, O'Rourke & Sabinson), whipped it up.

For the 100th birthday of Gabriele D'Annunzio, a special company will prepare his play "La Citta morta" (The Dead City) in which Eleanor Duse appeared at its world premiere to be given in Rome, Milan and at the "Vittoriale," D'Annunzio's last residence on Lake Garda with an openair theatre in which there is a yearly Festival of D'Annunzio plays in July. The play will be also brought to Paris' Theatre des Nations. Luciano Ardenzi will produce and Franco Zeffirelli direct. Valentina Cortese will play the lead.

Emil Maass, longtime correspondent of this paper in Vienna, reports that the second visit of the New York City Ballet there (after six years) enthused the Austrians much more than previously. "La Sonnambula" especially drew ovation. Allegra Kent was the standout as the sleepwalker. "Symphony in C" also scored big with Patrica Wilde, Jonathan Watts and Conrad Ludlow. Troupe flew directly from Vienna to the Soviet Union.

Georges Auric, head of the nationalized Opera and Opera-Comique, is in Paris to have all ballets at the two houses filmed. This will give a permanent record of the choreography.

Off-Broadway Reviews

Mister Roberts

Equity Library Theatre presentation of comedy in two acts by Thomas Heggen and Joshua Logan. Directed by Ed Sherin; settings, Robert Veberkmoes; lighting, Martin Aronstein. Opened Sept. 28, '62, at the Master Theatre, N.Y. Admission by contribution.

Cast: Earle Hyman, Dan Priest, Brooks Rogers, Edward Seamon, Vincent Dowling, Rick Colitti, Mitchell Nestor, David Watts, Martin Priest, James Vann, Sean Walsh, Hector Elizondo, William Ade, Robert Reilly, Don Billett, James Jennings, Mary Alice Bayh, William Larkins, Philip Dorian, Thomas Boynton, Jean Callender, John Battista, Ted Cole, Brian Corliss, Arthur Levy.

Although the topical impact of "Mister Roberts" diminishes as World War II recedes further into history, the play's comedy remains sturdy and enjoyable. It simply plays too well to be defeated, and a capable cast can recapture something of the original gloss. That is the noteworthy feature of the current revival commencing the 19th underwritten season of the Equity Library Theatre.

With but a few exceptions, this ELT company is up to the play's challenge, being engaging and alert to opportunity. Of the meatiest contributions, Earle Hyman is fine as Lt. (jg) Roberts, a role that's particularly fazing because all it commands in a comedy is sympathy rather than laughs.

Brooks Rogers delineates a dryly witty Doc with assurance, and William Ade's Ensign Pulver is excellent. Vincent Dowling's tyrannical captain of the AK-601 is not as shaded as it might be, yet still manages to be effective.

The Thomas Heggen-Joshua Logan text is an astute welding of farce and dramatic tension. Both Roberts and the captain as antagonists, are credible and sympathetic, and it's their relationship, after all, that gives the play thrust and necessary counterpoint.

Ed Sherin's direction strikes an appropriate tempo. Robert Verberkmoes has managed inventive sets for the small proscenium, and Martin Aronstein's lighting is simple and commendable. Pit.

Whisper Into My Good Ear and Mrs. Dally Has a Lover

Theatre 1963 (Richard Barr and Clinton Wilder) presentation of two one-act plays by William Hanley. Staged by Richard Altman; sets, William Ritman. Opened Oct. 1, '62, at the Cherry Lane Theatre, N.Y.; $4.20 top weeknights, $4.50 weekends.

Cast: Boris Tumarin, Roberts Blossom, Estelle Parsons, Robert Drivas.

The new double-bill at the Cherry Lane marks the debut of a talented new playwright, William Hanley. His view of life is refreshingly affirmative, and he knows how to make a point through humor, irony and pathos. Beautifully acted by four fine performers and staged with skill and ingenuity by Richard Altman, the two plays provide a rich and rewarding evening.

The curtain-raiser, "Whisper Into My Good Ear," is the moving story of two old men who meet in a park to fulfill a suicide pact. Although the play is too long, it is written with sensitivity and compassion, and it makes valid statements about the agonies of loneliness and about the simple but precious joys of everyday living. Boris Tumarin, as a Polish immigrant who telephones strangers just so he can hear a friendly voice, is touching and believable. Roberts Blossom is admirable as his companion, who clings to life although he is alone and losing his eyesight.

It is "Mrs. Dally Has a Lover," however, that most fully demonstrates Hanley's impressive talents. The plot, which deals with the love of a married woman for a boy almost young enough to be her son, is not especially original. But Hanley has created two real and sympathetic characters, and a sense of truth and human dignity flows through the play.

Estelle Parsons turns in a memorable performance as the woman who realizes that the love affair can only be temporary, but tries to teach the boy the meaning of love so that he can "pass it on." Miss Parsons is heartbreakingly effective, and projects great warmth. She also makes the most of the play's humorous moments, and in addition sings one song nicely. Robert Drivas is also excellent as the boy, conveying just the right combination of brashness and humility.

Much of the credit for such a fine production must be accorded the imaginative and subtle staging of Richard Altman. The gestures and movement heighten the effectiveness of the scripts. The sets by William Ritman are fine, providing an expressive background for a presentation of unusual quality. Kenn.

Touring Shows

(Figures cover Oct. 7-21)

Beyond the Fringe (tryout)—Colonial, Boston (Oct. 8-20).

Calculated Risk (tryout)—Shubert, New Haven (Oct. 9-13); Walnut, Philly (Oct. 15-20).

Caretaker—Sombrero, Phoenix (Oct. 16-21).

Carnival (2d Co.)—State Fair, Dallas (Oct. 7-21).

Carnival (bus-truck)—Bushnell, Hartford (Oct. (19-20).

Come Blow Your Horn—Moore, Seattle (Oct. 8-13); Geary, S.F. (Oct. 15-20).

D'Oyly Carte Opera Co.—Northrop Mpls. (Oct. 8-9); Bushnell, Hartford (Oct. 11-14); National, Washington (Oct. 15-20).

Fun Couple (tryout)—Forrest, Philly (Oct. 8-13, moves to N.Y.).

Hostage—Hanna, Cleve. (Oct. 8-13); American, St. L. (Oct. 15-20).

Kismet—Philharmonic, L.A. (Oct. 8-20).

Little Me (tryout)—Erlanger, Philly (Oct. 8-20).

Lord Pengo (tryout)—Locust, Philly (Oct. 11-20).

Mary, Mary (2d Co.)—Blackstone, Chi (Oct. 8-20).

Mary, Mary (bus-truck)—One-niters (Oct. 8-10); Memorial, L'ville (Oct. 11-13); Hartman, Columbus (Oct. 15-20).

Matter of Position (tryout)—Walnut, Philly (Oct. 8-13, closes).

Mr. President (tryout)—National, Wash. (Oct. 8-13, moves to N.Y.).

My Fair Lady—Auditorium, Oklahoma City (Oct. 9-13); Orpheum, Madison, Wis. (Oct. 16-20).

Nowhere to Go But Up (tryout)—Shubert, Philly (Oct. 8-20).

Oliver (tryout)—Curran, S.F. (Oct. 8-20).

Perfect Setup (tryout)—Hartman, Columbus (Oct. 11-13); Hanna, Cleve. (Oct. 15-20).

Playboy of the Western World—Ford's, Balto (Oct. 8-13); Her Majesty's, Montreal (Oct. 15-20).

Program for Two Players—Fisher, Detroit (Oct. 15-20).

Shot in the Dark—Playhouse, Wilmington (Oct. 17-20).

Shot in the Dark (bus-truck)—Masonic, Rochester (Oct. 11-13); mostly one-niters (Oct. 15-20).

Sound of Music (2d Co.)—Shubert, Chi (Oct. 8-20).

Sound of Music (bus-truck)—Split-week stands (Oct. 8-20).

Step on a Crack (tryout)—Fisher, Det. (Oct. 8-13, moves to N.Y.).

Tchin-Tchin (tryout)—Wilbur, Boston (Oct. 8-20).

Plays Wait For Paris Bookings; Flops Aplenty

Paris, Oct. 9.

Legit openings are more frequent in Paris these days than plastic bombs used to be during the Algerian troubles. An average of five openings a week, since the season's start, has kept reviewers hopping. However, no true hit is in sight yet.

Critics have been knocking down most entries like bowling pins, but, in a spirit of regret. After the Automobile Salon, an artificial market, few of newcomers are likely to be open long. Big spate of other plays are waiting, to fill Paris' 55 legiters all season.

Prolific Jacques Audiberti has two plays on stage. "Pomme, Pomme, Pomme" (Apple, Apple, Apple), at the La Bruyere, is an infectious metaphore on Adam and Eve transplanted to modern Paris. This clicks but "La Brigitta" (The Motorcycle), at the Athenee, is a symbolical look at a waif's rise to film stardom, is just too verbose and misfires.

Michel Andre-Roger Bernstein "L'Idee D'Elodie" (Elodie's Idea), at the Michel, appears a weary family comedy of feuding in-laws that looms in for a limited time. Ditto Jean Meyers' "Mic Mac," at the Palais Royale, a glib comedy about upper class jealousies that lacks comedic bite and insight.

Andre Castelot's comedy about royal shenanigans in 16th century France, "La Reine Galante," at the Ambassadeurs, is more a bedroom farce than a historical play and somewhat lame in both departments. It looks to limp along only for a while.

Late Curzio Malaparte's "Les Femmes Aussi Ont Perdu La Guerre" (Women Also Lost the War) looks dispassionately at forced prostitution in Vienna under Russo occupation during the last war. But it has mainly idea and not the dramatic force to make it a searing, meaningful look at war's degrading after effects. Unlikely tenure at the Theatre Mathurins.

Novelist Romain Gary's first play, "Johnnie Couer," is a bitter satire on human gullibility but more preachy than theatrical and also in receiving critical darts and not showing much staying power at the Theatre Michodiere.

Comedy team, Roger-Pierre and Jean-Marc Thibault, have concocted a clever musical comedy "Les Plumes Rouges" (The Red Feathers) which is a step forward in tuners here but not of export potential. It may have a nice run at the big-sized Alhambra.

A new private rep company, Le Theatre Vivant (The Living Theatre), housed at the Athenee and headed by Francoise Spira, has Frank Wedekind's "Lulu," Marguerite Duras and James Lord's adaptation of a Henry James short story "La Bete Dans La Jungle" (The Beast in the Jungle), and the aforementioned Audiberti opus "Brigitta."

"Lulu," a 1920's tale of a nymphomaniac, seemed old hat to most scribes but a fetching show theatrewise, while "Beast," a two-character affair of repressed emotions and inability to love, was felt a fragile but poignant entry. These two may do all right with buffs but "Brigitta" looks out. However the group needs stronger items before it can be tagged a new theatrical force here. But it looks promising.

Sacha Pitoeff's playing and mounting of the first Anton Checkhov play "Ivanov" appears in for a nice career at the Comedie De Paris. This tale of a guilt-ridden, doomed man's inability to find himself or a place in society is given knowing thesping and intelligent staging.

Late Bertolt Brecht's early 1920's play "In the Jungle of the Cities" was in for rousing reviews at the Studio Des Champes-Elysees, and this dramatically canny tale of the difficulties of communication was felt a forerunner of today's avant-garde plays.

"Trencavel," by Robert Collon, a play about religious persecution and strife in medieval France, was found lacking a verbal and dramatic force, though well meaning and well played. Under today's more costly production policies it does not look to be in for a run. It is at the Montparnasse Theatre.

Good News!

New High Dividend

For Long Term Money on Deposit on or before Oct. 16, 1961

Anticipated for quarterly period Oct. 1 thru Dec. 31, 1962

Based on continuance of favorable earnings

4 1/4 % A YEAR

3¾% Regular Dividend
Plus ½% Extra Dividend

Why "It Pays to Save" at The Bank for Savings

SPECIALISTS IN SAVINGS

Since 1819 when The Bank for Savings pioneered the mutual savings bank idea, it has specialized in savings services only.

Its sole function was then and is today to safeguard your money and make it grow faster with compound interest.

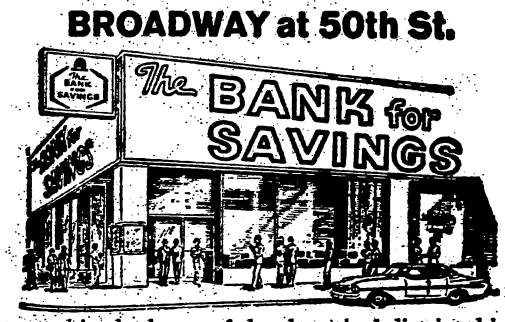
FAMOUS FIRSTS

The Bank for Savings in 1830 made the first savings bank mortgage loan in the State; in 1836 the first ever made on privately owned property.

Saving by Mail, another first, was introduced in 1862 by The Bank for Savings for Civil War soldiers. Today this service is world-wide.

$419,000,000 DIVIDENDS PAID

Since 1819 The Bank for Savings has paid depositors continuous dividends...the one savings bank in all New York that has paid dividends 143 years in a row.



The BANK FOR SAVINGS

NEW YORK'S FIRST SAVINGS BANK

Main Office—Park Av. So. at 22nd St.
B'way at 50th St. 3rd Av. at 72nd St.
B'way at 86th St. Lexington at 78th St.

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporati

NEW ★★★★ OFFICE
BROADWAY at 50th St.

Located in the heart of the theatrical district this is the Bank's fifth Manhattan Office.

15 Extra Dividend Days

Money deposited by Monday, Oct. 15 earns interest from Oct. 1

- Interest Compounded 4 Times a Year
- Accounts welcomed from $1 to $15,000
- Joint and Trust Accounts, $30,000

If You Want More for YOUR Money
Use This Coupon to Open Your Savings Account

SAVE BY MAIL—We Pay Postage

THE BANK FOR SAVINGS
280 Park Ave. So., New York 10, N. Y.

Enclosed for deposit is $.....
Please open a Savings Account as checked

☐ Individual Account
☐ In my name in trust for .....
☐ In my name jointly with .....

Mrs.
Miss .....
Mr.
Address .....

City ..... Zone ..... State .....

Y

CASTING NEWS

Following are available parts in upcoming Broadway, off-Broadway, and touring shows, as well as ballet, films, industrial and television shows. All information has been obtained directly by the VARIETY Casting Department by telephone calls, and has been rechecked as of noon yesterday (Tues.).

The available roles will be repeated weekly until filled, and additions to the list will be made only when information is secured from responsible parties. The intention is to service performers with leads provided by the managements of the shows involved rather than to run a wild goose marathon. This information is published without charge.

Parenthetical designations are as follows: (C) Comedy, (D) Drama, (MC) Musical Comedy, (MD) Musical Drama, (R) Revue, (Rep) Repertory, (DR) Dramatic Reading, (DB) Double Bill.

Legit

BROADWAY

"Fanny Brice Story" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N. Y.; LO 3-7520). Available parts: man, about 30, must sing, handsome, affable; man, John Garfield type, must sing; femme, dance, attractive and sad, pert; femme, Thelma Ritter type, wise, sympathetic but not sentimental; man, authoritative showman, gentleman. Mail photos and resumes to Casting Department c/o producer.

"How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" (C). Producers, Cy Feuer & Ernest Martin (205 W. 46th St. N. Y. 36; JU 6-5555). All parts available for the National and London productions. Mail photos and resumes to Larry Kasha c/o producers or have agent phone him for appointment.

"Oliver" (MC). Producer, David Merrick (246 W. 44th St., N.Y.; LO 3-7520). Seeking future possible replacements: boys, 7-10, must sing, 54" tall or shorter. Mail photos and resumes or call Casting Department at above address and number.

"Poet" (MC). Producer, Jon R. Hicken (Rolnick Enterprises; 1650 Broadway, N. Y.; LT 1-6168). Available parts: man, 38, over six feet tall, roguish in appearance, well-built baritone, women and whisky minded; femme, 29, about five feet, nine inches tall, attractive, soprano, well spoken; man, 40, milk toast type Columbia professor; femme, 21, beatnik, attractive, soprano, well spoken; man, 40, ex-wrestler from lower east side, tenor, comic relief, owns posh catering house and village bar; man, 24, Spanish gypsy, baritone, plays guitar, roguish looking; chorus of 15 to 20 male and femme singers dancers and assorted types. For audition appointment mail photos and resumes to producer and casting director, Lou Bolton c/o above address.

"Sound of Music" (MD). Producers, Richard Rodgers & Oscar Hammerstein 2d (488 Madison Ave., N. Y.; casting director, Eddie Blum. Auditions for possible future replacements for girls, 7-16, and boys, 11-14 all with trained voices. characters. Mail photos and resumes to above address.

"Student Gypsy or Prince of Liederkranz" (MC). Producer, Edward Padula (Padula Productions; 1501 Broadway, N. Y., Suite 2405; OX 5-8170). Available parts: man, middle age comedian, European accent, sings; femme, exotic, saucy, young and pretty soubrette, singer-actress, man, early 20s, tall, handsome, legit baritone, typical operetta hero; man, early 20s, dancer, young villain; femme, middle age, legit contralto, tyrant, heavy build; man, singer-actor, shy and retiring officer; man, middle age, European accent, regal, sings; nine femmes, ensemble, young, attractive, dancing secondary; nine men, ensemble, tall, handsome, legit voices, dancing secondary. Mail photos and resumes to Robert Fagan c/o producer at above address. Auditions set after receiving applications. Do not phone or visit.

OFF-BROADWAY

"Hazel Flagg" (MC). Producer, Peter Cereghetti (c/o Wellington Hotel, 871 Seventh Ave., N. Y.; CI 7-3900). Available parts: femme, early or mid-40s, widow, attractive, Madison Avenue type; leading man, early 30s, political expert, mag writer; leading lady, early 20s, energetic, too much vitality; man, about 60, smalltown doctor; femme, exotic; man, heavy dancer; man, middleaged, Ted Lewis-Al Smith type, talkative. All parts must sing and dance. Mail photos and resumes to producer. Appointment will be made after receiving resumes. Do not phone or visit.

National Repertory Theatre Foundation (322 E. 50th St. N. Y.; PL 2-5640). Producers, Michael Dewell & Frances Ann Hersey, director, Jack Sydow. Auditions later this season for actors with training in classic theatre, speech and movement. No one need apply whose work is known to the producers and director. Tours under the auspices of ANTA. Mail photos and resumes to Dewell, c/o theatre, at above address. Do not phone or visit.

"Premise" (R). Producer, Theodore J. Flicker (154 Bleeker St., N. Y. 12, N. Y.). Available parts for actors and actress experienced in improvisational theatre. Mail photos and resumes to director, George Morrison c/o producer Do not phone or visit.

"When Burlesque Was King" (MC). Producers, Jerry Gross & Stephen Weinroth (Jerry Gross Productions, 620 W. 171st St., N. Y. 32, N. Y.; WA 8-9580). Available parts for attractive, strippers and specialty dancers, 18-30. Mail photos and resumes to above address or phone for appointment.

OUT OF TOWN

Compass Improvisational Theatre. Producer, William Court Cohen (235 E. 39th St., N.Y.) Equity company to play in Boston early fall. Seeking male and femme with or without improvisational experience. Mail photos and resumes to David Shepherd c/o above address. Do not phone or visit.

BALTIMORE

Relay Players. Director, Gavin Fletcher (21 Holly Rd., Severna Park, Md.; area code 301 647-2088). Parts available for male and femme actors for this repertory company which will open shortly with productins of "Hamlet" and some one-acters by Eugene Ionesco. Mail photos and resumes c/o above address.

MILWAUKEE, WISC.

Hotel Pfister. Producer Joyce Henry (c/o hotel, Milwaukee 2, Wisconsin). Series of tab musicals opening in early fall for a 52-week season. Parts available for three men and three femmes, singer-performers with legit and non-legit voices, dance ability preferred. Mail photos and resumes to producer c/o hotel.

Cabaret

LAS VEGAS

Tropicana. (c/o Ray Evans Agency, 119 W. 57th St., N.Y.; CI 6-2230). Spots available for showgirls over five feet, eight inches tall; male dancers over five feet, 11 inches tall; femme dancers over five feet, seven inches tall. For audition appointment call Miss Frank, above number. Show goes into rehearsal in November.

NEW YORK

Strollers Theatre Club. Producer, John Krimsky (154 E. 54th St., N.Y.; PL 2-4711). Parts available for experienced and authentic French music hall performers for a new French revue to open before Xmas. Mail photos and resumes to Ivor D. Balding, c/o above address.

Miscellaneous

Riverside Chamber Singers. Director, Alan Baker (321 W. 22d St., N. Y.; CH 3-0869). All-AGMA sextet auditioning for a low bass who's an excellent sight reader and has good solo quality. Must be willing to tour for up to four weeks at a time. For audition appointment call David Dodds, NE 9-6718 or TR 3-7736.

Robert Simpson Revues. Producer, Robert Simpson (2217 E. Kenilworth Place, Milwaukee 2, Wisc.; 414 BR 2-3071). Auditions for fresh talent for variety shows and musical revues for the Del Prado Hotel and Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago; Chase Hotel, St. Louis and Park Lane Hotel, Denver. Equity call tomorrow (Thurs.): men dancers 11 a.m.; femme dancers, 12 noon; men singers, 2 p.m.; femme singers, 3:30 p.m.—at the Variety Arts Studios (225 W. 46th St., NY).

NEED A WEST COAST REPRESENTATIVE?
Dorathi Bock Pierre
Contracts — Promotion Publicity — Contracts — Special Services — Bookings — Transportation : Legitimate Productions Concert Attractions
Telephone 789-5972 • Area Code 213
4136 MAMMOTH AVENUE
SHERMAN OAKS, CALIFORNIA
P.O Box #127, Beverly Hills, Calif.

REWARD
FOR BEAUTIFUL BLONDES*
REVLON will care for your hair free in exchange for six days a year of your time.
For information call Miss Martin
JU 6-1355

Daily Variety

LEGIT TRYOUT

THE PERFECT SETUP

Phoenix, Sept. 20.—Producer Martin Melcher has parlayed a crisp script, firstrate cast and brisk direction into "The Perfect Setup"—an exciting zany piece of three-act theatre fare. This tryout run, which started Tuesday night, will be SRO for all seven performances at the Sombrero. Play moves on to San Francisco and the Geary Tuesday (24).

At first glance the plot of "Setup" appears trite. It concerns the peccadillos of a young advertising cuckold whose frustrations are compounded when he and his mistress discover his ever-faithful wife in a compromising position with a gentleman-friend of her own. How to dispose of his bride's paramour and retain the services of his sensual mistress is the gist of the play. It's that simple, but the facile, witty scenario of Jack Sher and director Lamont Johnson's disciplined players have congered a biting, giddy commentary on the ultra-modern marriage.

A Martin Melcher production, co-produced by Selma Tamber; a three-act comedy (three scenes) staged by Lamont Johnson; an original comedy written by Jac Sher; settings, Jack McCullagh; costumes, Frank Thompson; lighting, Conrad Penrod. Opened Sept. 13, '62 at the Sombrero Playhouse, Phoenix, $1.75 top.
Cast: Gene Barry, Angie Dickinson, Jan Sterling.

The fable, at this tryout stage, is understandably a bit fuzzy but Acts One and Two are snug and almost ready. Unfortunately, the third stanza is a bit limp and tends to suffer by comparison. Apparently scripter Sher has the acumen to beef up this deficiency. When he does "Setup" can expect to be in residency at the Cort Theatre for quite a spell (target date for Broadway opening is Oct. 24).

Gene Barry's performance as the hapless, harassed husband-lover stamps him as a strong contender in the drawing-room, light-comedy field that the theatre has been searching for lo these many years. Jan Sterling, the patient, addlepated wife, sells the excellent performance one has learned to expect from the delightful, exacting pro. Newcomer Angie Dickinson from tv and pix is a pleasant surprise as the mistress. Play, incidentally, is a histrionic reunion for Miss Dickinson and Barry. They had lead roles in the 1957 pic "China Gate." O'Haf.

Legit Bits

Ralph Meeker finished out the run last week of "The Best Man" at the Playhouse on the Mall, Paramus, N.J., in the part Frank Lovejoy had been playing prior to his death Oct. 2. Barbara Berjer took over the role in which Joan Banks, Lovejoy's widow, had been appearing.

Phil Friedman, production stage manager for the upcoming "Little Me," is also production supervisor for "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Broadway musical director Lehman Engel and writer-producer-director Jay Gorney will conduct respective courses in songstyling for professional singers and playwriting at the Musical Theatre Academy of N.Y. this semester.

"The Love of Two Hours," by Max G. Weine, is planned by the Almadan Co. for an Oct. 26 opening at the Actors Playhouse, N.Y., under the direction of Stanley Waren.

Al Goldin is general manager of the upcoming Broadway production of "The Advocate," for which Ralph Alswang is designing the sets and lighting.

Howard Bay, Broadway set designer and president of the United Scenic Artists, will teach set designing at the Circle in the Square Theatre School, N.Y., beginning Nov. 1.

"Dylan," a play by Sidney Michaels about Dylan Thomas, is planned for New York production by George W. George and Frank Granat.

British actress Barbara Murray, currently in "The Collection" in London, is scheduled to withdraw soon to make her American legit debut in the Broadway production of "In The Counting House."

A repertory of Jean Cocteau plays, the first of which is to be "Intimate Relations" ("Les Parents Terribles"), is scheduled to open Oct. 29 at the Mermaid Theatre, N.Y., under the production auspices of Maidman Playhouses.

LONDON SHOWS

(Figures denote opening dates)

Beyond Fringe, Fortune (5-10-62).
Black Nativity, Phoenix (8-14-62).
Blitz, Adelphi (5-8-62).
Blow Horn, Prince Wales (2-27-62).
Boeing-Boeing, Apollo (2-20-62).
Breaking Point, Lyric (9-5-62).
Brecht on Brecht, Royal Ct. (9-11-62).
Chips With, Vaudeville (4-27-62).
Do Something, Royal E. (9-13-62).
Doctors of Philosophy, Arts (10-2-62).
Escape Eden, Lyric, H'smith (10-3-62).
Every Night, Palladium (6-1-62).
Fiorello, Piccadilly (10-8-62).
Gentlemen Prefer, Princes (8-20-62).
Lock Daughters, Her Majesty's (5-17-62).
Minstrels, Vic. Palace (5-25-62).
Miss Pell, Criterion (9-12-62).
Mousetrap, Ambassador (11-25-52).
Mrs. Puffin, Duchess (7-18-61).
Music Midnight, Westm'r (5-4-62).
My Fair Lady, Drury Lane (4-30-58).
New Men, Strand (9-6-62).
Oliver, New (6-30-60).
One For the Pot, Whitehall (8-2-61).
Period Adjustment, Wynd. (6-13-62).
Photo Finish, Saville (4-25-62).
Plough & Stars, Mermaid (9-25-62).
Premise, Comedy (7-26-62).
Private; Public, Globe (5-10-62).
Rattle of Man, Garrick (9-19-62).
Repertory, Aldywich (12-15-60).
Sail Away, Savoy (6-21-62).
Signpost, Cambridge (2-9-62).
School for Scandal, Haymarket (4-5-62).
Sound of Music, Palace (3-18-61).
Stop the World, Queens (7-20-61).
Talking to You, Duke York's (10-3-62).

CLOSED

10 Little Niggers, St. Mart. (9-10-62); closed last Saturday (6) after 32 performances.

SCHEDULED OPENINGS

Rock-A-Bye, Phoenix (10-16-62).
End of Day, Arts (10-16-62).
Eastward Hoi, Mermaid (10-17-62).
Kill 2 Birds, St. Martin's (10-25-62).
What a Crazy World, Royal E. (10-30-62).
Happy Days, Royal Court (11-1-62).
Cheap Bunch Flowers, Arts (11-12-62).
Witch of Edmonton, Mermaid (11-21-62).

Vancouver Fest

Continued from page 61

services of artistic director Dino Yannopoulos, but only in an advisory capacity at present. His contract was to have been signed this month, but has been held in abeyance pending further negotiation.

Beaupre said that the objective of attaining tighter control over expenditure had been realized in this year's operation but he and his directors were not satisfied that the Festival entertainment was suitable for Vancouver, as the ticket sales had demonstrated. He revealed that the Society will set up a small and select committee, made up of non-partisan members, to conduct an independent survey to try to interpret community preferences, explaining that the Society wants to know "if the people of Vancouver want a Festival, what kind of a Festival they want, when they want it staged, and for how long."

Other plays scheduled for the repertory, which will be directed by Matt Cimber, include "Orphee," "Antigone" and "The Holy Terrors."

A prize of $1,000 is being offered for the best full-length play for children in English on a Jewish theme by the Jewish Theatre for Children in its annual Golden Pen Playwriting Contest which ends next April 15.

JERRY ELLIS
Recently Featured in the Summer Stock Productions of KING AND I
BYE BYE BIRDIE
GLASS MENAGERIE
TUNNEL OF LOVE FAIR GAME
Currently Appearing as Featured Singer
on
CARIBBEAN CRUISE
October 12-25
Contact: PLaza 7-3995

STARLET TELLS ALL
"I tell all my friends to get their thrills at Belmont race track," says starlet Mary Murgatroyd. "It's got everything!" Get sunshine! Fresh air! Excitement! Dine on the luxurious terrace. See 9 big thoroughbred races, too. 1st race 1:30. Easy to reach by car, LIRR, or subway and bus. Belmont's a great show!

Shows Out of Town

Continued from page 60

Nowhere to Go But Up

club and record singer who has the instincts of a comedienne along with a flexible and secure voice. She projects with humor the lachrymose ballad, "Odds and Ends of Love," and paces the girls through the show's most likely number "No Where To Go But Up," which is reprised effectively for the gangland obsequies.

Ronald Field's choreography generally seems further along than the show's other departments, which at this time indicates overtime work during the four-week Philadelphia stay.

In line with the current practice of non-singers assuming vocal roles, Bosley and Balsam make a half dozen valiant tries, the happiest of which is their duet "When a Fella Needs a Friend." They are patently less at ease when called upon to blend the melody with the contemporary scoring of "A Couple of Clowns."

Bruce Gordon, familiar through the "Untouchables" television series, is virtually type cast as the menacing comedy gang boss, but the character is a stereo that dates back to early Zanuck. Mary Ann Mobley, a former "Miss America" contest winner, was called in at the last minute as the ingenue replacement, working opposite Bert Convy. Incontestably pretty, she sings, dances and acts acceptably. Phil Leeds plays the Bronxian waiter suffering from occupational bad feet and, of course, the overall dearth of laugh material. Gagli.

Tchin-Tchin

Boston, Oct. 7.

David Merrick presentation of Warner LeRoy production of comedy-drama in three acts (11 scenes), by Sidney Michaels, based on the play by Francois Billetdoux. Staged by Peter Glenville; settings and lighting, Will Steven Armstrong; costumes, Theoni Aldredge. Stars Anthony Quinn, Margaret Leighton. Opened Oct. 6, '62, at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston; $5.50 top.

Pamela Pew-Pickett ..... Margaret Leighton
Caesario Grimaldi ..... Anthony Quinn
Robert Pickett ..... Charles Grodin
Multitude of People ..... Jean Barker, Sandy Baron

"Tchin-Tchin" is a torrid quasi-comedy, a tour de force for its two stars, Anthony Quinn and Margaret Leighton, on stage together throughout the entire play. It is dramatic, concrete in sex details, and at times wildly funny. It achieves a knowing look at the relationship of an ill-assorted couple whose respective spouses are having an affair.

Sapient, sexy, astute and sophisticated, it is a provocative work by Sidney Michaels. The author uses explicit, updated dialog with shock effect, and scenes ranging from seduction to abortion in a new and welcome type of play.

The comedy is played close to tears, and the audience is never allowed to forget that these are tragic people. The production needs work in its final scene of the third act, which is actually an extension of the second act, with the curtain lowered momentarily between.

A rough-diamond Italian contractor and a British lady meet to discuss what is to be done about their spouses. From this meeting in a tearoom of Rockefeller Center, N. Y., they go on to rounds of boozing and nightclubs, trying to forget their unhappiness.

These activities, in which the broad differences between the two characters are amusingly pointed out, culminate with what may be one of the funniest trysts and attempted seductions in a sleazy hotel room ever played on stage. Miss Leighton is tremendous in this scene as the lady tries to go along with the contractor, but all the while fighting with herself and her dignity.

The second act finds the two living together as brother and sister in the lady's apartment, their spouses having divorced them and remarried. During a drunken orgy, in which the lady's 19-year-old son gets locked in a closet, the stars have a field day in broad comedy, perhaps too broad. He in his shorts and she in her dressing gown, smash furniture, pound on the floor, scream out the windows and take turns in hurling bawdy invectives at the neighbors.

After the furious pace of rowdy comedy, it may be hard for audiences to take the third-act breakoff in which the characters, having searched for their souls and stripped themselves of their wordly goods, float hand in hand into the sunset. However, "Tchin-Tchin" may be a hit if the final scene can be cleared up and sharper accent achieved throughout on laugh lines and business. There are good film possibles, if the dialog is cleaned up and the vague fantasy ending fixed.

The show could probably make it on the strength of the vivid portrayals of Quinn and Miss Leighton. He plays the sad, impulsive heartbroken contractor with fine shades of acting. She is quicksilver in her eloquent portrait.

Charles Grodin provides a sharply edged characterization of the son, and Jean Barker and Sandy Baron are slick as a "multitude of people" in walkons. Peter Glenville's staging is masterful, keeping the varying moods in the right tempo. Will Steven Armstrong's 11 sets are striking, from nightclubs to doctor's office, apartment, hotel room. Theoni Aldredge's costuming is fine. Guy

"EDDIE FISHER AT WINTER GARDEN"

(Continued from Page 1)

It Get You Down," "You Made Me Love You," "This Nearly Was Mine" (in rhumba rhythm, and very effective), "Never On Sunday" (in Greek, yet), "Mack the Knife" (in German, likewise) and a Yiddish song in Yiddish. "Liza," "Sittin' On Top of the World," "Swanee," "April Showers," "Toot-toot-Tootsie," "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee," a beautifully-arranged hunk of "West Side Story," "Moon River" with almost no accompaniment, "Rock-a-bye My Baby," "Making Whoopee," and so on far into the night.

"EDDIE FISHER AT THE WINTER GARDEN." Presented by Monte Proser and Milto Blackstone. directed by John Fearnley. Associate producer, Bernie Rich. Musical director, Eddy Samuels; settings by Oliver Smith; lighting by Peggy Clark; orchestrations by Jerry Fielding. Mr. Fisher's entire music program under supervision of Colin Romoff.

THE CAST

Eddie Fisher, Juliet Prowse, Dick Gregory.

The whole production is tastefully mounted, well-rehearsed and ingeniously lit. When Eddie speaks, which he does without ostentation, it is in simple and graceful phrase. He is now a boy grown up, and if his tempestuous private life has left any scars they don't show.

To prepare the clients for the lad's return, there is a first act which stars Juliet Prowse and Dick Gregory, and an inventive opening number called "The Broadway Zoo."

Dick Gregory, is an extremely gifted comedian somewhat in the Will Rogers tradition. He pokes fun at politics, integration, world problems in general, most of which is thoughtful and witty.

The Miss Prowse part of the program, which follows, is again fastidiously put together with fresh and fetching music and lyrics by Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen, dances by Tony Charmoli and ravishing costumes by Ray Aghayan.

Miss Prowse is herself a most decorative and versatile young lady with an absolutely dreamy figure which she is unloath to display.

To display her pipes she sang "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered" in a diaphanous gown; it was a distinctive arrangement and she did it very well, I thought. Then she finally wound up with a big number wherein she plays various heroines of literature as they would be presented in a Broadway musical.

The entire evening, in fact, is rather a star-spangled occasion, especially the regeneration of Mr. Fisher. Added credits should be awarded to John Fearnley, who directed; Oliver Smith, who designed the sets, Peggy Clark, for the lights, and the team of Monte Proser and Milton Blackstone, who put it all together.

London Ad Boycott

Continued from page 61

Society, has an undoubted right to publish its "Quick Theatre Guide." As this feature is published as an expression of public opinion, it would be helpful to the public if judgments were always based on recent visits to the theatre.

"Although every advertiser has the clear right to withdraw his advertisements, the general withdrawal of this classified advertising from the Observer is regarded and deprecated by the Press Council as an attempt to influence editorial policy."

At the producer organization's regular monthly meeting last Thursday (4), it was decided to ignore the Press Council criticism and not restore the classified ads in the Observer.

The recommendation that members should not advertize in the Observer continues, though they are free to do so if they wish. It's expected, however, that managements will maintain a solid front and withhold ads as long as the paper runs the "potted criticism."

In a statement to VARIETY, prior to the session, producer Peter Saunders, who was President of the Society when the dispute arose, declared, "I have no comment to make on the Press Council's findings, but it is interesting to note that whilst the complaint about the Society's action was the subject of a complaint to the Royal Commission on the Press, the Royal Commission, in their recent report stated, 'Advertisers do not, however, owe any particular publication a living, and it is quite unreasonable to expect them to advertise in publications in which they do not want to advertise.'

"The Royal Commission also said, 'Those who emphasize freedom of expression to newspapers and magazines should not deny freedom of choice to advertisers'."

Continental Concerts

Continued from page 61

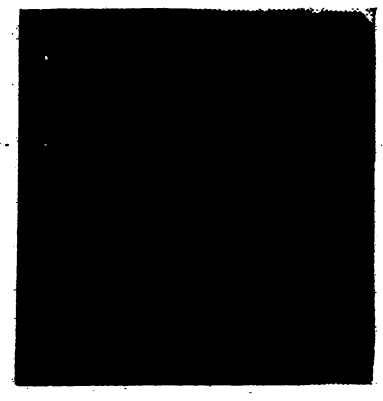
presented on Broadway during the 1960-61 season. It had a 16-week Main Stem run and subsequently toured, playing both Montreal and Toronto last year.

The second legit presentation being toured this season by Continental is the Irish Plyaers production of "Playboy of the Western World," which opened last Friday night (5) at the Playhouse, Wilmington. National Tours, Ltd., a subsidiary of Continental, is presenting the John Millington Synge play, which the Irish Players revived off-Broadway in 1958.

The Independent Booking Office, which sets dates for most touring productions, is working with Continental on the "Hostage" and "Playboy" bookings for the first half of the season. Both shows are slated to play prime time for their few months on the road and then go into college dates booked by Continental, which is headed by Hattie Althoff with Leon Sternberg and Budd Filippo as associates.

The Old Globe Theatre, Balboa Park, San Diego, opened its 26th season last night (9) with a production of "The Fantastics."

BARBARA MEISTER



as MARIA in

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

SHUBERT THEATRE, CHICAGO
NATIONAL COMPANY

"Barbara Meister, the new Maria, rings like the best crystal and has the qualities of serenity, beauty and spirit to be utterly right."

—CLAUDIA CASSIDY,
Chicago Tribune.

Management
RICHARD ASTOR
Agency

4 Mergers

Publishing mergers continue apace.

Holt, Rinehart & Winston have made a coproduction deal with Tupper & Love, the Atlanta (Ga.) house, for a series of joint imprints. Teeing off with a series on "Listen to Leaders in Business," to be followed by "Listen to Leaders in Law." The late Tristram Tupper was succeeded by James Sloan Childers, former editor of the Atlanta Journal, as president and Albert Love became board chairman. Firm published "Together: Annals of an Army Wife," by Katherine Tupper Marshall, wife of General George C. Marshall, former Secretary of State, which sold some 400,000 copies.

American Heritage Pub. Co. Inc., has taken over Retirement Counsel Inc.

Cowles Magazines & Broadcasting Inc. has acquired Family Circle Magazine through a stock payment of 6,000 of its preferred and 312,500 common. FC is a monthly sold primarily in 27,000 chain and independent supermarkets and grocery stores, with 7,000,000 monthly circulation. FC publisher P. K. Leberman and proxy C. J. Schaefer will be elected to the board of Cowles. Stock value is for the Family Circle buy placed at $3,500,000 in current Cowles stock values.

Ga.'s Obscenity Law K.O.'d

Georgia's obscenity law was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court. Ruling came on a case involving an Atlanta newsstand, Dixie News, in which two men were indicted for selling and possessing "certain indecent, obscene and immoral pictorial magazines, pamphlets and booklets."

Lonnie Simpson and M. G. Thevis were indicted on the charges by a Fulton County Grand Jury, Mar. 15, and the case was carried to the high court when defendants attacked constitutionality of law.

Newell Edenfield, their attorney, contended the obscenity law "exempts radio and television stations, moving picture theatres and newspapers from its operations, while subjecting all others to criminal liability."

In reversing lower court's overruling of defendants' demurrer to dismiss the case, Chief Justice W. H. Duckworth declared that the Law "is the rankest sort of discrimination."

While the law states it is illegal to sell or possess magazines, pamphlets or booklets with obscene material, Justice Duckworth said the law was unconstitutional because of this section:

"Provided that any legitimate or licensed radio station, television station, moving picture theatre or newspaper published primarily for the distribution of public news, shall be exempt from the provisions of this act."

Chief Justice said this exemption renders the law offensive . . . and for that reason the act is unconstitutional and void."

Other justices concurred with Justice Duckworth, who added: "The lower court erred in overruling the demurrer containing this ground and refusing to dismiss the indictment" against Simpson and Thevis.

Fields' Suner Syndicate

Marshall Field Jr., publisher of the Chicago Sun-Times and Chicago Daily News, has purchased the 37-year-old Publishers Syndicate. The new enterprise will be known as the Field Newspaper Syndicate and will start with a combined clientele of 1,785 daily and weekly newspapers.

The new syndicate will include the Daily News foreign service, the Ann Landers, Bill Mauldin, Dr. Joseph G. Molner, plus many other columnists, cartoonists and comic strips. It will rank among the top four feature syndicates in the country.

Another Neophyte's Saga

"Underfoot in Show Business" by Helene Hanff (Harper & Row; $4) is a light-hearted recap of the author's brush with the theatre and TV before she graduated to writing children's books and magazine articles.

Miss Hanff and her girl friend, Mixne Stuart, stormed offices of agents and producers in best tradition of struggling tyros, and some of their adventures make jolly reading. Author misplaces the famous Ralph's restaurant, former hangout of unemployed actors, moving it from West 45th St. into 8th Ave., but since she is recalling an era when "Life With Father" was the town's brightest hit, and Theron Bamberger was producing at Bucks County, slight haziness in recollection is not surprising.

Miss Hanff's memories of her term as assistant to late Joe Heidt, Theatre Guild press agent, are nicely delivered. At a period when The Guild was in one of its perennial cycles of flops, author manages to wrest amusement from care taken by producers Helburn and Langner to make sure the order of their names was rotated on the program for each new attraction.

Eventually, memoirs depict the author writing for television. Albert McCleery and his story editor, Ethel Frank, may not altogether appreciate a transcript of one of their transcontintntal phone calls concerning Miss Tanff, despite what one assumes to be accuracy of reporting. Publishers' blurbs tie this book to the tradition of "My Sister Eileen" and "Our Hearts Were Young And Gay." It is pleasantly pale by comparison. Gode.

75-Yr.-Old Polish Daily Folds

After [illegible] years of publication, the Kurver Polski, oldest newspaper published in the Polish language in the U. S., has ceased publication in Milwaukee.

U. S. Internal Revenue shuttered the sheet Friday (21) for nonpayment of some $9,000 withholding taxes. J. George Boguslawski and wife bought the Kurver Polski in 1960, when it was still a daily. However, in 1961, the newspaper became a weekly. Constantly rising operational cost was motivator.

Falloff of advertising and circulation (attributed by the Boguslawskis—at least circulation—to death of older Polish readers) was indicated as cause for sheet's financial problems. Anyhow, the Kurver Polski was an outspoken paper, in earlier days, when many Poles immigrated to Milwaukee.

Fine French Film Book

Fine French film historian Georges Sadoul has come up with a concise 290-page softcover book, "Le Cinema Francais," just put out in Paris by Flammorion at $3.50. It is a handy reference and reading book on the state of the present French film in general. This looms as a must for film buffs and pic pros. It is well illustrated.

Sadoul begins with the pioneers like the Lumiere Bros. who invented and made the first little realist pix, Melies who introduced the poetic and fantastic, and Zecca who opted for the story and even social significance. Then he goes through the various steps up to World War I and then the Occupation up to today's New Wave. An index of 200 French directors is also indispensable. It is a knowing, well documented look at French film from its inception till today. It, of course, is mainly a thumbnail sketch, but a good one. Mosk.

Andrews' Chi Book

Little, Brown has set April 25 as publication date for Robert Hardy Andrews' "A Corner of Chicago." Excerpt of the original manuscript was published in the 28th anniversary edition of DAILY VARIETY last October. Title of book was suggested by Carl Sandburg, with whom Andrews shared an office on the old Chicago Daily News in the '30s.

April 25, by the way, also will mark the 21st anniversary of Andrews' marriage to Irene Colman, who was "Miss Chicago World's Fairest" at the Century of Progress Exposition (1933-34). They didn't meet, however, until 10 years later in Hollywood.

'Mad' Settles Its Mad

Mad Magazine accepted an apology and denial-of-intent to defame from retired Brigadier-General Clyde Watts in U. S. Federal District Court at Oklahoma City. This came after a jury had been chosen and the trial was about to begin. Mad was suing for $1,500,000, an academic sum as the defendant is described as only a pensioned officer.

Watts had countersued for $250,000 on the assertion that a Mad cartoon about army colonels was aimed at him, prior to his elevation to brigadier rank and retirement. Watts is a close associate and political echo of the more famous Brigadier-General removed from command in Germany for indoctrinating U.S. troops with his own political views. That action was quashed in the general settlement.

Publishing Stocks

(As of Oct. 9 closing)

Allyn & Bacon (OC)	22½	— ½
American Book (AS)	45½	— ¼
American Heritage (OC)	7	+ ¼
Book of Month (N.Y.)	23½	+ ⅞
Conde Nast (N.Y.)	8	+ ⅛
Cowles Mag. (OC)	10¼	— ½
Crowell Collier (N.Y.)	23	+ ½
Curtis Pub. (N.Y.)	7¼	— ¼
Ginn & Co. (N.Y.)	23	+1½
Grolier (OC)	31	+4¼
Grosset & Dunlap (OC)	11½	— ½
Harcourt Brace (N.Y.)	26	+ ⅝
Hayden Pub. (OC)	4¼	— ½
Hearst (OC)	25
Holt, R&W (N.Y.)	25⅜	+ ⅜
L.A. Times-Mirror (OC)	28½	+1½
Macfadden Bartell (AS)	2	+ ¼
McCall (N.Y.)	17¾
McGraw-Hill (N.Y.)	22⅜	+
Meredith Pub. Co. (OC)	20½	— ½
Nat'l Per. Pub. (OC)	8¾	+ ¾
New Yorker (OC)	80
Pocket Books (OC)	6¼	+ ¼
Prentice Hall (AS)	30⅞	+ ⅜
Ran'm House (N.Y.)	10⅝	+ ¼
Scott Foresman (OC)	19⅝	+ ⅝
H. W. Sams (OC)	29	— ½
Time Inc. (OC)	61	—2½
Western Pub. (OC)	22	—1½
World Pub.	10

OC—Over the Counter.
NY—N.Y. Stock Exchange.
AS—American Stock Exchange.
(Supplied by Bache & Co.)

'The Live Theatre'

"The Live Theatre" by Hugh Hunt (Oxford; $5.75) is "an introduction to the history and practice of the stage," and is written by the first holder of the drama chair at University of Manchester, England. Hunt has also directed Bristol and London Old Vic companies. He records much of the pageantry of stage history and opines: "Highest experience of theatre is achieved by those who are able . . . to value and understand the means by which the action is performed and the reason that lies behind it."

Work warrants attention of pros as well as laymen, and is nicely illustrated. Dourn.

Printway's Takeover

The Tri-Town News, weekly published since 1927, has been sold to Printway Corp., publishers of the South Milwaukee Voice Journal. L. T. Kreutzig, president of Printway, will continue publishing Tri-Town News. (Anthony A. Alberte and Harriett Christy Nickerson were former owners).

William P. Hanrahan stays as editor, with editorial and sales offices still in Hales Corners and sheet to be printed by Printway, in South Milwaukee plant.

Printway is also starting a new weekly for Greenfield; its Junior Chamber of Commerce beat the bush, selling about 1,700 subscriptions in advance of publication.

Chi Newshawks' Books

Chi newspapermen are breaking out in a rash of books this month. Sun-Times gossiper Irv Kupcinet is bringing out "Kup's Chicago." Hoke Norris literary columnist on the same paper, has "We Dissent," and Sun-Timesman Jack McPhaul is already in the stalls with "Monkeyshines and Deadlines."

Janet Kern, former tv critic of Chicago's American, has written "Yesterday's Children" and Robert Cromie, the Chicago Tribune's book editor, is out with "Dillinger."

CHATTER

Byron Dobell has joined Esquire as assistant managing editor. He was a senior projects editor in the book division of Time and replaces Clay Felker, Esquire's senior editor, who resigned recently to undertake a personal project in the field of economic news service. Felker will continue to write occasional articles for the magazine and serve in a consultant capacity.

Russell Sackett, an associate editor of Life, is now editor of the Weekly Argus in Seattle, recently purchased from Phillip Bailey by Thomas Meadowcraft. Sylvia Froula, formerly with the Time-Life bureau in Seattle, and recently publicity director for the Olympic Hotel and Western Hotels Inc., will be Sackett's assistant.

Anne Swenson, who has handled magazine contacts for the Seattle World's Fair for the past year, is now publicity director for the Olympic Hotel and Western Hotels Inc., headquartered at the Olympic.

SCULLY'S SCRAPBOOK

By Frank Scully

Palm Springs.

There seems to have been spawned recently an unusual new literary bird, a magpie which starts collecting letters from nobodies who develop into somebodies. Eventually the letters reach the magic of print and sometimes make mighty educating reading.

The P. G. Wodehouse letters to Bill Townsend were one of these and James Rufus Agee's to Father Harold Flye, an Episcopalian priest, is another. Of the two, Agee's letters published by George Braziller ($5) era more revealing because they show how a writer gropes and grows. Moreover, they begin earlier in life than the Wodehouse letters and go deeper. Finally, Agee's life had a beginning, middle and end, whereas Wodehouse's goes marching on.

There's an old vaude gag about a troupe that carried 22 performers but always turned in 23 railroad tickets. One day the conductor asked how come and learned that one performer had an act of wrestling with himself. In order to make it seem real he always bought two railroad tickets.

Agee could have been that guy. He wrestled with himself from the time he entered Exeter Academy at 15 until 30 years later when he died from a heart atttack while riding in a New York taxicab.

As early as 1934 he was tossing around prose about suicide but when he went suddenly he had no intention of going. By then he wasn't wrestling with himself so much and was more or less resigned to doing a book and a couple of picture scripts a year.

How Time Traps 'Em

His early entrapment into anonymity began when he was at Harvard and wrote a parody of Time. The parody got him a job on another Luce publication, Fortune, at $25 a week.

From doing about a quarter of a million unsigned words on that Luce publication he moved over in 1941 to enjoy further anonymity as film critic on Time. His literary gods at that time were Chekhov and Shakespeare, but even they would not have got a byline in Fortune or Time. Agee did some film criticisms for the Nation, too. These got him greater recognition.

But his pieces on orchids, machine-made rugs, the TVA and Caribbean cruises were just words to fill in between Fortune's illustrations and the advertising.

The Man Who Hated Orchids

That piece on orchids stuck in his craw. "About the orchids," he wrote, "it is silly of me I know to dislike the flower so much: it is not responsible. I think probably I dislike it by transference: because I do much dislike the kinds of people who like it and their reason for liking it: liking a thing because it is the Largest, the Loudest, the most Expensive, the most supercharged with Eroticism, Glamor, Prestige—I don't like. Automatically thinking a thing is beautiful for such reasons I like even less. As a commodity, and that is the way I am supposed to write about it, it is more completely endowed with snob appeal and with nothing else than any other commodity."

He goes into its history and how the orchid got its name from the Greek testicle. On pages 81 and 82 he gives some paragraphs of anti-orchid prose which never made Fortune and would have to wait for hard covers for recognition. Indeed, in his letter of Sept. 17, 1935, he's really confessing to Father Flye.

He didn't get into pictures until he wrote the commentary on Helen Levitt's film, "The Quiet One." That was in 1948. He left Time to go under contract to Huntington Hartford where he wrote two scripts of Stephen Crane's stories, "The Blue Hotel" and "The Bride Comes to Yellow Sky."

John Huston Corralls Him

He didn't get out from under the cloak of Lucean anonymity until he wrote a study for Life of silent film comedians and followed with a piece on John Huston called "The Undirectable Director." This byline got a him a job to script "The African Queen" for Huston and from then on he was more a script writer than anything else.

He also wrote scripts for a life of Lincoln for the Ford Foundation, another "Noa, Noa," based on the diary of Paul Gaugin, and "The Night of the Hunter" which was written from a novel by David Grubb.

In his last letter to Father Flye there was the makings of a good picture script. It was in reaction to a newspaper clipping Father Flye sent him which told how a group of men who owned racing dogs would collect cats under the pretense of finding good homes for them and then take them out to the country to be chased by their racing dogs. These would tear them to pieces and devour them.

This prompted Agee to try a script on elephants. They converge from all over Africa. The voice of God tells them that they are used already to work and that men who use them, are not noticeably improved by the contact. He urges them to be their good selves and by so doing they may convert the heathens and barbarians where all else has failed.

After the blessing, the oldest elephant sadly leaves and walks away to the great secret elephant cemetery in Africa where he dies.

Men come among the rest of the elephants and capture some for circuses. Then fact follows fiction. In 1824 the first circus elephant brought to America, Old Bet, was exhibited at Somers, N. Y. The people thought she was a reincarnation of Behemoth and shot her dead.

There's a statue above her grave and the place has become a shrine for circus people.

Elephants Come to Gruesome Ends

Then Agee tells the story of Jumbo. This elephant had a private car. At railroad stations in towns where the circus was showing a gap was left in any long line of freight cars for Jumbo's crossing to his private car.

One night when no train was scheduled an express came roaring through. Jumbo remembered the gap and ran for it. He overshot the mark, turned and met the locomotive head on. He was killed and the locomotive wrecked.

"In 1916 an elephant named Mary went beserk in a small Tennessee town and killed three men. People decided that she should be hanged. They strung her to a railroad derrick. Her weight broke the derrick down. They got a stronger derrick. After two hours Mary died, while 5,000 oafs looked on."

For his grand finale Agee has George Ballanchine train the greatest elephant ballet corps of all time to Stravinsky's music. In their pink tutus the elephants are embarrassed but perform.

Still humiliated when returned to their command, the wisest of them picks up a dying cigar butt and tosses it into some fresh straw. All 36 elephants die in the fire.

Their huge souls, light as clouds, float off and settle in the great secret cemetery back in Africa.

"Almost nobody I have described it to," writes Agee, "likes this idea except me."

He Began Wrestling Early

When he died in 1955 at the age of 46 Agee had published only three books, one of verse, a volume of prose called "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men" and a short novel. After his death two volumes of Agee On Film" were published and "A Death In the Family," which won a Pulitzer prize and was later dramatized.

"I am in most possible kinds of pain, mental and spiritual," he wrote in 1934 "and the trouble revolves chiefly around the simple sounding problem of how to become what I wish I could, when I can't."

Thus at 25 he expressed the frustrations that all of us have to live with till the day we die.

Broadway

Adman Roy S. Durstine Jr. engaged to Susan D. Baxter; a December wedding is planned.

Appropriately, Lionel M. Lober is calling his new Israeli-based film company Sharon Productions.

Joyce M. Charnay, daughter of publicist David B. Charnay, engaged to marry Alvin S. Levenson in December.

Prentice-Hall pouring next Tuesday (16) at the Americana for Connie Francis on publication of singer's "To Every Young Heart."

John Donovan, NBC newsman and author of "Eichmann—Man Of Slaughter," is ailing at the Veterans Hospital at 24th St. and 1st Ave.

Adela Rogers St. Johns house guest of actress-friend Colleen Moore Hargrove in Chicago where she is shilling for her new book, "Final Verdict."

Industrialist-showman Francis S. Levien, recently named to the 20th-Fox board, due out of Mt. Sinai hospital today after being bedded a couple of weeks.

Same night (Oct. 15) Met Opera premieres the new American Symphony launches itself at Carnegie. This under Leopold Stokowski.

First hardtop in a Manhattan shopping centre is the Kips Bay Theatre at 570 Second Ave. (31-32 St.) which debuts next Tuesday (16) with "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

Jack Wrather and his actress-wife Bonita Granville sailing for Europe today (Wed.) on the Queen Elizabeth as are British impresario Bernard Delfont and Mrs. Delfont.

The 9-story Phi Gamma Delta national fraternity building at 106 West 56th St. has been acquired by realty investor and builder Sylvan Lawrence who will convert it into a hotel.

William Gaxton, vet musicomedy star and Shepherd of the Lambs, in St. Vincent's with possibly more serious complications than the prostate trouble for which he first entered the hospital. Has been on the critical list for several days.

Eve Brown, ex-"Cholly Knickerbocker" (Maury Paul) aide, has succeeded Ed Seay as p.r. director of the Hotel Plaza. Latter's now at the Waldorf-Astoria. Seay's former aide, Mrs. Rita Irwin, continues as ditto to Miss Brown.

Italian publisher Dino Fabbri, of Fratelli Fabbri Editori, in from Rome for a stay of several weeks at the Savoy Hilton. He will be meeting with Mayor Wagner during his visit and will also present two scholarships for studies in Rome.

Art Buchwald, N.Y. Herald Tribune syndicated columnist, who has just shifted headquarters from Paris to Washington, kicks off W. Colston Leigh-managed lectures at Bennett College in Millbrook, N.Y. on Friday (12). His topic? "Buchwald at Large"!

Gaby and Armando Armanni—he's bossman of the Hotel Excelsior, Rome—will bivouac with old friend Ben B. Bodne, owner of the Algonquin Hotel, when they arrive Nov. 5-6 for a couple of days, before off-to-Mexico and the Las Vegas (ASTA) conclave.

Louis (Mackay's) Schoenceit and wife Renee Carroll are calling their joint autobiog, "44 years on 44th St." although actually the theatre broker has been there 47 years. Renee Carroll was hatcheck girl at next-door Sardi's from the day the restaurant opened.

The Mike (Columbia Pictures) Frankoviches announced the engagement of daughter Michele Frankovich to L.A. insurance man, Gerald John Fitzgerald, with a January wedding planned. Mother of the bride-to-be is the former British film star Binnie Barnes.

Another of those which-Journal-do-you-read? contradictions last week. Regular drama critic John McClain captioned Eddie Fisher's Winter Garden stint "a star-spangled triumph" and Dorothy Kilgallen the next day labeled it "Lost evening with Eddie Fisher."

Publicist David O. Alber and his wife have announced the engagement of daughter Emily Rebecca, Finch senior (where she is president of her class and v.p. of the Student Council), to Air Force Lt. Peter A. Cerreta, both of New Rochelle. Summer wedding planned.

Because of its size, Billy Reed is staging a doublefeatured blacktie preem of his redecorated Little club on Thursday (11) ("prevue premiere") and Friday (12) ("premiere opening"). Chauncey Gray, ex-St. Regis, El Morocco and Sheraton East, and Tito Fuentes orchestras have been added.

Monte Proser, entertainment director of the Thunderbird Hotel, Las Vegas, and coproducer with Milton Blackstone of the Eddie Fisher Show at the Winter Garden, discharged yesterday (Tues.) after a week at the Midtown Hospital. He collapsed from exhaustion on opening night (Tues.) of the Fisher show.

Marty Shapiro, of the Coast GAC tele dept., now in New York showing off his firstborn to his parents, the Bob Shapiros. Latter is managing director of Broadway's Paramount Theatre. The younger Shapiro is also due to lecture this week at the Syracuse University drama group, where he matriculated.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. got off the SS Rotterdam, following his extended European tour filming for his upcoming vidpix series and lecture tour, and into bed at the Dorset with flu. This is holding up cutting and editing of the footage he shot. Mildred Vermont is his Gotham rep. Vanderbilt intends making N. Y. his hq for several months.

Joe Wells, operator of Las Vegas' Thunderbird Hotel, currently in New York, has announced the forthcoming marriage of his daughter, Dawn Elberta Wells, to Lawrence Earl Rosen, a Hollywood agent, son of former New York agent Jerry Rosen, now Coast-based. Ceremony takes place Oct. 19 at the Little Church of the West in the casino country.

Theatre historian and collector Sammuel Stark is "touring" his "American Theatre: 1850-1900" which debuted in the Albert M. Bender Room of Stanford Univ. this week. Prof. Walter F. Starkie, visiting professor at the UCLA, formerly director of the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, spoke. Stark now resides in Frisco. Showing is being "held over" from Oct. 11 through Dec. 1.

The Susan half of the 17-year-old Baker Twins (her sister is Jennifer) emulated the "show must go on" tradition last Wednesday by insisting on opening "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off" at the Shubert, despite a six-day-old appendectomy. She was driven from the Graduate Hospital, Philly, where she had been operated upon, and arrived only a few hours before the curtain.

Lee Edwards, publicist with Representation Inc., local p.r. firm, recalls having appeared at the Starlite Motel, Cocoa Beach, Fla., as a lecturer-entertainer, when Stepin Fetchit, the Negro entertainer, was also playing the club. So thrush Della Reese's upcoming appearance at the motel's entertainment room will not be a Negro entertainer's first appearance there albeit one of the rare times such a situation has existed on the Beach.

The 58th St. and 5th Avenue St. sign is back again, having been replaced for one week by one reading Savoy Hilton Square marking the hotel's 35th Anniversary. Singer Lisa Carroll lent a hand to general manager Nelson Vermette in the sign-changing ceremony which was followed by a nostalgic luncheon honoring former managers Eugene Voit, now g.m. of the N.Y. Hilton, John F. Isard, now g.m. of the Stanhope, and George Suter, now an executive with Pandick Press. A medley of 1927 tunes was played by Ray Hartley and Ted Straeter, with commentary by Gail Benedict.

Singapore

By Ooi Chiew
(5 La Salle St.; Tels 43505)

Lion City Revue at the Seaview Hotel.

Holiday On Ice show bowed out and headed for Djakarta after a month here.

Shaw Organization, big show biz outfit of Far East, celebrated its 34th anni (Sept. 25-27) with a threeday fest of old pix.

British film, "A Town Like Alice," shot in nearby Malacca on the Malayan mainland, returned for a short run at the Cathay.

Helen Shapiro, Britain's top teenage singer, passed through enroute to Australia, New Zealand and Canada for radio and tv shows.

Two Japanese tele experts here to advise the Singapore government on its television project expected to go on the air late this year.

In nearby Malaya, police raided bookshops all over the peninsula seizing copies of Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" which first appeared here several months ago.

London

(HYDe Park 4561/2/3)

David O. Selznick and Jennifer Jones in for a quickie.

Bob Hope in for his role in "Call Me Bwana." Ditto Edie Adams Kovacs.

Scottish comedian Denny Willis planed to N.Y. to guest on the Ed Sullivan Show.

The Establishment, satirical nightclub in Soho, celebrated its first anni last week.

Leslie A. MacDonnell, Moss Empire's topper announced lineup for the Royal Variety Performance.

The 40th anni of BBC Radio was celebrated at a Variety Club luncheon at the Savoy, yesterday (Tues.).

Carmita, current topper at the Pigalle, topped the carbaret bill at a Dorchester charity ball in aid of cancer research.

Prize winners from International Amateur Film Fest at Cannes will be shown at the National Film Theatre next Saturday (13).

Collections taken in the foyers of more than 350 Rank Theatres in a six-day period raised around $26,000 for Royal Air Forces Assn.

Princess Margaret will be guest of honor at a gala performance of Billy Smart's Circus Oct. 31 in aid of the Church of England Youth Council.

Comedienne Audrey Jeans signed for Palladium pantomime, "Puss in Boots," with Frankie Vaughan, Joan Regan and Jimmy Edwards.

Songstress Ruby Murray, and her husband Bernard Burgess, and Tom 'Rusty' Hood opened a Health Club Gymnasium, for weight training, in Bayswater.

W. J. Arris, Sir Ernest Goodale, D. V. House and C. H. Scott reappointed to Board of the National Film Finance Corp. for a threeyear span, ending in September, 1965. Sir Nutcombe Hume, chairman, and John Terry, managing director, come up for reappointment next year.

4½ Hrs. From B'way

By Walter Winchell
(Formerly of Sardi's)

The raps for Eddie Fisher's Winter Garden show perplexed Cocoanut Grove (L.A.) loud-applauders.

Fritz Blocki, former Chicago drama pager, is back reviewing Coast offerings for a suburban sheet.

N.Y. Times new Coast edition a big click. No longer costs 35c daily or $1 for the Sabbath paper which came airmail.

PJ of Hollywood plans opening its New York branch next month. Near the York Theatre in the 60s on the east side.

John Chapman's drama reviews in the N.Y. Daily News are getting wide syndication. Far west as Colorado. The Trib's Walter Kerr 1st nightems are a Sunday feature in L.A., among other papers.

A large number of newsmen and women who lost jobs when the two L.A. gazettes died last year are now staffers on nearby journals. But over 3,000 are taking anything they can get, including relief chex.

Many of the B'way press agents chucked the Main Stemetery for H'wood prosperity. Joel Rose is one. Some double at feeding small burg papers with free columns about H'wood people, mainly their clients.

Glenn Neville, editor of the N.Y. Mirror, out of Lenox-Hill Hosp., following a third near-collapse from overwork. Despite his illness he "ran the paper" via phone. Including the Winchell column which a copyboy delivered plus blue-pencil-sharpener) every ante meridian.

Coasters on the inside know that "at least 21 indictments" of Vegas people are in a Washington pigeonhole. The two "canaries" who sang to the lawmen openly brag about their immunity for "singing." They suspect tremendous influence of certain show biz intimates is retarding things, etc.

Time Mag's recent quote: "Joe DiMaggio told friends that he barred the movie celeb crowd from Marilyn's funeral if it weren't for some of them she would be still alive" was never said by Joe. DiMag has never read any of the adieulogies. A thick bundle of the tragedy reports is wrapped in a corner of a chum's home—in case he wishes to read them. For Joe it is all over—but the heartaches.

One of tv's biggest names, who boasted publicly that nobody on his stanza could be accused of payola, is named in a Securities & Exchange Commission document. A famed product paid hefty money for its commercial and allegedly paid him on the side for added plugs. This is a violation of the FCC statutes; punishable by a heavy fine and possible imprisonment.

Rome

By Robert F. Hawkins
(Stampa Estera; Tel. 675906)

Neil Sedaka in for guest stint on Alta Pressione teener video stanza via RAI-TV.

Jayne Mansfield appearing in series of ad shorts on RAI-TV, plugging a local aperitif.

Don Powell sings a period tune in RAI-TV's upcoming dramatic version of "An American Tragedy."

Joseph Losey to Paris for French opening of his latest, "Eva" (Hakim). Stars Jeanne Moreau and Stanley Baker.

Marino Barreto Jr. returns to Grotte del Piccione nitery, where he was discovered years ago, to open winter season.

Perez Prado guesting for RCA on RAI-TV special together with other stars from RCA's local roster —Miranda Martino, Sergio Endrigo and Anna Maria.

Sylva Koscina and Dahlia Lavi are Jose Ferrer's partners in "Cyrano and Dartagnan," which Abel Gance guns in October for producer Maleno Malenotti.

In-and-out: John Ericson, Henri Deutschmeister, Barry Gray, Leonard Lyons, Jeff Richards, Peter Dane, Raoul Levy to Paris, Franco Rossi (to L.A.), Thomas Schippers, Alexander Tasambasis, Melissa Drake, Anita Ekberg back to London for "Call Me Bwana" and Ron Randell to Terni for locations on "Gold for the Caesars."

Paris

By Gene Moskowitz
(66 Ave. Breteuil; SUF 59-20)

"That Touch of Mink" (U) in for neat reviews, with solid biz looming.

Andre Roussin has penned a play for Elvira Popesco. "La Voyante" (The Fortune Teller), which goes into the Theatre De Paris later this season.

Lars Schmidt will produce the Norman Krasna legiter, "Sunday In New York," here this season, as well as Hendrik Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" with Ingrid Bergman.

Three versions of Moliere's "The Misanthrope" due this season with one at the Comedie-Francaise, one at the Oeuvre with Dany Robin and at the Gramont, with Daniele Lebrun.

Film director Jean-Luc Godard putting off his pic version of the Jean Giraudoux play, "Pour Lucrece" (Battle of Angels) till next spring because of thesp commitments.

Liselotte Pulver due in to play opposite Ron Randell in a Yank pic, "The Impatient Husband."

Gerry Mulligan started the Olympia weekly jazz shows at the Olympia this week.

Coincident with opening here of Otto Preminger's "Advise and Consent" (Col), the French Film Museum, Cinematheque Francaise, started a homage to Preminger via screening of his top pix during one week.

Greek composer Mnos Hadjidakis, who cleffed the music for the pic, "Never on Sunday," in to talk local presentations of two musicals he is prepping. They're based on Pirandello's "Tonight We Improvise" and G. P. Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra."

Philadelphia

By Jerry Gaghan
(319 N. 18th St.; LOcust 4-4848)

Ronnie Martin, brother of Corbett Monica, is new comedian at Frank Palumbo's.

Frank Buhler elected president of A. R. Boyd Enterprises, succeeding the late Alexander R. Boyd.

Norbert Conway, co-founder of Conway's Theatre Ticket Agency, in 1910, celebrating 50th wedding anni.

Joe Smith, of Wagner's Ballroom, named to board of directors of the Ballroom Operators of America at the Chicago convention.

Otto Klemperer returns to the U.S. after an absence of nearly 10 years to make seven guest appearances with the Philadelphia Orch.

Cinerama, MGM and Stanley Warner theatres currently marking 10th anni of Cinerama at Boyd, where "Brothers Grimm" is the pic.

Hollywood

Vivienne della Chiesa signed Allyn Ferguson as her arranger-conductor.

Janet Leigh to New Orleans, Pittsburgh and Cleveland to bally "Manchurian Candidate."

Doug Weston, owner of Troubadour Cafe-Theatre, bedded indefinitely with hepatitis.

CBS Hollywood publicity head Ernie Stern is in Mt. Sinai Hospital after a mild heart attack.

Meredith Willson recuping at St. John's Hospital, Santa Monica, from emergency appendectomy.

Don Williams, formerly of Williams Bros. act, joined United Talent Mgmt. Ltd. as agent in tv dept.

Hal Wallis revamped his exclusive contract with Dolores Hart to one annually for next four years, to allow her outside offers.

Academy extended deadline for submission of foreign-language films in upcoming Oscar sweepstakes from Jan. 5 to Jan. 23.

Jack Benny will emcee $100-a-plate America-Israel Cultural Foundation dinner-concert Oct. 29 at Beverly Hilton honoring Harold J. Mirisch.

Harold J. Mirisch to host $100-a-couple cocktail party at his home Oct. 26 for UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson preceding his address at Greek Theatre, as benefit for So. Calif. chapter of American Assn. for United Nations.

Chicago

(DElaware 7-4984)

Nitery flack Larry Leverett is joining the Sherman House pubrel staff to handle its entertainment puffery.

Goodman Children's Theatre opens its 1962-63 season with "The Blue Bird," directed by Bella Itkin, Oct. 12.

Benn Bentley, who handled pubrel chores for the Liston-Patterson brief encounter, opening his own ad-pub office.

The Limeliters play a concert Oct. 12 and the Modern Jazz Quartet Oct. 14, both at Orchestra Hall and under the Allied Artists aegis.

Forrest Tucker stars in and Vernon Ray Schwartz directs "Silver Whistle," which opened last night (Tues.) for a seven-week stay at Drury Lane Theatre.

Sam Lerner, film critic on Chicago Daily News for 34 years, gets the "King For A Day" treatment at a Variety Clubs of Illinois luncheon Oct. 22 at the Pick-Congress.

A "Gospel For Freedom" show on behalf of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee features the Harmonizing Four, the Tabernacle Choir, and Brother James Lowe Oct. 21 at McCormick Place.

Producer Ross Hunter, Bobby Darin, Sandra Dee and Micheline Presle all due in for preem of "If A Man Answers" Oct. 10 at Chicago Theatre. "Longest Day" roadshow bows next day (11) at the Roosevelt Theatre.

Las Vegas

By Forrest Duke
(DUdley 4-4141)

Milt Feiber, partner of the late Bob Fisher ("Barbary Coast Boys") opened as a single at Torch Club piano bar.

Harry Barris' 23-year-old daughter Marti did a one-week singing gig with Ted Fio Rito at the Tropicana lounge.

Kay Stevens, Riviera lounge headliner, proudly displaying the award she got from Foreign Press Assn. for best supporting performance in "The Interns."

At the George Burns-Carol Channing Dunes show, Burns introduced two "Air Force heroes" who were in the audience — Jimmy Doolittle and Bob Hope.

Jimmy Durante called Desert Inn execs to squelch reports he'd replace maestro Carlton Hayes during his current stint. Hayes stays at DI with new contract.

Buddy Rich, featured with Harry James' orch at the Flamingo lounge, gifted his buddy Bobby Stevens of the Sahara Freddie Bell group with new set of drums.

Billy Eckstine bicycled from the Flamingo lounge to the Riviera one night to fill in for the ailing Harry Belafonte. Belafonte gave him an engraved wristwatch in appreciation.

Vivienne della Chiesa, here with hubby Joe Lupia at the Algiers Hotel, after she sang left at once for Kiwanis convention, and opened the following night with Donald O'Connor's "Tonight" tver in N.Y.

$6,100,000 In Ford Grants

Continued from page 2

T. Heald, president of the Foundation.

Heald emphasizes, though, "As in the past, the Foundation will not become a general patron of artistic institutions and will not provide routine financing of operating and capital costs." Commenting on the grants, W. McNeil Lowry, director of the Foundation's program in Humanities and the Arts, says: "Given the situation prevailing in commercial theatre and television, the emergence of permanent companies over the past decade has become the chief hope for the advancement of serious American drama."

Lowry further asserts, "The resident theatre is fast becoming a major outlet for the professional dramatist, director and actor and the most important avenue for the development of younger theatre artists and technicians. It is fortunate also that these trends in the theatre are matched by a new awareness of theatre as an important cultural resource by community leaders in Houston, Minneapolis, Oklahoma City and elsewhere."

The resident theatre as distinguished from other professional legit ventures is defined by Lowry as those operations having nonprofit status and continuous seasons of from 40-52 weeks in which seven to 12 plays are produced. The resident theatres, he explains, also employ at least a nucleus of the acting company for the entire season. Each of today's grants, the Foundation states, is tailored to meet particular needs affecting a theatre's ability to strengthen its artistic and economic position.

How They Divide

The theatres, listed below alphabetically, are to use the grants as follows:

Actors Studio: The $250,000 Foundation grant, which will become available when matched equally with funds from other sources, will be used for a revolving fund needed to launch the new Actors Studio Theatre which plans 15 to 25 productions during its first five years of operation.

A $2,000,000 fund-raising goal for the first three years activity has been launched by the studio theatre which intends beginning rehearsals of its first production next January. As of the beginning of last August, 187 members of the studio had signed a commitment to give up four months in any one theatrical season to the new theatre. Lee Strasberg is artistic director of the operation with Cheryl Crawford as executive producer and Roger L. Stevens as general administrator. It's uncertain at present whether the operation will establish itself at one theatre or book its productions into available houses.

Ancat the studio theatre, Lowry said, "While the present plans of the group do not ensure a truly resident institution for the New York theatre, they do promise a continuing producing company which can have significance for theatre as cultural resource."

Actors Workshop: The Foundation's $197,000 grant will enable the workshop to employ fulltime producing, administrative and directing personnel and permit the group's management to concentrate on the establishment of a permanent theatre building. The workshop, which heretofore existed as a voluntary and (except for actors, a few technical personnel and a business manager) unpaid operation, now uses rented quarters and is seeking funds from San Francisco sources for a 600-seat building of its own.

In 1959, the workshop, of which Jules Irving and Herbert Blau are executive producers, received a $156,000 matching grant from the Foundation to help finance for three years the salaries of 10 actors.

Alley Theatre: The Foundation's $2,100,000 grant is in two parts. The first part provides $1,000,000 in matching funds toward the construction of a new building, to become available when at least $1,000,000 has been raised from other sources. The second part, which will not become effective until the building program is assured, provides 10-year developmental assistance for an expanded staff while the theatre becomes self-supporting through its enlarged seating capacity.

Alley, founded and directed by Nina Vance, has been operating for 12 years in a small building formerly occupied by a fan factory. Mrs. Vance received one of the first Foundation awards made to theatre directors and in 1959 the Alley received a $156,000 three-year matching grant to help underwrite an annual contract for ten professional actors.

American Shakespeare Festival Theatre: About three-fifths of the Foundation's $503,000 grant will be used for two-year support for a new fall-and-winter training and performing program designed to increase the number of American actors with professional competence in classical roles. The rest of the grant will strengthen the organization's production budget through the retirement of outstanding loans. The new program, under the guidance of producer Joseph Verner Reed and directors Allen Fletcher and Douglas Seale, will transform Stratford into a year-round theatre operation. Six senior actors and 17 younger actors are to take part in the program.

Arena Stage: The Foundation's $863,000 grant will permit the theatre to expand its artistic, training and administrative budget through the retirement of debts encumbering its development. The financing of a new building, to which the organization moved last year, required both a mortgage and a bond issue to offset the difference between contributions and costs. The grant will enable the Arena to complete its new facility and use all its increasing boxoffice revenues for artistic and professional expansion.

In 1959, the theatre, of which Zelda Fichandler is founder and director, received a three-year matching grant of $127,000 from the Foundation to underwrite the salaries of 10 experienced actors. Mrs. Fichandler and Alan Schneider, who last year staged four plays for Arena Stage, received awards in the first Foundation program for theatre directors.

Fred Miller Theatre: Half of the Foundation's $100,000 grant, designed to help strengthen the theatre's administrative effectiveness and artistic continuity, will be applied to the 1962-63 season and the balance to the following semester. The theatre, operated by Drama Inc., is now functioning under the artistic direction of Paul Shyre with Jack McQuiggan as general manager. It's a theatre-in-round which had considerable woes in past, attributed to socializing dilettantism.

Mummers Theatre: The first part of this two-part $1,250,000 grant provides $700,000 to help finance a new building and site with matching of at least $750,000 from local sources. The second part, contingent upon assurance of the building program, provides $550,000 as partial underwriting of artistic, administrative and technical development over a 10-year period.

The Mummers is the one theatre among the nine in the Foundation's program that has been a community theatre depending on local actors. Founded 10 years ago by Mack Scism in a vacant store building, the Mummers is seeking to establish itself as a fully professional theatre organization. In 1959, Scism was one of 17 directors to receive Foundation awards.

Theatre Group, Univ. of California Extension: The Foundation's $300,000 grant provides five-year support to strengthen the theatre's artistic and administrative staffs and its professional training capacity. The Theatre Group, directed by John Houseman, will use the Ford funds to employ an additional fulltime director, a fulltime designer, eight experienced professional actors and eight apprentices in acting, technical stagecraft and administration.

The Theatre Group, founded in 1959 by Abbott Kaplan, director of Extensions at the Univ. of California, uses professional actors in Los Angeles for its productions. Under its expanded program, it will increase the number of its L.A. performances by 40% and tour other cities in California and, after three years, in other states. The Theatre Group has been granted a site for its own building by the Regents of the Univ. of California and will undertake a local drive for construction funds.

Tyrone Guthrie Theatre: The Foundation's $337,000 grant will help finance operating costs prior to the repertory theatre's scheduled opening in the spring of 1963 in addition to providing assistance for a period of three seasons. Tyrone Guthrie will be director and Oliver Rea producer of the theatre, which is now under construction and for which local community leaders have raised around $2,200,000 in pledges thus far.

Although the theatres will initially have a 20-week season, Lowry states, "It represents another evolution of the residents theatre concept in the United States."

Besides the grants now being made, the Foundation, since 1957, has allotted $1,642,137 to the support of 10 programs concerned with the American theatre.

Arts & Humanities

Continued from page 1

tion Agency and son of the Hollywood producer-director has warmly congratulated Humphrey for proposing such a bill and has urged him to broaden the base for eligibility for such a medal to include feature films.

"May I recommend," Stevens telegraphed Humphrey, "that the motion picture accompany music, literature and paintings in your proposal. Films have a curious way of being removed from official cultural recognition in the U. S., and this is ironic when one considers the prestige accorded our filmmakers in other countries."

Young Stevens continued: "I would suggest that when it comes to communicating the spirit of America there have been artists in no field who have exceeded the masters of American cinema."

Stevens cited as an example the creative work of John Ford. "Certainly," he added, "this body of work represents an extraordinary contribution to our culture."

100% Color TV, 10 Yrs.

Continued from page 1

that portable tint sets will be available in the next three or four years, and on the likelihood that color prices will gradually parallel those of black and white unit today. He calculates that color set sales will be uptempoed in 1967, when middle-class families will already have purchased their receivers and the "big price drop" is due.

Quaal opined that the growth of color tv will not only benefit the video industry but many American industries as well, "through the creation of a healthy appetite for that which is new, better and more attractive." He scored the tv industry nationally for not having the courage today "to harness this great new potential which will not only offer a potent stimulus to television but to the nation's economy from coast-to-coast."

As to why WGN-TV or other television stations haven't sold more color programs to local advertisers, Quaal said, "We haven't done a good selling job, and the fault is ours, not that of this thrilling new dimension in television."

NBC's 'Berlin Tunnel'

Continued from page 1

abroad, and Berlin correspondent Piers Anderton, were responsible for making the arrangements but the web insisted that it entered the picture after the tunnel had been planned. "This was not a subsidy," said an exec. Web would not discuss the amount paid.

Web plans a news conference on the tunnel. It'll be held tomorrow (Thurs.) in N. Y., evidently to explain in greater detail the shooting process. A 90-minute program "which has a beginning, middle and end"—resulted from the camerawork by NBC News staff cameraman in Berlin Peter Dehmel. There is a little sound accompanying actual tunnel footage.

Fiftynine East Berliners allegedly escaped through the finally completed tunnel, largest number yet through one escape route, reportedly NBC News has shots of this too. Tunnel is now caved in due to a water-main break and, according to sources here, East Berlin officials have not been able yet to uncover the opening at their end.

B.A. Politics Snafu Show Biz

Continued from page 2

uniform aprons, so cafes, bars, etc. customarily do big trade.

This year the student frolics were suspended, but though some minor scale battles waged in the city's outskirts, crowds of gaily dressed young people strolled central avenues. Food prices spiralled again as speculators rushing around warning of shortages due to interrupted communications.

Radio Effected

The most obvious effect of the "movement" was felt by radio. This could be called the "transistor" revolution. The Army group just outside the city, eventually termed the 'blues," acted swiftly in seizing the nearby Pacheco transmitter for Radio Belgrano. The authorities, as is usual, had turned their attention to the studios in the city. Over Belgrano the "blues" broadcast something like 200 communiques, interspersed with martial music, particularly the march dear to Tank forces. This heralded the approach of a Tank force from the Magdalena base (near La Plata) in support of Campo Mayo. It was this tank force which won the war for the "blues," who otherwise never moved outside their base, just conducted the war by commnique. This was where the multiplicity of transistor sets demonstrated the terrific influence wielded by radio in a country which, on the surface, appears to be ultra tv-conscious. The transistor sets are everywhere, particularly on buses and trains, where they are particularly bothersome to travellers who are not tango or football addicts. Local radio outlets are hurting from the general shortage of cash, but sponsors should pay more attention to radio advertising folowing the "transistor" battle.

By Saturday (22), a truce reached at dawn officialy put a stop to operations, but an unfortunate omission in the resultant Government communique, led the "colorados" to continue operations, whereupon the Air Force, till then neutral, went into action on the "blue" side and forced a surrender by noon. Around central Buenos Aires, while this went on, all was quiet—"quiet as a wake" grumbled one citizen as he crossed Plaza de Mayo, fronting an embattled Government House—"all we need are the candles," though large groups of men and women were knotted in discussion—while scanning the sky for bombs.

The Buenos Aires population now tend to regard these events like an extra show, staged for their benefit. Even in the Southern sector of the city where the tank advance led to some minor battling, the people regarded the affair as a show. Children swarmed over the tanks, housewives fed the conscript troops, and even when fighting did go on, the inhabitants seemed to think it was all part of a tv show taped for their amusement. TV played its part in filming wherever it could, putting the shots together for evening summaries. Channels 7 and 13 excelled in this.

One of the fiercest battles took place around Constitution station on Saturday and the condemned Variedades Theatre, which is awaiting demolition, nearly had a the new Constitution Palace Hotel, which served as a colorado headquarters, and so got some shrapnel.

Always On Sunday

Before nightfall, however, the conflict was over and all show business opened the next day. Anxious to resume normality" the Government (the same one, but with different military masters) tried to persuade the Football Association to hold regular Sunday games, but there was insufficient time to summon players (who had also relaxed training in the hiatus.)

The most amusing episode took place at the Hurlingham Country Club, very near the Campo de Mayo encampment. On Saturday evening, two colonels put in an appearance, asking to take over the club buildings as their headquarters. "Hurlingham" is practically a British enclave, and the Club houses many ancient relics of former British railway rule, widows of railway managers, retired Colonels and the like. In fact, the Club dining-room ordinarily resembles a scene from "Separate Tables." The Club manager pointed out that the Club served as a residence for members, and having viewed some of the types in refuge there, the "blue" colonels beat their only retreat of the war.

N.Y.C. Ballet

Continued from page 1

music has not been adopted but "Western Symphony," as second best, ought to arouse the Muscovites, it being almost equally American in flavor. In all 18 works are being presented for 52 performances, the tour of the USSR more or less coinciding with the second tour of the U. S. by the Bolshoi.

Point of significance about the New York City Ballet is its progressive, innovating choreography far ahead of anything the Russians have ever done or seen. Will this be hailed or resented during the tour? After three weeks in Moscow ensemble goes to Leningrad (Oct. 31-Nov. 8), Kiev (Nov. 11-18), Tiblisi (Nov. 21-25) and Baku (Nov. 28-Dec. 1).

Choreographer-director George Balanchine, himself Russian born, and Lincoln Kerstein, the administrator-angel, are with the company as are conductors Robert Irving and Hugh Fiorata and ballet master John Taras. Balanchine will see a brother, a composer, for the first time in 40 years.

Repertory being presented includes, besides "Western Symphony" the following:

"Agon," "Serenade," "Scotch Symphony" "Concerto Barocco," "Donizetti Variations," "La Sonnambula," "Raymonda Variations," "Allegro Brillante," "Symphony in C," "Divertimento No. 15," "Prodigal Son," "Pas de Deux," "La Valse," "Apollo" and "Episodes," all choreographed by Balanchine, and "Interplay" and "Fanfare," choreographed by Jerome Robbins.

'Owl Ballet'

Continued from page 1

at the Univ. of Chicago who wrote the scenario and music for his doctoral thesis.

Jordan based his ballet, entitled "Metamorphosis of the Owls," on the writings of the Swiss psychiatric theorist Carl Jung. According to Jordan the three-scene ballet involves certain basic symbols which are expressed through the non-verbal medium of the dance which taps the individual subconscious of each viewer. The reaction by the viewer to and his interpretation of, the ballet symbols reveals helpful information in understanding his psychological development, particularly the integration of his personality, a key Jungian concept.

The ballet's author, a former Rhodes scholar in music, explains the intent of his terpanalysis as follows: "Current psychotherapeutic processes consist almost entirely in verbal free association along with the dynamics of transference, and this appears to be inadequate. If the Jungian theory could be tested in some way, an advancement in a new direction might be achieved and a more complete psychological theory formulated."

"Metamorphosis of the Owls" will be presented by the Illinois Ballet Co. as part of a regular public performance along with several standard ballets. Show will take place Oct. 13 at 8 p.m. at Mandel Hall.

'I Miss Ike'

Continued from page 2

chorus of "Down Among The Sheltering Pines."

Miss Piazza, who drew the biggest audience response, mixed opera with pop selections graced by her svelte figure in a shimmering red gown. Pearl Bailey offered oldies with added demonstrations of the Twist while Edgar Bergen waltzed Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd and Effie Klinker to the forefront.

Dancer Hal LeRoy and Dolinoff & the Raya Sisters moved across the stage in unique routines followed by singers Terry Saunders, Jack Russell, Bill Tabbert and Bonnie Murray.

OBITUARIES

EDWARD GOODMAN

Edward Goodman, 74, a playwright and producer-director of plays and films, died Oct. 2 in New York, after a brief illness.

He was a founder of the Washington Square Players in Greenwich Village in 1915. Four years later, after moving to the Bandbox and Comedy Theatres uptown, the group changed its name to the Theatre Guild. Goodman began his career in N.Y. at the age of 10, when he wrote what he later described as a "comic farce."

After he graduated from Columbia College, Goodman taught high school English in Paterson, N.J. For a time he was editor of Moods magazine and drama critic for the old New York Press. He also wrote book reviews for The New York Times.

In 1915, he joined the faculty of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, where he remained until 1953. In later years, Goodman devoted himself to giving private drama lessons. After serving in World War I, his play "Mommer," was produced out of town. Another play, "Other Lives," which he wrote with Theresa Helburn, was staged also. In 1922, Goodman produced John Galsworthy's "The Pigeon" at the Greenwich Village Theatre.

In 1925, he found The Stagers. Its first play was "The Blue Peter" at the 52d Street Theatre. In his role as a director, Goodman staged some 70 plays, both on and off-Broadway. Included were "An American Tragedy," "No Question

In Memory of
DOUGLAS GAR HUBBARD
October 12, 1958

Asked" and "Rosmersholm." During the 1930's he directed several films, including "Jealousy," "Laughter" and "Women Love Once." In 1936, he was a director with the Popular Price Theatre, a Works Progress Administration theatre project. He also wrote several books.

His brother survives.

JACK DOLPH

Jack Dolph, 67, network and ad agency exec, producer, author and songwriter, died of cancer Oct. 2 in San Diego, Cal. He had been associated with Fred Waring for 29 years a producer and writer. During that period he wrote the lyrics for 48 published songs.

His last tune, "I'll Wait for My Love," to which he wrote both music and lyrics, will be published shortly. He was instrumental in the formation of the Shawnee (Pa.) Press.

Prior to joining Waring, Dolph had been in charge of the San Francisco office of CBS Pacific Radio Network, and assistant general manager of KNX, Hollywood. He joined N. W. Ayer in Philadelphia and later was general manager of radio station WHAT in the same city. Over the past 15 years, Dolph and five (Doc) Connors mystery novels published by William Morrow and Doubleday.

Surviving are two sons, Jack Dolph, director of CBS-TV sports, and Edward Dolph of Lennen & Newell.

WILLIAM H. WHITAKER

William H. Whitaker, account executive at WRCV-TV Philadelphia, died in his sleep Monday morning Oct. 8 at his home in Media, Pa.

Whitaker who was 42, had been with NBC owned station in tv sales department since November 1958. He had also been with the station as a cameraman from 1947 to 1952 when it was known as WPTZ.

A veteran Philadelphia television salesman, Whitaker had been with WFIL-TV, WVUE-TV and WIP radio, as well as with Ruben H. Donnelly and Don Bennet Productions.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, mother and two sisters.

PAUL MEERES SR.

Paul Meeres Sr., 60, former Bahamian dancer, died on Sept. 14 in Nassau, shortly after being struck by a bus. He gained international renown as a dancer in the 1920s, during which period he toured Europe, South and Central America, Canada and the U. S. and gave, on one occasion, a command performance at Buckingham Palace. For a time he was partnered with singer Josephine Baker.

At the height of his fame he returned to Nassau and constructed the Meeres Theatre and a night club also bearing his name. The latter was a hub of local night life, attracting many tourists, until it was destroyed by fire, along with the adjoining theatre, early in 1960. A son Paul Jr., also a dancer, is currently playing dates in France.

MICHAEL EDWARDS

Michael Edwards, 69, composer of the pop song, "Once in a While," and other songs and instrumental music, died Sept. 26 in Malverne, Long Island, N.Y. "Once in a While," his first published song, was the top tune on radio's "Hit Parade" for seven weeks in 1937.

After World War I, Edwards was a violinist with the Cincinnati Symphony. It was at this time that he met Victor Herbert, John Philip Sousa and others, and was encouraged to study composition. He wrote numerous marches and other works for military bands. In recent years he was a music editor of Mills Music, Inc., and was editor and arranger for other major music publishing houses.

His wife and three sisters survive.

GYPSY CASTELLA

Gypsy Castella, 71, who claimed to be the most tattooed woman in the world, died recently in Belfast, Northern Ireland. With her husband, Tattoo Jack, she had travelled all over Europe in fairs and carnivals.

She was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, where she met her husband (real name, Ambrose Harvey) 55 years ago. He persuaded her to allow him to tattoo her and go on a European tour.

Survived by her husband and her daughter May, who was a snake charmer in her father's sideshow.

BOB HOPKINS

Bob Hopkins, 44, a stage-screen actor, died of acute leukemia Oct. 5 in Hollywood. He recently completed "Papa's Delicate Condition" at Paramount while under sedation.

For several years he appeared in the Hollywood legit production of "Ken Murray's Blackouts," and did a large number of films and telepix. He also was a member of ASCAP, two of his top songs being "Flight to Hong Kong" and "Angel's Kiss."

His wife, singer Beverly Joy Hopkins, four daughters and parents survive.

MIRIAM DOYLE

Miriam Doyle, former actress and legit producer, died Sept. 18 in Wilton, Conn. Her first acting role was with David Warfield in "The Return of Peter Grim." This was followed by roles in "The King," "Cat and the Canary," "Dread" and "The Donovan Affair."

Later, she was director and associate producer for Rowland Stebbins for such productions as "The Green Pastures," "Pursuit of Happiness" and "The Patriot." During the last World War, she served overseas with the Red Cross.

WILLIAM LINDSAY GRESHAM

William Lindsay Gresham, 53, author of "Nightmare Alley" and other books on carnival life, died Sept. 13 in New York.

He received his initial taste of carnival life at the sideshows at Coney Island. He also had performed as a human target for a circus knife thrower. Other books he wrote include, "Limbo Tower," "Monster Midway," "The Book of Strength" and a biography of Harry Houdini.

His wife and two sons by a previous marriage survive.

ALEXANDER ZASS

Alexander Zass, strong man who appeared in vaude and circuses, died recently in Rochford, Essex, Eng. He was billed throughout Europe between the wars as "Samson, The Strongest Man on Earth."

In World War I Zass was a Russian cavalry officer. Following his escape from a prisoner-of-war camp, he joined a circus and made appearances in Europe, including the U.K., topping show bills with his feats of strength. In later years he trained animals for circuses.

ROBERT E. KEARNEY

Robert E. Kearney, 58, v.p. in charge of Military Films Division of Filmaster Inc., died Oct. 2 in Orlando, Fla. He had been in the film industry since 1922, when he started as an assistant director at Paramount Studios, Astoria, L.I.

For five years he produced stage shows for Paramount-Publix Theatres in N.Y., from 1928 to 1933. He went to Hollywood as a director in 1936, working for both Paramount and Metro.

His wife survives.

ALLAN S. WHITNEY

Allan S. Whitney, 53, an executive of the Esso Standard Oil Company in Linden, N.J., and an actor and director of theatres in New Jersey for 30 years, died Sept. 26 in Cranford, N.J.

A graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, he was a member and former director of the Cranford Dramatic Club and the Foothill Playhouse in Middlesex, N.J. He was associated with Esso Standard for 27 years.

RUSSELL GRAHAM MEDCRAFT

Russell Graham Medcraft, 65, co-author of "Cradle Snatchers" and other plays and films during the 1920's, died Sept. 28 as a result of a fire in his Dorchester Hotel apartment in Manhattan. He was one of four men appointed during the 1945-46 academic year to teach the Columbia University classes of Prof. Hatcher Hughes, who had died. Medcraft taught his playwriting course.

His brother and sister survive.

MRS. SIDNEY FRANKLIN

Mrs. Sidney Franklin, 55, theatre owner, died Sept. 29 aboard the Queen Elizabeth, which was on its way to London. Mrs. Franklin owned and operated the Little Theatre, a film house in Newark, N.J. At one time, she and her late husband were a song and dance team in vaudeville, playing all the major circuits, including the Palace Theatre, New York.

Her daughter survives.

PAUL FINDEISEN

Paul Findeisen, 73, who wrote the first radio column for the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, died Sept. 8 in Colorado Springs. A full-time printer before his retirement in 1954, he was the dean of Hawaii's radio columnists, contributing a weekly article for more than 20 years.

Son and daughter survive.

DOROTHEA DOUGLAS

Mrs. Dorothea Douglas, 79, a vaudeville singer and dancer for years, died Oct. 2 in Des Plaines, Ill. Her career of nearly a half-century in show business included a Broadway role in "High Jinks" as a young woman as well as many vaude tours. After retiring from the stage she designed costumes.

Survivors include two daughters, brother and a sister.

JUDSON SCOTT TODD JR.

Judson Scott Todd Jr., 53, backer of several Broadway plays, died Oct. 4 during a dinner party in his own home as a result of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to the police. The police said he had excused himself at dinner and was found dead in his bedroom about an hour later. They said he had shot himself in the temple.

His wife, daughter, brother and sister survive.

JAMES OBERLIN

James Oberlin, 31, legit-tv actor, died Oct. 2 in Hollywood following heart surgery. His last legit work was a juve lead in "Make a Million" at Pasadena Playhouse last summer. At the time of his death he was a junior executive with Hollywood Bowl.

Parents and brother survive.

ROSE DALE

Rose Dale, 67, longtime fashion designer, died of a heart attack in Hollywood Sept. 28. She was a member of the Metro wardrobe dept. during the 1930s, and later became a designer for Raquel Torres, Joan Crawford, Marion Davies and other stars.

Two sons survive.

REED BROWNING

Reed Browning, 46, KABC, Los Angeles, announcer-emcee, died of a blood disease Oct. 8 in Los Angeles. He had been inactive because of illness since last June. He joined the ABC radio station in 1943 and was best known as emcee of the station's "Night Line." He previously was a staffer on San Francisco and Honolulu stations.

Survived by wife, two sons and two daughters.

HENRY J. ZITTAU

Henry J. Zittau, 70, senior vice-president and treasurer of United Artists Associated Inc., a tv subsidiary of the United Artists Corporation, died Oct. 5 in New York, after a brief illness.

He had been a banker in Europe before coming to the U.S. in 1941. When he was 24 years old, he was one of Europe's youngest bank veepees, while with the Bohemian Union Bank in his native Prague.

His wife and son survive.

Zella Smith, who was with RKO Theatres in New York for more than 25 years, died recently in Los Angeles, after a long illness. She served as secretary to various division managers, including Russell Emde and Michael Edelstein.

Harry E. Munsey, 70, board chairman of the John B. Rogers Producing Co., died Oct. 2 in Columbus. A member of the firm since 1910 he aided in the production of civic celebrations.

Gertrude Bernhard, 80, known to vaudevillians as sister-in-law of the late Jake Lubin, head booker of Loew's when Vaude policy prevailed, died Oct. 3 in New York. She never married.

Charles Welch, 63, manager of the downtown Paramount Theatre in San Francisco, died Sept. 21 in that city, after a long illness. His wife, two sons and three daughters survive.

Don D. DeMarco, 47, dancer during the 1940s with a team called the Three DeMarcos, died Sept. 23 in Philadelphia. Wife, two daughters, parents and two sisters survive.

Leslie Silverman, 62, longtime projectionist in Balaban & Katz theatres and brother of Essaness Theatre Corp. prexy Edwin Silverman, died Oct. 3 in Chicago.

Mrs. Lilian Weissinger Manger, 78, widow of Julius Manger Sr., founder of the Manger hotel chain, died Oct. 5 in New York. Two sons and two daughters survive.

Graydon C. Lower, 67, who played trombone in John Philip Sousa's band, died Sept. 17 in Indianapolis. He later played with the Arthur Pryor band.

William van Lennep, for many years curator of Harvard Theatre Collection, died Aug. 20, after a long illness in Cambridge. Widow and two sons survive.

Henry Ford Taylor, 66, onetime exhibitor who operated theatres in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, died recently in San Angelo, Tex. His sister survives.

Wife, 68, of Earle Ludgin, board chairman of Earle Ludgin & Co. ad agency, died in an auto accident Sept. 30 in Chicago. Four sons also survive.

R. Muriel Dellinger, 48, part owner of radio station, WNNC, Newton, N.C., died Sept. 20 in Richmond, Va., following several months' illness.

George Smith, 78, former cinema and theatre owner in Dewsbury, died recently at Scarborough, Eng. Survived by wife and son.

Morris Wasserman, 61, owner of Flame Show Bar in Detroit, died Sept. 22 in San Diego following a heart attack.

Victor L. Stone, veteran vaudevillian, who played all the major vaude houses, died Sept. 13 in Toronto.

Father, 95, of Newton P. Jacobs, prexy of Crown-International Pictures, died Sept. 25 in Los Angeles.

Mother, 90, of Sir John Barbirolli, conductor of the Halle Orchestra, died Oct. 3 in London.

Mother, 80, of producer-writer Charles Marquis Warren, died Sept. 27 in Hollywood.

MARRIAGES

Edith Piaf to Theo Sarapo, Oct. 9, Paris. Both are singers.

Joan Doyle to Gerard Murray, Dublin, Oct. 2. He's producer-announcer with Radio Eireann.

Ann Doyle to Gerard Meyer, Dublin, Oct. 3. Bride's the French horn player with Radio Eireann Symphony Orchestra; he is harpist with same orch.

Pat Hamer to Stanley Kaye, New York, Oct. 6. He's drummer for Frankie Laine.

Countess Catherine Buxhoeveden to Hans Holzer, Sept. 29, Darien, Conn. Groom's a lyricist-composer.

Judith Haskell to Ronald Holgate, Oct. 7, New York. Bride is an actress; groom's an actor.

Mary Van Kirk to Ralph A. Beebe, Sept. 29, New York. Groom is an editor and publisher.

Diane Brown to Huntington Hartford, Oct. 6, Wyckoff, N.J. Bride is a model; groom is the A&P grocery chain heir, theatre-owner, hotelier and publisher of Show mag.

Regina Helene Harris to Ralph Stanley Thomas, Oct. 6, New York. Bride is the daughter of Waldorf-Astoria exec Clyde J. Harris.

Pamela Tiffin Wonso to Clay Felker, Oct. 6, New York. Bride, an actress, is professionally Pamela Tiffin; groom just resigned as senior editor of Esquire to engage in a publishing venture on his own.

Susan Fonda to Michael Wager, Oct. 9, New York. Both are actors; she is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Hammerstein and stepdaughter of the late Oscar Hammerstein 2d; groom's father is Meyer W. Weisgal, quondam legit producer and now head of the Weitzmann Institute in Israel. Former Susan Blanchard was divorced from actor Henry Fonda.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Derren Nesbitt, daughter, London, Sept. 29. Mother is actress Anne Aubrey; father is an actor.

Mr. and Mrs. Fergus Linehan, son, Dublin, Sept. 27. Mother is actress Rosaline McMenamin; father is critic and author.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Powell, daughter, Santa Monica, Cal., Sept. 26. Father is associate producer on "Saints and Sinners" teleseries.

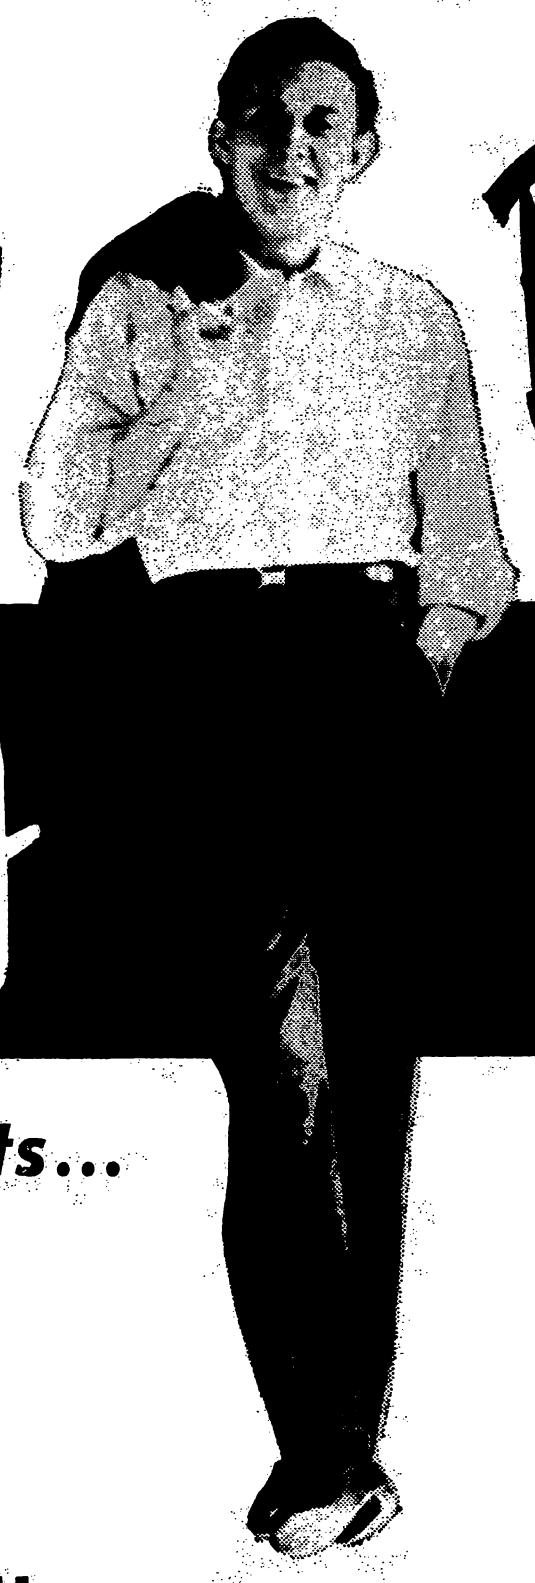
Mr. and Mrs. John E. McArdle, son, Oct. 2, Greenwich, Conn. Father is viceprexy and general manager of WNEW-TV, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Markes, daughter, Santa Monica, Cal., Sept. 29. Mother is actress Diana Herbert; father's a writer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Morgan, son, Dallas, Sept. 29. Father is v.p.-general manager of KLIF there and national sales director for the McLendon Stations.

Chides Pentagon

Continued from page 4



worldwide evidence of our strength and our morale, as a recruiting power, as an enduring record of the accomplishments of our Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, absolutely nothing can match the great American film productions dealing with them." He went on further to say that much documentary material has been shot by the Air Force, for example, but this has been seen by only a handful of people compared to the vast global audiences available for such pictures as "Twelve O'Clock High," "Command Decision" and his own "The War Lover." Such features contribute meaningfully to the "fame and reputation of the Air Force," claims Hornblow.

Sylvester's apparent new policy would have all sorts of detrimental repercussions, opines Hornblow. Perhaps pictures which benefit the services would not be made, or they would be made sans authenticity. Further, it could lead to more "runaway," wherein a producer uses foreign army personnel garbed in American uniforms, cheaply done.

Hornblow goes on to say that Hollywood, instead of getting something for nothing, actually has been serving the Government "extremely well in peace and in war." He says the Government's cooperation with service pictures means no extra cost to the taxpayers because "this falls within the normal range of military and naval operations.

A Record Maker is a

RECORD BREAKER!

Jimmy DEAN

TELEVISION facts...

As HOST for the WEEK
on NBC-TV's "TONIGHT SHOW"

Just a shade under the NUMBER ONE RATING of the 29 interim weeks
this Spring and Summer

NIELSEN NATIONAL

AA	SHARE
8.3	41

A guarantee for delivering and holding a HUGE TV audience!

FAIR facts . . .

- SELLOUT CROWDS
- CAPTIVATED AUDIENCES
- NEW HIGH GROSSES and SMILING OFFICIALS

at Michigan State
Minnesota State
Illinois
Kansas
and at least a dozen others.

Winning SPINNINGS:

During the last 12 months over
FIVE MILLION RECORDS SOLD

Current:
"LITTLE BLACK BOOK"
and
the New LONG SELLING Album
"PORTRAIT OF JIMMY DEAN" Exclusively COLUMBIA RECORDS

NOW IN PREPARATION—

A CUSTOM TAILORED JIMMY DEAN TV SHOW

Direction
WILLIAM MORRIS
AGENCY

Personal Management
Sheils & Bruno
ASSOCIATES
BEVERLY HILLS NEW YORK

Public Relations
GARY STEVENS
Associates

FILMS | VIDEO | TV FILMS | RADIO | MUSIC | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 35¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th Street, New York 36, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $15. Single copies, 35 cents.
Second Class Postage at New York, N. Y.
© COPYRIGHT 1962 BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
Vol. 228 No. 8 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1962 64 PAGES

'DON'T FILM TO PLEASE UNIONS'

Not Much Zing as Bing Reopens Met; Diminished Chic Despite Peak B.O.

By ROBERT J. LANDRY

Gala opening nights at the Metropolitan Opera continue in diminished chic as the old capital S (for Society) tends nowadays to symbolize Solvency, the great imperative. To paraphrase the English dictum of the elite: when anybody can be somebody, by purchase of a $50 ticket, then nobody is anybody. Opening night prices have been going up steadily for years, and regular nights are up, too, this season to $11. It's all evidence of the struggle of incessant fiscal desperation against constant operational crisis.

Another curious aspect of an opening is that the opera on the stage tends to be routine. The great nights in Met repertory are never the opening nights. That goes for "Andrea Chenier," which,

(Continued on page 62)

WAS 'CLAN' TELECAST BOOZING-ON-CAMERA?

Some 13 months after the event, FCC has become interested in just what the alcoholic content was of the telecast, "The Sinatra Clan," with which David Susskind's "Open End" bowed on WNEW-TV, N.Y., and WTTG-TV, Washington, D.C., last fall. With the panel for that show including many show biz and cafe society personalities, it was suspected by some viewers that ex-

(Continued on page 62)

FRANKOVICH IN CANDID PIX TALK

By GENE ARNEEL

Mike J. Frankovich, first vice-president of Columbia, in New York City this past week, exposed the other side of the coin concerning the "emotional" matter of runaway production—that is, the alleged proneness of Hollywood producers to operate abroad, and the resultant agonizing of the craft unions in California. "Runaway" has been the slogan of the studio craft unions in Hollywood for several years.

Frankovich stated (1) Columbia

(Continued on page 13)

Drop Sketch From London 'Premise'; Refuse Apology for God as Negro

London, Oct. 16.

The American revue, "The Premise," may have to close at the Comedy Theatre if the Lord Chamberlain decides that the cast may no longer improvise. William Donaldson, coproducer with Donald Albery, has received a letter from the Lord Chamberlain's office hinting such a move. "The show couldn't carry on with such a restriction," Donaldson told VARIETY.

The dispute arose when the Lord Chamberlain was informed that a sketch his office had banned from the original production was put into 'The Premise" after the show had been running for nearly three months. The sketch shows the governor of an American state falling dead in horror when he finds that God is a Negro.

Donaldson wrote and inquired

(Continued on page 62)

HITCHING OLYMPICS TO A TELSTAR IN 1964

Washington, Oct. 16.

Live coverage of the 1964 Japanese Olympics on U.S. television screens is a good possibility, it was learned today (Tues.).

Federal Communications Commission is already working here with Japanese representatives on advance details. New achievements in communications satellites are expected by then.

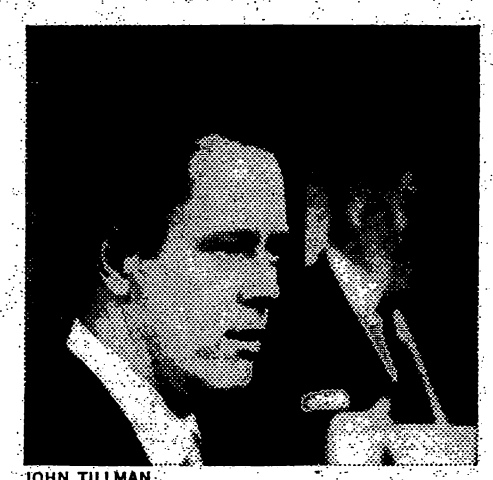
JFK Plus Hoopla To Mark Windup Of Seattle Expo

Seattle, Oct. 16.

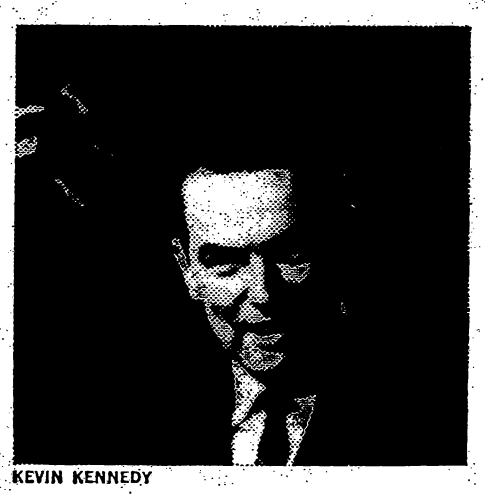
Closing day, Sunday (21), for the Seattle World's Fair will be marked with an announced brief visit by President Kennedy, songs by Patrice Munsel, bands, fireworks and entertainment.

Closing show will be held in the Stadium, beginning at sunset—5:11 p.m. in Seattle. Bands already lined up include Jackie Sounders' World's Fair band, U. of Washington band, 11 Seattle highschool bands, plus four local Scottish pipe bands.

Meantime, on attendance mark of 9,000,000 was expected to be set early this week. Attendance

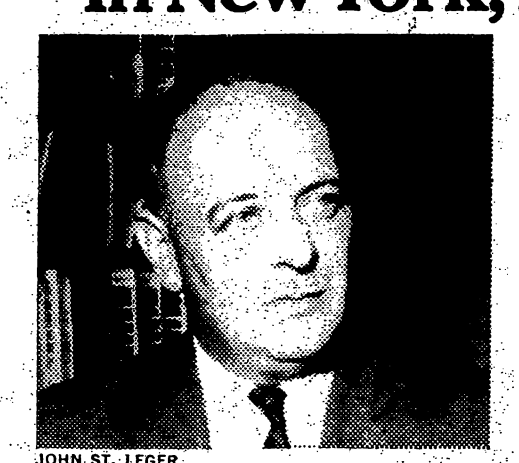


(Continued on page 62)

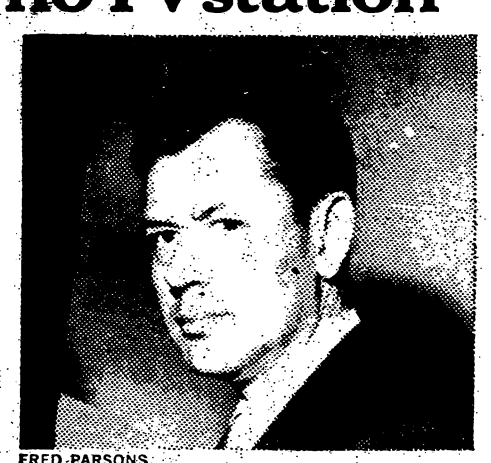


Israeli Orch's 1st German Tour

Frankfurt, Oct. 16.



For the first time, an Israeli orchestra is making a tour of West Germany. Ramat Gan Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Mendi Rodan, starts on Oct. 23, with dates here, in Stuttgart, Dortmund, Bonn and Munich.

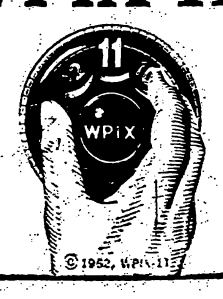


Besides standard works of Haydn, Mozart, Stravinsky and Corelli, the German premiere is also scheduled for works of the Israeli composer Ben-Haim. The latter, born 1897 in Munich, West Germany, with the name of Paul Frankenburg, emigrated to Jerusalem in 1933 and is now known as Ben-Haim.

JOHN TILLMAN

KEVIN KENNEDY

In New York, no TV station



JOHN ST. LEGER

FRED PARSONS

covers the news like WPIX-11

Jack O'Brian of the Journal American summed it up: "Channel Eleven covers the local New York news far better than the network channels". WPIX-11 has won more major awards for local television news than any other New York station. When news happens, WPIX-11 cameras are there, bringing New Yorkers unmatched news coverage.

NEW YORK'S PRESTIGE INDEPENDENT

© 1962, WPIX-11

Nitery Owners Flay Revenooers On Expense Acct.

Chicago, Oct. 16.

To hear the night club owners, the world is a savage place composed of a vindictive Internal Revenue Service, fanatical Prohibitionists and ruthless talent agents. So it would seem to an eavesdropper at the second annual convention of the Associated Night Clubs of America, which started yesterday (Mon.) and ends tomorrow (Wed.).

The 30 cafe owners, representing clubs from New York (Village Gate, The Fret) to California (Crescendo), see the IRS as the prime villain. The conclave solemnly agreed that expense accounts are their largest single income source, and they were equally solemnly in accord that the tax men were out to get them next year.

ANCA prexy Gene Norman,

(Continued on page 62)

Not-Very-Amusing Gate-Crashers

Incipient wave of "gatecrashing" is being nipped at the source with fast police action and probably trespass arrests, if it persists, to curb what happened three times in the past two weeks. Stanley Berman, quondam cabdriver who made Life and other pictorial spreads when crashing the Presidential box at the inauguration, trailed a couple of Eddie Fisher fan club teenager girls onto the Winter Garden stage and the following night walked on in the middle of Johnny

(Continued on page 62)

'They Can Do What You Can't Do': Rudy Vallee Rebukes Congressman For 'Envy' of Wages Paid Comics

Washington, Oct. 16.

Two of the more unlikely Ivy League contemporaries on the national scene are currently engaged in a gentlemanly shoving match over so distasteful a thing as money.

Rudy Vallee, Yale '26, and Rep. William B. Widnall R-N.J., Brown '27, are close to grabbing each other by the old school tie over how much culturally exchanged U. S. performers should get for their overseas stands.

Widnall, who lives in Saddle River and represents the northwestern corner of New Jersey, takes a dim view of people like, say, comic Joey Adams, getting $1,500 a week for exporting his talent when the Vice President, cabinet officers, generals and their ilk get considerably less.

The congressman backed up his view with a resolution which would limit traveling performers to $425 a week which is roughly the same pay received by the denizens of Capitol Hill.

After reading of Widnall's views in VARIETY, the erstwhile crooner wrote him a letter of protest. Said Vallee as to why performers should get more than statesmen: "The answer is very simple and you should have thought of it before asking such a stupid question . . . The gift, art and skill of being able to evoke laughter from human beings is a very rare and great gift that very few persons possess. It is so rare in fact, that

(Continued on page 62)

'Occupied Miss.'

Las Vegas, Oct. 16.

Shecky Greene, the Tropicana lounge star, asked one of the delegates to the American Legion convention here where he was from. The answer:

"I, suh, am from Occupied Mississippi."

BBC Apologizes For Sexy TV Play

London, Oct. 16.

While the British tv industry has only itself to congratulate for the lack of quotas, censorship or any other form of official restriction, circles within the industry have observed that some video operators are tending to go overboard when it comes to "sexy" television.

Prime example is that of BBC-TV's drama "Stamboul Train." Sexual overtones during the play aroused a protest gusher from all sections of the nation so strong that BBC had officially to admit there was "no excuse" for the tone of the play.

Hearing Set for Bruce On Coast Dope Charges

Van Nuys, Cal., Oct. 16.

Comic Lenny Bruce, under an arraignment order, must appear before Judge Howard Schmidt Friday (19) for a preliminary hearing on charges of narcotics possession. He was released on $2,500 bond after playing hide-and-seek with news photographers in Municipal Court and socking one with back of his hand.

Robert Coogan, brother of Jackie Coogan and former actor, in whose hobbyshop Bruce was arrested Oct. 6 on suspicion of possessing narcotics, also was arraigned on same charge and ordered to appear again in court Oct. 24.

Seeger's Southern Benefits

Albany, Ga., Oct. 16.

Folk singer Pete Seeger appeared in two concerts last Wednesday-Thursday (10-11) in this racial hot spot to help raise funds for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, a group active in what is known as the Albany Movement.

Seeger plans similar concerts in Alabama, Mississippi and North Carolina with the cooperation of SNVCC.

Congressional Snafu Again Snarls That Long Overdue Bob Hope Medal

Washington, Oct. 16.

Bob Hope has come a-cropper again, innocent victim of the infernal machinations of Congress' wheezing finale. So roughshod, in fact, was the lawmakers' denouement on Saturday (13), the late House Speaker Sam Rayburn also shared Hope's fate.

What it amounted to was last-minute failure to pass a catch-all supplemental appropriation bill including $5,000 to finance gold medals for Hope and Rayburn. The campaign to decorate Hope and Rayburn for patriotism will thus have to be revved up once again next January.

A resolution authorizing the Hope medal was introduced in May 1961, and easily passed the Senate. After laying fallow for a year in the House it emerged and was signed into law by President Kennedy last June.

All that remained for Rayburn

(Continued on page 62)

ED SULLIVAN

Nationally syndicated columnist whose popular TV show is now in its FIFTEENTH YEAR on CBS, says:

"I played PAUL ANKA again (for the TWELFTH time) and was proud and gratified that he topped his previous successful appearances.

"PAUL introduced his exciting theme song for Darryl F. Zanuck's 'THE LONGEST DAY.' A song of real Oscar quality."

'Mr. Prez' Leaves D.C. Better Than When JFK Saw It

By LES CARPENTER

Washington, Oct. 16.

"Mr. President," a real cliff-hanger for the big names connected with it during its Boston and Washington tryouts, with an almost universal critical roasting, left Washington Saturday (13) in much better shape than it arrived three weeks earlier. It opens at the St. James Theatre, N.Y., this Saturday (20).

Considerable doctoring in all departments (strangely even including sets) were undertaken in both acts during the National Theatre engagement here. Every one was an improvement, when the inital Washington performance is compared to the final Saturday matinee.

The production leaving Washington definitely rates the adjective "good."

Who hasn't seen a better show? But it was entertaining, minus the frequent restless periods experienced by the opening night audience on Sept. 25 here, including President and Mrs. Kennedy, Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and virtually every other important couple in town.

There is, of course, this week be-

(Continued on page 62)

Ex-MCAites Sue On Pension Fund

Two suits have been started in N.Y. Supreme court by several former MCA employees seeking to obtain the amount of monies credited to them in the MCA Profit Sharing Trust Funds. Former MCAites aver they are suing on behalf of all those who worked for the talent agency who did not share in the Fund when the agency folded last July. Marshall, Bratter, Allison, Tucker & Greene are representing the plaintiffs in this matter.

The former employees, deprived of jobs when MCA went out of business by Government edict, seek 100% of the amounts that had been credied to them. Under ordinary circumstances, had the firm continued in business, those completing six years employment would be eligible to receive 20% of the amount in their name, and they would get an additional 20% for each year afterward; in 10 years they would realize the entire amount.

There are two suits. Michael Barca is plaintiff in one against Jules C. Stein, MCA board chairman, Charles Miller, MCA veepee, and Edwin L. Weisl, an attorney, as trustees for the fund, and Lawrence Barnett, Miller and Lew Wasserman as corporate administrators of the fund created by

(Continued on page 62)

Michele Morgan Retrospective Shudder But Still Yens Worthwhile U.S. Film

Not unlike some of her Continental contemporaries, French actress Michele Morgan was much sorrowed by her six years in Hollywood, but is still very much avid "to do one good American picture."

She went back to Paris in 1946 after appearing in five U.S. features—"all very bad" artistically, she feels. Her pique owed mainly to casting miscues, with suggestions by the star that she was employed more for name value than for story validity. She likens her Coast experience to that of such other European ladies as Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida; of the Europe-to-U.S. migrations, only Ingrid Bergman's could be considered a success, in her judgment. (Not Garbo?)

Miss Morgan is in New York for the stateside preem of her latest, "Le Crime ne Paie Pas" (Crime Does Not Pay), which bowed yesterday (Tues.) at the eastside Sutton. Incidental to her junket is that it affords a reunion with her 18-year-old son, who's schooling on the W. Coast.

Her sour reaction to Hollywood is familiar enough; more interesting is her candid admission that she's still open to a Yank screen role, albeit with the proviso that

(Continued on page 63)

Lei It on the Line

Honolulu, Oct. 15.

Patricia Lei Anderson, the 1962 Miss Hawaii, was not among those on hand to officially welcome astronaut Walter M. Shirra Jr. during his brief visit in Hawaii.

Reason: The Honolulu Junior Chamber of Commerce, which masterminds the gal's public appearancs, declined to waive its new Miss Hawaii fee—$25 for public appearances, $50 for commercial events.

Brigitte's Video Tour of Paris

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Brigitte Bardot will appear on U.S. television later this season—but fully clothed. She has been approached by Marty Goodman and likes the idea of taking viewers on a tour of Paris similar to a recent Chevalier special. It will be a production of Henry Jaffe Enterprises, with George Schlatter as producer. It will be musicalized.

Schlatter, who produced last Sunday's Dinah Shore solo, is also nearing the pilot stage with "The World of Jonathan Winters." There will be no "crazy" in the title.

Ed Sullivan's 2 Agents: Morris & Ashley-Steiner

An unusual representation deal has been completed by Ed Sullivan. He'll be on the roster of two talent agencies. William Morris will handle Sullivan as an individual, while the Ashley-Steiner agency will represent his television package, now on CBS-TV for the 15th year.

Sullivan was one of those made homeless by the demise of MCA's talent agency operations.

The deal with both offices had been in the works for some weeks. Because of the dual nature of the negotiations, trade was uncertain as to which would get the final nod. The deal with the Morris office was concluded last week when WM prexy Abe Lastfogel was in New York on his way to Europe. Nat Lefkowitz, in command in New York, also was in on the negotiations.

Medallion's Stock Divvy

Directors of Medallion Pictures, N.Y., declared a 6¢ divvy.

It's payable Dec. 5 to holders of record Nov. 16.

Texas Univ. Acquires Stage Mgr. Downing Theatre Collection

Austin, Oct. 16.

The vast theatre collection of Broadway stage manager ("Camelot") Robert Downing, comprising 10,000 items and consuming over 20 years in assembling, has been acquired by the Hoblitzelle Theatre Arts Library at the University of Texas. Karl Hoblitzelle is founder-president of the giant Interstate Theatres chain in the southwest.

Downing will receive $50,000 for his theatre collection which comprised 107 cases of books and 75 cases of visual material. New York agent for the transaction was Lew Feldman, w.k. antiquist who heads the House of El Dieff.

Concentrating heavily on contemporary theatre, the new collection augments University resources for study and writing on the history, theory and practice of the theatre in the U.S. and England, from the mid-18th Century to the present.

The collection is particularly important to the University of Texas because it brings up to date the areas of history and biography contained in the Messmore Kendall and Albert Davis Collections, both of which were established at the University by the Hoblitzelle Foundation. It also adds to the Theatre Arts Library's collections of plays, notably the Samuel French

(Continued on page 62)

10/17

VARIETY

Subscription Order Form

Enclosed find check for $.....

Please send VARIETY for ☐ One Year ☐ Two Years ☐ Three Years

To .....
(Please Print Name)

Street .....

City..... Zone.... State.....

Regular Subscription Rates

One Year—$15.00 Two Years—$28.00

Three Years—$39.00

Canada and Foreign—$1 Additional Per Year

VARIETY Inc.

154 West 46th Street New York 36, N. Y.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

FOUNDED 1905 by SIME SILVERMAN; Published Weekly by VARIETY, INC.

Syd Silverman, President

154 West 46th St., New York 36, N. Y. JUdson 2-2700

Hollywood 28

6404 Sunset Boulevard, HOllywood 9-1141

Washington 4

1202 National Press Building, STerling 3-5445

Chicago 11

400 No. Michigan Ave., DElaware 7-4984

London, S.W.1

49 St. James's Street, Piccadilly, HYde Park 4561-2-3

SUBSCRIPTION Annual, $15; Foreign, $16; Single Copies, 35 Cents

ABEL GREEN, Editor

Volume 228 120 Number 8

INDEX

Bills	52	Night Club Review	44
Casting	58	Obituaries	63
Chatter	61	Pictures	3
Film Reviews	6	Radio	21
House Reviews	52	Record Reviews	38
Inside Music	41	Frank Scully	60
Inside Radio-TV	24	Television	21
International	18	TV Film	24
Legitimate	53	Television Reviews	29
Literati	60	Unit Reviews	52
Music	38	Vaudeville	44
New Acts	52	Wall Street	7

DAILY VARIETY

(Published in Hollywood by Daily Variety, Ltd.)

$20 a year. $25 Foreign.

DASSIN GOLD-DUSTS BLACKLIST

Keep Control of Your Production

Mike Frankovich was asked at last week's N.Y. press conference how a major company executive such as himself undertook to control production costs, bearing in mind the "runaway" expenditures obtaining with "Cleopatra," "Mutiny on the Bounty," etc.

London-based, he replied that it in good part was a matter of not giving "control to the artists—we won't give control of a picture to an artist because the artist is rare who can provide a good self portrait."

Columbia has made some mistakes, he conceded, and has had its share of problems. Logistics represent a major problem in such pictures as "Lawrence of Arabia," which Sam Spiegel is producing in alignment with Col.

But in this case, as in others, the controls are in the hands of "creative people and not the artists," averred Frankovich.

Mexico Breaks 32c Barrier With 40c OK But Trade Eyes 48-64c Scale

By EMIL ZUBRYN

Mexico City, Oct. 16.

With the Office of Public Entertainments capitulating and granting a 40c boxoffice admission for American spectaculars having a running time of over two hours, the first major change in frozen boxoffice has been accomplished in Mexico.

Quirino Ordaz Rocha of the National Theatre Operating Co. was the one who sparked the boost.

He and Universal were responsible for agreement by Mexican authorities to grant an increase for super-spectacles of the "Spartacus" class. The job is not yet over, however, and Rocha indicates that he will continue to work for a 48c firstrun admission. His feeling is that a more liberal admission price policy will not only react to Hollywood's benefit, but will also help in the current Mexican film crisis.

"If Mexican producers have a chance to recoup a greater part of their costs within Mexico, they will be in a healthier economic position," he feels.

Mexico is termed the best market for Hollywood product on this continent. "Spartacus," for example, which will have a record run of over 20 weeks at the Diana, has already chalked up a $240,000 gross, and may hit $275,000 when its run is completed.

Another outstanding Hollywood hit in Mexico this year, taking into consideration the 32c ceiling, was "Come September" which grossed $192,000. "Absent Minded Professor" in its 17-week run garnered over $150,000.

A boost to 48c would have no harmful reprecussions in this capital and major cities. It is indicated that "ideal" boxoffice for Mexico would be 48c for first runs; 32c for reissues; 24c for circuit theatres and 16c or less in nabe houses. Also, a 64c or better scale for the super-spectacles. Under this price setup all segments of the population would still be getting motion picture entertainment at varying tariffs.

Drive-In Braving Minnesota Zero

Minneapolis, Oct. 16.

In this territory where, during the winters, the temperature hovers below zero much of the time and even drops to 40 under or lower occasionally, a drivein theatre for the first time is going to brave the elements and continue in operation without any halt.

It's the Lucky Twin. One of its two screens is installing individual car heaters.

Lloyd Engelsma, the owner, declares that many "seem to prefer outdoor theatres to the four-wall houses, judging by the past summer's boxoffice results." Even in the face of mostly unfavorable weather conditions—rain and cold much of the time—the ozoners did better business than most of the subsequent-run hardtops. He's hopeful that this preference will continue even during the winter, "especially when our patrons find they can be just as comportable as in the hardtops."

DFZ's Negro Secretary

Bonnie Jenkins, secretary to Allied Artists publicity director Lars McSorley, switches next week to 20th-Fox as one of four personal secretaries to 20th prexy Darryl F. Zanuck.

Miss Jenkins is a colored girl.

So Who's Cynical?

It doesn't seem that the film industry can ever win.

First the Hollywood Race Relations Bureau and the Congress on Racial Equality were blasting producer Darryl F. Zanuck for allegedly downgrading the use of Negro troops in his D-Day pic, "The Longest Day." Now N.Y. Journal-American tv columnist Jack O'Brian blasts producer Stanley Kramer for using Negro star Sidney Poitier as the psychiatrist in "Pressure Point."

In a column last week, O'Brian noted that in the original teleplay on which the film is based, the psychiatrist had been a Caucasian Jew. Commented O'Brian: "Somehow adjusting such a role to the tension of front-paged racial problems seems oddly cyncial movie merchandising."

Tells Parents: Don't Encourage Future Regrets

Columbus, O., Oct. 16.

Parents who support film censorship are surrendering rights they may never regain and freedoms their children may never know, Eric Johnston, prexy of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, told the Columbus and Franklin County Motion Picture Council yesterday (Monday).

There is no way to control censorship once it gets started, Johnston said. "It consumes one thing: freedom." The best way to get better movies, he added, is to patronize good ones and stay away from the bad ones.

Expand Art Buchwald She-Espionage Theme Into a Columbia Film

Bobby Cohn and David Swift, doing nicely with their first production, "The Interns," for Columbia, are at work on their next, this being an extensive elaboration on a piece by Art Buchwald, formerly Paris-based columnist for the N. Y. Herald Tribune and syndication.

The original amounts to only a column by Buchwald, and is now being put into full-script form by Joseph Hiller and Jerome Chodorov.

This property, also for Col, is a light study on the training of female spies.

PROFITS STIFFEN DISTRIB SPINES

By VINCENT CANBY

Is there a "blacklist" and, if so, is it still effective?

Director Jules Dassin, in New York last week to promote his latest United Artists-Lopert release, "Phaedra," knows from painful experience that there was a blacklist, and is not yet convinced it still isn't being used "When it's convenient." The director went from 1949 to 1954 being unable to get film work either in his native U.S. or abroad.

As Dassin recounts the story, he had gone abroad in 1949 to do "The Little World of Don Camillo" in Italy, which deal fell through. About that time, he learned (from a newspaper story) that because his name had been among those given to the House Un-American Activities Committee as being either a card-carrying Communist or fellow-traveller, he would no longer be able to find work with the major U.S. companies. He had not been cited for any wrongdoing, had not run away from any Congressional investigation. Still, he was persona non grata.

Much-Congratulated

Though Dassin did not say so, sources close to him report that he was at various times urged by friends to volunteer to testify before Congress in order to "clear" himself. This he steadfastly refused to do. What then happened? Friends, including industry associates, congratulated him on his integrity and his principles, but nobody gave him a job.

The most immediate result of his predicament was the inspiration to write a play about his ordeal. He brought it to New York in 1952, but when he could only raise $27,000 of its $55,000 budget, the project collapsed. At about the same time, he was approached to direct a Broadway revue, "Two's Company," starring Bette Davis. The material was "dreadful," he remembers, but he agreed to do it on the condition that his name would be up in lights outside every theatre where it played. He wanted to see if it would inspire pickets and/or any other forms of public protest. Nothing happened. Still, he was among the unemployed as far as films were concerned, and he returned to France.

Even there, however, the effect of the blacklist was felt. Two days before he was to start shooting a French film, he was told he had been relieved. "Pressure from New New York," was the explanation. Eventually, of course, he was able to find employment, directing the critically acclaimed "Celui Qui Doit Mourir" (He Who Must Die) in 1957, followed by "Rififi" and "The Law" in the succeeding years.

Spine-Stiffener

The money success of these releases gave "courage" to other would-be employers, prompting Dassin to stress the "hypocrisy" of the blacklist system. Other film craftsmen, however whose talents, apparently, were not thought to be all that unique, i.e. profit-promising, never were able to recoup their careers. Dassin's unstated

(Continued on page 13)

From Hollywood

Claude Binyon

(who used to be one himself) is sardonically kidding-on-the-square in his satirical piece on film criticism

Are These Our Critics?

* * *

another interesting Feature in the upcoming

57th Anniversary Number of

VARIETY

Plus other statistical and data-filled charts and articles.

Charles Simonelli Third Partner In New Youngstein-Pickman Company

Dassin as Critic

Director Jules Dassin, who, along with Melina Mercouri, Tony Perkins, Robert Preston and Mike Frankovich, was a panel member on David Susskind's "Open End" Sunday (7) over WNEW, was later amazed to learn that anyone had watched the show all the way through.

The two-hour discussion had been taped on the Wednesday prior to its Sunday airing, thus allowing the panelists to see themselves in action when it was broadcast. Commented Dassin "I tried to watch it but it was so bloody dull I turned it off after a half hour."

Reade Invests $3-Mil in Films; Made in U.S.A.

Walter Reade's Continental Distributing, which already has a preproduction investment in "The Balcony," now shooting in Hollywood, plans to invest approximately $3,000,000 more in domestic production in the coming months.

Noting that Continental's previous production investments had all been in European films, Reade said in New York Monday (15) that the climate of film production in the States "has changed radically" during the last year, becoming receptive to "fresh concepts of filmmaking and subject matter."

Reade did not mention any other domestic properties the company had invested in, saying he is now looking for domestic pix which "can be brought in at a proper cost without sacrificing their qualities." Such domestic investments, he added, will not affect Continental's continued interest in overseas productions.

Bill Schneider, Too, For Youngstein Co.; Sol Siegel On False-Rumor List

Bill Schneider, formerly exec v.p. of Donahue & Co., now heading his own ad agency, has become associated with the new Youngstein-Pickman Company. It's to be a major account for Schneider, who has reputation as being creative in the use of media.

Meanwhile, rumor was in circulation over the past weekend that Sol C. Siegel, formerly production head of Metro, was joining Youngstein-Pickman. This has been flatly denied.

The Youngstein-Pickman enterprise, incidentally, still has yet to be named.

ARTHUR HILLER COUNT: 26 SHOOTING OVERSEAS

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Europe is bustling with feature production, with 26 motion pictures before the cameras in London alone when he stopped off there recently, director Arthur Hiller said here on his return from the continent, where he spent five months toiling on Walt Disney's "The Miracle of the White Stallions," lensed in Austria. In fact, the tempo of production in London is such that labs there were overtaxed to the extent their work on "Miracle" was delayed, he said.

Hiller commented he did not consider all this overseas production "runaway," for various reasons. "Miracle," he pointed out, is locaied in Vienna and it was shot there for that reason. Also, the film is located in post-war Vienna

(Continued on page 13)

Charles Simonelli, whose rise in the picture business drew attention (because of his youth) a few years ago, is leaving his present post as executive assistant to Milton R. Rackmil, president of Universal, to join Max E. Youngstein and Jerry Pickman in formation of their previously reported (but still unannounced) new production and distribution company.

Simonelli is leaving U to become the "third partner" in the Youngstein-Pickman enterprise.

Simonelli became eastern exploitation director of U in 1945. He was 23 years old at the time. After this, while continuing with U, be came upon various posts including chairman of the board of Thompson Starret Co., BIB Corp., and a director of Superior Tool & Die Co. and Bethlehem Machine & Foundry.

Simonelli's affiliation with Youngstein and Pickman gives added meaning to the Youngstein-Pickman setup. The latter two have eyes upon becoming another Seven Arts or Mirisch endeavor, but broader as they intend to package production and control distribution, while, at the same time, maintaining ancillary rights, and thus, in effect, extending the operations of the prosperous indie operators.

Simonelli reportedly already has told Rackmil of his plans to depart U.

At the same time it's learned that Youngstein over the past week told Nicolas Reisini, head man of Cinerama, that he, Youngstein, is officially leaving Cinerama. Youngstein has been v.p. of Cinerama and president of the CineMiracle subsidiary.

Simonelli, it's said, fits in the new company because of his ad-pub and distribution background plus Wall Street knowabout. Latter factor is especially important.

Youngstein will be president, and Pickman and Simonelli will be v.p.'s.

Palance Back, Trying Direction

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Jack Palance, after five years of making films only in Italy, is returning to America, "hopefully for good." He has purchased Paul Darcy Bowles' book, "The Streak," and is prepping his entry into indie film production under his own Cody Productions banner. Actor would appear in a supporting role and direct from his own screenplay. Additionally, he said, he has penned a song, "Streak of Love," to be used in the film.

Palance's last features of ten he did abroad, are "The Christmas Train" and "Barabbas" for Dino DiLaurentiis. Latter was released last week in New York. He revealed offer for Samuel Bronston's "Fall of the Roman Empire" in Madrid but said he hasn't decided if he will do it.

NEW DIMENSIONS INC.

Laurence, Wasserman, Loeff Form Producing Firm

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Douglas Laurence, Dale Wasserman and Ted Loeff have formed New Dimensions Inc., with first project to be film version of D. H. Lawrence's novel, "The Princess." Wasserman will script.

Company is also negotiating purchase of "The Little Showboat," by Lael Wertenbaker. They also project filming of Wasserman's play, "The Fog."

Company's chief activities will be in production. However, trio is also planning development of material for other indie filmakers. Laurence is prexy of the group, which will use the facilities of Loeff's Literary Projects Co. to develop book publication of basic material.

Court Okays S-W Buy of 37 Texas Theatres—24 of Them for Keeps

Stanley-Warner Circuit, thereto not a factor in Texas exhibition, is about to enter that state in a large way. Chain's bid for the 37-house Lone Star circuit was okayed yesterday (Tues.) by N.Y. Federal Judge Edmund L. Palmieri.

Proviso, however, decrees that SW must divest 13 of the acquisitions within two years, seven in the first year alone. Lone Star circuit comprises mostly driveins, with links in 13 Texas communities. After divestiture of the 13 situations, SW won't have more than one house in any given competitive area.

Acquisition marks SW's entry into ozoner field, as well as Texas competition. Bid to takeover Lone Star has been before the court since last September. It met scant exhib opposition, chief objection coming from Justice Dept. Court, however, contention that purchase would be in restraint of trade.

Except for one, all situations to be retained by SW are subruns, each reportedly averaging a $75,000 annual gross. No word out of SW homeoffice in N.Y. as to purchase price.

'West Side' World Gross, $21,000,000

As of Thursday (19), the first anniversary of the premiere of United Artists' "West Side Story," the film will have taken in a worldwide gross of approximately $21,000,000, according to a company statement. At the Rivoli Theatre in New York, where the film's first date is continuing, the picture has grossed $1,987,000 on 643 hardticket performances.

UA reports the picture currently is playing in 410 theatres in 18 different countries.

Milton London Chides Industry-Product-Famine For Letdown Summer

Detroit, Oct. 16.

The motion picture industry is accused by Milton H. London, prexy of Allied Theatres of Michigan Inc., of breaking faith and contact with its customers "by failing to provide worthwhile product during the Spring," which brought about a six-week summer lag in theatre biz.

"There is no other logical explanation," London said, in a letter addressed to general sales managers of the nine major film companies, "why boxoffice receipts on the fine merchandise released in July were far below expectation and why theatre business in general did not get off the ground until August."

London declared that the general disappointing grosses this summer on important releases must be the direct result of the product famine which existed last May and June. He pointed out there was a disastrous lag of almost six weeks this summer "before we were able to convince potential moviegoers that the product being offered was worth their time and money."

Every producer, every distributor and every exhibitor, he added, "has suffered financially by our failure to provide a consistent availability of quality entertainment to our customers."

London also pointed out that the lack of an orderly, balanced, consistent releasing program is of "serious consequence" to every person who expects to derive his living from the motion picture industry in the future. He quoted National Allied prexy Marshall H. Fine as reflecting the thoughts of exhibs on the subject:

"The lack of a regularly-delivered flow of product is the most serious problem plaguing our industry today, and poses the only threat to its future. I sincerel do not feel that there is any other issue either today or looming on the horizon that can compare in seriousness with this inability to deliver regularly top attractions to our customers."

Covers All Bases

Mike Frankovich made no bones about it in discussing Col and general industry matters with the fourth estate.

"Ask any question and I'll answer them—unless either I don't know or I just won't answer."

Frontier Adds 4; Makes 49 Sites In New Mexico

Albuquerque, Oct. 16.

Frontier Theatres Inc., headquartered in Dallas, has acquired four film theatres in Santa Fe for an undisclosed amount. Three are hardtoppers, one an ozoner. They have been owned by the Greer family in the New Mexico capital city for many years. Nathan Greer is currently manager of the family operation.

Purchase of the four houses, to take effect Oct. 21, will bring Frontier holdings in New Mexico to 49 theatres. It currently operates eight houses in Albuquerque through subsidiary, Albuquerque Theatres Inc. It also operates 37 other houses throughout the remainder of the state.

Frontier did not buy the properties, but merely the equipment and leased the houses.

Mark Cadle, who has been manager of Frontier's operations at Carlsbad, N.M., will manage the Santa Fe group.

H. J. Griffith, president of Frontier, has had interests in theatres in New Mexico for more than 35 years. The Greer family has operated Santa Fe houses for more than 50 years.

The hardtop houses included in the deal include: Lensic, El Paso and Alley Theatres. Drive-in is the Pueblo.

London Paper Rapped For Liz-Burton Pix

London, Oct. 16.

The Sunday Pictorial has been rapped by the Press Council for publishing page one pictures of Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in bathing suits holidaying in a boat off the island of Ischia, following a complaint by a woman reader.

The reader said that the individuals were married though not to one another, that they had children who, in spite of the behavior of their parents, had to face growing up in a difficult world yet might be shown these pictures, and asked: "Is there to be no limit to the press to publicize feeble, cheap sex drama."

The Pictorial editor, R. T. Payne, answered that the persons concerned were two film stars who had recently attracted considerable publicity, were much photographed and had been the subject of a great deal of speculation. He considered the pictures to be of news interest and other publications in England and abroad had taken a similar view.

In its adjudication, the Council stated: "These pictures of two much-publicized film stars were considered by the newspaper to be of news interest but the Press Council deplores their publication."

LUKAS HELLER VICTOR

Writers Guild Nixes 'Jane' Credit For Essex

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Writers Guild of America has ruled that Lukas Heller gets sole screenplay credit on Robert Aldrich's "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?," denying a request for co-screenplay credit from Harry Essex.

Essex had sought the credit on the basis of a play script he had done from the Henry Farrell tome.

Film is produced and directed by Aldrich, in association with Seven Arts, for release by Warners.

GOSPEL PER BROIDY: GRACE WITH BRONSTON

As expected, the Allied Artists fiscal statement puts the company at a decided deficit. But the solace as prexy Steve Broidy notes in a message to stockholders, is that the latest report is without appreciable benefit of "El Cid" revenues.

For the year ended last June 30, AA operations sustained a net loss of $1,580,000. After payment of preferred dividends, this equals a loss of $1.73 per share on the 931,608 common shares outstanding. For the previous fiscal year, the company reported net income of $529,000, or 54c per share after preferred stock payments.

For the benefit of holders, Broidy advances the information that the company had fewer pictures in release in the latest fiscal annum. "El Cid" rentals, he stated, are now being reflected on the books, and should have distrib back in the black when the count for the first quarter of the new year is complete. This period ended Sept. 29.

Exec said the AA planning is for a minimum of four major productions, annually, not excluding co-production ventures. Additionally, a yearly average of about eight low-budget features is also contemplated.

Company's second association with producer Samuel Bronston is via the now-shooting "55 Days at Peking," which should be in release by next Easter, and, of course, AA is excited by the prospect of duplicating the "Cid" biz.

Opening this side next month is "Billy Budd," with "Day of the Triffids," a sci-fi yarn, launching in December. "Soldier in the Rain," with Jackie Gleason starred, rolls next June, and another major title for '63 is "Maharajah," which Polan Banks and George Marshall are to produce in India.

Zanuck Clears 9 Properties to Go

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Decision has been made on the first nine titles which will get the go-ahead when the 20th-Fox studio reopens here shortly after the first of the year. It's understood that all the projects will be studio-based, though, there may be extensive location work when required by the individual property.

The properties thus marked for actual production all come from 20th's story backlog. Just which will go first, however, is still tentative.

Titles include Irving Stone's "Agony and The Ecstacy," the best-selling biography of Michelangelo; "The Enemy Within," adaptation of Robert Kennedy's book prepped by the late Jerry Wald; Laurence Durrell's "Justine"; Rodgers & Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music"; "Big River, Big Man"; "Take Her, She's Mine," Jimmy Stewart starrer whose production was temporarily postponed when Darryl F. Zanuck took over presidency this summer; "Mörituri," "Shock Treatment" and Ernest Gann's "Fate Is The Hunter," both of which were being prepped by DFZ Productions when Zanuck took over 20th.

Europe to U.S.

Gerald Adler
Alexander H. Cohen
Frank M. Folsom
Leo Fuld
Edith Hamlin
Julius Katchen
Leonard Lightstone
S. J. Perelman
Seymour Poe
Edward G. Robinson
Terence Stamp
Harold Stone
Norman Twain
Peter Ustinov
Alex B. Williamson
Noel B. Willman
Anna Deere Wiman
Darryl F. Zanuck

N.Y. to L.A.

Lionel Larner
Irving Paul Lazar
Jimmy Piersall
Joseph Stellini
Lou Weiss
Joe Wells

New York Sound Track

Most of the New York film community made it a three-day week last week, taking Monday off for the Jewish holidays, and then also Friday, Columbus Day . . . The Oct. 11 issue of The Christian Advocate contains one of the magazine's infrequent film reviews: a highly laudatory criticism of Stanley Kramer's "Judgment at Nuremberg" written by William F. Fore . . . All copies of the novel, "Seven Days in May," are now going out with insert cards asking readers for film casting advice. Pic is to be made by Kirk Douglas and director John Frankenheimer, with Rod Serling doing the adaptation.

Harry Margolies, ex-Astor Pictures and a 32-year man in the busiess, replaces Lou Steisel at Embassy . . . latter escalates to assistant to sales manager Carl Peppercorn.

Robert Penn Warren, the novelist, ailing in a Connecticut hospital with an infection, so producer Noel E. Parmentel Jr. has called off his planned reception this (Wed.) evening for the writer. Cocktailery was to have toasted the acquisition for the screen of "Night Rider," Warren's novel of the tobacco wars in Kentucky, which is slated for production late next year.

Mike Hall, local column planter who was responsible for most of those local breaks on "Longest Day" (including an entire Winchell "pillar," carries a card which identifies him as "column crasher" . . . Chalk up another one for "Judgment at Nuremberg." It's just been given the grand prix by the Catholic Organization of the International Cinema at the Assisi (Italy) film fest.

In last week's VARIETY story on the progress being made by UA's Premiere Showcase, the Loew's outlet in the Bronx should have been identified as the Paradise, not the Valencia, which is in Queens.

Steven Pallos, head of Britannia and Pax Films of London, here on biz . . . Harry Millard, recently featured in the road company of "Advise and Consent," sign for the indie pic, "Thundering Wheels," to be shot by Willpat Productions in Washington and Georgia later this month . . . Mike Bromhead, who was Lion International's rep here prior to returning to London as LI's general manager earlier this year, is serving as chairman for Great Britain for IFIDA's awards dinner here next January.

Twentieth-Fox board chairman Spyros P. Skouras has been named chairman of the 1962 campaign of the local chapter of the Assn. for the Help of Retarded Children . . . 28 RKO houses have been booked to show "Flame in The Streets," the Rank pic about racial problems in Britain. (See separate story from L.A. on ad-copy problems). Atlantic Pictures is handling this side . . . On Oct. 31 Simon & Schuster comes out with its anthology of Pete Martin Saturday Evening Post pieces: "Pete Martin Calls On."

Margot Weiss, freelance photog, named photo editor of 20th-Fox.

NYU drama & tv dept. Prof. Robert Gessner, on an invitational tour of London, Paris, Berlin and Warsaw cinema courses at respective local universities, writes from the Hog Cafe, Warsaw: "This restaurant-cafe is proud of its stairway and plumbing. Stalinalee in East Berlin is now called Karl Marxlee and you can see the difference right off! Frisco's Skid Row would be proud of such architecture."

Times Film has apparently sliced no less than 32 minutes from the running time of its latest Italo import, Michelangelo Antonioni's "Eclipse." Pic, which ran 130 minutes when shown at this year's Cannes fest, is now down to 98 minutes. It opens here at the Little Carnegie next Tuesday (23).

Astor Pictures, which has been publicizing Antonioni's "Il Grido" as "The Outcry" for the last six months, now has returned to the original Italo title, one week before its American preem at the loca 155th St. Playhouse and 5th Ave. Cinema Monday (22) . . . Col first veep Mike Frankovitch returned to his London headquarters last week after attending the "Barabbas" opening here and sitting in on the Open End tver.

The Stanley Kubrick deal with Seven Arts, which had been projected, came apart . . . Sam Spiegel going Hollywood for a change with his production of "The Chase" . . . George Sidney made a new deal with Metro and this would be a major switch . . . "Gidget Goes to Rome" put off because the leading lady and her husband became family-minded.

Blake Edwards and Jack Lemmon (former the producer, latter the actor) jointly own a property titled, "Good Lord, You're Upside Down," and plan to make the unpublished novel as a picture . . . The sign outside the DeMille Theatre couldn't have made Dino DeLaurentiis happier. It read: "Sorry, We're all sold out."

Rank Organization-distributed, Salzburg-made opera film, "Der Rosenkavalier," played a special four-day stand last week at big Carnegie Hall, similiar to a simultaneous concert hall showing of same release in Paris. Following daily takes were reported: Tues., $5,230; Wed., $6,000; Thurs., $6,195; Friday, $6,200.

Presently without a filmery, the town of Pleasant Valley (pop. 4,000) in New York State's Dutchess County has the welcome mat out for an enterprising exhibitor. Check in at the Chamber of Commerce.

Recent Herald-Trib yarn on Martin Poll's new production erratumed by calling it "Mr. Pimm and the Countess." Producers promptly vox-popped a correction, making no less than eight mentions of the correct itle, "Grand Duke and Mr. Pimm" . . . Mixed geography note: France Nuyen a N. Y.-to-Beirut item to film an NBC-TV "Here's Hollywood" seg . . . The French (those who can afford it) seem to dig American schooling for their progeny. Actor-director Gerard Oury's 20-year-old daughter is at Columbia Univ., and Michele Morgan's 18-year-old son is a college freshie on the Coast. Parents and offspring being reunited during former's current visit this side for the "Crime Does Not Pay" preem . . . Gregory Peck is the star-of-the-year choice by Theatre Owners of America. Accolade will be tendered at the exhib body's prexy banquet winding up its Bal Harbourt (Florida) confab Nov. 10. Exhibs attending the fete will also get thire first looksee at Cliff Richards, the British pop singer who screen bows this side in Par's "Wonderful to be Young" . . . Peter Ustinov in for "Billy Budd" bally, and to pow with Joe E. Levine anent possible Broadway presentation of the star's "Photo Finish" stage hit; ditto a subsequent pic version.

U.S. to Europe

Franz Allers
Jack Birns
Karl Boehm
Frank Cooper
Margia Dean
Clare Lawson-Dick
Frank Ford
Mike Frankovich
Marcia Hale
Jac Holzman
Peter Katz
Sean Kenny
Howard E. Kohn 2d
Philip Mayer
Charles Michelson
Ken Rive
Wallace A. Ross
Michael Stern
Jackie Susann
Terry-Thomas

L.A. to N.Y.

Perry Botkin
Jules Bricker
Carol Burnett
William Castle
Gower Champion
Rosemary Clooney
Phil Cohan
Edward S. Feldman
Anne Francis
Lee Grant
Signe Hasso
Hope Lange
Paul Lynde
Jayne Mansfield
Gene McCabe
Arnold Moss
Jonas Rosenfield Jr.
Wesley Ruggles Jr.
Charles E. Skinner
Herb Silvers
Rod Taylor
Paul Weston
Tim Whelan Jr.

DAVIS-ROYAL BEEFS SELL CREW

For Boxoffice Insurance, Stern Advises Dub-With-Actors-of-Each-Major-Area

By JOE COHEN

Dubbing of features should be done in the country in which the picture has to be sold, according to Mike Stern, for many years the Rome correspondent of Fawcett Publications, who is now in the U.S. setting up a distribution deal for Itam Films' "All About Love" (ex-"Magnificent Adultress" nee "Femenine Dilusso"). Stern who already shelled out $20,000 to insert English lyrics in Paris, is going to have the job redone in the U.S.

Stern says the policy he has adopted for all films distributed by Itam, of which he is exec veepee and of which Frank Levien is president, stems from the fact that a dubbing job needs writers and not translaters and it needs actors and not merely those who know the language. In America, Stern says, he can get both. Both are highly important. It's imperative to get the spirit of the actor as well as the spirit of the writer. The job can't be left to tourists who happen to be in the country, or to students wanting to make a few dollars on the side.

The importance of dubbing says Stern is seen by the fact that for $20,000 or so, an entire new market becomes available. Just how much of that market a film will be able to get, will depend, in a great measure on the dub. The dubbing cost therefore becomes unimportant in light of the markets opened up by a firistrate job.

Other projects on Itam's schedule is the filming of "The Most Dangerous Man in the World" based on one of Stern's exposes, and he is working Irwin Shaw's "Lucy Crown," rights of which are currently held by Harold Hecht.

Stern is also in the U.S. to complete the deal on publication of his book, "An American in Rome" publication date of which is still to be set by Bernard Geis Associates. The vet newspaperman is not yet ready to desert journalism completely in favor of films. He will do both. Stern is permanently based in Rome, having gone there during the war. After D-Day, Rome temporarily became an unimportant centre, which gave him the necessary time to study the film industry there, and since has dabbled in both films and journalism.

Winnipeg's New Chance To Win Sunday Amusements

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.

Winnipeg voters who have long wished to attend a film, concert or legitimate play on Sundays will have an opportunity to vote via referendum Oct. 24. Propositions, aimed at bending the province's "blue laws," is set up in two parts.

The first question will cover Sunday performances of films or performances in theatres and concert halls where an admission is charged. The second will ask voters if they favor or oppose Sunday operation of bowling alleys commercial sports, excepting horse racing, boxing, wrestling, dog racing and stock car racing.

Referendum has been drafted by the city solicitor, with the provincial government sanctioning vote, the outcome of which will give the legislature the power to change the Lord's Day Act to suit Winnipeg.

In 1955 Winnipeg voters rejected, by a slim majority, a vote to permit commercial sports in the city on Sunday afternoons. Subsequently in 1960 they approved, by a wide margin, a by-law permitting sports and other forms of entertainment, provided the event were sponsored by a non-profit organization.

Referendum resulted indirectly from action taken by city police against Sunday showings of features by the Winnipeg Film Society. Film group has launched an appeal against the conviction.

Report From Tokyo

Tokyo, Oct. 16.

Exports of films from Japan during the January-June period of this year earned a total of $954,557, according to the export committee of the Japan Motion Picture Producers Assn. The figure is a 7% increase over the same period of last year.

During the period, there were 1,138 deals on a flat basis and 120 on percentages. Earnings from the U.S. brought the most coin, $364,853. Okinawa was second in dollar accounts with $200,199 and Thailand third with $73,901. In open accounts, sales to Formosa topped the list with the equivalent of $207,180.

Japan Mostest, India's Films 2d

Washington, Oct. 16.

India retained its rank as the world's second largest (numerically) producer of feature films in 1961 despite a drop in production from the previous year, per the U.S. Commerce Dept. Production in 1961 totalled 297 features, down from 1960's all-time high of 320, chief Nathan Golden says. Boxoffice receipts in 1961 were $106,050,000.

Jaan now leads the world in feature film production.

The Indian future outlook is not good, according to Golden, because of a shortage of raw film for which the nation is dependent on imports. Film quota of all imports has been chopped to 25 percent, Golden explains.

The Indian industry also faces financing, tax, and cost problems, he adds.

The U.S. accounted for 131 of the 205 foreign pictures shown in India in 1961, or about two-thirds of the total. British, Italy and Russia contributed far fewer films. Foreign pictures were shown, however, only in 223 of India's 3,657 theatres.

Value of pictures India exported amounted to $3,360,000 in 1961, but plans are to raise the figure to $3,990,000 this year.

Thompsonites Brainstorm At Georgia Chain HQ

Hawkinsville, Ga., Oct. 16.

Motion picture operators and managers of South Georgia will gather here Thursday (18) for a meeting sponsored by Thompson Theatres and Martin Theatres. The sessions will be held in the Thompson Theatre, owned and operated by J. H. (Tommy) Thompson, president of the Motion Picture Owners and Operators of Georgia, who will preside at the business sessions.

C. S. Baker, of the All-Weather Rollerdrome of Nashville, will speak on profitable snack bar promotions, ideas and suggestions and Bill Shealey, manager of Loew's Grand Theatre, Atlanta, will give a talk on Profitable Promotions, Ideas and Gimmicks.

These talks will be followed by an open forum.

A "Get the Facts Concession" forum will take up the afternoon with Mac Russell, district manager of Wilby-Kincey Theatres, Atlanta, as moderator. Panelists will be Jack Marsh, Blevins Popcorn Co., Nashville, Bill Dunaway, Royal Crown Cola Co., Columbus, John Martin, Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, and J. O. Hoover, Martin Theatres, Columbus.

25 IMPORTS TO HIT U.S. MARKET

With a backlog of about 25 films now available, Davis-Royal Films, the newly organized indie distrib firm of Richard Davis in affiliation with Columbia, should sendout 24 features in its first 18 months, with about 12 a year thereafter, Davis reported in New York last week.

At the moment, Davis, whose pictures previously reached market via his smaller UMPO firm, is in process of building a sales org for Davis-Royal, with the current seven-man staff probably being increased to about 15. Distrib is currently negotiating with an exec at a major company to become general sales manager of the new firm, and expects to have at least six of his own sales reps around the country. In those areas where satisfactory sub-distribs are available he'll go through them.

The organization of the new firm thus fills a vacuum faced by Columbia ever since the death earlier this year of Edward Kingsley, whose Kingsley-International previously had acted as the outlet for Columbia's foreign acquisitions and art product. (Actual distribution of the Col-Kingsley product was handled by Peter Horner's Union Film Distributors, recently bought by J. J. Frankel.)

Proceed With Care

Though he predicts that Davis-Royal will become one of the most active of the indie operations, Davis has no intention of "overexpanding" on the sales front, a temptation which indies sometimes find hard to resist if they chance upon a big money-making import. Says Davis, "the important thing is to keep your overhead from swamping you, as well as to be sure of a continuity of product."

In addition to the pix he already has in the vault, Davis will supplement this roster by playing an active role in Col's acquisition of new art product, as well as in its coproduction plans. Noting that there are all sorts of "coproductions" (including some preproduction distribution deals which often are incorrectly called coproductions), the distrib says the Col plans to play the coproducer role in from five to seven pix to be made abroad in the near future.

Raoul Levy Precedent

This, of course, is not new for Col, which pioneered this sort of investment via its arrangement with French producer Raoul Levy, who made more than 10 pix with Col financing before they finally agreed to disagree. Among the pix which Davis has are several Col-Levy productions which remained unreleased at the time of Kingsley's death, including "Moderato Cantabile," starring Jeanne Moreau and Jean-Paul Belmondo, and Calude Autant-Lara's "Les Regattes de San Francisco."

One of the first of the Davis-Royal releases will be "The Reluctant Saint," an English-language comedy-drama directed by Edward Dmytryk and starring Maximillian Schell. This is the story of the obscure Italian priest who literally rose to sainthood via his powers of levitation. Pic is to receive its U.S. preem as the Christmas attraction at the Guild Theatre in New York.

Expected by Davis to be one of the firm's hottest attractions is the newest Brigitte Bardot pic, "Warrior's Rest," based on a novel by Christiane Rochfort and now in its preem engagement in Paris. This is tentatively pencilled in for February release, and the distrib has high hopes for bringing Bardot over for a p.a., something she has successfully resisted until now.

On the Davis-Royal list are two Italo films produced by Morris Ergas, "Vanina Vanini," directed by Roberto Rossellini, and "Kapo," starring Susan Strasberg, and which was the Italo nomination for the foreign language Oscar two

(Continued on page 6)

Traitors (Future) On U.S. General Staff In Screen Version of 'Seven Days'

Hollywood, Oct. 16.

Hollywood may well run headlong into a clash with the U. S. Defense Department over upcoming film production of "Seven Days in May," according to Edward Lewis, who is producing for Joel Productions and John Frankenheimer. Lewis told VARIETY they intend to do the picture despite "anticipated non-cooperation and stumbling blocks from the Pentagon."

Fletcher Knebel and Charles W. Bailey II novel deals with 1970 setting in which joint chiefs of staff plot overthrow of the U. S. Government. Basic premise of the story is separation of the executive arm of the government and the Military." Lewis said he feels "the executive arm will be in favor." He noted they will meet with people in Washington upon completion of the Rod Serling script to determine cooperation. Among necessities is permission to film in Washington, which Lewis will try to obtain during these meetings.

Initially, film was undertaken on an entirely indie basis, with authors, Serling and producers all in on participation. Lewis said, however, that the novel has risen to second place on national bestseller lists resulting in "interest expressed by most major companies." He now expects film to go for a major.

Picture, which calls for five major star names, will have Kirk Douglas in one of top roles. Budget will be "at least $3,000,000," according to Lewis. Filming is aimed for late January start. Producer said, regardless of governmental objection, "we will make the picture." He stated, "it is important that we have the strength to see that such a problem exists and meet it; this is a patriotic film." Queried on its impact overseas, he said "I don't believe it is a bad image for us to show that democracy exists in America." He noted such a film would face "enormous censorship problems if any other country tried to make it."

Fog-on-Fog

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 16.

A heavy fog caused screening difficulties at local ozoners. However the Twin Drive-In Theatre north screen got an unusual effect from it. The drive-in was showing "Mr. Hobbs Takes a Vacation" (20th), in which there is a scene showing James Stewart and his "son" in a sailboat.

A thick fog rolled in on them at the exact moment the real fog rolled into the ozoner. It became 3-D without glasses. When the screen fog lifted, real one remained to hamper the showing.

A British Fear: Too Tiny Toll Test

London, Oct. 16.

Concern is being expressed by British filmmakers in case any upcoming tollvision experiment here (following the official hint in the government's White Paper) should not be conducted on a sufficiently large scale. Producers are worried about the government's indication that "the scope of any experiment over wire would be severely limited certainly in the early stages" may mean only a small try-out for pay-tv is planned. If this is the case, the film men feel findings could be misleading.

According to the British Film Producers Association, whose views on this issue are consistent with those of the Federation of British Film Makers, the experiment should foreshadow the shape of tollvision to come. Thus it should be tried out on a sufficiently large format to allow production of shows mounted specially for the medium.

Producers think it would be a mistake to omit this aspect from the test as the big show, lavishly appointed, out-of-budget-reach of the video networks, etc., is supposedly one of the main attractions of a feevee system. Not to find out in the beginning whether the public is sufficiently interested to buy this type of product is lacking in common sense, they feel.

Both trade associations are making submissions to the Postmaster General.

Orleans, Shopping Centre Hardtop, Under Erection

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.

Construction has begun on the new 2,000-seat Orleans Theatre, in the heart of one of the larger shopping centre complexes in northeast Philadelphia. Orleans will be an addition to the William Goldman chain of film houses.

New hardtop will feature the recently developed eye-ease lighting. Contract calls for completion early in 1963.

Gather to Attaboy Burger

Pittsburgh, Oct. 16.

Pittsburgh friends of Henry Burger, who was recently promoted to midwest zone manager for the Stanley Warner Theatres, arranged a testimonial dinner for him on Thurs. (11) at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Cochairmen for the affair are Morris Finkel, Dave Silverman, Harry Feinstein and Jules Curley who succeeded him here as advertising manager.

ED LINDER TO MT. KISCO

Minneapolis, Oct. 16.

Ed Linder has exited as manager of Bennie Berger's firstrun loop Gopher theatre here to become a partner in Lesser Theatres circuit of New York and managing director of the chain's new de luxe house at Mt. Kisco, N.Y., scheduled to open Nov. 1.

Alce Trimble succeeds him here.

In Re Those Phoney 'American Premieres'

Nassau, Bahamas.

Editor, VARIETY:

In his review of "Mr. Arkadin" (VARIETY, Sept. 19) Pit mentions that this 1955 Orson Welles effort would have a theatrical showing in New York beginning on Oct. 2. He then goes on to say, "Since VARIETY unaccountably carried no review of the pic originally, this is now to redress the omission."

Just to keep the record straight, this film which has had some U. S. tv exposure (it played Miami just a few weeks ago) was reviewed in VARIETY from the 1956 Cannes Film Festival under the title "Confidential File." Its running time was 95 minutes. The exact date of its screening is not indicated nor is the review signed, unless I have inadvertently cut off the signature.

On a not too distantly related subject, I note many New York arties have a tendency to announce the opening of new films as "American Premieres" when very often they are not. The Murray Hill for instance (and there have been other recent examples) in its ads for the current "Operation Snatch" announced its Sept. 24 opening as an "American Premiere." This film played the Downer Prestige Theatre in Milwaukee several weeks previously and possibly has had other U. S. dates. I am wondering when New York theatres will announce the "American Premieres" of such films as "Hell in the City" with Anna Magnani and Gulietta Masina which played in California early this year or "Lights and Shadows" with Simone Signoret and Maria Casares which had its first showings in Memphis, I believe, back about March. It may be of small matter, but New Yorkers needn't think they see them all first.

Bill Elliott.

The Manchurian Candidate

Firstrate, offbeat suspense drama. One of the year's big grossers.

United Artists release of M. C. Production (Howard W. Koch executive producer; George Axelrod, John Frankenheimer, producers, directed by John Frankenheimer. Stars Frank Sinatra, Laurence Harvey, Janet Leigh; features Angela Lansbury, Henry Silva, James Gregory, Leslie Parrish. Screenplay by George Axelrod, based on novel by Richard Condon; music, David Amram; camera, Lionel Lindon; editor, Ferris Webster; asst. director, Joseph E. Lom. Reviewed in New York, Sept. 27, '62. Running time, 126 MINS.

Bennett Marco ..... Frank Sinatra
Raymond Shaw ..... Laurence Harvey
Rosie ..... Janet Leigh
Raymond's mother .... Angela Lansbury
Chunjin ..... Henry Silva
Senator John Iselin .... James Gregory
Jocie Jordon ..... Leslie Parrish
Senator Thomas Jordon ... John McGiver
Yen Lo ..... Khigh Dhiegh
Corporal Melvin ..... James Edwards
Colonel ..... Douglas Henderson
Zilkov ..... Albert Paulsen
Secretary of Defense ... Barry Kelley
Holborn Gaines ..... Lloyd Corrigan
Berezovo ..... Madame Spivy

Every once in a rare while a film comes along that "works" in all departments, with story, production and performance so well blended that the end effect is one of nearly complete satisfaction. Such is "The Manchurian Candidate," George Axelrod and John Frankenheimer's jazzy, hip screen translation of Richard Condon's bestselling novel. With Frank Sinatra, Laurence Harvey, Janet Leigh and Angela Lansbury all giving top performances, the picture not only has strong built-in boxoffice values, but the controversial makings for the kind of word-of-mouth that turns a good grosser into a blockbuster.

The exact nature of "Manchurian Candidate" may be hard to define, but perhaps "suspense melodrama" is the best term. Its story of the tracking down of a brainwashed Korean war "hero," being used as the key figure in an elaborate Communist plot to take over the U.S. government, is, on the surface, one of the wildest fabrications any author has ever tried to palm off on a gullible public. But the fascinating thing is that, from uncertain premise to shattering conclusion, one does not question plausibility: the events being rooted in their own cinematic reality.

As scripted by Axelrod and directed by Frankenheimer, who also double as coproducers under exec producer Howard W. Koch, "Manchurian Candidate" gets off to an early start (before the credits) as a dilemma wrapped in an enigma; a small American patrol in Korea is captured by the Chinese Communists. Shortly thereafter, the sergeant of the group, Laurence Harvey, is seen being welcomed home to Washington as a Congressional Medal of Honor winner, having been recommended for that award by his captain, Frank Sinatra, who led the illfated patrol. But something is obviously wrong. Harvey himself admits to being the least likely of heroes, and Sinatra, though he testifies that the sergeant is "the bravest, most honorable, most loyal" man he knows, realizes this is completely untrue. But why?

The captain's subsequent pursuit of the truth comprises the bizarre plot which ranges from the halls of Congress, New York publishing circles and an extremely unlikely Communist hideout in mid-Manhattan, to a literally stunning climax at a Madison Square Garden political convention.

Like all the best films, there probably has never been anything quite like "The Manchurian Candidate" before, though in sheer bravado of narrative and photographic styles it shares the tradition of Hitchcock, Capra, Welles and Hawks. In character and incidental comment, it displays irreverence towards hallowed cliches, be they "all-consuming" mother love, the commercialization of Christmas ("The 12 Days of Christmas"—one day is quite loathsome enough"), Iron Curtain spies (here the Russ agent is an apprehensive boor and the Chinese a whimsical, literate mind from outer Manchuria, if not space), to say nothing of homegrown political frauds who hide behind portraits of Abe Lincoln. A major character in the proceedings is a thinly disguised takeoff on the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, played with farcical but devastating gusto by James Gregory. "The Manchurian Candidate" thus restores a topical excitement to American films which has been almost totally lacking since Hollywoodites started taking up residence abroad. This film could not have been made anywhere but in the U.S.

"Candidate" must inevitably come up for a bundle of Oscar nominations next spring. Most likely to succeed is Angela Lansbury, whose performance as Harvey's scheming, caustic mother ("Raymond, why do you always have to look as if your head were about to come to a point?") is one of the most poignant and diamond-hard of the ear. Equally good is Harvey, who succeeds in making appealing a character correctly described as "completely unlovable"—by far his best role since "Room at the Top. Also ripe for kudos are Frankenheimer, as director, and Axelrod, for best script from another medium.

Less showy, but no less effective, is Sinatra who, after several pix in which he appeared to be sleep-walking, is again a wide-awake pro creating a straight, quietly humorous character of some sensitivity. A pleasant surprise is Janet Leigh as a sweet, swinging N.Y. career girl. The actress only has two or three scenes, but they count. One especially, on a Washington-to-New York train in which she picks up a semi-hysterical Sinatra, registers as one of the great love scenes since Bogart and Bacall first tossed non-sequiturs at one another in "To Have and Have Not." ("Are you Arabic?" asks Miss Leigh; "Or, to put it another way, are you married?"). One of the brilliant achievements of the film is the way Axelrod and Frankenheimer have been able to blend the diverse moods, including the tender and explosively funny as well as the satiric and brutally shocking.

Supporting work, with perhaps one exception, is fine. Henry Silva is suitably sinister as a Red agent and pretty Leslie Parrish is lively and believable as Harvey's illfated romance. Only John McGiver, as a liberal senator who, presumably, should be appealing, since he's portrayed as being on the side of right, strikes a false note. It's a mannered, pompous performance right out of summer stock.

Some mention should be made too of the form of the film. Though it includes three flashbacks (two of which are hypnotically weird dream sequences), the picture moves forward with a constantly increasing tension and momentum which never allow for audience second-guessing of the macabre plot twists or coincidences. The quick cuts and tricky juxtaposition of scenes match the flamboyance of the script. So do Lionel Lindon's slick b w photography and Ferris Webster's editing. David Amram's music is a witty, though never obtrusive counterpoint to the action. Anby.

Dr. No
(BRITISH—TECHNICOLOR)

Ian Fleming's Secret Service agent-hero, James Bond, comes to the screen for the first time in a piece of amusing, hokey action. Ought to please generally.

London, Oct. 4.

United Artists release of Harry Saltzman & Albert R. Broccoli presentation for Eon Productions. Stars Sean Connery. Directed by Terence Young. Screenplay by Richard Maibaum, Johanna Harwood & Berkely Mather; based on Ian Fleming's story, editor, Peter Hunt; camera, Ted Moore; music, Monty Norman. Previewed at Pavilion, London, Oct. 2, '62. Running time, 110 MINS.

James Bond ..... Sean Connery
Honey ..... Ursula Andress
Dr. No ..... Joseph Wiseman
Felix Leiter ..... Jack Lord
M ..... Bernard Lee
Professor Dent ..... Anthony Dawson
Quarrel ..... John Kitzmiller
Miss Taro ..... Zena Marshall
Sylvia ..... Eunice Gayson
Miss Moneypenny ..... Lois Maxwell
Strangways ..... Tim Moxon
Girl Photographer ... Margaret LeWars

First screen adventure of Ian Fleming's hardhitting, fearless, imperturbable, girl-loving Secret Service Agent 007, James Bond, is an entertaining piece of tongue-in-cheek action hokum. It's to be the first of a series which should be both popular and profitable. Not designed for sophisticates but for those who like straightforward action laced with humor.

Picked to portray Bond is rugged Sean Connery, a stalwart, confident actor who looks as if he may have landed himself a career as Bond. He excellently puts over a cool, fearless, on-the-ball, fictional Secret Service guy. Terence Young has directed with a pace which only occasionally lags. He and script throw in plenty of conventional, but acceptable melodrama gimmicks.

The hero is exposed to pretty (and sometimes treacherous) gals, a poison tarantula spider, a sinister crook, flame throwers, gunshot, bloodhounds, beating up, near drowning and plenty of other mayhem and malarkey, and comes through it all with good humor, resourcefulness and what have you.

Connery, as Secret Service Agent 007 (the 00 means he is licensed to kill, and does) is sent to Jamaica to investigate the murder of a British confidential agent and his secretary. Since both murders happen within three or four minutes of the credit titles the pic gets away to an exhilarating start. He becomes involved with the activities of Dr. No, a sinister Chinese scientist (Joseph Wiseman) who from an island called Crab Key is using a nuclear laboratory to divert off course the rockets being propelled from Cape Canaveral. Connery gets into plenty of trouble when he penetrates Dr. No's h.q.

Wiseman is a bland heavy, Anthony Dawson a shifty geological professor, Bernard Lee an authoritative Secret Service chief, Jack Lord a C.I.A. man, and John Kitzmiller a Jamaican aide to Connery. Sometimes Kitzmiller is compelled to revert to that now old-fashioned type of Clarence Muse colored actor mugging but, overall, comes out as a forceful personality. Among the dames with whom Connery becomes involved are easy-on-the-eye Ursula Andress, who shares his perilous adventures on Crab Key, and spends most of her time in a bikini, Zena Marshall as an Oriental charmer who nearly decoys him to doom via her boudoir and Eunice Gayson, whom he picks up in a gambling club in London and who promises to be the biggest menace of the lot. But she is an irrevelant doll who fades out of the pic when Connery is switched to Jamaica.

Ted Moore has done a swell job with his lush color photography of the West Indies and Monty Norman's music and Peter Hunt's editing are both technically okay. Production values in this pic are topclass including some polished artwork and ingenious scientific special effects. As a screen hero James Bond is clearly here to stay. He will win no Oscars but a heck of a lot of enthusiastic followers. Rich.

The Password Is Courage
(BRITISH)

Real life war yarn which has been souped up beyond the realms of conviction; Dirk Bogarde's name helps and this could do useful b.o., despite its flaws.

London, Oct. 11.

Metro release of Andrew & Virginia Stone production. Stars Dirk Bogarde; features Maria Perschy, Alfred Lynch, Nigel Stock, Reginald Beckwith, Ferdy Mayne, George Mikell, Olav Pooley. Direction and screenplay by Stone, from John Castle's biography of Charles Coward. Camera, David Boulton; editor, Noreen Ackland (under supervision of Virginia Stone). Previewed at Metro Private Theatre. Running time, 116 MINS.

Charlie Coward ..... Dirk Bogarde
Irena ..... Maria Perschy
Pope ..... Alfred Lynch
Cole ..... Nigel Stock
Unterofficer ..... Reginald Beckwith
Schmidt ..... Richard Marner
Aussie ..... Ed Devereaux
Pringle ..... Lewis Flander
Necke ..... George Mikell
Robinson ..... Richard Carpenter
French Farmwoman .. Margaret Whiting
German Doctor ..... Olav Pooley
1st German Officer ..... Ferdy Mayne
2nd German Officer ..... Olav Pooley
1st German Goon ..... Colin Blakely

Based on the wartime adventures of Sergeant-Major Charles Coward, this real life yarn is another in the procession of war stories and, maybe, audiences have had the theme a shade too often. This one has been blown up as a star vehicle for Dirk Bogarde and an opportunity for Andrew and Virginia Stone to exercise their gleeful skill with special effects.

Stone's screenplay, based on a blog of Coward by John Castle, has pumped into its untidy 116 minutes an overdose of slapstick humor. Result is that what could have been a telling tribute to a character of guts and initiative, the kind that every war produces, lacks conviction. It seems too much a confected piece of fiction. Still, Bogarde's name can spell boxoffice and the pic provides easygoing entertainment for the easygoing.

Coward (Bogarde), a breezy, likeable character, becomes a prisoner of war and is dedicated to sabotaging and humiliating his German captors. As senior soldier in Stalag 8B, he rallies the other men to escape so that they can get back to fighting the Nazis. Coward's main problem is to make contact with the Polish underground to get maps, money, etc., before escaping through a 280-foot tunnel which the prisoners have laboriously built. In charge of a batch of prisoners at a lumber yard, he contrives, with his colleagues, to burn down the yard.

He convinces the German officer in charge that it was because the officer was smoking on duty, promises not to report the incident on condition that Coward gets the afternoon off in nearby Breslau, without a guard.

There he contacts a blonde optician and the escape goes through with some tension, but the ringleaders are recaptured and sent to Auschwitz. As the Allies advance, pushing the enemy to the west, Coward and his sidekick, Pope (Alfred Lynch), escape again and join the American lines by commandeering a fire engine and riding triumphantly through occupied villages.

These, and other incidents, sound like something dreamed up by an expansive, imaginative scriptwriter. In "The Password Is Courage," they seem more like reel life than real life. The whole incredible adventure never seems to hold the feeling of having actually happened.

Bogarde gives a performance that is never less than competent, but never much more. The best male performance comes from Lynch, as Corporal Pope, a philosophical soldier devoted to Coward. He is a composite of several characters in Coward's actual story. Maria Perschy, a personable Hungarian girl making her first appearance in a British film, brings some glamor to the film as the underground worker. Nigel Stock, Ed Devereaux, Lewis Flander, George Mikell, Ferdy Mayne, Colin Blakeley and several others give Bogarde and Lynch stout aid in support roles.

But the casting of Reginald Beckwith, a typically British character actor, as a Nazi officer pinpoints the fact that all the Germans are made to look like idiots which, again, destroys much of the realism.

The Stones have worked out some sharp technical effects with fire, train sabotage and the like, ably executed by Bill Warrington. David Boulton's lensing does justice to Metroscope and the music (uncredited) is unobtrusively okay.

As a piece of fiction, this film would satisfy the average audiences. As a slice of real life and a tribute to an offbeat character, it is hollow stuff. Rich.

Davis-Royal

Continued from page 5

years ago. Others include "The L-shaped Room," British romantic drama starring Leslie Caron and Emlyn Williams, written and directed by Bryan Forbes; "Les Mauvais Coups," starring Simone Signoret; Mauro Bolognini's "Senelita," with Anthony Franciosa and Claudia Cardinale, and two French pix, "Les Dimanches d'Une Ville d'Avray," with Hardy Kruger, and Autant-Lara's "Thou Shalt Not Kill," whose pacifist theme caused all sorts of trouble at the 1961 Venice film fest.

In addition to heading the new firm, Davis will also continue running his posh eastside art house, the Fine Arts Theatre.

Le Gentleman D'Epsom
(FRENCH—TOTALSCOPE)

Paris, Oct. 9.

UFA-Comacico release of Cipra-Cite Films-CCM production. Stars Jean Gabin; features Paul Frankeur, Frank Villard, Louis De Funes, Madeleine Robinson. Directed by Gilles Grangier. Screenplay, Albert Simonin, Michel Audiard, Grangier; camera, Louis Page; editor, Jacques Desagneaux. At Balzac, Paris. Running time, 83 MINS.

Richard ..... Jean Gabin
Maud ..... Madeleine Robinson
Arthur ..... Paul Frankeur
Lucien ..... Frank Villard
Charly ..... Jean Lefebvre
Ripeux ..... Louis De Funes

Vet actor Jean Gabin again essays a type of role that has become familiar for him of late. He is an old snob living off racetrack touting, and not above some clever underhand actions. He walks through this role with his usual aplomb, but the pic neglects to build any story or indulge in any deeper characterization. Result is a breezy series of anecdotes that rate this as more of a local than foreign entry, except for possible special situations on the Gabin name.

Gabin's meal ticket is a group of people to whom he gives a different horse in a daily race, with each putting down a bet for him. He is thus bound to win. He also considers himself a great handicapper and does make some killings at times.

One day he meets an old flame and hides his ordinary financial means. She is married to a rich American and in for clothes buying. He takes her on a big night spree, and gives a bad check.

But he gets another sucker and manages to make a great track cleanup by mistake to end this on an upbeat note. But all of this is quite surface and oversimplified. But it gives the still dynamic Gabin another chance to play a domineering role. All this is done with a general breeziness that makes this lightweight affair a good local entry.

Credits are okay and the support is fine. Louis De Funes takes a small role and with his finesse in pointed mugging and timing proves himself to be one of the best comedians around here. Mosk.

The Quare Fellow
(BRITISH)

Grim 'entertainment,' in intelligent protest against capital punishment based on Brendan Behan's play. Sound leading performances but strength is in the excellence of the small part players all down the line.

London, Oct. 4.

British-Lion release through BLC of a Havelock-Allan production. Stars Patrick McGoohan, Sylvia Syms; features Walter Macken, Harry Brogan, Marie Kean, Dermot Kelly, John Welsh. Produced by Anthony Havelock-Allan. Written and directed by Arthur Dreifuss, from an adaptation of Brendan Behan's play by Jacqueline Sundstrom and Dreifuss; camera, Peter Hennessy; editor, Ted Marshall; music, Alexander Faris. Previewed at Rialto, London, Oct. 2, '62. Running time, 90 MINS.

Crimmin ..... Patrick McGoohan
Kathleen ..... Sylvia Syms
Regan ..... Walter Macken
Donelly ..... Dermot Kelly
Chief Warder ..... Jack Cunningham
Holy Healy ..... Hilton Edwards
Prison Governor ..... Philip O'Flynn
Dr. Flyn ..... Leo McCabe
Lavery ..... Norman Rodway
Mrs. O'Hara ..... Marie Kean
Mickser's Wife ..... Pauline Delaney
1st Customs Officer ..... Geoff Golden
2nd Customs Officer ..... Tom Irwin
Poet ..... Joe O'Donnell
Meg ..... Agnes Bernelle
Minna ..... Iris Lawler
Prison Chaplain ..... Dominic Roche
Himself ..... Arthur O'Sullivan
Silvertop ..... Aubrey Morris
Mickser ..... Robert Bernal
Clancy ..... Frank O'Donovan
Carroll ..... John Welsh

Based on Brendan Behan's play this is an allout protest against capital punishment. It is downbeat entertainment but honest and has the benefit of a sterling cast, virtually all Irish. It has also been shot entirely in a Dublin prison and on location. These two assets make for an authenticity which gives class to the production. The last days of a condemned murderer will not be everybody's idea of a gay outing. Pic will need careful selling. But it has something to say and says it well.

Patrick McGoohan is a young man from the Irish backwoods who takes up his first appointment as a jail warder with lofty ideals. Criminals must be punished for the sake of society is his inflexible theory and that also embraces capital punishment. But when he arrives he is shaken by the prison atmosphere. Two men are awaiting the noose. One is reprieved but hangs himself. That shakes McGoohan. He meets the young wife of the other murderer and his

(Continued on page 17)

Amusement Stock Quotations

Week Ended Tues. (16)

N. Y. Stock Exchange

1962 High	1962 Low		*Weekly Vol. in 100s	Weekly High	Weekly Low	Tues. Close	Net Change for wk.
21⅞	12⅜	ABC Vending	83	14¼	13½	13¾	+ ¼
47½	22¾	Am Br-P'r Th	64	30¾	29½	29½	— ¼
20⅝	10	Ampex	387	16¼	15¼	15¼	— ½
43⅞	31½	CBS	127	37⅞	36½	37½	+1⅛
33⅞	11	Chris Craft	73	11¾	11	11	— ⅞
31	14	Col Pix	29	20	18⅜	18¾	—1⅛
51⅜	34½	Decca	30	41½	40	41½	+1⅞
40⅝	24¾	Disney	29	26	25	25⅜	— ¾
115⅞	85	Eastman Kdk.	144	97⅝	95½	96	— ⅝
6¼	4¼	EMI	140	4⅞	4⅝	4⅝	+ ⅛
14⅝	8⅜	Glen Alden	120	9¼	8⅜	8⅜	— ¾
47½	19½	Loew's Thea.	151	22½	21⅝	22¼	+ ⅝
78⅞	33	MCA Inc.	44	43¼	41⅛	41¾	+ ⅛
15⅞	10⅜	Metromedia	34	14	13¼	13⅜	..
58⅛	27⅛	MGM	81	31⅜	30⅛	30⅜	— ⅝
9¼	5⅞	Nat. G. Corp.	40	6⅜	6⅜	6½	+ ⅛
25½	19	Outlet	†520	21	20¼	21	+ ½
58½	36½	Paramount	51	39⅜	37½	37¾	—1
221	81½	Polaroid	2294	128	118⅜	123¼	—3¼
63⅞	38⅝	RCA	721	51¼	49¼	49¼	— ⅝
12⅜	6⅞	Republic	92	7⅛	6¾	6⅞	— ⅛
17	13	Rep., pfd.	14	14	13¾	13¾	— ¼
40¼	19½	Stanley War.	46	20½	20	20⅛	..
39⅜	18	20th-Fox	117	22¾	21¾	21¾	— ⅞
35⅜	24⅝	United Arti'ts	39	27¼	26¾	26¾	— ¼
20¾	11¼	Warner Bros.	25	12⅞	12¼	12⅞	+ ¾
75⅝	44	Zenith	308	53	50¼	51⅛	—1¼

American Stock Exchange

6⅝	2½	Allied Artists	36	3	3	3
9	3⅝	BalM'nt GAC	16	5¼	5	5
21⅜	10¼	Cap. Cit. Bdc.	27	16⅜	15¼	15¼	— ¾
20⅜	9⅛	Cinerama Inc.	228	14⅛	13⅛	13⅛	— ⅝
12	6½	Desilu Prods.	23	7⅞	7⅝	7¾	+ ⅛
9⅜	4½	Filmways	20	5	4½	5	+ ¼
14⅜	6	MPO Vid.	6	6¼	6⅛	6¼
2¾	1	Nat'l Telefilm	33	1	1	1	..
5⅛	2⅜	Reeves Bdcst.	3	2½	2⅜	2½	+ ⅛
7½	2¾	Reeves Snd.	83	3½	3⅛	3⅛	— ⅜
12¾	10¼	Rollins Bdcst.	8	11¾	11½	11½
26⅜	8½	Technicolor	175	10	9	9	— ¾
16⅞	6⅛	Telepro'pt'r	38	6½	6	6	— ⅜
3	1⅛	Tele Indus	201	2⅞	1⅞	2⅞	+1⅛
18¾	10⅛	Trans-Lux	13	12⅛	12	12⅛	+ ⅛

*Week Ended Mon. (15).
†Actual Volume.

(Courtesy of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc.)

Over-the-Counter Securities

	Bid	Ask
America Corp.	1⅜	2⅛	— ½
Commonwealth Theatres of Puerto Rico	7¼	8⅜	..
Four Star Television	12½	13⅜	+ ⅛
Gen Aniline & FA	260	286	+10
General Drive-in	8¼	9½
Magna Pictures	1¼	1⅝	..
Medallion Pictures	5⅛	5¾	+ ⅛
Premier Albums	7¼	8⅜	+ ½
Rapid Film Technique	1⅜	1⅞	..
Seven Arts Productions	7½	8⅜	— ⅛
Transcontinent Television	9⅛	10⅛	— ⅛
U. A. Theatres	6¼	7⅜
Universal Pictures	57½	63⅜
Universal pfd.	90	96
Walter Reade-Sterling Inc.	1¾	2⅛	— ⅛
Wometco Enterprises	25¼	27½	— ½
Wrather Corp.	3⅝	4⅜	..

(Source: National Assn. of Securities Dealers Inc.)

DFZ, Poe Separately Face London

By HAROLD MYERS

—Zanuck Speaking

London, Oct. 16.

"The bleak and dire picture that has been painted is not entirely justified, although we will have a very bad year," Darryl F. Zanuck frankly admitted at a conference for trade and lay press in London last week. The new 20th-Fox president, who was in town for the launching of "The Longest Day," was meeting the British press for the first time since his appointment, and freely answered probing questions about the future of the company as well as criticism which had been levelled against his picture.

The conference was held in 20th's main screening room, and Zanuck was flanked by Seymour Poe, his vice president in charge of world sales (who was holding his own press confab the following day), Elmo Williams, his associate producer on "Longest Day" and now his foreign production rep, Percy Livingstone, managing director of the British distributing outfit, and Cornelius Ryan, author of "The Longest Day." The meeting was covered by newsreels and still photogs as well as by the regular corps of showbiz writers and columnists.

Zanuck forecast that the downward trend in the company's fortunes would continue until the summer of 1963, at which time they would begin to level off. Thereafter, he believed the graph would begin to show an upward trend. "We will lose $25,000,000 for sure this year," he added philosophically.

The time delay in turning the corner, he explained, was due to the fact that "Longest Day" would not start earning any real money until next May or June, when it goes into general release, while the bulk of the "Cleopatra" earnings would not begin to flow before 1964. So the company was now in an "in between spell," though he believed they had a good program of releases coming up, and he was particularly high on "Nine Hours to Rama."

Exit Goldstein

In reply to one questioner, Zanuck confirmed that Robert L. Goldstein, who had helmed the company's British production setup, had exited. It's believed that the department will now come under Elmo William's European production assignment. Williams will be returning to New York in a few days for further discussions with his DFZ, and is likely to make his h.q. in London, though that has not been finally decided.

Zanuck reiterated that 20th was planning to streamline its worldwide distributing organization, and Seymour Poe was just completing his second survey of the company's operation. There will be changes all over the world, Zanuck commented, including Britain and Europe, but nothing would be decided until Poe had made his report.

British production, too, would be resumed, but that would be part of a world-wide schedule which was still in the blueprint stage. He did not expect to be ready with his production plans until the New Year, but the program would certainly embrace filmmaking in the company's Hollywood studios as well as outside deals with independent producers. Zanuck said they'd go anywhere in the world to make a film if a particular locale was involved.

As To British

The press confab was held the day after the press screening of "Longest Day" and Zanuck was asked for his views on some of the critical complaints that his film underplayed the British role in the D-Day expedition. He explained that his picture was based on Ryan's book, which in turn was based on official historical records. He did not accept that blindly, and they went back and researched his research. He suggested that the reviewer who had said this was a British operation, and that the Americans, Canadians and French just came along, was out on a limb. Zanuck recalled that during production they had had technical advisers from four governments, and all were convinced that the particular troops with which they were associated were responsible for the success of the landings.

—Poe Speaking

London, Oct. 16.

As a result of his intensive survey of the company's distribution organization, Seymour Poe, recently-installed 20th-Fox vice president in charge of the global sales, has come to the conclusion that it must forego its claim to the title of the biggest distributing organization in the world.

Poe, talking to the trade press the day after prexy Darryl F. Zanuck had his press conference, admitted there was an urgent need for economy, but that would take second place to efficiency. However, he believed that economies could be effected and efficiency maintained by some elimination of personnel and some changes in personnel. There would, however, be no fundamental changes in the British distribution setup, under the managing directorship of Percy Livingstone, nor would there be closures of provincial exchanges. It was also intended to keep the company's two West End showcases, the Carlton and the Rialto, both of which were "very profitable."

The veepee also confirmed that plans were being crystallized for the reactivation of the British production company under Elmo Williams, who would be domiciled in London. They intended to make it a vital arm of the company, and it would be very active.

Recapping some of the observations made by Zanuck the previous day, Poe agreed that 20th had touched bottom, and from a numerical standpoint had a slim release schedule up to next summer. However, the reports on "The Longest Day" from its first opening dates indicated that it would be a smash hit world-wide. Excepting "Cleopatra," which would not be ready until June or July at the earliest, 20th would have a total of 14 releases, among them "Gigot," "Nine Hours to Rama," "South Pacific," "The Leopard" and "Prisoner of Altona" (both of which were made in Italy) and "A Woman in July." Additionally, they were compiling "The World of Marilyn Monroe," a full-length feature which would include some of the footage lensed for her ill-fated "Something's Got to Give." That would be completed within about a month, and would probably go into release in the New Year. If it proved to be a hit it might be followed by "The World of Will Rogers" and "The World of Shirley Temple."

Reissue 'Lifeboat'

As an additional release for Britain and Italy, 20th is to reissue "Lifeboat," an early Hitchcock picture, made in 1946, which didn't fare well in either country on its original presentation. It would be launched as a new Hitchcock picture, and given a full promotional campaign.

Poe also revealed that the French office was taking a theatre on the Champs Elysees next February, and under the umbrella title "This Is Zanuck," would show seven of the top pictures made by him on a one-a-day basis for a week. That was an experimental project, and if it clicked, might well be repeated in other markets.

Legion Condemnation For 'Phaedra'; Highly Praise Japanese 'The Island'

Legion of Decency has given a "C" (Condemned) rating to Jules Dassin's (Lopert-United Artists) "Phaedra." "Legion, noting the film does not have a Code seal, says that although the film is "reputedly derived from a Greek tragedy" it is "alien to the classic spirit of its origins." In addition it "attempts to elicit audience sympathy for the immoral character and behavior of its heroine" and contains "totally unnecessary suggestive sequences."

Roman Catholic reviewing body also gave a special commendation to the Japanese import, "The Island," calling it "a beautiful tribute to family living in the face of adversity." Film was rated A-1, "morally unobjectionable for general patronage."

OTHER SIDES OF ZIDE

Allied Hires Publicist for MGM In Detroit Oldie Series

Detroit, Oct. 16.

Allied Film Exchange has added a publicist and has been selected to distribute the MGM Golden Age Releases, including the "Operettas," "Heritage," and "Vintage" groups, according to exchange topper Jack Zide. Tom McGuire, formerly of Selwin Films here, is the new touter.

Zide also operates American International Pictures of Cincinnati and Indianapolis, and Imperial Pictures Corp. of Cleveland.

Spanish Inducements To Canary Isle Film Fest

Madrid, Oct. 16.

As the first Int'l meeting of new film talent announced that some 20 nations would participate at Las Palmas in the Canary Islands November 15-22, the Spanish government film authorities came through with support by according the three winning fest entries a non-quota import license each. The jury members already confirming their participation include Gideon Bachmann, U.S.; Peter Baker, England; Marcel Martin, France; Leonardo Fioravanti (Director Centro Sperimentale), Italy; Wilhelm Petersen, Germany; and for Spain, Luis Berlanga and Carlos Fernandez Cuenca. From all appearances, there'll be a giant "new wave" rolling up on Canary Island shores with such fest plums as 1) a retrospective series on the new American film, and 2) another series on the new wave film hits in France.

In competition for the main award, Can de Oro (golden dog), are two American pix, "The Connection" and "Rifles in the Trees." Canary filmites have also announced attendance of two Yank new waxers, John Cassavetes and John Mekas.

In addition to the six competing nations represented on the jury, films are also entered from Holland, Argentina, Hungary, Poland, Portugal, Czechoslavkia and Brazil. Canary Island government, civic and tourist officials appear prepared to offer delegates and press luxury accommodations throughout the film meet.

LONDON CRITICS' MIXED NOTICES ON 'LONGEST'

London, Oct. 16.

Leonard Mosley, Daily Express film critic who covered the D-Day landings as a war correspondent, has hit out at Darryl F. Zanuck's portrayal of the British part in the landings in "The Longest Day." "There are moments in this film," the critic wrote, "when I get the feeling that we were brought in only to make a few not very good jokes" and adds, "Most of the big, setpiece battle scenes are American."

The Daily Mail's critic, Cecil Wilson, described the film as a American's eye-view, and also noted that it gave scant credit to Britain's share in the invasion.

On the other hand, Donald Zec, in the Daily Mirror, reckoned it presented a massive and honorable picture of the invasion of Europe, and he awarded "a 21-gun salute to producer Darryl Zanuck for his superb handling of the agony, the hell and the grim humor in the most awesome 24 hours of the war."

Zanuck's comments on this aspect of critical reaction were given at a London press conference last week (see separate story).

Longest Day—Long Lines

Paris, Oct. 16.

Darryl F. Zanuck's "Longest Day" (20th) is enjoying some of the longest boxoffice lines in recent memory at two theatres, the Gaumont-run Ambassade and the Richelieu. At a $2 top, it looms as a solid hit and may easily pass the Gaumont-guaranteed 500,000 admissions.

Pic is expected to hold for six months though some Gaumont people are worried about the last three months, but they are waxing ecstatic about the first three. Practically all reviews were tops except for some reservations on its epic quality and war outlook. But these were usually cached in positive outlooks.

Gerbrach Goes Inactive; Partner Blank Operating

Des Moines, Oct. 16.

Joe V. Gerbrach, 67, half-owner of four film theatres in Ames, Iowa, is retiring Nov. 1 from active management and will delegate direction of the Collegian, New Ames, Varsity and Ranch Drive-In theatres to Myron Blank, president of Central States Theatre Corp., owners of the other half-interest in the theatres.

Ray Truesdell will be resident manager in Ames.

Arnold Horowitz Takes Over Caracas Showcase

Management of the Teatro Del Este, Caracas (Venezuela) showcase theatre, has been taken over by Arnold Horowitz's Cedesa Co., according to a report from Sidney Menchel, Cedesa rep in New York.

The Teatro Del Este is a 1,500-seat house.

20TH'S POE DENIES ROME MERGER RUMOR

Rome, Oct. 16.

Rumors of future mergers between 20th-Fox and other Italian distrib companies were denied here this week by Seymour Poe, company's v.p. and sales chief.

In a statement released locally, Poe formally denied that any such move had been submitted to 20th's board, adding that the company intended to maintain its Italian outlet.

"With regard to the future," Poe said, "20th is in Italy and is here to stay. On the other hand, I believe that anyone can see that this particular moment, in which we have at disposal two productions such as "The Longest Day" and "Cleopatra" would be the least appropriate to entertain such renunciatory projects."

While here, Poe met with several Italo industry toppers to discuss company's future as well as coproductions. Two 20th items, "Prisoners of Altona," directed by Vittorio De Sica, and Burt Lancaster's "The Leopard," directed by Luchino Visconti, are currently being completed here by Titanus.

Larry Ayers to Embassy

Larry Ayers, in distribution 32 years and latterly at 20th-Fox, has joined the homeoffice sales force of Embassy Pictures.

He's switching from post of exec assistant to Glenn Norris, formerly general sales manager at 20th.

Toronto Big; 'Fool' Lively $12,000, 'River' 20G; 'Barabbas' Wow 28G, 2d, 'Interns' Big 8G; 'Mink' Hot 9G, 11th

Toronto, Oct. 16.

Most of current boxoffice strength is centered in holdovers and longruns here. Trade is generally sturdy, and there are some strong newcomers. One is "Thank A Fool," rated hefty at Loew's. "Pirates of Bloody River," also new, looks fine in three-house combo.

Standout is "Barabbas," still smash in second round at Carlton. "Waltz of Toreadors" shapes sock in second at the University, only a step behind opening week.

"The Interns" also is big, being in fourth session at the Hyland. "Pigeon That Took Rome" is rated smart in second at Imperial. Same applies to "My Geisha" at the Hollywood in third. "Touch of Mink" still is lusty although in 11th stanza at the Fairlawn.

Estimates for This Week

Carlton (Rank) (2,318; $1.25-$2.25)—"Barabbas" (Col) (2d wk). Wham $28,000. Last week, with $10 top for opening night, $47,000.

Downtown, Scarboro, State (Taylor) (1,059; 682; 696; 50-$1)—"Pirates of Blood River" (Col) and "Ring-A-Ding Rhythm" (Col). Fine $20,000. Last week, "Kid Galahad" (UA) and "Clown and Kid" (UA), seven houses, $31,000.

Eglinton (FP) (918; $1.50-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Sturdy $5,000. Last week, $5,200.

Fairlawn (Rank) (1,165; $1-$1.10)—"Touch of Mink" (U) (11th wk). Lusty $9,000. Last week, ditto.

Hollywood (FP) (1,080; $1-$1.50)—"My Geisha" (Par) (3d wk). Rousing $8,000. Last week, $8,400.

Hyland (Rank) (1,165; $1-$1.50)—"Interns" (Col) (4th wk). Big $8,000. Last week, $10,000.

Imperial (FP) (3,216; $1-$1.75)—"Pigeon that Took Rome" (Par) (2d wk). Fancy $11,000. Last week, $13,000.

International (Taylor) (557; $1-$1.25)—"Matter of Who" (Indie). Good $4,000. Last week, "Stowaway in Sky" (UA) (2d wk), $2,500.

Loew's (Loew) (1,641; $1-$1.50)—"Thank a Fool" (MGM). Hefty $12,000. Last week, "Seven Brides, Seven Brothers" (MGM) and "Father of Bride" (MGM) (reissues) (2d wk), $8,500.

Tivoli (FP) (935; $1.50-$2.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (22d wk). Great $37,000. Last week, $7,500.

Towne (Taylor) (693; 90-$1.25)—"Sky Above" (IFD) (5th wk). Fine $6,000. Last week, $6,500.

University (FP) (1,393; $1-$1.50)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (2d wk). Lusty $14,000. Last week, $14,300.

Uptown (Loew) (2,250; $1-$1.50)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U) (reissue) (2d wk). So-so $6,500. Last week, $8,500.

Key City Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $2,383,012
(Based on 21 cities and 247 theatres).

Last Year $2,324,700
(Based on 23 cities and 261 theatres, chiefly first runs, including N.Y.)

'Sky' Sturdy 11G, K.C.; 'Grimm' 8½G

Kansas City, Oct. 16.

Some new entries are shaking the fall doldrums here this round. "Chapman Report" at Paramount and "Sky Above" at Uptown-Granada combo both are getting a good play. "Matter of Who" at Roxy is rated fairish. "Brothers Grimm" at the Empire continues rousing in 10th week. "Two Weeks in Another Town" looms fair in second at the Plaza.

City has a bevy of competition for cinemas this stanza with the annual American Royal Live Stock and Horse Show opening on the weekend, and firsttime Recreation Show in the Municipal Auditorium due to preem today (Tues.) Weather turned unusually warm for season of year.

Estimates for This Week

Brookside (Fox Midwest-Nat. General) — "Carry on Teacher" (Gov) and "Doctor in Love" (Gov) (2d wk). Okay $2,800. Last week, $3,500.

Capri (Durwood) (1,260; 75-$1.50)—"Best of Enemies" (Col) (4th wk). Fair $2,500. Last week, $3,000.

Empire (Durwood) (1,294; 90-$2.75)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (10th wk). Fancy $8,500, holds. Last week, $9,000.

Isis (FMW-NGC) (1,360, Crest Riverside (Commonwealth) (900 cars each), Hiway 40 (General) (1,000 cars) ($1). "The Huns" (Indie) and "The Centurions" (Indie). Multiple theatre hookup for light $8,000. Last week, subruns.

Kimo (Dickinson) (504; $1.25-$1.50)—"Stowaway in Sky" (Indie) (2d wk). Good $2,000, stays. Last week, $2,400.

Paramount (Blank-UP) (1,900 $1-$1.25) — "Chapman Report" (WB). Nice $10,000 or near. Last week, "Damn the Defiant" (Col) (2d wk), $4,000.

Plaza (FMW-NGC) (1,630; $1-$1.25) — "Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (2d wk). Fair $4,000. Last week, $5,500.

Roxy (Durwood) (850; 75-$1.50)—"Matter of Who" (Herts). Fairish $6,000, holding. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (11th wk), $2,800.

Saxon (Durwood) (1,600; 75-$1.50)—"Touch of Mink" (U) (11th wk). Good $3,000, holds. Last week, $3,300.

Uptown, Granada (FMW-NGC) (2,043; 1,217; $1-$1.75) — "Sky Above" (Embassy). Buxom $11,000; stays on. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U) and "20,000 Eyes" (U), $6,000.

Pitt Down But 'Pigeon' Okay $11,000; 'Defiant' 6G; 'Grimm' 12G, 10th

Pittsburgh, Oct. 16.

Pitt is sluggish this round, with all the deluxers waiting for pix to boost grosses. Three newcomers "Pressure Point" at Fulton, "Damn the Defiant" at Gateway and "Ashes and Diamonds" at Shadyside are all on light side. However, "Pigeon That Took Rome" looms okay in first at Penn.

Still leading grosser is "Brothers Grimm" in 10th at Warner. Reissue of "Lady and Tramp" coupled with "Almost Angel" is fall in second at Stanley. "Waltz of Toreadors" continues loud in third at Squirrel Hill.

Estimates for This Week

Fulton (Assoc.) (1,530; $1-$1.50)—"Pressure Point" (UA). Light

(Continued on page 11)

'ANGELS' SMART 16G, ST. L.; 'CHAPMAN' 24G

St. Louis, Oct. 16.

Some new bills, being launched this round, will help the overall film biz pic this week. Combo of "Almost Angels" and the oldie "Lady and Tramp" shapes sharp on opener at State. "Chapman Report" is described as lofty on initialer at Ambassador. "Kid Galahad" looks good at Esquire opening stanza. "Damn the Defiant" is mildish in opener at the Fox.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador (Arthur) (2,970; 90-$1.25)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Lofty $24,000 or close. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (11th wk), $9,000.

Apollo Art (Grace) (700; 90-$1.25)—"Leda" (Indie) and "Purple Noon" (Indie). Okay $2,500. Last week, "Shoot Piano Player" (Indie), $2,000.

Esquire (Schuchart-Levin) (1,800, 90-$1.25) — "Kid Galahad" (UA). Good $10,000. Last week, "Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (2d wk), $10,000.

Fox Arthur) (5,000; 90-$1.25)—"Damn Defiant" (Col). Mildish $10,000 or over. Last week, "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) 2d wk), $14,000.

Loew's Mid-City Loew) (1,160; 60-90)—"Interns" (Col) (4th wk). Okay $5,000 or close. Last week, $6,000.

State (Loew) (3,600; 60-90)—

(Continued on page 11)

'Spartans' Fancy 7G, Seattle; 'Interns' 8G

Seattle, Oct. 16.

Biz is shaping better here currently, with "300 Spartans" rated fine at Coliseum. "Chapman Report" also is nice at Music Hall. "Interns" still is good in second round at Fifth Avenue. "West Side Story" is rated trim in 34th stanza at Music Box.

Estimates for This Week

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (739; $1.50-$1.75) — "Music Man" (WB) (11th wk). Okay $4,500. Last week, $6,000.

Coliseum (Fox-Evergreen) (1,870; $1.25-$1.50) — "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Demetrius and the Gladiators" (20th). Good $7,000 or a bit over. Last week, "Humanoids" (Indie) and "Scavengers" (Indie), $7,100.

Fifth Avenue (Fox-Evergreen) (2,500; $1.25-$1.50) — "Interns" (Col) and "Wild Westerners" (Col) (2d wk). Fine $8,000 or near. Last week, $10,600.

Music Hall (Hamrick) (2,200; $1.25-$1.50) — "Chapman Report" (WB). Nice $9,000 or close. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U) and "Hands of a Stranger" (AA), $4,200.

Music Box (Hamrick) (738; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (34th wk). Hep $5,000. Last week, $6,300.

Paramount (Fox-Evergreen) (3,000; $1.25-$1.50)—"World of Comedy" (Cont) and "Day of Thrills, Laughter" (20th). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Magic Spectacle" (Indie) and "She Walks at Night" (Indie), $3,900.

Balto Better; 'Pigeon' Fast $7,000, 'Chapman' $13,000; 'Damon' NG4½G

Baltimore, Oct. 16.

"Chapman Report" is doing just okay on opener at the Stanton, but "Pigeon That Took Rome" shapes strong in first at the Town. But elsewhere, biz mostly is on the sluggish side. "Damon and Pythias" looks mild in first week at the Hippodrome and "Flame in Streets" is dull on opener at the Little.

"No Man is an Island" shapes slow in second at the New. "Boccaccio '70" looks big in seventh round at the Charles. "Sky Above and Mud Below" looks nice in second at the Mayfair.

Estimates for This Week

Avalon (Freedman) (850; $1.50)—"Young Sinners" (Indie). Fair $2,000. Last week, "West End Jungle" (Indie), $2,500.

Aurora (T-L) (367; 90-$1.50) — "Naked Terror" (Indie) and "Paris Vice Squad" (Indie). Slow $1,400. Last week, "Vice Dolls" (Indie), $1,800.

Charles (Fruchtman) (500; 90-$1.50)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (7th wk). Big $4,000. Last week, $3,200.

Crest (Fruchtman) (1,700; 90-$1.50) — "No Love For Johnnie" (Embassy) (2d wk). Slow $4,000. Last week, $6,000.

Cinema (Schwaber) (460; 90-$1.50) — "Shoot Piano Player" (Astor) (2d wk). Fair $1,200. Last week, $2,500.

Hippodrome (T-L) (2,200; 60-$1.65) — "Damon and Pythias" (MGM). Light $4,500. Last week, "Damn Defiant" (Col), $4,000.

Five West (Schwaber) (435; 90-$1.50)—"Stowaway in Sky" (Lope) (2d wk). Dim $1,000. Last week, $1,600.

Little (T-L) (300; 90-$1.65)—"Flame in Streets" (Indie). Lean $1,300. Last week, "Anna Karenina" (MGM) (2d wk), $2,000.

Mayfair (Fruchtman) (700; 90-$1.50) — "Sky Above" (Embassy) (2d wk). Nice $5,000. Last week, $6,000.

New (Fruchtman) (1,600; 90-$1.25)—"No Man is Island" (U) (2d wk). Slow $4,000. Last week, $5,000.

Playhouse (Schwaber) (355; 90-$1.50)—"Coming Out Party" (Union) (4th wk). Holding at $1,500. Last week, $2,000.

Rex (Freedman) (500; $1.50) — "Playgirls and Bell Boy" (Indie). Good $3,500. Last week, "Surfside 77" (Indie) (3d wk), $1,800.

Stanton (Fruchtman) (2,800; 90-$1.50)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Good $13,000. Last week, "Les Liaisons" (Astor), $3,000.

Town (T-L) (1,125; 60-$1.65) — "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Pleasing $7,000. Last week, "Thank A Fool" (MGM), $5,000.

New Films Boost Philly; 'Day' Mighty $22,000, 'Angels' 15G 'Chapman' 20G

Broadway Grosses

Estimated Total Gross

This Week $605,312
(Based on 31 theatres)

Last Year $602,600
(Based on 30 theatres)

'Day' Wham 22G, D.C.; 'Pigeon' 10G

Washington, Oct. 16.

Strong, new product in several houses will boost biz on the mainstem this session. "Longest Day," opened to general public after benefit performance drawing Robert Kennedy and other politicos, looks smash in first at the Ontario. "Boccaccio '70" is heading for second great week, daydating Playhouse and the Trans-Lux.

"Pigeon That Took Rome" looks boff in first frame at the Town. "Chapman Report" is heading for okay total in first round at two big houses.

Estimates for This Week

Ambassador-Metropolitan (SW) (1,480; 1,000; $1-$1.49)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Nice $14,000. Last week, "Phantom of Opera" (U), $8,000.

Apex (KB) (940; $1.25-$1.40) — "Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (2d wk). Nifty $7,500 after opening with $9,200.

Capitol (Loew) (3,240; $1-$1.49)—"No Man Is Island" (U) (2d wk). Mild $8,400 after $12,000 in first.

Dupont (Mann) (400; $1-$1.65)—"Girl With Golden Eyes" (Union). Modest $4,000. Last week, "Shoot Piano Player" (Astor) (3d wk), $3,000.

Keith's (RKO) (1,839; $1-$1.49)—"Horror Chambers of Dr. Faustus" (Indie) and "Monster" (Indie). Fair $8,000. Last week, "Pressure Point" (UA) (2d wk), $6,500.

MacArthur (KB) (900; $1.25-$1.40)—"Matter of Who" (Indie). Trim $7,000 or close. Last week, "Coming Out Party" (Union) (4th wk), $4,000.

Ontario (KB) (1,240; $1.49-$2.75) — "Longest Day" (20th). Smash $22,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) (3d wk), $1,800.

Palace (Loew) (2,360; $1-$1.49)—"Damon and Pythias" (MGM). Weak $6,300. Last week, "I Thank Fool" (MGM) (3d wk), $5,700.

Playhouse (TL) (459; $1.49-$2)—"Boccaccio'70" (Embassy (2d wk). Great $13,500 after $17,000 in first.

Plaza (TL) (278; $1.49-$1.80) — "Spit On Grave" (Indie) (8th wk). Oke $3,700. Last week, same.

Town (King) (800; $1-$1.49) — "Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Boff $10,000. Last week, "Damn Defiant" (Col) (3d wk), $3,000.

Trans-Lux (TL) (599; $1.49-$2)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (2d wk). Wow $16,200 after $18,000 in first frame.

Warner (SW) (1,250; $1.25-$2.30) —"West Side Story" (UA) (5th wk). Loud $9,500. Last week, $10,000.

'Chapman' Okay $7,000, Indpls.; 'Grimm' 6G, 9

Indianapolis, Oct. 16.

Weekend biz here was dampened by the Saturday rainstorm and grosses generally are only moderate this round. "Chapman Report," starting at Keith's, shapes okay. "Sky Above" is dull at Circle. "Brothers Grimm" continues hotsy in ninth stanza at the Indiana.

Estimates for This Week

Circle (Cockrill-Dolle) (2,800; $1-$1.25)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Dull $3,500. Last week, "Count Monte Cristo" (WB) and "Sayonara" (WB) (reissues), $4,000.

Indiana (C-D) (1,100; $1.25-$2.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Hot $6,000. Last week, $6,500.

Keith's (C-D) (1,00; $1-$1.25) — "Chapman Report" (WB). Oke $7,000. Last week, "Damn Defiant" (Col), $4,500.

Loew's (Loew) (2,427; 75-$1.25) —"Sky Above" (Embassy) and "No Place Like Homicide" (Indie). Drab $3,000. Last week, "Miracle Worker" (UA), $5,000.

Philadelphia, Oct. 16.

New product is giving firstrun trade a needed lift here currently. Chief interest, of course, is centered on "Longest Day," and it should hit a giant figure opening session at the Goldman. "Almost Angels," paired with the oldie "Lady and Tramp," is heading for an excellent first round at the Randolph. "Brothers Grimm" still is solid in 12th round at the Boyd.

"Smashing of Reich" with "Kamikazi" is in for an unusually trim session at Stanton in first week. "Chapman Report" had lines, with extra Saturday midnight show helping, at the Arcadia.

Estimates for This Week

Arcadia (S&S (622; $1.20-$1.80) —"Chapman Report" (WB). Hot $20,000 or close. Last week, "Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) (8th wk), $3,300.

Boyd (SW) (1,536; $2-$2.75) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (12th wk). Big $13,500. Last week, $13,000.

Fox (Milgram) (2,200; 95-$1.80) —"Pressure Point" (UA) (2d wk). Dull $8,500. Last week, $10,500.

Goldman (Goldman) (1,000; $2-$2.75) — "Longest Day" (20th). Giant $22,000. Last week, "Sayonara" (WB), $4,500.

Midtown (Goldman) (1,200; $2.50-$2.75) — "West Side Story" (UA) (49th wk). Solid $5,400. Last week, $5,500.

Randolph (Goldman) (2,200; $1.20-$1.80) — "Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Very good $15,000. Last week, "Interns" (Col) (7th wk), $6,000.

Stanley (SW) (2,100; 95-$2) — "Music Man" (WB) (12th wk). Fancy $9,500. Last week, $10,000.

Stanton (SW) (1,483; 95-$1.80)—"Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikazi" (Indie). Trim $9,000. Last week, "Private Affair" (MGM), $9,500.

Studio (Goldberg) (383; 95-$1.80) —"Too Young, Too Immoral" (Indie). Hep $6,000. Last week, "Lucky Pierre" (Indie) and "Have Figure, Will Travel" (Indie) (2d wk), $4,500.

Trans-Lux (500; 95-$2)—"Secrets of Nazi Criminals" (Indie). Okay $6,500. Last week, "Lolita" (MGM) (16th wk), $5,000.

Viking (Sley) (1,000; 95-$1.80) — "Damn the Defiant" (Col) (4th wk). Oke $4,800. Last week, $5,000.

World (R&B-Pathe) (500; 95-$1.80) — "Best of Enemies" (Col) (2d wk). Nice $3,000. Last week, $3,900.

'LADY' LOFTY $15,000, BUFF; 'PIGEON' HEP 9G

Buffalo, Oct. 16.

There is a slight pickup here currently, with some of the newly opened bills doing well. "Pigeon That Took Rome" looms good at Paramount while "Chapman Report" is rated neat at the Center. "Lady and Tramp," back on reissue, looms nifty at Lafayette. "Very Private Affair" shapes slow on opener at the Buffalo.

Estimates for This Week

Buffalo (Loew) (3,500; 90-$1.25) —"Very Private A....." (MGM) and "Pickup on South Street" (Indie). Slow $7,500. Last week, "Kid Galahad" (UA) and "Concrete Jungle" (Indie), $6,800.

Center (AB-PT) (2,500; 90-$1.25) —"Chapman Report" (WB). Neat $11,000 or close. Last week, "Rose Tattoo" (Par) and "Joker's Wild" (Par) (reissues), $5,000 in 5 days.

Century (UATC) (2,700; 90-$1.25) —"3 Stooges in Orbit" (Col) and "Zotz" (Col). Sad $4,000. Last week, "Flame in Streets" (Indie) and "Cry Double Cross" (Indie), $4,800 in 6 days.

Lafayette (Basil) (3,000; 90-$1.25) —"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue). Nifty $15,000 or close. Last week, "Come September" (U) (reissue), $4,200.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,000; 90-$1.25)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) and "It Happened in Athens" (Indie). Good $9,000. Last week, "Mongols" (Indie) and "Trojan Horse" (Indie) $5,000 in 5 days.

Teck (Loew) (1,200; $1.75-$2.75) —"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (8th wk). NSH $4,000. Last week, ditto.

Cinema (Martina) (450; 90-$1.25) —"Carry on Teacher" (Gov). Capacity $4,000. Last week, "I Like Money" (20th) (2d wk), $2,000.

CHICAGO'S B.O. IN BIG UPSWING

Three Big New Pix Lift L.A. Biz; 'Day' Wham $26,500, 'Divorce' Great 12G, 'Chapman' $33,000, 'Angels' 24G

Los Angeles, Oct. 16.

Firstrun trade is picking up solidly this stanza, with a trio of boffo openers boosting biz along with some holdovers. "Longest Day" is heading for a smash $26,500 on hardticket at the Carthay while "Chapman Report" is rated wow $33,000 at Pantages.

"Divorce, Italian Style" shapes great $12,000 at the arty Lido while "I Thank A Fool" looms nice $20,000 in four theatres. "Almost Angels," backed by reissued "Lady and Tramp," is heading for a hefty $24,000 in five spots. "Damn the Defiant" looks light $12,000 in three houses first week.

"Brothers Grimm" continues very strong in 10th session at the Warner Hollywood. "Music Man" likewise is lofty in 12th at Hollywood Par. "West Side Story" is rated snappy in 44th session at the Chinese. "The Connection" still is rousing at $7,500 after setting a house record opening week.

Estimates for This Week

Carthay (FWC) (1,138; $1.80-$3.50)—"Longest Day" (20th). Smash $16,500.

Pantages (RKO) (1,512; $1.25-$2.75)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Wow $33,000. Last week, with Hillstreet, Wiltern, "Rear Window" (Par), "Proud and Profane" (Par) (reissues), $15,700.

Los Angeles, Wiltern, Hawaii (Metropolitan-SW-G&S) (2,047; 2,344; 1,106; $1-$1.25)—"Damn the Defiant" (Col) and "Stop Me Before I Kill" (Col), (Los Angeles), "Two Weeks in Another Town" (MGM) —Wiltern (m.o.). "Weekend With Lulu" (Col) (Hawaii). Light $12,000. Last week, Los Angeles, Hawaii, "Convicts 4" (AA), "Payroll" (AA) (2d wk), $6,200.

State, Pix, Baldwin, Warner Beverly (UATC-Prin-State-SW) (2,404; 756; 1,800; 1,316; 90-$1.75)—"I Thank Fool" (MGM) and "Boys' Night Out" (MGM) (State, Warner Beverly), "Stop Me Before I Kill" (Col) (Pix), "Ocean's 11" (WB) (reissue) (Baldwin). Nice $20,000. Last week, State, "Butterfield 8" (MGM), "World of Suzie Wong" (Par) (reissues), $3,400. Pix with Orpheum, "Miracle Worker" (UA) (1st general release), "Wackiest Ship in Army" (Col) (reissue), $9,700. Baldwin with El Rey, "Hatari"

(Continued on page 11)

Estimates Are Net

Film gross estimates as reported herewith from the various key cities, are net; i.e., without usual tax. Distributors share on net take, when playing percentage, hence the estimated figures are net income.

The parenthetic admission prices, however, as indicated, include U. S. amusement tax.

'Barabbas' Boffo 27G, Hub; 'Day' 29

Boston, Oct. 16.

With big new product in, biz is perky with the holidays helping. Lines were biggest in weeks. "Longest Day" roadshowing at Astor is wham. "Barabbas" roadshow at the Gary is rated sockeroo. "Chapman Report" looms big at Mayflower.

"Almost Angels" with "Lady and Tramp" reissue at Memorial shapes smash. "Very Private Affair" is bright in third round at Beacon Hill. "Waltz of Toreadors" is fast in second at the Exeter. "Divorce, Italian Style," is hotsy with lines at the tiny Park Square in fourth week.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (B&Q) (1,170; $1.80-$2.95) "Longest Day" (20th) (2d wk). First week was wham $30,000 on 10 shows.

Beacon Hill (Sack) (900; $1-$1.80) "Very Private Affair" (MGM) (3d wk). Beefy $8,000. Last week, $8,800.

Boston (Beacon Ent.) (1,345; $1.20-$2.95) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (11th wk). Nice $12,000. Last week, $13,000.

Capri (Sack) (850; 75-$1.80)—"Anna Karenina" (Indie) (reissue) (2d wk). Neat $7,000. Last week, $8,000.

Exeter (Indie) (1,276; 90-$1.49)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (3d wk). Second week ended Friday (12) was fast $9,000.

Fenway (Indie) (1,300; $1.50)—"Summerskin" (Angel). Mild $3,000. Last week, "Viridians" (Indie) (3d wk), $3,000.

Gary (Sack) (1,277; $1.50-$3)—"Barabbas" (Col). Wow $27,000 or close. Last week, "West Side Story" (UA) (49th wk) (7-days), $14,000.

Mayflower (ATC) (689; 90-$1.80) —"Chapman Report" (WB). Returns house to first-run with great $17,000 or near.

Memorial (RKO) (3,000; 90-$1.50) —"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Great $29,000.

Music Hall (Sack) (4,300; 90-$1.80)—"Interns" (Col) (5th wk). Oke $15,000. Last week, $18,000.

Orpheum (Loew) (2,900; 90-$1.49) —"King Solomon's Mines" (reissue) and "Naked Spur" (Indie). Mild $8,500. Last week, "Sword of Conqueror" (UA) and "Explosive Generation" (UA), $10,000.

Paramount (NET) (2,357; 70-$1.65)—"Marco Polo" (AI) and "Seawards the Great Ships" (Indie). Modest $11,000.

Park Square (Indie) (300; $1.80) —"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy) (4th wk). Bangup $6,000, with turnaways. Last week, ditto.

Saxon (Sack) (1,100 $1.50-$1.80) —"Requiem for Heavyweight" (Col). Opens Thursday (18). Last week, "Damn the Defiant" (Col) (3d wk), good $9,000.

State (Trans-Lux) (730; 75-$1.25) —"Uncover Girls" (Indie) and "Amorous Sex" (Indie). Torrid $6,000. Last week, "Tonite For Sure" (Indie) and "For Lovers and Others" (Indie) (3d wk), $4,000.

'DAY' GIGANTIC 'ANSWERS' HOT

Chicago, Oct. 16.

Main Stem wickets are beginning to whirl again after nearly a month of doldrums as a batch of sprightly newcomers replace some tired longruns. "Longest Day" opened to a wow $33,000 or over on hardticket at the Roosevelt while "If A Man Answers" shapes great $31,000 in its preem at the Chicago.

"Convicts 4" is debuting to a solid $22,000 at the Oriental. "Very Private Affair" looks big $9,000 or better in its first Loop session. "European Nigts" is bowing to a solid take at the Town. Monroe tandem of "During One Night" and "Concrete Jungle" looms trim in first round while the Carnegie pair of "Psycosissimo" and "Rocket From Calabuch" looks nice.

"Chapman Report" tapered fast but is still potent in its second State-Lake stanza. Woods dualer of "Lady and Tramp," on reissue, and "Almost Angels" is rated sock in second frame. "A Coming Out Party" is fast in its World second-week.

"Boccaccio '70" is racking up a sturdy third frame at the United Artists. "World of Comedy" looks nifty for same round at Esquire. "Sky Above" continues steady in fifth Surf lap. "Waltz of Toreadors" is posting a bright fifth Cinema session.

Hardticketed "Brothers Grimm" is nailing a fair ninth McVickers canto while "West Side Story" looks fine in 34th round at the Todd.

Estimates for This Week

Carnegie (Telem't) (495; $1.25-$1.80) — "Psycosissimo" (Ragan) and "Rocket From Calabuch" (Ragan). Fine $3,000 or close. Last week, "No Place Like Homicide" (Cont) and "Man In Cocked Hat" (Cont) (reissues), $2,500.

Chicago (B&K) (3,900; $1.25-$1.80)—"If a Man Answers" (U). Great $31,000. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (12th wk), $12,000 in 5 days.

Cinema (Stern) (500; $1.50) — "Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (5th wk). Nice $3,200.

Esquire (H&E Balaban) (1,350; $1.25-$1.80)—"World of Comedy" (Cont) (3d wk). Nifty $6,500. Last week, $7,700.

Loop (Telem't) (606; $1.25-$1.80) — "Very Private Affair" (MGM) (15th wk). $7,000.

McVickers (Cinerama) (1,100; (Continued on page 11)

'Pigeon' Proud $7,000, Prov.; 'Angels' Big 12G

Providence, Oct. 16.

"Almost Angels" plus reissued "Lady and Tramp" at RKO Albee this week is partially knocking the main stem out of its low gross doldrums. On the fairly good side are Majestic's "Chapman Report" and State's "Very Private Affair." Strand looks hep with "Pigeon That Took Rome."

Estimates for This Week

Albee (RKO) (2,200; 75-$1)—"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Sock $12,000 or close. Last week, "No Man Is An Island" (U) and "East of Kilimanjaro" (Indie) (2d wk), $3,500.

Elmwood (Snider) (724; 90-$1.50) —"El Cid" (AA) (8th wk). Jump in biz followed closing week's announcement, and may hold. Snappy $7,500. Last week, $4,800.

Majestic (SW) (2200; 76-$1)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Nice $8,000 or near. Last week, "Trojan Horse" (Indie) and "Mongols" (Indie), $4,500.

State (Loew) (3,200; 75-$1)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM). Fair $7,500. Last week, "Sword of Conqueror" (UA) and "Mighty Ursus" (UA), $6,500.

Strand (National Realty) (2,200; 75-$1)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) and "Escape from Zahrain" (Par). Fine $7,000 or over. Last week, "Two Tickets to Paris" (Col) and "Safe At Home" (Col), $2,500.

L'ville Limping Albeit 'Pigeon' $5,000; 'Grimm' Oke 5½G, 'Chapman' 6G

Louisville, Oct. 16.

Wicket trend currently is as mild as the weather but some spots are getting okay grosses. United Artists, with "300 Spartans," looks slow. "Chapman Report" at the Mary Ann is pitching for adult trade. Kentucky, with "Pigeon That Took Rome," is rated fair. "Brothers Grimm" in seventh at Rialto will be on par with previous week.

Estimates for This Week

Kentucky (Switow) (900; 75-$1.25)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Fair $5,000 or near. Last week, "No Man Is Island" (U), $4,000.

Mary Anderson (People's) (1,100; $1-$1.25) — "Chapman Report" (WB). Strictly adult fare, likely okay $6,000 or near. Last week, "Young Lions" (20th) and "Long, Hot Summer" (20th) (reissues), $4,000.

Ohio (Settos) (900; 75-$1.25)—"Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) (2d wk). Good $4,500, after last week's $4,800.

Rialto (Fourth Avenue) (1,100; $1.25-$2.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (7th wk). Alright $5,500. Sixth week was $5,700.

United Artists (Fourth Avenue) (3,000; $1-$1.25)—"300 Spartans" (20th) and "Air Patrol" (20th). Helped by Saturday (13) night preview, but slow $6,000. Last week, "Advise and Consent" (Col), $9,000.

Holiday Boosts B'way; 'Barabbas' Big $35,000; New Baronet Brisk 13G, Tower East Lofty 20G, 'Point' 29G

The long holiday weekend along with some new, sturdy product will boost biz at Broadway firstruns this session. The upsurge was so strong last Friday (Columbus Day) and both Saturday and Sunday that some theatres are showing bigger grosses than a week ago.

Best newcomer is "Barabbas," which is heading for a virtual capacity $35,000 opening stanza at the DeMille, where it is playing on hardticket. "Pressure Point" hit a fine $29,000 on first round, daydating the Astor and Trans-Lux 85th St. It also is playing some 11 other houses in the Metropolitan area.

"No Man Is an Island" is a good $21,000 in first week at the Palace. It's daydating with about 12 other spots in the Met area. Interest also attaches to the launching of the New Baronet and Loew's Tower East. Latter is on partially hardticket, with "Long Day's Journey Into Night" likely to get sock $20,000 on initial round. New Baronet looks fast $13,000 in first with "Loneliness of Long Distance Runner," playing sans matinees.

"Longest Day" is heading for a capacity $48,000 in second session at the Warner, being helped by one extra performance and the holiday upbeat. "Convicts 4" held with a good $21,000 in second week at the Paramount.

Outstanding example of how the holiday helped biz is the Music Hall which has "Gigot" and stageshow in third session. Combo likely will land a big $155,000 for this week. It will hold a fourth, and is set to stay a fifth.

"I Thank a Fool" is pushing to a nice $11,000 in fifth and final week at the Victoria, where "Chapman Report" opens today (Wed.). "Damn the Defiant" looks fair $15,000 in final 6½ days of fourth round at the Criterion where "Requiem for Heavyweight" opens today (Wed.).

"Brothers Grimm" climbed to a smash $37,000 in 10th stanza at the Cinerama with a boost from five extra shows along with holiday upsurge. "West Side Story," also on hardticket, is pushing up to great $32,000 or close in current (52d) session at the Rivoli, biz being done on 12 performances.

"Very Private Affair" looks like fair $21,500 for third round, daydating the State and Beekman. Rank distributed, Salzburg-made opera film, "Der Rosenkavalier," played four days last week at the Carnegie Hall, similar to a simultaneous concert hall showing in Paris. Reported gross for the four days was $23,625.

Estimates for This Week

Astor (City Inv.) (1,094; $1.25-$2) — "Pressure Point" (UA) (2d wk). Opening round ended yesterday (Tues.) was good $23,000 or close. On Premiere Showcase, which means it is daydating with 12 other theatres in N. Y. Metropolitan area.

Cinerama (Loew) (1,552; $1.50-$3.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (11th wk). The 10th week completed Sunday (14) was great $37,000 for 16 shows after $27,000 for ninth, with regular number of performances.

Criterion (Moss) (1,520; $1.25-$2.50) — "Requiem For Heavyweight" (Col). Opens today (Wed.), after a charity benefit last night (Tues.). In ahead, "Damn the Defiant" (Col) (4th wk-6½ days), fair $15,000 or close, being helped by holiday weekend. Third regular week was $16,500.

DeMille (Reade) (1,463; $1.50-$3.50) — "Barabbas" (Col). Initial session on hardticket winding today (Wed.) looks like virtual capacity $35,000. Holding, of course. Advance has picked up and group sales are perking. Teed off with charity preem Wednesday (9) night.

Embassy (Guild Enterprises) (500; $1.50-$2.50) — "Secrets of Nazi Criminals" (T-L) and "Battle of Stalingrad" (T-L) (3d wk). Initial holdover week ended yesterday (Tues.) was okay $8,000 after $14,800 for opener. Holds a couple of extra days to open "Riff-Raff Girls" (Cont) on Friday (19).

Palace (RKO) (1,642; $1.25-$2)—"No Man Is An Island" (U) (2d wk). First week ended yesterday (Tues.) was good $21,000 or close. Playing daydate with some nine other firstruns in N. Y. Metropolitan area.

Forum (Moss) (813; $1.25-$1.80) "Smashing of Reich" (Indie) and "Kamikaze" (Indie) (3d wk). Second stanza finished Monday (15) was okay $11,000 after $15,000 for first week. "We'll Bury You" (Col) opens Oct. 24.

Paramount (AB-PT) (3,665; $1-$2)—"Convicts 4" (AA) (3d wk). Second session ended yesterday (Tues.) was good $21,000 or near after $29,500 for opener.

Radio City Music Hall (Rockefellers) (6,200; 95-$2.75)—"Gigot" (20th) with stageshow (3d wk). This week winding up today (Wed.) is heading for top figure of run at $155,000 after $147,500 on second run. Holds fourth week, and now set to go five. First four days of third frame topped opening session, with the week helped by smash trade on Columbus Day, Saturday and Sunday.

Rivoli (UAT) (1,545; $1.50-$3.50) —"West Side Story" (UA) (52d wk). This week ending today (Wed.) looks to hit sock $32,000 for 12 shows after $29,000 for 51st. Stays.

State (Loew) (1,900; $1.50-$2.50) —"Very Private Affair" (MGM) (3d wk). This frame finishing tomorrow (Thurs.) is heading for fair $15,000 after $17,500 for second. Stays a fourth, with house closing for a few days prior to launching "Mutiny on Bounty" (MGM) Nov. 8 on hardticket.

Victoria (City Inv.) (1,003; $1.25-$2)—"Chapman Report" (WB). Opens today (Wed.). In ahead, "Thank A Fool" (MGM) (5th wk) was nice $11,000 after $9,500 for fourth week.

Warner (SW) (1,813; $1.50-$3.50) —"Longest Day" (20th) (2d wk). First holdover round winding up tomorrow (Thurs.) looks to climb to capacity $48,000, aided by one extra show and holiday weekend. First week, $44,000. Holding indef. Advance now has topped $110,000.

First-Run Arties

New Baronet (Reade) (430; $1.25-$2)—"Loneliness of Long Distance Runner" (BL) (2d wk). Initial week completed Sunday (14) was socko $13,000 for only seven performances, no matinees being given while workmen are still fixing front of house in afternoon. Unusually solid biz for reopened, facelifted house.

Fine Arts (Davis) (468; $1.80-$2) —"A Kind of Loving" (Gov) (3d wk). Second session completed Monday (15) was big $14,000 after $15,000 for opener.

Beekman (Rugoff Th.) (590; $1.50-$2)—"Very Private Affair" (MGM) (3d wk). This frame ending tomorrow (Thurs.) looks like okay $6,500 after $8,000 for second. Holds a fourth, daydating with State.

Carnegie Hall Cinema (F&A) (300; $1.50-$2)—"Yojimbo" (Indie). Opened Monday (15). In ahead, "Last Year Marienbad" (Astor) (32d wk-4 days), fair $2,800 after $3,200 for 31st.

Cinema One (Rugoff Th.) (700; $1.50-$2) — "Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (17th wk). The 16th week finished yesterday (Tues.) was big $11,000 after $12,000 for 15th round.

Cinema Two (Rugoff Th.) (300; $1.50-$2—"Devi" (Indie) (2d wk). First round ended Saturday (13) was fair $5,500.

Fifth Ave. Cinema (Rugoff Th.) (250; $1.25-$2)—"Mr. Hulot's Holiday" (Cont) (reissue) (3d wk). Second frame ended Sunday (14) was good $3,500 after $4,000 for opener.

Normandie (T-L) (592; $1.25-$2) —"Passion of Slow Fire" (T-L).

(Continued on page 11)

"THIS IS IT. THERE ARE NO MORE WORLDS TO CONQUER..."

Bosley Crowther, New York Times

New York, London, Paris, Philadelphia, Boston,
Chicago, Zurich, Geneva, Basle, Stockholm, Los Angeles,
Washington, San Francisco, Amsterdam, Laussane,
The Hague, Minneapolis, Rotterdam
—all have been conquered by

DARRYL F. ZANUCK'S THE LONGEST DAY

Based on the Book by CORNELIUS RYAN • Released by 20th CENTURY-FOX

National Boxoffice Survey

New Pix Boost Biz; 'Grimm' Still on Top, 'Chapman' 2d, 'Story' 3d, 'Angels' 4th, 'Boccaccio' 5th

Columbus Day holiday, coming on Friday this year and providing a long holiday weekend, is boosting biz in several key cities covered by VARIETY this round as some new, sturdy screen fare came through with nice results. Some keys had to contend with Indian Summer weather, but generally trade was on the upswing.

"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) is again champ at the wickets, same as it has been for many weeks. "Chapman Story" (WB) is finishing second. "West Side Story" (UA) is copping third position. It was second a week ago.

"Almost Angels" (BV), a fairly new pic, is winding up fourth, same as last stanza. "Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) is finishing fifth.

"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) is pushing up to sixth position. It was eighth last round. "Very Private Affair" (MGM) is capturing seventh spot. "Thank A Fool" (MGM), which was 10th a week ago, is only a step behind in eighth.

"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) is winding up ninth. "Sky Above" (Embassy) will take 10th place. "Damn Defiant" (Col), "No Man Is Island" (U) and "Pressure Point" (UA) are making the runner-up category.

"Longest Day" (20th), launched last season, still has only six playdates this week and hence is not included in the week's ratings. Pic is easily measuring up to the great showing made in N.Y. opening stanza, being smash in Washington, wham in Chi, giant in Philly, capacity in N. Y. (on second), wow in Boston and great in L.A. Also new, "Barabbas" (Col) is rated huge in Toronto for second round, wow in Boston and virtually capacity in N.Y., all on hardticket.

"If Man Answers" (U) is rated smart in Chi on preem showing. "Long Day's Journey Into Night" (Levine) shapes socko in N.Y. "Two Tickets To Paris" (Col) looks okay in Cincy.

"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy), wow in Boston and boff in L.A., is hitting a new record in N.Y. at an arty house. "Convicts 4" (AA) is rated good both in Chi and N.Y.

"Marco Polo" (AI) looms mild in Minneapolis. "Interns" (Col) okay in Boston and St. Louis, shapes big in Toronto. "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue) looks good in Louisville.

"World of Comedy" (Cont) is rated nifty in Chi. "Coming Out Party" (Union), sharp in Chi and Minneapolis, looms good in Balto.

"Touch of Mink" (U), tall in Toronto, is good in K.C. "Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) looks lofty in Buffalo.

(Complete Boxoffice Reports on Pages 8-9)

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 9)

(Par), "My Geisha" (Par) (m.o.), $7,000. Warner Beverly, "Anna Khrenina" (MGM) (reissue) (2d wk), $3,100.

Lido (FWC) (876; $2)—"Divorce, Italian Style" (Embassy). Boffo $12,000. Last week, "Taste of Honey" (Cont) (18th wk), $3,500.

Egyptian (UATC) (1,392; $1.50-$2)—"Flame in Streets" (Indie). Fair $6,000. Last week, "Gigi" (MGM), "Les Girls" (MGM) (reissues) (2d wk), $3,700.

Hillstreet, Vogue, Village, Loyola, El Rey (Metropolitan-FWC) (2,752; 810; 1,535; 1,298; 856; $1-$1.49)—"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Hefty $24,000. Last week, Vogue, "Sky Above Mud Below" (Emb) (7th wk), $3,800. Village Loyola with Warren's, Hollywood, "Adventures of Young Man" (20th), "Cabinet of Caligari" (20th) (1st general release), $18,200.

Fox Wilshire (FWC) (1,990; $1.25-$1.50)—"Sky Above" (Embassy) (m.o.). Soft $5,000. Last week, "Three Coins in Fountain" (20th), "Love Is Splendored Thing" (20th) (reissues) (4th wk), $2,300.

Hollywood (Metropolitan-FWC) (856; 90-$1.25)—"Adventures of Young Man" (20th) and "Cabinet of Caligari" (20th) (2d wk). Slow $4,000.

Orpheum (Metropolitan) (2,213; $1-$1.25)—"Miracle Worker" (UA) (2d wk) and "Jessica" (UA) (reissue). Dull $2,800.

Iris (FWC) (825; $1.25-$1.49)—"Taste of Honey" (Cont) (m.o.). Good $5,200. Last week, "Carry on Teacher" (Gov) and "Doctor in Love" (Indie) (reissues), $3,800.

Four Star (UATC) (868; $1.50-$2)—"I Like Money" (20th) (2 wk). Wan $7,200. Last week, $4,000.

Music Hall (Ros) (720; $2-$2.40)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (3d wk). Mild $3,800. Last week, $4,000.

Crest (State) (750; $2)—"Matter of Who" (Herts) (6th wk). Steady $2,500. Last week, $3,000.

Warner Hollywood (SW) (1,291; $1.25 - $2.80)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (10th wk). Great $20,500. Last week, $21,200.

Hollywood Paramount (State) (1,468; $1.75-$2.65)—"Music Man" (WB) (12th wk). Fast $19,000 or near. Last week, $20,000.

Fine Arts (FWC) (631;; $1.49-$2)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy) (12th wk). Fancy $5,500. Last week, $6,000.

Beverly (State) (1,150; $1.49-$2)—"Lolita" (MGM) 17th wk). Solid $4,400. Last week, $4,500.

Chinese (FWC) (1,408; $1.25-$3.50)—"West Side Story" (UA) (44th wk). Wham $18,000. Last week, $18,000.

'Boccaccio' Bright 8G In Mpls.; 'Chapman' Good 14G; 'Grimm' Socko 15G

Minneapolis, Oct. 16.

There's a large flock of newcomers here currently, but all are not big. Among the fresh arrivals, "Pigeon That Took Rome" is okay at the World. "Boccaccio '70" shapes torrid at Academy. "Chapman Report" is rated good at Orpheum.

Holdovers are the scarcest in many weeks and "West Side Story" and "Hatari" are about to depart, after 34 and 10 weeks, respectively. Former gives way to another hardticket pic, "Longest Day" on Thursday (18). "Brothers Grimm" still is socko in ninth round at the Cooper.

Estimates for This Week

Academy (Mann) (1,000; $1.50-$1.75)—"Boccaccio '70" (Embassy). Hotsy $8,000. Last week, "Music Man" (WB) (11th week), $6,000 in 9 days.

Avalon (Frank) (800; $1) "Surfside 77" (Cl) and "Once Upon a Knight" (Indie) (reissue) (3d wk). Okay $1,200. Last week, $1,600.

Century (Par) (1,300; $1.25-$1.50) — "Very Private Affair" (MGM) (2d wk). Light $3,700. Last week, $6,500.

Cooper (CF) (808; $1.65-$2.50)—"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Socko $15,000. Last week, $14,000.

El Lago (Carisch) (600; $1) — "Eve or Apple" (Indie) and "Make Mine Mink" (Cont) (reissue) (2d wk). Satisfactory $1,000. Last week, $1,400.

Gopher (Berger) (1,000; $1-$1.25) —"King Solomon's Mines" (Indie) and "Naked Spur" (Indie) (reissues). Modest $4,000. Last week, "Kid Galahad" (UA) (3d wk), $3,500 in six days.

Lyric (Par) (1,000; $1-$1.25) — "No Man Is An Island" (U). Mild $4,500. Last week, "Ring-a-Ding Rhythm" (Col), $3,000.

Mann (Mann) (1,000; $1.50-$2.75) —"West Side Story" (UA) (34th wk). Stout $5,000 in four days. Last week, $5,500.

Orpheum (Mann) (2,800; $1.25-$1.50) — "Chapman Report" (WB). Good $14,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) (reissue), $8,000.

Park (Field) (1,000; $1.50)—"Hatari" (Par) (10th wk). Nice $3,000. Last week, $3,200.

State (Par) (2,200; $1-$1.25) — "Marco Polo" (AI). Mild $6,000. Last week, "Best of Enemies" (Col), $6,500.

Suburban World (Mann) (800; $1.25) — "Coming Out Party" (Union). Fast $3,000. Last week, "Jules and Jim" (Janus), $2,500.

World (Mann) (400; $1.25-$1.50) —"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Healthy $5,000. Last week, "Damn Defiant" (Col) (2d wk), $3,000.

ST. LOUIS

(Continued from page 8)

"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Sharp $16,000. Last week, "Damon and Pythias" (MGM) and "Savage Guns" (MGM), $8,000.

Pageant (Arthur) (1,000; 90-$1.25)—"I Like Money" (20th) (2d wk). Nice $2,700. Last week, $3,000.

St. Louis (Arthur) (3,860; 75-90) —"King Solomon's Mines" (MGM) and "Naked Spur" (MGM), reissues). Average $8,000 or close. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Happened in Athens" (20th), $7,000.

Shady Oak (Arthur) (760; 90-$1.25)—"Operation Snatch" (Indie) (2d wk). Good $3,000. Last week, $3,500.

Storm Bops Port. B.O. But 'Sky' Breezy $7,000

Portland, Oct. 16.

The severe coastal storm hit firstrun biz here hard over the weekend, closing some houses. Result is that trade is being cut sharply at most spots. However, "Sky Above" shapes fancy on opener at Orpheum, and "Almost Angels," paired with the reissued "Lady and Tramp," looms okay at Paramount, also on Initialer. "Pigeon That Took Rome" is rated solid at Broadway. The Hollywood was shuttered for three days and the Music Box for one, both by the storm.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (1,890; $1-$1.50)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par) and "Forever My Love" (Par). Solid $6,000. Last week, "Rear Window" (Par) and "Detective Story" (Par) (reissues), $3,900.

Fox (Evergreen) (1,600; $1-$1.49) —"Music Man" (WB) (13th wk). Fine $3,500. Last week, $5,100.

Hollywood (Evergreen) (1,180; $1.49-$2) — "Cinerama Holiday" (Cinerama) (3d wk). Modest $2,000, house being closed for three days. Last week, $6,000.

Music Box (Hamrick) (640; $1.50-$3)—"West Side Story" (UA) (31st wk). Bright $3,500. House was closed last Friday. Last week, $4,100.

Orpheum (Evergreen) (1,536; $1-$1.49) — "Sky Above" (Embassy) and "Trauma" (Indie). Fancy $7,000. Last week, "300 Spartans" (20th) and "Demetrius and Gladiators" (20th) (reissue), $4,300.

Paramount (Port-Par) (3,006; $1-$1.50) — "Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV). Okay $6,000. Last week, "Pressure Point" (Par) and "Season of Passion" (Par), $4,900.

PITTSBURGH

(Continued from page 8)

$5,500. Last week, "Marco Polo" (AI), $4,200.

Gateway (Assoc.) (1,900; $1-$1.50) —"Damn the Defiant" (Col). Soft $6,000 or near. Last week, "No Man Is Island" (U) (2d wk), $5,500.

Penn (UATC) (3,300; $1-$1.50)—"Pigeon That Took Rome" (Par). Okay $11,000. Last week, "I Thank a Fool" (MGM), $7,000.

Shadyside (MOTC) (750; $1.25)—"Ashes and Diamonds" (Janus). Weak $1,500.

Squirrel Hill (SW) (834; $1.50)—"Waltz of Toreadors" (Cont) (3d wk). Fancy $2,800.

Stanley (SW) (3,700; $1-$1.50)—"Lady and Tramp" (BV) (reissue) and "Almost Angels" (BV) (2d wk). Hotsy $9,500. Last week, $13,000.

Warner (SW) (1,516; $1.50-$2.75) —"Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (10th wk). Wow $12,000. Last week, $14,000.

CHICAGO

(Continued from page 9)

$1.75-$3.50) — "Brothers Grimm" (MGM) (9th wk). Fair $13,000 or near. Last week, $13,600.

Monroe (Jovan) (1,000; 65-90)—"During One Night" (Indie) and "Concrete Jungle" (Indie) (reissue). Oke $4,600. Last week, "Portrait of a Sinner" (Indie) and "Roadhouse Girl" (Indie), $4,500.

Oriental (Indie) (3,400; 90-$1.80) —"Convicts 4" (AA). Fast $22,000 or close. Last week, "Thank Fool" (MGM) (3d wk), $12,000.

Roosevelt (B&K) (1,400; $1.75-$3.50) — "Longest Day" (20th). Wham $33,000 or near. Last week, house dark.

State-Lake (B&K) (2,400; 90-$1.80) — "Chapman Report" (WB) (2d wk). Slick $24,000. Last week, $37,000.

Surf (H&E Balaban) (685; $1.50-$1.80) — "Sky Above" (Embassy) (5th wk). Busy $4,000. Last week, $4,700.

